"Well, you've just about cleaned up on Franz. When you got here he was sitting in the golden chair. You've made a monkey out of him since. He ain't quit the country and he ain't the kind to forgive. If I was to want to nab the man who started this fire I'd begin right now checkin' up on where Mr. Franz esquire was at this forenoon."

A crawling premonition ran through Steve. Martin thought just as he did. It was perfectly reasonable to suspect that Franz, outmaneuvered in more ambitions than the foreman knew anything about, would resort to the torch before accepting defeat.

And, on this, a companion fear commenced to form within him. The folds of a heavy brief case back by there at headquarters, protected only by an old, crippled man and a temporarily blinded girl. This fact assumed ominous proportions although he tried to laugh at himself.

Why, Franz could not know that the money had arrived, he argued silently as Martin talked on about plans for the night; but in the next breath he was remembering that the man had been present when MacDonald dictated his terms and would know that any representative of the Flynn arriving now would bring currency.

He called LaFane to one side. "I'm dropping back to headquarters just to have a look," he said. "I'll take a canoe because Martin may need the boats for supplies. Just tell Young Jim to sit tight until I get back. When the boys are told what we three know, we should all be together."

He went quickly to the far end of the room and took down a rifle from its resting place on a set of antlers. It was loaded. He slipped more ammunition into his pocket and ran out, closing the door behind him.

He approached the northern end of the lake. He was tempted to cut across to summon help, to call the entire crew of the fire which was a menace only to property and turn them out to head off the scourge which threatened such a precious thing as Kate Flynn.

And yet that would take time and Kate was Franz's prisoner and he knew he was capable of effecting rescue alone once he could locate that other canoe. His eagerness, his anxiety, therefore, upset his usually good judgment.

He could not sit still. If he had miscalculated, if old Tim had been wrong about the time of Franz's departure, it might be still beyond him. The wood camp was not far away; he would go that far, anyhow.

"I won't be gone so long," Franz said, after he had swung the canoe to his shoulders. "Maybe, by the time I get back, you'll be more reasonable."

Not by so much as the flicker of a lid did the girl indicate that she gave heed, but her heart was in tumult. Franz paddled steadily and after darkness had fallen guided his canoe against the bank and stepped out.

"I won't be gone so long," Franz said, after he had swung the canoe to his shoulders. "Maybe, by the time I get back, you'll be more reasonable."

He stripped off his belt, backed Kate to a birch tree, secured one end of the strap about her wrists and tied the other to a branch at the height of her shoulders. By drawing down she could hold her hands at the level with the small of her back; when she did not resist the pull of the branch they were held high, in a position that strained muscles and tendons and forced her to bend far forward.

"I won't be gone so long," Franz said, after he had swung the canoe to his shoulders. "Maybe, by the time I get back, you'll be more reasonable."

On her back in the canoe bottom Kate Flynn was transported up the lake.

BEING POLITE

A small boy was asked to dine at the home of a distinguished professor. His mother questioned him on his return: "You are sure you didn't do anything that was not perfectly polite and gentlemanly?"

"Why, no, nothing to speak of." "Then something did happen. Tell me at once," she demanded.

"Well, while I was trying to cut the meat it slipped off to the floor. But I made it all right," said the boy.

"Oh, I just said carelessly, 'That's always the way with tough meat!'"

Minister—Do you promise to love, honor and cherish this woman? Politician—Yes, whatever the platform is I subscribe to it.

Misunderstood Two girls made a bet a few weeks ago that each could vamp more men than the other. After ten days they met again.

No Senses An ambitious mother was trying to instruct her small son in the use of the five sense organs. She rehearsed with him the use of the eyes, ears, tongue and fingers, then asked: "Now what is your nose for?"

Not Bothering "Do you remember when they talked of converting the swords into plowshares?" "I'm not botherin' 'bout what they did to the swords," replied Farmer Corntassel, "so long as they didn't bother the big guns an' the battle-ships."

The Refinement of Ingratitude "Republics are ungrateful," said the ready-made philosopher.

A Natural Mistake Woman—I want to register the death of my husband. Registrar—Did you have a doctor? Woman—Oh, no. He was just an honest bricklayer.

GOOD REACH "There is something about Fred that draws me to him."

Difficult of Access "She is very frigid in her manner," remarked Willie Washington.

Me, Too! Walton—This is my favorite month. Dalton—I have a note due the first of next month, too.

The Parrot Young Man—Why do you keep a parrot? Very Old Man—Because I like to hear it talk. The parrot is the only creature gifted with the power of speech that is content to repeat just what it hears without trying to make a long story of it.

The Ingenious Cook "How did you make those nice scallops on your pies, Mandy?" Mandy—Oh, I jes' used mah false teeth.

Disappeared "The father of that woman playing the piano paid out a large sum on her musical education."

Still Alluring Grandfather—So you love Miss Flighly of the Frivolity? Grandson—Yes, grandpa, I hope you do not object.

Cannel Coal From Ferns Cannel coal is believed to be made up of the spores which grew on the underside of the fronds of giant ferns millions of years ago.

Measles Once Dire Scourge Disease, Prevalent Just Now in the United States, Has Wiped Out Whole Populations in the Past; Few Escape Malady.

Practically every case of measles develops a mild "pneumonia." For many centuries the disease was not differentiated from smallpox.

Nearly every individual in the civilized world has the disease, knowledge of it, at some time. It recurs in periodic waves, with peaks for each community every two-and-a-half or three years.

It long has been known that the greatest danger from measles was the possibility of developing pneumonia. But, in a recent study of 900 cases by doctors at Bellevue hospital, New York city, in which X-ray pictures of the chests were taken, every one showed a mild inflammation of the lungs, called "capillary bronchitis," which constitutes mild pneumonia.

During the American Civil war the disease broke out in a virulent form in both armies. For the Confederates it constituted one of the major causes of death and was an important factor in depleting the man power of the South.

In 1875 a British warship carried measles to the Fiji islands. Within four months 40,000 out of a population of 150,000 were dead. A few years later it was accidentally introduced into Greenland. It almost wiped out the Eskimo population.

The measles curve still is rising, according to Assistant Surgeon General R. C. Williams, in charge of the public health service statistics. The peak may be any time between March 1 and May 1. There is no very specific treatment. The micro-organism causing the disease is unknown. It develops its own immunity. Practically every adult is safe from it.

Some of the public health service staff have resorted to the use of a serum made of their own blood as a preventive measure for their children—but the wisdom of this must be decided in each case and is up to the family physician. The efficacy is by no means assured.

There is a slight variation in virulence from peak to peak. This time the disease is not very virulent. Practically every part of the country is affected. Usually the disease tends to be concentrated in certain localities during a particular peak.

Authority Shows That Beds Preceded Chairs The bed is the ancestor of the chair. Such is the conclusion of Dr. Walter Hough, head curator of anthropology of the Smithsonian institution. He bases his conclusions on a systematic study of primitive furniture and primitive human postures.

His study of the furniture of the most primitive "houses" shows that rest was the prime motive. First appeared the rudiments of the bed when man learned to interpose some buffer between his body and the hard, cold ground.

The cyclic nature of the disease now is thoroughly recognized, according to public health service doctors. These cycles do not embrace the country as a whole but vary with localities.

Some of the public health service staff have resorted to the use of a serum made of their own blood as a preventive measure for their children—but the wisdom of this must be decided in each case and is up to the family physician. The efficacy is by no means assured.

McCormick-Deering
No. 3 Field Cultivator

MAYBE it's Quack or Johnson Grass . . . perhaps it's some other noxious weed . . . but—nine chances out of ten—weeds in your fields are stealing fertility from your crops and lowering your yields and profits.

After deep plowing, use this McCormick-Deering Field Cultivator on your land and yank out those fertility-robbing weeds by the roots. Then rake them up and burn them!

This cultivator is great for summer-fallow, alfalfa cultivation, or seed-bed preparation. It does good work under all conditions because its entire weight can be thrown on the gangs when the going is tough.

Bring your weed problem to us. We can supply this cultivator in different sizes with sweeps best suited for attacking your weeds.

NOTICE—Having installed a Feed-Grinding and Mixing System, we are in a position to take care of all your feed-grinding and mixing.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

BY MICHAEL K. REILLY: M. C.

The President returned to Washington on Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock, from his southern trip.

He had the unusual experience of being greeted at the Railway station, by a couple of hundred members of the House and Senate, who had marched to the depot, to the music of the famous Marine Band, to meet his incoming train.

Old members of Congress state that this is the first time to their knowledge that a President has ever been welcomed back to the Capitol, as President Roosevelt was welcomed on his return to his post of duty on Friday.

Democrats, Republicans and Farm Laborites joined in the welcome. While there were more Democrats in line than Republicans, the affair had much of the appearance of a non-partisan greeting, to the returning President.

There can be no doubt but if ever a man needed a rest from his labors as a public official, that man was President Roosevelt. For more than a year he has struggled with momentous problems, involving the rehabilitation of our financial and industrial worlds, struggling with problems, that no president, has ever had before him for solution, in all our country's history. While he has had wonderful co-operation, not only from the members of his own party, but also from the members of the Republican party, he has however had to contend with the subtle and determined opposition of certain forces of our industrial and financial world, that do not want to give up the old financial and economic order, for any New Deal, that would ban privileges heretofore enjoyed by the few, to the great economic and social detriment of the many.

These opponents of the President's Recovery Program believe that the present depression is nothing more than an ordinary panic, of which our country has had many and that if the country was left alone, we would come out of this panic, as we have come out of other panics, and go forward to greater industrial achievements, while the President believes that this is an extraordinary depression, the likes of which has never occurred in our country or any other country, and that if our industrial democracy is to be saved, or any part of our individualistic theory is to be preserved for future generations, it is necessary that our country should chart through legislative enactments, new economic highways upon which our country should proceed in the future.

Congress did but little during the President's absence, except to override the President's veto of the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill. However, certain members of the House, during that period, have been very active in carrying on a propaganda, for the passing of financial legislation that would certainly wreck the President's Recovery Program.

There are a great many members of the House and Senate, Republicans and Democrats, who believe that all our economic ills, could be cured by starting the printing-presses, and printing many billions of dollars of new money.

Some weeks ago, the House passed a bill to pay in full the adjusted service certificates of the e-service men. This Bill would have required $2,400,000,000 worth of new money. Soon there will be considered by the House, by the petition method, the Lemke Bill, which requires the Government to issue about $8,000,000,000 worth of new money to take up all farm mortgages in the country. There is now pending before the Banking and Currency Committee, the Swank Bill, which provides that the Government shall furnish the necessary money, about $25,000,000,000 to take up all city mortgages. During the past few weeks, the McLeod Bill has been considered, which provides that the Government shall pay in full depositors of all closed National and affiliated banks, regardless of what their assets may amount to.

Of course, no bill will be passed by the House or the Senate for paying depositors in full that does not include State banks as well as National banks. At the present time, there is tied up in closed banks, State and National, deposits in the sum of $3,400,000,000. All of these Bills provide not for increasing taxation, but for the issuing of new money.

Where is this money to come from (about $40,000,000,000), that these bills call for? Let it be understood also that in addition to these huge sums called for by these proposed bills, the Government will have to provide $7,000,000,000 more to carry out its relief program.

Where do these Congressmen and Senators expect to get this money? Through Taxation? No, through the sale of U. S. bonds? No. The Government will have to sell $7,000,000,000 worth of bonds without new legislation in order to meet the refinancing demands of the Government itself.

This money is to come from the printing press of the United States Treasury and our Government according to the statesmanship displayed in this proposed legislation would start up on a money inflation program such as we have never known or heard of before. If these bills should all become laws, they would cause such an inflation in our currency as would destroy all confidence in the stability of our business and financial world and would wreck our President's recovery program.

The President has announced that he is opposed to all of these bills as destructive to his recovery program.

The writer has backed the President's program to date, and he intends to continue to support the President in his efforts to save this country.

President Roosevelt has so far avoided the inflationary methods for aiding recovery, except that he has devalued the gold dollar, and added more silver to our money base, and it is submitted that there are abundant evidences, that his recovery program is working, and that the country is gradually coming out of the valley of Depression. The one act of Congress or of the President that would do more to impede recovery, would be that Act or Acts that would tell to the world that our country has decided to cure all of our economic ills through the operation of the printing press.

The President will need all of his renewed physical and mental stamina if he is going to be able to thwart the money radicals, who would destroy his program, and bring to our country the sorrow, wreck and ruin that came to the people of France and Germany in recent years, when they tried the money printing method to bring about industrial and economic recovery in those countries.

The writer believes that Congress should and will do something to aid the depositors in the closed banks of the country, State and National. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has already loaned about $800,000,000 to these banks, which has been paid to Depositors. This sum should be increased to such a sum as will represent the present value of all the assets of the closed banks, which sums should be immediately paid to the depositors. Then the assets of these banks should be held until a higher price level would be reached, and the losses to the depositors and stockholders be reduced to a minimum, as a result of the orderly sale of said assets.

59 COUNTIES TURN IN CORN—HOG CONTRACTS

Seeking to regain the lead in the final clean-up in Wisconsin in the federal corn—hog reduction campaign, Grant county committees turned in a total of 2,250 contracts which exceeded all previous figures. Dane county, however, still manages to keep in front with a new record of 2,415 contracts.

At the same time, Dodge county was nearing the 2,000 contract mark and eleven other counties were reporting more than one thousand signers.

The recorded total to date for 59 of Wisconsin's 71 counties is 40,723 contracts. Reports from the other 12 northern counties and a few contracts that are still in the hands of committeemen are expected to bring the final record well over 42,000.

Practically all of the 55 principal corn and hog producing counties have been permanently organized and most of them are about through with their clean-up. They are now marking time in the township, county and state tabulations and are correcting errors and getting ready for the day to add the second signatures. Once that is done, the contracts from each county will be speeded to Washington for acceptance by the Secretary of Agriculture. Soon after they are accepted, checks for the first corn—hog benefit will be in the mails.

Totals of the counties reporting from this locality, which are expected to be about the final totals are: Dodge 1,900, Fond du Lac 1,100, Sheboygan 700, Washington 539, Ozaukee 323, Waukesha 225, Milwaukee 100.

HOLLYWOOD WHITE LEGHORNS

Oldest, trapnested, pedigreed White Leghorn obtainable.

Believe it or not, but it is hard work for me to write up an ad in which to explain a few facts about Hollywood White Leghorns and try to compare their merits against common Leghorns. I do not like to knock the stock of other hatcheries but when they come out with absolutely false statements, I cannot help myself to tell you some honest facts.

Now then certain hatcheries advertise to set eggs weighing 24 to 32 oz. per dozen only. This statement anyone should know is positively false. Another nearby hatchery advertises their famous strain claiming this and that for their large birds, large eggs, etc. when in fact they pick up eggs from any old farm flock, put them in their machines and sell you Grade "A", Grade "AA" Special and Master mating when in fact it's all the same grade, just Leghorns. Can you tell the difference in the chick?

Now then think over the Hollywood Strain mating regardless of price.

Now then if you want Leghorns of uniform size that lay large chalk white eggs in great numbers throughout the year, then order your chick now and be convinced that there is a difference between a pure Hollywood Leghorn and an ordinary so-called best Leghorn.

Visit our farm and see our birds, eggs, etc., and then you soon will be convinced that Hollywoods are the best in Leghorns.

Look over Hollywood catalogue here and get all the facts about this World's Famous Strain.

Yet we sell chick at ordinary hatchery run chick. Hatch every Wednesday. Place your orders now for May and June chick.

THE Power OF EIGHT CYLINDERS

THE Economy OF FOUR

THE Ford V-8 engine is not four large cylinders multiplied by two, nor six with two added. It simply divides its 221 cubic inches eight ways instead of four or six. It takes the fuel supply of an ordinary four-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. Eight cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount.

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller overlapping ones the Ford

V-8 engine develops an unusual smoothness that results in greater power for even less gas.

The 1934 Ford V-8 gives you 2½ extra miles per gallon, or 20 miles per gallon at 45 miles an hour. It gives you 12% more power, and faster acceleration.

By any measure of comparison—first cost, cost per mile, cost of up-keep—the Ford V-8 is the most economical car you can drive.
