Officials of the Bank of Kewaskum on January 1st received a handsomely engraved membership certificate signed by Walter J. Under these temporary provisions the Bank of Kewaskum guarantees that all depositors of their bank will have their deposits insured up to a maximum of $2,500.

This guarantee law is one of the "New Deals" of the present Administration at Washington.

It should be gratifying for everyone in the community to learn that the Bank of Kewaskum was granted the membership. Being able to qualify for same is very good evidence that the officials of the bank have administered the affairs of their banking institution in a very efficient manner.

The second defeat came Wednesday evening of this week when the strong Allenton Five, on their own floor, gave the locals a severe drubbing, one that they will remember for Saturday evening.

The Girls' Five, however, have a different story to tell, that is, they were victorious in their first game played this season, defeating the Allenton Girls in the preliminary game by the thrilling score of 12 to 11.

DOUBLE HEADER BASKETBALL SATURDAY EVENING

On Saturday evening, Jan. 6th, a double header of basketball will be played in the High School gym.

NEW McCormick-Deering Spreader Features an ALL-STEEL Box

The new McCormick-Deering No. 4-A all-steel spreader is convenient, low to the ground, simple, and compact. It features a galvanized, rust-resisting, copperized, non-rusting, heavy-gauge steel box of 60 to 70-bushel capacity. Eight roller bearings and Zerk lubrication, combined with perfect alignment of all parts, make this new all-steel spreader unusually light in draft. Two horses can haul capacity loads in it all day long.

Five spreading speeds are provided, permitting the use of just the right amount of manure at all times. The manure is torn and shredded by a saw-tooth upper beater, a spike-tooth lower beater, and a wide-spread spiral before it is spread in an even layer over the soil. A special end gate can be provided for use when liquid manure is to be spread. A brake is available as special equipment. Also, there is a lime-spreading attachment which changes the No. 4-A into an efficient lime spreader.

MAKING HONESTY COMPULSORY

From the beginning of time, organized society has concerned itself with the effort to protect the weak against the strong. Away back in the beginning of human relations, there were honest men, easily exploited, and dishonest men, who found ways of taking their property away from the honest.

There is no means of legislating crookedness out of a crook. The deliberately dishonest will find loopholes through which to crawl, no matter what sort of laws are passed. Also, there is no way of making honest men, by law, into careful men. The fundamental weakness of the honest man, which makes him an easy victim for the dishonest, is that he credits everybody else with being as honest as he is himself. The crook, on the other hand, assumes that everybody else will take advantage of him unless he takes advantage of the other fellow first.

Fortunately, most men are honest. If that were not true, there would be no such thing as credit, upon which practically all business is based. But many are honest because it is the best policy, rather than inherently honest, because they abhor the idea of doing injustice to anyone, even when it is to their own profit.

The main purpose of the recent laws governing the practice of banking, the offering of securities for sale, the regulation of business and industry, is to make it more profitable to be honest than dishonest. That is what appeals to everybody, whether he is a crook or an honest man. It has been said that the system which is now being overhauled put a premium on dishonesty. We do not quite subscribe to that. We can think of a few examples of men who have accumulated great fortunes through dishonest methods, but the last state of these men has been worse than the first. Some are in exile, some in prison, some are execrated and cut off from the respect and confidence of their fellow-men.

All that law can do in this matter of honesty is to close some of the loopholes through which some of the big crooks crawled in the past. It cannot insure that a new crop of crooks will not find new methods of dishonesty.

She knows human nature and under the magic of her touch, the people about whom she writes become real people, not mere literary creations. The plots of her stories are based on incidents from real life as it is lived every day by the common people.

Such are the stories which are appearing in this newspaper. Be sure to read them and talk to your friends about them, for they like interesting stories, too. And Fannie Hurst's stories are interesting stories.

About Swagger Crochet Accessories

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Don't you just love to be the proud possessor of some one, or more than one, of these accessories? There are thought as that always count on after...

at all for it is possible to obtain working directions at most any place where materials for paper handicraft are sold. We might say, however, that the swagger collar, cuff and belt set photographed on the standing figure is done in the favorite fish net stitch.

For That "Perfect" Dinner

Hostess Must Remember That Quality of Service Is a Most Important Consideration in the Success of the Function.

The enjoyment of a meal, no matter how perfect the food, depends much upon the service. This is one of the points which we recognize more often in its absence than in its presence.

I had been there a number of times, and must have had excellent service because I enjoyed the well-prepared food and the pleasant surroundings, without distraction.

A day or two later I went down the Jersey shore and had luncheon at a small place run by a Scandinavian woman who directs and does part of the cooking herself.

The sailor collar, sketched to the left at the top, is a youthful design. It is knit, instead of crocheted, of white crepe paper with a contrasting strand of the paper drawn through between the border and the collar.

The sporty girdle or belt, sketched to the right above, is crocheted from brown crepe paper, cut in strips, stretched and twisted. The crocheting is done in the favorite popcorn stitch and the finished effect in the brown is distinctly that of leather.

From the top of her night club piano Helen Morgan looks about her and sees curves and still more curves and finds them all delightful.

Household Diary Has Real Value

Matters Worthy of Record Can Be Chronicled for Reference.

The day of the diarist as a recorder of events in literary style seems to have passed almost completely. But this does not indicate that diaries are not kept.

One of the best diaries for the home is an impersonal household diary. For example, in it are set down such data as when furnace fuel was bought, and when a new supply was necessary.

Such a household record is a fine thing to have, as by referring to it, it will be discovered what the upkeep of the furniture amounts to, whether the price paid for the new piece was reasonable or not.

It is by such jottings in few words that this sort of diary proves valuable. The personal element is eliminated, or at least, minimized.

Should Man Know Himself?

Great Writer Has Advised It, but Homely Philosopher Points Out Some Impracticabilities That Seem to Have Point.

"It seems to me that if we knew ourselves better we might have a better opinion of the world," said Mr. Cato Nixontalis; "and it is quite probable that if we knew ourselves better the world would have a better opinion of us."

"The ordinary workaday variety of us—that is, most of us—do not feel that we could paint a picture, carve a statue or play a violin in a way that would be acceptable to the discriminating taste of the world; but in contemplating more practical—and more profitable—occupations we have a feeling, which is easier to assume than to defend, that if we could get the job we want, the working of it would tend to itself pleasantly and advantageously enough."

That's an old saying but it isn't true any more. At least, it hasn't been true since P. O. Alexander added "Finney of the Force" to the list of famous comic strip characters. For "Finney," with his twinkling humor and his shrewd comment on people and the common everyday events of life, is a lovable character, as thousands of newspaper readers who have followed him through his various adventures will testify.

"Finney of the Force" is a regular feature in this newspaper with whom our subscribers are acquainted, and all enjoy him. Then tell your friends about him, for they will enjoy him as much as you do.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 4. (Autocaster)—The first regular session of the 73rd Congress of the United States will make history, for several reasons. First this is the first session under the 20th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which shifted the date for the sitting of Congress from the first Monday in December to the early days of January. Second, this will be the only regular session of this Congress, which was called in extra session by President Roosevelt immediately after his inauguration last Spring. Next November there will be another will be no "lame duck" session of the present Congress. Their successors will take their seats in January, 1935; so anything which the present Congress wants to get done will have to be done at this session.

Third, and more important of the items which seem likely to make this session of Congress memorable, it will have to decide whether the United States of America is going to "swing to the left" and go in for a Socialism in its more radical form, or whether the fiddle-of-the-road policy, neither radical nor ultra-conservative, is going to be the guiding principle for further progress toward recovery.

SET-UP OF CONGRESS
What Congress will decide is anybody's guess as yet, but some of the considerations which will contribute toward the decision are obvious.

This is a Democratic Congress. That party has 316 members, as against only 114 Republicans and five Farmer-Labor. That, on the face of it, if recent political history counted for anything, would mean a decidedly conservative attitude; for the Democratic party has been almost as conservative as the Republicans since 1920. Indeed, many of the most radical members of both houses in the past few years have worn the Republican label. The only party represented which is avowedly radical is the Farmer-Labor.

But political labels count for little or nothing in these days. There is still a strong conservative element in the Democratic party, but it is nowhere nearly as dominant as it was four years ago. And in Congress there is no strong leadership that can hold the various elements of the party together if its members show signs of splitting up into minor groups. The only leadership is in the White House or outside of public life entirely. Beyond doubt there will be vigorous efforts made to form a conservative Democratic bloc, to stand as a bulwark against the assaults of the radical element. How far that effort will succeed will depend upon how far the President goes in proposing or assenting to a program more radical than that which he asked for, and got, last Spring.

THE ROOSEVELT SUCCESS
Just where the President will stand, as between the eager young revolutionist in his Administration, who would turn the nation over to Socialism willy-nilly, and the conservative element, which thinks his program as developed so far contains elements of danger and needs trimming, is as yet a matter of opinion. Mr. Roosevelt's success as a practical politician is largely due to the fact that he does not tip his hand in advance. There is no doubt that the majority will follow him wherever he leads, but there is a good deal of doubt as to whether most of them would follow him any farther to the left.

Every member is keenly conscious that his term of office expires at the end of this calendar year, and that the only way he can get back into Congress is by the vote of the constituency that elected him last year. And most of them don't know, yet, how their constituents like the New Deal as far as it got. They are going to view every new proposal with one eye on the voters of their home districts. This is one session when Congress will have its collective ear close to the grassroots, to catch the first mutterings of approval or disapproval.

Last Spring, in the extra session, there were no such misgivings. They had been elected in the greatest political landslide in our history, along with Mr. Roosevelt, in response to a universal clamor for a "New Deal." The precise nature of the "New Deal" was not clear in the minds of the voters, of the members of Congress, perhaps not even in that of the President. But they knew their constituents were behind them in desiring something to be done, and that speedily. They didn't try to figure it out for themselves, but gave the President broad powers to run the United States about as he saw fit. It was frankly an experiment, but that was what everybody wanted. They were tired of the policy of waiting for the normal jaws of economics to operate, and anything that promised to hurry up the process was all right with them.

IT'S UP TO THE PRESIDENT
Now they have had a sample of the New Deal. That it has pleased many so far is undeniable. The President has the situation in his hands, and no doubt will do everything in his power to strengthen and purify the present system of finance, industry and business.

If he does that, he can solidify the Democratic party and make a powerful and enduring force for years to come.

It is hardly likely that anything that can occur between now and election

LOANS FROM FEDERAL LAND BANK HELP PAY TAXES

Paying of taxes by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul on farms on which it holds mortgages has poured $2,375,000 into the county treasuries of many counties in all four states of the 7th Farm credit district, eliciting many letters of thanks from county treasurers, who in some cases stated this was the first cash they had seen for months.

It is believed this will enable many schools that had closed to reopen and others to remain open, and that it may pay the salaries of many teachers, whose warrants have been difficult to cash in recent months. Loans are being reamortized and taxes paid only in cases approved by National Farm Loan associations.

In Minnesota there were 2,339 farmers whose loans are being reamortized, who had been unable to pay their taxes because of low prices and the recent depression, and who were saved payment of approximately $30,000 in penalties because the Land Bank paid these taxes before the end of the year. Scores of letters have come from grateful borrowers expressing their appreciation. In all the Minnesota tax payments were approximately $312,000.

North Dakota mortgagees numbering 5,346, whose loans are being reamortized are having $1,094,000 in taxes paid by the bank, it is announced, the tax payments in this state having been heavier than in any of the others. All of these taxes are being paid in time to avoid further penalties.

Wisconsin farmers to the number of 2,104 have also been relieved of immediate payment of $267,000 in taxes on farms which are having their loans reamortized, and of penalties by the bank's prompt action.

In Michigan similar action was taken in October and Michigan borrowers were saved about $20,000 in penalties, the total taxes on reamortized loans in that state having amounted to $175,000. These payments were made within a period of two days, when it was learned this would be necessary in order to save heavy additional cost, to the farmer borrowers.

The $2,375,000 in tax payments advanced by the bank in the four states has benefited 10,544 borrowers who will later repay the amount. Meantime this total sum would not have reached county treasuries in many instances for months to come, while further penalties would have accrued against the already overburdened farmers.

SMALL PRODUCTION OF FARM PRODUCTS EXPECTED IN 1934

If the total farm production in the United States in 1934 follows the general production trend of the past two years, the coming year will find American farmers offering to the public the smallest supply of food stuffs in the past twelve years.

This is indicated in a recent issue of Economic Information for Wisconsin Farmers, prepared by farm economists at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Contrary to general opinion, there has been no exceptional increase in total production of farm products in this country. Instead, the production of farm products has been about constant during the past decade. In no year, since 1915, has the combined production of the ten principal crops equalled the production of that year.

Statistics for these farm crops in the United States show that the production of wheat, corn, and oats, in 1933, with the exception of the small crop crops of 1901 and 1930, was the lowest in the present history.

Although the total production of dairy products has steadily increased since 1900, the increase has been no greater than population growth, it is pointed out. The trend in meat production has been similar to that of dairy products.

Over-production, if by over-production is meant an exceptional increase in production, cannot explain the drastic fall in prices of all farm products, either from 1920 to 1921 or from 1929 to 1933, the report states, in commenting upon the price situation. The changes that brought on these price declines were changes in demand, in both foreign and domestic markets.

SMALL LOAN INTEREST RATE CUT STANDS

The small loan interest rates from 3 1/2 per cent monthly to 1 1/4 per cent became effective last week, Friday afternoon, after the state banking commission at Madison at the last minute denied the pleas from small loan firms for suspension of the lower rate.

The commission set the lower rate on an experimental basis, expecting to make alterations if it proves unsatisfactory in operation.

The small loan firms made an effort to be permitted to charge the higher rate and sought suspension of the order, charging that under the 1933 statute the commission had no authority to fix an "experimental" rate.

It is expected that the loan companies will contest the order in court, arguing that the new rate is too low to sustain their operating capital and to attract new capital needed to perpetuate the business.

will throw Congress back to Republican control for the Republican party, in and out of Congress, is like a ship without rudder or sails. It is a pretty nearly a total loss at this writing.

Perhaps the most important thing to come out of this session of Congress will be sane and forceful leadership under which the opposition can be effectively organized.
