ANOTHER NEW DAM ERECTED HERE

John F. Schaefer and crew of workmen erected a dam across the Milwauee river on the site of the old dam just north of the Main street bridge, last week. The dam is constructed of stone from the old structure, picked rom the river and placed together across the stream. The dam is about wo or three feet high and will have a lency to raise the water north of dam several inches. The object of dam is to increase the depth of the river, thus protecting the large amount of fish spawn which was recently placed in the river by Mr. Scheefer, and also oviding an excellent swimming pool the children of the village. We think was a very commendable thing to as it not only improves the looks the river and provides recreation for he youngsters, but will also provide good fishing in the very near future.

Like in the Port Washington game on the previous Sunday Kewaskum's nine fell to pieces and played sleepy baseball. Led by Brabender with three the team piled up seven errors, nearly all of which had much to do with the visitors' scoring.

There was a time during the game when Kewaskum held a 4 to 0 lead and another one when it possessed an 8 to advantage, due. largely to the heavy hitting of Ray Mucha, who starred with two home runs and a triple, all in vain as his teammates failed to hold Grafton in check.

Authorities Say Membership May Run Into Millions; Killing in Detroit Arouses Public Indignation; Gang on Way Out.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

NEW "masked menace" has been discovered lurking behind every other rock in the Middle West. It is the kind of masked menace which springs up every decade or so to strike fear into the hearts of the lawful and fire the imaginations of those who retain enough of their boyhood romanticism to "eat up" stories about secret and terrible organizations which ride the night in ghastly masks and fearsome ceremonial robes.

No doubt the Black Legion is already being used as a threat to scare little children into eating their spinach or practicing their music lessons. But the law, inclined to scoff at first, has decided that it is high time the outlaw order be taken in @ deadly seriousness. Authorities, it is Black Legion claims that he was forced reported, are even ready to believe that the secret members of the Black Legion and its affiliations may number covered in Michigan, where thirteen men, allegedly members of the Black Legion, were held in the murder of Charles Poole, a twenty-two-year-old WPA worker of Detroit. Authorities there claim that in a district of 135,-000 persons there are at least 3,000 and possibly 40,000 Black Legionnaires. Three state employees have been dismissed because of their membership, and twelve others have been suspended from state, city and county pay rolls.

In some 15 or 16 states, investigations are now under way, probing into past, unsolved cases of mob violence, and into complaints by citizens that they are being terrorized.

Detroit's own case probably began last August, when a ballot box scandal reeked with charges of terrorism by a secret masked brotherhood: but police laughed at the idea. When Poole was killed, however, the police, in seeking some clue to the murder, discovered that he had been a member of a club which met in a little meeting hall and celebrated weird rites. Dozens of witnesses questioned rewealed that the Black Legion had existed since 1933, at least, although there were a few who insisted that it dated from the Mayflower or from the HOR Boston Tea Party.

It is considered possible that the organization may have been an outgrowth of the Ku Klux Klan. The officers dress in white garb somewhat similar to that of the KKK, and the alsa ritual is said to be similar. Detroit -off authorities are inclined to believe the story of Dr. William Jacob Shepherd of Bellaire, Ohio, who claims that he was an Exalted Cyclops of the KKK, and organized a Black Guard which developed units in Ohio and Indiana and thea spread like wildfire.

"Provided Interest in Life."

There were many groups who were attracted by the black robes and mystery of the new offspring, Doctor Shepherd said. Arthur Lupp of Detroit, who seems to have been the chief recruiting officer of the Black Legion, insists that it never countenanced violence of any sort. He explained its growth by declaring that, during the depression, it gave thousands of men an interest in life that they would not otherwise have had.

Other witnesses claimed that the pri mary purpose of the organization was the securing of jobs for its unemployed members, and to keep employed members in their jobs. Each member was "sworn by holy and terrible oath" to do his best to secure a job for another member in the place where he worked.

The United States, like many another country, has in its diary many records of secret fraternal orders whose members cloak their identity. Indeed, what group of small boys has not formed its "secret" and fearful society, like that of Tom Saw-yer and his friends, signing covenants full of misspelled words in blood painfully pricked from their little fingers?

Every section of the land has had its secret orders which were an important phase of its history. The West was saved from "bad" outlaws largely by a band of "good" outlaws, the Vigilantes, who took the suppression of crime into their own hands when the law proved inadequate. The Ku Klux Klan has seen two periods of activity in the South and Middle West. The Middle eign miners into their area and stopped not even at murder to achieve their cause. But in time the outfit, its need outgrown, became nothing but a great extortion ring.

One of the principal figures in the breaking up of the gang, Charles A. Wingert, died only three years ago. Upon his death the New York Sun carried the following editorial (in part):

"The Molly Maguires had long before abandoned the original philanthropic purpose of its organizers and had become known, early in the 70s, as a system of extortion. . . . Its method of operation has been copied, perhaps somewhat unconsciously, by some of the modern racketeers." @ Western Newspaper Union.

MEAT is a remedy for headaches! That's the latest announcement, Of course, not meat by itself, but a larger amount than usual in the daily diet, with a corresponding decrease in starches and sugars. Many bodily disturbances, which are given various names, are now treated by change in diet rather than by drugs. The high meat diet has been found effective in certain cases of epilepsy. On the other hand in some cases of nephritis, which is caused by an affection of the kidneys, the amount of meat is limited. In diabetes, meat and other proteins are comparatively high, even when insulin allows a moderate amount of starches and sugars.

For the general diet the total amount of protein food usually advised is enough to provide about 10 per cent of the calories needed for the day. This gives a liberal amount to replace tissue which is worn out by use of the muscles. While the larger amount under ordinary conditions is not harmful, an oversupply may crowd out fruits and vegetables which supply important minerals and vitamins.

Because protein foods are generally expensive, it is economical to use sugars, starches and fats to supply the energy material which is needed for the work of the body machine in keeping it running and for the extra calories, the need for which depends upon the occupation. With a well-rounded diet, headaches will usually be unknown unless there is some special disturbance which makes them chronic. In this case, the doctor may advise the high meat content mentioned above.

Liver With Cream Sauce. Slice the liver one-third inch thick. Scale and strip off the skin on edges. Drain and cook quickly with two sliced onions in three tablespoons of butter. Pour in sweet or sour cream to cover, and let simmer ten minutes, closely covered. Add salt and pepper to taste.

To Brighten Windows

A spoonful of kerosene added to a pail of very hot water will make windows, mirrors and picture glasses bright and clear. In washing windows use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub it over the glass, after wiping down the framework with an oiled cloth. Do the same with the next window on both sides. After that go back to the first one and wipe it dry with a stored fat and so the fat individual large, clean cloth. No real polishing is required.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

MILLE fleur guest towels and finger towels are the last word in these linen closet furnishings, which have become a modern household necessity. The words mille fleur are used as a term of description rather than one of precision, since the flowers cannot be reckoned in millions. However, the random sprinkling of the flowers over the entire surface of the towels is in accord with the term as applied in other decorative uses.

The number of blossoms embroidered on a towel is at the discretion of the person working them. The flowers must be distributed over the towel and not be arranged as a border or in any set fashion. We may consider the surface of the towel as a green lawn with the flowers springing up here and there through the grass, the bright colors making the sward gay.

Stitches.

Lazy daisy stitch is popular for the embroidery although outline stitch is equally good. The advantage of daisy stitch is that with two stitches a complete petal is worked, with both edges laid in the embroidery medium. Daisy is a modified buttonhole stitch, which be worked so rapidly that even a lazy worker can accomplish much with it in a short time.

For a flower, start each lop stitch in center of flower, bringing point of needle up and over the thread where the tip of the petal should come. Put the needle down to bring embroidery medium over the petal strand and hold it in place, and at the same time bring the needle up where the next stitch is to start. All stitches are similarly made. Stems, if any, are outlined. When well worked, both lazy daisy and outline stitches are good looking on the wrong side. Also they are flat, and essential for mille fleur towel ornamentation. Flowers worked in outline may have petals filled with darning

Colors and Materials.

Flowers may all be in the same color, or colors may vary in different blossoms. Stems, if any, should be green. Huckaback, damask, linen, heavy or in handkerchief weight (this last for finger towels only) are recommended materials. Embroidery medium should not be too fine. Fabric and medium should be in contrast. @ Bell Syndicate.-WNU Service.

Choose Restful Colors

When you are having the inside of your home painted and are planning room color schemes, remember that soft color harmonies are restful for those who remain all day in the home as well as for those who return to it wearily after business hours.

Enancel Improves Sinks Fresh white enamel greatly improves the appearance of the outside of sinks and stationary tubs that are badly spotted or unsightly.

Garden Hint

Red-violet and blue-violet are exquisite shades that are too rarely used in room decoration. Because of their intensity they should not be selected for large surfaces. These two tones, found in iris, combine well with yellow-green, gold, deep green and straw

DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Why Fat People Stay Fat

66 LOR the healthy body fat is I the money put by for a rainy day. A supply of it is stored in good times. Tiny drops of liquid fat are carried by the blood into the connective tissue (the fibrous tissue that holds the cells of an organ) and deposited in the soft spots -the skin of the chest and abdomer the upper thighs and arms, the cheeks, under the chin and in the orbits (where the eyeball rests). The eyeballs of fat people are imbedded in fat tissue hence their bulging appearance.'

"On the other hand skinny people have not enough fat tissue. Their eyes lie deep in their cavities which accounts for their expression of distress." or tight, for example bones), the ligaments that hold bones and color suggestions; together at the joints, the blood cannot of all stitches needed. deposit fat. There is simply no room for it. The drops of fat flow into one another like tiny balls of mercury, until they form one big ball. Gradually the cells of the connective tissue are Write plainly pattern number filled out until fatty tissue is formed." I am quoting Dr. Eduard Rhein in Die Koralle, Berlin.

ridge of the nose, in

The first point is that putting on fat is in a sense a sign of health, as the body seems able to get along or do its work with a part of the food eaten, and then stores a part of the food away for "a rainy day," meaning that should no food, or certain foods not be eaten for a certain time, the body can use some of this stored fat in order to carry on its work.

Gain in Corpulency

However with most fat people there are no "rainy" days as a rule, in that they are always able to get enough food. This means that nature never gets a chance to use up any of its remains fat or gets fatter.

The second point is that "Where the tissues are firm the blood cannot deposit fat." As a matter of fact the places where fat is deposited-chest, abdomen, upper arms and thighs-were not meant to be "soft" spots. These spots were meant to be firm because the huge muscles on these parts were meant to be used or worked-the chest muscles to carry the arms in front with whatever the arms might hold, the abdominal muscles to bend the body and keep the abdominal organs in their proper position instead of letting them sag, and the upper thighs and arms to propel or carry the body.

Instead of doing these various jobs our modern civilization, with its laborsaving devices, allows these parts which should be firm to become soft spots and hence fat simply flows to these soft spots.

This is the reason that exercise is the ideal method of preventing the accumulation of fat in the body, and of removing fat which has already Exercise heats the body, and hence burns up fat; it develops the muscles which thus do not allow fat to form either in or about their cells. And the ideal exercise, when the individual is able to do it, is games.

Games Aid Physique

In games there is always running, which means raising the body off the ground, hence not only developing thigh muscles and preventing fat hips and upper thighs, but is the best known means to develop heart and lungs. All athletes-boxers, football players and others-do "road" work, which is simply slow running.

However, many overweights cannot play games for whom bending exercises and walking are effective.

Bending exercises are: Touching toes, or trying to touch the toes with knees straight; lying on the floor and with knees straight, raising the legs to a right angle, with buttocks not raised from the floor; standing with knees straight and bending slowly from side to side, and forwards and backwards. Walking a quarter to half a mile, and gradually increasing it to two or more miles should prevent fat formation on the thighs, and strengthen heart and lungs. Naturally there should be no increase in the amount of food or water taken, if fat is to be removed.

Removing Thyroid Gland The removal of the entire thyroid gland, while not considered as dangerous an operation as it was a few years ago, nevertheless has the dangers which attend any operation, injury to important nerves in the throat, lung complications, infection, bleeding, and suffocation.

Dr. G. H. Pratt, New York, in the American Journal of Surgery, reports that failures to get results from this operation are, in his opinion due to failure to remove the whole thyroid gland. Where a portion of the gland is not removed this portion, however small, grows rapidly again and the symptoms-rapid heart-return. @-WNU Service.

"I'm going round there tomorrow." "Are you going to have your office again upstairs?"

"It all depends, Caroline hates San Francisco.'

"Yes, but Caroline doesn't necessarily have to stay there. I think Joe and I could have a very nice time in Rio," Caroline said for herself. "You can see us off!"

"You've only been married five months!" Joe observed innocently. "Five months or five minutes," Caroline said, "Larry can't expect me to sit up there alone in the Fairmont while he runs his old newspaper."

Tony saw the dark angry red come up under his skin. She went out into the kitchen, when Caroline went upstairs, and began the familiar inspection of icebox and cupboards. Wood crackled in the stove. and Tony, dodging the green thick smoke as she put back the iron plate, found Larry beside her.

"This is a lot of fuss, our staying." "Oh, no, it's not, truly! We thought Cliff and Mary Rose might come. All I'm doing-" Tony said, bringing forth a half-consumed ham, and hunting in a table drawer for her longest knife. 'All I'm doing is to reheat the enchiladas and cut the ham, and-let's see, heat up biscuits, and open plum jam, and make a salad."

Larry was not listening, and she knew he was not. He said in a low tone, "Tony, how are you?"

"Perfect!" she told him, smiling. "No, but I mean-how are you?" The little intimate significance did not escape her, but there was no hint of fluctuation in her steady wide-open "Happy!" she told him, with a nervous shred of laughter.

"I'm glad," he said in a low tone, with his narrowed gaze keenly fixed on her. "Do you realize that it is more than two years since we have seen each other?"

"Two and a half, almost," Tony agreed. "It was spring."

"You know I was very ill?" "Joe fold me. Caroline wrote him, back-damn!" Joe said, you know. And when I would come that very reason we have no right to horses, do all the things that of late down week-ends he'd tell me." "You and he have become great friends, haven't you?"

"And are you going to marry him?" Larry asked. Her eyes clouded, and she gave him a dubious look, slowly shaking her head. "No," she said. "Then may I say something to you, Tony?-because I have an opportunity now and may not have another. May I say that I'm terribly-terribly sorry?" "I know what you mean," Tony said, her bright eyes fixed steadily on his, the color coming up quickly under her clear brown skin.

"Of course you know what I mean. Of course you know, and I know, what we meant to each other. I had been ill, I was badly shaken by Ruth's death, Caroline was right there-Larry said. The man followed her, a little awkwardly, to the table, and sat down facing her across its end. Tony had a soup plate before her; she began the concoction of a salad dressing, pouring oil, measuring vinegar, occasionally tasting the mixture on the tip of her finger.

"Tony," Larry said, "if I had come straight back, after Ruth's death, would you have been waiting for me?" "You know I would," Tony answered, with a full, steady look.

"I failed you," Larry muttered, looka pause.

"How do you mean?" "Caroline used to say that if ever she married again the first thing she'd make her husband buy her would be a chinchilla coat."

"Our marriage was a mistake-we both see it now," Larry said, paying no attention. It's all like a dream-a bad dream."

"But you don't mean, Larry, that you and Caroline-already are thinking of a break?"

"I've come back here to work," he said doggedly. "She says she despises San Francisco society and hates the West. Her heart is set now on going to Rio with Joe-you heard her just now. I can't go; I don't want to go. I want to stay here and dig into my job." He looked up, and his dark face brightened with the smile she remembered so well, Larry's masterful, slow smile. "And now and then take you to lunch," he said.

Instead of smiling in return she slowly shook her head, her face very sober.

"No, no more of that! That's what paid for so dearly, Larry, knowing that you belonged to her-to Ruth, and pretending that I had any right." "Isn't caring for each other a right?"

"I thought so then. I'm older now. see things differently now."

"You're changed," he said. "In all the lovely ways lovelier, and in so many other ways changed. You'redefinite, now. You're - outstanding, Tony. I don't ask you to forgive me. I was confused with the suddenness of everything-I was changed, toofrom my illness. Everything at home seemed far away and dreamy; the only realities were the villa, and the hot sunshine, and Caroline all in white being tremendously helpful and kindthe one lovely living thing in all our lives! Can't you understand?"

"I do understand," Tony said. "And I think," she added almost timidly, "I think you admire Caroline more than just to bring Ruth's mother home and you think you do, Larry. It seems to to come out here to you! But it seemed me, now, since you are married-since to be a time when I had to plunge you did marry so-so soon-"

"I see the jealousy." "She's intensely jealous of you," the man said.

"Of me? It seems to me the shoe ought to be on the other foot." "But she knows, of course, how I felt-how I feel for you."

"I wonder how Caroline would have felt if all Ruth's money hadn't been involved?" Tony asked idly.

"It wasn't all Ruth's money," Larry reminded her quickly. "She wrote Joe of the legacies." "And Joe got a splendid slice, and Joe's the one that ought to have it, too," Tony said. "He helps so many people. There's no end to Joe's good-

"And yet you can't love him? Tony, Tony, Tony, how blind I've been! It's to meet, and to have felt, as I did feel, my own destiny so wonderful, so happy, instantly thrown it away."

"Were you terribly young when you married Ruth, Larry?" "Twenty-one."

"A boy." "That was all."

"And did you love her?"

"I admired her tremendously. She was a great horse-woman, you know, and she had a splendid stable. I remember thinking her glorious, galloping along those lanes in autumn, and telling her men in the stables what to do with this fine horse and that. Yes," he said, with the thoughtful expression she liked best of all on his handsome face, "I always loved Ruth. Not-but then there are different ways of loving. I think she never had any misgivings, I think she was never anxious, until you came along, and everything got out of hand." "That's the thing I find it hard to forgive myself." "One can't always help those things, Tony. We didn't-after all, we didn't -what shall I say?-betray her."

"Tony, only promise me this: that whatever the complications of the next year are, whatever Caroline and I decide to do, you'll be my friend. I may have your friendship, mayn't I, Tony? You and I may see each other, and talk things over, and go back to the old days when we used to go to lunch at one and talk until half-past three?" "I don't like to remember those days!" Tony said, smiling. And in the sickening," Larry said, with a rueful silence Joe put his head in at the door smile, "to have had-to have had all and asked: "Do we eat in here?" and the difficulties in one's life that I had her talk with Larry was over. The door between the living room and the that if I ever were free I could make kitchen was opened, and Caroline and Joe began to set a table in by the fire. and then to have had my chance and Larry took the big leather chair and sat there staring at the flames, and occasionally putting a word into the desultory talk.

"What'll you do with this place, Joe, if you go to Rio?" he asked. "Leave it just as it is. Turn the key

"What about the dog?" "Oh, he goes!" Tony said quickly. "Any more talk of your going to New York, Tony?" Caroline asked. "Not now, no."

in the door."

"I got my coat there," Caroline said. "The divinest chinchilla you ever saw, I'll show it to you tomorrow." Tony did not look at Larry. "I remember you wanted one."

"Ready, Joe," Tony said. The salad was green and crisp in its bowl; the enchiladas smoking hot. Joe brought a great stack of brown toast to the table. 'Does anyone want coffee now? Nobody wants coffee until later, Joe," Tony said. "Are you going to town tonight,

Tony?" "No. Not tonight."

"Staying with Brenda?" "No." Tony, her face suddenly paling, but her eyes like sparkling blue stars, burst into joyous laughter and caught Joe around the neck as she passed his chair at the table. "Oh, Joe, darling, we'll have to tell them!" she said. Larry shoved his chair back a little, facing them with a faintly knitted brow. Caroline's face was a study in hurt incredulity. "You two are engaged," she said quickly, as one not to be surprised.

Who Wouldn't Be Slim and Trim in This Stunning Summer Frock?

Who isn't excited about the new wider shoulder width that tends to slenderize the waistline?

Note the unusual bodice lines, the panel extending to the hem, and kick pleats that contribute dash and ease. The natty collar is just right to take a pin, clip or posy. The frock is quickly fashioned and costs so little to make.

Revised Guffey Coal Bill Is Passed-Republicans Map Campaign Strategy—England Abandons Anti-Italian Trade Sanctions.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

L AST minute passage legislation marked the closing sessions of congress before adjournment for the summer.

The house, by a vote of 161 to 90, passed the revised version of the Guffey bill to restore federal control of soft coal production, invalidated by the capital. Supreme court. It passed the measure

Observers pointed out that this was the quickest repair job on a Supreme court decision that the New Deal has thus far achieved. The new bill eliminates provisions governing working hours and wages which the court

It retains, however, two features which the court neither approved nor disapproved: 1-The granting to a national bituminous coal commission autherity to fix prices and approve marketing agreements. 2-The imposition of a tax on the production of coal. The tax feature has been altered somewhat from the original bill. Instead of a flat 15 per cent tax on coal production, it calls for an outright excise levy of 11/2 per cent on all soft coal, plus a 131/2 per cent tax on coal in inter-

The house, likewise, adopted the two billion, 360 million dollar relief and deficiency bill. At the same time, it killed two other measures. One was for the appropriation of funds to complete the $150,000,000 Florida ship canal, which had been approved by the senate. The other was the anti-lobby bill sponsored by Senator Black of Alabama. As presented to the house it would have forced the registration of lobbyists, including those appearing before congress and before government departments. It would also have required information on contributions for lobbying purposes and payments made to lobbyists.

The senate by a vote of 42 to 24 passed the Wagner bill providing for a $460,000,000 program to encourage low cost housing construction. The bill would set up a federal housing authority to administer the act.

DEATH "in the harness" came to Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, dean of the senate, who had represented Florida in the upper house for the last quarter of a century. He died suddenly at his home in Washington. Senator Fletcher, a strong supporter of the Roosevelt administration although he was considered a conservative, was chairman of the banking and currency committee which bore the brunt of the task involved in the currency reform legislation and the banking act

President Roosevelt, in a statement eulogizing the senator, said "the country has lost an able and conscientious servant in the death of Senator Fletcher." He declared the Floridian "was ever actuated by motives of high patriotism and unselfish devotion to the public welfare."

The death of Senator Fletcher followed closely the passing of Senator Park Trammel of Florida and the death of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns of Ten-

Senator Fletcher was born in Sumter county, Georgia, January 6, 1859. He was graduated from Vanderbilt university in 1880 and began the practice of law in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1881, He was elected to the United States senate in 1908 and had been renominated and re-elected in each subsequent

While no movement had been undertaken to select his successor as chairman of the important banking and currency committee, it was felt in Washington circles that Senator Carter Glass, senate veteran, Virginia Democrat, wartime secretary of the treasury and staunch gold standard advocate, was in line for the post. Although a critic of some of President's policies, Senator Glass has never gone far off the reservation of party regu-

The two billion, 643 million dollars required by the treasury to meet the bonus payments raised the nation's gross public debt to 34 billion, 331 million dollars, as the government's largest peace-time financial transaction was recorded on the statement of the treasury's position.

SIX red-robed judges of Canada's Supreme court declared two of the Dominion's eight "social reform" laws unconstitutional, decided that two others were valid, one partly valid and returned tie verdicts on the other three.

The two major laws declared unconstitutional were the National Products Marketing Act, similar in some respects to the nullified American NRA and the Employment and Social Insurance Act, proposing a compulsory contributory employment insurance system. The laws were passed in 1934 and 1935 under the Conservative government then headed by Premier Bennett.

Declared valid were the Unfair Business Practices Act and the Farmers and Creditors Arrangement Act. The judges decided that the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act was partly valid. They reached a tie on three months' leave before reportverdict on the Minimum Wages Act, ing to their first stations as second the Limitations of Hours of Work Act | lieutenants.

represented in the reorganized personnel of the executive committee which will chart the Republican course. Hamilton, the new chairman, is forty-four. The youngest member, Robert P. Burroughs of Manchester, N. H., is thirty-six. Seven new members attended the meeting, including Burroughs: Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., North Attleboro, Mass. J. Will. Taylor, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. Horace Sayre, Ardmore, Okla.; Mrs. John Wyeth, St. Joseph, Mo.; Ezra Whitla, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; and Earl Warren, Oakland, Calif. Members returned to the committee are: Charles D. Hilles, New York; Harrison E. Spangler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; R. B. Creager, Brownsville, Texas; Mrs. Bertha Baur, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, Newport, R. I.; Walter S. Hallahan, Charleston, W. Va.; and George Ball, Muncie, Ind.

In the reorganization of the committee, Hamilton traded posts with Henry P. Fletcher, who took over the job of counsel for the committee. C. B. Goodspeed of Chicago succeeded George F. DANGERS of civil war in China and an armed intervention by Japan were lessened somewhat by reports that Gen. Li Tsung-jen, military overlord of Kwangsi province, and his supporters had decided to yield to the superior strength of the Nanking central government, of which Chiang Kai-shek is the generalissimo. The rebellious chieftains of Kwangsi had been coupling their agitations against General Chiang with warlike demonstrations against the Japanese. Tokyo has demanded in no uncertain terms that the anti-Japanese activities throughout China be suppressed.

DEFINITE abandonment of Britain's trade sanctions against Italy and advocacy of their official removal by the League of Nations was decided upon by the British cabinet, under the presidency of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. This action of the cabinet had been expected for some time, following the failure of the sanctions to halt Italy's progress in the conquest of Ethiopia. It was expected that

Anthony Eden Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, would go to Geneva to attend the league meeting and urge abolition of league sanctions against Italy. Dispatches from Paris indicated

French support of the British program. The cabinet was also reported to have formulated a program regarding Germany and the reformation of the league which may call for continued pressure on Reichsfuehrer Hitler to use his power and influence to promote European peace. British statesmen believe that the Nazis are the keystone of the present situation.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING is not optimistic concerning world peace. Addressing the graduating class at the United States Military academy on the fiftieth anniversary of his own graduation, the general said "no one can tell when we shall again need our armies.' He continued: "The situation in the world today is far from reassuring. None can foresee the effect upon us of another world catastrophe, Loyal citizens cannot shut their eyes to the possibility of war. They owe it to all that is sacred to make ample preparation

Mr. Roosevelt's trip was delivered at Vincennes, Ind., where he dedicated the handsome memorial to George Rogers Clark. He paid eloquent tribute to that conqueror of the Northwest, and found occasion to appeal for support of his own program. Said he: "In his (Clark's) day among the pioneers there were jumpers of land claims and those who sought to swindle their neighbors though they were poor in this world's goods and lived in sparsely settled communities. Today among our teeming millions there still are those who by dishonorable means seek to obtain the possessions of their unwary neighbors.

"Our modern civilization must contantly protect itself against moral defectives whose objectives are the same but whose methods are more subtle than their prototypes of a century and half ago. We do not change our form of free government when we arm ourselves with new weapons against ew devices of crime and cupidity."

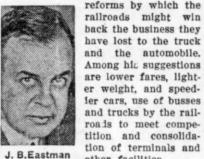

In a series of rhetorical questions the President defended the AAA subsidies to farmers, soil conservation, reforestation, and preservation of wild

This document guarantees protection for private property, suffrage for all citizens more than eighteen years old, regardless of race, sex, religious belief, and previous activities or property ownership. The communist party will be retained as the only recognized political organization.

There are to be two legislative bodles, the council of the union, elected by the people, and the council of nationalities, selected by the present indirect system. These two bodies will elect a board of 31 officials to run the government. The chairman of this board will be equivalent to the president of a republic.

O NE of England's most distinguished and interesting authors and critics passed from the scene in the death of Gilbert Keith Chesterton, generally known as "G. K." He was sixty-two years old. Chesterton was converted to Catholicism in 1922 and thereafter much of his writing was devoted to his championship of that church. For many years his writings were very popular and in 1926 he established his own weekly magazine.

Plan Flops everyone over sixty if the House years of age seems to have gone up in smoke, but there are developments in connection with the California doctor's unworkable scheme that merit comment. The good doctor and his half-baked idea have been skidding rapidly since the House investigating committee showed up the plan as a befuddled idea and as I once predicted, the bubble burst in a big

While I am inclined to believe that Dr. Townsend was honest and sincere in proposing the $200 per month pension, it was the sort of thing that serves as an inducement for racket eers to gather. It was the old molasses barrel for the flies in the world of racketeers. It never had a chance to go anywhere and never will, because it was fundamentally unsound. We can dismiss it then except for the two phases which ought to be vigorously condemned by right-thinking people everywhere.

The two circumstances which I hear discussed most frequently are: The tragedy, the heartaches, that obviously follow in the wake of "movements" such as the Townsend plan that cannot succeed and that draw to themselves thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of persons who believe they are going to benefit; and secondly, it seems to me that the House committee, headed by Representative Bell, of Missouri, overplayed its band with the result that it has brought upon House committees the same public disgust and distrust as characterizes 90 per cent of the Senate investigations.

Each of these conditions is to be deplored. Each is definitely destructive. There can be no more excuse for some of the methods employed by the House committee in crucifying Dr. Townsend than for Dr. Townsend himself to wreck hearts and hopes and homes by pushing forward such a miserably impossible proposition as his $200 per month pension program,

The House committee had within its power opportunity to do a magnificent job in exposing the racketeering that became part and parcel of the Townsend plaa. It had within its hands the capacity to educate millions within the United States against following such an illusion, suca a mirage, as the Townsend plan. If it had confined itself to that work. Representative Bell and his committee should receive the plaudits of the nation. But the sad story is that the committee under Mr. gnidance allowed itself to come an agency of prosecution, even persecution, rather than an unbiased investigating unit, determined only to obtain the truth.

Since there never was any question that the Townsend nostrum would fall of its own weight Committee eventually, it is difficult to understand why the committee resorted to the tactics it used. I watched some of those hearings. As the committee delved deeper into the activities of Dr. Townsend and his associates, it became infuriated. That was where it made its big mistake and it is going to be quite a long time before House committees again can have a reputation throughout the country of conducting unbiased and reasonable investigations. Dr. Townsend was sufficiently "hard boiled" to justify the committee in making a vigorous investigation. He was sufficiently indifferent to their offers or hints of cc-operation to warrant a feeling on the committee's part that they had to "bear down." Yet, it must be said the committee went beyond all reason and I imagine that in the end it will flare back on the individuals. Now, Dr. Townsend surely cannot blame anyone other than himself for the fact that he is faced with proceedings by the United States attorney. It will be remembered, of course, that Dr. Townsend deliberately walked out of the committee and refused to testify. That has always been held as contempt and Congress has the right to punish for contempt. In this instance, the House of Representatives elected to turn Dr. Townsend's case over to the United States attorney for punishment in court rather than to employ a House vote which might send the elderly dreamer to jail. Further, the whole Townsend investigation has turned out to be something of a mess like the Townsend plan itself. I am informed that legal action against Dr. Townsend is unlikely until late autumn. Or to say it another way, there is every probability that no legal action will be taken against him until after the election November 3. Thus, there is every evidence of a second type of politics in this investigation. The evi-Second Type dence of politics lay of Politics in the fact that the House voted the inquiry largely because many of the individual House members were afraid, they were too cowardly, to take a definite stand in their home districts against the Townsendites. True, they did not know how strong the Townsend movement was. So, as politicians always do, they dodged the issue and moved to expose it through a meeting of the Washington County rather than fight individually to show how ridiculous, how unsound, the plan

Time for Seeding Summer Pastures

Sudan Grass, Mixture, Will Provide Feed During the Critical Months.

By DR. HOWARD B. SPRAGUE, Agrono mist, New Jersey Experiment Station.—WNU Service.

There is still ample time for seeding temporary pasture crops to provide additional feed during the critical summer months. The planting of Sudan grass, or a mixture of Sudan grass and soy beans will insure sufficient feed to keep cows in production without the use of expensive barn feeds.

According to the Bureau of Dairy Industry, approximately 150 pounds of fresh grass daily is required to completely satisfy a cow producing 35 pounds of milk. Since permanent pastures are usually short in mid-summer. it is necessary to provide additional pasturage during this period. Even the best permanent pasture will produce only half as much feed as during the most favorable periods. Sudan grass which has reached a height of eight to ten inches, or a mixture of Sudan grass and soy beans, adequately fill the need for increased pasturage in mid-summer Sudan grass seeded alone should be planted at approximately 30 pounds per acre. The mixture of Sudan grass and soy beans may be seeded at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds of Sudan and 30 to 40 pounds of soy beans. This mixture is higher in protein and some what better feed than Sudan grass alone. However, straight Sudan grass is excellent pasturage, as many farmers who have tried the crop will testify. Both crops will be favored by the use of lime, if the soil is strongly acid, and the application of 300 or 400 pounds of a complete fertilizer per acre. Sudan grass and soy beans may both be planted with a grain drill, although care should be taken to prevent planting too deeply. Seeding soon after a rain on a well prepared seed bed

The amount of pasture needed will depend on the number of cows, approximately one acre for every four cows usually being adequate. If the crop is not needed for pasture, it may be cut for hay. Sudan grass is superior to other summer crops in ability to make new growth after it has once been grazed down.

Indians Grew Much Corn The great age of corn culture in America is witnessed by the fact that the first explorers found Indians growing corn practically everywhere that It can grow on this continent, from the forested regions of New England and Ontario, through the rich Midwest and the irrigated pueblo lands of the Southwest, rising to a climax in the high Indian civilizations of the Mexican plateau, Yucatan, and the Andean uplands of South America, out again finally among the more primitive tribes of the Pampas, far to the south. Only desert, extremely poor soil, or a too short growing season could discourage an Indian tribe from adopting corn as a mainstay food plant.-Successful Farming.

Horse Ages Rapidly

A horse at five is comparatively as old as a man at twenty; at ten he equals a man of forty; at fifteen he is a man of fifty; at twenty a man of sixty; at twenty-five a man of seventy; at thirty a man of eighty; and at thirty-five he is considered as old as a man of ninety years. The comeback that horses are making is putting many old horses into the hands of farmers at artillery to pass the reviewing prices out of line with what they are going to return. Value of Manure

Nitrogen represents 70 per cent of the worth of manure. Moist, packed manure undergoes the same fermentation as occurs in silos. Acetic, butyric and carbonic acids are produced. The acids combine with the ammonia and prevent nitrogen loss as long as manure is moist. Manure hauled in drying weather loses the volatile acids by excessive drying. The ammonia goes also. Stored manure should be hauled and spread in cool moist weather, or worked into soil soon after spreading.

TALL TALES

As Told to:

FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Trolling Frog Tragedy RECAUSE he's so desperately fond of frog's legs, Albert Mackey of Detroit once owned the biggest bull frog that ever croaked a love song.

Albert landed the Goliath near Grass Lake Mich., and it measured 28% inches and weighed precisely three pounds, four ounces.

Albert kept the giant alive simply ecause it spurred his appetite just to look at his pet. He named it Frenchy. When Albert owned Frenchy 28 days to the hour he permitted the frog a daily swim in the lake. When he gave a certain peculiar whistle, here the frog would come, plowing the water

An adventurously hungry fish followed Frenchy home from his swim one day, nipping at his aft propellers and spurring Al's pet leviathan to strenuous efforts. That gave Al an idea and it wasn't long until a little harness was fitted on the frog's body. Then Al attached two short lengths of fishing line and a couple of goodsized hooks with spinners and sent Frenchy out trolling.

The very first trial, a two-pound bass struck. Al whistled and Frenchy, churning the water desperately, beached his prize. It was easy then, Frenchy learned to troll the most likely places, edges of weed beds, around lily pads and windfalls-he'd even dive into deep holes where bass lurked.

Course, nothing's permanent. Unknown to all, a fierce muskellunge inhabited Grass lake. Al had sent Frenchy foraging when he saw the muskie dive at the frog, gulp mightily and vanish with him, not to reappear.

"I'd a-whistled him home," said Albert sadly. "But we'd put some persimmons on ice and I was testing them. Darn it all, my lips puckered on me." And it's well known in Detroit that out of respect for his frog, Albert Mackey hasn't eaten another persimmon since that dreadful day.

Ever Meet a High-Behind? M ANY a tenderfoot has protected the camp from a high-behind, but not one of them has seen this fabilous beast. The high-behind, as all Westerners know, is equipped with a stiff tail, the end of which was fashioned like a posthole digger. The chief delight of the high-behind was to turn on its back, balance on the tail and spin madly in circles. Of course you understand the rotary action of this indulgence bored a hole in the ground into which the high-behind invariably disappeared.

Night duties of a tenderfoot frequently included replenishment of condensed milk cans around the camp. This was the favorite food of the highbehind. The beast opened the cans with his metal tail and after three drinks was lulled into such abiding peace that the camp was safe for the night from his attacks.
