NEXT SUNDAY'S GAMES Kewaskum at Oshkosh Mayville at Port Washington. Sheboygan at West Bend. KEWASKUM 15, MAYVILLE 1

Fifteen hits, fifteen runs, that's the omplete story of last Sunday's ball game for the Athletics, which was played with the Mayville Firemen at Mayville, final score, Kewaskum 15, Mayville 1, This was the worst drubbing administered to the Firemen and no fire appartus was powerful enough to stop the onslaugh of the Kewaskum sluggers.

It is no need for us to go in full deails of this game, but will give a short immary as to how and in what innings the scores were made

A County Reemployment Committee Kewaskum in the first inning scored of prominent citizens representing wo runs on three hits, one error and employers, labor, relief agencies, etc., two men left or bases. In the second has been appointed by Mr. Roberts to nning they were retired in one, two, three order. Three runs were added tion of unemployed men who may apin the third on three hits, one error and ply for work. Mr. A. E. Roenthal has one man left on base. The fourth frame been placed in charge of registration netted an additional three runs with for Washington county. Offices will be only one hit, and one error committed located at the Highway Commissioner's by the Firemen. The fifth, sixth and Office, Court House, West Bend, Wis. seventh innings brought goose eggs to Registration of applicants began last the Athletics, but the bombardment started again in the eighth, when three runs were scored on three hits and

He advanced to second ter attempted to cut off the hit, fumwhen Zimmerman drev man popped a short fly behind third base, which was dropped by Marr, but Schaefer recovered the ball in time to relay it to Trotter at third forcing out Gershmele, Waas struck out. Krueger singled, Zimmerman scoring and Buchman went to second. Sorgent walked filling the bases. Loehrke grounded to Mari who threw to Trotter at third forcing Krueger .- One run, one hit, two errors for Kewaskum. Barron pitched the entire game for the Athletics in a masterly way. His pitching was the best seen at Mayville this year. Not only did he have seventeen strike-outs to his credit, but allowed only three hits. Of the first eleven men to face him he fanned ten. Krueger went the entire distance for the Firemen and received an unmerciful beating. Of the fifteen hits secured by the Athletics, four went for two bases, one for three bases, and three for home runs. He struck out only three men. By the way, Krueger received two of the three hits secured off of Barron's delivery. Kral had an exceptional well day. His catching was perfect. He either established a new record in baseball or at least tied it. The first eleven Firemen to bat were put outs for Fred. Of the eleven put-outs ten were strike-Fd the eleven put-outs, ten were strike outs and a foul fly, which Fred speared close to the grandstand. He had the best day of his baseball career at the works contractors and the agency will bat, swinging a mighty stick for a double and a home run. A second home run was missed by inches, going foul, Trotter was the only Athletic not able to connect safely with Krueger's curves. Nevertheless he played an exceptionally wel game atl third, making one of the most beautiful stops we've seen for some time. John Louis Schaefer came in for his share of the laurels. He received two hits, one a two bagger, which should have been an easy three base-hit, only for a dealyed run at second. His relay of the ball to third base of Marr's dropped fly in the fifth was a pretty play. His speed on bases was accountable for two stolen bases. What should we say of Gaffke? As Manager Dreher puts it, his bunting was terrible, getting only three hits out of four trips to the plate, onea zizzling grounder through short, a two bagger and a home run. A second home run was prevented when Buchman, the Fremen's left fielder stabbed Gaffke's long fly behind the flag pole in deep center in the seventh. Marr batted 500 for the day with a single, double and home run. Ellictt had an easy day at first base, having only three put-outs. He connected very hard with the ball, but was only successful in securing one hit. Wisniewski was in right field and than the market prefers, investigation came through with one hit. He was

Mr. Robert informs us that the local office will function throughout the duration of the project. Hence, there is no need for everyone to try to register the first day. Those who registered the first day will not be given any greater consideration than those who register later. Work will be assigned strictly on the basis of qualification.

Employable persons in families receiving county relief need not register at the local reemployment office as they will be automatically registered from the relief records by the case workers.

Persons who are employed at the present time should not attempt to register, as applications will be received only from unemployed men and not from those who merely wish to change one good job for another.

Employment agencies will be established in every county in the State as public works projects develop. Contractors are required to employ only Washington county men on Washing. walks of the village after supper. GT OHNNY, please don't propos to me now." Nancy suddenly said, sighing impatiently.

"You always propose to me when I'm watching Ted do something. Oh, look at that perfectly gorgeous loop! Ted told me if we'd come to the field today he'd keep my eyes on him. There's another, the reckless darling. Ted is grand at everything. isn't he?" Johnny grunted. If he hadn't been a gentleman he'd have gloried in seeing a wing fall off Ted's plane. Those maneuvers of Ted's were insultingly showy, just as his skillful forward-passing and his clever boxing and his dashing glee club solos were plays to the grandstand-and to Nancy. His hate for Ted was complete, as only a jealous hate can be. For Ted excelled in every phase of university life, even to the apparent winning of Nancy's favor, while Johnny was only-oh-"a likeable sort of chap."

Nancy suddenly turned to Johnny with scorn in her voice.

"Why don't you ever do anything bealde sitting on the side lines and proposing to me?" she demanded. "You can't fly-

"Mother says it would kill her if I ever went up in a plane," he faltered.

"You don't play football." "Mother always said it is too rough a sport.

"Oh, Johnny, you're hopeless, And yet you keep on proposing to me. Don't you realize that a girl wants the man who is proposing to her to be something, a football hero, a daring pllot, a boxer-a somebody? If you must propose, and can't be a hero, why don't you choose a romantic moment? Don't you even sing? I think," she said dreamingly, "that on a June night, with the scent of clematls in the air, the moon shining softly and a warm breeze blowing, if a man should sing the 'Londonderry Air' and then ask me to marry him I'd accept him, no matter who he was. Johnny," she begged, looking into his eyes, "choose the right time the next time you propose, but don't do it now, I must go-I'm going to my aunt's tonight and she expects me for dinner.'

Instead of feeling discouraged Johnny started jauntily to the music store an hour later, whistling merrily. Sing? Of course he could sing. Anyone could sing. Look at Ted, for instance, who sang two or three times a week over the university radio station. Why, he could sing rings around Ted, if he had just thought of it be-

"I want a song-'The Londonmerry Air,' or 'Londonjerry,'" he announced breezily to the clerk.

"You mean 'The Londonderry Air,' " she smiled patronizingly. She selected two songs from a sheaf of music. "Just glance through these arrange-

But something was horribly wrong. The high note was no longer attainable, and the low notes became too abysmally deep for him even to growl. "It's a flop!" Frustration bowed his head. "She would laugh at me. Oh. why can't I sing-like Ted? It isn't fair. Ted sings, and she gives him dates and sighs over his voice. Now, if I -" A cunning idea wormed its way into his thoughts. "I bet-oh, that will be rich. I'll make him my own little Cupid !" He threw back his head and roared with laughter. Johnny was no laggard. He ran from the house, down the street to town, to the pawnbroker.

"Twenty-five?" he gasped, holding out his prized wrist watch, a gift from his mother when he promised not to smoke until he was twenty-one. Five minutes later Johnny was dashing to the Beta house, minus his watch. He went upstairs three at a time.

"Are you singing tonight, Ted?" he asked, panting in Ted's doorway. "Yeah; at nine o'clock. Why?"

"It's this way, Ted: I've a heavy date for tonight, and a certain song can help me out tre-men-dous-ly. If you'll sing that song for me I'll give you fifteen bucks." "Who's your date?" Ted was suspicious

"She-she's a new girl in town," Johnny lied for the first time in his censored life.

"I don't see why not," Ted brightened up. "Anything to help an old friend." He pocketed the money. "Thanks, old man. I'll never forget

Johnny dashed back to his house, made sure of a date with Nancy, sent a freshman over to Ted's with "Danny Boy." Then he ran down town, ordered roses to be delivered to Nancy, and selected a gayly beribboned box of candy. At eight-forty he presented himself at Nancy's door, dressed in his best suit, with his hair slicked down, carrying, awkwardly, the box of candy. "I-1 just thought I'd drop in for a few minutes," he stammered. "Let's see-what time is it?" he located the clock and chose a chair facing it. The fire was crackling in the hearth, the flowers were in a bowl on the table, Nancy, in a blue dress, was nibbling at a piece of candy. He sighted relief. Everything was perfect. His moment had come. "May I turn on the radio?" he asked, after another glance at the clock. "Sure, Johnny. Tune Ted in. He's to sing at nine. I just love his voice." When the music started he would begin: "Nancy, dearest-" But the perfection was suddenly blighted. Johnny looked frowningly at the radio. That was not the 'Londonderry Air! Then Ted's voice rang out:

"Woman is fickle False altogether, Moves like a feather Borne on the breezes. Woman with the witching smile Will e'er deceive you." "Why, the dirty, double-crossing kunk!" gasped Johnny. "The low-

"Oh, Danny Boy, the pipes, the pipes are calling."

"The music is the same for both songs," the clerk assured him. "The tune is the old 'Londonderry Air.' "

Johnny paid for 'Danny Boy,' taking great care not to pick up the apple blossoms by mistake. Now for learning it!

He ran up the steps of the Sigma 4 house, went on up to the library, and opened his music out on the piano. The piano bench was missing, so he drew up an easy chair, sat on the arm of it, and pecking out the first few measures with one finger, he raised his voice in song.

"Oh, Danny Boy, the pipes, the pipes are calling." "A-hem," he cleared his throat, "Not so hot." He tried it again and again. It was hard to tell whether his finger or his voice was the more errant. Both were completely unreliable "Must be more to this singing racket than I thought," he finally acknowledged to himself. "Practice is all I need, though."

Suddenly the realization flashed over him that at Nancy's aunt's he would have no accompaniment. There would be no hidden orchestra, in the movie style, to support him with throbbing music. He would have to sing alone. But how would it sound? He tried it, standing by the easy

"Why, Johnny-Ted!" she wailed. "What on earth have you done, Johnny? You've ruined Ted."

"The dirty-" growled Johnny. "Both of you two-timing me," hissed Ted. "I didn't know your date-oh. no-A stranger in town! She handed me the same line about the song. I had already been working on it for my own use, you lousy-" and he muttered a choice epithet. "They're both cuckoo, Miss Allen," sighed the sergeant. "Shall I lock 'em up?

Nancy moved unhesitatingly over to Johnpy.

"Lock up my Johnny? I should say not. Why, Johnny and I are engaged. He just forgets his strength at times. I'll promise to help him keep his temper under control after this if you'll let him go." She widened her brown eyes pleadingly at the admiring sergeant, "Ted will apologize for all this disturbance, won't you. Ted?"

"Sure," muttered the cowering Ted, gingerly touching a tooth which was on the verge of departure from its

Wallace Intends to Protect Our Producers.

Washington .- If necessary to protect wheat producers from price depressing irpluses, Secretary Wallace said, the United States is ready to subsidize exports and to employ the "full powers" of the farm act.

In a formal statement he explained this course would be followed in the event of failure by the principal wheat producing nations to arrive at an international agreement to curb the out-

Wallace said orally at his press conference that his program could not properly be called "dumping." He said he understood the word to mean the sale abroad at sacrifice prices of quantities of a product in excess of normal exports. His intention, instead, he added, is to bring the exports of American wheat up to the normal movement of the past.

"I would call it subsidized exportation," he explained. In response to questions, however, he said his program likely would produce anti-dumping regulations from European countries

The sale of surplus quantities of wheat to the orient is now chiefly under consideration, he continued, explaining that oriental countries do not have anti-dumping regulations. The secretary issued his statement after receiving a report from Henry Morgenthau, Sr., American delegate to the Geneva and London wheat conferences. He said Morgenthau told him that

PRESIDENT SPEEDS CODE COMPLETION

Agreements by Basic Industries Are Urged.

Washington. - President Roosevelt ntervened to speed action on codes for the coal, steel and oil industries which threaten serious delay to the national recovery program.

After returning from St. Louis, where he addressed an NRA rally, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, was summoned to the White House. He spent an hour with Mr. Roosevelt and left hurriedly without comment.

Before conferring with the President, Mr. Johnson summoned his aides and obtained latest reports on developments in the coal industry. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, brought late information. The steel industry has heavy interests in coal corporations, and on the outcome of the coal fight may depend what happens to steel and its code Officials of the recovery administration admit apprehension over the bituminous coal situation. The industry is split over recognition of the United Mine Workers of America and over minimum wages.

In the vast coal regions of Pennsylvania, the problem is especially acute. It formed the basis of a conference between Governor Pinchot and President Roosevelt. The Pennsylvania governor reported the feeling in his state extremely tense. He frankly informed the President that it was vitally necessary that a coal agreement be reached them.

without further delay. As efforts were pushed to solve problems threatening the smooth progress of the recovery program, the first serious dissension in administration ranks ended in the resignation of Prof. William F. Ogburn, nationally known sociologist, from the consumers' advisory board. Ogburn clashed with Mrs. Mary Rumsey, chairman of the board, over policies. General Johnson and Secretary of Commerce Roper sought to transfer him to the central statistical board. Ogburn declined the transfer. In his letter of resignation he sharply criticized failure of recovery officials to protect the consumer from unwarranted price increases. George L. Googe of Atlanta, southern representative of American Federation of Labor, submitted to Edward F. McGrady of the recovery agency 500 complaints of textile code violations. Application of the agreement. Googe said, actually resulted in pay reductions for experienced workers.

Widow Denies Part in Rockford Torch Murder

Rockford, Ill .- Mrs. May Hanson, thirty-eight-year-old mother of two children, after a night in jail and eight hours of grilling, was taken to her country home, six miles west of Earl Hanson, forty-two, met his death in his flaming automobile, a death which authorities say was a murder. Hanson's flaming body was found beside his burning car a few minutes after he had brought his twelve-yearold daughter. June, back to her mother. Since their divorce Hanson had been allowed to have the daughter on Sundays each week.

Authorities believe the slayer of Hanson carried the gasoline from a container to the scene of the crime a few rods away in a porcelain bowl. The empty bowl, charred by fire, was found near the flame-wrecked automobile. Mrs. Hanson admitted the bowl belonged to her, saying she used it to water her chickens.

Oxydol is a new-type granulated soap. The latest scientific discovery of Procter & Gamble experts. A discovery that gives sparkling white wash every time-that stops washtub fading-cuts washing time in half-and gives bland, mild suds that are gentle to your hands. This is how it acts.

It takes the harshness out of so-called 'hard" water; the hardness that makes boiling, extra rubbing and strong soap necessary to get things white and clean.

Then, due to bland, cleansing qualities available in no other soap, flake or powder made, Oxydol DISSOLVES all dirt and grime; breaks it up, loosens it, and "suds" it away with

DON'T THINK YOU CAN'T WIN!

Nearly all the people who ever won the big prizes in a contest of this sort usually started out by believing they didn't have a chance. Then all of a sudden were amazed and surprised when they did.

USE OF MEAT IN BALANCED DIET

Suggestions on How to Practice Economy.

By EDITH M. BARBER

One of the questions which to me again and again has to do with the place of meat in the well-balanced diet. "I am trying to economize onmy food," writes one woman. "Is it necessary to use meat every day and are cheap cuts as nourishing as oth-

The answer-it is not necessary to use meat every day if you use instead some other protein food, such as fish, eggs, cheese, or nuts. It is possib' to use with these foods a small amount of meat for the sake of its flavor, which is so well liked by most persons that they are better satisfied with combination dishes for dinner than with those other protein foods.

The fact that meat prices are much lower than they have been for years is one of the high spots in the market situation at the moment-at least from the standpoint of the consumer. The less tender cuts which have always been less than the others, of course, have dropped to rock bottom. These are just as Itlavorful, when cooked properly, and of course, just as nutritive. From meat we get besides the protein, valuable iron, phosphorus, and vitamin G which has recently been recognized as playing such an important part in general well-being. In certain parts of the South where pellagra is a disease problem, it has en found that where lean meat is included in the diet, pellagra is prevented. This was not recognized for a long time because many persons on a diet which included pork were subject to this disease. Further investigation showed that they habitually used the very fat pork, low in lean meat. In the North where diets are usually

When it comes to lamb, all cuts should be tender because the meat animal is young. Very little mutton is marketed now. Breast of lamb and shoulder of lamb are the cheapest cuts, and breast of lamb with forcemeat stuffing is a particularly economical and at the same time attractive meat dish

BADGER FARMERS GET $734,000 Close LOANS IN JULY

Wisconsin Allowed 49 Per Cent of Funds for Period in 7th District

Wisconsin was allowed during July 49 per cent of the total loans approved by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, a compilation for the month reveals. This large proportion of the total for four states was due to the policy of the Farm Credit Administration in concentrating largely on farm mortgages held by osed banks, with a view to speeding the re-opening of these banks. This special group of mortgages, known as the "Wisconsin specials' amounted to $406,000, and took over the mortgages of 135 applicants. The remainder of the Wisconsin approvals comprised applications of 85 farmers for $328,000, the total of

Colbert, Arlen, Boland to Headline Smash Hit at the Palace

After seeing "Three-Cornered Moon," the Paramount new season smash hit which will open at the Palace theater Friday, this reviewer must pause and catch his breath and look up a few synonyms for hilarious, gay, frollcking, joyous and diverting. The picture was shown for a special group of newspaper critics last week at the Paramount headquarters on North Eighth street in Milwaukee.

Diverting, maybe, is a good word to apply to the characterization of Claudette Colbert, Richard Arlen and Mary Boland who hand out a thousand laughs when the grim reality of the depression catches up to them and brings them face to face with things for the first time. It will divert your attention from your own troubles and convince you that everything will soon be hotsy-totsy. So there's an uplift to this comedy, too.

Miss Colbert is charming and amusing. Arlen is exceptionally romantic in a straight role, the kind of a man you will love. Mary Boland, in the most unadulterated comedy role of the season, is the head of the family of Rimplegars (as nutty as their name) and is
