HOME TALENT PLAY ELEANOR KOENEN A DECIDED HIT BADLY INJURED IN The home talent play, "Where's

Grandma?" sponsered by the St. Theresa's Sodality of the Holy Trinity congregation, which was given in the high school auditorium last Thursday and Saturday evenings was a decided success in every way. On Thursday ing the players were greeted with a packed house and a very good crowd greeted them on Saturday evening, considering the weather conditions. Every member of the cast performed their part wonderfully well and are to be complimented in the manner with which they acquitted themselves. The members of the cast worked hard to make the play a success, and how well they succeeded was manifested by the very good attendance and the words of praise heard on every side The excellent coaching by Sr. Milburga of the local parochial school and Miss Deer of the St. Bridgets school was very noticeable throughout the course of the play. Coaches and members of the cast are to be congratulated on the manner in which the entertainment was handled. Everyone was so well pleased with the efforts of the young people, that the hope was expressed that a similar entertainment be given at some near future date.

WASHINGTON COUNTY OLD SETTLERS TO MEET

Officers of the Washington County Old Settlers' club, including H. F. Schroeder of the town of Trenton, president; Mrs. John Christnacht of the town of Addison, vice president; M. T. Buckley, the county superintendent of schools, West Bend, secretary, and Ernst Franckenburg, West Bend. treasurer, met at the offices of the secretary in the court house at West Bend on Saturday, Jan. 12 to formulate plans for the annual meeting of the Old Settlers' club on Washington's birthday, Friday, Feb. 22. The gathering this year will be of considerable importance and more auspicious than those of recent years in that this year the club will observe its diamond anniversary.

Because of this diamond observance plans for the meeting to be held at West Bend, the county seat, are being made with considerable care. With a view toward making the convocation more representative of the entire county, the officers have appointed an exe cutive committee composed of club members from various sections of the county. This committee will work with the officers on the general arrange. ments needed to be completed before the gathering can be held. Members of the committee are as follows:

M. W. Monroe and Thomas Manning of the town of Erin, Frank Salter of the town of Germantown, Robert Laubenheimer of Richfield, Hairy Schuck of Slinger, E. L. Rosenheimer of Jackson village Hugo Reis of the town of Polk Frank Schwalbach of Cermantown village. Mrs. Joseph Weninger of the town of Addison, George Heiman and John Meyer of the town of Wayne Mrs. Geo Beck of the town of Trenton, William Gruhle and Mrs. Ben Wierman of the town of Farmington, Mrs. Belle Alright of the town of Barton, Anthony Otten of Barton village, Alfred Seefeldt of the town of Kewaskum, Newton Rosenheimer of Kewaskum village, Miss Catherine Weninger of the town of Hartford, Paul Bartelt of the town of Jackson and Guido Schroeder, Paul Horlamus, and John M. Peters of the town of West Pend. Committee mem bers for the cities of Hartford and West Bend have not yet been selected.

It is the aim of the officers and com mittees to make the meeting this year one of the most outstanding in the history of the club and they urge all mem.

KEWASKUM QUINT UPSETS GRAFTON

Kewaskum gained another notch in the Land o' Lakes league standings when the team upset Grafton Sunday by a 28 to 22 score. With this victory

Kewaskum replaced Grafton in fourth place in the standings. In a game last Friday evening in which Port Washington defeated the first place Hartford team. Port moved from 2nd to 1st place, so the teams now rank as folhows: 1st, Port Washington; 2nd, Hartford; 3rd, Cedarburg; 4th, Kewaskum; 5th, Grafton; 6th, Slinger. , Kewaskum played Grafton complete. ly off their feet in the first half and at the rest period possessed a 19 to 6 lead. The visitors' defense crumbled time and again before the locals' vicious offensive attack. During this time Kewaskum's defense was almost impenetrable, Grafton being held to two field goals, both made by Habich their star guard.

In the second half Giafton changed their style from a zone defense to a man to man defense and a marked improvement was displayed. Hennings replaced Muenier at forward and he and Habich went on a scoring spree that fell short by six points. Grafton was "hot" toward the end of the same and only Kewaskum's predominating lead of the first half prevented the visitors from winning the game. With the exception of the last five minutes of the game, however, the home team enjoyed a comfortable lead throughout. Grafton scored 16 points in the second half while Kewaskum was held to 9.

Habich was easily the star of the ame for Grafton while Hennings and Goldberg played well. Habich scored 12 of his team's 22 points. Marx led the locals with eight points. He was closely followed by Stenschke and Claus with seven points each. Kohn scored four points in addition to playing a star floor game.

In the preliminary game the Mueller Furnitures of Grafton defeated the Kewaskum second team 26 to 16. The score was knotted at 7 to 7 at halftime but Grafton pulled away in the last reried to win the game, C. Miller scored 6 points for Kewaskum while Klotz was high for Grafton with 8 noints

Don't forget the two big games on he schedule for this week-end. To night (Friday) Kewaskum will travel to Slinger in an effort to gain anothe notch in the standings and at the same time to give themselves a .500 per cent average for the year thus far. Kewas

ASK YOUR DOCTOR FIRST, MOTHER

Every day, unthinkingly, mothers take the advice of unqualified persons — instead of their doctors' — on remedies for their children.

If they knew what the scientists know, they would never take this chance.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

When it comes to the frequently-used "milk of magnesia," doctors, for over 50 years, have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia — the safe remedy for your child."

canned foods for the table. It used to be the custom to drain and wash all canned vegetables. Comparative tests have shown, however, that vegetables reheated in their own liquor usually have a better flavor and at the same time valuable nutriments. A canned vegetable should be as carefully dressed and flavored as a fresh vegetable. The combination of a little onion or celery with string beans or peas gives a new interest. Lemon butter served with carrots or beets, cream with lima beans, a bit of sugar, a little onion and a clove or two with tomatoes brings out or adds to flavor. Mushrooms in their canned form add interest to any number of dishes and make a soup which is delectable. Of course, there are many varieties of new and excellent soups all ready to use as they come out of the can.

MURDER CASE

"Have you," asked Vance, "any suggestion as to who might desire to have these two gentlemen out of the way?" Grassi suddenly became austere and aloof.

"I have no suggestion," he replied in a flat, diplomatic voice. "Mr. Archer Coe was the type of man who might inspire enmities; but Mr. Brisbane Coe was quite the opposite - genial, shrewd, kindly-"

"An excellent characterization," Vance complimented him. "And what are your impressions of Mr. Wrede? . . I assure you any opinion you express will go no further." Grassi appeared ill at ease. He did not answer at once but contemplated the wall before him for some time. Finally he spoke in the slow, precise manner of a man carefully choosing his words. "I have not been particularly impressed by Mr, Wrede. On the surface he is most charming, but I have a feeling he is inclined toward superficiality. Withat he is very clever. . . . "Cleverness is our national curse," Vance remarked. "But forgive my interruption. You were speaking of Mr. Wrede.'

"Mr. Wrede, as I have said, impresses me as being very clever. But have sensed another side to him. He is capable, I should say, of unexpected things. I have a feeling he would stop at nothing to gain his own

"Thank you!" Vance spoke with unwonted harshness. "I perfectly understand your feelings." He looked down at Grassi contemptuously. "And now, sir, we should like to know exactly what you did yesterday between four o'clock in the afternoon and one o'clock in the morning." His tone was almost menacing.

The Italian made a valiant effort to meet Vance's stern gaze. "I have said all I intend to say," he announced. Vance faced the man threateningly. "In that case," he said, "I shall have to order your arrest on suspicion of having murdered Archer and Brisbane Coe !" A look of abject fear came over Grassi's pallid face.

"No-you can't-do that," he stammered. "I didn't do it-I assure you I didn't do it !" His voice rose. "I'll tell you anything you want to know. I went to Doctor Montrose's for tea. We discussed ceramics; and I stayed to dinner. At eight o'clock I excused myself and went to the railway station to take the train for Mount Vernon-to the Crestview Country club.

what reason did Miss Lake give for the deception?" "No particular reason. Miss Lake merely said she thought it would be better if Mr. Brisbane Coe did not hear us coming in together."

"She specifically mentioned Mr. Brisbane Coe?" "Yes." "And she did not mention Mr. Archer Coe?"

"Not that I remember." "That is quite understandable,"

Vance remarked. "Uncle Brisbane was her ally in her engagement to Mr. Wrede; and she may have feared that he would not have approved of her being out so late with another man. By the by, Mr. Grassi, when you came in last night-or rather, this morningwhere did you hang your hat and coat?"

A cautious look came into the Italian's eyes. "I did not wear an outer coat. But I carried my hat and stick to my own room." "Why? There is a closet in the lower hall." Grassi moved uneasily, and I could have sworn the pallor of his face increased. "I did not care to make a noise opening and shutting the closet door," he explained.

Vance made no comment. "That will be all for the present," he said pleasantly. "And thank you for your help. . . . Would you mind waiting in your room? We shall probably want to question you again before the afternoon is over." The man bowed and went down the passageway of the hall toward the front of the house. Markham was immediately on his feet.

Wrede sank heavily into the nearest chair. "Tell us what you know about this double murder, Mr. Wrede," Vance went on with grim relentlessness. A shiver ran over Wrede's body. "I know nothing about it," he replied after a painful pause. "Gamble told me this morning that Brisbane was in Chicago." "He started for the station yesterday afternoon, but returned here last night-to meet his death. "What do you know of the conditions here at the Coe house yesterday? I would like as full a description as you can give." "I was here talking to Archer Coe from ten to twelve yesterday morning-" "About ceramics-or Miss Lake?"

Wrede caught his breath. "Both," he answered weakly. "The fact is, Archer and I had a somewhat bitter session regarding my coming marriage with Miss Lake. But it was nothing unusual. He was, as you nay know, violently opposed to the marriage. Brisbane took part in the discussion, and called Archer some rather

"To those of us who have passed forty and find ourselves still able to get about without crutches, find ourselves, as a matter of fact no different than we were when approaching that fateful mark, the information will come not as a surprise, but as a reminder of how very different such things were no further back in history than when mother was a girl. We do actually seem physically different. How do you account for it?" The noted writer to whom the query was addressed, "accounting for it," gave these varying reasons:

"Are we really physically different than were women a generation or so ago? How much have we been affected by the slight lengthening of the life span.

"I should be inclined to attribute the change to anything but physical reasons. As a matter of fact, women who lived to eighty or ninety in former generations were no 'younger at forty than the more shortlived of their sisters. They were simply old longer.

"There may be scmething in the modern idea of longer childhood Today we send our daughters to school longer. We send them to work later. They marry later. That would be conducive to their staying 'young' longer.

"But, with little thought, it is evident that the change must be practically all a thing of the mind. It is woman's activity today that keeps her young. Age is atrophy-a drying up. One who continues to be stimulated with interest and activity keeps mind and body in the condition that is youth. In former generations it was the assumption that when a woman married and had her children, it was time to sit and look back. Today all that is changed. Many women are really free-as free as they want to be. Many married

HUGE WIND AREA COVERED BY NEW TURBINE POWER

Depending entirely upon the wind for the energy to produce electricity for farms not served by power lines says Popular Mechanics Magazin the latest air turbine has been found satisfactory and safe after exhaustive tests. The plant is a large onearm windmill, a single-bladed wind turbine. The blade is made of thin sheets of stainless steel welded together to form a hollow air foil. Since stainless steel does not rust. the blade requires no attention. An electric generator is driven by the blade through a set of gears. Because of its large size, the blade covers a huge wind area, developing usable power in light winds of seven to twelve miles per hour. Such breezes blow almost every day. By means of a centrifugal governor, the blade turns only at a moderate speed, no matter how strong the wind may get. In gales the arm turns its edge to the wind, changing its pitch to suit conditions. The speed is never more than that for which it is adjusted. This safety factor frequently saves the power plant from damage. Since the turbine produces con siderable electricity even in light breezes, moderate size storage batteries may be used. The batteries are left almost fully charged at all times, due to the constant generation of current. This easy method of operation increases the life of the batteries to eight to ten years. With the wind turbine, the farmer is equipped to produce electricity for all his needs at about the same cost as current purchased from a public utility company. The 1930 census showed that out of 6.288,544 farms in the United States, only 570,953 were served by electrical lines. Of the total farms, 270,380 had their own plants and more than 5,000,000 were without electricity of any kind.

A Doctor Knows!

There's a very good reason why doctors and hospitals have always used liquid laxatives! You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. "There was no blood on Archer's head" Vance selected one of the fragments and held it up. "Moreover, please note that the blood is not on the outer glaze, but on the inside of the vase. The same is true of the little piece I found on the table downstairs. But I can't possibly connect this broken vase with Brisbane's death or with the Scottie." "And how do you connect it with Archer's death?" Vance became evasive.

"Give me a little more time," he said. "I have a fairly definite idea about this broken vase with the bloodstains on the inside; it's too fantastic-too incredible. I want to verify my suspicions. . . ." His voice trailed off, and he lighted a cigarette meditatively. Markham regarded him a while and then said: "The whole affair strikes me as fantastic and incredible." Vance exhaled a blue ribbon of smoke "Suppose we talk to Wrede," he suggested. "We may know more when he has unburdened his heart to us." Markham gave an order to Heath. but at that moment Burke announced the arrival of the wagon from the department of public welfare. The sergeant went into the hall and was halfway down the stairs when Vance hastened after him.

"Just a moment, Sergeant !" So impetuous was Vance's manner that Markham and I followed him into the hall. "I could bear," Vance called down to Heath, "to snoop in the pockets of Brisbane's suit before it's taken away. Would you mind?" "Certainly not, Mr. Vance. Come along. We all went to the library. The sergeant closed the door.

"I had the same idea," he said. "I've been figuring right along that maybe that slick butler was lying to us about the ticket to Chicago."

It took but a short time to empty the pockets of Brisbane Coe's suit to the library table. But there was nothing of interest among the contents, only the usual items to be found in a man's pockets-a wallet, handkerchiefs, keys, a fountain-pen, a watch, and the like. There were, however, the

"I lunched in my apartment. Then I went to an auction at the American art galleries. But I had a bad headache. So I came home around three, and lay down. I did not leave my apartment again until this morning, when Gamble phoned me."

"You live next door, do you not?" "The first house to the east, across the double vacant lot."

"Who owns the vacant lot?" "It is part of the Coe estate." "And you remained in your apartment from three o'clock yesterday afternoon until this morning?" "That's right. I had a beastly headache ...

"Did you see Miss Lake yesterday?" "Yes, in the morning when I was here. The fact is, I made an appointment with her for last night-at the Country club. But when I got home yesterday afternoon, I called her by phone and excused myself. I was in no condition for dancing."

"Mr Grassi substituted for you." said Vance. Wrede's eyes clouded, and he set his jaws. "So she told me this morning." "When Gamble phoned you, this morning." Vance asked, "what was your mental reaction to the news?" Wrede frowned.

"That would be difficult to analyze. . I was not overfond of Archer." he admitted; "and I was not personally distressed by the report of his death. But I was extremely puzzled. It was not like Archer to take his own life; and-frankly-I had very grave doubts. That is why I advised Gamble to get in immediate touch with Mr. Markham."

"You acted wisely," Vance observed. with a tinge of sarcasm. "But if you did not believe that Archer Coe had committed suicide, there must have been in your mind another possibilityto wit; that of murder. Who, Mr. Wrede, do you think would have had sufficient motive to commit the crime?" Wrede did not answer at once. He appeared sorely troubled and ran his fingers several times through his hair. "That is a question I have been trying to answer all morning," he replied without looking at Vance. "One may speculate, of course, but it would not be fair to voice those speculations without definite evidence of some kind. . .

"Mr. Grassi?"

"I-I really, Mr. Vance, I'm not well acquainted with the man. He was after Coe's collection of Chinese ceramics; but that would hardly constitute a motive for murder."

"No-o." Vance smiled frigidly. "What about Miss Lake?"

Wrede almost leaped from his seat. "That suggestion is outrageous!" he cried, glowering at Vance. "How dare you-?"

"Spare me the drama," Vance cut in, with a contemptuous smile. "I'm deuced difficult to impress."

Wrede sat back, with a mumbled remark which we could not make out. "What do you think of Liang, the cook?" Vance asked next.

The man glanced up with a swift. shrewd look.

Economic Highlights

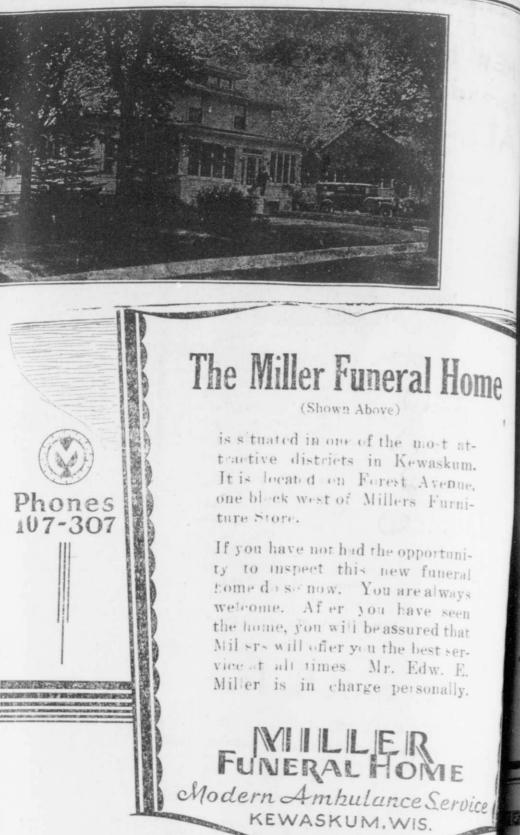

There we.e no surprises in the Pres ident's Message to Cong.ess. Mr. Roosevelt confinea his talk almost exclusvely to explaining what he hoped to do on behalf of the needy, the ill, the old, and the unemployed. His new program, dealing as it does with reform rather than recovery, might be termed the second phase of the New Deal.

Briefly described, there are six definite facto, s to the program he wishes Congress to enact. The purpose, first, is to provide every able-bod.ed worker with a job. Second, the dole system of relief is to be abandoned. Third, relier of the unemployed, which is now being carried by the Federal gove.nment with a modicum of stat aid, is to be transferred to local authorities. Fourth, all public works activities are to be unified under a new plan. Fifth, the existing Federal Emergency Relief Administ ation is to be gradually displaced by a new emergency works agency. Sixth. and the most important-old age and unemployment insurance are to be provided, and a start is to be made toward perfecting legislation for financially assisting children, mothers and others handicapped by dependency or illhealth.

Mr. Roosevelt outlined these matters, but gave little in the way of detail. He said that he would shortly issue a statement as to their cost-and added that it would be well within the credit of the government This, of course, is a debatable point-no subject is more bitterly disputed than how much d.ain the Treasury can stand. Irrespective of that, it can be safely forecast that Congress will enact the program in its entirety. While support of the President's ideas by the legislative branch of our government may not be as unanimous as in the past, his power is still extraordinarily potent.

Also of great interest was the Presilent's statement on how public works are to be carried on in the future. He sa'd that preference will be given to projects which use a large amount of direct labor, and which may be expected to be self-liquidating-in other words, projects where the government has a chance of getting all or part of its money back in the course of time. He also said that projects should compete as little as possible with private enterprise-and a legion of industrialists must have heaved a sigh of relief on hearing that. One of the greatest feirs of the time is that government will go into business in competition with private enterprise, as it has already done with power projects. Finally, according to the President, public be slowed down if and when private Mrs. John Marx the consolation prize. enterprise is able to take up some of The club also met at the home of Mrs. the unemployment slack.

Attorney Gen-S. Cummings himself eral Cummings appeared to present the case for the government. Mr. Cummings is an excellent lawyer, but not much can be said in praise of the legal abilities of most of the men whom the exigencies of politics have shoved into hissoffice in Washington. So probably he was wise to handle this matter himself. Cummings defended the constitutional authority of the President and congress to adopt the present monttary policy as inherently the right of the government to preserve itself.

In an argument distinguished for oratorical display as well as for its legal aspects, Cummings said an adverse decision by the court would:

1. Increase the public and private debt of the nation by $69,000,000,000. 2. Create a special class that would be beyond the pale of the general financial structure, a class composed of those holding bonds demanding payment in gold.

3. Reduce the balance in the United States treasury $2,500,000,000.

Add $17,000,000,000 to the public debt and increase the interest charge on this debt alone by $2,500,-000,000 a year.

The latter, sum alone, Cummings said, is equal to twice the value of the 1934 wheat and cotton crop.

The attorney general referred to the troubled state of the country in the spring of 1933 and added, "I contend and shall show that the congress and the President of the United States acted reasonably in a period of very great difficulties and that their acts were not the product of caprice."

From the questions asked by the justices, observers gained the impres sion that there was a sharp division of opinion among them.

IN THE highly dramatized trial of Bruno Hauptmann for the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby the state continued to weave a strong net of circumstantial evidence around the defendant. Lindbergh first identified his voice as that of the man who received the ransom; next was Amandus Hochmuth, eighty-seven-year-old man who told of seeing Hauptmann driving a "dirty-green" car with a ladder in it into the Lindbergh lane March 1, 1932, the day of the kidnaping. Then John Perrone, Bronx taxi driver, identified him as the man who paid him $1 to deliver a ransom note to "Jafsie." "Jafsie," otherwise Dr. John Condon, the aged Bronx educator who undertook the negotiations with the kidnaper, next went on the stand and in his garrulous way identified Bruno as the man with whom he dealt and to whom he handed the $50,000 ransom money. His long and somewhat rambling story was bitterly assailed in cross examination by E. J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, but seemingly the great value of his evidence was not much shaken.

Detective Arthur Johnson of New York was on his way home from Europe bringing relatives of the late Isadore Fisch to testify for the state. Hauptmann claimed in his defense that the ransom money found in his possession was given to him by Fisch, a business associate in New York. Fisch later returned to his home in Germany, where he died.

Included in the latter is $10,185 to the widow and children of Leon Mainguy, a French citizen of St. Pierre, Miquelon, who drowned when the schooner was sunk by the coastguard.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not parties to a liquor smuggling conspiracy.

Arena-Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Archie Parkins. The mother is 16 and the father, who is blind, was a former student at Janesville school for blind.

Hurley-In a special election Iron county electors approved a $150 000 bond issue by a vote of more than 16 to 1. The bonds will go toward a fund to build 181/2 miles of concrete on United States highway 51.

Madison-One-third of a million dollars, to be distributed among eight thousand farmers in 20 counties, represents Wisconsin's first installment on the second benefit payments now due under the 1934 corn-hog contracts.

Madison-The first official act announced by Gov. Philip F. La Follette after taking the oath of office was the cancellation of his predecessor's orders for special elections to fill vacancies in the 12th and 27th senatorial districts. La Follette ordered them held April 2.

Oshkosh-With farmers of Winnebago county already agreeing to buy 5.500 tons of lime at 50 cents a ton, the county board decided to sanction a lime crushing program and also permitted relief administrators to use county crushing machinery in the process. The project will employ from 50 o 75 men.

Racine-Damages amounting to $1,-104 were swarded John and George Davis by a municipal court jury here against the village of Waterford. The men sued on the grounds that seven acres of their land had been made unusable because drainage was cut off when the village raised the street level. They had asked $1,400 damages.

Lancaster - Whole families in this neighborhood are busy during the long winter evenings picking the meat out of thousands of pounds of walnuts, butternuts and hickory nuts to supply eastern buyers. Farmers report that this was an exceptionally good year for the nut crop, and they have gathered hundreds of bushels of black walnuts and hickory nuts. Watertown-The city council voted to wipe out the municipal restriction on the number of taverns by doing a complete about face on the ordinance which now controls taverns and which. beginning on July 1, would have reduced the number of saloons here to 44. As a result of the vote the city is thrown open to an unlimited number of taverns. The city now has some 52 taverns.

Increases in butter and cheese prices have raised the price for condensery milk about 10c a hundredweight in the last few weeks. Under the condensery code, condenseries buy milk according to the current prices for butter and cheese. Madison-The 1935 session of the Wisconsin legislature convened here with the progressives winning control of the assembly and a democratic-republican coalition controlling the senate. It took six ballots in the lower house before J. W. Carow, Ladysmith progressive, was elected speaker over Cornelius Young, Milwaukee. democrat. The vote on the sixth ballot was Carow being graduated in 1870. 51, Young 35, Graass (R.) 9, Kiefer (Soc.) 3. scattering 2. Carow started out with 46 votes. Racine-John Sekat, communist leader, was sentenced to one to 'wo years in the state prison at Waupun by Municipal Judge E. R. Burgess. The sentence was passed on a charge of malicious destruction of property and inciting a riot.

Rhinelander-Voluntarily presenting himself before County Judge H. F. Steele, Judge Frank W. Carter of Vilas county accepted service of a warrant and pleaded not guilty as an accessory to manslaughter in the death of Mary Clark, 21, following an illegal operation in 1933.

Kenosha-A four-handed card game was believed to be the motive behind the burglary of the Jens Holm tavern, police said. The burglar broke a rear window and took six juarts of liquor, four whiskey glasses, four packages of cigarets, four decks of cards, a box of chips and $4 in change from the cash revister. Nothing else was disturbed.

Milwaukee-The loss of Wisconsin banks through hold-ups dropped to $23,683 in 1934 in contrast with the peak loot of $530,791 in 1930, records of the Wisconsin Bankers' association showed. Over the five-year period, 118 men have been sentenced to terms ranging from 15 to 40 years in the state peniter.ciary for bank robbery and five men were killed.

Madison - Wisconsin has collected $1,799,320 in liquor taxes in approximately one year, State Treasurer Robert K. Henry reported. This total was returned between Jan. 13, 1934, the in Rome between Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France and Premier Mussolini was announced informally. For two days the two states-would bring the resolution up on the floor of the senate as soon as possible. However he recognized the sentiment against it was strong and would not predict the outcome of the fight.

The new resolution as approved by the committee is slightly altered to meet the objections of other nations to what is known as reservation five. Mr. Robinson said :

"The legal import and effect of reservation five bas been preserved in full. It is provided that discussions may take place under the Root protocol, but in the end the court may not entertain over the objection of the United States any request for an advisory opinion on any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

Of the Democrats on the committee Senators Lewis and Murray voted against the resolution; Republicans who favored it were Vandenberg and Capper.

THOSE Democrats and Republicans, eminent and otherwise, who are banded together as the American Liberty league are now really getting into action against what they deem the radical features of the administration's program, and their executive council has put out a ten-point platform. It declares the league's opposition to such practices as sweeping delegations of legislative authority to the President, lump sum appropriations to be doled out by the White House, socialization of industry and regimentation of American life.

In the first plank of its platform the league pledged itself "to preserve American institutions which safeguard to citizens in all walks of life the right to liberty and pursuit of happiness" and at the same time "to combat the growth of bureaucracy, the spread of monopoly, the socialization of industry, and the regimentation of American life."

Invasion of the law making and law interpreting functions by New Deal administrators was also rapped by the league in promising "to uphold the American principle that laws be made only by the direct representatives of the people in the congress, and that the laws be interpreted only by the courts."

Other points in the 10-point declaration of policy pledged the league to fight for government economy, a sound federal fiscal policy, a stable currency, protection for investors, and individual liberties.

DETROLEUM control provisions of the National Industrial Recovery act, specifically section 9 (c), are held by the Supreme Court of the United States to be invalid as unconstitutional abdication of legislative power to the President. Eight of the justices united in rendering this decision, Justice Cardozo alone dissenting, and the opinion was read by Chief Justice Hughes.

The section declared void authorized the President to ban interstate ship- curities to the women and children ment of "hot" oil-that is, oil pro- of the country."

Here are some other vital things disclosed by the message: The national debt will increase from $31,000,000,000 at the close of this fiscal year to $34,239,000,000

No new taxes are requested. Congress is asked to continue the so-called nuisance taxes which expire soon and the 3-cent stamp rate. A national defense appropriation of $899,948,065-the greatest in the history of the country-is requested. A total of 137,134 federal workers are to be dismissed. The $2,811,000,000 gold profit has not been disturbed. Veterans pensions in 1936 will reach the staggering total of $704,000,000. The accumulated New Deal deficit for three years on June 30, 1936, will total $11,700,000,000. While the trend of recovery and relief expenditures is downward, regular federal expenses will increase. This is due in part to a 5 per cent pay restoration for federal workers which involves $65,000,000. It seemed certain that some of the President's proposals would start bitter fights in congress. Old line Republicans insisted that such "squandering" the nation's resources would fead to inflation and bankruptcy. The more radical legislators thought that four billions for work relief was not enough. Lots of senators and representatives resented the President's request for a free hand in allocating that fund, feeling he was infringing on their prerogatives. But the administration forces in congress are so overwhelming that there was no doubt that the budget would be accepted as presented.

ARY PICKFORD went before M Judge Ben Lindsey in Los Angeles and obtained a decree of divorce from Douglas Fairbanks; and thus came to an end the union of the "royal couple" of moviedom, who for ten years were regarded as the model wedded pair so far as happiness and worldly success went. Mary's suit, filed more than a year ago, charged Doug with mental cruelty, indifference and neglect. She told Judge Lindsey the charges were true and that a fair and just property settlement had been made; and after Elizabeth Lewis, Miss Pickford's secretary, had testified the decree was granted and Mary left the courtroom almost in tears. Fairbanks, in St. Moritz, Switzerland, was informed of the divorce but declined to comment.

EX-PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOV-ER has been elected a director of the New York Life Insurance company, at the instance of Alfred E. Smith. He was first offered the place two years ago when the death of Calvin Coolidge created a vacancy. Without waiting for an official communique, those best informed said Laval and il duce had reached a full agreement, the principal features of which are a joint declaration to preserve the independence of Austria, a five or six power pact of noninterference, and provisions for colonial concessions in Africa. The pact agreeing not to interfere with one another's internal affairs presumably will include Italy, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Austria, and Hungary; and later England, France and Rumania may be asked to adhere to it. This Franco-Italian rapprochement, in the opinion of many high officials, will go far toward insuring the maintenance of peace in Europe, and in time may lead Germany to re-enter the League of Nations.

DUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATOR ICKES has resumed his contest with Arizona over the building of the Parker dam in the Colorado river and wants the Supreme court to keep that state and its "navy," consisting of one scow, from interfering with the job. Solicitor General Biggs asked permission of the court to file suit for an injunction.

The governor of Arizona recently called out his militia and his navy to keep the public administration from completing the dam. He held that it would interfere with the distribution of irrigation water in his state.

PREMIER R. B. BENNETT of Canada, appealing for support for his administration, promises to give the Dominion a "New Deal" that bears a close resemblance to President Roosevelt's economic and social program. He outlined his proposals in a speech in which he demanded "an end to the reckless exploitation of human resources and the trafficking in the health and happiness of Canadian citizens."

Among the reforms the premier indorsed were: Contributory employment insurance, a remodeled old-age pension scheme; health, sickness and accident insurance, amendments to the income tay laws to correct inequality of wealth distribution, minimum wages and maximum hours of work, and further legislation in the interests of farmers.

the house on Sourfand mountain was revealed for the first, time when Betty Gow, Scotch nurse, took the stand. She was the last person to see the child alive. In quick, staccato sentences she told how Colonel Lindbergh turned away from the empty nursery and looking into his wife's eyes said: "Anne, they've stolen cur baby."

Nurse Collapses. Sharp cross-examination which contained a hint that she was involved in the crime brought flashes of anger from the nursemaid. Most attempts on the part of the defense to pry into her private life were challenged by the prosecution and the court generally sustained the objection. She left the stand in a virtual collapse which at times caused her to sob hysterically.

Indentations in the earth beneath the window, evidently made by the All-Important Little Dinner Hats ladder used in the case, were described by the trooper. He also was the one who while searching the grounds found the discarded kidnap ladder sixty or seventy feet from the house. The stoical attitude of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused murderer, is that of an intensely interested spectator. This man whose arrest was the culmination of one of the longest searches in the annals of crime, watches proceedings of the trial with a detachment that is amazing. His impassive face tells nothing. He rarely stirs in court, rarely speaks. He might be simply one of the audience, for all the emotion he displays. He enters the courtroom as calmly as if he were paying a social call, instead of being on trial for his Identifies Prisoner. His composure was oroken, however, when he was identified by two witnesses as having to de with the case. Joseph Perrone, New York taxi-driver, testified that Hauptmann was the man who had given him a note to be delivered to Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie), intermediary in the negotiations with the kidnaper.

When Perrone stepped down from the witness stand, walked across the thirty feet that separated the witness chair from Hauptmann, and putting his hand on Hauptmann's shoulder. identified him as the man whose actions he had described, the prisoner gave his first sign of emotion.

"You're a liar." Hauptmann muttered in so low a tone that only those sitting close to him could hear. ... His identification as a man whom he had seen in an automobile near the Lindbergh home on the day of the kidnaping by Amandus Hochmuth, eightyseven-year-old Prussian army veteran, just previous to this, caused Hauptmann to only shake his head. The testimony of both Lindbergh and his wife had also failed to shake the com-ROM the supreme court of fashion posure of the accused man.

The hat and mult pictured are fash-loned of brown velvet with bandings of gold sequins. The little veil is stiffened just enough to impart sprightliness. Muff and hat sets of this type made up of maline and flowers are ideal for bridesmaid wear.

The toque sketched in the upper lefthand corner is styled of taffeta and maline. Order it in black or any color of your choice. The 'scalloped' edge about the large circular maline vetl is a new feature this season. This model in sweet pea colorings makes a ravishing headdress for the bride's attendants.

Sketched immediately below is the new wrap-around turban, a type which is very smart for the matron. Erect folds of maline spiral around and around like a winding staircase to the very pinnacle of the crown. A banding of jet sequins encircles the headline.

A youthful off-the-face hat is next shown. The maline shape has a molded turn-back cuff with a flange of maline on the crown to give it height. Recurring folds of taffeta with tiny bows of the same form the trimming.

The picturesquely veiled hat in the lower left corner features the very smart Marina coronet, the same formed of intricately braided folds of black velvet. The veil is a huge circle with a cut-out in the center which slips over ing little hat with a muff-of course, the crown and is then brought down under the chin in bridle effect.

Washington .- Now that the Presi- | lieve that Mr. Roosevelt followed the dent has laid before congress his re- advice of the Progressive Republican quest for the new group much more closely than leaders National more when the end of this government sidered that the present public debt exceeds $28,500,000,000, it becomes difficult to understand how the President will succeed in sticking to his original assertion to hold the national debt at the figure manuel.

The Treasury department has just released its annual report and this reveals an increase in the public debt of approximately six billion dollars since June 30, 1933, an eighteen months' recorf. It has made the total cost of the recovery spending program aggregate omething over twelve billion dollars since January 1, 1931, when the spending spree really began. To make the vast amount more readily compreensible, if you take the time to figure It out you will find that the government has been spending borrowed money at the rate of almost twentythree thousand dollars a minute in the last four years. To illustrate further the magnitude of this sum a figure expert here has calculated that there has een about one billion minutes since the birth of Christ and, therefore, the federal government in the last four years has added about twelve dollars to the public debt for each of the minutes since Christ came on earth, -

But to get back to the present plan, presentation of the budget with its maximum outlay of around seven billion dollars recalled to some leaders the assertion by the President respecting the topmost limit for the public debt. In the budget message which he presented just a year ago Mr. Roosevelt boldly stated his belief that "the government should seek to hold the public debt" to the figure of $31,834,-000,000.

"Furthermore," he added, "the government during the balance of this calendar year should plan to bring its 1936 expenditures including recovery and relief within the revenues expected in the fiscal year 1936." The fiscal year 1936 begins next July 1. And frequent pronouncements from the White House have made it clear that a balanced budget in that time is quite unlikely. In addition, the treasury said in its annual report that taxes always lagged behind in reflecting recovery of the country. For example, income taxes to be paid on March 15, 1936, and in the subsequent installments of that year will be the result a trade. There are a few northern Each of the remaining two hats of levies on earnings of the current work satin folds and maline together. calendar year. It is obvious, therefore, that the balancing of with the big beauty spot of black satin the budget in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935, becomes almost a physical impossibility unless the President should do the unexpected by cutting off every one of the sixty-five or more recovery and relief agencies and should cut off all federal funds for relief of the destitute. Organization of the new congress has resulted in a new cry, in reality a "South in very old cry, but it is new, since we have the Saddle" not heard it in fifteen years. The cry we are hearing now from Republicans and from northern Democrats is the wail that "the South is in the saddle."

While there certainly can be nothing criminal about the South being in the saddle, it provides a grand political issue both within the Democratic ranks and between "the Democratic party and what is left of the Republicans in congress, It also touches a question that has been discussed many times, namely, the wisdom of the seniority rule in congress. The seniority rule provides that the oldest members in the point of service shall inherit committee chairmanships and shall have other positions of honor in the house and senatel

Out of the 69 Democratic senators only 24 come from what is known as the solid South. Of the 317 Democrat-ic members of the house, only about 100 are thoroughly acquainted with the yell of the Confederacy. Yet in the face of this tremendous growth of Democratic membership coming out of the North and the-West, the South is in the saddle more solidly than ever.

The speakership of the house went to Representative Byrns of Tennessee, who succeeded to the place made vacant by the late Henry T. Rainey of Illinois. Mr. Byrns had been Democratic leader and his promotion left a vacancy to which Representative Will Bankhead of Alabama was elected. thus moving leadership further to the South. The only plum, if it be a plum, that went north of the Mason and Dixon line was the selection of Representative O'Connor of New York. as chairman of the rules committee. And his selection generally has been gossiped about as being the result of Democrats who succeeded to committee chairmanships under the seniority rule but the bulk of the northern and western Democrats are new to house membership and their names will be found near the tail end of committee lists. In the senate we see Vice President Garner, the presiding officer, a Texan. The majority leader is Senator Robinson of Arkansas. The powerful committee on finance is presided over by Harrison of Mississippi; the senate committee on banking and correlicy is controlled by Fletcher of Florida; and the committee on agriculture is headed by Smith of South Carolina. One could go on and mame many others although I believe, the consensus is that the seniority rule has not worked to produce as many duds for senate committee chairmanships as has occurred in the house. . . .

Condon vigorously denied any such part, declaring that his only purpose was "to get back Colonel Lindbergh's baby." Opposing counsel in this most interesting criminal case of modern times present a marked difference. David T. Wilentz, attorney general of New Jersey, who is directing the fight to send Hauptmann to the electric chair, is wiry, dapper, dark-eyed, olive skinned. He has not handled many criminal cases in his career and he has never before been prosecutor in a capital case. He has been thrust into a glare of publicity as brilliant as any lawyer could ask for, and appears calm and confident as to the final outcome of his efforts to convict the prisoner.

He has the support of five assistant attorney generals, of a former judge, George K. Large, and Anthony M. Hauck, Jr., present prosecutor of Hunterdon county.

In direct contrast to Wilentz is Edward Jay Reilly, chief of defense counsel. In his thirty years of practice he has tried, according to his own estimate, 2,000 murder cases, among them Bruno Hauptmann, German ex-carsome of the most spectacular acquitpenter, who is on trial on charges of tals ever recorded in New York. · · There had been frequent contentions by avid New Dealers that Mr. Roosevelt's second budget

tions in the history of this nation. Looking back over the whole Roose velt period, the thing which observers have never been able adequately to explain is who or what effected the change in the President's views on fundamental financial questions. It is too obvious to precipitate an argument that the President's views have changed. When one goes back to his first message to congress or beyond that to his campaign speeches and the platform upon which he made the race for the Presidency, it' is futile to attempt to reconcile those utterances with the subsequent spending and borrowing program in which his administration has indulged. It will be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt declared in his inaugural speech an intention to balance the budget and wipe out the deficit left on his lap by the Hoover administration. He went on to say that if congress in its generosity voted sums that placed the budget out of balance it was under the necessity at the same time to provide taxes to raise the excess expenditures.

Since there can be no dispute that Mr. Roosevelt's views have changed and he has acted in accordance with his new found principles, the interesting thing is who brought about the revision of views on the part of the President. Some of the, President's virulent critics have asserted in the opening days of congress that Mr. Roosevelt was wholly uninformed as to the needs with which he was confronted when he was making his campaign speeches. 'They say he found his original promise to be all wet and to discharge a committee from con-

Among the President's friends, I have heard private expressions that automatically will pass the house Mr. Roosevelt had been misled by some of the group who held his ear at the start of the administration. Democratic leaders in the house have made certain that they will not be embarrassed this year

Checking as they were in the Radicals first New Deal congress. In that session they were constantly harassed by the radicals who sought to force-votes on legislation which the President and his advisers did not want and which for the same reason the Democratic leaders did not want. The radicals accomplished their purposes by use of what is called the rule of discharge of committees. But that rule has been amended so that to invoke it now, actually a majority of the house will have to sign a petition.

Under the previous rule, the signature of 145 members of the house was sufficient to compel the discharge of a committee from consideration of any piece of legislation referred to it for action. The necessary number of signatures was obtained in three embarrassing cases last year. The soldiers' bonus bill was brought out by that method: the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage inflation bill was released for a house vote in the same manner.

The new house organization, however, is determined not to be embarrassed in that manner. It succeeded in Democratic caucus-binding on all Democrats-in having the original rule amended so that now there must be a majority of all house members affixing their signatures to the discharge petition before it becomes operative.

Since the house membership numbers 435, hereafter it will be necessary for 218-one-half a vote above the halfway mark-to sign a petition he took the only alternative to stave sideration of any bill in its charge. off a bitter row in his own party, It becomes readily obvious that when such a petition any bill upon which the application for discharge is filed when it is brought in for a vote.

Cummings defended the constitutional authority of the President and congress to adopt the present mone tary policy as inherently the right of the government to preserve itself.

In an argument distinguished for oratorical display as well as for its legal aspects, Cummings said an adverse decision by the court would:

1. Increase the public and private debt of the nation by $69,000,000,000. 2. Create a special class that would be beyond the pale of the general financial structure, a class composed of those holding bonds demanding payment in gold.

3. Reduce the balance in the United States treasury $2,500,000,000.

Add $17,000,000,000 to the public debt and increase the interest the estimated expenditures for the fischarge on this debt alone by $2,500,-000,000 a year.

This man whose arrest was the culmination of one of the longest searches in the annals of crime, watches proceedings of the trial with a detachment that is amazing. His impassive face tells nothing. He rarely stirs in court, rarely speaks. He might be simply one of the audience, for all the emotion he displays. When it is con-as being a situation in which the wind sidered that the present public debt | makes the straws point toward the soexceeds $28,500,600,000, it becomes difficult to understand how the President will succeed in sticking to his original assertion to hold the national debt at the figure mannet. The Treasury department has just released its annual report and this reveals an increase in the public debt of approximately six billion dollars since June 30, 1933, an eighteen months' record. It has made the total cost of the recovery spending program aggregate something over twelve billion dotlars since January 1, 1931, when the spendng spree really began. To make the amount more readily comprehensible, if you take the time to figure It out you will find that the govern ment has been spending berrowed money at the rate of almost twentythree thousand dollars a minute in the last four years. To illustrate further the magnitude of this sum a figure expert here has calculated that there has been about one billion minutes since the birth of Christ and, therefore, the federal government in the last four years has added about twelve dollars to the public debt for each of the minutes since Christ came on earth.

But to get back to the present plan, presentation of the budget with its maximum outlay of around seven billion dollars recalled to some leaders the assertion by the President respecting the topmost limit for the public debt. In the budget message which he presented just a year ago Mr. Roosevelt boldly stated his belief that "the government should seek to hold the public debt" to the figure of $31,834,-000.000.

"Furthermore," he added, "the gov ernment during the balance of this calendar year should plan to bring its 1936 expenditures including recovery and relief within the revenues expect ed in the fiscal year 1936." The fiscal year 1936 begins next July 1. And frequent pronouncements from the White House have made it ,clear that a balanced budget in that time is quite unlikely. In addition, the treasury said in its annual report that taxes always lagged behind in reflecting re covery of the country. For example, income taxes to be paid on March 15, 1936, and in the subsequent installments of that year will be the result of levies on earnings of the current vious, therefore, that the balancing of very old cry, but it is "South in new, since we have the Saddle" not heard it in fifteen years. The cry we are hearing now from Republicans and from northern Democrats is the wail that "the South is in the saddle."

While there certainly can be nothing criminal about the South being in the saddle, it provides a grand political issue both within the Democratic ranks and between the Democratic party and what is left of the Republicans. in ongress. It also touches a question that has been discussed many times, namely, the wisdom of the seniority rule in congress. The seniority rule provides that the oldest members in the point of service shall inherit committee chairmanships and shall have other positions of honor in the house and senate

Out of the 69 Democratic senators only 24 come from what is known as the solid South. Of the 317 Democratic members of the house, only about 100 are thoroughly acquainted with the yell of the Confederacy. Yet in the face of this tremendous growth of Democratic membership coming out of the North and the-West, the South is in the saddle more solidly than ever. The speakership of the house went to Representative Byrns of Tennessee, who succeeded to the place made vacant by the late Henry T. Rainey of Illinois. Mr. Byrns had been Democratic leader and his promotion left a vacancy to which Representative Will Bankhead of Alabama was elected. thus moving leadership further to the South. The only plum, if it be a plum, that went north of the Mason and Dixon line was the selection of Representative O'Connor of New York, as chairman of the rules committee. And his selection generally has been gossiped about as being the result of a trade. There are a few northern Democrats who succeeded to committee chairmanships under the seniority rule but the bulk of the northern and

Brimmed hats are still with us, but the brims are smaller and turned up in back, so as not to interfere with the sables and the silver fox.

There had been frequent contentions by avid New Dealers that Mr. Roose-velt's second budget

up one of the most paradoxical conditions in the history of this nation. Looking back over the whole Roose velt period, the thing which observers have never been able adequately to explain is who or what effected the change in the President's views on fundamental financial questions. It is too obvious to precipitate an argument that the President's views have changed. When one goes back to his first message to congress or beyond that to his campaign speeches and the platform upon which he made the race for the Presidency, it' is futile to attempt to reconcile those utterances with the subsequent spending and borrowing program in which his administration has indulged. It will be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt declared in his inaugural speech an intention to balance the budget and wipe out the deficit left on his lap by the Hoover administration. He went on to say that if congress in its generosity voted sums that placed the budget out of the same time to provide taxes to raise the excess expenditures. Since there can be no dispute that Mr. Roosevelt's views have changed and he has acted in accordance with in Democratic caucus-binding on all his new found principles, the interesting thing is who brought about the revision of views on the part of the President. Some of the, President's affixing their signatures to the disvirulent critics have asserted in the opening days of congress that Mr. Roosevelt was wholly uninformed as to the needs with which he was confronted when he was making his campaign speeches. 'They say he found his original promise to be all wet and to discharge a committee from conhe took the only alternative to stave off a bitter row in his own party, It becomes readily obvious that when offering much money for congress to a majority of the house has signed

Among the President's friends, I have heard private expressions that automatically will pass the house Mr. Roosevelt had been misled by some of the group who held his ear at the start of the administration. These a rule constitutes a thorough gag upon men referred to a number of the socalled Progressive Republicans like the party a control that exceeds even the LaFollettes, Norris, Hiram Johnson of California, and Bronson Cutting of Reed and the others who while they New Mexico. Several of these were so well liked by the President that for the iron hand with which they conthey were invited to enter his cabinet. trolled the lower house of congress. Consequently, there are those who bewestern Democrats are new to house membership and their names will be found near the tail end of committee lists.

In the senate we see Vice President Garner, the presiding officer, a Texan. The majority leader is Senator Rob-Inson of Arkansas. The powerful committee on finance is presided over by Harrison of Mississippi; the senate committee on banking and currency is controlled by Fletcher of Florida; and the committee on agriculture is headed by Smith of South Carolina. One could go on and mame many others although I believe the consensus is that the seniority rule has not worked to produce as many duds for senate committee chairmanships as has occurred in the house.

Democratic leaders in the house have. made certain that they will not be embarrassed this year Checking as they were in the Radicals first New Deal congress. In that session they were constantly harassed by the radicals who sought to force-votes on legislation which the President and his advisers did not want and which for the same reason the Democratic leaders did not want. The radicals accomplished their purposes by use of what is called the rule of discharge of committees. But that rule has been amended so that to invoke it now, actually a majority of the house will have to sign a petition.

Under the previous rule, the signature of 145 members of the house was sufficient to compel the discharge of a committee from consideration of any piece of legislation referred to it for action. The necessary number of signatures was obtained in three embarrassing cases last year. The soldiers' bonus bill was brought out by that method; the Frazier-Lemke farm mortbalance it was under the necessity at gage inflation bill was released for a house vote in the same manner.

The new house organization, however, is determined not to be embarrassed in that manner. It succeeded Democrats-in having the original rule amended so that now there must be a majority of all house members charge petition before it becomes operative.

world-famous Public Museum in the historical sect on-where we halted last week-and inspect Gottlieb Schneider's "Horseless Carriage," the first self propelled passenger vehicle, operated successfully on Milwaukee's streets in 1890. Here are also specimens of early implements and commodities which merit close inspection. We now enter the hall containing the Nunnemacher collection of ancient and modern fire arms-said to be the finest in the world -containing an almost inumerable array of pistols, revolvers and shoulder arms, from the bow-gun of the middle ages to flintlocks, Arat guns, and modern single and repeating breech-loaders, automatics and machine guns; also a very fine collection of medieval armor shields, swords and spears. In the annex we find an interesting collection of early pianos, melodeons and reedorgans: an 18th century pharmacy and a collection of typewriters including some of the first consignment of 1,100 manufactured in Milwaukee by Sholes & Glidden-investors and pioneer promotors of this modern business necess ity. The annex also contains a replica of a Chinese temple; also Oriental textile, needlecraft, soulpture and mummy case exhibits. In the African sectionon the second floor-are case exhibits pomp and ceremony of Washington's of life-like lay-figures groups, retre- day was not in keeping with the demosenting the home-life, religious ceremonies and festivities of the far east, which will prove of expecial interest break a precedent, more than a century to students of the history and develop-

Reports of the doings of the legislators at the Seat of Government by Congressman M. K. Reilly

For the second time since his election to the high office of President, Mr, Roosevelt appeared before a joint sea sion of Congress and read his annual message.

George Washington established the practice of reading in person his messages to Congress. This practice was followed by John Adams, Washington's immediate successor, and was abandoned by Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, who adopted the method of sending his messages to Congress by special messenger to be read to the Houses by the respective clerks. Jeffeison's plan for communicating his Presidential views to Congress was followed by all of his successors down to Woodrow Wilson who abandoned the Jefferson method and adopted the method pursued by George Washington

Woodrow Wilson read his first message to a joint session of Congress on April 8th, 1913, and followed that plan in all of his major communications to the Congress of the United States.

When George Washington and John Adams read their messages to the joint sessions of Congress, there was a great deal of pomp and ceremony attending such occasions. When Woodrow Wilson expressed a desire to appear in person before both houses for the purpose of reading his own messages, there was quite a discussion in the United States Senate as to whether or not such a proceeding would be contrary to the long-established traditions as to how the President should communicate with the Congress. It was thought that the cratic traditions of a modern day. You see, President Wilson was going to old, the precedent of messages being read by clerks of each house to their respective houses.

Well, when it was understood that there would be no pomp and ceremony about the appearance of President Wilson before the joint session of Congress tribes. From here we pass into the or- for the purpose of communicating his views on the welfare of the nation a nearly every known specie of bird-life, tion to the plan ceased. President Harding read his second annual message to a joint session of both houses. Fresident Coolidge addressed one joint session of Congress while President Hoover never appeared before a joint session of the House and Senate, but did appear and deliver a special message to the Senate. The fact is, that the successors of President Wilson down to Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the most part, returned to the old practice of sending their messages to the Capitol by special messengers to be read by the reading clerks of the Senate and the House.

Speaker Byrns is doing very well as the new presiding officer of the House. Mr. Byrns comes from the fifth Congressional district of Tennessee, the city of Nashville in that district being his home town. It might be of interest to my readers ;o know that one hundred years ago, but a few months later in December, 1835, another distinguished Tennesseean, James K. Polk, afterwards President of the United States, was elected Speaker of the House of Representative:

Mr. Polk came from the same district and the same city that Jo Byrns represents in the House and it is also worthy of note that the district known as the fifth district was the Congressional home of Andrew Jackson also a distinguished A nerican, who at one time represented the same district and the same city in the House of Representatives

As Virginia and Ohio have taken the limelight as states famous for the makers of Presidents of this country, so certain states in the union have the lead as the makers of Speakers of the House. Of the forty-eight states in the ed by having one of their sons elected Speaker of the House of Representatives. The three great states of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin are still to be thus honored. Massachusetts leads the list of states whose sons have been Speakers of the House with five. Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and Virginia each claim four Speakers of the House. Then comes New York, Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio with three Speakers to their credit.

The President's message received a very favorable reaction from the country at large as would appear from editorial comments of the press and also from comments of members of the Senate and the House. The President in his message took a middle course between the two extremes of uncontrolled radicalism on the left and immovable, so to speak conservatism on the right. The message did not satisfy the extreme radicals or the extreme conservatives, but it would appear from the comments on the message that it was satisfactory to the great mass of Typical of Chevrolet's two new lines of cars are the models illustrated here. The Master De Luxe series reveals strong emphasis on beauty and style. Mechanic ally, the Master De Luxe series and the New Standard series have much in common, including the Master engine, in which numerous refinements have b made to enhance performance, durability and economy As these pictures reveal, the New Master De Luxe departs distinctly from previous Chevrolet the striking advance which has been made in body design and trim.

the American people who can be politically placed between these two extremes. The President in his message lays out for his administration to travel on what might be called a liberal, conservative legislative highway. He is against the abolition of our profit system. He's in favor of retaining as much of the initiative and individualism, which has made our country what it ice is, as is consistent with the welfare of the masses of the people. While the President's message contained statements against which the forces of opposition might contend, and while the message did not cover in detail all of the vital problems before the country and Congress at the present time, the message did have a solidifying effect on the members of both houses of Congress who are supporting the President's program for bringing pros perity back to our country.
