

KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL COLUMN

Word has been received from Mrs. Lee Miller, West Bend, chairman of the Junior Red Cross, that a portfolio prepared by the pupils of the elementary grades has been received by the elementary school at Zabek, Jugoslavina. A booklet from that school will soon be forwarded to us.

A letter from the registrar's office of Milwaukee-Downer college informs us that Linda Rosenheimer of the Class of 1933 was elected to the honor roll of the Freshmen Class at Downer. This is a much coveted honor to be shared not only by the student receiving it, but also by the preparatory school of the student.

The upper two floors and a part of the lower floor of the school have been painted. Mr. Abner Kios, who directed the painting work, left for his home in Port Washington on Saturday.

The work in Forensics was started this week. Candidates in oratory, declamatory, and extemporaneous reading and speaking have enrolled.

The school is sponsoring demonstration of the marvels of electricity to be presented by the Milwaukee school of Engineering. President Werwath of that school will conduct and explain the experiments. The school feels that this electrical demonstration is highly educational, and it invites the public to patronize it. There will be an admission of 15 cents to the general public. The demonstration will be on Tuesday, March 13.

KEWASKUM H. S. DEFEATS SLINGER H. S. 32-13

Kewaskum High School basketball team defeated Slinger last Friday night in the last home game of the season 32 to 13.

Kewaskum was first to score when Klein tossed a goal from the field. From this point on the outcome of the game was never in doubt. As time passed the margin in the score grew greater. The locals led 19 to 6 at the half.

In the third quarter Kewaskum ran its score to 29 while Slinger was able to score but 2 points. In the last quarter, however, Slinger outscored the locals 5 to 2.

Rosenheimer, Miller and Klein topped the scorers in the order named. Smith and Honeck played fine defensive ball and each contributed to the scoring. Bartelt, Weddig and Hopkins saw considerable action and played well.

We have two games left on our regular schedule, one with North Fond du Lac on Friday of this week and the other with Campbellsport there on Tuesday of next week.

The Campbellsport game is an important one. A win means the locals will share honors with North Fond du Lac for first place in the Tri-County league, and the boys are out to win it. On account of lack of space box summary of the Slinger game is omitted.

NEW PLYMOUTH AT REX GARAGE

"The One Completely Modern Car in the low price field." That's the remark you hear dozens of times among the crowds viewing the New Plymouth at Rex Garage. And the most astonishing thing about these New Plymouths is the way they ride. Floating Power, of course, but in addition to Floating Power they have individually sprung front wheels, that actually smooth out roads for you. The front wheel springing is of the same type and construction that is found on all cars in the higher price field. They have Hydraulic Brakes, Safety Steel Body, Rigid-X-Frame and scores of other features that make these New Plymouths the greatest automobile value ever offered. Be sure and see these New Plymouths at Rex Garage. Check over every point, drive them and then compare.—(Adv.)

HIGHWAY 67 TO BE SURFACED

Extensive improvements will be made on Highway 67 between Highway 55 and the Sheboygan county line this year. Funds for doing this work has been allotted by the state highway department. The Fond du Lac highway commission will meet at Fond du Lac today, Friday, to approve of the project.

Improvements of the highway, a distance of 9.5 miles, will be in the nature of resurfacing and gravel surfacing under the gang maintenance fund. The state has set aside $100 per mile for resurfacing and allows 2,000 yards of gravel per mile for resurfacing. The total sum allotted by the state for this project is $2,200.

The number of pure-bred cows on test in dairy herd improvement associations in Wisconsin has been gradually increasing since 1921 until the number has now reached 32 per cent of all cows on test. Wisconsin dairy cows in 1933 were estimated to produce on the average about 1440 pounds more milk and 55 pounds more butterfat than they did 25 years ago.

CAMPBELLSPORT GETS FEDERAL GRANT

Last week the public service commission authorized the building of a municipal water plant and sewerage system at Campbellsport. The order issued by the commission puts the realization of waterworks by the majority of the "Belle" citizens a step nearer. The water system will be financed with a federal PWA grant of $33,450 and a federal loan secured by village bonds to the extent of $40,000. The issue will include $20,000 in mortgage bonds and $20,000 in assessment bonds. The public service commission estimated that the annual operating cost of the waterworks system will be $5,665 providing 110 out of an available patronage of 230 are consumers. The sum of $2,725 will cover fire protection cost while the balance will provide for general service.

The minimum quarterly charge to consumers ranges from $5 for five-eighths and three-quarter inch meters and $15 for four inch meters, according to the set-up by the public service commission.

After receiving notice of the approval of the grant, Mr. Wrucke, president of the Campbellsport Village Board said, "It is our intention to proceed with the improvement providing bids received for installation are favorable and nothing intervenes to disrupt our plans."

NRO REPORTS EXCELLENT PLACEMENT RECORD

E. A. Rosenthal, manager of the Washington County National Reemployment office, reports that 57 placements were made for every 100 registrations in his office up to February 1, 1934.

The total placements which have been made by the National Reemployment office from August 20 1933, to February 1, 1934 is 1154.

Exactly 2035 persons have registered at the Washington county office during the same period. This is 8 percent of Washington county's population of 26,551 or 8 persons per 100 of population.

REREGISTRATION IS REQUIRED
Mr. Rosenthal announces that all persons now registered in National Reemployment offices, who desire to be considered for future employment, should again visit the National Reemployment office where they have previously filed their applications, for a re-interview. The reason for this re-interview is to ascertain whether or not the persons now registered are still interested in obtaining employment. Furthermore, it is desired to secure adequate employment information concerning all unemployed persons.

The National Reemployment Service, which is a division of the Department of Labor, is at present the closest immediate contact of the Federal Government with the unemployed. It is the intention of the National Reemployment Service to contribute to the social planning of an employment and relief program in the State of Wisconsin.

Unless the unemployed cooperate with the National Reemployment Service by furnishing the employment information required, a hardship will be imposed on the unemployed workers and on the Reemployment Service," declared Mr. Rosenthal. "Such information is needed in planning future employment and for providing guidance for the development of said relief and employment plans."

MUST RENEW APPLICATIONS EVERY MONTH

All persons who wish to continue to be considered for employment must renew their applications at their local Reemployment office every month.

In order that the office be able to take care of the re-interviews and renewals without congestion, every person now registered is asked to accommodate himself to the time schedule given below.

We will re-interview and re-register all applicants for employment on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 7, 8, 9, 10, 1934, at the Reemployment office, Court House, West Bend, Wis.; and on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, March 12, 13, and 14, we will re-interview and re-register all applicants at the City Hall in Hartford, Wisconsin.

The registration cards of all persons who do not visit the office for a re-interview before April 1, will have their applications for reemployment cancelled.

It will be necessary for all persons so interviewed to call at the Reemployment office every thirty days as long as they wish to be considered for employment. If they do not call at, telephone, or write to the office within this time period, their applications for employment will not be considered after the thirty days, until such time as they call to restate their applications.

PRIVATE EMPLOYERS URGE TO COOPERATE

A state-wide appeal to private employers urging them to take advantage of the facilities of the local Reemployment offices was issued this week by Paul C. Winner, Director of the National Reemployment Service for the State of Wisconsin. Mr. Winner states: "A great deal of confusion exists in the minds of the public because of the belief that local Reemployment offices were established as a part of the C.W.A. program, to serve only C.W.A. This is a serious misconception of the fundamental purposes of National Reemployment Service.

"The Service was set up long before C.W.A. was ever thought of, to assist private employers, and contractors handling Public Works projects and highway construction in obtaining competent workmen, and to assist unemployed persons in securing jobs for which they were best qualified."

"With the spring pickup in industry, business, construction, building repairs and farming, hundreds of Wisconsin's unemployed will be given work." Mr. Winner believes. "Many employers will be needing help."

The local offices of the National Reemployment Service are in a position to provide qualified workers for every type of labor, and at no cost to the employer, Mr. Winner pointed out.

He related the enthusiasm of one county Reemployment manager who had placards printed at his own expense and placed them in conspicuous places. The first day they were posted, jobs for 13 persons resulted.

"This spirit of hearty cooperation on the part of every one will go a long way in bringing prosperity to Wis-

SHARP SHOOTERS SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT

Slinger Five last Saturday evening on the local floor showed the Sharp Shooters in a hard fought game by winning to the tune of 41 to 31. For the Sharp Shooters it was either a case of stage fright or the Slinger team completely outclassed them. Our belief is that the latter was the case. All the fans present at the game must admit that the locals were played off their feet, both in the defensive and offensive work. The Slinger team has a snappy aggregation. They deserve to be complimented for the style of basketball they presented to the spectators.

Each one of the players is an individual star cooperating at all times with his teammates to increase the score. The locals were first to score when Stenschke looped a field goal. This two point margin was soon overtaken and never thereafter were the visitors in danger. The first quarter ended Slinger 11, Sharp Shooters 6. In the second period the locals lost their bearings and were unable to spy were their opponents were traveling as they scored almost at will and piled up a nice margin of 19 points. The half ended Slinger 23, Sharp Shooters 10. During the last two periods Kewaskum put up a stubborn fight and had the best of the argument but the 19 point lead which the visitors had was too much to overcome. In the third period the Sharp Shooters scored 11 points to the visitors five, bringing the totals at the end of that period, Slinger 34, Sharp Shooters 21. In the final period the Sharp Shooters added ten points to Slinger's seven.

RESERVES 27, PICK'S 25

The preliminary game between the Kewaskum Reserves and Pick's Five of West Bend turned out to be a real thriller with the result in doubt until the final whistle blew. The score at the end of each period readily shows what kind of a contest the game was. The first half ended with the Reserves in the lead by one point, 12 to 11. The third period found the visitors with a one point lead, 20 to 19. In the last period the results turned every few minutes, once with the Pick boys in the lead and then the Reserves, with the final result Reserves 27, Pick's 25.

Former School Officers Under Arrest

(From The West Bend Pilot)

Alber Ulmen, Adolph Habeck and John Bremser, who until 1933 constituted the school board of school district No. 6, of the town of Kewaskum, were placed under arrest on Feb. 23 by Sheriff Kirsch, upon complaint of the present school board of the district—Messrs. Paul Backhaus, Louis Backhaus and August Seefeldt. The complaint charges Ulmen with embezzlement of $3,700 and malfeasance in office. Habeck with malfeasance in office and falsifying records, and Bremser with malfeasance in office. The accused appeared before Justice of the Peace Hayden on the day of their arrest. They waived reading of the complaint and through their attorney, John A. Cannon of West Bend, asked that the case against them be adjourned until Mar. 1. After placing Ulmen under bonds of $6,000, $5,000 of which was on the charge of embezzlement, and Habeck and Bremser under bonds of $500 each, the case was adjourned as per request. Bonds were furnished by all of the accused.

PUBLIC CARD PARTY

A public card party given under the auspices of the Schnurr school, District No. 2, will be held at the home of Jacob Bruessel on Tuesday evening, March 6th. All popular games will be played. Free lunch will be served. Admission 30 cents. Everybody invited. Miss Sylvia Klein, Teacher 2nd concern and in reducing the ranks of those who cannot obtain work," Mr. Winner said. Detailed records showing the qualifications and experience of every type of worker are kept up to date in the various county Reemployment offices. Specially trained persons are in charge of these offices and are anxious to cooperate with private employers in providing workers best suited for the type of jobs offered.

Many have already been given work with private employers in Wisconsin, according to Mr. Winner, but there are thousands more who are anxious to work and who are well qualified to do various types of labor or service.

An honor roll of those employers who provide jobs for Wisconsin's unemployed might well be established this spring, in the opinion of Mr. Winner.

By COSMO HAMILTON

LOST, NEAR BROADWAY AND 44TH St., three $100 bills. Will finder please return to Nora Connors, Laverne hotel, New York.

THE green-visored young man who was about to set up this ad emitted a whoop and addressed the composing room in general. Not since the Prophet Mahomet ordered the mountains to come to him had anything quite so optimistic been heard of. But that was not exactly how the young man expressed himself. What he actually said was: "Say, you guys! Run your lamps over this gem. What a swell chance that Jane's got of ever glimpsing her three hundred smackers again! Huh?"

They clustered round and read it. "I'll tell the cock-eyed universe she'll never see that dough again!" "How—how—how!" "Can you tie that?" "Maybe those bills are still lying just where she dropped 'em!" "Sure! Nobody on Broadway'd be so mean to pick up a pretty bit of change that didn't belong to them!"

And so the comments flew until an elderly man with horn-rimmed spectacles balanced perilously near the tip of his nose exclaimed: "Well—wadja know about that!"

Now, when some one unleashes "wadja know about that" the last word has been said. Anything further would be anti-climax. So the compositors trickled back to their respective jobs.

Nora's simple faith in mankind probably amused those few curious people who glanced over the Lost and Found column the next morning. It certainly brought a smile to the face of Solly Rosenberg as he crunched his breakfast toast and gulped coffee.

Within half an hour of reading that ad, Solly Rosenberg was interviewing Nora Connors at the modest Laverne hotel. Nora seemed over-awed of this expensively dressed little man with much yellow bullion in his teeth, a massive diamond ring on either hand, and a diamond pin in his necktie.

"So you lost this money about three o'clock yesterday afternoon," Mr. Rosenberg was saying. "Yes, that was when I missed it from my handbag, sir," Nora answered, her large, frank, blue eyes fixed on his.

"D'you live here?" "No, sir, I only arrived in New York yesterday from South Bend, Ind." "On a vacation?"

"Oh, no. I came to take painting lessons, and that money I lost was to pay for them. My young brother and I saved it up... we're orphans and it took us over two years to do it."

"Ah!" said Mr. Rosenberg, beaming. He had hardly hoped for anything so good as this.

"And you see, sir," Nora continued, brushing back a strand of her fluffy golden hair with pretty hand, "if that money isn't returned to me I'll have to go back to South Bend, and that will be the end of my life's ambition... to paint!" Her lips trembled and she lowered her silken lashes to hold back the tears.

"Now, don't you get all het up, little girl," said Mr. Rosenberg. "I've got some bully news for you. Your money's been found—luckily by an honest party—and you're going to get it back!"

"Oh, how wonderful!" Nora clapped her hands. "You know," she said, "after all I'd heard about New York I was just a little worried that the finder might not return it to me."

Mr. Rosenberg extracted three $100 bills from a black pocketbook and handed them towards her. "There you are, my dear," he said. "But—those are not my notes," Nora protested. "Mine were dirty and crumpled—no clean and new like these."

"I know—I know, my dear. Let me tell you what happened. Your money was picked up by Gladia Gladsome—her new picture, the Gorgeous Sin, opens here next Thursday. And it's a dandy picture, believe me. Well—Gladia gives me the dough and asks me to try and find out who lost it. She's a mighty fine woman, is Gladia. Now those notes didn't look none too sanitary to be carrying about, so I changed them at the bank for clean ones, see?"

"Oh, yes," Nora said, smiling and taking the bills. "At first I was afraid you were just being kind and pretending you found my money. Of course, I couldn't have accepted..." "Certainly not, my dear."

"Thank you again so much," said Nora some minutes later, rising and holding out her hand. "I'll write to Miss Gladstone and thank her right away."

"Yes, do that. She'll appreciate it," Mr. Rosenberg said, running his eyes over her boyish figure and straight legs. "And, by the way, I suppose you haven't got many friends here yet. What'd you say to having dinner with me tonight? Solly Rosenberg's a good man to stand in with. He's pretty close to all the big men in this town."

"That's awfully nice of you, Mr. Rosenberg, but I couldn't. I know my brother wouldn't like me to go out with anyone on such a short acquaintance. Perhaps when we know each other better, eh?" "Sure! That's all right by me. You know—a pretty girl like you ought to have somebody who knows the ropes to look after her a bit. I'll call you up some time soon."

"You won't forget, will you?" "Forget nothing! And maybe I could work it to take you over to Gladia's apartment one of these days."

"I'd simply love that, Mr. Rosenberg. I'm sure she must be sweet."

"Well—goodbye for the present, little girl."

"Goodby, Mr. Rosenberg. And thank you again so much."

Solly Rosenberg chuckled as, later that morning, he stepped into Gladia Gladstone's apartment, a 12-room affair furnished in the catch-as-catch-can period of Chinese, lacquered pieces, crowded early English, Dutch, and ornate Louis Seize pieces.

"Hello, Glad!" Solly called, pausing outside the star's bedroom door. "Can I come in?" "Hey! What's the big idea busting in on decent folks in the middle of the night?" came Gladia's response.

"Don't you ever go to bed?" "It's half after eleven, Glad, and I have to see you about something mighty important." Solly flicked cigar ash on the Persian rug, and waited.

"Well—come in," she said at last somewhat petulantly. Gladia's favorite perfume swirled into Solly's nostrils as he opened the door. In the dim light he could just make out her face in the gilt bed she'd had made in the shape of an enormous swan, and covering her was a bedspread of crimson ostrich feathers.

"I breezed in to tell you," said Solly, depositing himself in a lingerie-littered chair, "that I just bought ten thousand dollars worth of advertising for you for three hundred."

"How come?" "Then: "Did you ever hear of a better one than that, Glad? Why, it'll be on the front page of every newspaper in the country! Can't you just see the headlines! GLADIA GLADSTONE RESTORES POOR ORPHAN GIRL'S SAVINGS. And that's the stuff the public likes." He rubbed his hands.

"Sounds good, Solly. But how'd you know this kid wasn't just taking a chance on finding a soft-hearted sucker who'd pass her three hundred berries? Maybe she never lost that dough at all."

"Now, Glad!" Solly reproached her, spreading out his fat hands. "We should worry if she was picking up a bit of easy money! That don't stop us using the story just the same, see?" "Guess you're right, Solly. I didn't think of that."

"Sure I'm right! And if it ain't the sweetest stunt that's been pulled this year then I'm not the slickest publicity man in the game."

"Nobody's arguing about that, old kid. You're all there!" "Well—I'll beat it now. Sorry to crash in on your beauty sleep, but I had to put you wise on account some of them editors might call you up after I handed in the story, see?"

News was scarce that day. Things were quiet on the Chicago front, and what murders had been committed in other places were neither sensational nor picturesque. No one was trying to swim the Atlantic; and only three or four more judges and magistrates had been indicted for one thing or another. Wherefore, editors welcomed Solly Rosenberg and his front page story. At any rate, it was something, and they were prepared to make the most of it.

When, however, Louis Hyams, publicity man for another famous film star, Joy Gold, arrived shortly afterwards and stated that Miss Gold had found and returned Miss Connors' money, the editors smiled and held up the story.

Then, hot on Louis Hyams' heels came Jake Samuels, publicity man for Alyss Jasmine; and later, Herman Lyons, representing Mamie Rogers, each with the same yarn about his client.

Soon four brilliant publicity men and a number of chortling editors and reporters were trying to get Nora Connors on the telephone at the Laverne hotel. She had checked out—leaving no address.

Just the same, the editors had a corking front page story.

"That's Telling You "Every man should be entitled to his say," said Uncle Eben, "but dat ain't no 'scuse for usin' up a whole lot o' valuable time sayin' mostly nuffin' at all."

Zoo Experts Say Human Beings Give Diseases to Caged Animals

Animals most difficult to acclimatize to our weather conditions, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record, are the howling monkeys, the orang-outangs, North African and Indian birds. Practically all others become accustomed to North American climates comparatively easily. The best examples of these are the camels, which reach the place where they eat snow—when they can get it—and antelopes, which frequently are found lying in the snow and apparently enjoying it. Indian monkeys become acclimatized after a single winter in this climate.

Contrary to a somewhat popular belief, pneumonia is not prevalent among menagerie animals. In fact, it is about the least common of animal diseases. It was pointed out that pneumonia and colds are not directly due to cold weather, but rather to crowding, which is a result of the cold, and to a lack of exercise, another direct result of inclement weather.

It is the observation of zoo experts that humans are usually responsible for cases of pneumonia, laryngitis and allied diseases among the animals. Healthy wild animals have an almost unbelievable health reserve, it was pointed out, and unless imperiled by particularly virulent germs, will throw off impending illness if given proper diet and care.

SUNDAY SUPPER AROUND THE FIRE

Some Dishes That Will Add to Enjoyment.

By EDITH M. BARBER
DO COME to supper Sunday night, is an invitation which is usually received with delight because that is one meal of the week where informality and delicious food should be and usually are mixed in just the right order.

In some households Sunday night supper is served in the living room and where there are plenty of comfortable chairs, and tables where cups and plates may be rested. This is a most pleasant institution especially if the meal centers around a snapping wood fire.

The food for such a meal must be simple and easy to serve. Food that can be arranged on a tea-cart or on an extra size tray in the kitchen and brought into the living room in one or possibly two installments. If there is an electric grill or toaster that can be attached in the living room, the hot toast may be made by a privileged guest.

A variety of sandwiches—not too dainty, if there are to be men or women with appetites to satisfy, may be served. A salad may be passed with the sandwiches or toast and, of course, there will be a hot drink. Unless you are certain of the tastes of your guests, it is best to have a choice.

Sometimes a scalloped or creamed dish, such as shrimp au gratin or chicken a la king will be the main feature. Pickles and olives and jelly or marmalade will add flavor and interest. Dessert may be a fruit jelly, a Bavarian cream, an ice cream with

Sea Monsters Achieve Headlines

Washington.—The epidemic of reports that strange monsters are cavorting about the seas within eyeshot of witnesses, continues to add variety to the daily news headlines. Following reports from various areas of the sea that gigantic sea animals of ancient fame are making their bow to modern society, natives of the Loch Ness region of Scotland are astir due to the reported appearance in the lake of an "amphibian monster."

"Affidavits describing strange elongated goliaths of the sea have been sworn to by seamen and tourists who have witnessed the movements of 'sea serpents,' or have 'seen' their footprints on beach sands. But scientists are inclined to explain the reports as misinterpretations," says the National Geographic society.

Bronx Cheer Brings Man Hard Sentence

Aberdeen, Wash.—Police Judge R. E. Taggart heard evidence indicating I. A. Ryals, Aberdeen, was drunk when arrested recently and fined the man $15.

Ryals tossed back his head and issued a robust Bronx cheer. Angered, the judge added 10 days in jail. Again Ryals gave the salute. The judge increased the sentence to 30 days.

Ryals Bronx-cheered again. The sentence went to 60 days. The jailer hauled him out of the courtroom before he could sputter himself into jail for a longer period.

Tomato Shrimp Jelly.
2 cans tomato soup
1 can boiling water
2 tablespoons gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ pound shrimps
12 stuffed olives

Heat the soup with the boiling water. Soften the gelatin in the cold water, add the soup, stir until dissolved. Arrange several shrimps to use alternately in a mold and add carefully a little of the gelatin mixture. Place on ice to harden and repeat. A ring mold is attractive when it is turned out—and then the center can be filled with sliced cucumber mixed with whipped sour cream seasoned with onion and tarragon vinegar. When the mold is set, turn out on a platter and garnish with lettuce or romaine. Pass the sour cream dressing or mayonnaise.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

Wearing Earrings

THE custom of wearing earrings seems to have enjoyed a sort of recrudescence. However, wearing earrings today and wearing them in other years are two different matters. Today, they are simply fastened on, while formerly, the ears had to be pierced—a practice which is a sort of survival of the barbarous rite in the course of which the human body would be disfigured for the gratification of vanity and display—a custom which is growing more and more rare among civilized peoples with the passage of time.

However, earrings have been worn from time immemorial. In earliest times, earrings were worn by Orientals of both sexes. Great ingenuity in design and style were demonstrated in their manufacture and wear by the

New American Destroyer Launched

The U. S. S. Hull, new $3,000,000 destroyer built for the navy at the New York navy yard, as it slid down the ways following the launching ceremonies. Ten-year-old Patricia Platt, the granddaughter of Commodore Hull, naval hero of the War of 1812, christened the ship with a bottle of champagne.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

White-haired women, bowed under the weight of years, stand in subway entrances and, with mute pleas in their faded eyes, extend to hurrying thousands packages or boxes of chewing gum. Usually clad in rusty black, some even wear those caps with chin bows that grandmothers used to wear. But generally the thousands are too time-driven, self-occupied or hardened to the pitifulness of poverty in old age to note details. After all, the chewing gum peddlers are such common sights that they attract no attention. So, for years, though millions of human units passed her by, few noticed Muriel Starin and few bought her wares. But enough did so that she continued to live in a room up in Harlem. Yet there had been a time when Muriel Starin had known luxury. But that was not known by those who had passed her by until, at the age of seventy, death came to her.

Then it was discovered that the woman who sold gum was the daughter of John H. Starin, who once owned Glen Island in Long Island sound and whose excursion steamers ran to Coney island, Staten island and New Haven.

progress by proceeding leisurely in chattering groups. And he was unglamorous enough to add that most are so well-fed that seats meant for three accommodate only two.

A patrolman who swings a mean club in the mid-town sector, but who is a friend of all the kids, told me this one: A ragged youngster approached a well-dressed man and asked him if he had lost anything. The man, spotting a fat wallet in the lad's hand, promptly answered that he had. So the boy turned the wallet over to him and received a dollar as a reward! But the chiseler found when he opened the wallet that it contained only tissue paper. He made a squawk to the cop—and got chased for trying to outsmart an apparently honest boy!

Then there was that truck driver who stopped his big vehicle on a narrow side street in such a manner that he tied up everything. An officer plowed his way through the din of horns and sought the offender. He was found in a place where strong liquids are dispensed and explained that his hands had become so cold that he was afraid to drive without warming them.

Cubs Taken From Bear Whose Hugs Are Fatal

Columbus, Ohio.—Lena, a quarter-ton black bear, has had four litters of cubs at the Columbus zoo, and each time has carried her progeny around until they died. When she became the mother of triplets and awkwardly killed one of them, Keeper B. T. Evans decided to take charge.

He took the surviving cubs, both male, put them in a warm basket beside the furnace in the tropical animal house, and feeds them specially prepared milk from a bottle. They weigh only half a pound each.

Dead Sea Is Deepest
Outside of ocean basins, the deepest of all seas is the Dead sea; a sunken body of water which is noted chiefly for its life-giving salts. The Dead sea, it is believed, was originally four times its present length and its level that of the Mediterranean. This super-sea water is so dense that organic life cannot exist in it.

She had another friend also, an undertaker for troubles. That undertaker saw to it that the bent, little old gum peddler was buried in her grandfather's plot on Staten island—in the French Huguenot cemetery where the Vanderbilts rest.

That reminds me of another little old woman—one living up on Washington Heights with two old mongrel dogs. When there isn't food enough for the dogs and herself, she goes without. She doesn't mind. In all this great city, those two dogs are the only friends she has, she told a social worker recently. And a bird dealer once told me that parrots find such a ready sale in New York because they are company for the lonely.

Wise commuters—the kind that have been catching the same train for years and whose newspapers unfold automatically as they descend the ramp—always try to catch an earlier train on Wednesday afternoon. worms) which measure up to 45 feet, and giant squids 50 feet long, both of which are unfamiliar to most laymen, have deceived people along the Atlantic coast of North America and the countries bordering the North sea. "Despite the unwillingness of scientists to accept the modern version of the fabled sea serpent, it is a matter of record at Prender island, British Columbia, that a Canadian court has recognized the existence of 'Cadorosaurus,' a sea serpent asserted to have been seen by many observers in the last three months. A citizen of British Columbia recently signed an affidavit before a Justice of the Peace describing the sea creature (whatever it was) as seen by himself and a large party of friends. He avers that 'Caddy' (the creature's sobriquet) thrust its great head above the surface of the water and swallowed a duck in one gulp, within ten feet of the witnesses. The monster was about 40 feet long and about 3 feet in diameter, his body tapering off from head to tail, he reported."

When Popovers Won't Pop

Maybe the Oven Was Not Hot Enough, or Perhaps the Flour Was Not Properly Measured; Some Roast Beef Suggestions.

These suggestions and advice to housewives who may have failed to achieve complete success in their culinary efforts are offered by an authority on such matters:

"Why don't my popovers pop?" writes a reader. "I have followed your recipe exactly, but in vain." Well, I can't give the reason, if the latter statement is exact. Perhaps I may venture a guess. I wonder if the flour was measured after it was sifted?

"The mixture must not be too thick, and if the flour was measured without sifting first it may have been a little too thick. The batter should be about as thick as heavy cream. You may need to add a little extra milk to the original batter if the egg was small. It is not necessary to beat the batter even until it is smooth.

"Were the pans used of some heavy material and were they heated before they were greased? It is possible to make pretty good popovers in tin muffin pans but to get the tall light variety heavy pans rather small in diameter and comparatively tall are best. I was at Atlantic City last summer and stayed at a hotel which has always been famous for its popovers, which are at least six inches high. I overheard some one in the elevator say that she came to stay at this hotel particularly for the sake of the popovers which are served every morning for breakfast.

"Was the oven hot when they were put in to bake? It should be about 450 degrees F. It is not necessary to even open the oven door if you are sure of the temperature, for at least twenty minutes. At that time they should have risen and should be about brown enough. If fully brown the temperature may be lowered a little. In any case turn out the popovers at the end of half an hour and let them stay in the pan in the oven for at least ten minutes more.

"Popovers are often used to replace Yorkshire pudding around roast beef. They are baked separately and put around the roast just before it is served. The deep gravy will favor them somewhat and the made gravy may be passed to pour over them.

"Another reader asks for directions for cooking roast beef, and this seems to be a good place to put it in. I like to have a very hot oven for it also. I cook it in an open pan after I have rubbed it with salt and pepper. When it is almost brown enough to suit on one side I turn the roast over and after the second side has browned I turn down the fire and cook it in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. until it is done. I allow fifteen minutes per pound for a large roast and twelve minutes for a small roast. This produces a roast rare in the center. I baste it every fifteen or twenty minutes while it is cooking. If you do not want to have so much heat in your oven in warm weather you can 'sear' your meat until it is brown on top of the stove and then put it in a moderate oven to start and finish. If I am planning to serve popovers with the roast, I sear the meat on the top of the stove and turn up the fire to 450 degrees F. for the last half hour of cooking. I cut down my whole time for cooking about ten minutes.

Popovers.

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 egg

Mix the salt and flour, beat the egg slightly and mix with the milk; add to the dry ingredients. Beat only enough to mix well and pour into hot buttered gem pans or custard cups. Bake in a hot oven 450 degrees F. thirty minutes, then turn out the fire or open the door and keep in the oven for ten minutes. Iron, glass, heavy aluminum or earthenware is better than agate or tin for baking popovers.

Yorkshire Pudding.

1 cup milk
1 cup flour
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix salt and flour and add milk gradually to form smooth paste, then add eggs and beat two minutes with an egg beater. Cover bottom of two hot bread pans with some of beef fat tried out from roast; pour mixture in pan half inch deep. Put in hot oven 450 degrees F. and bake twenty to thirty minutes, decreasing the heat as the baking is accomplished. Cut in squares for serving. Bake, if preferred, in greased, lissing-hot iron gem pans or in roasting pan, removing roast to warming oven.

Whose Fault?

When Little Girls Show Temper

A quarrelsome child is a sick child, mothers! A bad bowel condition means bad behavior. And it doesn't help matters to give bilious boys and girls some powerful cathartic that upsets them for days. When you see a coated tongue, dull or yellowed eyes, or other signs of sluggishness, there's always a way to cleanse and sweeten that little system without violence; next day you have a happy, contented child. This common-sense treatment—Syrup of Figs; you can get it explained on the right.

Good health and good behavior go hand in hand. With inner health, come smiling faces and sunny dispositions. And it's really so simple a matter to keep children's bowels regular. The only "medicine" most youngsters ever need to promote thorough bowel action is pure California Syrup of Figs; the senna in this fine, fruity laxative never weakens them, or takes away their appetite. But get real California Syrup of Figs; you can get it anywhere; it isn't expensive.

HINTS for the HOME

BY NANCY HART

Pastry shells must always be thoroughly cooled before the filling is put in.

In preparing a baby's bath there is no better way of testing the temperature than grandmother's method of "trying it with the elbow." Water too warm for the elbow is too warm for the baby.

Put salt in the water in which eggs are to be boiled. It prevents the eggs from cracking.

If chopped nuts are heated before using they will have a sweeter and richer flavor.

To stop hiccoughs, take a few drops of glycerine in a glass of cold water.

Cake batter should be beaten at least three minutes after all ingredients are in. Rich cakes require longer beating than plain ones.

A large cork, dipped first in water and then in scouring powder, will clean soiled knives easily and well, without soiling the hands.

Silver that is stored in a cupboard will not tarnish if a lump of camphor is placed in the cupboard and the doors are shut tight.

Do not add dressing to salad until the moment of serving, as it wilts the greens.

New milk curdles very readily, for which reason salt should never be added to milk preparations until the last moment.

Peroxide of hydrogen mixed with a few drops of ammonia will remove inkstains from hands.

Run a thick Turkish towel through a clothes wringer after the wringer has been used. The towel will dry all parts of the instrument.

A solution of one tablespoon of borax to a quart of hot water will remove the shine from trousers. Cold coffee to which a little ammonia has been added is another excellent treatment for shine. If the nap is worn off, rubbing with a bit of emery paper is the best remedy.

For home-made fumigating of a sick-room, drop vinegar on a red hot shovel, one drop at a time, and wait for each drop to burn before repeating.

To remove warts from the hands, soften them by soaking in warm water and then apply zinc oxide. Continue the treatment every night for some weeks, if necessary.

Before putting potatoes in the oven to bake, rub them with cooking fat or oil. They will cook in less time, and the skin will be nicely crisped as a result.

At a time when it is considered good national policy to take unprofitable land out of production, it would seem logical to reduce surplus production by taking out diseased cows and cows that are not paying for their feed.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Two potential courses of action must have occurred to the President when the Senate disclosures concerning air mail contracts were brought before him. One was to ferret out the guilty and punish them. The other was to cancel all contracts, good and bad, and turn the carrying of the mail over to the army. The President took the latter course—and started the hottest battle of his Administration.

As usual there are two sides to every matter. The Senate disclosures are sensational. Fraud and collusion are charged along with terrific profits through speculation and promotion. In one case it is alleged that a few hundred dollars was run up to a paper total of some twenty million—while the government was paying heavy subsidies on the grounds that they were essential to the development of commercial aviation.

But it has not yet been proven that all the operators are crooked. To cancel every contract, lumping the good with the bad, is punishment of an unprecedented sort. That was what the Lindbergh telegram complained about. It threw a bombshell into the proceedings—and it created a highly dramatic situation in which the most famous private citizens and the head of the government clashed violently. The Colonel laid himself open to criticism on the grounds that the giving of the telegram to the press before it reached the White House was a breach of ethics and that in being associated with an interested company he was a biased party. Opinion seems to be about evenly divided—half lining up with the President, the other half with the Colonel. The belief is expressed that the President's action was certainly drastic on innocent stockholders—but that Spartan means to get graft out of government are essential.

At this writing, the fight is moving in the courts. Government won the first victory, when a plea of Transcon's tinal Western Air to restrain the order was refused.

A determining factor in arriving at a basis for future air mail contracts will be the efficiency of the army in handling the mail. Its ships are slower than those of private operators, although it is hoped that this will be offset by shorter stops due to elimination of passenger service. The first schedules are pretty sketchy in view of past private service—many points will be left off the map, at least to begin with, and flights will be fewer in number. Army heads are worried by the fact that their pilots are young and inexperienced for the most part when it comes to this kind of flying and are starting at a bad time of the year. Several were immediately killed en route to posts in Idaho and Utah.

The cancellation order was vaguely worded, left room for new private contracts if they are demanded and are necessary. It seems certain, in that case, that the subsidy system is to be discarded, that the fixed price basis will prevail, that smaller concerns will be given a break in obtaining contracts.

Yes, business is better. And the curve is holding stubbornly to its upward trend. Mainstay of the jump is still the automobile industry's spectacular recovery—and spectacular is the word. Every fresh report coming from the motor centers is more encouraging than the last. Unfilled orders for both trucks and cars are zooming. Ford and General Motors alone are reported to be at least a quarter of a million orders behind. And other industries are racing along with the auto makers. In the department stores, according to the last announcement, the cash registers are ringing merrily, with an average national gain of 25 per cent in dollar volume over last year. The chemical industries, which survived 1933 in good shape, are continuing their advance now, with glass, textiles, paper, etc., finding good markets and stable prices. The most recent Department of Commerce survey shows steel output higher, business activity better, commodity prices on the rise, stock and bond prices up and general betterment all along the line.

Discontinuance of OWA, which has employed 4,000,000 people—including teachers, artists, street cleaners, fitness eliminators, a poet or two and a host every possible classification of worker—is beginning and will naturally react unfavorably on business. But leaders hope for the best—and, what is more, seem really to expect it.

There will be no Nobel peace prize for 1933. Reason: In many parts of the world war is closer than at any time since 1913.

Germany is the center of European troubles. The way the wind blows was shown by the note the great powers sent her recently, saying "hands off Austria." It looks as if, in case Hitler starts trouble, everyone will gang up on Germany and bring the war to a quick and definite ending. U. S. stand will doubtless be neutrality. Wilson's brave, tragic and futile effort to save a world bent on self-destruction is still too fresh in the American mind to bear repetition now.

A McCormick-Deering Drill for every Grain Grower's Needs

Good Seeding Pays for Itself

DRILLED grain always stands a better chance than broadcast grain, particularly in dry weather. When you drill your grain it reaches the bottom of the seed trench and is covered to the proper depth. All the seeds germinate, grow, and ripen evenly. An even, heavy crop invariably is the result. And the extra yield more than pays for your work of seeding carefully with a drill.

McCormick-Deering Grain Drills are the result of one-hundred years of manufacturing and engineering experience. And farmers in this district who use McCormick-Deering drills are doing their stuff in the field. They're mighty hard to beat!

There is a complete line of McCormick-Deering Grain Drills. Sizes from 10 to 28-furrow. Models for horse or tractor use and for various kinds of seeds. We'll be glad to show them to you.

Cows which produced less than 200 pounds of butter fat in 1933 fell short of paying a profit over their feed bill testing records show. Cow testing association records show that 13.4 per cent of those tested proved to be unprofitable and failed to return their owners a profit over feed costs.

More than eighty per cent of dairymen testing in Wisconsin dairy herd improvement associations in 1933 whitewashed their dairy barns as a desirable farm management practice.

—It was announced at Farm Credit headquarters in St. Paul this week that the commissioner's loan has been raised from $5,000 to $7,500. As nearly one-half the farmers who get loans are served through the commissioner's loan, the raising of this maximum is expected to help materially in refinancing agriculture.

—The Federal Land Bank of St. Paul passed its 10th "million dollar day" on February 16, and at the same time made its record disbursement of this year when it put into the hands of farmers in North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan $1,231,600.

VOTE ON VETERANS' BONUS IS FORCED

Congressmen Ignore Promise of a Veto.

Washington.—In the face of a definite White House warning that now was not the time for payment of the bonus, house members mustered enough signatures to a petition to force a vote on the issue on March 12.

Within an hour after Speaker Rainey formally announced President Roosevelt would not approve the legislation, the Lundeen petition on the Patman bill to pay $2,400,000,000 in greenbacks to the veterans was signed by the necessary one-third of the house membership.

Speaker Rainey had returned from a conference with President Roosevelt barely in time to open the session. As soon as he could relinquish his gavel he summoned reporters to his office to announce:

"I am authorized by the President to say this is not the time to pay the bonus and he cannot approve any legislation to that effect."

Before President Roosevelt sent word of his stand, both Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, predicted the bill would be passed by the house.

In the meantime the number of signers had increased to 145. Ninety-six Democrats, 44 Republicans and the 5 Farmer-Laborites were recorded on the petition.

The vote, which comes automatically on March 12 under house rules, will be on whether the ways and means committee shall be discharged from considering the Patman bill. It requires a majority to extract the bill from the committee.

Patman's bill provides for controlled expansion of the currency and the immediate payment of veterans in new currency.

The farm lands, it was announced, have been sold to the Lantana, Inc. company, formed to liquidate the tract, to more than 25 individuals and companies for subdivision and development.

The Stillman estate here formerly included more than half the townsite of Brownsville and extensive farm holdings, all of which have been sold by heirs of the James Stillman who started his fortune here 80 years ago. The Stillman ranch sold for approximately $1,000,000.

Freedom of Press Is Preserved by the Code

Washington.—The code of fair competition for daily newspapers, signed by President Roosevelt, effective February 27, safeguards the freedom of the press and includes a child labor provision substantially the same as that requested by the publishers.

It also provides for a standard maximum 40-hour week for clerical and mechanical employees with some exceptions, and sets up a newspaper labor board to deal with certain labor controversies and disputes under the code.

In a letter to General Johnson, recovery administrator, the President said he was not satisfied with the child labor provisions and asked for a special report and recommendation on that subject in 60 days.

TEN INFIRM WOMEN PERISH IN FLAMES

Tragedy at the G. A. R. Home in Brookville, Pa.

Brookville, Pa.—Ten women, widows and daughters of Civil war veterans, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the infirmary of the Pennsylvania Memorial home.

There were 15 women in the one-story frame building, one of a group of four and five of them were burned to death in the flames in better than 15 minutes.

Nine of the bodies of the ten victims had been recovered from the burning home.

The home is operated by the Women's Relief Corps of Pennsylvania, a charitable organization connected with the Grand Army of the Republic.

The far-below zero temperature froze fire hose, nozzles and fire plugs and greatly hampered the work of the fire fighters.

The firemen said the blaze had gained great headway by the time of their arrival and they found difficulty in getting close to the building.

Most of the patients were infirm women who apparently were helpless if trapped as the flames burst forth.

A strong wind whipped up the fire as attendants worked heroically to rescue the women.

They carried out five, bundling them in blankets and overcoats to protect them from the freezing cold. But a wall of flame, growing ever hotter, blocked efforts to get at the remaining ten.

Picketing by Employers Upheld by Ohio Court

Cleveland, O.—An economic weapon heretofore recognized as belonging principally to labor unions now is recognized by Common Pleas Judge George B. Harris as being a right of a trade association, in a case involving the national industrial recovery act.

The opinion was handed down in a temporary restraining order which had prevented the Retail Cleaners and Tailors association of Cleveland from continuing its picket activities at the Park Avenue cleaners.

FIERCE BLIZZARD GRIPS THE EAST

New York and New England Are Worst Sufferers.

New York.—New York and New England spent 24 hours in the grip of the worst snow blizzard since the historic storms of 1888.

Rail, suburban, and city transportation lines were paralyzed and service suspended in many areas. Thousands of commuters were marooned, and those who reached the metropolitan areas had extreme difficulty in getting home at night. Hotels were crowded with stranded persons.

Ships were caught in ice jams, schools suspended, streets choked with snow drifts, automobile traffic confined to main arteries, and a coating of ice made traffic of any sort hazardous.

While the snowfall in the New York and Boston areas ranged below 12 inches, and the temperature hovered around 9 degrees, the havoc created was intensified by a mixture of sleet, ice, and gale.

Suffering was general, but the number of deaths attributed to the storm in the metropolitan area was held to the surprisingly low figure of 13. Nine were reported dead in New England, one in Westchester, and six in Pennsylvania, making a day's total of 24.

Train service between New York and Boston was virtually suspended all day and night, although some of the commuting trains to lower New England and to New Jersey were able to push through snow drifts with homeward-bound travelers. It was estimated that at least 500,000 commuters were unable to get into New York, and many of them were stranded for hours on trains stuck in snowdrifts.

All forms of transportation, within the city and connecting it with its suburbs and other parts of the country, were stopped or badly delayed except the subway lines. Railroads, buses, ships, airplanes, trolley cars, elevated trains, and taxicabs all were tied up at one time or another because of icy streets, snow-covered tracks, frozen switches, blown-down wires, or great drifts.

Communication systems suffered heavily, especially the telephone service in outlying sections.

The entire New England coast was lashed by a 60-mile gale. The storm extended inland as far as the Adirondacks and south to the eastern shore of Maryland, and although with less severity, and an accompanying cold wave reached clear to Florida.

Shipping was in distress all along the nation's northeastern sea board. At least 80 lives were imperiled, although it appeared that in every case the valiant coast guardsmen and other rescue forces were winning their battles with the storm. Numerous ships were towed to port in the Boston area.

Scores of New England communities were isolated by the storm. Street car, bus and automobile traffic through Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island was paralyzed by the drifts; telephone wires were down and in some places the electric power lines also failed.

POULTRY

HAVE CONTROL OF THE TURKEY FLOCK

Need Free Range Before the Laying Season Starts.

It is important that the turkey breeding flock be well controlled during the season of egg production. Free range may be allowed until about a month before the birds start laying.

As this time approaches, advises a correspondent in Successful Farming, they are best put under control so that their instinct of stealing away to nest does not cause a serious loss of valuable hatching eggs.

In the north well-managed turkeys start to lay early in the spring. Therefore, it is well to place the breeding flock under control early and feed a good laying mash. Manage it the same as a flock of laying chickens should be managed.

Provide as large a range as possible so long as it keeps the birds under control and does not allow them to steal away to nest. A good shelter is necessary for them while the weather is still cold and blustery, but as the season grows warmer they may be allowed to roost in an open shed protected from storms.

A successful method of encouraging early egg production from turkeys is to give lights for the breeding flock the same as for chickens. So long as the weather is bad all feeding and watering equipment should be kept indoors and cleaned often. After that it is well to keep the feed and water supply away from the buildings.

Nests for turkeys may be made of barrels. Little individual huts roomy enough to be comfortable are also satisfactory.

Broody turkeys are much easier to break up than broody chickens. Confinement for one to three days usually cures them of the notion, after which they soon resume laying. A good turkey will lay between 35 and 40 eggs by May 15.

Hatchability of Eggs Is Influenced by Feed

Because proper sorts of feed for the poultry flock influence the hatchability of eggs, some hatcheries in Ohio pay premiums to poultrymen whose eggs hatch the most chicks, according to R. E. Cray, extension specialist in poultry husbandry for the Ohio State university.

Hatchability of eggs depends in part upon three factors which are under the control of all poultrymen. More fertile eggs are obtained from flocks fed a green food, milk, and supplied vitamin D, says Cray.

Green food may be supplied either in the form of alfalfa or soy bean hay, or by adding alfalfa leaf meal to the dry laying mash.

Feeding both milk and green food sometimes increases the proportion of eggs that hatch as much as 10 or 12 per cent. Feeding one and not the other increases hatchability slightly.

Vitamin D may be supplied either in cod liver oil or by supplementing the winter to direct rays from the sun on the range, cod liver oil beneficially affects hatchability.

Choosing Breeders

Vigor and health are more important than all else in selecting a turkey breeding flock. Vigorous, fast growing, early maturing, blocky young toms are preferred for breeding. Young hens are preferred to old ones because they generally lay earlier and lay more eggs, except in the case of specially selected layers. Cod liver oil fed to the turkey breeding flock insures health, shell texture and the higher hatchability and livability of the pullets, according to the Nebraska agricultural college. A good laying mash kept before the henler at all times will stimulate earlier laying as well as greater production. Boxes about 30 inches square or barrels laid on the side make suitable nests. Brush piled ever these makes them more tempting to the hens. Seven or eight nests should be enough for 30 hens, adds the college.

Hatchable Pullet Eggs

If pullets have been in production from 60 to 90 days before the eggs are selected for hatching and have been mated with vigorous cocks the chicks should be satisfactory, according to North Carolina State college. The factors of good management for the pullets, however, will have considerable bearing on the question. A balanced ration should be fed, reinforced with a biologically tested cod-liver oil where green feed is not available. The houses should be well ventilated.

Feed for Producing Hens

Hens will not lay many eggs on any rations unless they have all the oyster shell or other lime-bearing material they need for the formation of shell. They must also have a reasonable amount of green feed in the form of vegetables or clover, preferably alfalfa in ground or fine chopped form. Oats and barley have good qualities, but are not heartily relished with the hulls on. Wheat and cracked corn are both nourishing and fattening; so should be fed only moderately to layers.

Cod-Liver Oil Beneficial

The use of a good grade of cod-liver oil has proved most beneficial for chick raising and for adult birds, but unless the best grades of oil are used the beneficial effects are missing, says the Los Angeles Times. For leg weakness, a tablespoonful, well mixed in mash for thirty chicks, will work wonders, while a teaspoonful will give a leggy cock or hen will generally remedy weakers. Breeding hens and male birds are always invigorated by the use of cod-liver oil.

Much Waste Time in Putting Away

Having Definite Place for Things Will Solve the Problem.

It is amazing, the amount of time a homemaker finds she devotes just to putting things away. Whether she gets out she may put away, but some other person in the family may not be so particular. This may be because she was lenient when children were young, and now they find it is not essential to consider putting things away as part of a job. Or it may be no fault of her own. Her things are left for her to put away. She realizes the tasks should not fall to her lot, but if she does not ask, or rather remind others to put the things away, they are left for her to attend to. And if she mentions the thing more than once, she is made to feel she is nagging.

One way that may prove helpful is to let the children, or those of her household, know that if the place looks untidy, the blame of it falls on her shoulders. She will probably find the members of the family will rally to her aid. Not one of them will want his or her negligence to revert to the disparagement of one they love.

Apart from this friendly attitude about the matter, there is another one entirely practical. The homemaker can promote her cause of saving time through orderliness, by seeing that there are definite places in which to put the things. There is one reason for leaving things around which is pardonable, and that is not having places for them. You often hear a child, when told to put an article away, say, in a voice with a whine, "Where shall I put it? I don't know where it belongs."

The homemaker may be one of those women who, although she puts things away, does not put each item away. For example, something may be needed from a ribbon or lace box. After getting the wanted article, the box will be carefully placed where it belongs, but—one or two pieces of lace or lengths of ribbon will be omitted from it. After all, it is often the putting away of these little odds and ends which make such pinpricks on the homemaker's time. Picking up this and putting away that, during a busy precious moments which, during a day, makes one lose time, and time is a precious thing.

The tidying up after a task should be considered as much a part of the work as getting the things out. Strangely to say this is not always so considered.

Pasturing of woodlots makes natural reproduction of woodlots impossible. There is no quarrel with the man who needs all available pasture land, but a woodlot that is something more than a mere shady grove produces little forage anyway, and when pastured produces very little wood, either.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

BY MICHAEL K. REILLY: M. C.

The Congressional mill moved rather slowly during the past week. The House passed the tax bill, to which I referred in my last letter; a bill to reimburse our foreign representatives for losses sustained because of the devaluation of the dollar; and is considering today, Saturday, and will probably pass before adjournment a bill, covering the situation that has arisen because of the cancellation of the air mail contracts, and the transfer of the carrying of mail from private corporations to the Army Air Corps.

The Senate spent most of the week up to Thursday when it adjourned until Monday discussing the Independent Officer's Appropriation Bill which recently passed the House. The principal point of contest being the question as to whether or not the salary cuts of Government employees of 15 per cent, provided in the Economy Bill, of the last Session, should be all wiped out, beginning July first next. The President has contended for a 5 per cent reduction of this cut on July 1, and leaving the question as to when the balance of the cut shall be at an end, to be determined by the rise in the cost of living.

There is no telling at this time, just what will come out of the restoration of the salary cuts fight between the President and the Senate. If the President insists that his position on this matter is vital, to his budget set-up and his Recovery Program, there is no doubt at all, but that the House will back him up in that position, but on the other hand, if the President is not vitally concerned, and does not insist upon his program, as regards the salary cut, the House will undoubtedly sustain the position taken by the Senate, to restore all pay cuts on July 1st next.

One item of the recent tax bill passed by the House of particular interest to the citizens of Wisconsin, especially the dairy farmers, is that which imposes a tax of five cents a pound on coconut and sesame oil. These oils are imported in large quantities from Eastern countries and is used in the manufacture of butter substitutes. It is hoped that the levying of this tax will be of benefit to the dairy industry.

Ever since our country went off the gold standard, our representatives in foreign countries, have suffered a great depreciation in the purchasing power of the salaries paid to them, in dollars. After the President took the country off the gold standard last April and the exchange value of the American dollar began to fall, our country adopted the policy of paying the salaries of our ambassadors, consuls, etc., in gold.

Last July this policy was abandoned, and the result was that our foreign representatives suffered a serious depreciation in salary. It is stated that a few of our representatives committed suicide, and many resigned because of the fact that as a result of the low exchange value of the American dollar they could not live in these countries.

There is something peculiar about the effects following the going off of the gold standard, both by England and our country. After England went off the gold standard, the exchange value of the pound fluctuated greatly. At one time the pound had fallen to about 69 per cent, but there was no great rise in domestic prices in England. The domestic price level never went up more than 7 per cent. Of course, when the exchange value of the pound went down, prices should go up to the extent to which the pound went down, but that was not the case. The English domestic price level did not respond to the pound fluctuations.

The experience of our country in going off the gold standard as far as domestic price levels, was similar to England. Since the President took the country off the gold standard last April, our domestic price levels have gone up only about 20 per cent on an average, while the exchange value of the dollar has gone down about 40 per cent.

Now, when our foreign representatives get their salaries, in American dollars today, they have to exchange those dollars for the money of the country in which they reside. The result is that their salary dollar is worth 40 per cent less than it was before last April, or in other words, their salaries have been cut 40 per cent, measured by the purchasing power of our dollars in the countries they serve.

The bill to which I refer, and which passed the house this week, is designed to give the President power to reimburse our foreign representatives for the great losses they have suffered in the purchasing power of their salaries, owing to the fact of the devaluating of the dollar.

The fact of the matter is, our ambassadors and foreign representatives are in one way, the poorest paid officials in the Government, with the result that only rich men can afford to accept the nomination of an ambassador to a foreign country. Just to illustrate, the ambassador from England to America gets $75,000.00 a year and a home, while we pay our ambassador to England only $17,000.00 a year and he has to provide his own home.

As a result of recent investigations of our air-mail contracts, and to turn that work over, temporarily at least, to the Army aviators. Much dispute has arisen as to the justification of such action on the part of the President.

It is alleged that many of those mail
