LOCAL PEOPLE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

While on their way to Chicago last Sunday morning, where they intended to witness the Chicago Cubs-New York Giants baseball game, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rosenheimer of this village met with an auto accident that might have proven very fatal. They were driving along on Highway 41, which at that time was very congested with traffic, and when about seven miles south of Waukegan, where the concrete highway was very narrow, with loose gravel on both sides of the road, their car got off the concrete into this loose gravel and they were unable to get the car back on the highway again. The car started to roll and turned over three or four times. Passing motorists stopped and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Rosenheimer in extricating themselves from the wreckage. They were taken to a hospital at Waukegan where it was found that aside from numerous bruises and two small bones broken in Mrs. Rosenheimer's foot, they were not seriously hurt. The car was completely wrecked Mr. and Mrs. Rosenheimer arrived home Monday evening by train and are now recuperating from their injuries and shock. Both are to be congratulated on their narrow escape from

GAMES NEXT SUNDAY Kewaskum at Thiensville Grafton at Port Washington

Hartford at West Bend Kewaskum gained a precious notch by tipping Grafton Sunday 2 to 1 in a game in which it was impossible to guess what team would be victor, until Grafton was retired in the ninth. The locals nosed through and as a result, now occupy undisputed second place. Kewaskum is not contented yet, but is after another notch-that of tring or passing Port Washington for first place. Port has a one game lead and have yet to play the team that dogs their tracks-Kewaskum. The game again had its highlights Murray kept up h's pace as league-lead. ing batter by connecting for three hits. The hitting of the Muenier brothers, Jack and Jules, featured Grafton's attack, Jack getting three hits and Jules two. Another feature was the pitching of Bassler for Kewaskum as well as Robel for Grafton, and last but not least that throw by Hodge in the eighth, With Kewaskum having a one run lead in that inning and one man out for Grafton, Jack Muenier caught hold of one of Bassler's slants and sent it over Hodge's head in right-center field. The ball hit the railroad embankment and rolled up the bank. Because the embankment was steep the ball began to roll back down the hill when Hodge picked it up, lined it to Trotter at third base and caught Muenier by a few feet as he came into the bag. Had the throw been a little off the runner would have made it and undoubtedly would have scored later. Kewaskum bunched up three hits in the fourth to score their two runs. Bassler singled. Marx singled, and Hodge doubled, driving in the two runs. Grafton got its run in the sixth on a triple by Goldberg and a single by Jack

Next Sunday the boys will play at Thiensville. The team cannot lose this game if they intend to remain in the thick of it. A defeat would greatly dim their chance-but. Kewaskum doesn't intend to lose. Thiensville has defeated the locals twice this year by one run margins but these games were pure luck. The boys need your help, so do your share and attend the game if you want to see the team fight for the pen-

Speaker Rainey's Death Starts Race for His Position-Prominent Men Organize Liberty League to Combat Radicalism.

> By EDWARD W. PICKARD by Western Newspaper Union

HENRY T. RAINEY, veteran congressman from Illinois and speaker of the house, died unexpectedly in a

St. Louis hospital where he was be lieved to be recovering from an attack of bronchial pneumonia,

The immediate cause of his death was angina pectoris. Mr. Rainey, who was within a day of being seventy-four years old, was first elected to congress in 1902, and he served continuously with the exception of one term, being de-

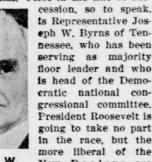

Henry T. Rainey feated in the Harding landslide of 1920. He was elected to the speakership when John Nance Garner became Vice President. His control over the house during the sessions of last year and this year, while the President's program was being put through, was gentle but so firm that the legislators were kept well in

Mr. Rainey devoted much of his service in Washington to efforts to improve the condition of the farmers, for he held that farm prosperity was essential in any program for national well being. He also was a student of tariff and fiscal subjects. As a Democrat he was always a "regular." He was the author of the tariff commission law and of much other important legislation.

Mrs. Rainey acted as her husband's secretary for years and is so well acquainted with congressional work that the Democrats may select her as the candidate to complete his term as representative from the Twentieth Illinois district.

Mr. Rainey was buried in his home town, Carrollton, after services which were attended by President Roosevelt and many other notable persons.

S PEAKER RAINEY'S death will result in a spirited contest among a number of men who are ambitious to succeed him. First in the line of succession, so to speak, nessee, who has been serving as majority floor leader and who is head of the Democratic national congressional committee. President Roosevelt is going to take no part in the race, but the more liberal of the New Dealers are known to favor Sam Rayburn of Texas. Well informed ob servers believe Byrns will be elected speaker and Rayburn floor leader. Other aspirants for the speakership are John E. Rankin of Mississippi, who has announced his candidacy; William B. Bankhead of Alabama, and John J. O'Connor of New York.

Mr. Byrns has been a member of the house continuously since his election to the Sixty-first congress. His work as floor leader, in conjunction with Rainey's rule as speaker, was not especially pleasing to the New Dealers for some months during the last session, but before adjournment most of the misunderstandings were cleared up. In any case, the administration seldom interferes in the selection of the leaders of congress not wishing to incur the enmity of powerful members of the party.

R ETURNING from his swift trip to attend the funeral of Mr. Rainey, the President went directly back to Washington instead of going to his Hyde Park home. This change in plan was due, it was said, to the development of a bitter dispute between Gen. Hugh S. Johnson on one side and Donald Richberg, Mr. Roosevelt's chief industrial adviser, and Secretary of Labor Perkins on the other, over the new structure to be given the NRA.

The issue, it was disclosed, is whether there shall be a board of control in authoritative management of the NRA or a board which shall be more advisory in power, leaving the real control still in the hands of the administrator and his deputies. It was expected Mr. Roosevelt would take command of the situation and determine definitely what shall be done with the recovery administration.

General Johnson has said that, at the request of the President, he will remain with the NRA after its reorganization, and presumably he will be chairman of the board.

O RGANIZED labor scored a victory over Recovery Administrator Johnson when the national labor relations board ordered John Donovan, former president of the NRA union dismissed by Johnson for "inefficieney," reinstated to his position with the labor advisory board.

"The agencies which are administering the law should in their own dealings uphold its purposes," the board said in its decision, giving a veiled reproof to Johnson for what it implied was a violation of section 7a

With rather bad grace the NRA accepted the rebuke and permitted Donovan to return to his job. Johnson himself had nothing to say about it, but Dr. Gustav Peck, Donovan's immediate superior, issued a statement in which he sniffed at the board's decision and warned Donovan that he would have to "toe the mark."

Soon after this the NRA announced that it does not regard itself as obliged to withdraw the Blue Eagle in cases where the national labor relations board has found companies guilty of violation of section 7A of the national industrial recovery act and of subsequent failure to obey the instruc-

The labor board has recommended withdrawal of the Blue Eagle to the NRA compliance board in all cases where companies have disobeyed its instructions to reinstate discharged employees. The decision by the NRA will remove teeth from decisions by the board, since it may now hear cases, make decisions, and find that no penalties are inflicted for disobeying its orders.

COTTON garment code amendments reducing the working hours and giving workers a wage increase have been signed by the President. The amendments, which affect plants in 42 states, are of far-reaching importance.

Sidney Hillman, labor advisory board member and Amalgamated Clothing union head, termed signing of the order "the most far-reaching move NRA has yet made to increase employment." It was hoped that this order would avert the threatened strike of the garment workers.

TWO prominent Democrats, two Republicans almost equally prominent, and one leading industrialist, all of them of conservative tendencies, have united to organize the American Liberty league dedicated to a war on radicalism in the United States. The five founders of the league are: Alfred E. Smith. Democratic Presidential candidate in 1928 John W. Davis Democratic Presidential candidate in 1924:

They believe the league membership will grow into the millions and that it will become an important element in the

For president of the organization the founders selected Jouett Shouse, former chairman of the Democratic national committee and president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment until repeal was accomplished. In a statement Mr. Shouse set forth the purposes of the league as follows:

"It is a nonpartisan organization, formed, as stated in its charter, 'to defend and uphold the Constitution of the United States and to gather and disseminate information that (1) will teach the necessity of respect for the rights of persons and property as fundamental to every successful form of government, and (2) will teach the duty of government to encourage and protect individual and group initiative and enterprise, to foster the right to work, earn, save, and acquire property. and to preserve the ownership and lawful use of property when ac-

To interviewers Mr. Shouse declared the league was not anti-Roosevelt, but it seemed clear that it will be opposed to most of the major purposes of the New Deal and the radical professors of the brain trust. He said he had visited the President and informed him fully of the purposes of the league, but he would not tell what Mr. Roosevelt's reaction had been.

N THE nature of a reply to the formation of the American Liberty league was a speech delivered in Washington by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. He denied that the profit motive in American life has been or is to be abolished" by the New Deal, asserting that it seeks only to abolish "certain profit abuses," such as profits on watered stocks and disproportionate salaries.

"Private enterprise," said Mr. Roper. is getting back upon its own feet. and more and more is exerting its initiative and is able to relieve the federal government of responsibilities. which under normal conditions belong to business.

"Pardon my repeating again that the Roosevelt administration is squarely behind this principle. It believes in just profits for management and capital and an equitable return to labor for its rightful rewards in the economic processes.

"No thinking business man desire to have the old order restored. He does desire and is entitled to have the new order characterized by a better control against economic cataclysms and by the freedom to exercise his initiative in planning for the future of his business in the light of an equitable profit system."

BROOKLYN was the scene of one of the smartest crimes of recent times. A gang of bandits with machine guns held up an armored money truck, snatched $427,000 and fled in automobiles which were afterward abandoned for speed boats that carried the robbers and their loot out to sea. Their plans were so carefully laid and carried out with such precision that the forces of the law were at a loss for the time being. Though all avenues of escape by land and water were closely guarded, little or no trace of the bandits could be obtained.

Washington.-Chester C. Davis, the agricultural adjustment administrator, in a conversation I had with him the other day, uttered an Relief observation which seems to be decidedly worthwhile and one which, because of the assurance and contents, ought to be repeated here. My conversation with Mr. Davis had to do with questions concerning drouth relief and I want to quote his remarks because of the widespread destruction of the current period when rainfall has been nil in so many com-

"It is as unsafe and unjust to measure the true potentialities of this country,' Mr. Davis said, "by the extreme drouth conditions of this year as it was to measure them by the bumper crop years which happened to coincide with high prices so that everybody felt sudden riches were in sight. The one extreme is just as deceptive as the other."

Mr. Davis outlined what the government was attempting to do since its policy has been changed and since individuals no longer are required to the state board of health reported. The | fend for themselves. He declared the changes in policy that have been taken Accidents held first place as death- represent a frank recognition of responsibilities by the present leadership and it was his conviction that more has been done in the face of similar Madison - The state department of conditions than ever has been done agriculture and markets said that it before to relieve human distress. The infestation ficient prowess even in our national government to counteract all of the effects of such a calamity. The administrator holds to the belief, how-Manitowoc-Plants of the Aluminum ever, that the steps taken by the administration constitute the beginnings of a national program from which apparently it is proposed eventually to develop national policies for dealing > with all kinds of distress. Calling attention to the fact that the drouth relief program is the greatest ever undertaken in this or any other country, Mr. Davis summarized the joint activity of the several government agencies in the following language: The purchase of surplus cat tle, with the processing of meat for relief distribution; encouragement of production of forage crops: co-ordination of seed purchase; human employ ment relief; purchase of adapted feed grain; forestation and other measures to conserve moisture, prevent wind erosion and minimize the effects of future drouth, and in addition such crop benefit payments as have been made and which now turn out to be in his opinion crop insurance.

Mr. Davis is optimistic concerning Mukwonago - Four persons trapped | the future of the American farmer. Optimistic of the current drouth. as to Future He suggested, however, that it was necessary to face the facts of the current drouth, but also, to resort to the language of the street, the administrator thinks the country must not allow the current problems to knock It down.

"If the doubts and fears lately expressed had been heeded," Mr. Davis added, "the great plains never would have been settled. The troubles of today are but repetition on a less fearful scale of the obstacles encountered by the early settlers. But instead of turning back in the face of hardships, those pioneers established their homes and did not let drouth, flood, hail, or Indians stop them.

"Instead, the pioneers and their sons searched the world for drouthresistant wheat and grains which would mature in season. They bred up the drouth-resistant forage crops and planted them. They built a civilization on an expanse of the map which once was labeled the Great American desert. The drouths we have lived through in the past did not conquer the spirit nor stop the development of the West. The drouth of 1934 will not stop the men of the West in their forward march to conquer nature." The thing about the remarks which

Mr. Davis uttered that appealed to me treated the problems. He made no attempt in this conversation nor has he done so in several speeches he has made lately to use language that was hysterical. For an example of what I mean, dispatches coming from President Roosevelt's train on his homeward trip across the northern half of this country gave various figures as to the loss occasioned by the drouth. One of these dispatches credited an emergency relief official with the statement that the drouth had cost the farmers five billion dollars. Another dispatch placed the figure somewhat lower and gave no authority for the estimate. But the point is that while Mr. Davis recognizes the desperation of the farmers and the necessity for their relief, there was nothing sensational in his discussion. It is to be remembered that the total farm income of 1933 was only a little more than six billion dollars and It is hard for observers here to believe that the drouth has destroyed fivesixths of this country's agricultural income this year. In the light of this fact, the tempered remarks by Mr. Davis take on added significance and

It now seems certain that when the congress returns to Washington next January it will be Will Ask called upon immedi-More Funds ately by the administration to vote more funds for relief of the drouth victims. Until later, however, the extent to which the administration will seek to go in this direction cannot be foretold. It is evident that having seen the circumstances first hand, Mr. Roosevelt's entire sympathy will be behind whatever proposal he makes. Observers here, however, forese some dangers as a result of the present desperate conditions. They ha that Mr. Roosevelt will, as he has to quently stated, go the limit with tel eral funds, but the danger foreseen astute observers here is that some the members of the house and sense will attempt to go beyond all reason in preparation of relief plans during ben winter. It is not unusual, as the reords show, that on every occasion when the federal treasury doors are opened senators or representatives will come forward with scores of plans up. der the guise of human relief to get their hands on government money for their constituents. It is fair to sar that some of these will be sincere, h is equally fair to say that, as in the past, some of them will have her misguided. Some of the brain trusters already have developed far flung plans for the physical transfer of thousands of far families from the drouth stricken dis tricts into other areas where they can get started again. While generally speaking I believe sentiment in the government favors doing anything that will afford relief next winter, good many of the higher authorities in the administration point out the the scheme of transposition of whole families and their belongings present grave problems.

Without attempting to discuss the merit or demerit of the scheme, h seems to me that attention ought to be called to the fact that human being just can't agree to such programs.

I refer to this carton because most Washington observers see the price situation in this country to be quite confusing. It is to be recalled that throughout last year and early in 1934 the administration preicated all of its actions on a desire to raise prices. Now, however, the elfect of the prolonged drouth in the agricultural areas is being felt in the cities and President Roosevelt as nounced his fear that profitering is food prices is likely to result and make known that the administration is definite plans to curb any unite is in prices. -1-Dad was worried about something. All through dinner Nancy had been gware of it. Not once had he taken part in the conversation, and though outwardly unchanged (the girl was proud of her well-groomed, youthfuloking father) he seemed, somehow, miles and miles away. When even Jack's spirited account of Exeter's victory at the game that afternoon quite failed to rouse him, both aunts glanced up, puzzled; and Mother, saying: "Let's have our coffer in the living room," went to her husband and touched his shoulder.

"What's wrong, Jim? Has something happened? Dad turned quickly, as if startled at the question. "Something has," he admitted, pulling himself together with what seemed to all of them a tremendous effort, "and since the little boy's away, it's a good time to tell you. Don't bother with coffee tonight, Margaret. Come into the other room and close the door. I-I must get it over."

But after all, James Nelson did not have to break the news. It was his sister, always quick to grasp a situation, who asked as they gathered in the living room: "Did that crash in the market today hit you very hard,

Her brother nodded-wet his lips. "I-I'm down and out, Louise," he answered; but Nancy saw that he was looking at her mother. And Mother was looking at him, strangely. She seemed, thought the girl, stunned for just a moment.

"Down and out," James Nelson repeated grimly, still staring at his wife with eyes that had grown haggard. "After all these years the firm's gone under. I think-I fear, Margaret, that we'll have to begin all over again."

"Well," countered Mother, coming suddenly to life, "why not?" She sat down on the davenport beside Dad. and put an arm across his shouldes. "Tell us, dear, just how bad erything is."

Redrew a relieved breath, as if the worst were over.

"Not so bad as it might be, perhaps. I can't go into details now; but at added, "if I can help myself." least, I'm not in debt to others. I'm fifty-six. It's not easy to start again at that age, Margaret. This house is yours; but we can't afford to live here. What burts me most is that the hardest part will fall on you-all of you, I mean.

The servants, too; they'll have to go. And-and Nance was to have had her debut so soon !" "Oh, forget it!" The girl spoke flippantly because she couldn't have spoken otherwise without crying. "For my part," observed Jack, "I should think Sis would be relieved to get rid of all that fuss. I'll get a job, Dad. I never was keen on college anyway. I was only going so's not to disappoint you. And I won't need Mary Ann if I go to work. She'll bring in-something." "Mary Ann" was the boy's beloved roadster. James Nelson's eyes brightened suspiciously as he said: "You're good kids, both of you. I feel better already to have you meet this blow with so much pluck. I knew I could count on Mother; and Phil's too young to feel the hurt. As for you two, turning to his own sister and his "you're safe, thank heaven! That was my first grain of comfortrelief that I'd put your money into good, dependable bonds."

"For mercy's sake!" broke in Aunt Louise Why didn't you tell us sooner? If Judy's savings and mine are still intact, things aren't so bad. Even with that small capital you can start

This crash in the market is no fault of yours. Make him see sense, Margaret. Of course be'll take our money if it will help."

Said Mother: "Perhaps he won't need to if we sell this house." This is no time to sell real estate," Dad told her, "but I've no doubt we can tent it at a good price. And if we more to a small apartment, or even into the suburbs for a while, so as to out all possible expense, it will give the a chance to look around."

"See here!" spoke up Aunt Judy as t enriched spoke up Aunt the place at Edgemere the bow. Why not go there and in tent to pay?"

It was amazing that in this time of stress as plainly as any words: "I undershe should give a thought to her stand, daughter; but we mustn't let niece's disappointment, and the girl him guess our disappointment."

"Don't worry about me. If I'm not to come out in a blaze of glory, Aunt Louise, I'd almost rather be away somewhere."

"Why shouldn't Nance go to work?" asked Jack abruptly. "She's almost nineteen. Lots of girls her age-" "Oh, see here!" broke in her father,

"I guess we'll manage without that. I think your plan about Edgemere is a good one, Judith, unless it sounds too hard for Margaret. But of course I'd pay the rent like any other tenant."

"Oh, no, you wouldn't!" Aunt Judy bristled with indignation. "It's a pity if I'm not allowed to help after all you and Margaret have done for me. Don't I know that when I came here years ago you'd never have thought of engaging a mother's helper if you hadn't known I was lonely and adored the children? And later Margaret pretended to need a housekeeper, so I'd feel I wasn't imposing on you to stay longer. Take the old house and use it, Jim. I've always felt it was Margaret's as much as mine. Don't say the word rent to me again!"

She was so obviously wrought ap that Dad laughed a little; and Mother said: "Honestly, Judith, since we must go somewhere, it will seem heaven to go back home. But whatever we decide, Louise must do what's best for her. As for Jack, since this term's tuition at school is already paid, he may as well finish, I suppose.'

"Wouldn't they give the money back, Dad?" questioned the boy.

James Nelson glanced at his sister. the inner workings of a private school being more in her line than his; and she responded: "In a case like this I believe they'd refund most of it: though if Jack wants to finish out the year I'll finance his expenses."

"And relinquish that European trip next summer?" countered her brother. She colored, as if guilty of some misdeed.

"Oh, what's a European trip when I've been before? I'd hate to have Jack change schools, when he's done so well; and you've set your heart on his going to Harvard, too. Let him stay where he is."

The boy arose, standing with his back to the fire as he looked down at them. During the past year he had grown an appalling number of inches, and like others who shot up with such rapidity, was far too thin. He said, soberly: "With all due respect to you, Aunt Louise, I think I have a right to decide this thing myself. I'd feel like a slacker to stay at an expensive school when Dad has lost his money and Nance is giving up her party. You say I'm doing well in my studies but it's only because I've crammed, and I'm sick of cramming. I'm no bright star, and you all know it. It's a shame to disappoint you, Dad, but I'm not going to college-that is," he

Aunt Judy had been listening attentively to her nephew's words. Now she said: "He's right, I think, about leaving Exeter, Jim. Let him work for a while. He can finish school a year later if all goes well; and the boy will be happier to feel that he's

Said Jack, throwing her a grateful smile: "I can always count on 'our shield and defender'!" And Aunt Judy continued:

"It's really queer how things happen. It just came over me that I'm out of a job, myself!"

"The very idea!" This was Mother. "While we've a roof over our heads Judy, you've got one, too-especially when the roof in question is your own property!"

Her sister laughed. "But you see, Margaret, I feel as Jack does. I'd rather be a help than a burden; and while he was talking I remembered that last week Caroline Spear told me she was hunting a suitable person to take her girls abroad. She said: 'Want the job, Judith? They'll wear you to shreds but I'll pay well for it.' Of course I laughed at the idea. I thought with Nancy's debut and everything, that I'd be needed here. But I'll call Caroline tonight and see if she still wants me. I always get along with young folks, and if they keep me sprinting maybe I'll reduce."

"Reduce!" Jack whistled expressive ly. "I wager that by the time you return to the land of the free, Aunt Judy, there'll be nothing left of you 'but just the bones and skin,' like that small, red hen you used to read about to us when we were kids. Those Spear twins are wild babies, believe me. Why don't they go to Europe by Judy didn't want to go abroad with two restless young adolescents like the Spears. Dad said, after a moment: "Well, we can't decide everything tonight, and I'm dead tired. The thought of all these changes makes me a bit sick. But I do appreciate-" He stopped, because, they all saw, it was impossible to go on; and Mother broke in with her unfailing tact: "Let's get to bed, Jim. It's been a frightful day for you, but after a good sleep things will look brighter. As

. . . . . . . Darkness descended on the house hold early that night, but not rest. Plans and more plans whirled through James Nelson's tired head for hours. Margaret, thinking him asleep, lay very still, pondering many things-Nance mostly. This change was going to be hard for the girl. Louise had said they were spoiling her, and perhaps they had; but she was their only daughter. No knowing what life would bring her later on, and they'd so wanted her to have a happy youth -a carefree youth. Parties. Gaiety. Good times. And Nancy was prettyastonishingly pretty. Somehow she seemed made for just that life. Already a row of new and lovely gowns hung in her closet awaiting the thrilling days ahead. Moving cautiously, the girl's mother wiped away a tear.

In the room above Louise Nelson lay staring at a patch of brightness on the ceiling, drifting in from a street light far below. She, too, was thinking about Nancy. "If only they'd taught her to be something besides a butterfly," she told herself, "this blow wouldn't come so hard. Not that the child hasn't got good courage. though. before her eyes. That's the pioneer spirit my father used to talk about, showing up in a softer generation, dare say. But she can't do a thing to help. Not a thing. No training what-Not that she'd have had much time for training at her age: but I doubt if the girl has ever made a

Across the hall Aunt Judy was fighting homesickness. She adored her family. It was hard for her to lea them even for a week-end; and here she was destined to spend six months in Europe with those "crazy" Spear girls. It was all settled. In her relief at the suggestion Mrs. Spear had almost cheered over the telephone.

"I suppose," Aunt Judy scolded herself, "that anyone would say I was in luck. A trip abroad and a good salary just when it's needed. But the truth is, I'd rather be at Edgemere cooking for the family! I do think they're all wonderful. Margaret's a trump. She's so ambitious for Nancy, yet she never whimpered, And Jack! He didn't consider anything except helping his father. Offered to give up Mary Ann, and he- Why, the boy worships that car! And Nancy! (Aunt Judy winked back the tears). 'I wanted to cry for her, poor darling! She's been so thrilled and excited over this debut. . . ." As for the girl herself, she lay on her beautiful four-poster trying to assemble her shattered world. It seemed incredible that such a thing could happen-to her. It just couldn't be true. "Why, Edgemere," she mused, "is-is the jumping-off place. One might as well be buried alive. I don't see how even Mother can endure it, especially with no Aunt Judy to help out. Come to think of it, there's only one bathroom for the entire family!" She threw a glance toward the door that led to her own white-tiled bath; and, as if she could see into the closet that lay beyond, a vision of the new gowns hanging there, waiting her entrance into what Jack called "the social swirl," rose up before her, and the girl's eyes misted. "I'll never wear them now," she pondered unhappily. 'And my white fur evening wrap! I wish I hadn't saved it for the great event. Maybe the shop will take it back, though. I'll never use it in-in Edgemere. . . wish I could get a job like Jack; but what good am I? Aunt Louise was right. . . . I can't earn my salt, not to mention my silk stockings, . .

What'll the girls say, and the boys, when they hear the news? . . . Not that it matters. . . . Poor Dad! How he hated to tell us. . . . I'd like to help him, but-but I'm just use less. . . . Can't even earn my board. . . No one would pay me. . . ."

Nance turned her head. The door was opening cautiously, and as she switched on a bedside light the girl saw her brother, clad in pajamas and a bathrobe. "What on earth do you want this time of night?" she questioned. "Is the house a-fire?" Without answering, Jack closed the two windows noiselessly and sat down on the foot of Nancy's bed, drawing his knees up under his chin.

"Sis." he began in a mysterious whisper, "I've got a perfectly corking Have-have you forgotten Cousin Columbine's proposition?" Cousin Columbine's proposition!

Nancy had not given it a thought since the week before when Jack, home from school for an unexpected Sunday, had met the postman at the door and for me, I really believe it will be a brought a letter into the dining room

"It looks like a long-winded screed from Dad's venerable relative in Colorado," the boy observed. "You read it aloud, Aunt Lou."

He tossed the missive deftly across the table where it landed within an inch of his aunt's plate. She said, regarding the address: "But it's for your father."

Dad smiled. "Read on, my dear. It can't be very private. The old lady hasn't written for a long time. What can she want?" "To spend her remaining days with us, perhaps," opined Jack fearfully as he sat down and his aunt drew some finely written pages from the envelope.

"What's she say, Aunt Lou?" "Give me time to find out, please," she returned with a touch of sarcasm; and then read: "Dear Cousin James: It is some months since any news of my far-distant relatives has reached me; and now I am writing to ask what I trust will not be regarded as a favor-

"What'd I say?" broke in Jack. 'She wants to live with us! I felt something-something ominous creep down my spine when the postman handed me that letter. Go on. Quick." Louise Nelson, always impatient at interruptions, paused for an aggravating moment before continuing:

a favor. I suppose I am getting old-" Here she again paused just a moment as if awaiting her nephew's comment, but as none was forthcoming, she went on: "'I had hoped to secure the services of Mary Taylor, the daughter of our good postmaster; but she has other plans, for which, on the whole, I am relieved. Girls are not what they were in my day, but after all, blood will tell, so I am asking your daughter Nancy to start for Colorado as soon as-"

"Well, talk of nerve!" This was Jack once more, but no one thought to reprove him for the interruption. Even his Aunt Louise appeared unconscious of it. Dad sat suddenly erect. Mother's mouth opened, and stayed that way a minute. Aunt Judy bristled: "What's the woman thinking of?"-while Nancy herself was staring at them all in blank amazement.

"Me?" she gasped, after a speechless moment. "The very idea!" said Mother, finding her voice. "For Pete's sake, read on," commanded Jack and as they all leaned forward in sudden interest Louise Nelson said: "Let's see, where was I? Oh, here's the place '. .. as soon as possible. Though I know you are well fixed financially, my dear cousin, I shall insist on paying the girl's traveling expenses. I also agree to give her twenty-five dollars every month, and her duties will not be arduous." "They'd better not be, if the old lady expects to get 'em done-by Nance," observed Jack dryly; and his aunt continued: "'As I believe I have mentioned in previous communications, my good neighbor, Aurora Tubbs, does my cooking and house cleaning, though on the latter subject her ideas and my own not infrequently clash. I should expect your daughter to dust the mansion neatly every morning; do her own washing-" At this point, unable to restrain him to a sort of war whoop; and his aunt declared in exasperation: "Really, Jack, if you can't keep still until I finish, someone else may have the pleasure of reading this ridiculous proposal."

"Oh, go on, Louise," placated Dad. "What else does she expect of Nance for that munificent salary?" "Strict obedience, I judge. The letter says: 'If she goes out of an evening I shall expect her to be in not later than nine-thirty, my bedtime; and though I prefer that she should entertain no young men callers, if such a thing occurs they must leave at the rabbit." same hour."

Louise Nelson was smiling now. "You are to read the daily paper to Cousin Columbine, Nance," she said. "And listen to this: 'If handy with her needle I should want the girl to do a bit of dressmaking now and then. She would get supper on Thursdays (Aurora's evening off), and in case of illness on my part it might be necessary for her to wait upon me. That is all, I think-'

"What she wants is a slave," asserted Jack. "I can't quite see my decorative sister being nurse, dressmaker and cook to a prehistoric old lady one hundred-odd years old. Can you, Dad?" "Well, hardly," agreed Dad. "Is that all, Louise?"

"Very nearly. She says: 'Let me know what time Nancy will arrive at Colorado Springs, and I will send some trusty person to meet her with an automobile, as Pine Ridge is on a branch road and our only train leaves early in the morning. If no one greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for.'

A girlish chuckle escaped Aunt Judy.

"You can check yourself in the parcel room, Nance! Proceed, Louise, I beg pardon for interrupting." Jack winked at one aunt as the

LAYING HENS MUST HAVE PROPER CARE

Comfort, Fresh Water, Rigid Culling Cited.

By C. F. Parrish, Extension Poultryman, North Carolina State College. WNU Service.

The decline in egg production during the hot summer months can be partially or wholly offset if the flock is given the right kind of care. The main factors to observe are:

checking for mites and lice, proper ventilation of laying houses, adequate shade, full feeding, an ample supply of fresh water, and rigid culling. Mites inhabit the laying house and are usually found on perch poles. They secluded spots in the day. A thorough spraying of the house with carbolineum or a mixture of old cylinder oil and kerosene is recommended. Lice stay on the birds all the time. Nicotine sulphate painted on the perch poles will drive lice away from the birds. Or the individual birds may be dusted with sodium fluoride or a similar preparation or dipped into solution of one ounce of sodium fluoride to one gallon of water. The treatments should be repeated every ten days if necessary. The houses should be well ventilated, but without drafts. Shade is a necessity, since the temperature of the birds influences their productivity. Sunflowers grown around poultry houses or brush arbors provide good

Growing Mash to Turkeys, Poultry Experts' Advice

The Michigan State College poultry department advises feeding a good growing mash to turkeys. One which can be mixed at home is made up of twenty pounds coarse ground yellow corn, seventeen pounds fine ground oats, ten pounds bran, ten pounds meal, fourteen pounds meat scraps, ten pounds dried milk, ten pounds soybean meal, two pounds calcium carbonate, one pound salt and one pound cod-liver oil. Scratch grain, equal parts cracked corn and wheat, is fed in addition to the mash after the

Gluten Meal for Poultry

Results of experiments at Cornell university indicate that corn gluten meal may be used to a considerable extent in poultry feeds, provided it is properly combined with other feeds. One-half the protein requirements of laying hens may well be made up of corn gluten feed, with the other half supplied by meat scrap. Hens fed in this way laid just as heavily as hens fed on rations containing meat scrap as the only source of protein. For growing chicks, gluten feed gave good results when combined with wheat middlings and wheat bran, along with 10 per cent dried skimmilk. If meat scrap were used, along with the gluten feed, the per cent of skimmilk could be reduced to 7.5. The chicks made good growth on rations of both

Takes Exception to "Weaker Sex"

Judge's Idea, 'Ladies First' Not Satisfactory to Woman Writer.

A woman columnist, noted for her keen insight into events and things, selects this subject for comment: The papers tell of a federal judge in a New York courtroom who compelled the men to give women their seats. A reader sends us the clipping, wondering what we think about it. Here it is:

"In a courtroom crowded to capacity with creditors and stockholders of the Ambassador Hotel corporation, Federal Judge J. M. Woolsey said recently: 'It seems to me that the men sitting over there should stand up and let the ladies sit down.'

"When the men did not budge, he added: 'Go over there, marshals, and roust them out.' The marshals obeyed and the women sat down while the men grumbled quietly to themselves, saying they thought the order unfair."

What do we think about it? Well, it all depends on what we women

If what we want most is the seat a man occupies, then we should not inquire too closely into the method of taking it away from him. In this case they were, we must admit, questionable. Some of those men may have been more in need of a seat than any of the women to accommodate whom they were ousted. And some were probably there in the line of duty, while the women seated by the gallant judge were merely spectators, presumably on pleasure bent. We repeat, if it's the seat only that interests you, you will applaud the judge whose motto is apparently under all circumstances, "Ladies First." If it is chivalry on the part of men in this day and age that you care more about than the seat in court or subway or street car which they may have to give up to you, then you will not favor forcing them out of their seats. There is no romantic satisfaction in taking a man's seat if he has to be thrown out of it. And the compulsion is hardly conducive to developing in him a greater gallantry. In fact the man once forced to get up for a woman will bardly take the lead in making the gallant gesture of his own free will. That sweet flower of chivalry, the sense of self-sacrifice on behalf of the WEAKER sex, will have been nipped in the bud.

And, anyway-are we WEAKER? For my part I should feel cheap to have a man forced out of his seat for my benefit.

materials, for it is fine fabrics, we're telling you, which will be making fine costumes this season.

The scheme of things for the new style program runs about like thisa strikingly simple silhouette, with emphasis on the elegance and unusualness of the material wheih fashions it, relying on breathtaking neckwear sets, buttons, buckles and countless other unique gadgets to dramatize

The big buttons which adorn the newly arrived frocks and wraps so spectacularly are of eye-filling proportions, some of them being simply enormous. It is such bizarre details as these huge buttons which add unlimited swank and distinction to the otherwise modestly styled fall modes.

It does not take long after catching a glimpse of the midseason and early fall styles to realize how strong buttons are going, in the new showings. For example, consider the very goodlooking town and country dress to the left in the picture. Buttons all over this model is a striking exponent, that is styled like a coat with buttons from neckline to hemline down the front and on the pockets, likewise the cuffs, is regarded as one of the most important numbers on the fall fashion pro-

A DVANCE fall fashions cause one does just that. This fabric is an entirely new bemberg and wool weave in a radiant brown which is enlivened with a delicate interweaving of glossy yellow-and-gold threads. For daytime and sports you are going to find this bemberg and wool weave the very sort you are looking for.

That big news in regard to the ensemble pictured to the right is its color. The smart checked woolen of which it is made is in tones of green. and green this autumn is scheduled to make a front-stage play. That the dress which is topped with a stunning matched coat, like its companion in the illustration, should show a shirtwaist tendency is not a mere happenstance but rather a natural sequence of events for the shirtwaist idea which prevailed so conspicuously all summer is carrying over into fall with a high and mighty gesture. A brown fabric bag and brown felt slouch hat, go well with this two-tone green check.

There is nothing smarter for immediate wear than a shirtwaist dress of some one or other of the newer lightleft in the picture. Buttons all over it! The shirtwaist dress of which flects the glint and gleam of gold and silver, so much the better, for it is the metal-shot fabrics which are getting most of the notice for fall and winter. One way of interpreting the metal note is to see to it that your scarf or your neckpiece and other decorative accessories be fashioned of a metal-touched weave.

COLORFUL VELVET By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Black Hose to Return to Fashion for Autumn Wear The latest cry of the fashion prophets is black stockings; not gun-The new velvets are conveying a metal ones or bluish-black ones, but message of color as gay and exotic as plain, ordinary, old-fashioned black ever a rainbow reflected. As the sea-It's a wild gamble, betting on black stockings, when one remembers how often and how uselessly the very same fashion prophets have heralded the return of curves and long hair. Black stockings have at least one worthwhile virtue. They make plump ankles and fat legs look slimmer. But it must be admitted they have a strong tendency to make skinny legs look like soda straws.

Picture Hats The first velvet picture hats have made their appearance at Chantilly, France. Some of them have crowns of sheer tulle or lace.

Cool Shoes White buckskin shoes with diamond perforations are chic and cool for summer wear.

son progresses your eye will be gladdened with such glorified hues as fuchsia, nasturtium, lime green and the new inkberry which is a rich pium tone. Feminine and flattering in color and styling is the wrap of powder blue transparent velvet here pictured. The scarf collar ties in a knot and the elbow sleeves are voluminously

Pleated Skirts Popular for All Ages for Fall

Pleated skirts will be important in early fall fashions, according to a stylist, who returned recently from Paris. This also speaks with enthusiasm of velvet bows that are used to trim both daytime and evening dresses, explaining that bows in different colors are substituted to give a change in appearance to the frock.

What Women Want to Know About Fashions

Leather gloves are adopting fur collars for the season to come. The shirtwaist dress that is styled like a coat promises to be a leading fashion this autumn.

A revival of old-fashioned fluffy beaver felt is seeen in the fall hats designed by Suzy of Paris. Hat pins have come back. They are short affairs three or four inches

Dinner hats are very chic for wear with long-sleeved dinner dresses. Many of the new evening gowns in Paris have only one sleeve, and that a short one. Glove, searf and hat ensembles all made of the same fabric-are the "last word" in chic. Gay plaid madras from the West Indies makes trim tailored blouses long with a colored ball on the end. | and cravats for linen sports suits.

Do you order them at restaurants? Personally, I am very fond of this delicacy, but I do not associate it particularly with New York. I associate them with an exciting hunt by night, when we followed the bank of a stream by the light of a lantern which was designed to show us our way and to attract or blindforget which-the game which was scarcely given a fair chance before t was speared. In Michigan I have often been asked to share the "catch" of a midnight hunter and have furnished the recipe for the preparation by the hunters themselves of the tiny tender legs which we picked by the dezen. "Pick" is the word in connection with frogs' legs, which are much bone and ltitle meat-much work, but well renaid by flavor and tenderness. Although Chicago, according to the news notes, eats only half as many frogs legs, they seem to appear more often on menus out there. Once upon a time real 100 per cent Americans scorned this delicate food. The term frog-eaters," given to the Frenchmen by someone, was meant to be oppro brious. While there are always persens who admit to a food prejudice by insisting that they could never eat egs, anyone who has tasted them is at once a convert to their delicacy of flavor which is rather like that of chicken and of its tenderness. looked through a dozen or more of my collection of cook books and found that a number of them do not mention the preparation of the food a: all. As a food, it is perhaps the only one omitted from the encyclopedia of food. In the standard cook books, one, er, at the most, two recipes for preparation are given. In one of my foreign books there are several recipes. There are two, perhaps three, attraclive ways of cooking them. The commonest is to dip them in egg and crumbs and to fry them in deep fat. I prefer them dipped in seasoned flour and sauted in butter. The other method can have many variations—the legs are boiled in salted water until tender, drained and served with a sauce which is usually a rich one made with eggs and cream. They are often seasoned with lemon juice; sometimes with tomato juice. Mushrooms are sometimes combined with frogs' egs, and one foreign recipe calls for oking them with oysters, seasoned With tarragon; another suggests oysters and crabs, which are, of course, a axury in New York. Another deli-Tale way of serving them—I initiated myself to celebrate the gift of a "Mess" of frogs' legs; I sauted them in butter and then added lemon juice, a dash anchory paste and sprinkled them with grated parmesan cheese, and very

Unlucky for Negro Decatur, Ala.-A one hundred and two year old ten-cent piece, a luck token to its owner, brought great misfortune in the form of a 99-year jail sentence to Willie Shaw, negro, in the Circuit court

Two negroes robbed C. P. Madry of his purse, which contained $25. In reporting his loss to police, Madry mentioned small change including a dime made in 1832, which he carried for luck.

When police found a dime of the same date among possessions of a negro woman, they questioned her on the theory that few dimes of that age still should be in circulation. The woman recalled Shaw had given her the dime. He readily admitted guilt and named an accomplice when confronted with the evidence.

In the Twinkling of an Eye

HERE is a phrase that would seem to be of modern inspiration. When we say "in the twinkling of an eye" we conjure up a picture of modern speed. And we take this combination of words for granted, we have used them so long, without stopping to note that eyes do not twinkle, and that therefore the phrase must have a history.

That history starts in the New Testament, where, in Corinthians, in the fifteenth chapter, the implications of the Resurrection are discussed. We

Their places He has for many years made his home, have been filled by Rev. Sister M. Joof the city and during the time has found quite a collection of relics, such as arrow heads, elk and deer horns, also several specimens of wood which at one time helped to make a beaver dam At the time Mr. Kuhlmey first moved onto this farm there was a large dam, the work of the beaver and the uniformity with which the pieces of wood are cut and prepared by the animals, is something remarkable. Although the dam was destroyed a number of years ago, an occasional piece of wood used in its construction is still found.

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE HAVE ASKED . . What, exactly, does Knee-Action do

the answer is CHEVROLET'S KNEE-ACTION RIDE

Doubles

the pleasure of motoring

CHEVROLET The best way to prove that Chevrolet's Knee-Action actually makes motoring twice as pleasant as before is to drive the new Cher. rolet over all kinds of roads. You will find that the continuous jars you used to get even on smooth pavements are ended. The steering wheel is free of vibration. Back seat passengers are comfortable and relaxed. You can maintain higher speeds over rough roads that used to slow you down. You will find in fact, that probably for the first time in your experience, every foot of every mile is equally enjoyable. Perhaps that explains why so many people are buy. ing and recommending this extremely low-priced car. CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, DETROIT, MICE
