By WILLIAM C. UTLEY NCOURAGING in this age of oft - appearing governmental deficits is the report of Gov. Blanton Winship of Puerto Rico, on the island territory's activities for the fiscal year 1934-35,

For Puerto Rico, tiny West Indian paradise where some 1,700,000 or more American citizens live under a Stars and Stripes which ripples in the balmy trade winds, closed the fiscal year with a surplus of $606,000, as against a deficit of $279,000 for the preceding

Political strife and the cry for independence, which for some time had been gathering momentum and eventually resulted in the resignation of Gov. Robert H. Gore, who had served since July, 1933, have abated under the two years of the Winship administration until today Puerto Ricans have allowed the greater share of their political ardor to crystalize into a calm, determined, orderly fight for statehood. Hearings on the case for Puerto Rican statehood will be resumed during the next congress. The congressional committee on territories began public hearings in Washington last June on a bill which would allow the island legislature at San Juan to frame a constitution and become the fortyninth state. This is the desire of the coalition party now in power in the island government, which is completely autonomous except for the appointment of a governor by the President of the United States There is still some agitation in the islands, fostered by the liberal party, for complete independence, and there has also been talk of a compromise of the two parties which would seek for Puerto Rico complete autonomy without territorial independence. This latter arrangement would make the island unique politically, would place it somewhere between a territory and a state, and is believed by many authoritative observers to be the likely outcome.

Revenue Collections Are Up.

Despite the lingering depression which has not shown signs of lifting so quickly in Puerto Rico as in other parts of the United States, revenue collections for the fiscal year just closed were more than $12,642,000, an increase of $1,371,000 over the 1933-34 collections, and $1,442,000 more than Manuel V. Domenech, the treasurer, had expected. Municipal finances did not fare so well, and none of the cities. of which there are many on this thickly populated island, built up any sur-

The chief cause for worry lay in trade and commerce, which revealed a decrease of 7 per cent in exports and a 91/2 per cent increase in imports, effecting the lowest favorable balance of trade in eight years. Yet Puerto Rico sends 94 per cent of its exports to the United States, which imported far more foodstuffs-the principal Puerto Rican products-than in many years pre-

Especially worthy of note was the falling off in the export coffee business, despite concerted promotional drives to popularize Puerto Rican coffee in the United States. Where in 1934 the island exported 2,970,000 pounds of coffee, it shipped away only 800,000 pounds in 1935. Imports of coffee for the fiscal year just closed were 1,142,000 pounds empared with only 16,449 pounds the year before. Governor Winship attributes this startling reversal of form to the small size of the 1934 crop.

There was, however, a general feeling of improvement in the governor's report. Not a little of the credit for improvement is given to the Puerto Rican Relief administration, the efforts of which are just beginning to be felt. since its work has not yet reached the height of the campaign to restore to the island a more balanced agriculture.

Small Farmer Suffers.

There are also several localities in which power is now supplied by plants owned and operated by the fnsular government.

Fight Cattle Tick.

A project with the double purpose of protecting Puerto Rican minor industries and furnishing employment will be the campaign to banish the cattle tick and the coconut budrot. This will get $307,000.

Three projects combined aim at the eadjustment of Puerto Rico's principal industry, sugar. The Jones-Costigan act required a cut of 150,000 tons in the island's production of sugar. This made the unemployment problem even worse than it should have been. It abviated the necessity of finding some other use for 75,000 acres of marginal sugar land. The PRRA intends to turn this land into homesteading and crop diversification projects. Hammers will soon ring in the construction of homes, schools and community buildings. The farmers now in the city will be moved out onto these lands and given opportunity to will cost nearly $6,000,000.

Supplementing this project are two others, that of rural resettlement on marginal sugar lands ($1,868,000), and that of resettlement on good sugar lands ($6,500,000). The projects have as one of their goals the co-operative ownership of processing plants and systems of marketing. Eventually it is hoped by this means to diminish the amount of productive and profitable land held by corporations in far-removed localities and build up the security of the independent farmer.

Nor is the ailing coffee-growing industry to be left out in the cold. In fact, coffee, along with tobacco and citrus fruit farms, will receive a larger allotment of funds than any other of the projects, a total of almost $8,000,000. Hurricanes and falling prices have put these farmers into sorry state. This part of the rehabilitation scheme is intended to acquire and redistribute thousands of small parcels of land, which are now struggling under an unwieldy burden of debt, at one-half the appraised value.

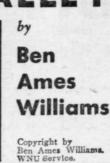

Will Buy Processing Plants.

Under still another project, the PRRA will seek to buy equipment for the processing and preservation of farm and community products. Such equipment would include sugar centrals, coffee mills, warehouses and cold storage plants. The estimated cost of the venture is $4,000,000.

Amid all this bread-and-butter talk, culture will not be overlooked by the beneficent PRRA. Its program calls for a grant of approximately $1,200,-000 to the University of Puerto Rico, a first rate co-educational institution founded more than 30 years ago in Rio Piedras. Originally intended as a normal school, this seat of learning now embraces colleges of liberal arts. law, agriculture and the mechanic arts. pharmacy and the university high school. It is known for its fine work in tropical medicine, tropical agriculture and Spanish and English languages. Graduated from its classes are many of the leaders of island life and, in fact, many prominent persons throughout Spanish America.

The PRRA administration wishes to attain a permanent status, but so far has not been able to secure the necessary approval from Washington. Ordinarily the FERA funds are endorsed only up to June, 1937, but during the last session of congress a bill was introduced by which the funds of PRRA might be extended three years past that date. It didn't pass.

HOSTILE VALLEY

SYNOPSIS

At a gathering in the village of Liberty, Maine, Jim Saladine listens to the history of the neighboring Hostile Valley, and the mysterious, enticing "Huldy," wife of Will Ferrin. Interested, he drives to the Valley for a day's fishing, and to see the glamorous Huldy Ferrin. "Old Marm" Pierce and her nineteen-year-old granddaughter Jenny live in the Valley. Since childhood Jenny has deeply loved young Will Ferrin, older than she, and who regards her as still a child. Will leaves to take employment in Augusta. His father's death brings him back to the Valley, but he returns to Augusta, still unconscious of Jenny's womanhood and love. Bart Carey, something of a ne'erdo-well, is attracted by Jenny. The girl repulses him definitely. Learning that Will is coming home, Jenny, exulting, sets his long-empty house "to rights," and has dinner ready for him He comes—bringing his wife, Huldy. The girl's world collapses. Huldy be-comes the subject of unfavorable gossip in the Valley. Entering his home unlooked for, Will finds seemingly damning evidence of his wife's unfaith-fulness as a man he knows is Seth Humphreys breaks from the house. Will overtakes him and chokes him to death, although Humphreys shatters his leg with a bullet. At Marm Pierce's house the leg is amputated. Jenny goes to break the news to Huldy. Huldy declares she has no use for "half a man," and leaves. Will is legally exonerated. and with a home-made artificial leg "carries on," hiring a helper, Zeke Dace. Months later Huldy comes back. Will accepts her presence as her right. Two years go by. Saladine comes to the Valley. Bad roads cause him to stop at Ferrin's farm, where he meets Huldy. Saladine, caught in heavy rain, takes refuge at Marm Pierce's. Bart Carey arrives, carrying Huldy, whom he claims had fallen from a ledge, and seemingly is dead. Marm Pierce de-clares her dead, but while Huldy and Jenny are alone, the woman, with her last breath, asserts Will killed her. Horrified, Jenny decides to tell no one of the accusation. She goes to notify Will. With him Jenny returns to Marm Pierce's. She has told him of Huldy's death, and he is bewildered. Zeke Dace cannot be found. Saladine informs Sheriff Sohier, by phone, of Hul-dy's death. The sheriff comes to Marm Pierce's farm.

The sheriff asked: "Carey, you got any idea who'd want to-hurt Mis' Ferrin?"

Bart hesitated. "I wouldn't go to become owners of the little farms say," he said. He added, with a deep upon which they settle. The project reluctance: "Not unless it was Zeke. Zeke Dace, works for Will. Z. kind of crazy about her, and-jealous of her." He might have got mad at her." Yet he added honestly: "But Will don't 'low that Zeke would touch her.'

"Where is Zeke?" the sheriff asked. Bart shook his head. "Dunno. Nobody's seen him sence." Marm Pierce came out of the dining room. She told the sheriff she was glad to have him here. He nodded, and asked slowly: "Was Mis' Ferrin dead when she got here, ma'am?"

"As good as," the old woman as sured him. "She was all broke to pteces, and bled white, and she died before I got around to it." "Didn't come to?" "No," Marm Pierce told him. "No. The sheriff sighed as though discouraged, and Marm Pierce asked: "You didn't know Huldy, did you, Sheriff?" "I've heard tell of her," he answered. "It was account of her," Bart reminded them, "that Will killed Seth Humphreys. I dunno as I blame him. I dunno as he went to kill Seth: but Seth had a gun, and Will, with his leg shot to pieces, he had to hang on to Seth's neck or get another bullet in him. But Huldy was back of that." "I heard she'd left Will, sence," the Sheriff reflected.

"She come back," Bart explained. 'She took a shine to Zeke and declded to stay."

"Will take her back, did he?" "Dunno as he could help it," Bart confessed; and he said slowly: "Will he always stood a lot from her, Sheriff! No matter what she did, I dunno as he'd-harm her." He added harshly: "But if he did, I wouldn't blame him! The old woman's sharp eyes fixed on him. "You trying to let on that Will hrough it, Granny, the same as you." "I can see a-plenty," she said crisply. The sheriff said, floundering: "I'd like to talk to this Zeke. Might be he'd know something. Maybe Will, he'll ferch him. Looks like I'd have did return, they were alone This hour she spent with Will was for Jenny deeply comforting. Huldy's accusation had faded into a cloudy unreality, like the substance of a dream. But Jenny now, more than any other emotion, felt a grievous sympathy for Will, for the remorse she knew he must endure; and she strove in small ways to reassure and comfort him. not by words, but by her steady supporting presence at his side.

They tramped in silence through the woods, the lantern swinging in Will's hand making the black shadows of the trees along the way swing like somber pendulums. They crossed the brook, and climbed the steep trail, and came up through the orchard to the barn; let the cows into the tie-up and secured them there. Till she saw the sheriff there. When they came in, she felt her strength drain away. But then, and by Will himself, her foreboding was turned into fearful certainty; for Will said to this man:

"Why, Sheriff, what fetched you here?" The sheriff hesitated. "I kind of hoped you'd bring this Zeke Dace back with you," he said, evasively. Will shook head. "I dunno where Zeke's got to," he admitted in troubled tones. "He wa'n't to home." And he persisted: "But Sheriff, what fetched Jenny was breathless, waiting for the answer. Then Saladine said gravely: "I sent for him, Will."

Will stared at Saladine. "What for?" ne protested, bewildered.

And then the sheriff said: "Why Will, the thing is, it looks to everybody as if maybe Mis' Ferrin didn't just fall off of that ledge. They think someone maybe throwed her off." Jenny's throat constricted strang-lingly. The hounds were on the trail. As though from far away she heard Will stammer: "Killed her, you "Something like that."

Will stood with his head bowed. "I guess not," he said firmly at last. 'Who'd do that?" "I was thinking maybe this Zeke Dace," Sohier suggested.

But Will shook his head. "No Sheriff," he insisted. "Whatever did happen, it wa'n't Zeke. He wouldn't go to hurt her." And he continued half to himself: "There might have been some to hurt Huldy: but not Zeke! Why, I'd as soon think I did it myself," he said.

Jenny felt the shock of a great blow. Then Bart chuckled; and Will turned to look at him. "What's the matter, Bart?" he asked. "What's funny?" "What you said," Bart told him. 'That's a joke, Will. I mean, to think he added hotly: "Not that anybody'd blame you! She needed it!" He spoke to the sheriff. "Anyone around here will say the same!"

Will moved a little toward him. "I don't take that kindly, Bart," he said. "I don't want that kind of talk from you or anybody. Not about Huldy. Not now."

There was, briefly, silence; but after a moment the sheriff said, half to himself, in almost querulous tones: "It's a pity she didn't come to long enough to tell what happened to her!" And it seemed to Jenny suddenly that this familiar kitchen was very small, and crowded, and stifling hot. She felt strangled, and her hand flew to her lips, and stark terror choked her. Then she saw Marm Pierce watching her with eyes suddenly keen and shrewd; and she felt smothered, and shrank back into the corner by the door.

After the sheriff spoke, there was silence for a moment; then Jenny had a respite for Joe Matthews, the undertaker, came out of the dining room. He spoke to Will.

"There, Will," he said. "I've done all that needs doing tonight; and if you want, I'll carry her home." He hesitated, added: "But if you take my advice, let ber lay here tonight. I can tend to everything a sight better in the morning." Marm Pierce said: "She's welcome

o stay, Will!" Will nodded. "Well, likely that's ensible," be agreed.

Jenny, while their attention was thus turned away from her, opened the door and stepped out on the porch, grateful for the taste of cool, moist air. In the kitchen she heard the sheriff say doubtfully: "I guess, Joe, you'll want to go along home new. I don't know as I ought to leave yet, though, I'd like to see this Zeke Dace, first. But and while Jenny held the lantern, Will I wish't you'd bring Doc Harris in the morning. I want him to look her over." When presently the undertaker nerveless.

"Hot in there, ain't it." And in a lower tone: "Don't you worry, Jen.

He too had seen her terror then! It must have been plain, for them all to see. But even as she thought this, her; since clearly, if Will must live she realized suddenly that she was no with the secret knowledge that he had longer afraid, and wondered why. And killed Huldy, the world could never then, without speaking to Bart, she be all right for him again; and she came quickly back into the kitchen where were Marm Pierce and Will. Her arms, and tell him that she knew, and hand touched Will's sleeve, and peace held him blameless. But she per- filled her; and a deep enlightenment

"Jim," he said they came back through the wet woods "Looks like you could figure sometogether, she decided that this was a thing out of this business. I guess you matter none should ever know. And was the last one to see Mis' Ferrin Saladine shook his head. "I don't see into it at all," he confessed.

Bart turned to Will. "How about you, Will?" he urged. "Didn't you hear her screech when she fell? I'd have said everybody in a mile could have heard that. It sounded mighty loud to me," Will shook his head. "The noise wouldn't carry up to the farm, with the hill between, and the trees." He looked at Saladine. "I mind," he said, "when you went off with Huldy, Zeke he come out of the shed like he'd go along after you. I stopped him, made him stay behind." And he continued after a moment: "Seems like I kep him there a sight longer'n it'd take you to get down to the brook. Supposing you didn't stop any time on the ledge."

"I didn't," Saladine said. There was silence for a moment:

then Will spoke again, gropingly. "By the time I figured you'd be gone," he explained, "I left Zeke and went into the house; but when it come on to rain, I wondered where Huldy was I come out on the porch and yelled for Zeke, but he didn't answer, so I went hunting them. I started to go down the path to the brook. But then I decided there wa'n't any use in that." He added with a glance at Saladine: "I see tracks where you'd gone down, where your boots had slipped. . . .'

Saladine spoke quickly. "Boots? I've got shoes on. It was someone else," he insisted. "It wa'n't me." Will said stubbornly: "It was boot tracks that I see. Somebody with boots on had gone down the trail."

And Bart spoke. "Guess Zeke had boots on, didn't he?" Will considered, and he nodded. "Likely," he agreed. "Yes, he did. I mind, now. He did." The sheriff stirred. "The way it looks to me," he decided, 'Zeke's the one to find; and we ain't likely to find him, long as we're setting here!" "Nor you can't find him outside." Marm Pierce cried sharply. "Show some sense. Sheriff! You couldn't see Zeke ten feet away, a night like this, if he was a mind to hide. Set down. you'd hurt Huldy," he explained, and Use your head, 'stead of your feet! Use your eyes!"

"What good's my eyes going to do me here?" he urged. "There's been enough to see, if you wa'n't blind," she told him: and she looked briefly at Jenny. "Jenny," she said sharply. "You were almighty scared a while ago. I think you know something more'n you've told. You was down brook this morning. Did you see anything, hear anything at all?" Her tones were insistent.

Jenny, though her heart was pounding, spoke after a moment steadily enough. The way was clear before her now, all doubts resolved. But she only said: "I told you I heard someone talking, in the woods."

Marm Pierce protested frascibly: "Nothing in that to scare you!" She came closer to the girl. "Jenny, I can see more than most; but I can't see everything. What was it scared you, a while ago? When the sheriff said that about wishing Huldy had come to, before she died? What was it, Jenny?" she demanded. The girl smiled slowly, as at some secret thought. "Go on, Jenny," said old Marm

Pierce. "Tell the truth and shame the devil!" Jenny look at Will's bowed head, and her smile suddenly was radiant as the sun. "It don't mean a thing to me now," she protested softly. "Because I can see it wa'n't true." "What was it, Jenny?" the old woman insisted. "Huldy did come to, for a minute, before she died," said Jenny then. Marm Pierce cried in a deep incredulity:

"Jenny, she never did!" And Bart exclaimed: "She couldn't, Jenny! Why, she was as good as dead before ever I got her here!"

Jenny repeated slowly: "She did, anyway!" And for a moment she said no more. She stood near the cabinet over the sink, where knives and forks and cooking dishes were stowed away. Bart was b the door into the shed. Marm Pierce was between Jenny and the stove; and Sheriff Sohier sat in front of the oven with his greatcoat loose about him.

Will was beyond the stove, near the other door, impassive, waiting.

Saladine, watching Jenny, thought she seemed in this moment to wear a mantle of grace. She looked at Will, and her eyes held his, and her tone was gently mirthful. "She told me you did in Will," said

Jenny, with a smile on her lips, and her glance serene. Bart uttered a low ejaculation; but Marm Pierce spoke in brisk insistence. "How come you didn't call me?" "I didn't want you," Jenny told her gently.

"The more fool you!" said Marm Plerce briskly, her patience near the breaking point. "What be opened?" she demanded.

The sheriff spoke heavily. Pierce, you let her tell it her ow way," he urged. So Marm Pierce with silenced; and Jenny's eyes turneagain to Will. The big man shook an swayed where he stood, as though this that Jenny had to say had struck him

Dairymen Not to Have More Cows

Milk Production Expected to Increase Due to Better Feed Conditions.

There will be no marked increase in number of milk cows on farms over the next two years, but milk production is expected to increase in response to better feed conditions, ac- the Parents' Magazine, "Not only in cording to the annual outlook report of the bureau of agricultural eco-

Stocks of dairy products are reported larger than a year ago, and with prospects for increased production during the late winter, the total supplies of dairy products will be larger than a year ago.

Farm prices of butterfat are reported higher now in relation to feed grains than a year ago, and further increase is in prospect. Farm prices of butterfat are low in relation to meat animals and are likely to continue relatively low during 1936, says the report.

This price relationship will tend to check dairy production in areas where shifts are most easily made from dairy to meat production.

The number of milk cows increased steadily from early 1928 until the spring of 1934 when drouth and the general shortage of feed caused a decline. On January 1, 1928, there were 22,129,000 milk cows, and a year later there were 26,185,000. On January 1, 1935, there were 25,100,000, and in January, 1936, there will be about 24,500,-

The bureau's dairy correspondents all over the country report farmers are planning to increase their dairy herds, but actual increases during the next year or two seem likely to be small. The growth of population during the next year or two, it is expected, will be proportionately greater than the increase in number of milk cows. This will tend to make conditions slightly more favorable for dairying.

See Soy Bean Progress

in Various Industries Moving about these days, it is impossible to avoid the soy bean, even if one wanted to. In Dearborn we saw car parts being stamped out of soy bean meal; also we were served soy bean muffins. Last summer we attended a picnic where baked soy beans were served. Good, too, notes a writer in the Country Home.

The vegetable soys we grew in our own garden were a decided success from the standpoint of edibility and resistance to the Mexican bean beetle They came along later than ordinary string beans, and have to be shelled like limas, but the family liked the flavor. Undoubtedly they can be improved by breeding to make them earlier and heavier-yielding.

Nearly 5,500,000 acres of soy beans were planted in the United States in 1935 for harvesting, almost a third more than in 1934. The consumption of soy bean oil for paints, soaps, vegetable shortening, linoleum and oilcloth, glue and printing inks, to name but a few uses, is increasing. In all, more than 300 widely assorted uses for the soy bean have been found. Supply may temporarily run ahead of demand, but the future of this lucrative legume, the acreage of which in 30 years has increased a hundredfold, seems boundless.

Try "Danish Red" Cattle

A new breed of dairy cattle, developed within the last 50 years, is to be used in breeding experiments by the Waseca branch of the Minnesota Experiment station, in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture. The cattle came originally from Denmark, but the 22 heifers and two bulls to be used in the Waseca experiments were imported from the Virgin islands, West Indies. They are known as "Red Danish," and rose from a foundation of native Scandinavian red cattle, improved with selections from the leading breeds of continental Europe. The heifers in the shipment to be sent to Waseca are each two years old, and the bulls are yearlings. Mature Danish Red cattle are of medium height, weigh from 1,100 to 1,200 pounds, and range in color from light red to a deep cherry red. The dams of the heifers in the shipment averaged 525 pounds of butterfat a year, and the dams of the sires averaged 622 pounds. The dam of one of the two bulls averaged 768 pounds, and the dam of other bull strange crosses amongst the members of the cucurbit family, which includes pumpkins, squashes, melons, cucumbers, etc. It is well known that most of the cucurbits will cross quite freely with one another and most of the freaks reported are quite within the realm of the expected. The ordinary squash crosses quite freely with the pumpkin. In fact if any of this family are grown in close proximity one gets a weird mixture the following year.

Strange Garden Crosses Every year reports are received of

Feeding Wheat to Sheep Sheep with good mouths may be fed whole wheat, although best results are obtained with fattening lambs when wheat is coarsely ground, says H. C. Moffett of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Sheep seem to do better on racions which contain wheat in combination with corn than on a ration of wheat alone, although they will do well on a grain ration of wheat alone. When fed to lambs, coarsely ground whent is usually considered to be slightly inferior to shelled corn.

You Must Govern Self Before You Can Guide Your Offspring

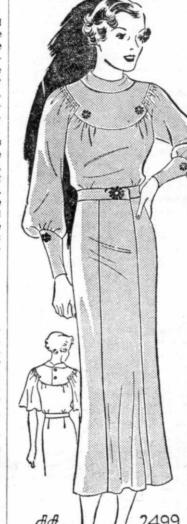

Young Follow Example Set by Parents, Psychologist Shows.

"He's a chip off the old block," you say, little realizing, perhaps, how squarely you are hitting the nail on the head. According to an article in matters of temperament can the origin of a child's problem be traced to the parent but in the realm of attitudes there is very often a definite relationship."

"The major problems of divorce, discordant homes, widowhood, illness and other serious situations are reflected in the maladjustments of the children," in the opinion of Helen Sargent, supervisor of the psychological clinic, Northwestern university. Admitting that the roots and branches of such problems are so far reaching that each requires extensive study and individual solution, Miss Sargent declares:

"There are many less apparent connections between the ways in which adult members of the household

choose for meeting their lives and certain trends which appear in High-Tensioned Mother. The psychologist calls our attention to the "little terror" in the home. whose mother has been warned he has a nervous temperament and must not be overstimulated. She follows expert advice to the letter-makes him rest before going to bed, forbids him exciting radio programs, etc. But Sonny continues to grind his teeth, toss in bed, to "raise cain" in general during the day hours. Miss

Sargent asks us to watch his mother

"With studied quiet she asks him to stop banging on the table while she is telephoning, then in a voice tense with annoyance tells the grocer what she thinks of the peas he sent yesterday. She arranges a simple coutine for her son but herself rushes from one task to the next, creating an atmosphere of crackling electricity wherever she moves."

Mother, Daughter Egocentric. Dorothy's another example. Miss Sargent points out the poor child simply can't or won't make friends and it worries mother. Yet mother

"I never have liked many people . . When I'm with a group, I always wish to get back home . . . I don't miss people . . . I have my family." Miss Sargent's theory is that if mother is to find out what's wrong with Dorothy, she must search her own character. "Mother must determine why her life has become so egocentric that she is content to do without friendly contacts that are a vital part of the life of the average human being."

The article clears up a number of points which must puzzle plenty of parents. Its theme song is, before you try to guide your child, you must be able to govern yourself. You must meet your own problems and find a solution or you simply can't map out the program that will benefit your offspring.

Congress Opens and President Delivers His Message at a Night Session-Neutrality and Bonus Are Due for Speedy Action.

> By EDWARD W. PICKARD @ Western Newspaper Union,

CONGRESS began a session that and calm, as administration leaders had predicted, but long and lively. Right at the start radios. This required a special rule in the house for without it that body can meet but once a day; and the minority leaders made no considerable objection. But Chairman Fletcher of the Republican national committee was so aroused by Mr. Roosevelt's plan that he demanded equal time on the national radio chains for a Republican reply. Mr. Fletcher was sarcastic in his comments, saying:

"The President's decision to dramatize his message and to bring down to the level of a political speech his constitutional right and duty to address the congress on the state of the ful delegation of legislative authority Union, is understandable in the light of past performances."

Senator Dickinson of Iowa denounced what he called "an attempt to use con- sition in some other respects is not gress as the sounding board for a without merit, yet the court is not congrand stand play by the President," but Senator Borah said he had no ob- to the constitutionality of the act to jection to the plan and no criticism to warrant the court in granting a tem-

Anyhow, the President went ahead with his program and in his message gave his view of the nation's present condition, naturally holding that the New Deal was proving a success.

Two major issues that call for quick consideration by congress are neutrality and the veterans' bonus, The existing neutrality law expires on February 29, and the President and his advisers have determined that a new law shall be passed which will give him broad discretionary powers with regard to shipments, loans and credits to belligerents. There is in congress a strong group, headed by Senators Clark of Missouri, Vandenberg of Michigan and Nye of North Dakota and Representative Maury Maverick of Texas, that demands extension of the present mandatory neutrality law. Presumably the new measure will be

Speedy passage of bonus payment legislation is expected, for its proponents are determined and vigorous. Officials of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans have just agreed on a bill which will include these pro-desire to cash their certificates may draw interest upon the maturity value thereof (less principal of loan, if any), to be paid thereon from a date to be specified. Provision for issuance of special government obligations in lieu of adjusted service certificates to the value of about a half a billion dollars now held as security by the United States life insurance reserves account.

The veterans' organizations estimated their united proposal would entail a cash expenditure of approximately $1,000,000,000, rather than the $2,200,000,000 generally accepted as the cost of payment.

 $N_{000,000}^{\rm EW}$ tax levies of more than \$350,000,000 a year went into effect on New Year's day, these being the result of delayed tax rates passed at the last session of congress. The heaviest is from the unemployment insurance and old age pensions act, which is expected to raise about \$240,000,000 in taxes on industrial pay rolls. Other new taxes include:

Raising of individual returns, $50,-000,000,

Corporation tax boost, $40,000,000. Gift tax increase, $25,000,000.

Intercorporate tax levy, $30,000,000. Revision of the personal holding company and corporate liquidation tax provisions of the tax program will increase the country's tax bill. The Treasury department has made no estimate of such income.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, on his arrival in Washington for the opening of congress gave out the welcome statement that no new general tax legislation would be pushed through during this session. Said he: "I don't look for it and I don't think it is in the realm of possibility." Adoption of a man-

Many house members agreed with gives promise of being, not short | Harrison as to taxes. It wouldn't be good policy to pass such measures this session for there will be elections in

435 congressional districts in 1936. Pat Harrison took a crack at the Liberty league and its legislative program offered to congress. The league, he said, was "ready to take over the legislative and judicial functions" of the national government and might be before a joint night | magnanimous enough to take over the executive branch as well. The senator called the league a "lobby" and described its statements as "plutocratic propaganda."

> FEDERAL JUDGE CHARLES J. BRIGGLE of Peoria, Ill., ruled that the Federal Alcohol Control administration act is constitutional, the decision being made in a test case brought by a Peoria distillery company. The alcohol administration closed the distillery, asserting it held no basic permit at the time the old code was outlawed by the Supreme court. The company held it did hold such a permit and applied for a new one.

> Judge Briggle denied the plea for an injunction to force the administration temporarily to retract its decision on the application for a basic permit In his decision he said:

"The former objections to the wrongwith reference to the so-called 'code' provisions now has been obviated by this act, and while the plaintiff's povinced that sufficient doubt exists as porary injunction."

THAT may be expected from El-Laborite senator from Minnesota, is indicated in a radio speech he made to the National Capital. He declared he believed that capitalism is doomed, and urged a much larger measure of public ownership and "production for use rather than for profit." "I am convinced," he said, "that nothing short of social ownership of key industries can save us. Inasmuch as it has been demonstrated that we can produce enough for all if our productive plant is used wisely, society must take over that plant and our financial sysem as well and operate them in the interests of all the people because big business definitely refuses to do so." Mr. Benson, who has been serving as state banking commissioner, was appointed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson to complete the term of the late Senator Thomas B. Schall. He will serve until December 31, 1936. He has been a Farmer-Laborite since the birth of that party and before that was active in the Nonpartisan league in Minnesota.

FRANKLIN C. HOYT has resigned as federal alcohol administrator and his resignation has been accepted by the President with the usual exressions of regret. Mr. Hoyt cited his poor health and other personal reasons to explain his action, but in his letter to Mr. Roosevelt he plainly indicated that he was dissatisfied with the liquor control setup.

IRS EUGENE TALMADGE, wife of the governor of Georgia, has joined Alfred E. Smith in declining an invitation to the White House. Mrs. Roosevelt asked her to be her guest the afternoon of January 8, the day before a meeting of the Democratic national committee in Washington. Governor Talmadge, a hot opponent of the New Deal, was to attend the meeting, but his wife told Mrs. Roosevelt that her cotton plantation in Telfair county demanded her attention.

"I have to get my farm started on madge to the reporters. "The first few weeks of the year are a busy time."

NEW DEALERS speak scornfully of the Presidential poll conducted by the Literary Digest, but everyone is eager to see what it reveals. The latest returns show a still further decline in New Deal popularity. Out of a total of 1,370,774 votes received, 828,-929 answered negatively the question "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" This brought the negative percentage to the new high figure of 60.47 per cent. The last preceding percentage was 58.51.

Eleven of the thirteen southern states continued solidly New Deal. Only Florida and Oklahoma voted against it. The twelve middle western farm states continued balloting more than 3 to 2 against the administration. The Rocky Mountain states, with the single exception of Utah, contributed substantial majorities against the New Deal, as did four of the six New England states, which were voting 3 to 1 against Roosevelt.

WELVE persons, nine of them passengers, perished when the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum crashed in the Mediterranean off Alexandria, Egypt. The only survivor was Pilot Vernon G. Wilson, who was taken from the water in a critical condition. Among the victims was one American, James C. Luke of Philadephia, an oil engineer on his way

FROM his field headquariers ... to the League of Nations a vigorous protest against the war methods of the invading Italians. The emperor charged specifically that Italian flyers, in raining explosives on the southern army of his son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, near Dolo, used poison gas and destroyed a Swedish Red Cross ambulance laden with sick and wounded. A special meeting of the Swedish Red Cross was held in Stockholm to take action in this matter.

The Italian government in Rome asserted the aerial bombardment was fully justified by the alleged beheadng of two Italian aviators by the Ethiopians after the flyers had crashed at Daggah Bur in Ogaden. The communique also said it was well known that "Ethiopian chieftains take shelter Banks were blown off in the explosion under Red Cross signs when they see of a dynamite cap. She was pounding Italian airplanes."

Fierce fighting was going on along the northern front in Ethiopia. In Addis Ababa it was claimed that one decided victory, but there was evidence that others of his units had suffered reverses.

DISPATCHES from Addis Ababa said reliable sources there disclosed the terms on which Emperor Haile Selassie had authorized his delegation at Geneva to discuss peace. They were thus stated:

Withdrawal of Italian troops from Ethiopia; recognition of the African empire's sovereignty; payment of indemnity by Italy: delimitation of East African boundaries between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies by a league of nations committee, and foreign economic, administrative, and financial aid and advice for Ethiopia only on the condition there -would be no Italian influence.

DECLARING that all America is menaced with violence by the Communists, the Uruguayan government severed relations with the government of Soviet Russia; Minister Alexander Rinkin and his staff were handed their passports, and the Uruguayan charge d'affaires was recalled from Moscow. The decree, signed by President Gabriel Terra and all members of the cabinet, asserted that Montevideo was the headquarters of Communists who were plotting uprisings in all South America countries, and quoted the Brazilian charges that the abortive rebellion there in November was instigated by the Soviet government and that the Montevideo legation was its intermediary.

Dr. Jose Espalter, Uruguayan foreign minister, said:

"We have proof that Montevideo was the center of a gigantic Soviet expansionist plot and that Minkin was organizing a revolution in Uruguay for next February or March."

Uruguay is the only South American nation that recognized the Soviet Russian government.

WITHOUT waiting for a ruling by the Supreme court on the validity of the Tennessee Valley authority act, Senator Norris of Nebraska, father of that and much other advanced legislation, has prepared a bill for a Mississippi Valley authority along the same lines as the TVA but immensely greater in scope. He intends to introduce the measure soon in congress. It would embrace more than half of continental United States, including all the vast plain between the Alleghenies and the western continental divide and from near the Canadian border to the delta of the Mississippi; only the Tennessee valley would be omitted from the plan. Norris said it was an expansion of his former plan for a Missouri valley authority. Flood control would be its chief goal, he disclosed, but it also would direct the development of navigation, irrigation, hydroelectric power, soil conservation and reforestation. Like TVA it would be managed by a three-man directorate. The cost is not stated. Congress would vote funds from year to year as the work pro-

CATHEDRAL LOOT

IN THE shadow of Mount Taylor, near the old road house and stage station on the Butterfields Central Overland route, a treasure is hidden. The old stage route dates back many years, but the treasure dates back still farther, to the days when Old Mexico 45; painters and decor

Don Gonzales was a Mexican. He came north to live, and he built an adobe house near what is now Bluewater. Here he settled down, raised sheep, and made friends with the Indians.

and New Mexico were one.

Just before the Don came up into that country, there had been trouble custom that is receiving a in the south. One of the great cathedrals had been looted, and bandits does aid digestion and sate were abroad. The story traveled a tain craving for sweets little more slowly than the Don did, heavy meal when you, but it reached his neighborhood after a while, and it, too, settled down. It another mouthful, was said that Don Gonzales had the loot from the church. No one saw it, the coffee in the living room but rumor persisted that it was some- around with the cigarettes, where around that adobe ranchhouse.

The Don finally died, and those who lived nearby would doubtless have investigated, but Apaches swept down and across the land, and everyone was ly in Hawaii, America's mi too busy with the invading hordes to hunt for treasure.

It was in 1898 that a certain rancher came into the country to live, and ne rode over to the old Gonzales place one day. He went into the adobe produces close to 1,000 mg house out of curiosity, for there is a!ways something attractive about an into the United States tre old ruin of the sort, and began looking about hlm. The fireplace was choked with debris, and rags hung down from the chimney.

Why he pulled at the rags, the rancher probably could not have told. Why does one aimlessly pull at such things? He was no doubt prepared for a slide of dusty debris, but certainly he dld not expect what he foundan oil painting rolled up and hidden in the apparently solid wall!

The rancher's appreciation of art was not great. The painting was a curiosity to him, and nothing more. Accordingly he sold it to an Indian trader for a few dollars, and the trader, not much better informed, passed it on to an El Paso dealer for a few dollars more. The El Paso man, however, knew that he had a valuable picture in his hands. He sent it to New York, where it was found to be a masterpiece of religious painting, a product of the golden age of Spanish art, and it finally was sold to a wealthy man for his private collection, bringing a price of $40,000. Rumor again flew to Bluewater.

the old adobe traveled from near and far to search But the painting was all that has ever been found, and the lost loot of the Mexican cathedral still stays hidden beyond the sight of man. There is other hidden treasure of the same sort in Arizona. Once in a while some fortunate person accidentally unds some of it, to prove that it really exists. For instance: Joe Walsey, a cowboy, was riding after stray cattle on the Box X ranch in Graham county. Arizona in 1907. He happened to notice a dead tree propped up by four large rocks, with a shovel handle protruding from the trunk of the tree.

Walsey dug below this monument, and found an iron chest containing old Spanish coins, worth $40,000, and gold vessels whose value could not be estimated on account of their exquisite workmanship.

It is thought that the chest must have been hidden by Mexican padres during some one of the many uprisings which have troubled the Southwest, or plse that it represents loot from some Mexican church, brought north and buried by the robbers, who may have been killed before they could return for it.

DESERT GOLD

T SIX-MILE station in the Call-A T SIX-MILE station in formla desert, in the year 1894, a prospector was found, old, tired, and Gas Pressure May Cause crazed from thirst. His name was Golder, and he carried with him three large nuggets, whose price has been fixed at the odd sum of $3,654. Borax wagon teamsters, who discovered the old man, took him to Mohave, and here he was nursed back to a semblance of. health.

After Golder recovered somewhat, he tried to draw a map of the location where he had found the ore. He had been out of water for three days, he said, and his burros could go no farther, so he turned them losse. He had climbed a hill, had seen some trees about five miles away, and on descending the mountain in their direction he had found a gravel bed full of nuggets.

Searchers went out to find this new location, guided by his story. They found his burros, dead from heat and thirst. They found the hill he described, too, twenty-five miles from the nearest water at Red Rock. But no trees were visible from its summit. and no gold lay at its foot. Golder had wandered in mind as well as body, and the place where he found his precious handful of gold has never been discovered.

David Crockett

Thus the Republic of Texas came into existence. But the revolution in Texas did not end on that date any more than any earlier revolution ended on July 4, 1776. It remained for another man to finish the job that these men on the Brazos had started and back up with bullets the words which they had written just as George Washington had backed up the words of the signers in Philadelphia 60 years before. That man was Sam Houston and he did it on the battlefield of San-Jacinto on April 21, 1836.

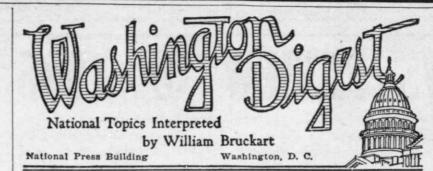

So it was only natural that Houston, like George Washington, should become the first president of the new republic which he had helped to establish. The capital of that new republic was named for Stephen F. Austin, the "Father of Texas," and by act of its congress in December, 1836, a blue flag with a single golden star in the center became its official flag.

Houston also became the first governor of Texas when it entered the Union in 1845. In the addition of Texas to the Union by annexation lies another of its claims to being unique among the states. For Texas is the only one which ever had the right to subdivide itself into several states if it chose to do so.

The treaty of annexation provided "for the future formation in the said territories of at least two states, and if more than two, then four states, and if more than four then six states, to be hereafter admitted into the United States of America." The reason for this wording lay in the slavery dispute which was beginning to become acute at that time. If the new state was to be divided, there should be an even number, half slave and half free so that the balance of power would be kept even. Since the War Between the States ended forever the question of slavery it also virtually ended the possibility of Texas being subdivided, although many believe that the Lone Star state still has that right,

Not only did that war put an end to one of the factors which made Texas unique but it also added another to the number of flags which have flown over Texas. For four years the Stars and Bars of the Confederate States of America was the flag to which the Texans swore allegiance, then once more Texas was back in the Unionr under the Stars and Stripes. Now, Texas, looking back over her 100 years of history, is proud of them all-the flag of Spain, the lilles of France, the banner of Mexico, her own bright Lone Star emblem, her place on the symbol of the "Lost Cause" and her star in the field of blue along with the 47 others. For they all speak of the glorious history that has Immediately, shoes began to another such incident would have consequences just as violent. At the present time, ammunition dumps all over Europe are waiting for a spark to set them off. It may be an accidental spark or it may be a spark deliberately cast into that powder keg. I do not mean to say that it will happen but I do wish to emphasize that at no time since the Archduke's assassination has there been a field so fertile for the promotion of a gigantic war as the present.

It may seem, and it undoubtedly does seem to many, that the dangers inherent in the European situation at present are afar off. But, it can be recalled that there were those in this country who, as late as 1916, said the European war was 3,000 miles away. Before it ended, however, 5,000,000 American boys and young men had been drafted to be thrown into that European cauldron. It may happen

While there is no immediate possi bility of the United States getting tangled up in the European political problems which spring from hostilities between Ethiopia and Italy, those who know history cannot fail to agree with the statement that it is never too early to plan for preventing war. For that reason, then, I believe almost every family in the United States has a stake, either directly or indirectly, in one of the problems with which congress must deal. This legislation is known by the short and rather indescriptive title of the neutrality policy. It is, indeed, just that, but the point I seek to make is that the title does not convey by any manner or means its full importance or its full effect upon the lives of each of us. If a policy can be worked out, a policy that is effective, obviously our chances for remaining out of any hostilities in Europeor in Asia for that matter-are certainly much better. I do not know and I do not believe anybody can say accurately that it is possible to develop a neutrality policy that will be fool-proof; or that will guarantee to us the removal of possible entanglements, or that will prevent us from stubbing our toes and falling into the midst of the mess. It seems to me, however, that we ought to try.

A year ago about this time, congre enacted a bill which was designed to prevent the shipment Keep Us of war materials to Out of War any belligerent nation or nations. It was mandatory. The President was directed by congress to lay an embargo against the shipment of arms, ammunition of war to any countries engaged in hostilities regardless of whether their claims were right or wrong. We have had some experience with the force of that legislation already and it has not been without its embarrassing and difficult phases. Now, however, it is proposed to revamp that legislation which was admittedly of a temporary character and is due to expire by limitation of law on February 29. Congress has been told rather definitely, I think, that this country wants to remain out of someone else's war. The President has the same idea. So, instead of allowing our citizens to run wild, ship anything and everything, make contracts with the countries now engaged in war or those that may be engaged later, it is proposed that we of the current year. have a permanent policy embodying whatever principles may be found wisest to protect us from ourselves and prevent us from throwing ourselves again into such a volcano of molten lava às any present-day war would be.

The problem is not as simple as it appears on the surface. When congress enacted the present temporary neutrality legislation, it provided that the embargoes, when and if laid, must apply to all. It gave the President no discretionary power to determine whether we wanted to use these embargoes as a weapon against one nation while aiding another. Mr. Roosevelt, in accepting the original legislation, said publicly that he believed he should have such discretionary power. This was in line with the conclusions of the Department of State which necessarily must be the President's adviser on matters of this kind.

Congress was criticized in many quarters when it made the embargoes applicable to all belligerents. Now, however, if we may judge from the word that comes to Washington, sentiment seems to be swinging in the other direction and there certainly is a considerable, if not a majority, sentiment for use of the managery provision as distinguished from the extension of discretionary authority to the President. To say it another way, the sentiment appears to be in favor of making the embargoes applicable to all belligerent powers and not just to one nation whose claims our government may believe to be unjust.

It is safe to say that before congress determines definitely what the permanent policy shall be, Expect there will be bitter Hot Debate debate. In examining the problem, it is to be remembered that when the government lays an embargo against all nations at war it takes away possibilities of tremendous profit. This profit accrues to those industries by which sustaining war materials are produced. Neutrality legislation, therefore, may the field observations of a very comprove costly, not as costly as war, per- petent observer, in comparatively rehaps, but nevertheless a costly action. cent years."

Weekly Letter of Hap; enings at the Seat of Government by Our Congressman M. K. Keiliy

The second session of the 74th Congress convened at twelve o'clock noon on Friday, January 3rd, of last week. This is the secd d time in the history of our country when a Congress of the United States began its session on the third of Jajuary instead of on the years. first Monday of December of each year

This change as my readers know. has come about as a result of the adoption of the socalled Lame Duck Constitutional Amendment which did away with the short session of Congress that always had to end on March 4th of the odd years.

The first Roll Call of House disclosed that there were 366 members present out of a House membership of Leader These two positions are consi 435. The large number of absentees is accounted for by the fact that many nembers of both the House and the Senate were unable to reach Washingon on time because of impassable roads, the result of snow and icey wea.

Now many of them come to the Nation's capitol to attend the opening session of Congress in automobiles. One member son by the President at a joint session from the State of California informed the writer that he made the trip from his a nual message. his home in Los Angeles to Washington in ten days, but could have made the trip in sever days if he had not dent of the United States, it was cusstopped over to visit friends enroute.

This annual constitutional message required of the President is not for the Members of the House and the Senate alone, but is for the enlightenment of the general citizenship of the country, the citizenship that makes and un. makes Members of the House and the Senate Before the comfig of the radio this information was conveyed to the country through the press, which quite ge erally published in full what the President's message contained. The object of newspaper publication was to advise the general public as to what the their President understands the situation in the nation to be. The hour of nine o'clock was selected for the delivery of the message, because that is the hour when it is con. sidered that the greater number of people are free to listen to the radio, and co sequently a message delivered at that hour and carried by the radio throughout the country, will reach the largest number of our citizens, and accomplish in a more complete manner, the task of carrying the information contained in the President's message to the citizenship of the country. Of course, the granting of the privil. ege to hold a night, joint session of Congress, for the purpose of hearing a preside tial message could only be done by amending the rules of the House. Such an amendment can be accomplished by ulanimous consent, or by a two. thirds vote. While the Republican Floor Leader, Mr. Snell, made a protest against the holding of a night joint session for the purpose of receiving the President's message, no objection was made If such an objection had been made the Rules Committee of the House had prepared a rule, and the House city and could have voted to change the rule so as to permit the hight session.
