LOCAL FIREMEN CALLED TO AID AT STELLA CHEESE PLANT

An estimated damage of $15,000 was done when the second and third stories of the Stella Cheese company factory at Campbellsport were destroyed by fire about 7:15 p. m. on Tuesday evening of this week The plant is one of Campbellsport's most important business institutions, and is one of the largest in Wisconsin, It is one of three factories owned by the company.

Two firemen sustained minor cuts and bruises. Those injured were Sylvester Dreifurst, who was struck in the face with an ax, and Charles Glass, who was cut by falling glass. Neither was seriously hurt. Both are members of the Campbellsport fire department. The main plant and warehouse building, which is near the high school, appeared doomed when flames shot from the roof after the fire had burned for about an hour. Burning cheese vats sent heavy black smoke over the village and countryside making highways and streets nearby almost impossible for travel

The fire started when Tony Olbrey, engineer at the plant, threw in an electric switch which, because of defective wiring, set fire to the first floor wall and the second floor where paper boxes were stored. Within 15 minutes the first and second floors were in flames.

1, 1941, the money Sen, Wagner for this purpose to be raised by bond issues and the loans to be supervised by a new department, the United States Housing authority. To supplement the loans congress is asked to appropriate $50,000,000 to be paid in outright grants. The loans are to bear interest at not less than the going federal rate and are to be payable over such a period, not to exceed 60 years, as the authority may determine.

Competition with private industry is guarded against, according to the authors, "by insuring that housing projects shall be at all times available only to families who are in the low income groups."

The four year program calls for the construction of 375,000 family dwelling units at an average cost of $4,000 a unit. Wagner and Steagall insisted that the bill called for "decentralization."

"All the direction, planning, and management in connection with publicly assisted housing projects are to be vested in local authorities. springing from the initiative of the people in the communities concerned," they stated. "The federal government will merely extend its financial aid through the medium of these agencies. The only exception to the strictly decentralized administration is that the federal government may set up a few demonstrative projects in order that local areas without adequate instrumentalities of their own may benefit by an experience in low rent housing."

 $H^{\rm AVING}$ virtually countenanced the sit-down strike in the case of the General Motors controversy, the administration found itself embarrassed by that favorite maneuver of John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

N ORDER to curb "unwarranted speculation" by members, all securities exchanges are asked to adopt certain regulations suggested by the securities and exchange commission. The proposed rules would put exchange members on the same trading basis as the general public. They would have to put up the 55 per cent margin required of other securities purchasers, and would be required to do this by 5 p. m. of the day of purchases. In announcing the commission's step, Chairman James M. Landis told reporters: "This procedure is in accordance with a plan of the commission to give the exchanges the opportunity to regulate the trading activities of their own members. This course, which has been adopted by the commission on previous occasions, will allow greater flexibility in the administration of the rules and will permit minor adaptations to the various exigencies of individual exchanges. While the responsibility for the enforcement of these rules will thus lie with the exchanges, the commission will observe both their enforcement and their effectiveness."

CHAIRMAN HENRY F. ASHURST of Arizona gathered together

the members of his judiciary committee and began formal consideration of President Roosevelt's proposition for federal judiciary reform, including the packing of the Supreme court. It was understood the committee would arrange for public hearings at which opponents and proponents of the plan would be

Sen. Ashurst privileged to speak their minds. Not long before, Mr. Ashurst and several other senators were called to the White House to discuss the strategy of the fight the administration faces. The Arizona senator and Majority Leader Joe Robinson of Arkansas, who was among the conferees, only recently were vociferous in declaring a constitutional amendment was the only proper way to accomplish the President's purpose. But now they are obediently supporting the adminiistration measure.

Senators Frazier of North Dakota, Bone of Washington and Nye of North Dakota also were summoned to the White House, but what they heard there did not change their stand against the President's plan. Mr. Nye, indeed, soon after delivered a radio address against it. He did not especially defend the Supreme court, but said he thought there are better ways of attaining the objective in conformity to the Constitution than the way of packing the court proposed by Mr. Roose-

Rhinelander-Following the successful lead of the Thunder Lake Lumber Co. employes, who obtained a wage adjustment, approximately 100 employes of the Robbins Flooring Co. here ended a three-hour sitdown strike with assurances that their demands for a pay increase would be met.

Madison-A million dollars for loans to farmers in drought stricken areas was asked by Gov. La Follette. By E. R. Gross. Professor of Agricultur Engineering, New Jersey State College. WNU Service.

Timely repair is as necessary to farm roads as it us to farm equipment. And the best time to make repairs is before plowing and seedsowing become the farmer's principal concern.

Delay in making repairs to farm roads can be costly to farmers, as roads which are in bad condition hinder transportation and may be the cause of missing the opportunities of a favorable market.

Since water does the greatest amount of damage to roads, drainage should be the first consideration in their upkeep. Diverting the water to roadside ditches prevents erosion but these ditches will not eliminate sub-surface water which prevents a firm road bed. In low or level places, lines of tile two to two and one-half feet below the surface should be run parailel to the road. Having provided adequate drainage, the grade may be restored or even improved. The firm dry road bed thus established will resist much heavier traffic without breaking down.

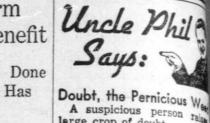

Dragging will keep sand, silt or clay roads in good condition. Repeated at frequent intervals, dragging tends to harden the top layers, especially in clay soils. Thus a good, firm road may be maintained by proper draining, grading and adequate dragging. If a better type of road is desired, surfacing may be considered. Gravel, stone, a sand asphalt blanket or other surfacing materials may be used to advan-

Feed Brood Sows Well

for Healthy Spring Pigs To insure strong, healthy, vigorous pigs brood sows must be fed satisfactory rations during the gestation period, states H. G. Zavoral, extension animal husbandman, University Farm, St. Paul. In sections where crops are nearly normal, the principal ration for breed sows will contain ground oats, just enough corn or barley to keep the sows in the desired condition, and some protein feed such as skimmilk or tankage.

If alfalfa hay is available, some of the second or third crop should be fed to the sows in racks at all times. The hav may be ground, too. Good quality red clover or sweet clover hav may be substituted for alfalfa. Where skimmilk may not be obtained, a protein mixture of 35 pounds of tankage, 35 pounds of soy bean oil meal, and 30 pounds of ground alfalfa meal may be fed in a self-feeder. Ground alfalfa will add to the bulk of the ration. With Madison-Appointment of Robert A. Nixon, Washburn, district attorney of Bayfield county, to the state public service commission was sent to the senate for confirmation by Gov. La Follette. The governor appointed Nixon to one of the two vacancies on the three-member commission. He was born at Viroqua, Wis., June 25, 1900, and was graduated from George Washington university.

Madison-Two proposals for drastic reorganization of the state government were laid before the legislature. The first came from Gov. La Follette, who asked the senate and assembly to name a special committee to work with him on legislation that "will place our government upon a more efficient basis." The second came from Senator Joseph Clancy, Racine democrat, who, in a bill introduced by title, urged employment of an efficiency expert to examine the state government with the idea of co-ordination and reorganizing the various bureaus, commissions, boards and departments.

and one-third barley will make a satisfactory ration.

If barley is of malting quality, however, oats may be fed alone and the barley marketed in other channels. Added to the oats ration, however, should be two or three ears of corn each day.

Water and salt should be available at all times, and the sows should have sufficient exercise. Feeding them some distance from their

Wind and ice and heavy crops of fruit often break the limbs of fruit trees, peach trees especially, and these should be braced.Wire is probably the best thing to use for this purpose and it should be padded to prevent the wire from cutting into the limbs. A good padding material is pieces of old automobile tires, and the best time to do this work is during the pruning operation. In pruning peach trees care should be taken to cut back the top branches, which are often difficult to reach; for unless this is done the lower branches will soon become weak and slender and finally die. Eventually, this neglect will result in a 'leggy" tree.—Missouri Farmer.

Australian Wool Yield Australia's wool clip for the next season is estimated at 3,036,000 bales as compared with 2,930,000 bales for the last season, reports a Canadian National Railway bulletin. The average bale weight for the new season is estimated at 305 pounds, giving a total clip of 925,-902,000 pounds as compared with 902,440,000 pounds last year. Of the new clip, 18 per cent will be crossbred and strong wool breds, and the remainder merino wool. Origin of Broccoli Broccoli was fairly well known in England about the second decade of the Eighteenth century. Three varieties were recognized at that time among which were a purple and a white heading type. In 1778 four varieties were cultivated in the British Isles. There has been some dispute as to the origin of the seed but it is commonly thought that the English seed was brought from Italy. For a while it was recognized as "Italian asparagus."

Trees From the Woodlot

In harvesting trees from the woodlot, cut the larger ones first. Big trees yield more clear lumber than smaller ones and cause less wastage. Only 43 per cent of a 10inch tree normally is recovered in lumber, while 65 per cent of a 26inch tree is recovered. While working in a woodlot, it is a good idea to take out all of the unsound and crooked or otherwise defective specimens, regardless of their size.

Swamp in South Georgia The Suwanee river (or Swanee) rises in the Okefinokee swamp in South Georgia and flows southwest, emptying into the Gulf of Mexico, twelve miles north of Cedar Keys, Fla., after a course of 240 miles. The scenery along its banks is attractive, and the river is celebrated throughout the country by the song "Old Folks at Home."

Stephen Foster originally wrote the first line: "Way down upon the Pedee Ribber," but was doubtful as to the suitability of "Pedee," probably because it was not a musical name. He subsequently searched a map for something beter, and found the name "Suwanee," and he immortalized it in his great song. Federal Hill, an old Southern mansion near Bardstown, Ky., is said to be the place where Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home.' In 1921 it became the property of the state of Kentucky. Foster was born and reared in the North .-Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Gnu" of Hottentot Origin

The name "gnu" is of Hottentot origin, and was in use by natives when white settlers first went to South Africa. The name "wildebeest" is a Dutch word meaning wild ox, and probably originated, on account of the animal's habit of prancing and capering in antics suggest ing those of a bull enraged by toreadors in a Spanish arena. The sauce which is called by the elaborate name of Butter Maitre d'Hotel is merely melted butter flavored with lemon juice. There are any number of sauces used with poached eggs which indicate by their names the flavor of the sauce. The foundation of most of these is a white sauce. Combined with grated cheese the sauce becomes Mornay, with minced cooked onions Soubisse, with spinach-Florentine.

OR some weeks there lay on the desks of several hundred editors throughout the land an immortal document. This living, breathing contribution to the nation's higher brackets of prose was the work of those prolific gentlemen, the members of the PWA "press section," in the throes of inspiration. If not whimsy.

The mimeographed handout, deal-ing with the incredible volume of the highest standard of well-being water which the PWA apparently unless there is the wisest use of has gathered together here and land and water . . . Flood control. there about the country, was delivered to editors early in January, but was not to be released for pubture." lication until February 1.

Events of the weeks leading up to the publication date leave the observer a little uncertain as to whether the PWA, with its customary genius, was able to reach into the future and draw a few neat analogies, or is merely trying to scare the pants off us.

Ducking for Pennsylvania.

At any rate, in view of what has been happening in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, the PWA's little article is at once lucid and ominous:

"The greatest water impoundment program in the world's history is being carried out in the United States through the Federal Public Works administration. All the water held at one time in dams and reservoirs completed or under construction with PWA assistance would:

"Cover the state of Pennsylvania with two feet of water, with enough left over over for a few good sized lakes

"Or:

"Supply New York city for 62 years with sufficient water for its requirements for washing, drinking and industrial use. "Or:

"Reduce the world's ocean level a quarter of an inch.

'Or: "Flood the state of Delaware with a 44 foot stage, 14 feet deeper than the recent Johnstown flood.

"Float 1,078,431 vessels the size of the British ship Queen Mary."

PWA Really Has Story.

The recent spectacles of city folks and farmers arriving and departing from second story windows via rowboats even takes some of the steam out of the PWA article's intended piece de resistance-the fact that, because a new dam has created a large lake, there is now a yacht club flourishing in the heart of the desert.

Of course all of this is just good, clean fun. The PWA really had PWA undertook direct action to conquite a story to tell, and because serve water until the total of this

The United States now has completed or under way PWA projects which will impound about 22 trillion (22,000,000,000,000) gallons of water for irrigation, power, navigation, flood control, domestic, and industrial purposes. All of these many projects have been either started, | feet. continued, or completed with public works administration federal or nonfederal allotments.

Water use and control was recognized as a major field for PWA effort at the inception of the agency. Great areas of the country have been handicapped by inadequate water supply.

'i'he Mississippi valley committee of the national resources commit- feet, and in addition to Boulder tee, described the situation in this dam, it was an outstanding chal-"Land, water, and people go to- supremacy until work started on

Sportsmen set forth the advantages by pointing to the increased opportunities for boating, swimming and fishing which may take place in the man-made lakes throughout the nation. It will be possible to float large-sized vachts on the waters of Grand Coulee, Bonneville, Boulder dam's Lake Mead, Fort Peck, or any of the larger non-federal "lakes." There are already more than a hundred privately owned boats on Lake Mead, one of which carries more than 40 passengers. Persons in that arid area had never seen a lake until man made Lake Mead.

Engineers point out that such dams as Fort Peck, Tygart dam near Grafton, West Virginia, the 14 reservoirs of the Muskingum district in Ohio, will aid in controlling floods and insuring navigation all the year around for potential river ports which have been hitherto landlocked.

May Help Wells.

Scientists approve huge water impoundment because it will be extremely beneficial toward checking the rapid decline of America's underground water supply. The re-cently retired Major William Bowie, chief of the division of geodesy, coast and geodetic survey, who also estimated the change in the ocean level, cited Fort Peck as an ex-natural seepage into the ground may go far toward restoring artesian well supplies. A recent survey made by engineers of South Dakota revealed that the head of artesian wells was sinking at a rate of two to twenty feet annually. C Western Newspaper Union.

SYNOPSIS Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seem-ingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greed-ing meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age who fulls him be friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. CHAPTER III-Continued -5-

"The subject is pretty extensive," Professor Carlisle explained. "Fires are a common manifestation, ap-pearing in many of the tales." He added: "There was a man named Charles Fort-he is dead now-who made a study of such things. Probably with his tongue in his cheek. In one of his books he said these fire phenomena look to him like the survival of a power that may once have been common, when primitive men needed fires and didn't know how to make them. He talks about vestigial functions in the human body, just as you surgeons talk about vestigial organs . . . Of course, this is all in the highest degree fanciful."

"But it's an amusing subject for speculation," Doctor Greeding inted. "Your man Fort, I gather

"What does your friend Fort say of such incidents?" "He only points out that 'wounds such as might be imagined by haters of people have appeared upon the bodies of people,'" the pro-fessor cautiously explained. Doctor Greeding nodded. "I suppose most of us, in fits of anger, have wished that unpleasant things would happen to certain people," he reflected soberly. "It would be rather disturbing to a man if those malicious wishes on his part began to come true." He chuckled. "Na-tions might enlist an army of good effective haters to win a war by wishing their enemies dead!" Professor Carlisle shook his head.

Professor pointed out. "That is weapon enough!" "But in a primitive society," Doctor Greeding urged, "old men, when their increasing weakness made them a burden to the tribe, would have been eliminated, unless as their strength failed they learned other ways to defend themselves. For instance, to imagine a wound, and have that wound appear-"

And he said, his eyes gleaming strangely: "A man able to do that would be a dangerous enemy." Professor Carlisle said reflectively: "I expect he would be more dangerous to himself than to others.

The world seems to be organized for the general rather than the individual benefit. Probably some counter-force would arise to deal with him."

"Yet it's a fascinating thought," Doctor Greeding insisted. Professor Carlisle retorted grave-

For all that time he neither spoke nor opened his eyes; but his thoughts were a millrace. Only when she stopped the car did he rouse from his abstraction.

thought these functions were originally of some use to their possessors. But what possible good can it do to project a plate across the room and allow it to break against the wall?"

The professor answered good-humoredly: "Well, Fort suggests that these poltergeist disturbances may emanate from some malicious mind. If your friend in the haymow wished the hay to burn up, for instance, so that he would not have to work so hard on a hot day-"

Doctor Greeding laughed, sudden-ly expansive. "Like Mrs. Greeding's statuette," he suggested. "She told you about that, the other night. fullness after eating and As a matter of fact. I was thinking that it was rather hideous, when the thing simply flew out of my hands and crashed to bits." He saw the other's curious glance, added quickly: "If this chap had been in the house, I'd suspect him!"

"What was his name?" asked Professor Carlisle. "Tompkins," said Doctor Greed-

ing readily. "But he's dead now." The older man was for a moment silent; he lighted his pipe afresh, looking intently at the bowl. But at length he asked curiously:

"Did you-notice anything unusual about the way the statuette fell? You said it flew out of your hands?" Doctor Greeding nodded, forgetting caution. "Exactly," he as-sured the other man. "It was as though some one snatched it away; and I remember it seemed to hang in the air for a moment before it fell." Professor Carlisle smoothed his pipe-bowl in his hands. He said after a moment: "Well, that hesitating, uncertain flight is often mentioned in the accounts of polter-geist disturbances." He added apologetically: "But I'm afraid I'm a skeptic at heart. I can discuss these absurdities so long as the discussion remains empiric; so long as I confine myself to things that are reported to have happened to others, far away. But when you tell me things that happened to your friend, and now to yourself, I lack the courage of my conversation."

Doctor Greeding felt a faint irritation rising in him at this disbelief. He said: "You sound rather like an incredulous scientist yourself!" "It's much less disquieting," the Professor pointed out, "to assume that there is a credible explanation for these-incredible occurrences." Doctor Greeding watched him narrowly, till pique at the other's attitude drove him on. "Are there any cases," he asked challengingly, "of actual injury or death, through this sort of thing?"

"Yes," Professor Carlisle assented. He was grave now. "There have been persons found dead, their

with the devil will need a long spoon!'

There was something monitory in his tone; the Doctor felt it, and suddenly wary, was silent. Before he could speak again, Mrs. Greeding came to the door.

"You two have been alone long enough," she suggested. "Dan and Nancy have disappeared, and Mary Ann and I are talked dry. Professor, I thought you might care for bridge?'

'By all means," Professor Car lisle assented, and rose so quickly that Doctor Greeding suspected the other man was glad to see an end to this conversation. They settled at the table in the other room, the Doctor and Mary Ann as partners.

But almost at once the telephone rang, and Ruth came to call Doctor Greeding. When he returned, it was with apologies. "I'll have to break up the game," he explained. "This is a call I can't very well refuse. Up in Kennebunk. An old friend. an emer-gency." He looked at Mary Ann, smiled. "It's a grand night for a drive, Miss Carlisle," he suggested. "But if you'd rather not-"

"I'll come, of course," Mary Ann assented. "You will want the kit-" "We'll stop by for it," he said. Mrs. Greeding protested: "Ned, it can't be necessary to subject alive; and after a little, he began to talk. He was in a confidential mood; and he found himself telling her about Ira Jerrell and Nancy.

"But don't repeat this to Dan," he warned her. "That brother of yours is so conscientious he might feel bound to step into the background and give Jerrell a clear field. I don't want him to do that. I want Nancy to make up her own mind, freely, between them."

"I know Dan feels he-isn't good enough for Nancy," she admitted, and added loyally: "Personally, I think she's lucky to get him. Dan's a peach!" She looked at him, surprised. "But I didn't know you knew about them?" she said. "I have Nancy's confidence," he retorted; and she nodded. He continued: "Did I take the right attitude? Would you have said the same? Do you feel that-a girl makes a mistake to marry a man twenty years her senior?"

She was silent for longer than he liked. He looked at her, smiling. "Tell the truth," he insisted.

"Not if she loves him," said Mary Ann at last. She added, almost reluctantly: "Not if there is noreason why she shouldn't love him." And after a moment she remarked, half to herself: "Sometimes a girl is wiser to choose a proved man. Then she knows what she is getting. Young men may change as they-mature."

He laughed in a sudden swift delight; but when she asked why he laughed, he would not tell her. Silence embraced them again, drawing them together; the car ran smoothly. The moon now was low; and Doctor Greeding's eyes fixed upon the flowing road in a sort of fascination. He drove automatically, his thoughts elsewhere. It may have been that for a moment he slept. But at a certain Sometimes, in retrospect, it is point where the road forked and their way lay to the left, he kept straight ahead; and where just beyond the fork, this right-hand road turned, he did not turn. The car plunged through a shallow ditch and into the meadow beyond. His foot jammed home on the brakes, and he came to a breathless stop, thrown forward against the wheel, Mary Ann in a heap on the floor of the car beside him. He was in dismay. "Are you hurt?" he exclaimed. "I'm sorry! "Are you sharply. "I'm dead tired. Let me sleep in the morning." "It's morning now," she reminded him. "And I sha'n't close my eyes again, you may be sure of that. You might have some consideration-" Her voice went on, unheard, till suddenly a word fixed his attention. "-and driving all over New England all night with Mary Ann! Is that necessary? Of course, I understand; but people are so ready to think and say unkind things about a girl who works-"

He made no reply; but he was conscious of a rising tide of anger at her chidings. He checked and curbed his own wrath, startled, full of a quick and vivid terror, afraid of his own thoughts. He was like a rider who reins back his steed at the brink of a precipice. He felt in himself dark, terrifying powers, which must be restrained.

He closed his ears to his wife's words, found solace and contentment in remembering Mary Annwhom incredibly, he loved! Incredibly; and also with a great futility. Doctor Greeding was essentially conventional, accepting the decent standards of his world, abiding by them. No matter what he might feel for Mary Ann, he would still cleave loyally to Myra, so long as they both should live. Or-so long as Myra should live! Thus insidiously, as he lay half dreaming, there crept into his thoughts a hideous possibility, one of those monstrous specters which need only to be recognized to be abhorred . . Yet which, if a man contemplate them long enough, may cease to affright him, may come to wear an aspect treacherously beautiful.

possible to say that on a certain day, or even at a certain hour, there occurred in an acquaintance a fundamental change; to recognize that he became from that moment another person, almost a stranger. There was this summer such a change in Doctor Greeding, but even those who knew him most intimately were not afterward able to fix definitely its beginning. His wife's death, it was sometimes suggested, might have been the cause; but Mrs. Greeding had in fact herself remarked the difference in him,
