Kidnaped Louisville Woman Ransomed for $50,000—Jugoslavia's Murdered King Buried—Collective Bargaining Plan of General Motors.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

LOUISVILLE'S sensational kidnap case came to a climax with the return of the victim, Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, to her home.

At once begun. His wife and father were arrested, charged with complicity in the kidnaping.

WITH overpowering pomp and ceremony Alexander I, assassinated king of Yugoslavia, was laid to rest with his fathers, the founders of the Karagorzevitch dynasty.

Belgrade was thronged with many thousands of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. One entire village of 900 peasants arrived from Herzegovina.

FRENCH police having caught three of the companions of "Kalemen," really Tschernocemsk, who slew Alexander and Louis Barthou in Marseilles, the authorities of half a dozen countries were making progress in unravelling the assassination plot.

From the confessions of those captured and from the investigations of the police of France and Belgrade it was learned that Kalemen was a notorious Macedonian terrorist named Valda Georgeff Tschernocemsk.

Dr. Ante Pavelic, described as the leader of the Croatian terrorists, and Eugent Kvaternik, his aid, were arrested in Turin, Italy just as Alexander was being buried in Yugoslavia.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went to Williamsburg, Va., and took part in the ceremonies attendant on the inauguration of John Stewart Bryan as president of the old College of William and Mary.

FRANCE lost another of her elder statesmen in the death of Raymond Poincare, who was president from 1913 to 1920 and returned later to public service as premier.

In saving the country from its disastrous financial state, Poincare was seventy-four years old when he died, and had been in poor health for some years.

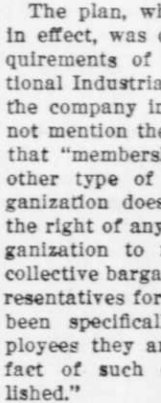

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL is vexed by what he calls the "indefensible practice" of certain countries in boosting tariffs or other restrictions to obtain concessions by reducing them again in negotiations with the United States for trade agreements.

Although no nation was named, Germany has begun a program of controlled imports and has denounced its most-favored-nation treaty with the United States, and France is increasing tariffs.

"It is highly regrettable," Hull said, "that we have still from time to time encountered in some quarters the same narrow attitudes which led to the condition (stagnation in world trade) we are now trying to correct."

"The commercial world has long been familiar with this practice of 'padding the price' in order to make an apparent concession by a subsequent reduction. Whether resorted to by individuals or nations it has never in the long run produced other than a result—loss of the fair-minded customer and the most worthwhile trade."

FIRST shot in the coming contest between the automobile manufacturers and the American Federation of Labor was fired by the General Motors corporation in the form of an offer to its 130,000 employees of its own plan for collective bargaining.

The plan, which actually is already in effect, was designed to meet all requirements of section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery act.

Employees must be given complete freedom in setting up collective bargaining organizations and choosing representatives, the company declared.

The management may, however, assist any employee organization in plans for employees' mutual benefit, provided that in the determination of the right of employees to participate in the benefits there is no discrimination by management on the ground of affiliation with any labor organization.

Collective bargaining was defined as "a method of intercommunication and negotiation between employees and management for maintenance of harmonious and co-operative relations through mutual understanding and agreement with respect to terms and conditions of employment."

Under the General Motors plan, routine matters within authority of the foreman or supervisor in immediate contact should be settled by him as expeditiously as possible.

On the same day took place the formal rededication of Duke of Gloucester street, the city's main thoroughfare, which has been restored nearly to its original appearance as the last major construction project of the restoration of colonial Williamsburg.

Nearing Open Break

This weekly resume of Washington affairs is not intended to be a speedy character. There is a report in Washington, quite unconfirmed as yet, that holds much significance. For that reason I shall touch it that you may know all things are not serene.

The story concerns a rift in the Department of Agriculture and its allied child, the Agricultural Administration. In no government agency are there as many brain trusters as in the AAA. They have come to be known as the Twigwells, named after Prof. Rexford Guy Twigwell, long regarded as the outstanding trustee, has been consistent in his position of his theories and his trusters have followed his lead through all the storm and strife between theoretical and the practical men in the administration.

Now, according to the reports, a rift between the brain trusters and the practical men in the AAA and the department as well as appearing to be an open break. It has gone so far that the practical groups have prepared their resignations and have not informed whether the Twigwell group is prepared to take the action in event of an explosion. Best performances would indicate they will stick on the job and fight. It is difficult to predict at this point what the outcome may be, but this is certain. There are going to be changes in the AAA and in the department of Agriculture, and some of these changes come it necessarily prelude to revision of policies.

MISS ALADDIN

By Christine Whiting Parmenter

questioned Eve Adam; her low voice was very gentle.

"Never again. What they came for—where they were going, we later knew. And only a half hour after they sounded close to that well-barred door, the clear, sweet note of a hermit thrush! Not until then did my valiant mother give way to tears."

Said Matthew Adam, gravely: "That is the nicest Christmas story I ever heard, Miss Columbine."

The air outside was warmer than within, and Nance opened a window before proceeding with what Jack called her "janitorial duties."

"I couldn't have done it without the others," she told herself, "but at least, they wouldn't have done it without me. It had never occurred to them and Cousin Columbine was doubtful that the plan would work."

Yet, being no wet-blanket, the old lady had done her bit by arranging for the use of the schoolhouse, and writing to the Oklahoma family who came to Pine Ridge summers.

"And some day," mused Nancy, as if her stay in Pine Ridge was to be indefinite, "we'll put in a fireplace. That's all we need to make it wonderful."

To the natives of Pine Ridge the Aladdin library seemed wonderful enough as it was. "And how every one of those blessed Adams had worked!" thought Nance with gratitude.

Mother Adam had donated the window hangings for the windows. Matthew and Mark had built the shelves; low shelves which girdled the whole room, made from lumber they "just found lying around the place," and staked dark brown.

CHAPTER IX

It was at Christmas dinner that Nancy divulged her plan for the Aladdin library, a proposition which met with instant enthusiasm.

"I'll say it is!" Nance spoke almost with awe. "I never expected anything so—so professional! and those Aladdin lamps at either end are stunning."

"I'm going to get some money soon." "Who's telling you?" "A fortune teller."

Steps sounded without, and Nance glanced up. It was not yet two o'clock, but someone was coming.

SPECIAL FEED FOR GROWING BROILERS

Care Is Necessary to Obtain the Best Results.

There are generally considered to be two broiler seasons—one near the holiday season and one near Easter time.

The battery plan of management has developed a new obstacle or disease, commonly termed "hock disease," or slipped tendons.

In order to handle this situation, rations for broilers are now so constructed that there is one and one-half to two times as much calcium as phosphorus, and not more than a total of 3 per cent of both.

Leg Weakness, Blindness, Both Young, Old Birds

Leg weakness may be a disease of young or old stock, manifesting itself without discoverable cause, or it may be an accompaniment of other disorders that show this weakness as a part of the symptoms observable.

Economic Highlights

Happenings that affect the dinner pails, dividend checks and tax bills of every individual, National and International problems inseparable from local welfare.

Once the stage is set, it doesn't take much to start a war. The classic example of that occurred in 1914, when the assassination of an obscure archduke in a city few people on this side of the water had ever heard of, set a match to the powder keg and resulted in the greatest and most destructive conflict in the history of the world.

A repetition ALMOST occurred a few weeks ago. King Alexander of Yugoslavia landed at Marseilles, was met by Foreign Minister Barthou of France. Surrounded by ceremony—and armed men—the procession started down the main street of the city. Suddenly a fat man leaped to the running board of the king's car, pressed the trigger of a new-style sub-machine gun which is hardly larger than a revolver. Twenty shots split the air—and Alexander and Barthou lay dying. The assassin was cut down by the sabres of cavalry officers, almost torn to pieces by the crowd. All the details of the killing were at once flashed to every corner of the world—it was dramatic, vivid, "stagey." But in the chancelleries of the great nations, diplomats feverishly awaited the answer to a single question: "What was the assassin's nationality?" On that seemingly minor point depended the peace of Europe!

The ambition of France today is to establish a "ring of steel" around Germany—if anything, she fears the central powers more than she did before the world war. To accomplish her aim, she must enlist the cooperation of the nations which, like herself, bound Germany—and the most important of these are Italy and Yugoslavia. A difficult problem is caused by the fact that Yugoslavia and Italy are extremely unfriendly—while they maintain formal relations, accompanied by all the polite trappings of old-world diplomacy, each hates and fears the other. The object of Minister Barthou in inviting Alexander to France was to smooth out if possible the difficulties between Yugoslavia and Italy. Yugoslavia is the main link in the prospective "ring of steel" and as long as she and Italy are close to sword's points, France's purpose cannot be accomplished.

Therein is the reason for the vast importance attached to the nationality of Alexander's assassin. Had he been Italian, it is safe to say that Italy and Yugoslavia would have been at war within 24 hours—and it might have been only a matter of time before all other European powers, and possibly this country, would have been drawn in.

Fortunately for world peace, the assassin was a Yugoslavian—a member of secret society pledged to wipe out Alexander's dictatorship, which has incurred the enmity of thousands of his people. Like Mussolini and Stalin, Alexander came into power in a troubled and torn country, did not pause at using harsh methods to insure harmony.

The trouble isn't over, however—the entire European situation has again been upset. Alexander will be followed on the throne by King Peter, who is still a child. Until he comes of age, Yugoslavia will be governed by a regency—and there are grave doubts if the turbulent Yugoslavian people can be kept under control. Again, as in the past, all eyes are turned to the Balkans, the powder-keg of Europe.

It seems that all the important late news comes from overseas. Two more foreign events of international interest remain to be interpreted.

The first of these is the abortive Spanish revolution—and it can be disposed of quickly. Spain today is governed by an extremely conservative government, little different from the monarchy of the deposed Alfonso. Left-wingers staged the revolt, and were defeated. At this writing, all is calm and clear on the Spanish Coast—but there are several million Spaniards who sympathize with the revolutionists, and they are not satisfied. It is very safe to forecast that additional trouble in Spain will make the headlines within a year—and probably much sooner.

More important to this country, is the recently-announced attitude of Japan toward the forthcoming three power naval conference. There are only three really first-class navies in the world—England's Japan's and the United States'. Under the existing naval treaty, which expires shortly, the ratio between the powers is 5-5-3. In other words, for every five tons of navy ships owned by the U. S. and England, Japan is allowed to have three tons, and she doesn't like it.

At the next naval conference Japan will demand that she be permitted to have a navy the same size as England and the U. S. The latter countries will probably refuse in that case, Japan will likely withdraw from the conference and slip no more treaties—and build as many war ships as she likes. It is barely possible that matters will be arbitrated, and that Japan will accept a naval ratio of, for example, 5-5-4. But the present attitude of Nippon isn't at all encouraging. And you'd be safe in betting that the old 5-5-3 ratio is doomed.

Danish dairymen, because of their small herds, have developed a cooperative method of using good herd sires, through organizations called "Breeding Societies." At the present time, this little country, half the size of Wisconsin, has 1200 such societies with over 30,000 members.

There's Power Aplenty in the McCormick-Deering 10-20

The McCormick-Deering 10-20 Tractor provides power in abundance for general farm work. It pulls two plows under all reasonable conditions and travels at good speed while plowing deep. For its size, the 10-20 has a great capacity for work—you can apply its power three ways—by drawbar, belt, or power take-off—to operate a variety of equipment throughout the year. The surprising strength of the 10-20 is due to the rigid one-piece main frame, in and on which are mounted the 4-cylinder engine, clutch, and transmission and differential assemblies. All important wearing parts are completely enclosed, protected from dust and grit, and run in a bath of oil. Handholes provide quick accessibility to all enclosed parts. Ask us how this remarkable, sturdy, powerful tractor can make power farming a reality on the moderate-size farm. We also have the economical McCormick-Deering 15-30 and the all-purpose Farmall.

PUDDIN' an' PIE

By JIMMY GARTHWAITE

I WANT A

ITS "I want this"
And "I want that"
"I want a ball"
"I want a bat"
"I want a bugle"
And a drum"
And then it's peanuts
And some gum.

It seems to me you want an awful lot—
Why think of all the things you've got!

You've got a room
That's full of toys—
A whole lot more
Than other boys.
You got some soldiers
Yesterday
And now you want
Some more you say—
You're always, always wanting something new
Aren't all those things enough for you?

USE OF APPLES IN DAILY MEALS

Innumerable Ways in Which to Employ Them.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHEN I was a little girl, the arrival of the barrels of Kings, Baldwins and Northern Spies was the signal that the fall was upon us, and it would not be long before winter with its early snows would come. Of course, all the barrels had to be opened immediately, so that we could taste each kind and decide which we liked best.

Nowadays when we buy a weekly supply of apples we do not distinguish perhaps as much among the varieties. We ask for "eating apples" or "cooking apples." You will find a number of varieties on the market, among which the Macintosh is the most popular, as it is good for both eating and cooking.

There are many ways in which we can make use of apples in our meal planning. In many households a bowl of apple sauce is always in the refrigerator ready for serving. Baked apples are a favorite luncheon dessert or breakfast fruit and also sometimes they find a place as a dinner dessert. In this case they are sometimes stuffed with raisins and nuts and served with whipped cream. I have also had them in a more elaborate style, topped with ice cream and surrounded with whipped cream. This dish is known as baked apples Robertson.

There is a great difference of opinion whether baked apples are best when hot or cold. One of my friends neither will she eat one hot. She is so fussy that she must have her baked apples at room temperature.

Brown Betty or scalloped apples is perhaps used more often than any other apple dessert. If we except our American favorite, apple pie. Personally, I think that there is nothing better than a good apple dumpling. Whether it is baked or steamed it is equally delicious. My father liked them steamed, and because we children were not allowed to have them steamed we naturally preferred them that way. Either a hard sauce or plain cream should be served with apple dumplings—not whipped cream. Then, of course, there are fried apples, which are so delicious with ham. Have you ever tasted those french fried apple rings which make such a good dessert?

Apple Rings.

- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon melted butter
- Salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 3 to 4 apples

Beat egg yolk, add butter, salt and one-half the milk. Stir in the flour and sugar to make a smooth batter. Add remainder of milk and fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Wash and core apples, but do not pare. Slice one-half inch thick, dip in batter and fry in deep fat, 385 degrees Fahrenheit. Drain on soft paper and sprinkle with granulated sugar.

Brown Betty.

- 1/2 loaf bread
- 1/2 cup butter
- Cinnamon
- 3 cups sliced apples
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- Nutmeg

Cut the bread into cubes and stir into the melted butter. Place bread,

British Returning Souvenirs of War

New York.—The vogue of restoring war souvenirs to their original owners seems to be gaining ground in Britain and on the continent. Even here a colonel of the A. E. F. collected 500 from ex-soldiers and succeeded in returning a majority of them through advertising in the German papers and the good offices of the German department of defense.

The whole matter has now been organized to facilitate such returns. It began six months ago in regard to the Boer war when, in England, Sir Abe Bailey, having made an arrangement with the high commissioner for South Africa, formed a clearing house for such souvenirs and made an appeal to British Boer war veterans for the surrender of their loot.

Man Gets $6 a Week Fat Compensation!

Wrexham, England.—His fatness is worth $6 a week to James Williams, fifty-eight-year-old collier of Rhoslyten, near here. Williams was awarded this sum as compensation by Judge Sir Artemus Jones after doctors had testified in County court that owing to an accident received while working as a miner his weight had increased to such an extent that he is now unable to work.

Apples and the sugar in alternate layers in a greased baking dish. Cover with bread and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for fifteen to twenty minutes and serve with a hard sauce or cream.

Apple Dumpling.

- 2 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 5 tablespoons fat
- 3/4 to 1 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients and rub in shortening. Add one-half cup milk and stir lightly with knife until a soft dough is formed. Remove to a floured board, scrape together the remaining flour in the bowl and add enough milk to make a soft dough.

Roll out and cut into squares to fit small panned and cored apples. Sprinkle apples with sugar and cinnamon. Fold dough over apples. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about thirty minutes or steam forty minutes in a tightly covered steamer.

Steamed Pudding.

- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup chopped suet
- 3 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup raisins

Mix molasses and milk and add to suet. Mix dry ingredients well and add raisins. Add all at one time to liquids. Pour into greased molds, cover tightly and steam three hours. Remove covers as soon as molds are taken from steamer. This pudding may be made in large quantities and kept on hand ready for use when reheated.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

E Pluribus Unum

THIS Latin inscription, meaning "Out of many, one," is our national motto.

In 1776 Franklin, Jefferson and Adams were designated to choose a design and motto for our country's seal and money.

The federal government having just been born and become a union of many states, the words were quite apropos. They were taken bodily, however, from Virgil's poem "Mortem linking still together the bonds of the old and the new."

When Allowed to Do So

London.—An amusing story of King George is told by Philip Inman, managing governor of Charing Cross hospital in his book, "Oil and Wine," just published.

The king, he writes, was passing along the corridor to one of the wards when he stopped before the door of the ward kitchen.

"May I go inside?" the king asked. The door was opened and revealed a nurse bending down before a gas oven. The king took in everything at a glance and then said: "I'm very interested in kitchens. I sometimes do a little cooking myself—that is, when I'm allowed."

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Practical joking is a popular pastime along Broadway—anything for a laugh. That has been the rule for a long, long time. Bill Phelon, a baseball writer on the Cincinnati Times-Star and the old Morning Telegraph, was a close friend of Bill Hanna, who wrote baseball for the old New York Sun. Hanna, slight and nervous, was a hypochondriac and was always calling on doctors or going to sanitariums. One night, Phelon walking down Broadway, encountered Hanna who was walking up. He greeted him casually and walked downtown and of course met Hanna whom he again greeted casually. Hanna blinked and returned the greeting somewhat anxiously. Phelon took another car ride and gave Hanna a third greeting. Then according to the story, Hanna, believing he was seeing things, went to a sanitarium and gave himself up.

Another example with a newspaper connection, occurred on the old Herald. A report spread through the city room that a staff man was to be sent to Egypt to meet Theodore Roosevelt on his return from Africa. Naturally, there was great interest as to which would be the lucky one. Finally came a cable signed with the name, James Gordon Bennett, and addressed to an ambitious cub. It ordered him to proceed to Egypt immediately. The youngster's elation was none the less great because seemingly envious members of the staff assured him that the assignment meant that Bennett was keeping track of his work and that he was slated for big things. Rushing home, the cub showed the cable to his mother and while she was calling up family friends, he took it to his sweetheart. Then he started in buying equipment. At that point two older members of the staff, having some consideration, broke the news to the kid that the cable was a fake.

Perhaps yacht race yarns are a bit dated, but one newspaper story calls for another. Thirty years ago, the editorial heads of the Evening World conceived the idea of covering the cup races from a captive balloon. All arrangements having been made, a big advertising campaign was carried out and attracted a lot of attention because of the novelty of the stunt. The reporter selected for the assignment had never been up in a balloon before and had been in the air only a few moments when he became deathly sick. The only messages he sent to the ground were pleas to be yanked down before he died. But the World carried a brilliant report of the race as seen from the balloon. It was written by a rewrite man from Associated Press reports.

The Sun also had an idea for covering that same race. In those days, there was no wireless of course. So a schooner was chartered and anchored near the stake boat. From the schooner, a short cable was run to shore, the cable connecting with a telegraph wire. Boats were chartered to pick up the various stories and dump them on the schooner. Thus, the Sun was assured of fast coverage.

It happened that the man assigned to the schooner was not only the best dressed reporter on the staff but also the most fastidious. To make sure he would be on the job early enough in the morning, he boarded the old schooner the night before. When the other boats arrived for the race, they were met with frantic pleas to be taken ashore. The schooner was infested with vermin, and the reporter feared he would be eaten alive. His pleas were disregarded but he was taken off each night thereafter.

Get a snicker out of this. An ace headquarters detective who has a reputation for always bringing in his man, sat down in the dining room of a hotel in the Times Square sector. When he had finished his luncheon, he looked for his new light felt hat. In its place, was hanging an old, greasy black skimmer. And what did the sleuth do? Why he shouted for the house detective! P. S.—He got his hat back.

Tourists Hunt Famous Ring in Trinidad Hall

Port of Spain, Trinidad.—Many of the people who come here on vacation cruises visit the beautiful garden known as the Hall in the hope of finding the ring which Queen Elizabeth of England gave to the favored earl of Essex three and a half centuries ago and which was eventually lost in this beauty spot in Trinidad a century later.

It will be remembered that the famous ring contained a rose diamond of brilliant hues and that following the tragic fate of the earl of Essex the ring was restored to the royal family. Years later, according to the history of the gem, King Charles I, in 1623, presented the ring to Sir Thomas Warner, the man who founded the first English colony in the West Indies. When Sir Thomas Warner died in Trinidad, the ring passed with his other property to his descendants, who occupied the beautiful house which is still famous as the Hall, and is still surrounded by its garden of a little more than an acre.

During one of the many parties given here by members of Sir Thomas' family the ring was lost somewhere in the garden.

WESTERN IDEAS IN "NEW CHINA"

Movies Get Credit for the Changes.

In old China it was highly offensive for a woman so much as to touch the hand of any man not her husband, and for her to touch even her husband's hand in public was forbidden. In young China, when unmarried couples began to associate in public in the western manner, in public in the western manner, they scrupulously observed the taboo against even the slightest physical contact; today, however, it is very common in Shanghai to see Chinese couples, eager to imitate western heroes and heroines, walking along the street hand in hand or with their arms around each other, and "petting" in the parks is not unknown.

Another once unsanctioned familiarity between men and women is kissing. The kiss is by no means unknown in the East, but it never has been so extensively nor so casually indulged in as in the West. No longer than ten years ago a kiss in public was more shocking to the Chinese than nudism probably still is to most Americans. Early Chinese motion pictures contained no kissing scenes; such a display in public in western motion pictures was enough of a sensation without any defiance of the national code by Chinese actors and actresses. In 1923, however, Olive Young, an American-born Chinese cinema star, ventured a kiss that was shown only in silhouette through a semi-transparent screen. Chinese audiences gasped when they saw it, even as Victorian audiences did at first hearing the word "bloody" from the stage. Today, however, kissing is almost as popular with young China as with young America, though it still is not indulged in so publicly as in Paris.

Only within the past two years the cinema has markedly altered sexual attitudes in yet another way. Somewhat earlier, when Chinese girls first began to choose their own husbands and their friends among young men, they displayed a quite different taste from that of western girls. Athletes, "cave men" and similar types were viewed with disfavour, and hsiao pai men, or "little white face"—something, in brief, like Mel Lan-fang, the female impersonator—was the ideal. So, because modern young men wanted modern girls and modern girls were few in proportion to the number of modern young men, the youths sought to conform to the feminine standards. When a foreign teacher once asked a number of his students on a beach near Shanghai why they avoided the sun they answered frankly, "If we get sunburned, the girls won't go out with us." But men of the vigorously masculine type that are idolized by American cinema audiences are now coming to their own in China.—Wilbur Burton in Asia Magazine.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the less use of strong laxatives may be more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be regulated to suit individual needs. Forms no habit; you needn't take "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps the average person's while nature is restoring their regularity. Why not try it? Some tablets may be more convenient carry. But there is little "force" in any cathartic taken so frequently, you get it with you, wherever you go.

Its very taste tells you why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so well liked. It is pleasant, safe for expectant mothers and children. At all druggists, use, in big bottles.

WHAT which intrigues most about the new coats is that the styling given them is so refreshingly versatile and unusual, so entirely departing from the run-and-tilt. For the tail, the slant, the slender and the stout, there is a coat suited to every silhouette. These hanging-from-the-shoulder lines are as favored as are the shiver-forming effects.

As to sports coats, generally speaking they are divided into two types, the swagger sort, many belted across the front with loose flowing back, and the duster. In regard to the swagger coat the newer versions are often seven-eighths long, whereas last season the three-quarter length prevailed. As to the dusters (mostly of strikingly handsome tweed or herring bone wools) a distinguishing note is the big shawl revers which carry a most interesting style message. It is as if you were to take your duster to be unfurled at furred and vice versa. Big shawls are very good style, as also are the new fur bib effects. Then, too, the separate fur capelet which is such a popular idea looks well with the coat. The newest separate fur neckers can be worn as a scarf or the shawl brought around to the back and hooded, thus affording to all appearance an elaborate trim to the coat.

Big news in regard to fur-trimmed coats is "the coat with a muff." All leading coat departments are making a feature of this very practical and handsome idea.

To strike the new note in coats, your collar must bend or flare well away from the throat. Which is a very practical comfortable thing for it to do, especially when one happens to be in a warm room. Another outstanding trend is the fur collar which ripples about the neckline. Summing up the situation fur collars are inclined to be rather fanciful and ornate on the new coats.

A leading fashion is the gilet front which is fashioned in the coat to the left in the picture. It is possible to buy these detachable fur gilets or vests separately. However, in this instance, the fur front is made part of the coat. The model pictured is especially noteworthy in that the astrakhan which forms the gilet and the cuffs is dyed green to match the cloth it trims. Dyed fur is a favorite theme among those who are seeking, as most of us are, for new thrills.

Quilted effects are also creating quite a little excitement, the idea being played up in all sorts of interesting ways. Looking at the coat centered in the group, one visions refreshingly new happenings in the way of cloth treatments. This handsome model is a French import, a Bruyere creation. Here the designer gives us a detachable shoulder cape made of the same gray cloth as the coat. The handsome wool coating has been quilted in a most decorative manner.

In the model to the right of heavy black woolen we see something new for afternoon coats as launched by Schiaparelli. This noted French designer calls this triple-tier arrangement the parachute cape. It flares out very much in the back. The coachman-cape idea similar to this is frequently exploited on the new coat program.

A JACKET-BLOUSE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The newest thing in the way of a blouse is a jacket-blouse. Every sort of material fashions the jacket blouse from silver and gold metal cloth to gingham. The jacket-blouse of bright velveteen is especially smart. So also are those fashioned of plaid woolen or taffeta. A new note in a plaid taffeta blouse and beret ensemble is struck in the model pictured. The vogue for metal-shot fabrics is emphasized in the gold and green printed taffeta which fashions this smartly up-to-date blouse and beret two-piece. The wide attached scarf and gauntlet effect at the wrist are quite new. A parting word—be sure your blouse is of the modish jacket sort, whatever the material which fashions it may be—that point is up to you.

FORMAL NIGHTGOWNS

MADE WITH TRAINS

Several months Paris has been giving news about the new formal nightgowns, but no one seems to have taken them seriously in America until recently. Now it's gotten to the point where young things announce that their splendid new evening gowns are really nightgowns and vice versa.

There are some of these, however, which are unmistakably nightgowns and will possibly be worn to the theater. They are still so formally lovely that they take your breath away. Many of them come with trains and still others are jackets or long coats of fur.

Knitted Evening Mittens

Will Keep Hands Warm

Knitted evening mittens are predicted for this winter, especially if the thermometer drops below zero. The mittens are designed to cover over the wrists or glaze gloves and may be either hand-knitted or of simulated knitted wool. They may be made of cream or yellow mercerized cotton. Knitted silk or cotton velvet mittens may be used for these purposes.

No strips were observed on the Wisconsin varieties and it out-yielded other varieties with which compared.

Strawberry beds that were covered before the last heavy frost last fall came through the winter without "black root" damage, experimental plots conducted by the Wisconsin experiment association revealed. Beds lightly covered or uncovered until later in the season showed heavy damage to both crowns and roots.

Many other officials of high rank, including vice-presidents, premiers, ambassadors, ministers, and others, also met death by assassination during the period mentioned.

The killing of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary and his wife in 1914 precipitated the World War. Mayor Cermak of Chicago was fatally wounded in an attempt to kill President-elect Roosevelt in 1933.

From Green Bay, the cradle of western civilization, radiate the routes of the early explorers of the middle west. First among these are Joliet and Pere Marquette, who in the spring of 1673, started out to explore the Fox River, and thus discovered the Mississippi. Following them on their tour, we come to what is now De Pere on Highway 41, site of the mission established by Father Claude Allouez in 1761, (marked with a tablet,) and home of St. Norbert's College. Next we come to Little Rapids, where Ilac bushes planted in the seventeenth century, by Eleazor Williams (pretender to the French throne) still flourish, and where marked sites of many Indian villages pay mute tribute to the dim past. At Kaukauna, site of the Kickapoo Indian village, last resting place of Captain Apamunt, Indian hero of the Revolution, and terminus of the first military road in the west, we find many interesting scenic and historic spots, especially, marked Indian village sites; also the old stone "Underground Storage" and the locks for carrying river traffic past the rapids. On the banks of the Fox, all the way into Appleton, we find more marked Indian village sites, mid beautiful landscape scenery. Appleton played an important role in the advancement of electricity, it being the site of the first electrical power plant in the United States, and one of the first trolley cars and telephones used in Wisconsin; it is the home of Lawrence College, also the home of H. Spearman, railroad story author, the childhood home of Edna Ferber the famous authoress, and home of Francis Scott Bradford, the noted mural painter. There are very interesting, scenic gulches and bluffs on both sides of the Fox on the way through Appleton to Neenah and Menasha—the early center of the western paper industry—on the sites of the "Four-Legs" Winnebago village, and of the Fox Indian stockaded fort. Nearby is Butte Des Morts—hill of the dead—where lies the bodies of Indians slain by the French under De Langlade in 1750. Here is also the outlet of Lake Winnebago—the largest lake located entirely within one state—which supplies power for the production of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of paper and other manufactured products which are shipped to all quarters of the globe from the Fox River Valley. On the way to Oshkosh we pass the tuberculosis sanitarium, the State Hospital for the insane and the State Fish Hatchery. Oshkosh is the very heart of Wisconsin's motor and iceboat sport, offering not only the broad bosom of Lake Winnebago, but several hundreds of miles of scintillatingly beautiful river banks up and down the Fox. In the spring, when the white bass are running, Oshkosh is the Mecca of thousands upon thousands of fishermen. Oshkosh has beautiful parks, and wonderful public museum, state teachers college, and it is the center of the early logging and lumber industry of Wisconsin. The Fox River Valley and territory contiguous to Lake Winnebago, is next to the Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha Area, the richest and most populous section of Wisconsin, containing 250,000 people and some of the finest farms and industrial plants in the state. In the next article of this series we will follow Joliet and Marquette, through Ripon into Portage and The Dells of the Wisconsin River.

TIMELY TOPICS

An original idea of what constitutes amusement got five Minneapolis young men into trouble. Harry Hirsch, manager of a burlesque theater, noticed that ladies of the chorus were doing kicks and other contortions not on the bill. An investigation disclosed that the five customers in question were shooting wire staples at the limbs of the chorines with rubber bands, and the culprits went to jail.

It is an old wheeze in baseball that in addition to his other qualifications an umpire should be an expert in dodging pop bottles hurled by irate fans. Umpire Bill Klem should know, for he has officiated in all world's series games for the last 17 consecutive years, besides "calling 'em as he sees 'em" during the regular seasons.

Another unusual birth case is reported from Juneau, Alaska, where twins were born to Mrs. Alfred Carlson, 48 hours apart—a boy on Saturday morning and a girl on the following Monday morning, each weighing nearly seven pounds. If the event had occurred at the end of December it might have presented the phenomenon of one twin being born in one year and the other in the following year.

The close finish of a horse race at Kingston, Jamaica, a few days ago proved fatal to Charles Earle, who had a large bet on one of the racers. He became so excited as the two leaders sped for the finish line neck and neck that he collapsed and died of heart failure. His horse won.

Incredible as it may seem, there is still one real Daughter of the Revolution still living. She is Mrs. Caroline Phoebe Randall of Greenfield, Mass., who recently celebrated her 84th birthday. Her father was Stephen Hasam, who fought at Bunker Hill and in other battles of the war for independence, and was 90 years old when she was born.

RED CROSS AGENCIES SAFEGUARD HEALTH

First Aid, Life Saving, Nursing Care, Promote Health and Safety

Five outstanding services make up the health-conservation program of the American Red Cross, according to the annual report just issued in Washington. These services are first aid and life saving, which together have trained more than a million persons; nursing, with an active enrollment of 36,133 registered nurses; Public Health Nursing, conducted by 750 nurses in 424 chapters last year; and Home Hygiene, which has taught more than 700,000 men and women simple ways of caring for the sick at home.

"The achievements of the Red Cross in public health nursing place it among the leaders in this field," said James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations. "This service was organized in 1919 to meet needs developed by the World War and the ravages of the flu epidemic which in 1918-1919 took so great a toll of life."
"Since that time Red Cross nursing services have been pioneers in more than one half of the counties in the United States. Many services we established were taken over later by civic, state and federal agencies, and the Red Cross continues to establish services in other new fields. Red Cross nurses made more than a million visits to patients last year, and 629,025 children in schools were inspected."
"Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick are especially important in times of depression, because they teach families to maintain hygienic conditions in their own homes and to recognize symptoms of illness."

early enough to prevent serious sequences.

"Our courses in first aid have been instrumental in saving lives of the injured; in safeguarding the sick victim until the physician arrives; in reducing time lost by workers in factories, mines and other industries. We are also giving the courses extensively to police and fire departments throughout the country, and in the highway patrols."

Everyone is invited to join the Red Cross during the annual membership roll call which continues from October 1st to Thanksgiving, to take part in the health program and other humanitarian services of the Red Cross.

An Army of Goodwill

When members of the Junior Red Cross learned that school buildings had been destroyed in the Kentucky floods last August they gave $100 to the National Children's Fund to buy textbooks for use in the schools. The maximum membership of the Junior Red Cross last year was 2,500,000, an increase over the previous year of more than 250,000. They are active and service programs in their own communities which each year bring comfort and pleasure to thousands of needy and unfortunate people. International friendship is built through correspondence with Red Cross members in foreign countries.

To Teach Water Safety

Life saving services offering training in first aid methods for swimming have been carried on by the Red Cross for two decades. In 20 years, life saving certificates have been awarded to more than a half million people who are interested in water sports. Last year chapters issued 72,500 saving certificates.

The Red Cross enrolled 3,500,000 members in last year's roll call. Join in the 1934 roll call—Armistice Day Thanksgiving.

Mussolini will curtail employment for women in Italy, on the theory that women with jobs are less inclined to marry. In this country a woman with a job is more likely to have a chance to get married, if she is willing to support a husband.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Hooper diagnoses the business situation thus: "Business follows a zig-zag course. Right now it is more zig than zag, but you have to zig before you can zag." That explains everything you get what he means.
