WOLTING TAKES TRIP TO FLORIDA
Melvin Gamm and Elmo Rosenheim of Jackson, Arnold Nimmer of the same corporation and Dr. E. Nolting of this village left last Friday for Miami, Florida, where they intend to spend a vacation of two weeks or more. Their return trip they plan to visit Washington, D. C. and other eastern points of interest.

BOLTONVILLE HAS NEW STORE
Miss Marguerite Weingartner of Boltonville has opened a grocery store in the village of Boltonville. The store is an up-to-date store and is now open for business. The store held a three day sale last Friday and Saturday and was well patronized. Miss Weingartner is a prominent young lady and her store gives people of Boltonville and vicinity an excellent opportunity to purchase the goods they need in their home town.

GRAND DANCE AT THE KEWASKUM OPERA HOUSE
Al Naumann, manager of the Kewaskum Opera House, will hold another popular dance at his hall on Friday evening, Feb. 22. This will be the first dance held by him before Lent. He has engaged the services of Frank J. Schenck and His Oshkosh Cowboys to furnish the music, and this alone guarantees you a good time. Everyone is cordially invited.

POST OFFICE CLOSED FRIDAY
The Kewaskum post office will be closed on Friday, February 22nd. The office will remain open all day and night and get your mail as usual. Frank Heppie, Postmaster.

FINAL PLANS MADE FOR OLD SETTLERS

All plans have been completed and the program prepared for the diamond jubilee meeting of the Washington County Old Settlers' club at the Masonic temple at West Bend on the anniversary of George Washington's birth, Friday, Feb. 22. The plans and program as they now appear show that the officers and the executive committee of the Old Settlers' organization have worked hard and wisely and well to make this year's meeting of the club the most outstanding in its history. The real success of the meeting now lies in a goodly representation at it, and all indications are that a good turnout may be expected.

The diamond jubilee of the Washington County Old Settlers' club will offer many opportunities of enjoyment that can be found at no other gathering. For instance, there are the reminiscences of "ye olden days," the do-you-remember-when experiences, the delight in renewing old acquaintances—"Well, there is Mary Brown and John Smith, too. It is just years since I saw you."

That spirit should not be allowed to die out. The only institution that can keep it alive is an annual meeting that includes all the people of the county, and the Old Settlers' association is just such an organization. The club has had an annual meeting every year since 1875, and this year's meeting should be the most enthusiastic of any held in recent years. That it will be is indicated in the reports made by those who have charge of the program features, Miss Henrietta Gould of Hartford High school and Miss Marguerite Hoyer of West Bend High school are both working hard with one-act plays, and they promise those who attend the meeting 45 minutes of excellent and interesting entertainment.

In addition, the museum committee, consisting of the Misses Geitruide Forrester and Clara Jones and Mrs. Charlotte Muth, reports very favorably on the number of valuable and historic entries which will be exhibited that day. The museum will be open to the general public for a half hour from 3:30 to 4 p. m.

These committees have at all times been ably seconded in their work by the officers and the executive committee of the club. The officers are H. F. Schroeder, town of Trenton, president; Mrs. John Christnacht, town of Addison, vice president; M. T. Buckley, West Bend, secretary, and Ernst Franckenberg, West Bend, treasurer.

The executive committee consists of M. W. Monroe and Thomas Manning, town of Erin; Frank Salter, town of Germantown; Robert Laubenheimer, Richfield; Atty. Harry Schuck, Slinger; E. L. Rosenheim, Jackson village; Hugo Reis, town of Poik; Frank Schwalbach, Germantown village; Mrs. Joseph Weninger, town of Addison; George Herman and John Meyer, town of Wayne; Mrs. George Beck, town of Trenton; William Grubbe and Mrs. Ben. Wierman, town of Farmington; Mrs. Belle Albright, town of Barton; Anthony Otten, Barton village; Alfred Seefeldt, town of Kewaskum; Newton Rosenheimer, Kewaskum village; Miss Catherine Weninger, town of Hartford; Paul Bartelt, town of Jackson; Guido Schroeder, Paul Horlamus, and John M. Peters, town of West Bend; Atty. E. W. Sawyer, W. L. Kiesel, Mrs. E. T. Monroe, Armin Huser, and Miss Mary Martin, Hartford city, and Judge F. W. Bucklin, B. C. Ziegler, Atty. John A. Cannon, Mrs. Thos. O'Meara, Dr. William Hausmann Sr., and Mrs. Florence Thomas, West Bend.

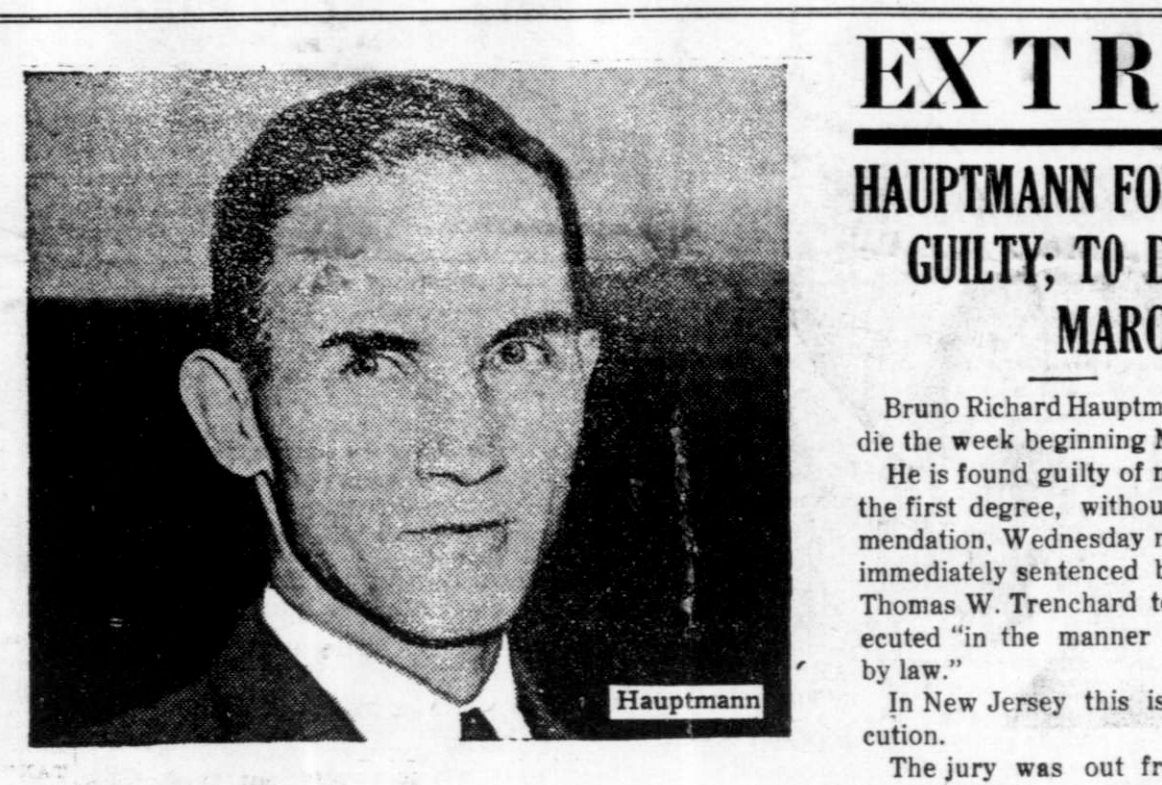

The reputation that the Dorcas society of Trinity English Lutheran church, West Bend, has in preparing delicious dinners will reach its climax at this meeting of the Old Settlers' club. Mrs. C. I. Nielson and Mrs. Seth Meyer, acting as co-chairwomen of the society, are preparing a menu that will satisfy the most distinctive critic in that line. Through the co-operation of the Rev. Edward Stehling, pastor of the Holy Angels' church, West Bend, a special dispensation for abstinence for Catholics who wish to attend the dinner has been obtained from Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, Milwaukee.

M. T. Buckley, club secretary, announces that those who have received tickets for the banquet should please send their remittances to him at once in order that he may give a guarantee of the number to be present to the Dorcas society by next week Monday, Feb. 18. Checks should be made out to Ernest Franckenberg, treasurer of the club. Following is the complete program: Reception—11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. Dinner—12:30 p. m. to 1:45 p. m. Business Meetings—1:45 p. m. to 2:15 p. m. Entertainment—2:15 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. Opening of Museum to Public—2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m. Following is the cast of characters and other incidents pertaining to the play to be presented by students of West Bend High school:

SALVATION ARMY ANNUAL APPEAL

Under the same live-wire leadership of Mrs. E. L. Morgenroth, put over the Salvation Army Annual Appeal in Kewaskum with such good results last year, the appeal will be launched next week. Last year the fund, while it did not quite reach its quota, made a high showing among the smaller towns in Washington county, when $47.86 was raised. The committee who will aid Mrs. Morgenroth is largely the same as last year and they hope with your aid to even surpass last year's record, and will try hard for the quota. Kewaskum has shown a fine record right thru the depression years, consistently hitting good figures in its appeals. Those who will make the "navas" are: Mesdames O. E. Lay, Newton Rosenheimer, Lehman Rosenheimer, Lulu Davies, and William Guenther.

The quota on the 10c per capita given every town in the state is $50.00, and the dates of the appeal are Feb. 18-23. The money raised is for the care of unfortunates who come from Washington county, and are given aid in the Salvation Army Homes and Hospitals, and not for strangers as is thought. ONLY ONCE A YEAR the Salvation Army makes this appeal to repay them for the expense it has cost them to care for your unfortunates. THEY DO NOT SEND OUT OFFICERS, MEN OR WOMEN, IN UNIFORM, COLLECTING IN TAMBOURINES. Imposters in uniforms similar to the Salvation Army, and even with names very much similar have been out in EVERY COUNTY OF THE STATE, collecting in the name of the Salvation Army. If you have given to them thinking you were supporting the Salvation Army you have wasted your money, and are depriving the Salvation Army of the very money they need to care for YOUR UNFORTUNATES. Stop giving to tambourine collectors if you want to play safe, and know where your money goes. Thousands have been fleeced in this way. Give only to your local committee, whom you know turns it in to your Appeal Treasurer, Mr. Maurice Rosenheimer at the Bank of Kewaskum, who sends it to Salvation Army Headquarters in Milwaukee, and NO STRANGER HAS A HAND IN THE COLLECTING. Then it will care for YOUR OWN UNFORTUNATES.

In the last 9 years Washington county ALONE has had $3500 worth of service in the Salvation Army Maternity Home and Hospital; 14 unmarried were cared for from 3 to 5 months, at a cost of $250 each case. These girls are loved, and respected, trained in scientific motherhood, and even followed up and helped after leaving the Home. In its Prison Work, the Salvation Army is saving the taxpayers thousands of dollars by cleaning up delinquency. It has from 200-300 conversions in the prisons of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan each year. THE AVERAGE CRIMINAL COSTS THE TAXPAYERS $1000 EACH TO SUPPORT. The Salvation Army secures its Converts employment, when they couldn't get a position themselves, and helps them back to respectability, and self-support saving the taxpayers a big expense. In the last two years the Salvation Army has had 50 criminals paroled to its officers, relieving us of that expense. These are only two of the 16 departments thru which it aids unfortunates.

The Salvation Army is facing a crisis to keep its homes open, and it asks EVERYONE who can possibly do so to give as generously as possible, knowing it will go to the care of unfortunates from Washington county. GIVE 'TILL IT HURTS HELP MAKE THE QUOTA.

The undersigned desire to express their heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly assisted them at the illness and at the death of their beloved father, Henry Hafemann, to Rev. Walter Stroschein for his words of consolation; to the pallbearers and for the floral bouquets; those who furnished cars at the funeral; to the funeral directors, Leifer & Hintz and to all who showed their respect for the departed one by attending the last sad rites.

KEWASKUM'S WINNING STREAK HALTED

After winning five straight league games the Kewaskum team had a very disastrous week-end, losing two games. Being in a slump last Friday evening, and the Hartford team playing head-up basketball, the team lost to that organization by a score of 22 to 20. On Sunday night, in a very tight ball game Grafton topped Kewaskum 22 to 20.

Again playing on their jinx floor at Hartford last Friday, Kewaskum just couldn't handle their opponents' fast-breaking offense. A large number of Hartford baskets were made by wide-open shots directly beneath the basket. Kewaskum's failure to get rebounds under their own basket was another big factor in the defeat. The superior playing of Barney Basler, supported by Bob Monroe, put the game on ice for the home team. It was extremely difficult to keep this team from shooting, which is proved by the fact that only one (1) of Hartford's baskets was made on a two-handed shot—the rest were made on one-handed elings. Kewaskum took the defeat like men and have no alibis to offer.

On Sunday night the locals took another defeat at Grafton. This game might just as well have been won had the ball made up its mind to roll into the hoop instead of over the hoop. Kewaskum built up a nice lead in the first quarter and held it until almost the half when Grafton made a couple of baskets in quick succession to bring the score up to 8 to 8 at halftime. This score shows what sparkling defensive ball the teams played. In the second half, Grafton took the lead and held it for the remainder of the game. The opponents possessed a nice lead going into the closing minutes of the game when Kewaskum put on a furious rally which brought them within two points of a tie score before the gun went off. We feel sure that the locals would have won had the game gone just one minute longer, as they were hot and were going through Grafton like bullets. In the preliminary to this game the Mueller Furnitures of Grafton defeated the Kewaskum second team 32 to 20.

This coming Sunday evening, Feb. 17, Kewaskum will play its last home game of the season in the Land O' Lakes league when the last-place Slinger team comes to town. It's your last chance to see the home boys play a league game in the local gym. A number of you fans in this vicinity, who have not seen the team perform, have been wanting to see the team play but just didn't get to it. Well, give everything else up and take advantage of this last home game. Kewaskum has won seven games and lost six to remain in third place in the league. The team has one more out-of-town game to play at Port Washington.

Following are the box scores of the games:

Germany Studies Anglo-French Peace Proposals—Labor Rebuked by Roosevelt for Objections to the Auto Code—Governor Moodie Ousted From Office.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

CONTINENTAL chancelleries turned their attention toward a new plan designed to restore Germany to complete equality among European nations and to strengthen the shaky foundations of peace, as conversations ended between Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

Germany will be offered a promise of repeal of the military clauses of the treaty of Versailles in return for re-entering the League of Nations. Such a concession would seem a victory for Hitler's campaign to restore Germany to its place as a sovereign power in Europe.

Another proposal arising from the negotiations greatly aids France's campaign for security. Regional defense pacts to provide the nations participating with reciprocal assistance in repelling an unprovoked air attack are part of the plan. France and Great Britain are willing to enter into such a series of pacts, and suggest that other European nations be invited to join.

This signifies that either nation must rush planes to the aid of the other in the event of attack from the air. The pact will undoubtedly be concluded between Great Britain and France, no matter what action the other nations take, although no formal announcement has been made.

Some European diplomats are not at all certain that Germany and Poland can be persuaded to change the unrepentant attitude they have so far manifested toward suggestions for their participation in an "eastern Locarno." Germany may be so strongly rearmied by this time that she will not be concerned whether her armaments are legalized.

This, however, is only speculation. Dispatches from Germany have indicated the reich's willingness to engage in any conversations proposed by the Franco-British formula, but she must first be assured of complete equality of status.

SENATOR LONG reopened the hearing concerning the "murder plot" which he says was formed to do away with him, and produced some remarkable testimony. George Davis, a former deputy sheriff of East Baton Rouge parish, swore that he and Fred Parker, another former deputy, hatched the plot and made several attempts to shoot the Kingfish with rifles, falling because they were always too closely watched by Huey's guards.

Parker refused to answer questions on constitutional grounds, as did Fred O'Rourke, whom the senator called the chief agent of the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana in the recent armed revolt against his dictatorship. Probably because he wanted to hurry back to Washington, the senator then postponed the hearing indefinitely.

SENATOR BORAH of Idaho, always sternly opposed to action that might lead the United States into foreign entanglements, has surprisingly come forward with a demand that congress investigate the alleged religious persecutions in Mexico and persuade our neighbors to the south to cease them. The excuse for such proposed meddling is that some citizens of the United States may be among the "victims." Through its representatives in Washington the Mexican government calmly denies there is any religious persecution down there, and says all who obey the laws are permitted to worship as they please.

After less than a month in office Gov. Thomas H. Moodie was ousted by the North Dakota Supreme court. The court held Moodie ineligible on the ground that he had voted, and thereby established residence, in Minnesota in 1920. The constitutional provision requires candidates for governor to have lived in the state five consecutive years before election. His successor, Lieut. Gov. Walter H. Welford, will be the fourth governor in seven months. Last June the State Supreme court ordered the removal of William Langer, who had just been convicted of conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers.

During his brief term in office, Moodie was in difficulties with the legislature, the lower house being controlled by the Nonpartisan party which was hostile to Moodie, who was the second Democrat ever to win the office.

WILLIAM MAC CRACKEN, former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, will spend ten days in jail, the Supreme court decreed, thus settling the right of the senate to punish for contempt. MacCracken was sentenced to jail by the senate when he failed to produce data requested by the senate air mail investigating committee. The District of Columbia Supreme court held the senate acted within its power, but the District Court of Appeals sided with MacCracken.

ORGANIZED labor in America now gives its full support to the international labor organization in Geneva. It was officially announced in the Swiss city that President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, will be the American member of the body. Leon Jouhaux, French labor leader, in a speech at Geneva, expressed the joy of labor representatives of all countries at the co-operation of American labor.

ACTING with startling rapidity, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration ousted a group of radical New Dealers, which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said was "for the good of the service." Jerome N. Frank, Lee Pressman and Frank Shea and Gardner Jackson all tendered their resignations. The final fate of Fred C. Howe, Victor Rotman and Alger Hiss still remain in doubt.

The bloodless purge of the group, known as favored proteges of Rexford G. Tugwell, was unexpected. Evident signals were confused, because President Roosevelt in his press conference stated that he was uninformed of any such action, but later in the day, Secretary Wallace said the President was aware of the action before it was announced.

Wallace added, however, that Tugwell, who is in Florida, had not been consulted. It may be remembered that Tugwell's fight for Frank resulted in the discharge of George N. Peek as AAA administrator, and it was felt by some that it was to avoid possible trouble with Tugwell that he was not informed of the plan.

Agricultural Administrator Davis informed newspaper men that the order was necessary to preserve harmony. "There was mounting difficulty in getting things done," said Administrator Davis. "We believed things would function more smoothly if they were directed by men familiar with farm problems and having a farm background."

Wallace was asked if this statement applied to Tugwell. He hastily replied that Tugwell had an excellent farm background which may be a distinct surprise to many.

THE first special federal grand jury to be called at Washington since the Teapot Dome oil scandals more than ten years ago, began investigation of the public works scandal involving an alleged conspiracy to use 200 miles of California redwood pipe in a Texas irrigation project that originally called for no pipe at all.

PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes instituted the grand jury action. The plot centers around the $4,833,000 Wilcoy county (Texas) water control program to irrigate citrus orchards. Ickes claims the money was promised by PWA on the understanding that the Wilcoy project would be a gravity system requiring no pipe, and that after the papers were signed by PWA the plans were mysteriously altered to make it a pressure system and to use 200 miles of redwood pipe. According to the evidence to be placed before the jury, PWA officials and engineers, Texas politicians and lumbermen were parties to the conspiracy.

When the Wilcoy county matter has been sifted, the jury may investigate reported irregularities in other PWA projects, and may also start a new investigation of War department contracts.

SPEEDY police action was necessary to avert new bloodshed in Paris on the anniversary of the uprising caused by popular indignation over the Stavinsky scandal disclosures. Thousands of arrests were made as Communists sought to arouse the public to a repetition of the riots of a year ago, when 19 were killed in the Place de la Concorde. Police gave the Reds no chance to carry out their intended maneuvers. The most harmless looking individuals were escorted a few blocks and let go with farewell kicks, while those found carrying weapons were rushed into improvised concentration camps. Premier Flandin was hissed and booed by many free-thinking Nationalists as he attended memorial services in Notre Dame cathedral.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES FARLEY will either have to resign his job as head of the Post Office department, or give up the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee if Senator Norris, Nebraska, succeeds in putting through a bill he introduced in the senate.

Norris would take the post office from Farley down out of partisan politics. The postmaster general would be appointed for ten years, and the present system whereby congressmen have an important voice in the appointment of postmasters would be abolished. All employees would be selected for "merit and efficiency" only. The chance of ever putting such a measure through congress are more than problematical. While Norris asserts that "congressmen ought to be tickled to death to be rid of the job," it is hardly likely that very many congressmen will be anxious to give up the "task" of handing out such political plums as rewards to the "faithful."

The administration moved hastily to introduce a counter bill which would provide that all postmasterships would be brought under civil service, and which would ban political appointments and open most of the jobs only to career employees in the postal service. The measure was introduced by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, and was said to have the approval of both the President and Farley.

Only civil service employees of the postal system who have served in supervisory capacities or as post office inspectors, postmasters of first-class offices who have had at least four years of actual experience, or executives "of broad experience in private life" would constitute the class from which postmasters would be selected for offices having gross receipts of $1,000,000 or more.

In all first-class post offices having annual receipts of less than $1,000,000, and in all second-class post offices, vacancies would be filled by the promotion or transfer of qualified employees in the postal service. No person could be designated to serve as acting postmaster for more than six months without the express approval of the civil service commission. No incumbent postmaster could be reappointed without examination. Beginning in 1938, postmasters would be appointed for life instead of four-year terms.

All Around WISCONSIN

Milwaukee—Thirteen persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Milwaukee since Jan. 1, records of the coroner's office show.

Berlin—Henry L. Marsh, 90, one of the last of Berlin's Civil war veterans, died here. Funeral services were conducted by the American Legion.

Hartford—Two men, one armed with a shotgun and the other with a revolver, held up a filling station on highway 60 three miles east of here, and escaped with $23.

Lake Mills—Work on preparing the Dairy powdered milk plant here for the manufacture of powdered milk has begun. It is expected that the equipment will be installed by spring.

Madison—John J. Boyle, Darlington, was named by President Roosevelt to succeed Stanley M. Ryan as United States attorney for the western district of Wisconsin for a four year term, subject to approval of the United States senate.

Madison—With seed supplies short and prices high, farmers are warned against buying poor quality seeds because they are cheap, by A. L. Stone, director of the seed and weed control laboratory of the department of agriculture and markets.

Milwaukee—The Home Owners Loan Corporation in Wisconsin will resume immediately granting of loans to mortgagors who filed applications prior to Nov. 13 when activities were suspended. R. Mc. Quillan, Antigo, head of the Wisconsin unit, announced.

Monroe—Patrick Grime, 21, of Rio, salesman for a Wisconsin farm paper, is in court; jail under a 60-day jail sentence given him in county court on his plea of guilty to charges by several farmers that Grime had taken cash subscription with promises of an insurance policy included but never produced the policy.

Sparta—While she was trying to open a knot in a shoe lace with a table fork, the utensil slipped and one of the tines punctured the pupil of the right eye of Virginia, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pihl, Norwalk. Although some of the fluid ran out of the eye, the sight has not as yet been affected to any great extent, a hospital specialist said.

Madison—The assembly voted down the senate approved resolution for a legislative investigation of communism at the University of Wisconsin and other state colleges. The vote was 58 to 34. The investigation, which was to include "atheism, agnosticism and other perverse activities," as well as the acceptance of gifts, in its scope, was defeated largely by progressive votes.

Madison—Constitutionality of the Wisconsin law against sale of contraceptive devices was upheld by the Wisconsin supreme court. A decision by Justice John Wickham sustained the conviction of Edward Arnold, Milwaukee filling station proprietor, who was fined $100 in the lower court for the sale of contraceptive devices by slot machines in the washroom of his filling station.

Wausau—The Marathon County Bar association passed a resolution petitioning congress to establish a term of federal court in Wausau because of its location and accessibility to several central and northern counties which are far removed from cities where court is now held. Wausau is also the home of Patrick T. Stone, judge of the western district of Wisconsin.

Green Bay—Except for morals charges against a dismissed parole officer, the state board of control investigation of the reformatory here has failed to disclose serious irregularities. Mrs. Katherine Sullivan, Kaukauna, a member of the board, said. Most inmates were satisfied with food served at the institution but there were some complaints of tainted meat, she said. She blamed poor refrigeration for the tainted meat.

Madison—A tax of 25 cents per head on the 2,212,000 dairy cows in Wisconsin to raise money for an advertising campaign to stimulate consumption of dairy products was advocated by Chairman Charles Hill of the state department of agriculture and markets, at a symposium on dairy problems at the university's farm and home week program. The head tax, he said, is preferable to the check-off system on fluid milk sales to dairies and condensaries, a plan which he proposed recently. The tax would raise about $53,000 and would be applied only to herds of more than one cow, he said.

Madison—The suit of Claude & Starck, Madison architectural firm, against Solomon Levitan, former state treasurer, and the Imnell Construction Co., Fond du Lac, for $926.30 was settled for $375 by a stipulation filed in Dane county circuit court. It involved building plans.

Madison—Richland county grain growers, competing with those from 26 other counties, were awarded first honors at the 34th annual state grain show held here with the Wisconsin farm and home week.

Monticello—For $5,000 the village of Monticello, through its utility commission, has closed negotiations to buy the Wisconsin Power & Light Co. building and the Lake Staedler property here. According to the terms, $1,000 a year will be paid for five years without interest.

Milwaukee—The bureau of internal revenue at Washington disclosed that during 1934 federal tax refunds in excess of $1,000 were made to 48 individuals, firms and estates in the Wisconsin district.

Madison—A general increase of one cent to nine cents per quart in Fox River valley retail milk prices and higher returns for producers were ordered by the state department of agriculture.

Rhineland—Unable to escape hallucinations of a mob chasing him with machine guns, Elmer Peterson, 52, inmate of a state transient home, begged admission to Craudon jail and handed himself.

Oconto Falls—Village Marshal Herman Arndt of Gillett is suffering from a bullet wound from his own gun. He had stooped over and the revolver fell out of his pocket onto a cement floor, firing the weapon.

Madison—Prof. William G. Rice, Jr. of the University of Wisconsin law school, who has been named labor commissioner to represent the United States at Geneva, Switzerland, will sail from New York Feb. 27 to assume his new duties.

Madison—The first sales tax proposal to reach the 1935 Wisconsin legislature was introduced by title only by Assemblyman Bernard B. Kroenke, Democrat, Milwaukee. It would replace the present system of taxation of real and personal property.

Elkhorn—Edward (Father Tom) McFadden, former member of the Touhy gang of Chicago, escaped a prison sentence by paying a $500 fine in county court here. The fine was imposed January 28 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Oconomowoc—Five-year-old Harold Watterson and his four-year-old sister, Marjorie, were swept to their deaths in the Oconomowoc river when their sled crashed through the ice. The two children had been playing on the river bank at the rear of their home here.

Fau Claire—Two new departments of Sacred Heart hospital, established through generosity of Mrs. Mary E. Dulany, were opened to inspection here. They are the children's department and the maternity department. Both are fitted with the most modern equipment.

Milwaukee—Liquor drinking has decreased noticeably at county fairs since the advent of legalized beer. Ralph E. Ammon, manager of the Wisconsin State fair, told members of the Wisconsin Association of Fairs, in convention here. Formerly, Ammon said, a fair manager could pick up several barrels of empty whisky bottles after a fair. Last summer "a record find was half a bushel," he said.

Sturgeon Bay—Unanimous favor for a proposed federal marketing agreement for the pitted red cherry industry was voiced here by independent and co-operative canners and growers at a hearing called by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Not one of the nearly 150 persons present in favor of the agreement but also in favor of licensing canners to make the agreement effective.

Madison—Legislation to compensate former Gov. Albert G. Schmedeman for loss of his left leg during his administration was introduced in the legislature. Sen. William D. Carroll, democrat, Prairie du Chien, offered the bill designed to give the former governor workmen's compensation benefits estimated from $8,000 to $10,000. The exact amount would be fixed by the state industrial commission.

Juneau—The state conservation commission is seeking a grant of $300,000 from the federal government for the purpose of making improvements in Horicon marsh and paying farmers whose lands form part of the marsh. It was revealed by Adjutant Ralph Immel, a member of the commission, who was here to aid in efforts to satisfy four farmers who own land in the south end of the marsh.

Monroe—A $17,613.86 WERA water main and city water plant improvement project opened here with 20 men starting work on a five-block water main extension. The plans call for 51 men on projects including the connection of various water mains to eliminate and improve "dead ends," renovation of the city water works plant, installation of new hydrants and the building of 14 manholes for main repair work.

Madison—Six communicable diseases noted epidemic tendencies caused more sickness in Wisconsin in 1934 than during any of the last six years, the state board of health announced. Measles was the most serious, with 42,819 cases reported in 1934, compared with the annual six-year average of 18,526 cases. Chickenpox was next with 18,768 cases, 4,521 cases more than the six-year average. Other diseases showing increased prevalence were whooping cough, 14,200 cases, up 2,944; scarlet fever, 11,617, up more than 5,800; rubella, 8,449 cases, up 7,634; and smallpox, 963 cases, up 375.

Oconto—The federal government will allot $400,000 to the Nicolet forest area in northern Wisconsin for reforestation. Eldred Klausner, Oconto commissioner on national forest relations, informed the county board. The money will be used to employ 2,500 men for 16 months. The Oconto area of the forest will receive about one-fourth of the total.

Madison—The Dane county tavern keepers' association voted unanimously to defy the recent state code order fixing prices for beer by the glass.

Fond du Lac—Families on relief in Fond du Lac and the area served by the F. E. R. A. meat cutting plant here may have an opportunity to eat rabbit meat. If tentative plans being developed in co-operation with the federal forestry department and its campaign against snowshoe rabbits prove feasible.

Waterford—Two hold-up men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun and one with an automatic pistol, held up and robbed Ed Stalbaum, proprietor of a filling station here, of $40.

"ORDERS IS ORDERS"
Murphy, a new cavalry recruit, was given one of the worst horses in the troop.
"Remember," said the instructor, "no one is allowed to dismount without orders."
The horse bucked and Murphy went over his head.
"Murphy," yelled the instructor, "did you have orders to dismount?"
"I did."
"From headquarters?"
"No; from hindquarters."

OLD AGE PENSION INFORMATION
JUDGE LEHMAN, HUMBOLDT, KAN.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Representative Fish, a one of the younger members of the New York Republican, has renewed his fight against the radicals who he charges with having bored into positions of influence in the New York State government.

Mr. Fish described Mr. Marshall as one of the younger members of the brain trust and asserted that "most of the members" of the brain trust are or have been active in the American civil liberties union.

The representative cited among those in the brain trust who, he said were active in the civil liberties union the following: Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture; Donald R. Richberg, director of the National Emergency council and the so-called No. 2 man in the administration; Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation corps; Prof. Paul H. Douglas, of the National Recovery administration; Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment administration; Nathan R. Margold, of the Interior department; James M. Landis, a member of the Federal Securities and Exchange commission and a former member of the federal trade commission; and John A. Lapp, described as an impartial Presidential representative in the National Recovery administration.

Mr. Fish declared that Gardner Jackson had made eight separate contributions to the alleged communistic organization and he asserted that Doctor Howe formerly had represented the Federated Press as a correspondent.

After some 12 years of consideration, the senate has refused to approve American membership in the World Court. In rejecting the President's request for ratification of American adherence to that court the upper house of congress gave the administration its first important setback.

First Big Setback
After some 12 years of consideration, the senate has refused to approve American membership in the World Court. In rejecting the President's request for ratification of American adherence to that court the upper house of congress gave the administration its first important setback.

Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of railroads, has proposed to congress a new plan for control of the whole structure of transportation in this country. With the approval of the President, Mr. Eastman has offered bills for federal regulation of motor buses and trucks, for the reorganization of the Interstate Commerce commission and establishment of a federal co-ordinator of transportation as a permanent office, compensation for dismissed railroad employees displaced through co-ordination of operation, a revision of the bankruptcy act relating to railroads, provision for the commission to prescribe minimum as well as maximum joint rail and water rates, provision for elimination of alleged benefits or prejudice as to ports and gateways and to limit the right to reparation for damage due to violations of the interstate commerce laws.

The co-ordinator's proposals resulted from a comprehensive study of the general problems relating to transportation. It was probably the most extensive report on these questions that congress ever has received. Certainly, there can be no lack of information available for use by congress if it determines to enact railroad legislation at this session. Whether such legislation will get through is yet problematical. The consensus seems to be that there will be regulation of the motor trucks and buses, but how far beyond that the congress will go appears to depend upon the President's ability to gain a rubber stamp on his program.

The Post Office department long has been the mecca of philatelists because the stamp collectors will give a right arm for the first of any new issue of stamps. It has been a different matter with the administration of Postmaster General Farley that under other administrations except that "Big Jim" has been putting out new issues of stamps with a speed difficult to match. Consequently, the stamp collectors have been going at top speed since Mr. Farley got into motion.

Style-Alert Will Wear Smart Linen

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHETHER you are a faithful stay-at-home by inclination or necessity, or whether you are counted among those present in the spectacular style parade which fashionable resorters are now staging in climes where summer spends the winter, the message of linen is all-important.

There is so much real news in regard to linen as now is, one scarcely knows where to begin to tell of the amazing things taking place in the way of new colorings, new weaves and artful patterning. From the daintiest sheers embroidered handkerchief linen to the very rough textures in daring peasant colorings and design, linen is writing a most fascinating chapter in the history of fabric fashion.

What's more, you do not have to trek to a tropical clime or wait until spring and summer in order to don linen—wear it instantly! And here's how—speaking to women who are wintering where winter is winter. Top that favorite velvet or wool suit, which is proving so smartly wearable for mid-season, with a blouse of one of the new tweedy coarse linens which are the rage in leading style centers. The trick is to choose one of the striking new colors, tangerine, for example, or better still, linen in a rich fuchsia shade. You will adore these wonderful new tailored blouses. So timely, too, not too light in wintry zones, and not too dark for tropical climes.

Maybe it is a one-piece dress of crepe or wool or velvet which is your mainstay for midseason wear. Give it "class" by collaring and cuffing it with linen in natural, pastel or bright color. The Puritan sets with wide collars and deep cuffs are youthful and flattering. Quilted or stitched they are smartest of all.

Just to give some idea of the stunning trends of the new linens we cite the striking outfit, so handsomely tailored, as shown to the left in the illustration. Linen in the new beetroot red is chosen for the blouse. It has widely spaced tiny tufts running horizontally across its front, is fashioned to fit snugly and fastens high up the front with square buttons. The plaid for the slim skirt and the three-quarter jacket carries beetroot red for its predominant color. The relationship of suit and blouse is further established in that the identical beetroot linen which fashions the blouse lines the coat. This ensemble offers a perfect costume for sightseeing in a warm climate or for spectator sports or it is ready to jump into at the very first signs of budding spring in the North.

Nothing could be swankier or more appropriate for a sunny morning on deck than the mannish suit of white linen pictured to the right. The coat is as tailored as a man's and the back is belted, giving freedom for tennis or shuffleboard. The blouse is made of old-fashioned figured percale. Better jot that down in your note book, for this quaint percale is an ultra style note.

Many remarkable effects are achieved in the new linens. There are rustic peasant weaves which look as if handloomed. Some of these are of Tyrolean inspiration, in the colorfulness of their stripes. Many are nubbled to add to their rough texture. Among linen novelties are towel and tablecloth motifs, also openwork lines with colored threads, plaid lines, too, are good style, while plain linens either in pastels or dark vivid blues, or reds, or browns, have a vogue coming which will make them foremost in fashion.

ROUTING

CHICK-SEXING IS JUST EXPERIMENT

Expert Cites Disadvantages and Advantages.

By L. M. Hurd of New York State College of Agriculture—W.S.U. Service.
Anyone with patience, persistence, good eyesight, and a fair sense of touch can learn how to determine the sex of one-day-old chicks.

To the Japanese goes the credit of developing the method now used in the United States. No one knows how chick-sexing will develop in this country or where it will lead. Perhaps it is a fad, but the practice has both advantages and disadvantages.

Its advantages include: The elimination of males when they cannot be reared profitably; more rapid and uniform growth of chicks with less mortality, and lower feed costs with pullet chicks; and less investment in equipment.

The disadvantages cited include: The likelihood of an unbalanced demand for cockerels and pullets; the possibility of fraud on the part of some agents and hatchermen in the early application of the method; the added cost of chick sexing; and hatcheries may find it inadvisable to sell both sexes and unsexed chicks because it increases the chances of dissatisfaction if the ratio of males to females is anything but normal.

The work is tedious, and good lighting is needed to study these baby chicks. Minute differences in appearance must be observed to determine the sex correctly.

Epsom Salts and Argyrol Helps Colds in Poultry

To cure colds in poultry flocks, according to an authority at the North Carolina State college, the first thing to do is to isolate all birds showing symptoms of a cold. As this trouble is usually caused by poor ventilation, overcrowding, or poor feeding, the cause should be found and corrected. Check carefully on the feeding program and give the flock epsom salts at the rate of one-half pound to three gallons of water. The house should be thoroughly cleaned together with all drinking and feeding utensils. Slight cases may be treated by the use of a 10 cent argyrol solution—a drop of this being placed in each eye, each nostril and in the slit in the throat. Where the disease is well established it is not economical to treat individuals, and these should be destroyed.

Feed Well During Molt

It is to the poultryman's advantage to feed his hens so that they will complete the molt in the shortest possible time, advises P. H. Gooding, extension poultryman, Clemson Agricultural college, South Carolina. The molting period is a natural rest period for hens and during this period they gain back their body weight and change their feathers. Asserting that it takes virtually the same ingredients to grow feathers as it does to produce eggs, the specialist states that the best practice to follow in feeding molting hens is to keep a good yielding mash and grain before them at all times. A heavy feeding of grain will enable the hens to regain their weight quickly, and the sooner this is done the quicker the birds will start laying.

Sunflower Seed Value

Sunflower seed is supposed to be a good feed for producing feathers. It is doubtful if this point has ever been scientifically proved. The heads of sunflowers contain 12 per cent crude protein, 24 per cent fiber, and approximately 49 per cent carbohydrates and fat combined. Sunflower seeds with hulls contain approximately 16 per cent crude protein, 28 per cent fiber and 46 per cent carbohydrates and fats. Sunflower seeds without hulls contain 27 per cent crude protein, 6 per cent fiber and 51 per cent carbohydrates and fats. The chief objection to feeding sunflower heads or seeds with hulls is the high fiber content.—Idaho Farmer.

Aylesbury, Pekin Ducks

Aylesbury and Pekin ducks are both white and usually considered about equal in egg production. The Aylesbury runs from seven to ten pounds in weight, Pekins are about the same weight, drakes being reported weighing nine pounds at four months. Both breeds are very good for meat as well. The India Runner is considered the most prolific layer of all breeds, but in this they vary according to strain much as hens do. The Rouen is also a good breed both for meat and eggs.

Sexing Baby Chicks

A high degree of proficiency has been attained by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, the science of sexing baby chicks, says a writer at the North Carolina State college, due to extreme care necessary in making autopsies and the necessary practice work the system is of little value to the average poultryman. An opportunity is offered in that a definite premium will be offered to the hatcheryman who can guarantee a run of as high as 80 per cent females.

It's a Glutton

It has been estimated that from the day a chick starts eating until it has become a pullet and begins laying it will consume 20 pounds of feed. Along with feed, too, direct sunlight is an important factor in the growing of the chick and this cannot be had through ordinary window glass. Chicks can get this sunlight by going out doors, or a sunshine can be provided for them in proper form if one of the glass substitutes are used in poultry houses.—Los Angeles Times.

TOWN FOUNDERS MEN OF HUMOR

Judging From This List of Odd Appellations.

The Interstate Commerce commission thought it was being pretty smart when it revealed that there actually was a town in Iowa named What Cheer, but it crawled away in shame when the Post Office department went into action.

The Chicago and North Western railroad applied for permission to abandon a railroad that runs to What Cheer, and that started people to thinking that there might be other towns scattered around the country that grew and thrived despite funny names. The Post Office department, which has to know the name of every hamlet in America, crashed through in beautiful fashion. After considerable research it was revealed that Arkansas and Kentucky were tied for the leadership, Arkansas' claim to greatness rests largely on this list of towns: Bee Branch, Tomato, Chimes, Evening Shade, Ink, Love, Romance, Sweet Home, Tag, Raspberry, Utopia, Empire, Smackover, Fifty-Six (which is in Stone county and is not to be confused with Forty-Four which is in Izard county), Zinc, Stamps and Okay.

Ordinarily that "Okay" would give Arkansas the championship in a walk, but it was learned that Kentucky has one, too, which is spelled "O. K."

Kentucky started off with a beautiful string of girls' names: Lizzie, Maud, Minnie, Nell, Pauline, Pearl, Sophie, Susie, Tillie and Virgie. It followed that up with this inspiring list: Awa Decide, Dingus, Barefoot, Barnyard, Dimple, Gee, King Biscuit, Bee, Cyclone, Hippo, Gentom Come, Gus, Good Luck, Jump and Sassafras. And, believe it or not, there is a burg in Kentucky named Burg.

Way down in Georgia where the people don't like to waste any more energy than necessary in talking, they go in for short names: Al, Cad, Dial, Due, Ila and Rex. When they do get ambitious, they wind up with names like Enigma and Ohoopce.

Indiana has its Santa Claus and Florida has its Christmas, Colorado's best efforts were Graft, Hygiene, Paradox and Sunbeam. Arizona offered Bumble Bee, Chloride, Snowflake and Tomstone (which has a newspaper called, appropriately enough, The Epitaph). Iowa has Nira, which was there a long time before the national industrial recovery act was passed. Kansas has Bazaar, Bloom and Gas.

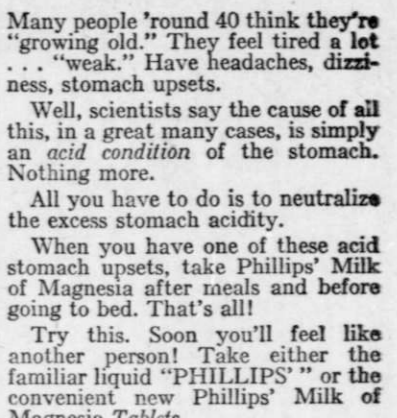

Idaho is definitely weather conscious, what with Chilly and Coolin. So far as individual towns, irrespective of state lines are concerned, the argument still rages as to whether first prize ought to go to Energy, Ill., or Rough and Ready, Calif.—Washington Post.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot... "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity. When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

STARCHED LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

An outstanding message which the advance dresses convey is that starched lace accessories are the "big idea" for spring. A word to the wise is sufficient. The shopping itinerary of the woman who would be smartly attired should include an immediate pilgrimage to the neckwear counters where the latest fantasies are set forth in all their freshness. For midseason wear nothing more charming and seasonal can be pictured than the charming black velvet suit here illustrated. The deep ruff lace cuffs and collar with frilled jabot of stiffened white lace interprets the latest. The jabot bow sketched and the collar of lace with the Medici flare are new this season.

Skirt Fullness

Skirts wide at the hem are still very much in fashion, but the fullness usually does not start till the skirt is well on its way. Snug fitted hip lines are best at the moment. Bustle effects are out.

MUFFS ARE REVIVED FOR EVENING WEAR

Muffs, in the dear dead days, were neat little bundles into which elegant ladies placed their hands when they went into the cold, wintry out-of-doors. Then, a few years ago some bright person conceived the idea of giving bridesmaids muffs to carry instead of shepherd's crooks or bunches of flowers or baskets filled with rose petals. Thus, muffs were separated from strictly out-of-door costumes.

Now, as the latest development in this evolution, there are muffs to accompany evening gowns. Some of these frivolous affairs are made of shirred chiffon or velvet. Others are covered with small artificial flowers, such as violets, pansies, or narcissi. Debutantes are gaily carrying them as they dance. They're plenty large enough to hold a lipstick, cigarettes, powder, hankie, and all the other bathroom necessities.

High Hat and Plain Pumps

With "Little Suit" Chic When standing before your wardrobe in doubt as to what to put on, better reach for a suit. The "little suit" is the "long suit" of our smartest women over here.

With it goes a high hat and plain kidskin pumps. If the day and the occasion present that "special moment," we suggest a glamorous lame blouse as a surprise to come forth when the trim little jacket is removed.

What Women Want to Know About Fashions

Dark chiffons add variety to mid-winter wardrobes. Veils appear on a great number of hats, whether for formal or informal wear. Evening gowns composed entirely of sequins and sparkling paillettes are all the rage. Openwork sandals are still good, but it's even smarter this winter to wear the style with covered toes.

Linen is one of the outstanding fabrics for Southern resort wear. Many Paris couturiers are making lace party hats for resort and spring wear. Evening materials include new rough, shiny satins, blistered crepes, taffetas and lames. Blue and silver brocaded satin is combined with black baghara velvet to create a charming formal gown.

E. A. Drake, coal miner of Pikeville, Ky., was left a fortune of $500,000, but will stay on the job.

CAMPBELLSPORT EDITOR CHOSEN AS POSTMASTER

Congressman M. K. Rully of Fond du Lac has recommended the appointment of Wm. J. Sullivan, editor of the Campbellsport News, for the office of postmaster in that village Sylvester J. Schlaefter of Campbellsport and Herman W. Krueger of Dundee were also certified for appointment in addition to Mr. Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan is a member of the Democratic county committee, as is Mr. Krueger who conducts a general store at Dundee. Mr. Schlaefter has been employed as clerk in the Campbellsport post office for the past nine years.

We congratulate Mr. Sullivan on the honor bestowed upon him and assure the people of Campbellsport that the selection by Mr. Rully is a very good one and feel that their postal needs will be taken care of in a very conscientious and thorough manner.

FARM AND HOME LINES

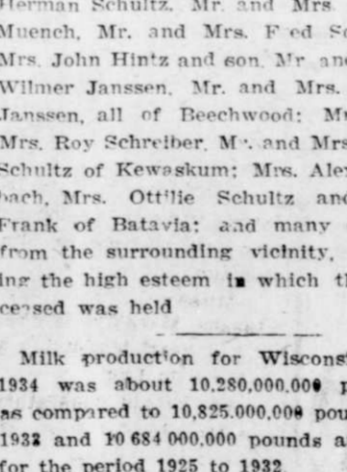

The total acreage in the more important crops for Wisconsin last year was nearly a half million acres less than the year before due largely to the immense losses in hay.

Through the efforts of Wisconsin club women, the legislature of 1934 made possible the establishment and development of a course in home economics at the University of Wisconsin.

Herman Ildes, state master of the State Grange, was recently appointed a regent of the University of Wisconsin.

NEW McCormick-Deering Spreader Features an ALL-STEEL Box

The new McCormick-Deering No. 4-A all-steel spreader is convenient, low to the ground, simple, and compact. It features a galvanized, rust-resisting, copperized, non-warping, heavy-gauge steel box of 60 to 70-bushel capacity. Eight roller bearings and Zerol lubrication, combined with perfect alignment of all parts, make this new all-steel spreader unusually light in draft. Two horses can haul capacity loads in it all day long.

Five spreading speeds are provided, permitting the use of just the right amount of manure at all times. The manure is torn and shredded by a saw-tooth upper beater, a spike-tooth lower beater, and a wide-spread spiral before it is spread in an even layer over the soil. A special end-gate can be provided for use when liquid manure is to be hauled. A brake is available as special equipment. Also, there is a lime-spreading attachment which changes the No. 4-A into an efficient lime spreader.

See this new all-steel spreader at our store at your first opportunity.

ARE you a fairy thing? Your pretty tinkling Just seems to me to sound Like elfins dancing round.

If I just shut my eyes I almost see The elves and things, as merry as can be— Jumping, skipping, dancing in and out, Playing tunes and hopping all about.

What makes those sounds I hear So fairy-like and queer? I'm going to find out soon What makes your pretty tune!

OVEN MEAL GOOD DINNER CHOICE

Cooking Requires Little More Time.

By EDITH M. BARBER

AN oven meal is sometimes a good choice for the busy housekeeper who must prepare her dinner or supper in short order. While it sometimes takes a little longer to do the actual cooking, if your dishes take a short time to prepare, your total time will not be long.

Cut bread in cubes and brown slightly on all sides in butter. Put in increased baking dish and pour over it the tomatoes and seasoning. Bake in

- The menu I am suggesting is: Vegetable soup, Toasted cheese, Scalloped tomatoes, Celery salad, Pench shortcake

You can get a very good vegetable soup full of flavor and meat stock and well-cooked vegetables which is hearty enough to satisfy us for an otherwise meatless meal. The toasted cheese which I am suggesting is an old family recipe of my own which needs, besides the utensil in which it is cooked, only a fork in its preparation. I am also giving you my favorite recipe for scalloped tomatoes which nothing can be better if they are properly prepared. The large amount of bread used with them will make them so hearty that you may leave out potatoes if you like, although you may bake potatoes at the same time if you wish. While the cheese and the tomatoes are baking you will prepare your celery salad and get your shortcake ready to go into the oven. You may make up the dough for the shortcake or you may use satisfactorily and as a time saver, one of the mixtures which needs only the addition of milk.

In making the shortcake I divide the dough into two parts and take one-half, spread it with salt and pepper and cover it with the rest of the dough which has been patted or rolled to fit the lower layer. When you combine the crust with the berries you will find that you can lift the upper layer easily and will not need to split the hot cake with a fork.

Toasted Cheese.

- 1/2 pound fresh cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, Paprika, 1 egg, 1/2 to 1 cup milk

Cut the cheese in small pieces, place in a greased pie pan. Sprinkle with the mixed salt, mustard and paprika. Break the egg over this. Add enough milk to cover. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., ten to fifteen minutes until the cheese is melted and a slightly brown crust is formed. Serve at once.

Order of Preparation—Light oven. Prepare cheese and bake. Prepare tomatoes and chill. Prepare shortcake and bake. Open can of peaches. Open can of soup and heat.

Scalloped Tomatoes.

- 6 slices of bread, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 can tomatoes, 1 sliced onion, 3 cloves, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, Pepper

Home Building Booms in Britain

London.—Great Britain is building houses at the rate of more than 300,000 annually, 1,000 every working day of the year, and doing it mostly through private enterprise.

Nearly two and a half million dwellings have been erected since 1919, approximately half of them by private enterprise, the remainder with the aid of generous national and local government subsidies.

Since the war British taxpayers have contributed £167,000,000 ($335,000,000) toward housing subsidies, approximately £140 ($700) for every subsidized house built.

The national government repealed all housing subsidies instituted by previous governments, with the exception of one dealing with slum clearance. But most of the original subsidies run for either twenty or forty

Mexican Women Use Hats as Soup Bowls

Oaxaca City, Mexico.—This is one place in the world where women's hats grow on trees.

In this state of southern Mexico, Oaxaca, the hard, hollow woody fruit of a certain tree, cut in half, makes a smart, close-fitting hat for native women. Mixtec and other Indian women of the region consider them "chic."

The hat-tree has a scientific name, Crescencia cujete. The fruit makes as good a soup bowl as it does a hat. Everywhere, wherever it grows in Mexico, it is used as a durable plate for hot liquid foods. In the Mayan Indian tongue of Yucatan, this receptacle happens to be called "lunch."

a moderate oven, 375 degrees, half an hour. Taste for seasoning and add more salt if necessary.

- Celery Salad. 1 head of celery, 2 stalks of celery, 1 minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon of sugar, Pepper, Paprika, 1 1/2 tablespoons of vinegar, 1/2 cup salad oil

Prepare lettuce and cut through center in six pieces. Mince celery and onion. Mix seasonings and sugar. Add vinegar and stir until well mixed. Add oil, beat until thick. Add celery and onion and pour over lettuce.

My Neighbor Says:

SQUASH may be easily peeled if it is first put into the oven and thoroughly warmed.

If in doubt as to whether or not a turkey is thoroughly cooked, pierce the leg. If the blood is a pale pink the turkey is done.

A piece of orange skin placed on the top of the cooking will take away the heavy odor of the kitchen and give out a pleasant fragrance.

Sandpapering baby's shoes before they are worn prevents scuffing and saves many a fall.

He's the Father of Five Sets of Twins

Whenever the doctor came to attend a birth at the Harry Fifield menage, at Putnam, Conn., he seemed aware of the fact that he would have to deliver fifty. Five times the work arrived and each time he brought two children. The five sets of twins—in a row—is considered somewhat of a record in the United States. One pair is not shown here. Elizabeth, Harry, Jr., Charlotte, Harriet, Helen, Della, Claire and Marguerite. In front is the family pet.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

In order to make this story understandable to those not familiar with ocean liners, a bit of explanation must be made, old travelers, of course, having permission to skip it. Each day there is a pool on the run of the ship. Spread numbers are sold and in this twenty is supposed to be the average 24-hour run. Then the low field, which means any number lower than that low, and the high field, any number over the highest, are sold at auction. Of course, weather conditions affect the run of the ship. Now for the story, which is vouched for by my informant, a gambler bought the low field, and as the day progressed, found the weather beautifully clear and the wind favorable overboard. Naturally, the ship was delayed in circling to pick him up and by the time he was won, had lost so much distance, he resented the low field. Of course, he might have drowned, but as was said, he is a gambler.

One afternoon, during the football season, Joe Haymes, who was leading an orchestra in a mid-town hotel, sneaked off to attend a game. He knew he should have been playing for tea dancing but his love of the gridiron was too strong to resist. It was an exciting game, so exciting, indeed, that before long Haymes, a stranger, were pounding each other on the back. By the time the last whistle was blown, they were fast friends. Haymes went on back to the hotel where he found that his trunk had cost him his job. He didn't worry, however. The stranger whose back he had pounded was John J. Woelfle who, on learning his identity, had hired him to lead the orchestra in the hotel of which Woelfle is a manager.

A story I just heard is ironic to say the least. The City News assigned his job with the City News association to act as director of publicity for one of the bigger steamship lines. Never having done any publicity previously, he prayed that he might carry the job along until he found his way around. His one hope was a big story—something that would put his line on the front pages. Four days after he took the job, the big story broke—a story that put the line on front pages all over the world. That story was the burning of the Morro Castle. Powell still has his job, however.

Two vaudevillians met in front of the palace. "I've just returned from six weeks' solid bookin'," declared one. "That's swell in these times," answered his friend. "How much do you think I made?" continued the one who had been working. "Shoot," was the reply. "And it's half of that."

Now a yarn about a man well known over the various networks, but who must be nameless here. The other night as he was about to go on the air, the sign "Silence" caught his eye. He arranged his manuscript and glanced again at the sign. The signal was given him and he tried to start to read. Not a word came from his throat—that sign seemed to have been burned into his consciousness so deeply he couldn't disobey it. The second hand seemed to race around the clock. He was committing one of the most deadly sins known to radio, but couldn't help it. Try as he would, his vocal cords wouldn't obey the orders of his brain.

Finally the production man stopped signaling and came over and touched the victim on the shoulder. With that, the parody vanished and he started to read with such a roar that he awakened his thought who started to scream because she thought he surely was being murdered. The nightmare was so terrifying that now when he goes into the studio he won't even glance at a "silence" sign.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

That Word "Pedagogue" ALTHOUGH a pedagogue is a teacher, one whose occupation is that of schoolmaster, no teacher likes to be called a pedagogue. And that is because the word implies that becomes more or less habitual with those whose contacts are constantly with children under their control and subject to their authority, a quality which teachers have been accused of maintaining even outside of the classroom, and which the sensitive members of the profession wish to avoid. For that reason the origin of this word is particularly interesting.

For the word is derived from the Greek meaning literally "one who leads a boy." And in the days of Greek antiquity, this was the slave who led his master's children to school and who was charged with their safety.

Pasamaquoddy Indians Speak Original Tongue

Washington.—Although they have taken up the culture of the whites with whom they have associated for generations, the Pasamaquoddy Indians of the Maine coast have preserved their original language in almost pure form. Dr. Truman Michelson, Smithsonian institution ethnologist, reported.

Doctor Michelson, a specialist in Algonquian languages, found the Indians living on a state reservation and nearly all speaking English but also able to talk the intricate tonal elements of the Algonquian dialect. He said the Penobscot tribe a few miles away had lost its original tongue and that usually the impact of an outside civilization meant death to the native language.

Ancient Wooden Bridge Gives Way to Progress

West Seneca, N. Y.—The last covered wooden bridge in Erie county must make way for progress. The seventy-year-old Leydecker bridge, which was built in this sheltered Civil war days and since has withstood many horse-and-buggy sweatearths, is to be replaced by a modern span under a county highway project.

The obsolete bridge, 170 feet long, spans the Cazenovia creek in the fertile West Seneca valley. In recent years it has been practically useless but old warning signs still carried the threat of a fine for persons who drove horses on it faster than a walk. There is no threat, however, to speeding motorists.

River Hoang Course

The River Hoang Ho of China, almost 3,000 miles long, is believed to have changed its course nine times in the past 2,500 years. In 1887, when it changed its course, a million Chinese were drowned in the process.

8. Elimination of overcrowding, a step ahead of slum clearance, also to be accomplished by municipal authorities with the aid of government subsidies. The government's overcrowding bill is now before parliament.

Private enterprise has come into its own with a vengeance during the last year and a half. Of the 290,000 houses erected during the 12 months ended September 30, 1934, all except approximately 50,000 were built without subsidy, surpassing all previous building efforts.

ALERT, self-poised; A master brain Placed in the wilderness to lead; To give men strength; To destroy the power Of grasping kings, of petty hirings. "A cloud by day, A pillar of fire by night." Of old, Moses was led By faith through the surging seas Walled by the will of God. So the waters of man's covetousness Rolled back. Our forefathers, Like the children of Israel, In faith and trust Followed their leader To freedom. Immortal Washington! Today the nation Of thy upholding Still follows in thy footsteps While the world stands at salute.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHPLACE

WASHINGTON was born in a house facing Pope Creek, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, in the house burned on December 25, 1781. The old homestead has been included in the George Washington Birthplace National monument, and the house restored between 1930 and 1932 on its original site.

The old family burial ground, containing the bodies of Washington's father, grandfather and great-grandfather, is included on the 400-acre reservation. The George Washington Birthplace National Monument is 90 miles from Washington on State route 3, route 1 and Virginia State route 3.

The Washington family first settled at Wakefield in 1665, a full century before the revolution. Col. John Washington, great-grandfather of the President, had come to Westmoreland, Va., in 1656. He died and was buried there in 1678. Maj. Lawrence Washington and Maj. John Washington, his sons, succeeded him.

After their marriages the family lived on separate parts of the Wakefield estate until the house in which George Washington was born burned. After that the Washingtons continued in other houses on the same land, and descendants still live on a continuous possession, in whole or in part, for 264 years—eight generations.

Equestrian Statue of First President

Of all the heroes of American history, none perhaps has been more liberally honored by various monuments and memorials in and about the Capital City than Gen. George Washington. The above statue stands in the park at Washington Circle, on Pennsylvania Ave., in historic Georgetown.

Greatness Far Above Any Human Frailties

THE great meaning of Washington is his noble and unselfish patriotism. The philosophy of Bacon is not vitiated by the fact that he was "the meanest of mankind." Daniel Webster's oratory and Edgar Poe's poetry are far more important than the fact that the orator and the poet occasionally became inebriated. Abraham Lincoln's funny stories—and sometimes questionable stories—are not the essential points of the emancipator's life. Shakespeare's deer stealing is of no weight in our estimate of him as the world's greatest man of letters. Carlyle's sourness of temper and carelessness to his wife does not detract from his merit as essayist and historian. Even the frivolities and frailties of "Bobbie" Burns fail to lessen posterity's respect for the genius of the peasant poet.

So it is with George Washington. Only small faults which were common to all gentlemen of his day are alleged against him; whether or not the allegations are true is a matter of supreme importance. What is important is that George Washington was gifted by nature to be the leader in one of the most significant movements in the world history. These are the things that Americans should remember on the twenty-second day of February—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The KENNEL MURDER CASE

BY S. S. Van Dine

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, crime expert, investigates the supposed suicide of Archer Coe. With District Attorney Markham, Coe goes to Coe's house. They find the door of Coe's room, there; also Wrede, a friend of Coe's. The door of the Signor Grassi, a guest. The door of the Signor Grassi is bolted from the inside. They force it. Coe is seated, a revolver in his right hand and a bullet in his temple. Markham let him die. Medical Examiner Doremus declares Coe had been dead for hours when the bullet entered his head. A when the bullet entered his head, a wound, made by a dagger, is found on the body, and there is proof that Coe was fully dressed when he was stabbed. The investigators find a Scottish terrier in a room of the Coe house. Vance declares the animal will prove an important connective link. Brisbane Coe, Archer's brother-in-law, is believed to have left for Chicago at the previous afternoon, but his dead body is discovered in a closet in the Coe home. Vance interrogates the Chinese cook, Liang, Brisbane died from a stab in the back, as in Archer's case. Vance, searching Brisbane's coat, finds a watch and a dagger. A lipstick, discovered in Archer Coe's wastebasket, indicates that a woman called on him the night of the murder. By manipulating the string, the bent pin and the dagger needle found in Brisbane's pocket, Vance bolts Archer Coe's door from the outside.

Vance sat down and inhaled deeply of his cigarette.

"Archer—yes, it could have been. . . Sergeant, suppose you fetch the key."

Heath went from the room, and Vance said to Markham:

"Ceramics, I opine. Nothing would be so likely to stir up Grassi as a disappointment along that line. . . The Italian was ushered in by the sergeant; and Vance went straight to the point.

"Who telephoned to you, Mr. Grassi, at Doctor Montrose's yesterday during dinner?"

Grassi gave a slight start; then looked defiantly at Vance.

"It was a personal matter—my own affair."

"It was Mr. Archer Coe who phoned you, was it not, Mr. Grassi?" came Vance's flat and unemotional voice.

Grassi neither moved nor spoke.

"Perhaps he regretted the bargain he had made with you," Vance continued. "Perhaps he decided to call the deal off, after thinking it over alone with his treasures. . . Perhaps he thought it best to inform you immediately of his decision so you would not talk of the transaction to Doctor Montrose."

Still Grassi did not move, but the inevitable impression he gave was that Vance had guessed the import of the telephone call he had received at the curator's home the night before.

"I can well imagine how you felt, Mr. Grassi," Vance went on, without alteration of tone. "After all, the bargain had been made and you held Mr. Coe's letter of confirmation. But really, you know, you shouldn't have threatened him—"

Suddenly the Italian's pent-up emotion broke forth.

"I had every right to threaten him!" he burst forth, the blood rushing back to his face. "For a week I have been negotiating—meeting his constantly increasing prices. Finally, yesterday, we reach an understanding. He puts it in writing, and I cable to Italy announcing my success. Then he rejects the agreement; he tells me he will not sell—that he has changed his mind. He insults me over the telephone; he says I have swindled him. He said he would break every vase he owned before he would let me have them."

Vance gave a mirthless smile.

"No wonder you were a bit disconcerted at the sight of those Ting yo fragments! . . . But Mr. Coe didn't smash the vase, Mr. Grassi. That destruction was achieved—adventurously—by the person who killed him. Most unfortunate, what?"

Vance got to his feet wearily.

"That will be all for the present," he said.

Grassi made a low bow and left the room.

Markham addressed Vance as soon as Grassi was out of hearing.

"A curious and ominous situation, Grassi is refused the collection, on which he has obviously set his heart and staked his honor; and he threatens Coe. Then he disappears for three hours, saying he took the wrong train; and this morning Coe is found dead, with all the superficial indications of a suicide."

"But why should he also stab Brisbane?" Vance asked dispiritedly. "And why the revolver? And why the bolted door? And especially why the Scottish?"

"You were counting a great deal on the dog this morning," Markham observed.

"Yes, yes—the dog," Vance lapsed into silence for a while, his eyes gazing out of the east window. "And no one here liked dogs—no one but Wrede. Fanny he should give his pet away. . . Vance's voice was scarcely audible; it was as though he were thinking out loud. "A Doberman Pinscher. . . too big, of course, to keep in a small apartment. And I wouldn't take Wrede for a dog lover. Too unsympathetic. . . I think I'll have converse with him. . ."

He stepped to the telephone. A moment later he was talking with Wrede. The conversation was very brief, but during it Vance jotted down some notes on the phone pad. When he had replaced the receiver Markham gave an exasperated grunt.

"Why should you be concerned with Wrede's former pets?" he asked.

"I'm sure I don't know," Vance admitted frankly. "Some vague association perhaps. But Wrede and dogs don't go together—the combination is almost as incongruous as was the presence of the wounded Scottie in the hall. And I hate Inuities."

Markham strove to control his irritation.

"Well, what did you learn about Wrede's dog?"

"Nothing staggerin'. He had the Doberman only a few months—bought him at a show in Westchester. When he moved from his house in Greenwich Village to his present apartment he gave the dog to some friends of his." He pointed to the phone pad. "I have their name. Think I'll drop by and see them. You know, Markham, I'm dashed interested in Doberman Pinschers. They're beautiful dogs."

It was decided to discontinue the investigation for the day. We were all tired and confused, and there were no leads to follow. Vance suggested a complete cessation until he could make an inquiry into the ownership of the wounded Scottie. His sanguine attitude toward the presence of the dog in the house struck me as extravagant; and I knew Markham felt the same way about it. But since there was little more that could be done at the moment, he gave in hopefully to Vance's suggestions.

"It's quite safe," Vance told him, when he had reached the lower hall, "to let the various members of the household go about their business. I can assure you, Markham, no one will run away."

Gamble was told to proceed with his duties, as usual; and Miss Lake and Grassi were informed that they were free to go and come as they chose, provided they were available for questioning.

"Keep a man in Coe's bedroom, however," Vance admonished the sergeant; "and it would also be well to have a man outside to check on anyone entering or leaving the house."

Vance, Markham and I went out into the chill air. It had been a day of horror, and the cool breeze from the park was invigorating. When we were entering the district attorney's car, Markham asked:

"Were you serious, Vance, about seeing these people to whom Wrede gave the Doberman Pinscher?"

"Oh, quite. . . It will take only a few minutes. . . The name of the people was Enright; and they lived in a penthouse in one of the new apartment buildings on Central Park West. The butler informed us that Mrs. Enright was out of the city, and that Mr. Enright was at that moment walking the dog in the park."

Entering the park, we sat down on a bench by the path entrance and waited. Presently there appeared a very large man with a dog on a leash.

"That will be Enright," said Vance. "Suppose we stroll toward him."

Enright proved to be a genial, easy-going type of man of great bulk. Vance introduced himself and presented Markham and me. Enright was cordial and talkative; and when Vance mentioned Wrede's name he became voluble regarding his long friendship with the man. As he chatted, I had a good look at the dog. He was lean and muscular, with beautiful lines, his coat a shiny black with rust-red, sharply defined markings. The dominating impression he gave was that of compact, muscular power, combined with great speed and intelligence—a dog that would make a loyal and protective friend and a dangerous enemy.

"Oh, yes," Enright said, in answer to a question from Vance. "Wrede gave me and the missus Ruprecht last spring. Said he couldn't keep him in a small apartment. We've got a penthouse—plenty of roof for the fellow to run around. But I always take him out at night and give him a to-and-fro in the park. Good for him."

"Oh, quite," agreed Vance pleasantly. He went toward the Doberman, and bent over, making a friendly clicking sound with his tongue and calling the dog gently by name. He extended the back of his hand slowly toward the dog's muzzle and ran his hand over his occiput and down his slightly arched neck. But the dog would not respond. He shrank back, gave a frightened whine, and crouched down on his haunches, trembling.

"That don't mean he don't like you, Mr. Vance," Enright explained, patting the dog on the head. "He's shy as the devil. Distrustful of strangers. Gad! You should have seen him when I first got him. He crawled under a big settee in the den and wouldn't come out for two days—not even to eat. Had to drag him out twice a day and put him on the roof. Then back he'd go under the settee. . . Lots better now than he used to be. Getting a little confidence. He's pretty near all right when he's alone with me."

"He'll probably get over it," Vance told him encouragingly. "The right treatment, don't you know. . . He's a beautiful specimen. . . Ever show him?"

"Oh, I entered him once—Cornwall. But he wouldn't show. Lay down in the ring and whimpered. D—n shame, too, for the two fellows that went over him lacked quality."

We walked with the garrulous Enright back to his apartment house and took leave of him. When we were in the district attorney's car, headed down town, Vance spoke, and his voice was troubled.

"Something queer about that dog, Markham—something deuced queer. Why should he be timid? Why should he distrust and fear strangers? It's not like a Doberman to act that way. . . Something has happened to him. He's had a blighting experience of some kind. . ."

Markham beat an annoyed tattoo on the window ledge of the car.

"Yes, yes; it's very sad, I suppose. But what possible connection can there be between a shy Doberman in Central Park West and the murder of Archer Coe?"

"I haven't the vaguest notion," Vance returned cheerfully. "But there are only two dogs in this case, and one of them is brown-tan and timid, and the other is viciously wounded."

"Pretty far-fetched," Markham grumbled.

Vance sighed. "I dare say. But so are the circumstances surrounding the murders themselves." He lit a fresh cigarette and glanced at his watch. "It's drawing on toward dinner time. Does that tempt you? . . . And I'll open a bottle of that '35 Chateau-Yquem you're so fond of."

"You cheer me, old man," Markham gave an order to the chauffeur. "Ah, a bit of forgetfulness—eh, what? Quite right you are. There'll be nothing to irk us till tomorrow."

But Vance was mistaken. That night the Coe case entered a new and more sinister phase. It was exactly half-past two in the morning when Vance's private phone rang. It woke me from a deep sleep, and it was several minutes before I could answer it. Markham's voice came over the wire demanding Vance. I carried the portable phone set to his room and handed it to him in bed. He listened a brief minute; then he set the instrument on the floor, yawned, stretched, and threw back the bedclothes.

"Dash it all, Van!" he complained, as he rang for Currie. "Grassi has been stabbed!"

When Vance and I arrived at the Coe house, Markham and Sergeant Heath were already there. There was a detective from the homicide bureau sitting glumly on the front steps.

We went to the second floor, walked back toward the front of the house, and entered Grassi's quarters. The curtains were drawn and all the lights were on.

Heath and Markham stood at the foot of Grassi's bed, looking at the prostrate figure lying there. Sitting in a straight chair, on the opposite side of the bed, was a capable looking man of about forty.

"This is Doctor Lobsenz," Markham informed Vance. "Gamble called him in."

Doctor Lobsenz looked up, nodded, and went on about his work with swift efficiency.

Grassi lay on his back, clad in white silk pajamas. He was ghastly pale, and the arm nearest us moved restlessly on the sheets, like that of a person under the influence of hyoscine. There was an area of blood, perhaps 12 inches in diameter, on the sheet at his left side nearest the doctor. His pajama coat was also stained with blood. His eyes were closed, but his lips were moving incoherently.

Presently the doctor rose. "I think that's all I can do for him at the minute, Mr. Markham," he said. "I'll send for the ambulance immediately."

Markham nodded. "Thank you, Doctor."

Then he turned to Vance. "Grassi was stabbed through the left arm. Doctor Lobsenz says it is not a dangerous wound."

Vance's eyes were on Grassi's face. Without looking up he spoke. "Just what is the nature of the wound, doctor?"

"He was stabbed at the outer border of the biceps tendon, where it crosses the dimple of the anti-cubital fossa. The thrust punctured the median basilic vein and caused a profuse hemorrhage. But it luckily missed the basilic artery."

"What shaped weapon would you say was used?" asked Vance.

The doctor hesitated. "The wound was a bit ragged, and of a rather peculiar conformation; it was not made with a knife, but with some instrument like a very thick awl."

"Could it have been a small dagger with a diamond-shaped blade?"

"Yes, very easily."

Vance nodded. "You're taking him to the hospital?"

"Yes; immediately," the doctor told him. "I gave him three grains of sodium-amylal by mouth. It'll quiet him tonight and he'll be able to return here tomorrow. His arm will be in a sling for a few days, but unless there is an infection, there's no danger."

"Is he in shape to be questioned for a while before you take him to the hospital?" Vance asked.

The doctor bent over Grassi, felt his pulse, and looked at his pupils. "Oh, yes," he walked toward the door. "The ambulance won't be here for half an hour." He went into the hall where Gamble was standing.

door, tried the knob; studied the arrangement of Grassi's shoes near the foot of the bed; opened the closet door and looked inside; moved to the east window, opened the shade and drew it again; took the lid off a small ivory clothes hamper, scrutinized the contents and replaced the lid; studied the arrangement of the furniture; and finally switched the lights off and on again.

Grassi's lids were half-closed, but I could see that his eyes followed every move that Vance made. When Vance had switched the lights back on, Grassi lifted himself on one elbow.

"What are you searching for?" he demanded. "What right have you to come in here and take advantage of my helplessness?"

Vance sat down in a chair beside the bed and calmly took out a cigarette, lighting it with leisurely deliberation.

"Is it not," he asked, "the custom in your country, Mr. Grassi, to glance over a room in which a crime—or an attempted crime—has been committed?"

"Well, what did you find?" demanded the man on the bed.

"Nothing really excitin'," Vance replied. "Suppose you tell us what happened."

Grassi settled back on the pillows. "Certainly—I went to bed early. I was fatigued—the excitement today. . . I am sure you will understand. It was before eleven o'clock—and I went to sleep immediately. I was exhausted—"

"You turned out the lights?" Vance asked casually.

"Naturally. And I also drew down the shades. The street lights are often annoying. . . I was awakened by some slight noise—I cannot say exactly what. But I lay quiet for a moment, listening, and hearing nothing further, started to doze off again when I suddenly became aware—I do not know exactly how to explain it—of the presence of somebody in the room. There was no noise or movement—I had a sort of sixth sense. . ."

"Perhaps you are psychic," suggested Vance, with a slight yawn.

"It may be," Grassi agreed. "At any rate, I kept perfectly still and let my eyes move about the room. But it was very dark—there was only a faint nimbus of light filtering through the drawn shades. But as I looked at the window I saw a vague shape pass in front of me, and I instinctively threw my left arm across my breast, as if to ward off something which I felt was endangering me, but which I did not understand. Almost simultaneously I felt a sharp stinging pain in my left arm, just above the elbow—and a curious sort of pressure. Whether it was the pain or whether it was from being startled and frightened I do not know, but I lost consciousness for a moment. I probably fainted. . ."

"When I regained consciousness I felt a warm, sticky wetness under my left side, and the pain in my arm had increased and was throbbing."

Grassi looked at Markham appealingly. Then his eyes moved to Heath and finally to Vance. Vance was placidly smoking, as if the man's recital had little or no interest for him. But I knew him well enough to realize that he was at this moment intensely absorbed in the recital.

"What did you do then?" Vance asked.

"I called out several times and waited; but as no one answered, I arose and pressed the electric switch by the door—"

"On which side of the bed did you arise?" Vance interrupted.

"On the side on which you are sitting," Grassi informed him. "And as soon as I had turned on the lights, I opened the door—"

Vance's eyebrows went up. "Ah, the door was closed?"

"Not quite. It was, as you say, unlatched. . . Then I called again—into the hall; and the butler—upstairs—answered me. I sat down on the edge of the bed and waited until he arrived. . ."

"Did anyone else answer your summons?"

"No. The butler went immediately to the telephone in the hall, downstairs, and I could hear him summoning medical assistance."

Vance rose slowly and walked to a beautiful old Boule cabinet between the two east windows, and ran his fingers over the inlay.

"I say, Mr. Grassi," he spoke without turning round—"what about that blood-stained bath towel in the hamper?"

Grassi glanced up with more alertness than he had shown at any time during the conversation. "There was a bath towel on this little stand beside the bed," he explained. "You see, I have no private bath and the butler always leaves me my bath towel at night. When I arose I wrapped it around my arm—"

"Ah, yes—quite so," Vance turned from the Boule cabinet and walked toward the door. "That accounts for the fact that there are no bloodstains on the floor."

Vance was now inspecting the lock of the door.

"How did it happen, Mr. Grassi," he asked in an offhand manner, "that you didn't lock your door before you said your prayers and went to bed last night?"

"The lock does not work," Grassi returned in a tone of injured defiance. At this moment a siren was heard in the street, and Vance went to the front window and looked out.

NEW ASSORTMENT IN PERFORATED QUILT PATTERNS

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Here are some more and different perforated patterns for quilting designs. We have shown some of the other patterns in these columns, but realizing how interested quilters are in obtaining perforated patterns of as many designs as possible, know that these will be welcomed by them. The transfer of the design is so easy, with stamping powder, that once used, you will want no other kind, unless we haven't the design you want.

The above assortment consists of the following:

E-14 Feather Border 6 inch, E-15 Tulip Border and Corner 3 inches, E-16 Border 1 1/2 inches, E-17 Tulip Motif 3 inches, E-18 Border and Corner 2 1/2 inches, E-19 Scroll Corner 4 1/2 inches, E-20 Scroll Border 4 1/2 inches, E-21 Feather Border Motif 4 inches.

This package No. 33C contains the above eight patterns already perforated on bond paper and good for many stampings, also some blue stamping powder and instructions. If you want to do neater quilting, send 15c for this package No. 33C to our Quilt department and receive this by mail postpaid.

Giant Sea Serpents
The Smithsonian Institution in Washington is in possession of evidence that sea serpents as large as the biggest of living land snakes once swam in the offshore waters near the present site of the National Capital. This is in the form of a single fossil vertebra of backbone joint, picked up on Belvedere beach, Va. By comparing this one bone with those of living serpents, the United States National museum has estimated that the Virginia sea serpent must have been about 25 feet long and thick in proportion, which would be a very good size even for a python today. Remnants of contemporary sea dwelling serpents almost as large as the Virginia specimen have been unearthed in New Jersey and Alabama.

Scientific Oil Study
The "blood count" for engines, the work of a woman scientist, and something new in automobile tests, has been perfected in Pennsylvania. The new treatment examines engine oil much as a physician studies human blood.

The "liquid test"

... it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

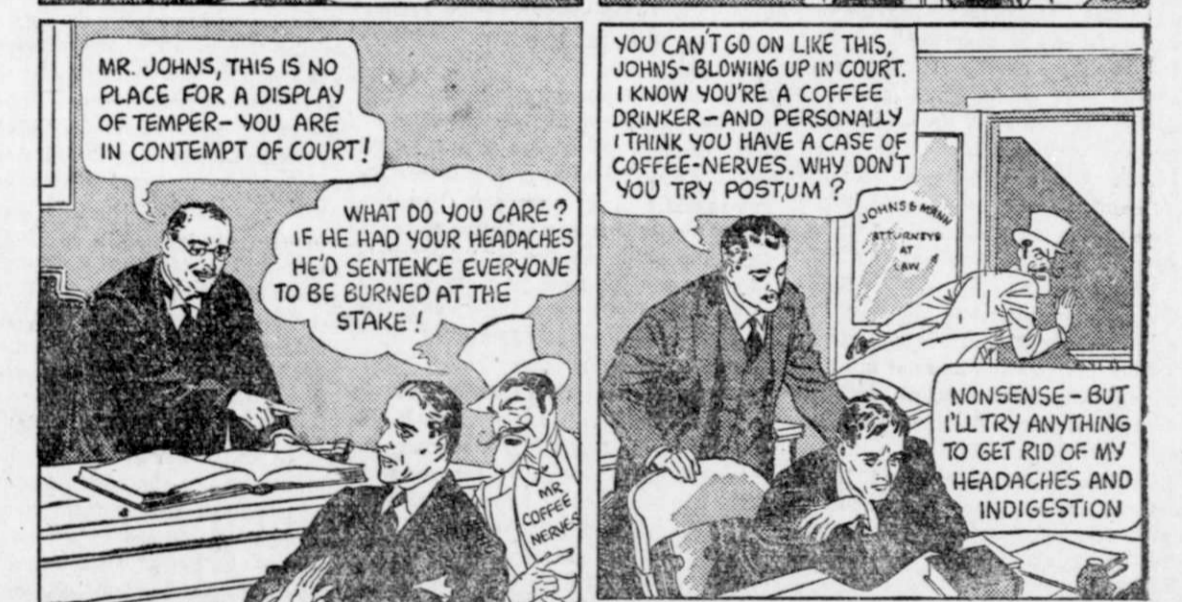

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

GUESS WHAT! THE REGULAR PRICE OF CALUMET BAKING POWDER IS NOW ONLY 25¢ A POUND!

YES, AND THE NEW CAN IS SO EASY TO OPEN!

Doctor Lobsenz appeared at the door with Gamble.

"Through with my patient?" he asked. "If so, I'll get some clothes on him and take him along."

Vance nodded.

"Thank you, Doctor, and good luck. . . And now, Markham, suppose we go downstairs to the library and do a bit of thinking—although it's a beastly hour for mentation. . ."

After Grassi, accompanied by Doctor Lobsenz, had departed, Vance closed the library doors and walked to the large center table.

"There it is, Markham, old dear," he said with a grim smile, pointing to the Chinese dagger before him.

WHAT CEDARBURG FANS THINK OF KEWASKUM

The article appearing below was taken from the front page of the Cedarburg News of last week and pertains to the Cedarburg-Kewaskum basketball game which was played in the local gym on Sunday evening, Feb. 2.

The heading on the article read, "Hostile Audience Contributes to Defeat of Turners at Kewaskum."

"Cedarburg traveled to Kewaskum last Sunday where they were nosed out by the Kewaskum quintet plus obstacles enumerated below.

It was a raging battle all the way, neither team ever leading by more than three or four points.

Stenschke and Hoffmann tied for high scoring honors with 11 points, Kohn and Blank following with six each.

The thrilling prelim also went to Kewaskum by a one point margin, score 17 to 16.

And now, instead of relating the playing story of the games, we're going to accede to the request of local men who were "over there"—we will tell you how the audience "played the game."

Kewaskum "Sportsmanship"

Basketball according to the dictionary is a "game played by five men, etc."—and not an exhibition where five visiting gentlemen are put into a lion's cage so that the home town drug store cowboys can let loose their surplus steam.

On the posters advertising the game were words to this effect: "Come and see Kewaskum down the league leaders." The management meant via fair means, but these rabid Kewaskum rooters have a system all their own, tho it is almost obsolete in this day and age.

Any decision by the referee that in any way ran contrary to the wishes of the home town gang set off a bomb that almost shook down the roof of the hall. Near the end of the game 'po' Mr. Referee, to preserve his hide had to blink his eyes shut on everything, but manslaughter.

When a Cedarburg player attempted to down a free throw, some balcony rogues mistook him for a bowling pin, and seeing no bowling ball or over-ripe vegetables handy, they resorted to spitting at him. And our High school principal used to give us a royal roasting for merely "booin'" when visiting players attempted a free throw.

All these interferences did not seem to guarantee victory, so as a final patriotic gesture these 'win or die' guys swept onto the floor and made life miserable for any player wearing the wrong colored suit.

P. S. The local manager is strongly considering purchasing a set of cast iron uniforms for next year's Kewaskum visit, or, as an alternative, calling out the militia to keep order.—Cedarburg News.

We have published this article so that the citizens and fans of this vicinity can get an idea as to what kind of a town Cedarburg is so far as sportsmanship is concerned. Just because their team met a better team in Kewaskum they seem to think their team was cheated out of victory. They know they were treated perfectly fair—why make up absurd alibis? How could Kewaskum play rough with their light team against Cedarburg's overgrown giants? My, my, warm the milk boys—Cedarburg is coming to town. The only reason we can see why Cedarburg thought Kewaskum was hostile is that they never played before a crowd previously. Oh, well, lots of teams are hard losers.

Mellon, former secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to Great Britain, is now the husband of Mrs. Mary Conover Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Conover of Kansas City. The wedding was a quiet function at the home of the groom's sister in New York.

This Week at Washington

Reports of the doings of the legislators at the Seat of Government by Congressman M. K. Reilly

The past week has not been a very important one in either the House or Senate from the standpoint of legislation. The members of both houses are busy at the present time in committee hearings. All of the big legislative proposals except the new banking bill and the bill amending the Home Loan Bank Board, Home Owners Loan Corporation Act, and the Housing Act are now before the committees and hearings are being held on same.

The Senate was not in session on last Tuesday and the House adjourned this afternoon, Friday, until next Tuesday. There is a strong sentiment among the members of the House and Senate to cut down the session hours and leave the Senators and Congressmen more time to devote to their office work. Years ago, the office work of Congressmen did not amount to much. He received comparatively few letters which were mostly requests for garden seeds and public documents, from his constituents. They were letters that required only a little time to answer and could be answered by his secretary.

In those days, Congressmen were allowed one secretary each and the pay was $125 per month. Now all of the Congressmen have two secretaries and many of them three, and secretarial pay has gone up to about $400 a month. When the writer was in Congress twenty years ago, he received $125 a month from the government for secretarial hire. He was privileged to do what he wanted to with that money. He could hire one secretary or two secretaries or no secretary. The allowance was his to be spent or not as he saw fit. At that time, the writer had two secretaries and every month he had to go down in his jeans to dig up enough money to keep a balanced budget. Now the money for secretarial hire must go to the secretaries and not to the Congressmen. If the Congressman does not hire enough secretaries or does not pay them enough to use up the secretarial allotment, every month, the government is ahead that much. Of course, the Senators have a double allowance for secretarial hire over what Congressmen have. During the last and present sessions of Congress, an extra secretary has been allowed to each senator. It is nothing for a Senator to receive 500 letters a day, while the average mail of Congressmen is about 100 letters a day.

We are living in a new day and a new world as compared with the world day before the World War. Since the World War, the people have come more in contact with their government in Washington than before that day. The fact of the matter is the United States government has become a part of the life of all of our citizens. One good sign of the times is that this tremendous correspondence that Congressmen and Senators receive indicates that people are thinking on government problems. If our government is to survive the "isms" of today and tomorrow, it will have to survive because it has intelligent citizens, able to resist propaganda and distinguish the real Americanism in the ideals of government, from foreign economic and political theories which are being fed out to our people today. The writer is pleased to hear from his constituents and while he may be unable to agree with all the ideas expressed in the letters that come from home, he is nevertheless pleased to get such views and his aim is and always has been to give such communications, as far as possible, his personal attention.

President Roosevelt's recovery program is having some trouble in the United States Senate. The President's aim in his four billion dollar bill was to get away from the dole, and to put people to work. There is no question at all but that the dole system as followed in our relief program since the panic began, has broken down the morale and initiative of millions of our citizens.

The President, in his new relief bill, is endeavoring to get away from the demoralizing influence of handing out money to those unfortunate enough to be out of work, and to substitute for such gifts from the government work necessary work, work that will be helpful in making our country a better place in which to live.

Over in the Senate, the question has been raised as to the additional expense to our government in the substitution of the work method for the dole system. It is claimed by those who have studied the problem that one billion dollars spent as a dole to feed, house, and clothe people will go as far as two billion dollars spent under the public works program in relieving the same number of distressed, while others claim that the difference is much greater and that one billion dollars handed out to relieve people will do the work of three billion in providing jobs for those who, through no fault of their own, are part of our army of the unemployed.

Every week, on Tuesday and Friday, at two o'clock in the afternoon, the President of the United States meets with the members of his cabinet in the cabinet room of the executive office building, an annex to the White House. Formerly, these cabinet meetings were held in the White House, but during Theodore Roosevelt's administration, the White House office building was constructed, and since that time, the active work of the Presidency is done in that building.

The President's cabinet, his close advisors, is made up of ten members who hold office during the pleasure of the President.

During recent years, the Vice-President has become what might be called an ex-officio member of the President's cabinet. The Vice-Presidency as a general proposition has been rather like a fifth wheel on a wagon; all that the Vice-President had to do was preside over the Senate whenever he felt like it, and wait to find out whether or not there was to be a vacancy in the office of the President during his, the Vice-President's, tenure of office.

It was President Harding who decided that the Vice-President ought to have something to do besides preside over the Senate and wait around for the President to get sick or die, so he invited his Vice-President, Calvin Coolidge, to sit in at cabinet meetings. Of course, the Vice-President would have no vote at any such meetings, if some problem should be put to a vote, but he has the opportunity to give his views on any question that might come before the meeting.

President Coolidge continued the practice of Mr. Harding that is, after his first election, and invited Charles Curtis to sit in at the cabinet meetings. President Hoover followed the same custom and Charles Dawes was an ex-officio member of the cabinet. President Roosevelt too saw fit to invite Vice-President John Garner to cabinet meetings.

John Garner, from the standpoint of legislative experience, was the best qualified of any Vice-President we have had for years to offer advice at cabinet meetings. Coolidge, Dawes, and Curtis, who had occupied the position of Vice-President of the United States, and who had had the privilege of being invited to sit in at cabinet meetings, had very little experience comparable to that of John Garner, who had served thirty years in Congress before he became Vice-President of the United States.

Cabinet meetings are very informal affairs. No minutes of such meetings are kept. The members of the President's cabinet, when they are called to consult with their chief, are privileged to smoke if they so desire. President Roosevelt's cabinet meetings are notable for the fact that for the first time in our history a woman, Miss Frances Perkins, occupies a cabinet seat.

In the President's cabinet room have been solved some of the great problems involving our country's life. If these rooms could only speak, they could tell a story of the trials and struggles of our Presidents and their advisors in solving our great problems, in times of war and also in times of peace.

WASHINGTON COUNTY IN DROUGHT RELIEF AREA

Through the efforts of E. D. Byrns, county agent, Washington county has been included in the drought relief area. At the present time he is in Madison and will obtain more information in regard to this form of relief. In general feed loans are made to farmers who have chattel mortgages on their cattle and have exhausted all forms of credit. All applications are subject to investigation by the Rural Rehabilitation Committee consisting of Raymond Lepien, John Mayer, and Mrs. John J. Shinners. These loans must also meet with the approval of the county agent. Before loans can be made a non-disturbance agreement must be signed by all of the creditors of the recipients.

CHICKEN THEFT SUSPECT HELD

Frank Timblin of the Town of Ashford appeared in municipal court at 10 a. m. Friday to answer to a charge of chicken stealing. He is being held at the county jail where he went recently in an effort, it is said, to liberate Emmet Ryan, who is also in jail awaiting trial in circuit court on a chicken stealing charge.

While it is a matter outside of the present charges against the two men, officials, declared Monday that chicken stealing has been practiced in the southern end of Fond du Lac county for a considerable length of time and it is suspected that regular deliveries were made to Milwaukee markets.

Sheriff G. W. Booth of Fond du Lac county planned Monday to make an investigation in Milwaukee to discover whether or not shipments were made by residents under suspicion in the county. Thefts were limited to a few chickens at a time, it was said, so that the owners did not readily discover their losses. One farmer, it was said, believes that he has lost over 100 chickens during the last year.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter.
