GRAMMAR ROOM

The following students have not been absent during the first semester: Edward Bunkelman, Harold Manthel, Violet Eberle, Marlin Schneider, Charlotte Romaine, Harold Bartelt, and Annabelle Grotenhuis.

The second volume of Rugg's Social Science is being used for our second semester's work.

An old two cent piece was found last week by one of our room. It was a curiosity to all of us as this old form of money is rare.

A nuthatch, found by Florence Westerman of the high school and donated to the Grammar Room, is a source of great interest to us. By popular vote he has been named "Pop-Eye." In spite of his prison, he is a very lively and energetic fellow.

Miss Smith's class in English I has recently completed its work on Treasure Island, in connection with which many interesting things were made by the students. Among these things are: a miniature stage depicting two scenes from the story, "A model of Billy Bones' sea chest," three splendid models of the Hispaniola, the boat used on the treasure hunt, as well as many booklets containing pictures and maps illustrating the story.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS ANOTHER

In the basketball game played at Brandon last Friday night our boys were again victors.

Due to the zone defensive used rather effectively by Brandon, the scoring early in the game was light. However, as the game progressed our boys became more successful in getting "in" for shots and the half ended 12-5, Kewaskum.

Late in the third quarter the score stood 15-9, and that margin looked large and safe. The quarter ended 18 to 11 and still the margin looked large enough. At this juncture, however, Brandon got two field goals to run their score to 15 and we were, in the meantime, unable to score. With three baskets from the field and one from the free throw stripe our count was run to 25 and Brandon failed to tally again. So stood the score as the game ended, 25-15 in Kewaskum's favor.

Throughout the greater part of the game our defense was very good, and the same can be said of the offense although the latter was somewhat streaky.

Every team member contributed no small part in piling up our score. The scoring was divided as follows: Miller 8, Klein 2, Rosenheimer 5, Honeck 5, and Smith 5.

On Friday of this week we play Lomira on our home court. This game should be one of the toughest of the year. Lomira has been very much interested in changing the personnel of our team, so our boys are out to avenge for such treatment.

Don't miss this one.

Our game with Rosendale will be played next Wednesday rather than Friday night due to our class play.

CLASS PLAY FEBRUARY 16-17

Tickets now being sold by the students for the Senior Class Play are finding a ready sale. The advance sale is in advance of former years, and all indications point to a capacity attendance on both evenings for which the play is to be given. Get your tickets now, and have reservations made at Miller's Drug Store. Remember the date, Friday and Saturday evening, Feb. 16 and 17.

The play selected "Treasure Trove Tavern" is a character play and is filled with many humorous situations. Everyone will surely get a laugh at the impersonations of Eve St. Regis, and out of the appearance of the ghost of Azariah Hoagfield. It will also be worth your time and the price of admission to see Adam Pottle Court "Little Eve." These are only a few of the many humorous situations continually arising throughout the three acts of the play.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF MR. AND MRS. MATH. THULL

St. Michael's church was the scene of a very solemn and impressive celebration on Monday February 5th. Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Thull of Town Farmington, highly respected members of St. Michael's congregation and citizens of the community celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

The solemn church services began promptly at 9:30 a.m. The Venerable Jubilarians came to the altar under the soft strains of the organ where the pastor, Reverend Pather Beyer, addressed them in appropriate words, pointing out the dignity of the occasion as an act of gratitude to Almighty God for the many graces and favors received during the half century of their faithful wedded life. The couple again renewed their marriage vows of love and fidelity of fifty years ago and received the blessing of the church.

At the solemn high mass which followed, Father Beyer was the celebrant, Rev. Edw. Rodenkirk of St. Peter, a cousin of Mr. Thull, the Deacon, Rev. Ph. J. Vogt of Kewaskum, the Subdeacon. The Jubilarians, their sons and daughters with their families received holy communion during the mass.

The St. Michael's church choir of which Mr. Thull is a member over 55 years, sang the Jubilee mass by Guber and the "Jubilata Deo" by Singenberg at the Offertory in a masterly manner. The solemn services closed with Te Deum. Mrs. Frank Thull, daughter-in-law of Mr. Thull presided at the organ. Flower children for the couple were three grandchildren, Ursula Thull, Althea Volmer and Vincent Stockhausen.

After the church services a public reception was held in the St. Michael's auditorium where an elaborate banquet was served to about one hundred guests, relatives and the church choir. The afternoon and evening were spent in a social way, the church male quartette rendering both vocal and musical programs to entertain the visitors and guests. Mr. and Mrs. Thull were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Mr. Math. Thull was born in 1859 and Mrs. Margaret Thull in 1860. They were married in the old St. Michael's church on February 5, 1884 by Rev. Father Welbes. They have always lived in Town Farmington and have always been most active members of the St. Michael's congregation, considering their loyalty to their church as a prime factor for a good citizen, and thus took a great delight in building up the Faith in this community. Mr. Thull has held many responsible offices in church and civic affairs, having been a church trustee and counselor for many years, president of the St. Michael's Ben. & Aid society for over 30 years, director of the Orchard Grove cheese factory, and a director of the Barton State Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Thull have three sons and three daughters living, Frank, Os'car, Sylvester and Mrs. Herman Volmer at St. Michaels, Mrs. John Stockhausen of Town Trenton, and Mrs. Henry J. Kircher of Barton. They have 27 grandchildren.

It is the earnest wish and prayer of their many friends that God may spare them for many years to come, that they may celebrate their Diamond Jubilee. Ad Multos Annos!

THREE CAMPBELLSPORT OFFICIALS RESIGN

The new state liquor control law brought forth that three Campbellsport village board officials were compelled to resign their positions, as the law prohibits persons identified with any business connected with the sale of liquor from serving on governing bodies, such as city councils, town and village boards and allied groups.

At the village board meeting held in Campbellsport last Monday evening resignations of three members of the board were presented. They are President William Warden, who is a soft drink manufacturer, H. A. Wrucke, a former supervisor of that village and a former member of the assembly from the 2nd district, Fond du Lac county was elected to succeed Mr. Warden.

Trustee Frank J. Bauer, distributor for the West Bend Lutha Co. He is succeeded by James P. Gilboy, and Adolph Flittler, Trustee, who is succeeded by Alfred Van De Zande, a former sheriff of Fond du Lac county.

Provision of the new law are said to apply to anyone who sells anything to taverns, such as ice, candy, soft drinks, beer, liquor, cigars, cigarettes, food, fuel and other products. Even lawyers retained by tavern owners or brewers are held to be barred from local governing positions.

The action taken at the Campbellsport village board meeting was the first of its kind in the state. It is expected numerous similar actions will be taken throughout the state very shortly.

LOCAL RED CROSS CHAPTER AIDS CWA

Mr. W. E. Dick Regional Safety Director at Resthaven, Waukesha, announces that the Safety Department in conjunction with the Washington county Chapter of American Red Cross is sponsoring a fifteen-hour First Aid course on February fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth, at the Court House building in West Bend. This course will cover the use of First Aid Kits which will be used by all Safety Men on projects active at the present time.

The first supply of such kits furnished by the Federal Civil Works Administration was received by the Regional Safety Director, Mr. W. S. Dick on Saturday, February 3rd, and he announces that they have been distributed and are now in use throughout his district, Waukesha, Waukesha and Jefferson counties.

Since the Safety Department was opened the early part of January the accidents have decreased rapidly from week to week until at the present time almost all accidents reported are minor, with very few lost time accidents to be covered by compensation. Washington county should feel proud of the showing the Safety Department has made, proving the promise the Federal Civil Works Administration made when organizing the Safety Department that "CWA jobs would be safe jobs."

Arrangement of class organization and instructions of the fifteen-hour course is under the supervision of Mrs. H. W. Kuester, chairman of Washington county Chapter American Red Cross. Any further information can be obtained by calling Mrs. H. Kuester, Phone 145 at West Bend, or Mrs. Chas. Reid, Executive Secretary, Hartford Branch Washington County Chapter, Hartford, Wisconsin.

EXTEND TIME FOR PAYMENT OF TAXES

The governing bodies of cities, villages and towns may authorize the extension of the time for payment of 1933 real estate taxes to June 1, 1934, according to a new law passed by both houses of the Wisconsin legislature. The extension will amount to a waiver of penalty and interest charges on delinquent taxes to June 1.

The act provides that, by a two-thirds vote, the governing body of any city, village, or town may authorize the local treasurer to extend the time for payment of 1933 real estate taxes up to and including June 1, 1934, but taxpayers desiring to take advantage of the proposed extension will be required to file an affidavit with the local treasurer requesting the extension.

Local treasurers will continue to collect taxes as usual until the time of the regular settlement with the county treasurer on March 22, 1934.

From March 22, 1934 to June 2, 1934, taxpayers who have filed affidavits may pay their taxes to the county treasurer without penalty or interest.

Tax sales of the delinquent portion of the 1933 levy will be postponed until the first Tuesday in August, 1934. Ordinarily tax sales are held on the second Tuesday in June.

While the extension of payment of 1933 real estate taxes is optional with the localities, the postponement of the 1934 tax sale to the first Tuesday in August is mandatory.

The completion of 28 units for organizing Production Credit Associations in Wisconsin was recently announced. Most of these consist of two or three counties. Ten or more eligible farmer-borrowers may sign articles of incorporation and when the association is legally established it may obtain short term credit for production purposes from the Federal Intermediate Credit bank for its members at a six per cent interest rate.

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL NOW BECOMES A LAW

After a seven weeks' battle among the legislators at Madison, the liquor control bill was enacted into law by the signing of same by Gov. Schmedeman last week Friday.

In conformity with the new law just enacted the towns, cities and villages of Wisconsin must adjust their local liquor ordinances at once.

In some communities the changes will be slight while others may have to draw up entirely new ordinances. The latter will be the case for the village of Kewaskum. The village fathers are awaiting copies of the new law before taking action.

According to the new law the tavernkeeper no longer is allowed to sell intoxicants by bottle. He may continue to sell by the drink. How closely he observes the law, however, depends upon the peace officers who have jurisdiction over him. The state government has no enforcement machinery.

All taverns, no matter where located, must close by 1 a.m., and if the law is strictly enforced it will not be possible to buy a bottle of liquor after 9 p.m., except possibly at hotel bars.

Liquor stores, which sell by the bottle only must close by 9 p.m. So far as the state law is concerned hotels may take out two licenses, but local governing bodies can take away this privilege. They also may provide earlier closing hours, as legislators interpret the law.

The license fees for taverns and liquor stores may range from $50 to $500 but both classes of dispensaries must be treated alike.

Any local council member who has any kind of business interest in the retail trade cannot legally serve upon a license committee.

One of the latest bills approved by the legislature is that of a state tax of $1.00 on a gallon of whiskey and the like and 25 cents a gallon on wines and other beverages under 21 per cent alcoholic content. Another was the extension of the $1.00 a barrel tax on beer. Other new laws provide:

All bottle liquors must have labels on the bottles showing just what they contain. If there are imitations it must be so stated.

It will be optional instead of mandatory with county boards whether they shall revoke the licenses of dance hall proprietors on whose premises liquor is sold.

All agents of liquor dealers must get permits from the state treasurer.

County fairs may sell beer without danger of losing their state aids.

Apple cider can be manufactured and sold without restrictions.

RESERVES 26, WAYNE 22

In the preliminary game between the Kewaskum Reserves and Plymouth, the Reserve boys had a neat tussle on their hands and had a close call of being defeated. The locals, however, held a small margin at the end of each period. The Wayne boys put up a very good game and at times threatened the locals' score. The score by periods was as follows:

First quarter, Reserves 8, Wayne 3. Half, Reserves 16, Wayne 10. Third quarter, Reserves 22, Wayne 13. Final score, Reserves 26, Wayne 22.

RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY CARRIES BURDEN OF TAXES

Forty-five per cent of Wisconsin's $4.3 million dollar tax levy for 1932 (paid in 1933) was levied upon residential property, according to a study of the general property tax just completed by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

Taxes levied on residential land and improvements in Wisconsin in 1932 and paid in 1933 amounted to $42,007,083 of the $94,304,494 total general property tax levy in the state.

Mercantile land and improvements ranked second; the levy on this type of property amounted to $18,264,619; while agricultural land and improvements closely followed with a levy of $14,514,533.

Real property bears the burden of 91 per cent of all general property taxes, while personal property such as jewelry, merchants' and manufacturers' stock of goods, cattle, sheep, live, bear tobacco, steamboats, launches, etc., bears the remaining nine per cent.

Twenty-three per cent of all property taxes were levied in towns. Almost 64 per cent of the town levies were levied on land, and another 30 per cent on improvements on land.

This apportionment is reversed in cities, where taxes levied on land amount to less than one-third and improvements aggregate three-fifths of the total city tax levy. About 70 per cent of the total property taxes were levied in cities. Residential property pays 54 per cent of the city general property tax levy.

About seven per cent of all taxes are levied in villages, and residential real estate pays about 58 per cent of this amount.

The highest average tax rate for any class of property is paid by mercantile real estate—$28.97, while the lowest rate falls on agricultural real estate where the average levy is $15.68 per $1,000 assessed valuation. Residential property paid an average tax rate of $26.78 per $1,000 in 1932.

FUNDS IN BANKS RELEASED

The state banking department on February 1st authorized the release of $4,389,062 in deferred deposits in nine Wisconsin banks. Most of the deposits were released through loans received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which purchased bank debentures, stated Banking Commissioner J. M. Schaefer. The RFC will loan a total of approximately $50,000,000 to release such deposits in Wisconsin.

Two banks in Fond du Lac county which now will operate on a normal basis after being on a restricted basis for more than a year, and deposits releases are:

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

By COSMO HAMILTON

WITH queer emotion Cruickshanks said, "Look upon me as the Big Joke as everybody does, but let me tell you this. I'd exchange my millions at any moment, every cent of 'em, for your empty pockets, your gorgeous laugh, your flying exploits and your confidence in yourself."

This strange and unexpected confession took Worthing's breath away. He asked, "What's the great idea? You were telling me that you'd like to marry that girl in the hotel. You said you'd give your hopes of heaven if she'd be your wife. I said, 'Why make any such sacrifice? Tell her about your money. Tell her you're Cruickshanks' Cosmic Corn Cure and she'll leap into your arms.'"

A hand was clapped over his mouth. Cruickshanks went pale with horror. "Don't mention," he said, "those awful words again. But that's the explanation. The words sum it up. I'm a comic-tragic figure. I'm America's Big Joke. I'm ashamed of my wealth and the thing that's gained it and of being the national laugh. It's followed me all through life. From my first day at school when every boy grinned and yelled out, 'Hello, how's your feet?' and the teacher made fun of me to establish himself as a wit. Ever since then the corn cure has been flung into my face."

I go into a store and have only to give my name to see the grin curving in everybody's eyes. Every living clerk says, 'Hi wearing one of 'em now. The old familiar joke is cracked wherever I happen to be. I get into conversation with grave and elderly men and am treated as an ordinary person until the exchange of cards. Then the laugh, then the deadly grin. Others wouldn't care. Others would take the money and spend it over pride. But I was born with the desire to be a heroic figure. Bob—a preacher, a soldier, a poet, a member of a glorious profession which brings honor and respect. How, as the Big Joke, without humiliation, can I ask a girl to be my wife when I know she will burst out laughing and immediately refer to my feet?"

His soul was in depression and there was suffering on his face. He watched Bob Worthing, called to the telephone, make for the hotel. When he returned from a lonely walk it was with the dire expectation of meeting the well-known grin. But the clerk leaped over his counter and came up with a smile. His expression was respectful and even obsequious. "How do you like Northeast Harbor, doctor? It's the greatest place on earth."

An elderly gentleman, puffing a little, extended an admiring hand. "I am honored to greet our most distinguished scientist at this hotel," he said.

A charming woman with white hair hurried in from the porch. "Let me be among the first to welcome you," she said. "We have had many distinguished visitors but you're the most thrilling of all."

Cruickshanks held his breath. He had heard of his famous namesake who was known all over the world. He stood with a whirling head. It was a case of mistaken identity. Should he let it stand? Being so desperately in need of a mental and spiritual tonic should he succumb to temptation and enjoy the flattery of deference which he had never had? "It delights me and it frightens me," he muttered, marching up and down.

"But as I'm not responsible for being taken for some one else I will let it up to fate. I'll let things take their course, at least for several days. It will give me the needed confidence to meet that dear sweet girl."

With a rapid increase of pulse he saw that she had come out through the big door and was now facing the sea. She epitomized the ideal wife whose imaginary picture he had hung up in his house. As Charles G. Cruickshanks he would not have had the courage to say a single word. As the famous Doctor Cruickshanks was quite a different thing. "Glorious weather," he said.

She gave him a charming smile. "It's perfectly wonderful."

"How long are you going to be here?" He had never seen such eyes. "Well, it rather depends on father. He's fond of moving about."

He had never seen such hair. "My plans are a little uncertain, but I should love to take you sailing while I am here." The fact that all of a sudden he had become a man of distinction gave him the immediate gift of an easy flow of words. It seemed to him that they might have been friends for years. It seemed to him that she treated him not as a celebrated person but as an ordinary nice man whom she appeared to like very much. She saw in him, he thought, one who was naturally eager to enjoy a little sail and the pleasure of being with her.

But before the girl could answer a short and perky person, obviously pugnacious, issued from the hotel. He bore down upon Cruickshanks, bearing a large fat book. "Have you studied the law?"

"Studied the law?" said Cruickshanks, and failed to understand. "Do you know anything about the various punishments for misrepresentation of facts?"

"No," said Cruickshanks sharply. "Please explain what you mean." A gleeful smile spread itself all over the intruder's face. "Impersonation," he said, "with attempt to delude and defraud. Two, five, seven and ten years are often given for that."

"You may be right," said Cruickshanks, "but why on earth tell me?"

"To protect the good-natured and gullible people who are staying in this hotel. The famous Doctor Cruickshanks, according to this book, is a big man in every sense of the word. Age, fifty-six. Head, hairless—magnificent dome. Face, large, noble—a patriarchal beard. I have just looked at his photograph and that's how I look."

Drops of icy water ran down Cruickshanks' spine. His voice had disappeared.

Mary Marbury spoke. "What makes you suppose that this gentleman passed himself off as the man who wrote that book?"

"He told the clerk he was."

"He did nothing of the sort. If you'll look in the register you'll find that my friend signed as 'C. G. Cruickshanks' as he always does. The misleading statement as to his being Doctor Cruickshanks was made by a good-looking young man who has a gorgeous laugh. I heard him. I was standing at the desk. Don't feel that you are bound to stay. You may have something better to do."

"Thank you. Thank you," said Cruickshanks. "I thought you were Joan of Arc."

"No," she said, "Mary Marbury of Middleboro, Mass."

Cruickshanks saw a light. It was Bob, his only friend except Mary, who, on the spur of a kind but mistaken moment, had formed this troublesome scheme to kill the corn cure laugh. How long would it be before it rippled from the charming lips of his capable ideal? It would kill him when it came. Was it conceivable that she, alone among mortals, had never heard of the dreadful meaning that it conveyed to other men? But her hand was warm on his arm.

"Let's go sailing tomorrow," she said. "Shall we say ten o'clock sharp? Fair and warm, I shouldn't wonder, with a lovely sailing wind."

He possessed himself of her hand. He wished to heaven that he had French blood. He would have raised it to his lips. Tomorrow at ten o'clock sharp. But how could he deceive her? He had waited so long to find her and she was far too good for that.

He pulled himself together and swallowed something hard. She felt a sudden tremble in his hand. She thought how nice he was and how extremely kind he looked. She liked his meditative expression. He was modest, self-effacing and queerly humble, she thought. He seemed to her to have the right to look into the eyes of Destiny without the slightest fear. He was on the sunny side of thirty, too-old enough to have suffered, old enough to be young.

"I feel that I must tell you that the initials against my name stand for Charles G., as those of my father did."

"Yes, I know," she said.

And still there was no laugh.

"But I feel that I ought to tell you," he said "to be perfectly honest and fair, that I am the—The Cosmic Corner."

Her fingers became warmer than ever in his hand.

"I know," she said, with a grateful smile. "That's why I came to your rescue. That's why I like you so much. One good turn deserves another. I'm wearing one of them now."

Another Use for Sugar

—Windows Made From It

Windows of houses, motor cars and other transparent articles may be made from treacle, a sirup obtained from refining sugar. An English scientist has developed a method which may prove one of the most important inventions for many years. At the present time the world produces more sugar than it can use for food.

The invention, as described in London Tit-Bits, is a process by means of which crude sugar in the form of molasses or treacle can be converted into a substance as hard and as transparent as glass. It has, moreover, the valuable property of passing the health-giving ultra-violet rays which are stopped by ordinary window glass. The material can be blown, molded or rolled, just like glass.

French First to Educate the Blind

The first school for the blind was established in Paris in 1785. Others followed in several European cities, but none in America for more than forty years, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The first in this country was founded in Boston through the efforts of Dr. John D. Fisher, a young physician who had visited the French school. It was incorporated by act of the legislature on March 2, 1829, as the New England Asylum for the Blind.

The state granted it aid from the beginning, and active work was begun in 1831. Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe was chosen director, and under his supervision the institution soon surpassed all those in Europe.

Col. Thomas H. Perkins had given his mansion in Pearl street, Boston, for the use of the asylum, which was named in his honor as the Perkins institute and Massachusetts Asylum (no. school) for the Blind.

many improvements were made in the apparatus for the education of the blind. Exhibitions of the pupils were given before legislatures and educators to encourage them to make provision for the blind of their own states. Instructors trained in the methods of the Perkins institution carried Doctor Howe's principles into new fields, so that his contribution now can hardly be estimated.

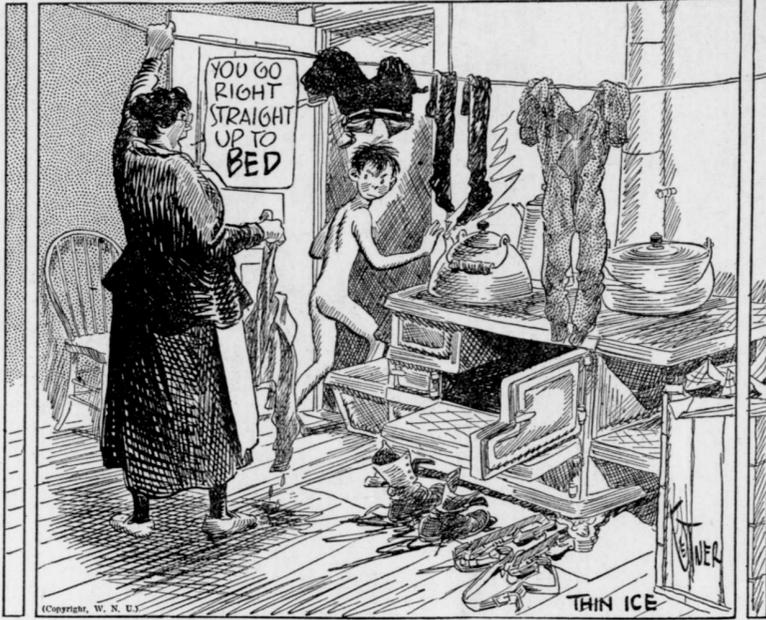

Among the names of famous pupils of the Perkins institution are those of Laura Dewey Bridgman, Oliver Caswell and Helen Keller.

Dead Sea Fruit

The Dead sea has become useful through contacts of modern science. Each year the River Jordan of Biblical fame deposits 40,000 tons of potash. These tons come from the hot springs of Galilee. Bromine from the Dead sea is used for dyes, antiknock motor oil and other things. Scientists have figured that it has taken 50,000 years for these salts to form.

"Well, sir," said Tommy, "they don't swear."

DIETETIC NEEDS OF DAILY MENUS

Careful Study of Provisions Is Recommended.

By EDITH M. BARBER EACH one of us needs every day some muscle building foods, which we know as proteins. As we have said before, all foods provide us with calories and may be burned in the body to use as fuel or energy.

Not all foods which burn, however, will build and repair tissue. Certain foods, such as milk, meat, fish, eggs, cheese, nuts and such vegetables as beans, peas and lentils furnish building material in generous amounts. The body will take what it needs and the rest will be used to supply fuel and energy. This, except the last mentioned, is an expensive kind of fuel, however, as we can get of others which will heat just as well. Protein also uses up energy, as it burns in the system. It is not always easy for the body organs to take care of an overload of protein. For these reasons the protein in the diet should not be too high, but should be an important item.

While children are young they need more protein to help build new tissue. About 15 per cent of the calories needed each day should come from protein in a child's diet, about 10 per cent in a man's diet. This does not mean that children should have larger sized portions of protein in food than adults, but more in comparison to the total amount of food needed. Of course children depend largely for their building material upon milk. Milk furnishes protein of the best quality, besides so many other necessary food elements. A quart of milk a day is a safeguard for muscle building, as well as for other counts. Infants will get all the protein needed from this and older children will get the largest portion of their need. With an extra added every day for the sake of protein, minerals and vitamins, children will get plenty of building material almost automatically, as other foods which appear daily in the diet will supply extra. Cereals and bread have appreciable amounts, although they are classed usually as fuel foods. Peanut butter, cheese, dried peas and beans are high in protein and should be used occasionally. Meat and fish should be used in small quantities where children have a liberal diet containing these other muscle building foods.

Where there is a medical reason for reducing the meat and fish in the diet, or where there is a preference for a vegetarian menu, it is possible to find a liberal supply of protein by the use of milk, cheese, eggs, nuts and the legumes, such as beans, peas and lentils.

While adults, after they have reached full growth, do not need as much protein as while they are building new tissue, they do need enough to repair the daily wear on the tissues, which goes on without ceasing. In the ideal varied diet which furnishes all things needed for the maintenance of the reserve of health and strength as well as for the daily need, the protein foods hold an important place, and should be recognized as being worth more comparatively than the fuel foods.

There is a great difference in the prices of protein foods. Different cuts of meat, for instance, which furnish the same food value may differ several times in price. Fish also varies, according to supply and demand. Cheese, milk and eggs at certain seasons are often less expensive forms of protein food, and the vegetable proteins are usually exceedingly cheap. We are usually willing to pay for the flavor which meat and fish bring to our meals, and which goes so far toward making them appetizing. We should realize, however, that the amount we pay may depend largely upon our own choice among the protein foods. In a vegetable diet milk, eggs and cheese should not be eliminated, as some of the vegetable proteins are not as "complete" as those found in most animal foods.

- Meat Menu. Roast beef. Candied sweet potatoes. Browned parsnips. Lemon soufflé. Vegetable Menu. Bean loaf, tomato sauce. Shoestring potatoes. Friend egg plant. Macaroni and cheese. Cheese soufflé or peanut butter roast may replace bean loaf. Fish Menu. Baked haddock. Stuffed potatoes. Cauliflower. Cabbage and beet salad. Prune tapioca. Cranberry Jelly for Diabetics. 1 teaspoon gelatin. 1 tablespoon cold water. 4 tablespoons boiling water. Juice and pulp from 1/2 cup cooked cranberries. Saccharine to sweeten.

Soak gelatin in the cold water five minutes, dissolve in the boiling water. If gelatin does not readily dissolve place vessel containing gelatin mixture over boiling water a few minutes. Then add fruit juice or pulp and just enough saccharine to sweeten. Set aside in a cool place until firm. Care must be taken not to add too much saccharine since an excess gives a disagreeable, bitter taste. A little practice will determine the right amount needed to suit the individual taste.

HOW IT STARTED

Why Is It "Protocol?" THE word "protocol" has been called a "veritable patchwork of metaphors." We commonly understand the word "protocol" to refer to the original plans of a diplomatic agreement, embodying the ideas previously expressed in an interchange of correspondence between parties negotiating a treaty. But how different was its original significance! "Protocol" is derived from the Greek "proto-kolon" which can be literally interpreted as "first food." Another version has it that it is related to the compound "proto-kolla" meaning "first glue." This latter contribution is probably a development of the former combination, the reference undoubtedly being to the early custom of taking all diplomatic dispatches relating to one subject and gluing them together at the corners, in lieu of using fasteners.

SALAD dressings made from fruit juices and mixed with chopped dried or preserved fruits make delicious fillings or sweet sandwiches.

To remove lime which accumulates on the inside of a tea kettle, boil a strong solution of vinegar inside of the kettle, then rinse thoroughly before putting water in.

Water in which onions have been boiled is excellent for cleaning white paint.

When making dressing put the ingredients in a small, clean jar and shake it vigorously. You will find this much easier than stirring the dressing with a fork.

One of the complainants was Bainbridge Colby, lawyer and former secretary of state. Mr. Colby, whose offices are near the chimes, maintained that they kept him from engaging in his customary work. The chimes were no call to repentance, he maintained. They were of the go-getter type and thus a nuisance. Before the matter got into court, the loudspeakers were adjusted and the chimes, which advertise shoes, were toned down so that the Bryant Park district could hear the elevated again and everybody was happy.

New York's general immunity to noise is well illustrated by the subway. When I first took an underground ride, my sensations were that I was in a boiler shop gone mad. After awhile, the infernal din seemed to die away. Apparently that was the case with everybody since there was no great complaint. By and by, the Interborough Rapid Transit Co., of its own accord, discovered that it could make the turnstiles quit their banging by the judicious use of rubber. For some time after that, the subway seemed strange because the usual rush hour sounds were missing.

Along came the Elventh Avenue subway. Noise-proofing was taken into consideration in the laying of the tracks and construction of the cars. When that line went into operation subway riders found to their surprise that they could converse while the train was speeding along. Later, the Interborough company got busy and put three "noiseless" trains into operation as an experiment. If the public reacts favorably enough, all trains will be equipped with noise-killing devices.

Just space now for an incident that struck me as funny. One of the best known mystics in the country, an Egyptian, appeared at a little gathering on Central Park west. Along about three in the morning, the mystic, clad in full white regalia, stepped into a motor car to be driven to his hotel. No more than had the car door closed than a policeman rushed across the street. "Say, where's that fellow going in his nightshirt?" he demanded. And it took a lot of explaining to convince him that the Egyptian was neither on his way to a hospital nor crazy.

The Bryant Park district has plenty of noise. I've forgotten the rating given that particular section in the decibel content conducted some time ago but it was well up in the class of Herald Square which was found to be the noisiest part of New York. The Sixth Avenue elevated furnishes its full quota of sound. Traffic adds to it. Then there are the whistles of traffic officers, the shouts of vendors and other quiet-shattering proceedings. But not until chimes came to Fortieth street was there any complaint. The chimes struck every quarter hour and when they had been doing that a few

Lights of New York

The average New Yorker regards noise merely as a matter of course. His ear attuned to the rattle, bang, roar and shrill of the city, he goes about his business as if he were in the midst of quiet. But when there are unaccustomed noises, the jangled nerves of the New Yorker are quick to cry out. For instance, last summer a friend returned after a few days in the country complaining that the birds made it impossible for him to sleep. Another who visited friends in a remote section of Detroit came back with the complaint that every morning he was awakened by the clumpity, clump of the heavy feet of the horse of a milkman. The gentleman annoyed by the birds lives in a Broadway hotel. The other has a residence on West Seventy-second street hard by the yards of the New York Central.

Two-Way Police Radio System

What is believed to be the first two-way police radio communication system went under official test in Piedmont, Calif., by the police department, under special permission of the federal radio commission. The new system permits officers in patrol cars to "talk back" to the central station, or to communicate with each other. The set is so compact it may be operated from a motorcycle.

a doughnut would furnish the calories he would need for about three hours. Now, when he begins to move about, the costs mount. Just sitting up increases the cost 5 per cent; standing up, 10 per cent, and a man working to the limit of human endurance will increase it 1,000 per cent or more. The report said that a person engaged in a sedentary occupation needed 2,500 calories a day to cover basal needs and energy expenditure, farmers about 3,500. Experiments showed that heavy men expended more heat-energy than thin men of the same height, tall men more than short men of the same weight, men of twenty-five more than men of seventy. The energy consumption of men runs about 10 per cent higher than women's, according to the Benedict experiment. Doctor Benedict concluded that in the great proportion of cases the only reason people grow fat is that they eat a little more each day than they require to balance their energy expenditure.

When I was a boy, Nathaniel S. Cole of Lyander, N. Y., relates. I worked on a farm for a man by the name of Caleb Stimson. He did a great deal of buying and selling of fast horses, but he was never satisfied. No matter what he bought, the horses never seemed quite speedy enough for him. Finally, Caleb heard of a very fast team in the West and immediately left by train to try to buy them. At the end of a week who should drive in but Caleb with the prettiest team of horses that man ever laid eyes on. I could see that Caleb was mighty proud of them. They had only one fault, he confided to me—a deadly fear of thunderstorms. No one could complain on the score of their speed, for they passed a number of fast trains on the way home. One day about an hour after Caleb had left to drive to town I saw a thunderstorm coming up in the West. Remembering what he had told me of his horses' fear I waited uneasily for him. The storm came nearer and nearer and finally I could hear the roar of the rain as it came in a solid sheet down the road towards me. Then I made out Caleb. The wagon was about 10 feet ahead of the barn doors. When I ran to open the barn doors, the horses were coming faster than the fastest express train and the rain had not gained an inch. The lightning, however, was flashing all about and in particular about the wagon tires, completely encircling them. They were regular rings of fire. I was paralyzed with fear. Caleb couldn't drive in the barn like that! He would set it on fire. But he evidently saw the danger for he went by the barn like a streak and was not seen for several days. When he did come back, he told me he had kept ahead of the storm until it was spent, but in doing so he had driven more than 200 miles outside the state. I need hardly say that Caleb's passion for fast horses was by now completely satisfied. But he never sold this team.—Pathfinder Magazine.

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of harsh laxatives will often do more harm than good. Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys. Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form.

Can Constipation be safely relieved? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose that you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without assistance. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription preparation containing senna, a natural vegetable laxative which relieves constipation gently and safely. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic that's taken so frequently, you must carry it wherever you go! What is the "Right" Laxative? WHALES

THE bowhead whale is most enormous, And old time whaling men inform us That tiny shell-fish are his meat. Just think how many he must eat!

The killer whales are not so long, But they are very fierce and strong; Of other whales they make their meals, And prey on porpoises and seals.

When old square riggers hoisted sails And put to sea to hunt for whales, The cachelot and bowhead kind Were what they wanted most to find.

For when a lucky skipper shot A sixty-five foot cachelot, He got two hundred kegs of oil, And felt repaid for all his toil.

Bit of Food Keeps Professor Going

Washington.—The popular belief that brain-workers require food rich in phosphorus, like fish, is exploded in a report on energy consumption by Dr. and Mrs. Francis B. Benedict, made public by the Carnegie Institution. Doctor Benedict is director of the nutrition laboratory of the institution.

ing to the Benedict report, can be obtained by eating one of the following articles: half a peanut, a gram of cane sugar, one and a half grams of white sugar, one and a half grams of banana, or bread or four grams of ordinary size. "Two jumps of sugar," Doctor Benedict continued, "would run a man resting quietly for about an hour; a patting quietly for an hour and a half and fort carried on for some time. The Benedict experiments showed that an average man, "lying quietly in bed before breakfast," produces in heat-energy at the rate of about one calorie per minute, "just about the amount produced in the same length of time by a 68-watt electric light, or a burning paraffin candle of ordinary size."

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The end of 1933 and the beginning of 1934 witnessed an improvement in general business. The decline in production, which followed the July peak and wiped out the bulk of spring and summer gains, was reversed. Contra-seasonal improvement occurred in a number of lines as it did the first half of last year. There seems to be a more hopeful outlook on the part of leaders of a number of basic industries. The hysterical excitement which followed the creation of the NRA and other phases of the recovery program is being replaced by a more stable and realistic viewpoint. Of importance to business generally is the allaying of the fear that the government would embark on inflation of fiat money—it is believed that the President's move to stabilize silver, and the bill to devalue the dollar, make the issuance of printing-press money highly improbable.

It is doubtful if the current Congress will be so important to business as most sessions are, inasmuch as it is a large body which follows the wishes of the President from A to Z. Mr. Roosevelt's plans, in general, are well known, and to that extent there is less uncertainty over legislative activity than there would otherwise be.

A review of the business situation follows:
COMMODITY PRICES—The low for commodity prices was reached on March 3, when they stood at 55 per cent of the 1926 level. High of 72.2 came in October. There has been little late change, and a degree of stabilization seems to have been reached. Level on January 12, was 72.

DOMESTIC TRADE—Contrary to many forecasts, December retail business was good. The inevitable slackening followed Christmas but, again, it was not so great as some expected. Sales have been more satisfactory in the major farm areas than in urban industrial centers.

EMPLOYMENT—An unlooked-for drop occurred in this field at the end of the year, as contrasted with successive gains up to the middle of October. Late reports show a 2 per cent more than seasonal drop in employment, with a reduction of 6 per cent in payrolls. The industrial employment decline has been somewhat offset by rising employment on federal public works projects.

FINANCE—The stock market has been stronger with some substantial rises but it is still a speculative market, made uncertain by spasmodic profit taking. Outside of federal issues, a few new bonds have appeared. Present money policies present an increase in the price of medium-grade bonds, a slight shrinkage in high-grade bonds.

FOREIGN TRADE—Allowing for seasonal influences, exports were about average at the end of the year, imports were below normal. Our favorable balance of trade is increasing. Here is another field in which dollar devaluation will be an all-important influence.

CONSTRUCTION—This, the most lagging of all great industries during 1933, seems to have improved. At the end of the year contra-seasonal improvement took command. In December there was a larger volume of building than in any month since October, 1931.

TRANSPORTATION—End of the year decline in freight traffic was less than seasonal experience forecast. In January all classes of freight showed increases. Revenue continues to be above a year ago, and new orders for freight cars have been high.

AUTOMOBILES—New models have met with an excellent response, and the first two weeks of the new year showed a sharp rise in production, with demand running ahead of it. Auto prices generally are higher than last year. Fifteen out of 17 producers show increased operating schedules.

CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES—This industry had a comparatively good year in 1933, and recent reports show operations continuing at a relatively high level. Improvement in the automobile and iron and steel industries, major buyers of chemicals, are good auguries for the future.

AGRICULTURE—1933 crops were valued at $4,077,000,000—an increase of 43 per cent over 1932. The improvement was entirely due to rising prices, as production was 18 per cent under the 1932 level. Mid-January reports show substantial improvement in wheat and cotton receipts.

LUMBER—In the middle of December, orders were at the lowest level of the year. Moderate recovery appeared in mid-January. Prices continue to advance.

STEEL—Steel output gained in December, as opposed to the usual seasonal experience. In the second week of January operations were at 34 per cent of capacity—another gain. Prices in most markets have advanced.

TEXTILES—At the end of the year a heavy decline occurred, and this was one of the few industries with a more than seasonal drop.

Pattern, No. 8116: Designed in 9 sizes: 35, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 44 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. The plastron requires 1/2 yard of 35 inch contrasting material.

Pattern, No. 8107: Designed in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 8 will require 2 1/2 yards of 35-inch material, for the dress, and 1/2 yard for collar, belt and sleeve bands in contrasting material.

SLENDERIZING

8116—Small Hips, It is beltless, leaving the waistline unconfined and vertical in its seam lines. Most interesting is the surplus plastron, that extends on the back of the neck in smart tie ends. A comfortable and attractive sleeve adds to the charm of the design, and the skirt flares in soft fullness. This model will be nice in crepe, taffeta or in the new Spring prints in small patterns.

LITTLE GIRLS LIKE IT

8107—It is this sort of a dress that active little girls like. The smart plaits that hang so straight and proper below the attractive drop yoke, allow freedom in walking, running or romping. And the perky puffs—have quite the right pouch above the band that holds them comfortably on the arm. These bands and the neat little collar and belt may be of contrasting material, or the belt may be of leather in a bright color.

Gingham with pique for contrast—the tiny bow also of pique—or sheer wool crepe with velvet is suggested for this model.

A McCormick-Deering Drill for every Grain Grower's Needs

Good Seeding Pays for Itself

DRILLED grain always stands a better chance than broadcasted grain, particularly in dry weather. When you drill your grain it reaches the bottom of the seed trench and is covered to the proper depth. All the seeds germinate, grow, and ripen evenly. An even, heavy crop invariably is the result. And the extra yield more than pays for your work of seeding carefully with a drill.

McCormick-Deering Grain Drills are the result of one-hundred years of manufacturing and engineering experience. And farmers in this district who use McCormick-Deering's say these drills are doing their stuff in the field. They're mighty hard to beat!

There is a complete line of McCormick-Deering Grain Drills. Sizes from 10 to 28-furrow. Models for horse or tractor use and for various kinds of seeds. We'll be glad to show them to you.

TAX—EATERS

The army of tax-eaters all over the country is growing larger and more impudent in its assumption of special privilege. We are not referring to the millions who are subsisting on what amounts to a "dole" at public expense, the workers in the CCC, the men and women employed by the CWA and those vast armies who do not work at all for what they receive from the public funds, although the cost of maintaining them is a heavy enough burden on the taxpayers, in all conscience. We have in mind public employees who are supposed to be the public's servants but who too often assume they are the public's masters. Many of them are entrenched behind the security of civil service laws, originally designed to prevent the unfit and incompetent from finding places on the public payrolls but, latterly, become a barrier to the removal from office of anyone, however unfit he or she may be for the post. It seems to us that everyone should have a clear understanding of the undeniable fact that nobody has an unassailable title to any job for which the compensation comes from the taxpayers. It is all very well to say that these public employees work for small pay and are entitled therefore to security and retirement pensions. That was true, perhaps, in a past generation. But the tendency of salaries in public office has been upward, while the incomes of the rest of us have gone downward. As matters stand at present, only those who are safe in their tax-eating jobs are earning enough to get by on. We can think of nothing more disgraceful than for organized bodies of tax-eaters to unite in protest against laws or regulations that would permit those who are trying to run public affairs economically to reduce their salaries and eliminate unnecessary jobs. If present conditions, which are prevalent everywhere, continue much longer, we look for the taxpayers to unite and refuse to give up good money for the benefit of a privileged few. Slowing down production, temporarily and at certain spots in our economic order, may be unavoidable as a transition measure in order to regain control of a situation that had got tragically out of hand, but the final way out of our difficulty will never lie in slowing down production but in speeding up consumption. JOHN DILLINGER IS JAILED IN INDIANA

Captured in Tucson, He Is Brought by Plane. Crown Point, Ind.—Lodged behind the bars here after a dramatic airplane dash across the country, captured by his leading armed policeman, John Dillinger, bandit terror of the Middle West, confessed amazing crimes.

A Few Little Smiles

WHAM A little man was ushered into the witness box. After the usual preliminaries, the magistrate told him to tell the man began in rambling narrative and finally ended up with: "And then my wife hit me on the head with an oak leaf."

LIVE WIRE

Exit It was the firm's annual dance. The junior bookkeeper had chosen a very attractive partner. "By the way," he volunteered as they danced, "I'm glad our manager isn't here tonight. He's an ass of a man."

He admitted that he engineered the delivery of the ten convicts from the Michigan City (Ind.) state prison, the members of his gang who at once launched into a saturnalia of high crimes throughout five states which ended only with Dillinger's capture in Tucson, Ariz.

He admitted that he robbed "a lot of banks," obtaining total loot close to a quarter million dollars. Boastfully he told of planning to rob a downtown Chicago bank, dropping the plan only because a confederate balked. And he admitted planning to kidnap the wife of Supervising Police Capt. John Stogatz of Chicago, to be held as hostage in case he or any member of his gang were captured.

Stogatz, who was present when the capture of Dillinger was made, the admission, revealed that he learned of the threat against Mrs. Stogatz and secretly had sent her out of Chicago. In fact, the most hunted criminal in the country admitted virtually everything to Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake County, Indiana, except the one crime for which Estill immediately will try to send him to the electric chair. This is the $20,000 robbery of the First National bank of East Chicago, Ind., in which Policeman Patrick O'Malley was shot to death. Dillinger refused to confess any participation in that crime or in any other killing.

Harry Pierpont, Russell Clark, Harry Harker and Gary Kinder, members of Dillinger's gang who also were captured in Tucson, were brought back to Indiana by train.

SHORT WORK HOURS URGED BY PERKINS

Secretary of Labor Addresses Mine Workers. Indianapolis—Permanent legislation creating a shorter work day and a shorter work week temporarily established under NRA codes should be enacted to afford the nation's wage earners adequate income, Perkins, said in an address before the United Mine Workers' convention.

"Every man and woman in this country who is willing and able to work needs to be permanently and securely employed. I am convinced we cannot do this, that we cannot maintain permanent employment and secure employment except by a shorter work day and a shorter work week," Miss Perkins said.

She pointed out that the United States would be able to undertake the industrial machinery, which should be made the "servants of wage earners and pay them a share in their profits." In a most fiery session the union denounced communism and readopted sections of the constitution which bar members of the Communist party from union membership.

International officials condemned the "false philosophy of communism," asserting that the communist group had left its role as a political party and had sprung dual movements designed to disrupt and supersede the miners' union. John L. Spewak, international president, rebuked a delegate who admitted association with the Communist party in Illinois.

President's Birthday Thanks to the Roosevelt

Washington.—President Roosevelt in a brief birthday address called on the nation to become active in the fight being waged against the ravages of infantile paralysis. The Chief Executive at the same time delivered a message of thanks to the thousands of persons throughout the country who selected his birthday as the day on which to raise funds for the Warm Springs foundation.

The birthday greetings made those at Christmas time fade into insignificance so far as volume was concerned. Presents, too, were in excess of those that set a record at the White House during the holidays. On top of all this, 5,000 or more birthday balls were held throughout the country, the estimated $2,000,000 that was realized being contributed for support of the Warm Springs foundation.

Social Code of First Importance Consider Hostess When New Friends Are Made, Is Imperative.

The approach to friendship is one of the things which determines our pleasure in life. Sometimes a chance happening throws together two people through some incident, or possibly club affiliations through similarity of interests is the reason for meeting. What starts a friendship shall take that is how rapidly it shall mature from the attitude of acquaintance to that of intimate friends, the two persons can govern. But there is a third way of making friends that has an entirely different set of rules. When two persons meet at the home of a mutual friend, good taste dictates that they shall be followed.

An unwritten law is not less important because many persons disobey it. They are criticized, and rightly, when whose roof the host or hostess, under whose roof the new acquaintances meet, should be included in the first invitation given the new friend. If that host or hostess cannot be reached when an invitation is telephoned, a letter should go saying that the effort was made to reach him or her, and why. To let this information be picked up through outside sources is to break at least one link of friendship with the hostess.

There is no social occasion where you meet at a social gathering in a friend's home should, on that occasion, take pains to avoid each other. But the first courtesy is owed to the hostess, in fact, one might almost say, the first allegiance. When a subsequent party is arranged which deliberately precludes the first friend, especially if the one invited is a man, it can hardly be overlooked. To some it would seem that this circumstance is inconceivable. In the experience of the writer it has been met occasionally and offense given.

No course but to remain dignified is permitted the first hostess, if she is to appear at her best. Whatever her viewpoint on the matter, that is her own affair. An increase of formality, and decline of intimacy, is a tactful way of indicating that the courtesies are extended to the hostess. Of course, if the expected courtesies are extended to the hostess at the outset, she will not attempt to keep her former guests from being as close friends as they may wish to be.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

BY MICHAEL K. REILLY: M. C.

Of course, the overshadowing event in Washington, the past week, was the signing of an order by President Roosevelt, reducing the gold content of the dollar 40.98 per cent of its present weight. The gold dollar as now constituted will contain 15 and 5-21 grains of gold, 9-10 fine, while the old dollar contained 25 and 8-10 grains, 9-10 fine. Up to a few months ago and for about 100 years the U. S. bought gold at the rate of $20.67 an ounce, hereafter the U. S. will buy all gold offered at $35.00 an ounce.

At the time that the President made his order reducing the gold content of the gold dollar about 20 per cent, he also made two other orders: one providing for the set-up of a $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and the other was for $3,500,000,000.00 in value, to the U. S. Treasury.

The operation of the stabilization will be secret, and outside of those immediately concerned with the control of the fund, nobody except the President of the U. S. and the Secretary of the Treasury will know what is going on.

This secrecy follows the same plan that the English Government has pursued in the operation of its huge stabilization fund of about $1,500,000,000. If the public knew in advance how the Secretary of the Treasury and the President were going to use this fund, in stabilizing foreign exchanges and U. S. securities, much speculation might result. Foreign exchanges that is, the value of the dollar and the franc and the pound in foreign markets, vary from day to day, and advance information would give some operators and manipulators of the exchange a chance to make great profits. It is hoped that such opportunities will be entirely eliminated by consigning to a few people all knowledge as to the future actions of those who will control this stabilization fund.

The room in the Treasury Building where the operators of this fund will have their offices will be one room, and perhaps the only room in all the Government Departments, to which there will be no admission, except for those who through their official connection with the workings of this fund, have the right to enter.

The gold of the Federal Reserve Banks, now the property of the National Government, but will be earmarked where it is now held as the property of the U. S. Treasury. Earmarked gold is gold, allocated to a certain definite purpose, and is not available for any other use. There always has been a great deal of gold in our country, in our sub-treasuries and Treasury and in the Federal Reserve Banks, that belong to foreign nations, and which is ear-marked as they say, and can be used for no other purpose except to fulfill the demands of the country owning the gold.

There is now being constructed in the basement of the U. S. Treasury what will probably be the greatest treasure chest in the world. This chest will cost about $400,000.00 to build and will be large enough when completed to hold all the gold of the world. It is located in a subterranean passage-way of the Treasury Building. It will have 5 great chambers to hold bullion and five more to hold currency.

It is said that the door of this strong box, which is now being put in place, weighs about 29 tons.

At the present time there is only a comparatively small amount of gold in the U. S. Treasury, about $400,000,000. The most of this Treasury gold is earmarked as backing for currency issues of the government.

The past week marked a tremendous increase in the social activities of the people of this country, when some 5,000 celebrations in about that many communities were held in honor of President Roosevelt's 52nd birthday. Not only in Washington were these celebrations held but practically in every section of the country and abroad where Americans live in any considerable numbers.

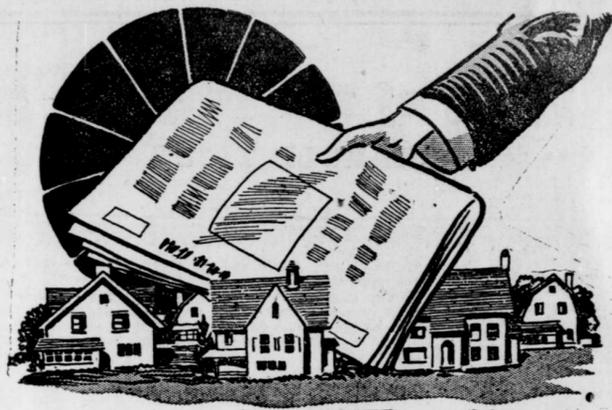

One purpose of these celebrations was to honor the President, by an unusual method, while another purpose was to please the President also by raising a huge endowment fund for the benefit of, at Warm Springs, Georgia, for the treatment of victims of infantile-paralysis.

Warm Springs is located about half-way between Atlanta and Columbus, Georgia. It is a town of about 1,000 people. It has a large hotel and many cottages where about 75 or 100 people reside, who are trying the curing effects of the warm waters of these springs.

It is about 50 years since these springs first came to the public notice, for their medicinal properties in curing infantile-paralysis. It is about 12 years since President Roosevelt, then a victim of infantile-paralysis, went to Warm Springs for the purpose of trying out the curative effects of these springs. Since that time the President's name has been closely associated with Warm Springs and his efforts have been largely responsible for the increasing of the facilities at the Springs for the handling of patients.

It is estimated that there are 300,000 persons in this country, young and old, who are victims of infantile-paralysis, and not only the President, but thousands of others have been greatly benefited and some cured of their affliction through bathing in these warm springs.

CORRUPTION AND POLITICS CHARGED IN FOND DU LAC CWA OFFICE

Troubled brewed out of the CWA offices in Fond du Lac county last week, charges being made that corruption and politics were being played in said office. Investigators were in that city to investigate the charges. The following article relative to the charges appeared in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth-Reporter in its issue of Saturday, February 3, 1934:

"Charges of corruption and politics in the federal re-employment and civil works offices in Fond du Lac county have been filed with Senator Robert M. La Follette in Washington, it was disclosed today with the arrival of Federal investigators in the city.

"One of the investigators has been in the city since Friday, while Paul Winner, field director for the national re-employment service in Wisconsin, arrived today.

"Mr. Winner, Raymond J. Hackett, manager of the re-employment office, and others, including the man who filed the charges with Senator La Follette, conferred at the courthouse this morning. The person who sent the telegram to Senator La Follette is a resident of North Fond du Lac and a former railroad employee.

"Several labor leaders are reported to have participated in the preparations of the charges filed with Senator La Follette, it was learned from a reliable source.

"The investigator who was in the city Friday centered his attention on charges filed against the re-employment office. He had a copy of the telegram, which was turned over to the federal relief administration for investigation.

"Among the persons interviewed on Friday were members of the national re-employment committee, which is directly responsible for the conduct and policies of the labor office.

"Committee members branded the charges as false, denying politics has been permitted to enter activities of the office and saying special precautions had been taken to prevent such an occurrence.

"Several attempts have been made by politicians to remove Manager Hackett from the Fond du Lac office, it was disclosed in connection with the investigation. The efforts have been made both in Madison and Washington, it was learned.

"Results of the investigation, it was indicated, will probably be reported direct to the departments and officials to whom the complaints were made.

"Persons identified with the offices against which the charges were made called the allegations ridiculous and said they were ready for an investigation at any time."

The tests with canary grass at the experiment stations at Madison and at Coddington have proved its worth. Farmers who have been trying it out have been very successful with it and are enthusiastic about it. During the next few years, thousands of Wisconsin farmers will be turning the low wet areas on their farms into profitable production with canary grass.

nately cruel or negligent of the interests of those influential in politics to put their supporters into such places, is based upon the sordid foundation of granting special favors to a few at the expense of the many. Who does not know of cases in which the taxpayers have been bled in order that political henchmen may fatten; Where is there a community that is entirely free from partnership between politics and crime, or at least "graft"?

Even the work of the Civil Works Administration and the Public Works Administration has not been free from graft and political collusion, whereby favorites have been taken care of at public expense and those equally worthy overlooked because they did not have the right political pull.

It is a perennial disgrace to America that "politics" should be regarded by most people as synonymous with "corruption."

The curse of white grubs, and our vain and feeble efforts to deal with this blight, have led us to our old friends, alfalfa and sweet clover, as a solution of the problem. White grubs have never hurt our old established alfalfa fields. They may do some damage to our newly seeded alfalfa fields the first year, but, once established, alfalfa is proof against the ravages of the white grub.
