

The Truth About that "Public Be Damned" Interview

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

PASSENGERS! The Railroads Love You. So reads the headline in a recent issue of a popular weekly magazine and the theme of the article thus titled is the present attitude of the railroads toward the citizens of these United States.

Lower rates, faster schedules, luxurious streamlined trains, air-conditioned coaches and sleeping cars, better and cheaper meals in dining cars, special excursions—all of these they are offering us now to halt the decline in passenger revenue. For they "have learned that competition, whether it comes from other railroads, from automobiles, airplanes or busses, is something to be dealt with by being nicer to the customer."

In other words: the public be pleased!

How different is all this from their attitude half a century ago when an arrogant "railroad king" spoke for all of them and uttered the phrase which has been inseparably linked with his family name ever since.

"The public be damned!" he snorted scornfully but, contrary to popular belief, it was not old Cornelius ("Commodore") Vanderbilt who said that. The man who did say it was his son, William H. Vanderbilt, and the public, because of its prejudice against Wall Street and men of great wealth, never forgot that it had once been damned by a Vanderbilt.

Since old "Commodore" Vanderbilt was much more famous than his son, William, it is only

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT
He Never Said "The Public Be Damned!" Even Though Many Americans Believe He Did.

natural, perhaps, that the phrase should have been tacked upon him and perpetuated in the long list of our "popular beliefs which are wrong."

That historic phrase was uttered in an interview with newspaper men in October, 1882. And just as there has been confusion as to the identity of the Vanderbilt who uttered it, so has there been confusion—and controversy—over the circumstances under which it was said. No less than three versions of the story, all agreeing in some details but differing in others, have been told and retold many times. To give the true version, based upon authoritative sources and contemporary evidence, is the purpose of this article.

Three Versions.

As for the contradictory accounts of this incident which have been published, one of them says that it took place at an important meeting of railroad men in St. Louis at which William H. Vanderbilt, then president of the New York Central, was the leading figure. When the conference broke up, a crowd of newspaper reporters forced their way into the room and demanded to know what had been done. Vanderbilt, acting as spokesman for the railway men, answered that nothing was yet to be given out. A reporter, whose identity is not established in this version, tried to force the railway magnate to issue some statement. "Mr. Vanderbilt, the public wants to know and is entitled to know," he said, whereupon Vanderbilt replied wrathfully, "O, the public be damned!"

Another version places the scene in the Grand Pacific hotel in Chicago. The Pennsylvania railroad had recently put on a fast, deluxe train between Chicago and the East. It was the first of its kind and created something of a sensation. Clarence P. Dresser, a free-lance reporter (so this account identifies him), learned that William H. Vanderbilt was stopping at the Grand Pacific and called upon him there. Dresser asked what the New York Central was going to do to meet this new competition of the Pennsylvania.

Vanderbilt replied that he did not know that his company was going to do anything.

"But won't the public demand it?" asked Dresser.

"O, the public be damned!" was the reply. Still a third version of the yarn has the same reporter but the circumstances under which he obtained his interview are different. It says that while Vanderbilt was eating dinner in his private car, which had been sidetracked in the Michigan Central yards in Chicago, Dresser forced his way into the car and demanded an interview. Vanderbilt replied that he was busy but the reporter was insistent.

"Well," replied the railroad president, "sit down at the other end of the car until I have finished dinner and I will talk with you."

"But," insisted Dresser, "it is getting late and I will not reach the office in time. The public—" At this point Vanderbilt interrupted him. "The public be damned! You get out of here!"

So Dresser "got out" and the next morning Vanderbilt's ill-tempered retort was heralded far and wide through the columns of the Chicago newspapers.

Two Reporters.

The true story of this incident contains some of the elements of the second and third versions quoted above. It is true that Clarence P. Dresser was present at the interview when Vanderbilt made his historic reply but he was not the reporter who asked the question which provoked it. That reporter was John Dickinson Sherman, who at the time of his death in 1926 was feature writer for Western Newspaper Union and who once told the writer of this article the complete story of that famous interview.

In 1882 Sherman was Hyde Park correspondent for the Chicago Tribune and his friend, Clarence P. Dresser, was Hyde Park correspondent for the City Press, an organization which supplied routine news to most of the Chicago newspapers. Learning that Vanderbilt was en route to Chicago in a special train these two enterprising reporters on Saturday night, October 7, persuaded the crew of a freight train to let them ride on it to Michigan City, Ind. When the Vanderbilt special arrived the next day and stopped at Michigan City for a few minutes to change engines, they went aboard.

After the train was well on its way, they succeeded in getting into Vanderbilt's private car where he sat alone after his Sunday dinner. Explaining the reason for their intrusion, they asked permission to ride with him to Chicago and ask him some questions. He agreed to this and the interview began. It led finally to this question which was put to him by Sherman:

"Do your limited express trains pay or do you run them for the accommodation of the public?"

"Accommodation of the public? The public be damned!" replied Vanderbilt. "We run them because we have to. They do not pay. We have tried again and again to get the different roads to give them up; but they will run them and, of course, as long as they run them we must do the same."

After that there were many other questions—about freight rates, wages of railroad employees, a proposed union depot for Chicago, the condition of other railroads, his interest in them, etc.—and upon their arrival in Chicago, the two reporters hurried to write their stories for the next day's editions.

For some reason, the railroad editor of the Tribune saw fit to change Sherman's story in one important particular. Instead of giving Vanderbilt's famous reply verbatim, the story in that paper quoted him as saying "Accommodation of the public! Nonsense! They do not pay either. We have tried again and again to get the different roads to give them up; but they will run them, and, of course, as long as they run them, we must do the same."

But if this editor, sensing the "dynamite" in the railroad king's answer, was trying to protect him from the consequences of his intemperate words, he failed. Other Chicago papers, using the City Press (Dresser's) account of the interview, had not been so charitable. Typical of their handling of the story was Victor Lawson's Chicago Daily News which displayed the story prominently on page one under the headline:

Mr. W. H. VANDERBILT

The Magnate Talks Plainly

He Deprecates the "Nickel Plate"—Railroads Are Not Run for the Dear Public

And Dresser's version of the famous question and answer was this:

"Does your limited express pay?"

"No, not a bit of it. We only run it because we are forced to do so by the action of the Pennsylvania railroad. It doesn't pay expenses. We would abandon it if it was not for our competitor keeping its train on."

"But don't you run it for the public benefit?"

"The public be d—d! What does the public care for the railroads except to get as much out of them for as small a consideration as possible. I don't take any stock in this silly nonsense about working for anybody's good but our own, because we are not. When we make a move, we do it because it is our interest to do so, not because we expect to do somebody else some good. Of course, we like to do everything possible for the benefit of humanity in general, but when we do we first see that we are benefiting ourselves."

Railroads are not run on sentiment, but on business principles and to pay, and I don't mean to be egotistic when I say that the roads which I have had anything to do with have generally paid pretty well."

Vanderbilt's Denial.

When a report of the interview was telegraphed to New York, the New York Times printed it and editorially recommended to the people that they go to Vanderbilt's house and tack placards on it bearing the words: "Damn the public." Realizing the blunder that he had made, Vanderbilt resorted to the expedient since used by so many public men to save face when there is an unfavorable reaction to one of their utterances. He declared that he had been misquoted by the reporters. "I have frequently been interviewed by the New York press and everyone knows I never use the language or expressions attributed to me by the reporters," he said in formal statement disavowing the words attributed to him.

Even though he did disavow using the "language or expressions" attributed to him, there is available other evidence of his contemptuous attitude toward the public. The Chicago Times, instead of using Dresser's report, sent one of its own reporters to interview the railroad king at his hotel the next day, and in its report he is quoted as saying: "Railroads are not run for the public benefit but to pay. Incidentally, we may benefit humanity, but the aim is to earn dividends."

But the News, while printing this denial on page one, said editorially: "Mr. Vanderbilt rises to explain and deny the interview with him published in the Chicago papers a few days ago. It is not strange that he should be disgusted even with himself when he reads his profane, egotistical remarks on paper. But that he did say what was credited to him is beyond all question, his own pointed denial to the contrary notwithstanding. There were two reporters present at the interview; both report it substantially alike and their notes agree almost exactly. The fact is, Mr. Vanderbilt is in the habit of revising his interviews before they appear in print and it is very evident that he had better insist upon such a privilege in the future although it was not accorded him in this instance."

A day or two later the Chicago Times printed in its "Gotham Gossip" dispatches from New York the following:

"In regard to Vanderbilt's extraordinary damnation of the public in Chicago but one opinion prevails in Wall Street. Every one firmly believes that he did use the words attributed to him and every one declares him to be a crazy loon for having done so. 'Everyone knows,' he said in his letter of denial, 'that I never use such language as attributed to me by the reporter.' But ask any of his friends and they will tell you at once: 'Why, it's W. H. all over!'"

"Four Fatal Words" Newspaper paragraphers made wisecracks about "the four fatal words" and editorial denunciation of his statement became so widespread that the Cincinnati Gazette finally declared:

"It is surprising, to say the least, that the sayings of a man like Vanderbilt should so disturb the world in general and country editors in particular. His Chicago interview amounts to nothing at all, and the public is giving both Mr. Vanderbilt and his silly talk altogether too much prominence. If he were a great railway manager, or a great financier, or if he understood the first principles of the science of transportation, some weight might be attached to his utterances. But he is nothing of the kind. From a tiller of the soil, and a very common tiller at that, he sprang at one bound to the top round of wealth. But in point of experience in ways of trade and commerce, and in the elements of greatness, he stopped short off in the subcellular of progress, philanthropy, generosity, liberality and brotherly love. The public condemn him for doing and saying outlandish things when he can not help doing and saying them. He knows no better . . ."

W. H. VANDERBILT
The Railroad President Who Uttered the "Four Fatal Words."

A week later the Tribune carried this significant news story: "W. H. Vanderbilt and party returned from their Western trip yesterday afternoon and put up at the Grand Pacific hotel where they remained overnight. Mr. Vanderbilt refused to be interviewed again, as his experience in this respect when he passed through here on his Western trip seemed to have taught him the lesson that 'speech is silver but silence is golden!'"

That was more than 50 years ago, but to this day mention of the name Vanderbilt brings to the mind of the average American the "four fatal words" which one of them once uttered—"The public be damned!" The public, it seems, like the elephant, never forgets!

HISTORIC MURDER

ONE hundred and ten years ago a man was murdered and as a direct result of that crime we now have, every four years, national conventions of delegates from every state and territory in the Union to nominate candidates for President and vice-president. Here's how it came about:

In 1826 William Morgan of Batavia, N. Y., published a book which purported to reveal the secrets of Freemasonry. Soon afterwards he disappeared and the Masons were not only accused of having kidnaped him and drowned him in the Niagara river but also of blocking a proper investigation of his disappearance. From western New York, opposition to the Masons spread to other states and several demagogic young politicians, among them Thurlow Weed and William H. Seward of New York and Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, seized upon the movement to promote their own ambitions.

The result was the organization of the Anti-Masonic party and in September, 1830, the first national convention of any party, was held in Philadelphia, attended by 96 delegates from ten states. It was decided to hold another convention the next year to nominate candidates for President and vice-president and this meeting was to be composed of as many delegates from each state as there were representatives in both houses of congress.

Accordingly in September, 1831, the convention was held in Baltimore and it nominated for President William Wirt of Maryland, who had been attorney-general in Monroe's cabinet, and for vice-president Amos Ellmaker of New York. In the election of 1832 these candidates won only the electoral vote of Vermont. Later this party was absorbed by the Whigs and lost its identity, except in Pennsylvania where it elected a governor in 1835 and continued as a separate party for a few years.

But during the Anti-Masonic party's short existence it had pointed the way for others to follow in the method of choosing candidates. It gave them the national nominating convention and while convention procedure has since been changed in many ways, from that day to this the fundamental principle upon which it was based has remained unchanged—democratic representation of the party constituency.

KANSAS CAMPAIGNER

THE state of Kansas is in the limelight this year because for the first time in history a nominee of one of the major parties comes from the Sunflower state. Moreover, it has two candidates for the presidency—Gov. Alf. M. Landon heading the Republican ticket and Earl Browder of Wichita, the leader of the Communist party.

This is not the first time, however, that a Kansan has been a nominee. Back in 1884 there was another, also a governor. His name was John Pierce St. John, a native of Indiana, an adventurer in California in the gold rush days, a lawyer in Illinois and a soldier in the Civil war, rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel of an Illinois volunteer regiment. After the war he moved to Missouri where he practiced law for a time and became noted as a political orator. In 1869 he moved to Kansas where he was to win his greatest renown.

He served in the state senate in 1873-4 but declined re-election and in 1876 was elected governor by the Republican party. Re-elected in 1880, he won the Republican nomination for a third term in 1882 but was defeated in the election.

Always a pronounced enemy of the liquor traffic, St. John was nominated for President on the Prohibition ticket in 1884 and polled a total of 151,809 votes. This was 20,000 more than the vote for Butler, the candidate of the "Greenbackers," so that he was the "runner-up" in the race between Cleveland and Blaine.

During his canvass for the presidency, St. John traveled extensively over the United States making speeches in behalf of the "dry" cause. In fact, during his 14 years of public life he is said to have hung up a record of travel exceeded by few candidates for office. He traveled more than 300,000 miles by rail, during which time he never had an accident nor was sick a day and made a total of 4,000 speeches, missing but four engagements in all that time.

Norwegian Pagan Festival

Originally a Norwegian pagan festival in honor of the sun, St. Hans eve is celebrated throughout the country with bonfires, dancing and merrymaking the whole night through. In Oslo, the entire population, it seems, either boats out to islands in the fjord or goes out onto the tops of near-by mountains for the celebration. Bonfires are lighted on every hill, and at the outdoor museums here and at Lillehammer, great demonstrations of folk dancing are given.

Honolulu Has "Kiss Tree"

The kissing noises echoing through the halls of Queen's hospital in Honolulu herald love in bloom all right but not the common patient-nurse kind. The hints of osculation come from the rare Bombax tree as its curious banana-shaped buds break into pink fuzzy blossoms.

Ancient Money

Slabs of copper in Sweden, tea compressed into bricks in China, tobacco, milk, cattle and salt were all at one time used as money.

Cost of Sports

The American people spend close to $1,000,000,000 a year on sports. "The Index" of the New York Trust company states in an article on sports as an industry. The estimated yearly cost of sporting and athletic goods approximates $500,000,000, covers dues and fees $200,000,000, with the estimate for sporting events at least $125,000,000, the article says.

LAND O' LAKES SET FOR BASKETBALL

Merton, Wis.—Basketball in the Land o' Lakes and Land o' Rivers leagues is booming! The coming season is expected to be one of the greatest in the history of the organization, which started in 1924. New teams are asking for franchises and nearly all of the last year teams will be back, and with stronger teams.

Plymouth and Waldo in Sheboygan county, and good basketball towns, would like to enter the northern division and it is probable that Port Shington, Cedarburg, Turners, Grafton, Kewaskum and Campbellsport will welcome them and have Hartford and Slinger shifted into the southern division. This move will undoubtedly prove popular as North Lake is planning to put a team in the loop again. Due to poor playing facilities at home they may play all of their games away from home. The Irish have been the best drawing cards in the loop and this should work out fine.

Menomonee Falls, Waukesha Sports, Oconomowoc, Hartland and Watertown will make up a circuit that should balance the northern section. Then, too, the northern division may have a team from West Bend if home conditions are ironed out.

The Rivers loop will undoubtedly take the leading teams of last year with the best floors in both north and south, and the weaker teams with smaller floors will make up a new circuit under the name of the Land o' Valleys.

Allenton, Rockfield, Freistadt, Port Washington and Barton are some of the towns planning to enter teams in either the Rivers or Valleys loop. Hartford Shoes, Jackson, Ceedie Hot Shots, Germantown, Rubicon, Hubertus, Merton, Sussex, Brookfield, Monches, Nashotah, Stone Bank, Waukesha Schley's Dairy, Mueller's of Grafton and the Hartland Tigers made up the loop last season.

Sunday, Nov. 15, has been set as the day for a reorganizing meeting. Forfeits will be posted at this time and all business will be taken care of, necessitating only one trip to Merton.

The league takes care of the schedule, officials and players and the only part the local manager has to do is to take care of his players, and equipment. This is a real cooperative way of operating.

The Land O' Lakes is here to serve the boys; to give them the best of competitive sports, and keep them out of mischief.

In allowing only local boys to participate, the cost of professionalism has been eliminated, by which loyalty to their home town and to the folks that support them is being established.

In turn, these boys are entertaining

many fans in a clean wholesome way. In general, it is taking the tension off of the monotony of their daily routine and making a better community to live in. The boys that can "take defeat" in the basketball court can "take it" in business, in politics and in every day life.

The league hopes to establish athletic clubs in every town in the loop. To have the business men sponsor the boys athletic activities not only in baseball and basketball but in skating, tennis and every seasonal sport. To build up a fund when the team finishes in the first division to be retained, and to pay for any deficit that may incur when the team does not have a good team. To cooperate in having harmony among the boys in order that they may give their best efforts to the men and the town they represent.

FARM AND HOME NOTES

The Wisconsin exports of 4,004 cattle shipped out in August were approximately 100 per cent greater than for the same month a year ago. These shipments were made to 25 states, Illinois led all other states in imports of Wisconsin cattle, with New Jersey being second, Pennsylvania third, and California a fourth.

About one-third of Wisconsin farms use electricity. Extensive rural electrification developments, both by farmers' cooperatives and electric utility companies is now in progress and in a very short time electric power is expected to be available on nearly one-half of the farms of the state.

A drought casualty that will be felt on most dinner tables is the potato crop. Last month's estimates, which suggested about 560 million bushels of potatoes in the 30 late main crop states, would allow potato consumers only about 2 bushels each for the main part of the coming season, which is rather short ration.

A new type of popcorn, which pops out fuller than any varieties in this country, is reported from Mexico according to a report. The grain is believed to have been handed down from ancient Indian tribes.

Armistice Day

IN the hearts of thousands upon thousands of men and women, November 11th, 1918, will be forever a date of the most intense significance.

The Great War, if it did nothing else, gave this generation an understanding of the value of peace. Peace, so long as it is compatible with national honor, is a nation's most valuable possession.

TO MY COMRADES OF THE WORLD WAR:

Another anniversary will soon be observed throughout this nation of ours, and also the rest of the world, at 11:00 o'clock, a. m. on the 11th of November, recalling the signing of the Armistice, when we all knew that all was quiet on the Fronts in Europe.

The great conflict was ended for the majority of us so engaged, and we, who now are able to enjoy to the utmost all benefits, are reminded of those who departed before and since November 11, 1918, and also of those who are confined to hospital beds and wheel chairs, unable to assist themselves as a result of injuries sustained in the Great War.

Have we forgotten those less fortunate? No! And as a result to bind the individual members into a great society, the American Legion was born. The American Legion has been ever watchful of the welfare of our disabled comrades and orphaned children, trying to better conditions and improve the physical and mental welfare of our comrades.

To continue this program, we should unite with the local Post of the American Legion in order that they shall not lose faith in us who are able and willing.

So, my Comrades, when you meet a Comrade who is a Legionnaire, ask him to accept your membership in his Post, and no time is more appropriate than this coming Armistice Day, of Wednesday, November 11th.

By doing this you will be of great assistance to your local Post, which Post contributes to the State Department of the American Legion in Wisconsin, and the State Department to the National Department, which has charge of the great Legion Program throughout the nation.

So, Buddy, when you are reminded of Armistice, look up a Comrade who is a Legionnaire and inform him of your desire to co-operate and be a part of this great organization of World War Veterans.

The American Legion MILLS RUTHERFORD Vice Commander 2nd District, Columbus, Wis.

Come In and See the NEW McCORMICK-DEERING ROUGHAGE MILL No. 2

The McCormick-Deering Roughage Mill No. 2 is equipped with two offset knives and twenty-eight cutting hammers. These cut and grind roughage and grain in crushing volume, making a palatable, easily digested stock feed at low cost. A self-feeder is provided to handle the grain, cornstalks, baled hay and other roughages. There is a large steel hopper at one end which is used when grinding small grains or small stalks. Small grains and roughage can be ground in combination.

There is not an unnecessary piece or part in this compact, sturdy mill, yet it offers great strength and durability. It is designed and built to withstand the strains of heavy-duty service. The McCormick-Deering meets every grinding requirement and will grind wheat, oats, barley, rye, shelled corn, ear corn, kafir, milo-maize, hegar, feterita, bundle oats, cornstalks, hay, baled hay, alfalfa, beans, peas, and grain sorghums. Cotton seed and cotton seed cake can also be ground. This big mill is the modern answer to the problems faced by large stock raisers who need a mill that will handle all kinds of roughage and grains in large volume. Let us give you full particulars today. Also, ask for information on the No. 1-A and No. 1-B Hammer Mills for use where less capacity is required.

Trade Balance for Nine Months Is Unfavorable—Mrs. "Wally" Simpson Gets Divorce—Goering Launches Nazi Economic Plan.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

EXPORTS of manufactured goods and raw materials exceeded imports to the United States during September by more than four million dollars, according to a report released by Secretary of Commerce Roper.

But the flow the other way was so strong during the previous three months that the country suffered an unfavorable balance of trade during the first nine months of the year amounting to $33,136,000.

Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years.

Urges Farmers to Store Machinery

Equipment Should Be Under Cover to Prevent Damage in Winter Time.

By Prof. E. R. Gross, Agricultural Engineer, Rutgers University.—WNU Service.

Thrifty farmers have long recognized the value of storing their farm machinery after its season of use is over in a shelter that protects it from damaging effects of the weather.

Do not try to crowd machinery into a small space in the barn. Farmers who have tried to do this usually become discouraged over the extra labor of taking down the machines and outside storage is the result.

A simple structure of ample size which will keep out the sun, wind, rain and snow is all that is needed to house the farm machinery.

The cost of upkeep for a piece of machinery is also greatly reduced when such tasks as cleaning, listing, needed replacement parts on a tag tied to the machine, and repainting or varnishing to save the finish and prevent rust are done at the time of storing or in the winter.

Vetch Aid to Orchards; Needs to Be Inoculated

Winter vetch is one of the state's best cover crops for orchards under bearing age, says W. R. Martin, Jr., of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The most satisfactory seeding date is soon after the late rains begin. Normally, the seedbed should be prepared well ahead of seeding time.

The vetch being a legume needs to be thoroughly inoculated before seeding. The use of soil in which winter vetch has been successfully grown is a satisfactory way of supplying this inoculation.

The crop will reach its maximum growth in early May. At that time its greatest value as a green manure crop can be secured by disking or plowing it under.

Facts on Milk Flavors

Although there are many factors which may affect the flavor of milk by the time it reaches the doorstep of the consumer, there are only two principal causes of off-flavors in milk at the time it is drawn from the udder.

One of these is the presence of certain bacteria in the milk. Chief among the offenders in this group are weeds such as wild onions, ragweed, and bitter weed.

Grinding Kafir

Grinding is a profitable practice in preparing some feeds for consumption by hogs, but it apparently is not economical in the case of kafir, offered in self-feeders.

Washington—For cutting timber on their own land without first notifying the county clerk, Mark Hessey, Iron River, and Matt Ylimaki, Oulu, were each fined $25 by Judge G. N. Risjord in circuit court here.

The hog cholera germ spreads with extreme rapidity from farm to farm.

California's 1936 lamb crop—2,339,000 head—is 6 per cent over that of 1935.

More than 1,200 horses—almost equalling the number of trucks for the purpose—pull vegetable and fruit wagons in New York city.

The United States lamb crop this year is 9 per cent larger than last year.

Brusing is the most important single defect found in potatoes on the market.

Farmers in Massachusetts grow increased quantities of their forage needs on their own farms.

Although this year's corn crop in Argentina is below expectations, it is the third largest crop on record.

Future farmers may get light and heat for their farms by fermenting cornstalks and waste in back yard plants, and thus producing gas.

North Carolina tobacco farmers used sawdust during the 1936 drought months as a mulch for keeping soil cool and damp.

Calves should be permitted to run with the mother for three days after the cow freshens but the skimmilk ration can be started after that.

EDITORIAL

Dear Lunch Eaters:
There are quite a few Kewaskum
High school pupils who eat their lunches in the school assembly or on the school grounds. Those students must have small appetites because, at about 12:30, there is enough food lying on the desks, floors and grounds to feed the "Hungry Five."

There are bread crumbs, apple cores,
orange peelings, cake frosting, pickles,
and candy and gum wrappers everywhere.

Throwing away the empty paper bags on the school campus tends to make the grounds look "baggy" to say the least.

Do you enjoy going into your friend's home when you are afraid to sit down in a chair for fear of soiling your trousers or skirt? Are you proud to see your home lawn filled with paper bags and other rubbish? If you aren't, then, why are you proud of a messy school house and yard?

Let's see what we can do about it.

GRADE SCHOOL NOTES

The primary children were very much interested in the story of "How the Camel Got His Hump," as told by Charlotte Lay, a K. H. S. graduate of '32 and a Milwaukee-Downer graduate of '36.

Shirley Bruessel has withdrawn from second grade. She will attend a rural school.

The children of the second grade had a Halloween party for the children of the first grade. Halloween games were played and lunch was served.

Dianne Schaefer, Billy Edwards,
Jimmy Hansen, Suzanne Rosenheimer and Jeanette Kanless were visitors in the primary room Friday afternoon.

In a health project which was carried on last week in the intermediate room, there was one day when all of the children had cleaned their teeth, one day when all but one had clean handkerchiefs, and one day when about half the children had clean fingernails.

On all other days there were a smaller number who had done these health tasks.

The Grammar Room club had a meeting last Friday with President Bunkelman and the choir. They gave a musical program and some reading selections were given at the meeting.

IN THE CLASS-ROOMS

Beginning Typewriting
The students enrolled in the beginning typewriting classes have completed the key board controls and are now working for accuracy on their exercises.

The exercises that they are now working on must be centered horizontally and vertically on the page.

It is the aim of each student to hand in perfect work. However, papers are accepted with one error. If the student checks his own error, his grade is 95, otherwise his grade is 90 on a paper with one error. Any paper handed in with more than one error is returned to the student and the exercise is to be repeated until he gets it in without error or with only one error.

Social Problems

The social problems class has taken up the study of budgets. Each student has prepared a budget to show approximately the amount of money spent for his or her food, shelter, protection, clothing, education and miscellaneous
for one month.

Mr. Gibson has instructed the class thoroughly as to the value of a budget and the correct procedure in making one.

Shop Work

The freshmen and sophomore manual training classes, which are under the guidance of Mr. Furlong, are working on the making of benches, magazine racks, book racks, tie holders, lamps, end tables, and radio tables.

American History

The seniors in American history are studying the chapters, "The American Revolution," and "Establishment of the National Government," and are also writing out the questions at the end of each chapter. On Monday and Tuesday of this week members of the class gave reports on topics taken from our weekly magazine, the "Scholastic."

English Classes

The freshmen class is studying pronouns and their antecedents.

The sophomore class is now dia-gramming the subjects and predicates of the sentence.

The junior class is reading novels outside of class, and in class, they are reading poetry orally because poetry was written to be read aloud and the only chance the class has to read orally is during recitation period.

The seniors are very busy in their "Higher Levels" English workbooks.
At present they are studying some uses of the comma. They have just completed the study of the apostrophe, and they have found that this work has helped them quite a bit in their written work.

SPORTS

Coach Gibson is working the basketball boys after school every day to get them in good physical condition for their first home game with Grafton, November 11.

There is, as in former years, an advance sale of season tickets, which went on sale this week. There will be eight home games, so, by purchasing

School closed for the week on Wed-

and high school teachers might attend the annual Wisconsin Educational convention being held in Milwaukee on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The tickets for the operetta, "The Gypsy Rover," to be given in the high school auditorium on Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14, were placed on sale by the student body Monday. We are glad to report a splendid advance sale.

The entire operetta cast and its coaches have been working very hard on this splendid production and are anxious that the entire community enjoy their finished product.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

THAT Floyd and Lucille Hansen, Junior and freshman respectively, have been transferred from West Bend High school to K. H. S. We welcome these young people to our school.

THAT Lucille Penning has not as yet outgrown her babyhood days and is passing class around in English class on her birthday?

THAT Ruth Janssen falls quite easily for tall, blond-haired, brown-eyed boys who have cars? (Preferably new Pontiacs)

THAT Orin Reysen is having some variety in his dates? He's taking Annabelle out one night and Audrey the next.

THAT Ruth Mary is "going steady"
with a last year's graduate of K. H. S.?

THAT K. H. S. has been transformed from a school of higher learning to a shoe-manufacturing factory? The girls in the operetta are working overtime in order to fill a rush order for gypsy sandals.

THAT the girls are wearing out the boys' knees rehearsing for the moonlight scene in the operetta?

THAT the senior boys behave so well in assembly that their seats have been changed?

THAT Mr. Gibson said to his social problems students, "It isn't your fault
if you run when you walk past a graveyard?"

THAT Marcella Prost tried to go to the head of the social problems class but was set back quite a bit when she discovered that another name for sundries (meaning miscellaneous) was not sunbaths?

THAT the new junior boy has become the sophomore girls' "Heart Throb, No. 17" (Fast work, girls).

THAT two sophomore girls have
"cases" on two freshmen boys? (Why rob the cradle, Annette and Dolores?)

THAT physics doesn't agree with the two girls in that class? They are beating the all-time records by getting 47's, 53's, and 58's.

THAT Miss Busch is getting pretty good at imitating—wonder whose giggle?

THAT K. H. S. needs a new stage setting? The old one has become so used to being put up year after year that before long it will walk up by itself.

THAT Wisconsin is going to have two governors this year according to the election returns of K. H. S.?

THAT Dorothy Smith was escorted to school by Willard Prost?

THAT the senior boys do not want this column posted on the bulletin board?

THAT this is all for this week?

Were You Ever Alone In a Strange City?

It is pretty dull. Nothing is familiar or interesting to you. Even the city's newspaper falls short of giving you the pleasure your local newspaper gives you. It speaks of unfamiliar names, places and events. You want news about something familiar.

In the strange city your local newspaper is really a friend when you need one.

And that is why the STATESMAN is so valuable to you at home too. News of your friends and neighbors is much more interesting than news of unknown and far off persons and places. The STATESMAN is edited for you because you are a member of its

Performance, Beauty and Safety Mark Chevrolet's Completely New Cars

Chevrolet's 1937 engine is completely new, but adheres closely to time-proved Chevrolet engineering principles. It is of six-cylinder valve-in-head type, smoother, more powerful, more economical, and lighter.

A representative model from Chevrolet's new line, typifying its beauty and grace—the Master De Luxe Sport Sedan with trunk. Note the distinctive "speed line" extending back from the side of the hood.

Unstilted construction joins the floor, cowl assembly, panels, and Turret Top of Chevrolet's all-silent, all-steel body, to form one integral structure, welded in all joints, and reinforced and braced for permanent silence and safety.

Beauty and utility mark the new Chevrolet instrument panel. The windshield is of greater area, with narrow corner posts, affording better vision.

Luggage capacity in Chevrolet's new trunk models has been greatly increased, as has interior luggage space in other models.

New power, economy, durability, safety and comfort, coupled with striking new beauty, characterize Chevrolet's new models for 1937. They are offered in two series, Master and Master De Luxe, virtually identical in appearance.
