M. K. REILLY DISCUS-SES TOWNSEND PLAN

As promised in former letters I am going to try to give to the citizens of my district some information regarding the Townsend Old Age Pension Plans

A few years ago Dr. Townsend conceived the idea of beating the panic by having the Government give all our citizens over 60 years of age $200 a

The Doctor claims that there are 8 million people in the country that would be eligible to receive pensions under his plan, although there are others who put the number at 10 million. But, taking the Doctor's figures as true, his program would call for the raising by the Government of about 20 billion dollars a year to cover the cost of pensions and expense of operating the pension program he said it would only require a 10 per cent sales tax to provide the required funds. However after further study he learned that in 1929 our best year counter sales only amounted to 50 billion dollars, and that in that year his 10 per cent sales tax would only bring in about 5 billion dollars, or about one quarter of what would be required to finance his old age

The Doctor then abandoned his sales tax plan and adopted the transaction tax plan. A great many people who write me about the Townsend Old Age ference between a transaction tax and nce by one person upon purchasing sons, and is a multiple tax. Thus, a mer, but a transaction tax of 2 per per cent. This bill provided that every citizen in the country over 60 years of age, rich or poor, was entitled to receive upon application a pension of $200 a month from the United States mouth sedan from the Rex Garage at Government. A wife would receive the same pension as the husband and both together $400 a month. The pensioner had to promise to do two things: first, to get out of gainful employment: second, to spend the pension money within the month in which it was received. This bill provided that the money to carry out this pension program was to be raised from a 2 per cent transaction tax, on the business and agricultural world, covering all transactions except salaries and wages. Under this bill the President had the power to make the rate higher or lower than 2 per cent up to a 50 per cent increase or reduction. This bill also provided for the issuing of licenses by the Secretary of the Treasury to all persons, farmers, business men, and everybody engaged

Dr. Townsend's first bill also provided that the difference between the sum raised by the 2 per cent transaction tax, and the sum needed to pay the pensions should be paid out of tse Treasury of the United States In other words, if the transaction tax did not bring in enough, to pay $200 a month to all those who were eligible for pensions, the United States Government would have to provide the balance needed out of the Treasury either through issuing new money, or else the appropriating of other funds for paying the old age pension balances.

In February, 1935, there was a hearing on Dr. Townsend's bill before the Committee on Ways and Means of the House, and after this hearing all idea of passing a Townsend Old Age Pension Bill providing for the paying of $200 a month to people over 60 years of age, and also providing for the Government making up the deficit resulting from the tax levied being unequal quired, was forgotten by the Townsendites in Washington. In other words, Dr. Townsend fell down so badly in his presentation to the Committee of his plans for raising the requiring funds, to finance his program, that his followers in Washington abandoned all attempts to get any legislation along the lines of his first bill. The fact of the matter is his economic advisor, Dr. was an impossible task to provide a taxing system that would raise suffieient money to operate the Doctor's old age pension bill.

On April 1, 1935, Congressman Mcing $200 a month to pensioners, except (Continued Next Week)

Major Political Parties Recognize Increased Importance of "First Voters" in Election Next November.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

ITH one of the most spirited presidential elections of many years in prospect for this coming November, both major parties are recognizing as never before the political importance of American youth.

Since the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, seven or eight million boys and girls have become men and women and eligible to vote. This vast army of first voters makes up a block of votes greater than the plurality by which Roosevelt defeated Hoover.

Ordinarily the vote of these young people for one candidate or the other could be forecast to a certain extent, because of the custom of first voters assuming the party allevailed in the United States for so long. But youth of 1936 is going to vote with a mind of its own.

There are obvious reasons for this. Times have changed. The party now in power is not the Democratic party as the fathers of these young men and women knew it. It has transcended old party boundaries in a number of ways. It is reasonable to suppose that a good share of the youths who might have cast their vote for an old guard Democratic candidate will vote Republican | battle, and among the leaders are such glances of their fathers which has pre- revealing that the 1935 "crime age" was nineteen years, the United States bureau of investigation declared that most criminal youths committed their crimes because they were in need of something and were not able to earn enough money to obtain it honestly. Social forces and agencies are not apathetic to the crisis that youth faces. Indeed several movements are well under way to arrive at a solution of the problem. Universities, private business and government are all in the an in the old days.

Parties Organize Youth.

Both parties are well along toward organizing the younger voters in the campaign. Democrats of the ages of about twenty-one to forty are being Induced to join the Young Democratic Clubs of America, under Frank Wickhem of Sioux Falls, S. D., while the Young Republicans are being organized by J. Kenneth Bradley, former state senator in Connecticut, and Miss Dolly Madison.

Naturally the two movements must operate under different conditions. The party in power is in control of federal patronage and rewards for party serv-Ice, and can work its campaign on that basis. The other party must base its appeal largely on principles and is-

With American youth holding so much weight in the political balance. it would not be amiss to review the situation in which this class finds itself today.

According to information supplied by the National Youth Administration, there are in this country approximately 23,000,000 persons between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five, Thirty-four per cent of these millions are "out of work, out of school or in relief families." About 15,000,000 are working or are in school. It is estimated that approximately 300,000 of the young people now being supported by relief have never had any kind of jobs. Figures released by the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, a few months ago indicated that one-fourth of all the persons in the world listed as unemployed were less than twentyfive years of age.

Blame Idle Youth for Crime.

The 8,000,000 youths unemployed in the United States today present a grave social problem, as well as an economic one. (This figure must not be confused with the total of 8,000,000 first voters, as the unemployed youth total includes millions who are not yet of voting age.) There are various estimates of the total number of all unemployed which have been pub-21shed: the American Federation of Labor's figure (one of the highest) for January was 12,600,000. This would indicate that youth presents at least twothirds of the whole unemployment

It is this idleness of so many young large share of the nation's crime in the last few years. It is not the work-

Young, president eration appealing to youth of a cer- of the General Electric company; Hentain type, will draw some votes which ry Ford; Aubrey Williams, director of and former Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire, who is chairman of the social security board. Of course civic clubs, Y. M. C. A's., Catholic Youth organizations, Boy Sconts, 4-H clubs and similar organizations are of immeasurable assistance.

Certain effects, direct or indirect, of the activities of these and other groups are changing the status of youth for the better:

It is possible that the old age pension plans will create new jobs for young men and women through the retirement of their elders.

Stay in School Longer.

A tendency is being developed to keep the young folks in school longer. the NYA funds going for this purpose, largely. The effects of this tendency employ 4,500,000 workers, reveals that the nation is gradually being educated to the five-day week, which permits sharing the work among more persons by staggering the working days. This would allow youth to enjoy a larger share of the jobs available.

From the combination of the forces which have been listed here the underlying problem of unemployment will ultimately be solved, and the result should be a general uplift in the morale of youth which will benefit our entire civilization. There is nothing quite so stimulating, so provocative to further ambition in youth than the jingle of coins earned from first jobs. It makes the average youth more interested in improving society in general because the spending of his own money gives him the feeling that he is a definite, contributing part of that society, rather than a "sponger" upon it.

Where to Find Jobs?

Opinions concerning the manner in which jobs for youth are to be found to be found outside agriculture and industry, it is claimed by Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission.

an altogether opposite view. The venerable Detroit automobile manufacturer believes that extraordinary methods or change in the form of government are unnecessary and unwanted. He advocates increasing the production of all kinds of usable wealththis by relieving the producer from interference by governmental and financial agencies, which relief, he asserts, would remove the evils of underconsumption as well as underpro-

Mr. Ford says that real wages would be constantly rising and "every human being who needs employment" would find a job if, "through distribution and service," increased production principles were carried out, embellished by a boost in wages and a decrease of prices.

The old adage that "youth must be served" does not apply when there are so many millions unemployed. It is only fair that the jobs available first go to family heads, and Miss Perkins reports that industries are returning family heads to work before youths. Her theory is that the additional purchasing power created by the returning of the older workers to employment and the demand for goods which will result will create still more jobs, and eventually these jobs will be filled by youth.

Youth Needed in Politics.

First, Cow the Opposite If you live on a farm or are at all observing, you know horses and cattle get up from the ground differently, says a writer in Pathfinder Magazine. A horse rises on its front feet first, while a cow rises first on its hind ones, An Englishman has a theory to explain this. He says the difference is due to the different surroundings in which the animals were evolved.

FOODS FOR THE CONVALESCENT

Must Be Appetizing and Comparatively Simple.

By EDITH M. BARBER

NTERESTING, appetizing food is always appreciated, but during convalescence, there must be special effort to provide it. When I was a little girl, good neighbors took some of the responsibility for this matter when there was illness in a household. This is still the case in small communities, and it is possible even in the big city, through which friends are scattered, to make convalescence more interesting.

There is something about food prepared by a strange hand which often tempts a recovering patient. If you have any specialty, you may be sure that it will be appreciated fully as much as the usual flowers which bear witness of good will.

In general, of course, foods for the invalid must be comparatively simple. At the same time they must be well flavored and often of soft texture. The plain baked custard may be dressed up with caramel. It may be made from egg whites and cream. This recipe which I am giving duplicates the cream custards which a neighbor in the old home always brought when there was or created differ widely. They will have Illness in our household. Wine jelly is another possible dessert which makes an especial appeal, even if it is not poured into orange shells and tied up with blue ribbon as fond memory Henry Ford, on the other hand, takes | tells me it was once upon a time in my own experience.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

THE fad for a riot of color in decoration is waning fast. The absence of color is in high favor as noted in white decorative schemes. These, however, are so delicate that those only who can afford to keep the rooms immaculate should consider white as a main scheme. In a former vogue, cleansing of decorations was not the problem that it is now. Between that period and this coal and oil have be come common heating fuels and the columns of black smoke that rise from chimneys to seep through windows, or pour through them when open, makes it a constant fight to keep rooms spotless. When they are, the radiations and

The absence of color in decoration is found in glass fittings and furnishings, that either sparkle or shine according to their cutting or polishing. Curtain poles in clear glass with ball tips on each end are among the furnishings, as are also glass ball fringes for valances. These sometimes are used to edge draperies also. While style is served in such furnishings, there is an element of fragility and danger of finger and spot marks showing, that are quite balancing items. Color is frequently introduced in the glass to make it continue some special color scheme developed. The colored glass does not have the refractions that clear glass does and so loses that feature of beauty in glass accessories.

Speaking of accessories, clear glass is featured in book-ends of chiseled beauty, or with the softness of rounded designs, or the solidity of angular modern designs. Crystal candlesticks give elegance and grace to accessories in glass, while crystal ash trays of blocks of glass scooped out for ash containers, or in chaste beauty of pattern lend charm to arm tables or smokers' stands.

Night Coverlets

The blanket covers of today would simplify the return of these Marseilles spreads, for the former are primarily used as night-time substitutes for elaborate daytime bed covers. It is when the bed is dressed for the night, and the heavy, elaborate, lacey or costly silken spread is removed, that the simple, yet dainty blanket cover is thrown over the bedding. #### Delayed Pruning Halts Grape Loss

Full Extent of Damage Must ter and bake in a moderate oven (356 Be Known to Aid in a Larger Yield.

> By A. S. Colby, Chief in Small Fruit Culture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service, Certain varieties of grape vines from the pan, have been so hard hit by the severe winter that pruning this spring should be delayed until the full extent of the down to its stiffest part damage can be told and the vines very good scrubbing brush pruned accordingly. Any vines on sink, which the fruit buds have not been killed, if properly pruned, can be made to yield twice what they otherwise tablecloth soak it in cold wate

The grower should look upon his vines as separate individuals, and after allowing for gradations in vigor resulting from insects and diseases, soil differences and weather conditions should handle the vines in such a way removed, then wash the floor that vine growth and yield of well-matured clusters are balanced yearly.

Results of studies with Concord grapes showed that if most of last season's shoots were too short and too brushing them all over with weak to produce laterals, the vine was pruned too lightly the previous season. That is, too many nodes were left. If the shoots were so vigorous that they produced an excessive amount of lateral growth, too many nodes had been removed the previous winter.

allowed to reach the boiling point. The grower therefore should strike the balance between these two extremes by leaving enough nodes at pruning time so that vigorous shoots will grow for the following year's crop, while at the same time enough fruit is allowed to grow and mature for the current season. However, these shoots should not be vigorous enough to send out many side branches or laterals. From 50 to 70 nodes to the vine usually will be enough under normal conditions.

It also is important that nodes be left on either four or six canes, rather than on a large number of short spurs. It has been found that the best fruiting buds are found on those canes from the fourth to the twelfth node. Hence most of the best fruit will be removed and the vines will run to wood if they are "spur pruned." Several well-matured canes at least as large as a lead pencil should be left with from 12 to 15 nodes on each cane. The number will depend upon the previous growth of the plant and the size and quality of the crop.

Why Some Forage Plants

Cause Death of Animals A few good forage plants are known to be cyanophoric at some time in their growth. That is, they contain compounds that decompose to liberate probability it will return. These spreads bydrocyanic acid (prussic acid). When these plants are associated with sudrelief which are developed by outlining den death among animals that eat of lesigns through the surface and back them, it is commonly assumed that such fatalities are the result of cyanide poisoning, says a writer in Successful

It is not, animals revive after such treatment for cyanide poisoning that the case of illness was in every instance the result of cyanide poisoning. In other words, the recognition of a disease on the basis of recovery after a specific treatment is not usually a safe way to decide as to the cause. Abundance of hydrocyanic acid in the feed or stomach contents must be found before one can be certain that cyanide is a cause of illness. In cases of death

Water for Horses For idle horses there is no reason

why water should not be kept before them at all times. In fact, this is the practice during the summer when norses are out on pasture. The difficulty comes with working horses, who when they come in from heavy work are likely to over-drink, with the resulting danger of founder. Under most conditions, therefore, it is probably safer to water horses at fixed periods, so that the amounts may be controlled than to allow them free access to unlimited water.

Texas Turns to New Crops Campaigns are being conducted in various parts of Texas for the introduction of two new agricultural products to the crop program of the farmers of the state. One of these is soy beans and the other tung oil. To promote the planting of tung trees and soy beans several meetings have been held. "Nothing. Only I feel rather sick over the whole affair," Ruth said. "What affair? What's happened?"

"Oh, that Journal and Examiner thing getting out, Tony. It's justwell, Larry's frantic. He knows-we both know," Ruth said hastily, "that it wasn't you. Don't worry about that. But he feels terribly. He had a telegram from the chief early this morning: that's the way we knew. They were all wild, of course. It had been absolutely confidential! Now the whole thing may be off. Larry says he'll have to take any terms they offer. He's gone-he flew to Los Antonios about an hour ago. And here's something he very much wanted you to do for him, Tony. He wants to know how that thing leaked out. He says you can find out in the office; he can't. It's on the front page of the paper. You've seen the paper?"

Tony had listened so far in a state of stupefied horror. Her wits were in complete confusion; what had she done, how on earth had she come to do it, and what was best to do now? They didn't suspect her; they were too generous, they were too honorable themselves to do that. Wouldn't it be decenter not to undeceive them, not to let them know-"

'I wish you could have seen the elegram from the chief."

"What'd it say?" "I'll read it to you. No, I can't; he took it. It said something about very much regretting that he had necessary to discuss the proposed changes with persons he couldn't trust, and to see it as a front-page Call story, and that this-this must be considered as changing the entire basis of the negotiations. Something like that. Poor Larry!" Ruth said, "it was just pitiful to see how it upset e was not going to the him. But will you do that, Tony? I mean find out who gave it to the Call. Larry says he told absolutely no one. But now, listen," she broke off to repeat impressively, "we know that you didn't. Larry's going to tell the chief that the only person to whom he talked at all was a friend who is like a member of his own family; he's not going to mention that you were a newspaper woman."

"Oh, I feel terribly about it," Tony said slowly, as the other woman paused. "I feel terribly."

"It seems such a pity! It's just made me feel sick!" Ruth lamented. "When'll Larry be back?" Tony was trying to get her thoughts in order, trying to think what she could do.

"Tonight, late. And he's got to be in the office late. Tomorrow's Saturday. They go to press tonight." Tony sat silent; thinking.

"Tony, are you there? Come up and have tea with me at five?" "Unless they send me to the Federated Clubs across the bay. And I'm doing a lecture tonight." Tony replaced the telephone on its stand; sat on in the little hallway, staring. Presently it would be halfpast eleven, and Miss Betsy Ann Frelinghuysen would be arrayed in her bridal white, and going to the Cathedral to be married to Johnnie Wood. And after that Tony must somehow go down to the office, somehow force with a wretched smile. "The chief telephoned Moran," Ann whispered on, "and said that it was someone on Bellamy's side of it that spilled it. I hear Bellamy went down there this morning-flew." Tony felt a sensation of actual hate for Greeny.

CHAPTER XII

After the wedding Tony walked downtown slowly, languidly; the day was uncomfortably warm, and the noontime streets looked cheap and woodeny to her eyes. Greeny was in the office when Tony went in, but she took her place at her own desk without glancing his way. Presently Joe Burke came over to sit on the edge of her desk.

"That was a nice engagement you landed. See how we played it up! The other boys are wild."

"The other boys," always meant the editors and reporters of the rival papers. Tony raised somber eyes.

"That Journal story has just about ruined the finest freindship I have!" she said, breathing deep. She saw from Joe's expression that he knew how the land lay.

"Aw, well, Greeny had to use it!" "He did not have to use it," Tony said warmly. "He knew very well he wasn't supposed to use it. If he'd thought I wanted him to use it he'd have asked me to write it."

Joe, looking intensely troubled, went away. In their turn Van and Spike and Buck Moore-Buck, who was next to Greeny in importance-came over shyly to present Greeny's case.

Tony took refuge in smouldering monosyllables. She was very busy,

'Oh, What Did They Say?" Tony Murmured With a Sick Heart.

very oblivious of Greeny's neighbor hood. Her heart was heavy; she could not rise to their kindly overtures. Presently Greenwood came over to

"Well," he began sourly, "you've certainly let us into a lot of trouble on that Porter engagement!"

"Oh, how?" Tony asked, startled.

"They talked to the old man." "Fitch?"

"Nope, Arnoldson." "Oh, they didn't!"

"They did. They wanted to know ow you got it." "The Bulletin had it tonight."

"Yes, but the Bulletin was careful to say that they were quoting from the Call."

"It's true," Tony said stubbornly. "They say it isn't true. At least, we sent Bob Whiteley up to see this Mrs. Scott, and she pretty near took his head off." "Much ado about nothing," Tony said scornfully, returning to her work

The city editor lingered. "I'm awfully sorry if I let you in for something with that Journal thing." he said awkwardly. "How'd I know it was a secret?"

'It doesn't matter," Tony said wearily, soberly. "Only the Bellamys happen to be my best friends."

"Well, listen, if Danielson sends for you-" herself to enter, somehow face Greeny. "Danielson!" Her heavy eyes lighted with horror. Flo Danielson was the assistant manager: nervous, critical, was the most disliked man on the staff.

"Oh, about this accursed Scott thing!" Greeny said, walking away. Tony sat on at her desk in a state of complete terror.

Old Mrs. Magius, with another of the "Betsy Ross" sentimentalities, wandered in. Everyone liked her and made much of her; she called Mr. Arnoldson "Willie," and was Mrs. Danielson's aunt. Usually she bored Tony into evading her, but Tony was in no mood to decline any friendly overtures tonight and smiled at her encouragingly. For once, however, old "Betsy Ross" was not responsive, and left the office after a short conversation with Greeny. "She's mad because her daughter left for China today and we didn't give it any space," Arch Slosser told Tony. Tony made a despairing exclamation: she had made & note of this event, she had meant to play it up prominently, to please the all-powerful "Betsy Ross," and she had completely forgot-

Election Notice

STATE OF WISCONSIN ) COUNTY OF WASHINGTON SS

Office of the County Clerk

TO THE ELECTORS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY: Notice is hereby given that a Judicial Election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the county of Washington, on the seventh day of April, 1936, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote, in the

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) Securing Ballot. A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot (or ballots) from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must re tire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

On the Judicial Ballot the voter will make a cross or mark in the square to the right of the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for, or write in the name, if it be not there.

(d) Marking Ballot. If a ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all (of any one kind) shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballots, Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used For Justice of the Supreme Court to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(e) Voting Ballot. After it is marked the ballot should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass A Non-Partisan Judiciary out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot, or ballots, to be placed in the ballot box and pass out of the voting place.

Disabled Voters. A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability.

Absent Voting. Any qualified elector who is absent, or expects to be absent from the city, town or village in which he is a qualified elector, or who, because of sickness or physical disability cannot appear at the polling place on election day, may vote at such election by means of an absent voter's ballot to be secured upon application to the town, city, village or county clerk (as may be most convenient), not more than twelve nor less than three days, or by personal application, not later than the close of office hours on the day, prior Wisconsin's livestock inventory for 1936 shows an increase. The state's hog population is up 16 per cent from a year ago, cattle 2 per cent, horses 1 per cent, and stock sheep 1 per cent. The number of milk cows in the state shows no change from last year. For the United States, the annual livestock visited with relatives here the forepart inventory shows a decline in all species except hogs.

full subsidy payments in connection with the soil conservation program now being put into operation. There are now 450,000 recipients of the Tugwell loans and the number is expected to increase to 525,-000 by July 1.

The soil conservation subsidies are to be paid to farmers who transfer land from commercial crop production to soil conserving growths, or who resort to other "economic" farm practices. Officials said that the rehabilitation clients already are under obligation to treat their soil wisely. Before a family can obtain a rehabilitation loan it must agree to follow a farm management plan drafted by the government.

This plan stipulates that the borrower must conserve his land's fertility and grow food and feed crops for home consumption. It also includes a financial budget.

Tugwell indicated that examination may show that the farm management plan is so closely in accord with the AAA's soil conservation aims that the rehabilitation clients may already be qualified to receive the AAA subsidies.

ONE of the major features of the new tax program suggested by President Roosevelt is omitted from the measure prepared by a house subcommittee and on which open hearings were begun by the ways and means committee. For political reasons it was decided that the plan for new processing taxes on farm and competing products should be abandoned. Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion for a "windfall" tax to recapture part of the refunded or unnaid AAA processing levies was accepted by the subcommittee.

He drew tremendous cheers from the audience, rising in the gorgeous Julius Caesar hall of the capitol building, on Capitoline hill when he declared that with this reform, the Fascist party eached fulfillment of its purposes.

HAVING sent Joachim von Ribbentrop back to London with a modified rejection of the four power plans for peace in western Europe, Hitler was preparing his counter proposals which British Foreign Minister Eden had requested. Meanwhile the reichsfuehrer continued his campaign tour, delivering rousing speeches in defense of his policies. Speaking in Ludwigshafen, in the heart of the remilitarized Rhineland, he said: "Those who want us to grovel on our knees before agreeing to talk with us forget we are not a tribe of savages, but a European nation looking back on thousands of years of culture.

"I stretch out my hand to France. We want peace for common sense reasons. Germany needs no more fame on the battlefield, but is now getting ready to seek laurels in the Olympic peace competition of nations. Men who relish the indecent thought of victor and vanquished are not statesmen. They must be silent when peace talks start."

Most of the continental statesmen who gathered in London to consider the Rhineland affair went home, some of them in very bad humor over the indecisive proceedings. The French, disinclined to consider any further proposals from Hitler, were urging that the French, British and Belgian general staffs get together on plans in accordance with the Locarno treaty commitments.

IN CONNECTION with the signing of I the new naval treaty by the United for financing the Townsend plan. I States, Great Britain and France, it have collected around $850,000 and the was disclosed in London that the two first named powers have reaffirmed the 50-50 ratio for their fleets and again promised not to compete against each other in naval building. The new three power pact limits the size of battleships to 35,000 tons, retains 10,-000 tons as the maximum for cruisers and provides no cruisers of that size shall be built for six years.

In the expiring Washington treaty there was an article regarding fortification of naval bases. This is not renewed in the new pact, and Japan requested information as to the future intentions of the powers. On the same day that Hirota made this pronouncement the soviet Russian government ordered its ambassador to Japan to lodge a strong protest following a new border engagement which Soviet advices said resulted from a Japanese attack on a Red frontier post. Washington for Florida. Rough estimates were that the total dead in 13 states were 169; the home less were 221,500, and the total property damage, $271,500,000. The last figure probably would be tripled if one took into account the losses from interruption to industry and trade and the stoppage of the wages of labor. Cities along the lower Ohio were threatened as the flood waters raced down to the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico, but they had had plenty of warning and were in a measure prepared. Of course many communities were submerged, but the residents had moved to higher land.

Madison-With 16,164 persons in 62 counties receiving pension checks monthly, the state's old age security machinery is now in full swing.

Green Bay-Brown county farmers are formulating plans for organization of a co-operative group for promotion of a rural electrification project.

Park Falls-C. L. Van Giesen, forest supervisor, said loss of deer in the Chequamegon forest this winter has been rather light so far as can be determined now.

Reedsburg-Because of their enthuslasm for two blackface comedians, Amos and Andy, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Nachreiner of Loretto have named their twin sons, Amos Robert and Andy Gustav.

Milwaukee-A disappointed love affair was believed by police to have prompted the suicide of Martha Jane Spencer, 15-year-old high school sophomore. Her body was discovered at her home. A bullet had pierced her

Eau Claire-The farm home of Peter Demetri burned when a city fire department pumper mired in a flooded road while speeding to the blaze. Wrecking crews worked 10 hours before they were able to drag the pumper to dry ground.

Shell Lake-Three Shell Lake high school pupils drowned when their automobile left a town road 10 miles west of here and plunged into 10 feet of water in a swampy area. The dead are Ripley Dopp, 17; his sister, Imogene, 15, and Betty Sanders, 16.

Madison-A total of 3,774 new car sales in Wisconsin during February was 526 more than the number sold in the same month of 1935 and the highest since February, 1930, when 4,428 were sold, state automobile license division tabulations showed.

Sparta-George C. Miller and Frances Miller, his wife, of the town of Tomah, together were awarded damages of $7,225 by a jury here in circuit court for injuries received in an auto accident which occurred in September, 1933, near Tomah. The action was brought against the Hardware Mutual Casualty company. Each party had asked $10,000 damages.

Madison-High salaried officials in the state service, whose pay is not fixed by law, face a reduction in their salary checks as a result of action taken by the state board of personnel. After approving recommendations to grant raises to low paid employes, the board voted to open proceedings for the slashing of those in the high brackets, with the public service commission f in line.

Sheboygan-A petition for annexation of the Lakeside plant of the Wisconsin Power and Light company by City Clerk Erwin Mohr by L. P. Fessenden, district manager. The $3,750,-000 plant is located on the shores of Lake Michigan just south of the city limits. Fessenden said annexation of the plant would yield an additional $40,000 tax revenue for the city.

Fort Atkinson-This city is one of 138 in the United States having more than 5,000 population to be placed on the honor roll for the 1935 national traffic safety contest conducted by the National Safety committee in recognition of its accomplishment in completing the year without a fatal motor vehicle accident within the municipal limits. This is the second consecutive year Fort Atkinson has won the award.

Madison - A nadditional federal grant of $2,200,000 will finance the Wisconsin works progress program until about May 15, Martin W. Torkelson, state administrator, announced. Wisconsin's allocation now totals $27. 100,000, of which about $17,000,000 was spent or encumbered by Mar. 1, the administrator disclosed. Expenditures probably will total $21,000,000 by the end of March and about $25,000,000 by the end of April, leaving about $2,-100,000 to carry the program in May.

Madison - Business operations in Wisconsin dropped sightly during February as compared with January, but were far above the level of February, 1935, according to the monthly survey of the Wisconsin business summary, published by the University of Wisconsin extension division. Computations from figures supplied by the Chicago and Minneapolis federal reserve banks showed that bank debits or check payments in 13 representative cities were 21 per cent higher than February of a year ago, but per cent under last January.

Port Washington-County Treasurer Max M. Gunther said that delinquent taxes turned over by the various town. village and city treasurers of Ozaukee county show an increase over the 1934 figures. They were below those of 1933, however.

Menasha - The worst fire in Menasha's history swept the Menasha high school building into a mass of ruins, kept the fire departments of Menasha, Neenah and Appleton at work for more than four hours, resulted in injury to one fireman, and for more than two hours threatened destruction of other buildings within a radius of a half mile of the high school structure. The loss is estimated Madison-To discourage the use of second hand boxes in the packaging of American cheese, the state department of agriculture issued an order requiring such boxes to be labeled "used boxes," Chairman Charles L. Hill announced. The order also will provide that the box be stamped with the initials of the man who reconditions it so that if unclean boxes are found they may be traced to the person responsible for their condition.

Madison - Seasonal highway water levels, which appear certain to accompany the spring break-up this year, will endanger the safety of private wells unless due care is exercised, the state board of health warned. Most of the hazards to private supplies can be prevented by sealing the well top and grading the immediate vicinity so that surface water will be sued away from the well, the board explained. The state laboratory of hygiene offers the owner of any well an analysis to determine the purity of the water supply. The cost to the owner is limited

Madison-More than 100 WPA strikers, with some wives and children, who have held the legislative chambers of Wisconsin's state capitol here as their home for 10 days, evacuated peacefully under orders from Gov. Philip F. La Follette backed by 70 policemen. The strikers, who marched on Madison to demand an increase in monthly wage from $48 to $60 and better working conditions, offered no violence. The governor arranged for buses to carry strikers who had no other means of transportation to their homes in the Fox River valley and along the lake shore.

Portage-Physicians here announced that the six weeks' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sherwood, Portage, rould recover following an operation. Physicians said the baby's stomach had almost grown shut at the lower extremity when the operation was performed.

Baraboo-The income from a $10,-000 trust fund was left to the park board of Baraboo for use in beautifying the city, according to the will of Archibald Kellogg, Baraboo, which was filed for probate.

Cuba City-Clyde Jones, 52, bachelor farmer, burned to death in his one room cabin near here. A pile of clothes and his gun found outside the cabin beside a fence convinced authorities that he was overcome while trying to save more of his property.

Green Bay - Reports that eas: and west high school students here are spending money given them for lunches on pinball games operated near the schools, may result in school authorties asking their removal on grounds they are not legal.

All of this leads up to the conclusion that whenever the federal government horns in on administrative affairs of states, counties or municipalities, the organization becomes so extensive that it is impossible for those at the top in Washington to know what goes on. All of these are harsh accusations but there is enough evidence available now to make it appear that there is, at least, some truth upon which such charges can be based.

Of course, politicians will magnify all phases of every subject which they discuss. The opposition will make the crimes look heinous and the administration spokesmen will make everything look pure. Neither one is justified in going quite to the extent of the indicated trend. It seems to me that voters ought not be fully convinced by either side but that they ought to examine the picture from the local viewpoint where the evidence is firsthand and where the people who did a good job or who were guilty of fraud or corruption are known to the voters. Then, if in November the election results for the whole country show a preponderance one way or another, the voters will have established their will as being either in favor of or definitely opposed to management of such things from Washington, tor had been industriously building up his own fur business. At first he shipped his furs to London, but as soon as he discovered back tea until, as he said, he "had a million dollars afloat which represented a dozen vessels." When chance for direct commercial intercourse between Canada and the United States, Astor embarked upon this trade but soon found himself balked by the power and influence of the Mackinaw company.

from New York to the Columbia. "This was a grandiose scheme but sound. Developed logically, it must assure him control of the entire region. His brigades would be so situated that they could repel any invaders, while the complementary arrangements for marketing the catch would give him an east and west dispersion, guaranteeing a maximum of economy.

He'd be able to buy furs cheaper, the arrangements already outlined. The Russian Fur company, in Alaska, practically a government subsidiary, worked under several difficulties. It lacked transportation facilities at sea, and was opposed by the Northwesters. Astor conceived the idea of joining forces with the Russians, so that their furs, too, should pass through his hands.

"He contemplated eventual dominance of the fur trade of the con-

"He carried the idea to Washington. 'I considered it a great public acquisition,' President Jefferson stated later, 'the commencement of a settlement on that point of the western coast of America . . .'

"American free trappers and traders west of the Mississippi were quite as jealous of Astor's company as they were of the Northwest men. in 1809, Manuel Lisa, one of the ablest of the Missouri traders, organized the St. Louis-Missouri Fur company, known historically as the Missouri Fur company.

"It is difficult to understand why Astor didn't effect a combination with Manuel Lisa and his men. Instead, he turned to the Northwest company, to men who were Canadians, active trade enemies, who very readily might become national enemies, in the troubled state of public opinion."

For at this time relations between America and England were strained and it was apparent to every oneexcept Astor, who seems to have been strangely blind to the dangers threatening his enterprise-that war between the two nations was inevitable. Heedless of this fact, Astor went ahead with his plans, and on June 23, 1810, organized the Pacific Fur company, the first subsidiary of the American Fur company, with a capital stock of $200,000, all of which he furnished. Personal risks, however, were to be borne by ten partners, five of whom were former Northwest company factors-Alexander McKay, Donald McKenzie. Duncan McDougal, David Stuart, and his nephew, Robert Stuart. Another was Wilson Price Hunt, a native of New Jersey, who was to be Astor's chief agent and represent him in the establishment of the post on the Pacific.

Astor's plan was to send two expeditions west, one by land and one by sea, with the expectation that they would arrive on the Columbia the following year at about the same time. Hunt was to lead the expedition overland and for the ocean voyage he secured the ship, the Tonquin, and placed in command of it Jonathan Thorn, a lieutenant in the United States navy, then on leave of absence. As it turned out both choices were unfortunate. Hunt had no western experience to qualify him for such a perilous overland journey and Thorn was a "petty tyrant and a martinet."

Almost from the beginning of the voyage of the Tonquin there was friction between Thorn and Astor's Canadian partners. By the time they reached the Columbia they were on the verge of mutiny. Thorn hurried the Astor men in their selection of a site for their fort and in unloading the tools to build it and a part of their supplies. Then accompanied by McKay, the most experienced of the Northwest men, he sailed away north to get ahead of undergone, arrived at Astoria. During the next month some more straggled in.

That summer the United States and Great Britain went to war, but it was not until the following December that news of the conflict reached Astoria, and it was brought by representatives of the Northwest company. In the meantime Astor had been pleading with President Madison to send a warship to protect his outpost on the banks of the Columbia and help hold that region for the Americans. But Madison was too harassed with more pressing problems near at hand, and Astor's plea went unheeded.

Eventually his partners in the Pacific enterprise sold the property to the Northwest company at a heavy sacrifice to the firm, although they made good terms for themselves with the Canadian company, to which they had once belonged. "The Astor enterprise was at an end . . . The ultimate responsibility for the failure of the enterprise rests on Astor himself, who entrusted the carrying out of the undertaking to a group of men almost all of whom were British subjects and who abandoned him when confronted with the crisis of war."

The Astoria experiment had cost him dearly. He lost $800,000 in the venture, but as his biographer says, "he lost without whimpering, a sum In excess of the fortunes of all except perhaps a score of individual Americans in 1815; nobody else saw the vision he glimpsed, however imperfectly, and nobody else was willing to undertake the job after he failed at it. But for his blind stumbling effort, our frontier north of California might conceivably have

The Inscription reads: "Site of Original Settlement of Astoria. Erection of a fort was begun April 12, 1811, by the thirty-three members of the Astor party who sailed around Cape Horn in the ship Tonquin and established here the famous fur-trading post which was the first American settlement west of the Rocky Mountains. the Alaska Indians. Despite McKay's warnings about letting too many Indians aboard at one time, Thorn persisted in this dangerous practice. One day the irascible captain became angered at the Indians and struck one of their chiefs. The next day the red men came swarming on the ship again, ostensibly to trade, but in reality to avenge the insult to their leader. There was a sudden attack and Thorn and McKay were killed at the first onslaught. A few survivors managed to beat off the savages and took refuge below decks. The next morning the Indians came back to plunder the ship. Suddenly there was a loud explosion and the sea was covered with fragments of the ship and parts of human bodies both red and white. The crew of the Tonquin had sold their lives

"The Astoria venture might have furnished material for a splendid national saga. As matters fell out. the best we can say for it is that It dramatized Oregon for our people, fixing in the memories of a busy generation the fact that our flag had flown on the Pacific coast."

After the War of 1812 ended, the ownership of the Pacific Northwest was a subject for heated controversy between England and America. A treaty signed in 1818 provided for joint occupation for a period of ten years. In 1846, as a result of the cry of "54-40 or Fight!" another treaty was made which established the claim of the United States to the Columbia river region and the American flag once more floated over Astoria, never to COWBOYS who rode the Montana range knew him only as Buckie. That nickname is explained by the fact that he was just about the best rider that ever forked a bronc. Plenty of the wild ones had tried to pile him but he just remarked sadly "Bad horsey, shouldn't go bucky-bucky!" and stayed right in the saddle. But even the best of riders is likely to hit the dirt when his horse steps in a prairie dog hole while going at full speed.

Buckie's Bad Break

That's what happened to Buckle one day when he was out riding the range alone. His horse's neck was broken so the animal didn't move after it fell. Nor did Buckle move -much. Just his leg was broken and it was pinned under the dead weight of the horse. Whenever he tried to wriggle it free, a sickening pain almost made him faint. Of course, he shouted for help. But there was no one within 127 miles so his shouts weren't heard.

Night came and with it a chill wind that cut to the bone. Not far away a wolf howled and a moment later it was answered by another and another and another. Buckie knew what that meant. He decided it was time to do something. But what? Let Buckie himself answer:

"What did I do? Why, I finally had to walk eight miles to find a pole thick enough and strong enough to pry that darned hoss off my leg."

The Duel That Failed

S. CLARK of Attica, Ind., went O. to the Texas Panhandle when it was wild and woolly. There he met Clay Allison, a famous gun-fighter who told him about the strangest duel he'd ever seen. It was between two frontiersmen who didn't like the color of each other's hair. So they agreed to fight it out with long rifles-stand back to back, then each take ten long steps, turn and begin firing.

The duel began. Each with his right eye drew a bead on the other's left eye-it wasn't sportsmanlike to shoot out the other man's right eye and thus spoil his aim. They fired at the same instant but neither bullet took effect.

They shot a second time-a thirda fourth-and a fifth. Still nothing happened. In fact they kept shooting until each man had used up 20 cartridges. "There's something spooky about this," said one. "Shore is!" said the other. "Maybe we ain't supposed to kill each other."

"Reckon we'd better call it off and shake hands," suggested the first. "Suits me!" said the second.

They started toward each other. each one taking ten long steps so they would meet face to face where they had parted back to back. As they met and clasped hands, one exclaimed "Ouch! Something's burnin' through

They looked down. There on the ground was a pile of melted lead. The mystery of the bullets that failed to kill was solved. So accurate had been their aim that their bullets had met midway with such terrific force that they melted each other and dropped to the ground. Clay said he knew this was true because he saw the place on the ground where the melted lead had been and there wasn't a speck of grass growing there.

Great Navigator, Explorer Abel Janszoon Tasman, died 1659, at fifty-six, having achieved a reputation as the greatest of Dutch navigators and one of the greatest explorers. But he made some big mistakes. He couldn't find a continent. Sent out in 1642 to explore Australia, he sailed completely around it and never sighted it once! Later, as the significance of his error was realized, geographers knew for the first time that Australia was not a part of the Antarctic continent. No man did more in charting the Pacific's shores and islands. He carried on commerce with Japan for the Dutch more than two centuries before the voyage of Commodore Matthew Perry, who often is credited with opening Japan's ports to other nations.

Hair Braiding

In Kashgar, Chinese Turkestan, the ceremony of "braiding of the hair" is far more important in a woman's life than even her marriage. In the presence of all her relatives and friends, her hair, hitherto worn in four or five plaits, is formally and for the first time, braided in two plaits, and she becomes entitled to wear five red semi-circular strips of embroidery on the right side of the neck of her gown, one below the other, and increasing successively in length.
