Improvement of Pasture Is Easy

Wild White Clover Will Do the Trick, Says Expert in Agronomy.

By Prof. D. B. Johnstone-Wallace, Cornell Agronomy Department.—WNU Service. Growing two blades of grass where one grew before is a simple matter. Even better results have been achieved. Experiments at Cornell show that four blades of grass and two leaves of wild white clover can be grown where one blade of grass and one leaf of devil's-paint-brush grew before.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

WITHOUT being in the least selfish, there are some ways in which a person should consider himself or herself first. This would seem on the face of it to be practically impossible, but on further consideration, the truth of the statement becomes apparent. Time to do the work of your particular job is one of these items of selfish consideration of yourself first. Those who have definite hours of work or business hours that are specific, do not have this consideration come into their problems. It is settled by the firm or person who engages them.

Pale Butter in Demand in Markets of the East

Danger to Middle western dairy farmers is seen in the increasing demand in eastern markets for "pale" or "white" butter. Pale butter is produced in northern countries such as Canada and Latvia, where cows get a minimum of green pasture and hay cured to a green color. Not enough pale butter can be produced in this country to satisfy the increasing demand, says the Prairie Farmer.

Water in Grain and Hay

Water constitutes a higher percentage of both grain and roughage than is commonly realized. Best grades of mature, well cured corn, wheat, oats, barley and rye all contain approximately 10 per cent water, while lower grades of new corn frequently carry as much as 20 per cent or over. This means, says the Rural New-Yorker, that on at least one out of every ten cars of corn shipped we are paying freight for a carload of water; well-cured hay, straw and fodder also contain an average of about 10 per cent water, while fresh green roughage and grass average about 70 per cent, and in many instances considerably higher.

Fertilizer for the Pasture

A fertilizer containing both nitrogen and phosphate should be used for the establishment of a new bluegrass pasture. If the soil is medium or above in fertility, says the Missouri Farmer, 200 pounds of 4-12-4 or 4-16-4 fertilizer, or 100 pounds of sodium nitrate plus 200 pounds of 20 per cent superphosphate should be applied. On soils below medium in fertility, 400 pounds of superphosphate should be applied if a good bluegrass pasture is desired.

Pasturing Sheep

To pasture sheep in mature orchards is a common practice which seems generally satisfactory, says the Rural New-Yorker. The question of grazing would be the same as for any other pasture system. It would vary entirely with the kind and abundance of the pasture in question. If on good mixed grass, or blue grass, and pastured not over ten head per acre, such pasture will usually keep the ewes in good condition until pasture starts getting short in late summer or early fall.

When Animal Has Heaves

Clover hay or bulky foods which contain little nutrition should be entirely omitted when the animal is afflicted with heaves. It has been said that the disease is unknown in localities where clover hay is never used.

The Best Things

The best things that we hope for are those which are most largely within our own power. We may not be able to foretell whether during the year the crops will have favorable weather, we may not know whether the particular business interests in which we are engaged will prosper or languish, but we do know that whatever industry or energy, discretion or wisdom, we put into them will bear results. We cannot tell certainly whether uninterrupted health and peace will reign in our households, but we know that it will depend largely upon our obedience to the laws of the body and our faithful and loving care of and influence over those near and dear to us.

Keep Faith With Time.

It is when you are master of your own time, as is the case with homemakers, artists, many professional persons, and those in various forms of business, that keeping faith with time frequently has to bear the brunt of frequent selfishness. Everyone who has been over-persuaded to let a task of importance remain undone in order to fill in a table of bridge, or do some other interesting thing to gratify and satisfy an impertinent friend, knows it would have not been selfish to refuse, however it might have appeared.

Home Management.

Scientific housekeeping can be carried to such an extent that it conflicts with home comforts. This is nothing new, although minute budgeting enters into the complications now as it did not do in bygone days. Or if it did it was under the name of good management, not cold inexorable figures.

Satisfying Experience

However, there was a satisfaction in the knowledge that everything in the whole house was in "apple pie order," according to reports of the older generation. Greater still must have been the appreciation that this particular household cataclysm was done for six months at least. It was a period especially dreaded by the men of the house, who were robbed of their comforts during the episode.

Blue for Doors, Shutters

"Old Masters Blue"—a deep, rich blue that is most effective for shutters and doors—can be mixed on a white base by adding Prussian blue, chrome green and drop black. To this, more white may be added if less intensity is desired.

Aids in Roof Repair

Plastic cement is similar to asphalt-asbestos roof-coating, except that it is of troweling consistency. It is used to repair holes in roofs, walls, foundations, etc. It is sometimes known as "asphalt putty."

Background for Antiques

The living room of a fine Long Island home has its paneling painted old white. Soft blues and chartruese are introduced to serve as a background or treasured antique furniture.

King Edward Thrashed by Brakeman as a School Boy

How Edward VIII was thrashed by the brakeman of a train at Torquay, England, has been disclosed by S. A. Cooper, ticket collector at Torquay. Born in 1905, the boy stopped at Torquay. The brakeman, passing down the corridor, received a pea behind the ear. The pea was fired from a pea-shooter. The brakeman entered the car and locked the door. He invited the culprit to own up. The half-dozen cadets kept silent and so the brakeman methodically beat every cadet with his flag-stick. Each lad took his punishment stoically. Later the brakeman was told that one of the lads was the future king.
