

"Fastest Engine in World" Put in Service

This photograph shows the unveiling of the American Locomotive Company works in Schenectady, N. Y., of what is called the fastest engine in the world. It has a rated top speed of 120 miles an hour and already is in service drawing the Milwaukee railroad's new streamline train, Hiawatha, between Chicago and Minneapolis.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

NANNY IS SURE DANNY IS DEAD

THE silvery light of sweet Mistress Moon flooded the Green Meadows and chased the Black Shadows clear back to the very edges of the Green Meadows. It was just such a night as a Meadow Mouse loves, and Nanny Meadow Mouse would have enjoyed it and rejoiced in it and been thoroughly happy but for one thing. The truth is, Danny Meadow Mouse had spoiled that beautiful night for Nanny Meadow Mouse. He didn't know he had, but he had. You see, Nanny was worried and her worry was all on account of Danny.

The newest babies were quite safe in their snug nest, hidden—well, I won't tell you just where it was hidden. That was Danny's and Nanny's secret, so I guess I haven't any right to tell you just where that snug little nest was. If I did they might not trust me again.

Anyway, those newest babies were quite safe, because they were too young to crawl out even if they should waken, which they were not likely to do because their little stomachs were full.

He Certainly Must Be Dead; Nanny Was Sure of It.

Little Meadow Mice are like other babies in that when their stomachs are full they sleep and grow. So Nanny didn't worry about the babies.

The half-grown children had romped and played in the moonlight until they had become so tired that they were glad to curl up in their beds. They were dreaming the pleasantest of Meadow Mouse dreams. So Nanny didn't worry about them. But she did worry about Danny Meadow Mouse. Why didn't he come home? Never had Reddy or Granny Fox caught him? She hadn't seen either of them on the Green Meadows that day, but one of them might have been there long enough to catch Danny without being seen by her. Or perhaps Black Pussy the Cat from Farmer Brown's round, red Mr. Sun would come up to chase them away altogether and a new day would begin. Still no Danny. He must be dead. Nanny was sure of it.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have just taken a job as a waiter in a downtown restaurant. I don't get a big salary; so depend a lot on my tips. Today a man had his meal, and when I gave him a check he said he could not give me a tip, as he only had enough money to pay the check. I'll never make any money that way. What shall I do the next time a man says that to me?

Yours truly, I. SERVWELL.

Answer: The next time a man says he only has enough to pay for his check just take the check back and add it up again.

Danny. It was a dreadful thought. She couldn't get rid of it. If something dreadful hadn't happened, Danny never would have stayed away like this.

Nanny tried to be hopeful. She tried to take a nap, for she was very, very tired. But she couldn't sleep. She couldn't even keep still. She kept creeping out to look along the private little paths she and Danny had made through the grass, hoping each time to see him hurrying home along one of them.

Sweet Mistress Moon climbed higher and higher in the sky and then began to go lower and lower, and the Black Shadows began once more to creep out across the Green Meadows. Soon Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun would come up to chase them away altogether and a new day would begin. Still no Danny. He must be dead. Nanny was sure of it.

IT ISN'T HOME!

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE ocean meets the sky and joins its blue.

The waves are tipped with shredded silver foam.

I gaze upon the sea and think of you. It may be beautiful, but it isn't home.

The splendid city flings its buildings high.

The stars are all in heaven's dome . . .

The lighted windows and the starry sky . . .

It's all so beautiful, but it isn't home!

Across the miles there is a patch of green,

A little house upon familiar loam,

A maple tree, a fence where roses lean . . .

And that is beautiful, because it's home!

ON HUSBANDS HELPING WITH THE DINNER DISHES

THIRTY-NINE and five-tenths per cent of husbands help with the dishes!

That information is the result of a census of various cross sections of a metropolitan homes taken by a large neighborhood department store, and it is in a tone of astonishment, as if it were something unbelievable, that the announcement is made, that over a third of the number of husbands interviewed stated that they help their wives to do the dinner dishes.

The author of the announcement saw a chance for a joke. For in giving the story to the newspapers he deplored the fact that the husbands had not been asked why they helped with the dishes. It was regretted also that no compar-

GOOD THINGS NEW AND OLD

A MOST delicious pie may be made by using prunes with rhubarb. The rhubarb adds the zest to the prunes and the two together make a most delightful combination. If both are cooked, fill a baked shell and cover with a meringue, or prepare the fruit and bake slowly in two crusts.

Fruit Sherbet

Make a syrup of three cupfuls of water and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and boil five minutes; add the juice of one lemon and two oranges with a little of the rind of each and scrape of banana pulp. Peel and cut up bananas and put through a ricer or sieve. Beat the fruit mixture and syrup together, chill and stir in three cupfuls of whipped cream, or the whites of three eggs. Freeze to a soft mush.

Braised New Cabbage

Melt one-fourth of a cupful of sweet fat in a saucepan, add two green apples and two onions finely chopped; cook gently for three minutes, then add one shredded cabbage, three cloves, one-half cupful of vinegar, salt and pepper to season. Cover tightly and simmer until the cabbage is tender.

Tuna Fish Salad

Soak one-half envelope of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water, add three-fourths of a cupful of hot salad dressing and stir until well dissolved. Add one-half cupful of finely diced celery, one minced green pepper, one can of tuna that has been lightly flaked, salt and paprika to taste. Turn after blending well into individual molds, set away to harden. Parse or water cross on top. Serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Summer Squash en Casserole

Take two and one-half cupfuls of cooked summer squash, add three-fourths of a cupful of thick tomatoes, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of grated onion, one-half cupful of seasoned chopped meat, fish or nuts, mix well, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until well browned. Egg plant or carrots may be served in the same manner.

Hoosiers Are Sceptical of Making Desert Bloom

Isalah said, "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Longfellow spoke of great men's sublime lives leaving footprints on the sands of time. Others pushed irrigation projects along the Nile and did what they could to make mesquite and sandy wastes of the Sahara.

Sand possibilities have been brought nearer home by experiments at Rutgers university, where agricultural experts say their efforts to grow roses, sweet peas and other flowers in ordinary sand have met with unqualified success, cites the Indianapolis News.

Professor Charles H. Connors, head of the ornamental horticultural department at Rutgers, says that seashore gardeners, by applying chemical nutrients to the sand, may be able to grow flowers to the very edge of the ocean. They regard sand as the grower, providing it has been enriched with the proper ingredients, and say that roses grown in sand produce a better root system than those in ordinary soil.

Carnations also are said to do better in sand. Nature lovers have cultivated an affection for sand because it is sand and nothing else. They journey to see the dunes of northern Indiana as a vast waste space, shifting with the winds; never the same from day to day.

The charm of a beach comes from the play of sunlight on the sand, the soft and yielding texture under foot and the dazzling whiteness of the vista that is exactly as nature created it.

Growing flowers along the seashore or attempting such ventures in the Indiana dune region is not unlike painting the lily.

WHEN LIVES ARE AT STAKE

You need the same protection that race drivers demand

KELLY CRITTO ON MAY 30, WON the 500-Mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Tires, breaking the track record and driving the entire distance at a rate of 106.24 miles per hour.

This record is an outstanding demonstration of tire efficiency. To go 500 miles in less than five hours on this rough and bumpy 26-year-old brick track, without tire trouble of any kind, demonstrates the strength and blowout protection that Firestone builds into their Gum-Dipped Tires.

AB JENKINS ALSO RECENTLY demonstrated the stamina, efficiency, and blowout protection built into Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. He drove his 5000 pound car over the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, 3000 miles in 23 1/2 hours. This was an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, and average temperatures were as high as 120°, he had no blowouts or tire trouble of any kind.

These records are made possible by special construction features built into Firestone Tires.

Take no chances—protect your life and the lives of others by letting us equip your car with Firestone Tires and give you the Safety and Blowout Protection that race drivers demand.

Before you buy new tires ask yourself these three questions

- 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
- 2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"
- 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me the most mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER No. 1—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.

ANSWER No. 2—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.

ANSWER No. 3—Thousands of car owners report unequalled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Philippine Independence Won After Struggle of Centuries

President Roosevelt Handing Signed Philippine Constitution to Manuel Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate. Inset, Emilio Aguinaldo, Who May Be a Candidate for President.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

IN 1898, when Admiral Dewey's guns had hardly concluded their bombardment of the island, the Philippines were still rumbling over the 10,000,000 inhabitants of the islands who were already demanding complete political independence.

For years from this coming Fourth of July they may get it at last, after a long struggle, both physical and diplomatic. President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed his name in ink to the constitution of the new Philippine government.

So did Manuel Quezon, president of the island senate. Six weeks ago, the members of the Philippine senate of representatives signed it, one by one in his own blood.

Philippine independence has not always been so sure. The struggle had its beginning centuries before the United States ever existed.

The story really opens, so far as the white race is concerned, in the year 1521, when Ferdinand Magellan, that most impossible of all gadabouts, "discovered" the archipelago of the western Pacific. It may be well imagined that Skipper Magellan's heart, with many moons on the open sea, had been depleted their food supply to the extent that the dinner menu consisted of fricassee of native riggings and boiled tongue (of shoe), halled the islands with delight. The native rice and sugar, which would have been just another Tuesday night dessert at Mrs. Gomez's home back in sunny Spain, must have looked to them like a banquet for the gods.

Since Magellan is still there, but not because he fell in love with the scenery, he was killed by natives on the island of Mactan. And what remained of his heart-broken crew continued around the globe without him.

When the boys got back home they were pretty much the toasts of their respective communities and were invited to address the local Kiwanis and Rotary and the Iberian equivalent of what we call the Hot Stove League. Exposed on with berries of hot tamales and rare Castilian wines, they were not above spellbinding wide-eyed seamen with reluctant admissions of their daring deeds. Mixed in with their revelations there was probably a little truth and the word eventually got out that there were Philippine islands somewhere in the Pacific, say about two millions and three fannies square from Barcelona.

Bullied the Natives. At any rate, Spanish sailors of the next generation again found the Philippines, and began bullying the natives into submission in 1565, gaining complete control in 1570. It is doubtful if these Spaniards knew, or anybody else knew until the Rand-McNally map makers got busy, that their new colonial holdings included 7,083 islands—two of them, Luzon and Mindanao, 40,000 and 38,000 square miles in area, and nine others more than 100 square miles apiece.

However, Filipinos, like elephants, never forget, and the idea of complete independence kept rankling in their heads for quite a spell until in 1896 it boiled for in open revolt under Emilio Aguinaldo. The Spanish rulers, pacified, Senor Aguinaldo with threats, promises and goodness knows how many pesetas, and he and his principal lieutenants retired to the heterogeneous obscurity of Hong Kong in 1897, there to plan their subsequent revolt of 1901.

In that year America won the war with Spain and Spain ceded the islands to the United States for $20,000,000. The Filipinos thought they ought to be given independence at that time, and when they failed to get it they broke out again and were not pacified until July 4, 1901.

The United States still later arrested an independence movement by granting them an autonomous government under the Jones act of 1916. The standards were quick to offer their aid to the United States in the World War, and as soon as it was over began a consistent petitioning for independence which has never subsided.

Must Wait Ten Years. They made some headway in December of 1932, when congress passed the Hawes-Cutting bill. This provided that, subject to the approval of the bill by the Philippine legislature, the islands would be allowed to draw up a republican constitution which would have to be acceptable both to them and to the President of the United States. Then, after a period of ten years, the islands would be granted complete independence. During the ten years, exports and the number of Philippine immigrants to the United States would be restricted. After that the islands were to be outside the American tariff wall.

President Hoover vetoed the bill January 13, 1933, on the grounds that it had been selfishly planned to protect American agriculture against Philippine labor and products; it did not satisfactorily discharge American responsibility towards the islanders, who were unready for independence ("Economic independence of the Philippines must be attained before political independence can be successful" was the way he put it); and it would lay the islands open to the dangers of turbulent conditions in the Far East. Congress overrode the veto four days later. The Philippine legislature rejected the bill nine months afterward.

The new constitution was prepared under the conditions of the Tydings-McDuffie bill, which was passed by the last congress and signed by President Roosevelt. Its chief differences from the Jones act are in the manner in which it allows the islands a gradually increased dosage of economic divorce from the United States for their people to taste before they decide finally to cut away all ties on July 4, 1945.

At present all Philippine exports to the United States come in duty free. The Tydings-McDuffie bill provides that in the sixth year of the ten-year commonwealth period a duty of 5 per cent will be levied. This will be graduated annually until at the end of five years the duty would be 25 per cent. Economic experts are generally of the opinion that this would cut terrifically into Philippine exports, some even contending that the islands would be economically ruined even before they gained their complete independence.

Varied Resources. The Philippines are not, as many folks in the metropolitan centers of the states might believe, a nation of elevator operators, bus boys and professional ping-pong players. They raise great quantities of rice, sugar cane, hemp, manila, coconut, corn, tobacco and maguay. Their forestry, fishing and mining is important. They manufacture sugar, cocoa, coconut oil, cigars and cigarettes, chocolate and coffee.

In 1895, before the American market was opened up to them, the exports totaled about $19,000,000. In 1929 it had reached $164,000,000, although everything but sugar slumped to a considerable degree during the depression that followed. While only 3 per cent of the exports reached the United States before the islands became an American possession, 61 per cent of them are today sold in American markets.

The present agreement is not what the Philippines have long hoped for, but in their enthusiasm they have apparently decided it is about all they'll get for in the island plebiscite which followed the signing of the constitution by President Roosevelt, they approved the document by an overwhelming vote. Women voted for the first time in the history of an organized country, as the result of a bill passed by the legislature last December and signed by Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy, former mayor of Detroit.

The new Philippine constitution, which now becomes effective as soon as the existing government is terminated by a proclamation of President Roosevelt, is much like our own constitution, with the following important differences:

The president may serve only one term, six years. He can veto any part of any bill. The legislature, with two minor exceptions, cannot appropriate more money than his budget calls for. The vice president is a member of the cabinet, and cabinet members may speak before the legislature.

class orchestra and a small theatrical company, so that Trevano soon became a rendezvous of the musical world. However, the owner died in 1881 and the castle remained unoccupied for almost 20 years.

"That's all right, old man, I don't mind making an exception in your case."—Stray Stories Magazine.

Finding New Uses for Products of the Farm

A conference between representatives of agriculture, industry and science held at Dearborn, Mich., was devoted to the possibility of producing crops for industrial purposes. The importance of chemistry in converting raw products into useful commodities was stressed.

Growing motor fuel on the farm was pictured as a $5,000,000,000-a-year income builder for future farmers. The land requirement for the production of 25,000,000 gallons of alcohol a year was estimated at 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres. There seems to be no unsolved technical problem standing in the way of utilizing alcohol as a fuel, though there doubtless will be improvements and refinements developed.

Motor fuel is a competitive product. Users of automobiles will continue to utilize the type which furnishes power at lowest cost and greatest convenience. Present supplies of gasoline and those immediately in prospect, together with the efficiency developed in distribution, give it a decided advantage over other fuels. If production should decline and prices increase materially, substitutes will be given greater consideration. With corn selling at $1 a bushel, discussion of its diversion into uses other than for feeding have largely subsided. Those who advocate its conversion into alcohol to be mixed with gasoline for fuel presuppose a decided reduction in prices.

Ethyl alcohol can be made from any farm crop. It is derived largely from carbohydrates. In Europe unmarketable potatoes are utilized largely for that purpose. Much of the molasses, a by-product of the sugar industry, is now converted into alcohol. There is, however, no indication that any crop is grown primarily for that purpose, but materials of low value, or in some instances waste products, are utilized. It probably will be many years before corn will be grown primarily as a fuel crop.

Soy bean oil is extensively used in paints and varnishes. Lined oil has many industrial uses. Tung oil trees are grown in the South in a limited way with prospects of greater expansion. Levulose, a form of sugar, can be made from artichokes or sunflowers. Carastalks have been successfully converted into wall board, slash pine into paper pulp.

New uses for other farm products will be discovered, but the problems of getting production costs low enough, of factories located close to the source of supply to save labor and transportation costs, will have to be solved before commercial activity may be developed.

American agriculture has been conducted upon an export basis. As yet no workable plan of self-sufficiency has been developed. It is a whole something for agriculture, industry and science to co-operate in an effort to develop the market for farm products as any success along this line will add to the standard of living in rural communities and make a wider market for industrial goods. Meanwhile the farms need foreign markets.—Kansas City Times.

Training for Mothers

Essential, Says Atlee

This may not be the best of all possible worlds, but unquestionably it is a man's world. Man made it—Institutions, laws, economies—man continues to dominate it. "Manly" and "virile" are heroic adjectives, and to designate one "an old woman" is a major reproach.

And what about children? It is my considered and honest opinion that the average woman is totally unfit to bring up children. Why should she be fit? She was educated in school and college to be a man, she went out into the world and worked like a man—where was there time or opportunity to learn to bring up her young?

Do you hire anybody off the street to make and tend your automobile? Or train your race horse? Yet we permit any woman with a marriage license to mother and tend children?

If women are to do anything satisfying with their home and children, they must turn to those of their own free will, recognizing there a full outlet for their intelligence, their ambitions. —From "Should Women Be Men?" by B. Atlee, in McLean's.

With Our Neighbors

Items of Interest Taken From Our Exchanges Which May Prove of Value to Our Readers

JAC. GONRING ESCAPES BULLET

CEDARBURG—Jacob J. Gonring of Big Cedar lake had a close call from being hit by a rifle bullet some time ago. Several Milwaukee boys, in camp on the east side of the lake, had gone boating during the evening and fired a bullet from a .22-calibre rifle. The bullet passed through a window at the resort and struck a cigar box behind his bar, barely missing Mr. Gonring. Sheriff Kirsch made an investigation but was unable to learn the names of the boys who did the shooting.

PICK MFG. CO. CASE DROPPED

WEST BEND—According to Associated Press reports coming from Washington D. C., so-called violations of the NRA code have been dropped by the department of justice, because the United States Supreme court had declared the NRA "New Deal" legislation a "Mis-Deal." The case against the Pick Manufacturing Co. of this city which was in Judge Geiger's court in Milwaukee is one of more than 400 cases that have been ordered dropped.

MAIL BOXES DAMAGED

CAMPBELLSPORT—Last week several rural mail boxes were tipped over and damaged on Route 3 out of this village, and on Route 1 a post on which a box was mounted was pulled up and moved to a distance from the owner's farm. The guilty ones are thought to have taken it as a practical joke, not realizing they tampered with government property which carries a state prison sentence. It is hoped it will be stopped before Uncle Sam interferes.

FIRE DAMAGES STORE

FOND DU LAC—Damage estimated at $5,000 to $6,000 was caused Sunday night when fire believed to have started in a storeroom on the second floor spread to the roof and other parts of a building located at 155-160 South Main street. The building has been vacant until recently when a family moved in. The north half of the building is owned by E. C. Fenelon and the south half by Nick Solomita. Chief George Smithers said the fire appeared to have started in a storeroom on the north side of the upstairs. Rebuilding will start at once.

CHEVROLET MEET AT SCHWARTZ

HARTFORD—Nearly five hundred Chevrolet dealers and salesmen from eastern and southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois met at the Schwartz ballroom here last Friday for an all day sales meeting and demonstration. The gathering convened at 10 a. m. and lasted until noon when refreshments were served. Another meeting followed immediately. Following this afternoon meeting an elaborate program in the lines of sales and service demonstrations was held.

MANUFACTURER SUCCEUMS

CEDARBURG—O. H. Hansen, president of the Hansen Machinery corporation of this city, died at his home here on Tuesday after a long illness. He was formerly associated with the Wisconsin Chair Co. of Port Washington until 1922 when the canning machinery division was moved to Cedarburg and a new plant erected. Mr. Hansen had a brilliant inventive mind, all the canning machinery being invented by him. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of the Elks. Great sorrow was felt in the community at his passing on.

DOUBLE WEDDING RITES

THERESA—A double wedding took place at 9 a. m. last week Tuesday at the St. Theresa church in Theresa when the Rev. M. Groff united in marriage Miss Betty Weber, daughter of Mrs. Peter Weber of Theresa and Leander Steger and Miss Alice Dewitz of Brownsville and Myron Steger, sons of Mr. and Mrs. August Steger. A dinner was served for immediate relatives and a dance was given in the evening at Arndt's hall. The Theresa village band also entertained in the evening. Both couples will reside on a farm near Theresa.

RURAL SCHOOL GRADUATION

WEST BEND—One of the most successful rural commencement exercises in Washington county in recent years was held at Rosenheimer's pavilion, Big Cedar lake Sunday, June 2. That spacious auditorium was filled to capacity to witness 158 rural graduates receive a diploma which indicated that they were ready to enter high school. Meyer Rosenheimer manager, transformed his dance hall into a very fitting auditorium for the ceremonies of the day.

GRONNENBURG

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lang and Mrs. Alex. Peters and daughter visited with Ed. Schladweiler and family Monday evening.

The following who received diplomas on Sunday evening at the St. Michaels church were: Arnold Schladweiler, Edmund Thull, Urban Schladweiler, Gertrude Theusch, Lucille Theisen, Ottilla Schladweiler, and Adeline Fellenz.

President Suggests Amendment of Constitution but Asks Stop-Gap Legislation to Permit Continuance of the New Deal Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has treated the "must" program of legislation that will keep the New Deal...

The chief social and economic questions so that the New Deal may be saved from the doom pronounced upon it by the Supreme Court...

We are the only country in the world which has not solved this problem, Mr. Roosevelt said...

That many prominent Democrats will be alienated from their support of Mr. Roosevelt by this pronouncement is certain...

In a letter to a friend in Washington it was revealed that Chief Justice Patankall had decided to resign in order to join with other Jeffersonian Democrats...

Neither of these gentlemen hopes to prevent the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt, but they believe he might be defeated by the polls by a coalition movement.

Of Democratic senators a number, like Smith of South Carolina, Connolly of Texas, Clark of Missouri and King of Utah, frankly expressed their opposition to the President's views.

There is plenty of power, absolute power, to deal with all national problems. We don't need a constitutional amendment nearly so much as we need some one to draw bills in accordance with the Constitution...

HAVING started the country by his proposition for turning his basic law, Mr. Roosevelt changed the basic law to speedy legislation, that might salvage part of the New Deal...

Most of the other changes in the cabinet of the most important was the transfer of Sir John Simon from the foreign office to the home office...

BOUSSON'S French cabinet having fallen almost immediately, President Lebrun had great difficulty finding another premier...

WITHOUT any special ceremony the Supreme court, at the end of its spring session, for the last time walked out of the old senate chamber...

CONGRESS until now appears, will be in session until September, for the President handed to the leaders a

Badger State Happenings

Neenah—Rev. A. Froehle, 70, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church for the last 38 years, is dead, following a major operation.

Shullsburg—Dr. J. W. Harkin, postmaster here since April 1, is dead. He was stricken while driving home from Chicago after attending a ball game.

Kenosha—The widow of W. H. Leifer, former industrial and civil leader, has donated 47 acres of land valued at $60,000 to the city for park purposes.

Madison—The Morrissey bill, levying a tax of 2 cents on each package of 20 cigarettes to raise additional state funds for the elementary schools, has been passed by the senate, 16 to 13.

Madison—The state senate has passed a bill to require the secretary of state to furnish lock nuts with auto license plates to secure them against theft.

Manitowish—Mrs. Anna Strouf, 94, of the town of Gibson, who died recently, left 256 live descendants. They include nine children, 78 grandchildren, 167 great grandchildren and 11 great great grandchildren.

Chilton—Two hardware stores and a general store in the village of Hillbert were looted by burglars, who secured 25 shotguns, several auto tires and a large quantity of clothing, which was carried away in a truck.

Sheboygan—Tony Zunter, 19, an escaped inmate of the Green Bay reformatory, was captured here by Patrolman Ted Husting after a chase of nearly a mile, during which the officer fired two shots at the fugitive.

Eau Claire—Experts here have been puzzling over the discovery of three dead otocypses in the Chippewa river. W. E. Slag, biology instructor at Eau Claire State Teachers' college, was called and pronounced them genuine salt water otocypses.

Superior—A trembling old man walked into the office of the district attorney and said he burned down the frame schoolhouse at Maple 31 years ago. He said he had a grudge against the teacher, that he had been going to church lately and wanted to confess and take whatever punishment the law might give. He was told to go "and sin no more" as the statute of limitations forbade prosecution.

Madison—Charles Goldamer, Abbotford, was elected president of the Wisconsin Farm Holiday association at its annual convention here. Goldamer, former vice-president, succeeds Arnold Gilbert, New Auburn, who declined reelection and was named second vice-president.

Milwaukee—Ernest C. Fielder, 68, state director of federal housing administration, died suddenly of a heart attack while at work in his downtown office. A former Beloit attorney, Fielder was prominent in special relief circles, having served as state referee of the Wisconsin supreme court in several disbarment proceedings.

Madison—A mortgage moratorium law for Wisconsin, containing an added provision for compulsory mediation of foreclosure disputes, was passed by the senate, 19 to 12. The measure, which awaits assembly action, would replace the Donley moratorium law of 1933, which has expired.

Horicon—This community mourns the death of Willard A. Van Brunt, 88, former Horicon manufacturer, who succumbed to injuries received in a fall at Los Angeles, Calif., where he had made his home for several years. Mr. Van Brunt recently gave $282,000 to 94 veteran employees of his farm implement factory here. The body was brought to Horicon for burial.

Milwaukee—Local law enforcement officials are aroused over the action of the state board of control in granting a parole to Isaac J. Rosenberg, former Milwaukee banker, who was serving a sentence in Wauupun prison for violation of state banking laws. District Attorney Zabel, who has fought efforts of Rosenberg to obtain his liberty, claims that the parole is illegal because no notice of application was given to his office, as required by law.

Madison—The Wisconsin chain store tax on gross income of state combines has been nullified by the supreme court. Justice Oscar M. Fritz, in the court's decision, pointed out that since the 1933 legislature enacted the law, the United States supreme court had declared a similar Kentucky statute in violation of the equal rights provisions of the 14th amendment of the federal constitution. Increases in the rate of taxation under this law are not based upon the number of stores but on increases in gross income and therefore are not in proportion to the taxable privilege of operating stores in a chain, he cited. The disputed statute became effective July 29, 1932, and it is estimated that approximately $258,000 paid under protest by chain store operators for a five months period must be refunded.

Manitowish—Tentative identification of a body found in a pond on the Reinhold Kuehl farm near Whitelaw as that of Huey McVegh, Maple Grove, was found to be a mistake when McVegh appeared at the sheriff's office.

Madison—Gov. La Follette's signature to the Blomquist bill has cleared the way for counties to relieve their treasurers of former treasurers of possible liability and to clear tax titles in 1931 and 1933 real estate taxes for 1931 and 1933 were collected without payment of penalties and interest.

Racine—Fred Teckonius, 57, a farm equipment manufacturer, died, on a witness stand in county court here as he was testifying in a hearing for the settlement of his father's estate.

Wisconsin Rapids—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Rebekah assembly, in state convention here, chose Baraboo as their 1936 convention city. J. W. Burkholder, Hudson, was elected grand lodge master and distributed to families on relief throughout the county. Approximately 60 women will be employed.

Madison—Although tuberculosis jeopardized life in Wisconsin less in 1934 than in any year on record, the disease was still an important death cause among all ages, according to the state board of health. There were 1,126 tuberculosis deaths last year.

Platteville—In a new Grant county FERA project 6,000 women workers will be made this summer. They will be made in Platteville and Cuba City and distributed to families on relief throughout the county. Approximately 60 women will be employed.

Badger State Happenings

Manitowoc—Otto Gass, 51, county surveyor for 28 years and city engineer at Two Rivers for eight years, is dead.

Madison—The construction and operation of a dam across Beaver Creek drainage ditch in Juneau county so that water may be furnished to cranberry marshes has been authorized by the public service commission.

Madison—Spring real estate values in Wisconsin this year were still 18 per cent below the pre-war level although during the past year values of farm property have shown a slight upturn.

Beloit—A request that no invocation, benediction or other form of religious reference be included in the Beloit high school commencement exercises this year has been refused by the school board. The petition came from five members of the graduating class, who are affiliated with a local Lutheran church.

Antigo—Eugene A. Weidlich, assistant cashier and trust officer of the First National Bank here, was arrested on a charge of misappropriating $4,216 in trust funds and will go on trial in federal court at Milwaukee. Weidlich has made restitution of all money taken, authorities said.

Elkhorn—June brides and grooms can get all the information on long and happy married lives from the Keefes of Elkhorn. Mr. and Mrs. John Keefe celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary June 2 and Mr. and Mrs. James Keefe their fiftieth on June 1. The Keefes are brothers.

Eau Claire—Experts here have been puzzling over the discovery of three dead otocypses in the Chippewa river. W. E. Slag, biology instructor at Eau Claire State Teachers' college, was called and pronounced them genuine salt water otocypses.

Superior—A trembling old man walked into the office of the district attorney and said he burned down the frame schoolhouse at Maple 31 years ago.
