The floral tribute was appealing and the attendance was numerous, consisting of friends and devoted neighbors of a large community, expressive of devotional sincerity, of an exceptional, sad bereavement. What is it all when all is told? This ceaseless toiling for fame or gold? The fleeting joy or bitter tears. We are only here for a few short years. Nothing our own, but silent past. Loving, or hating, nothing can last. E'en pathway leads to the silent fold. Oh, what is it all when all is told?

What is it all a grassy mound Where day or night there is never a sound Save the soft low moan of the passing breeze As it lovingly rustles the silent trees. Or a thoughtful friend with a whispered prayer. May sometime break the stillness there Then hurry away from gloom and cold. Oh, what is it all when all is told?

What is it all, just passing through— A cross for me and a cross for you. Ours seems heavy while others are light. But God in the end maketh all things right. He "tempers the wind" with such loving care. Then changes life's grief into heavenly gold. Ah, that is all when all is told.

IN SINCERE APPRECIATION I sincerely appreciate the cheerful response of the people, who so kindly administered sympathy to me during the inexpressible ordeal, at which time my precious, darling wife passed from mortality to immortality, March 3, 1937. John L. Gudex

BASKETBALL TEAM ENTERS MID-STATE TOURNAMENT

TWENTY-FOUR TEAMS ENTERED, ONE HUNDRED EIGHT AWARDS. At a meeting of the Kewaskum village basketball team last Tuesday evening it was decided to enter the Seventh Annual Mid-State Basketball tournament, the largest home talent meet in the state, scheduled to be held at the City Auditorium, Hartford, beginning Sunday, March 14, and continuing March 15, 16, 18, 19 and 21. Teams of outstanding strength will participate and all signs point to one of the greatest meets the tourney has ever seen...

The games will start Sunday afternoon but Kewaskum, considered one of the strongest teams in the tournament, will not play its first game until Monday evening, because each of the eight strongest teams will be seeded and enter the second round without playing the first. There will also be four county tournaments in connection and should the locals lose their first game they can still enter the Washington county tourney...

Other strong teams in the tourney include Brookfield, southern division Land o' Rivers champion; Plymouth, which lost to the world's champion New York Renaissance team recently by only 4 points; Waterloo, Jefferson county champion; Waukesha Rowells, which played in the Milwaukee amateur league; Poyette, Mayville, and the leading teams from both divisions of the Land o' Lakes league and others. The grand champion of the tourney will be awarded a three pillar victory traveling trophy from the Hartford Chamber of Commerce, the W. B. Peace traveling plaque, C. A. Burghardt & Sons championship trophy and 12 gold basketball charms. In the county series each of the winning teams from Washington, Dodge, Ozaukee and Waukesha counties will receive 12 individual basketball medals. The all-tournament team will be awarded 6 major individual awards. Forty-eight merchandise prizes, donated by Hartford merchants, will be awarded to two leading players of each losing team...

The second all-tournament team will receive 6 merchandise prizes. The team showing the best sportsmanship will receive the ball used in the tourney. With these numerous awards every team is assured of winning something. Besides the prizes the competing teams will share in the proceeds, depending on how many games they play. The officials will be Pete Christman, Milwaukee; Pat. Martin, Waukesha, and Al. Dilling's, Hartford. Official times—Coach G. J. Maher of Hartford is S. Official scorer—Jack McCabe of Pewaukee. The Saunders Family Is a Pushing Bunch

If a bicycle built for two is considered unique in this day and age, just what would you say about this one built for five? It is the chariot of the family of Mr. and Mrs. S. Saunders of Norfleet, England. The bicycle proper is twelve feet long; motive power, three pairs of legs, owned by papa, mama and ten-year-old Victor. The sidcar is occupied by Patricia, six, and Michael, three. Cost of operation is about one shilling (25 cents) a week.

THE FARMER SEES A STRANGE SIGHT

THE farmer who had made friends with Billy Mink had watched Billy disappear through the hole beneath the shed of the farmhouse. He had chuckled as he saw the tip of Billy's tail disappear. You see, it was to get Billy over the house that he had made friends with Billy.

You remember that for days the farmer had placed food for Billy close to the woodpile under which Billy was living. On this particular morning he had tried and then had dragged it to the place where he usually left Billy's meals over to the hole under the shed. There he had left the piece of fish. When Billy had come out from under the woodpile for his breakfast, there had been no breakfast there. But it hadn't taken him long to find the trail of that piece of fish where it had been dragged over the ground, and with his wonderful nose he had followed the trail straight over to the hole under the shed.

Now you know the farmer's house was overrun with rats, the rats Billy Mink had driven out of the barn. The farmer hoped that if he could get Billy over to the house he would follow those rats and drive them out just as he had driven them out of the barn. That is why the farmer chuckled when he saw Billy Mink disappear through that hole under the floor of the shed.

For a long time the farmer kept watch, but he was disappointed. Nothing happened. You see, Billy Mink, having eaten a hearty breakfast, had curled up for a nap under the floor of the shed. The farmer didn't know this, and so at last he concluded that somehow Billy Mink had slipped out unseen. "I did hope that little brown rascal would drive

DO GREAT PIANISTS MAKE THE BEST PIANO TEACHERS?

IN AN article entitled "Facts and Fallacies in Pianism," M. Cockran points out that "skill in playing the piano does not imply in teaching the piano," and discusses those rats out," muttered the farmer as he went about his work.

It was some time later in the day that the farmer went to the barn door and glanced over toward the house. Then it was that he saw a strange sight, a very strange sight, indeed. Out from that hole through which Billy Mink had entered came a crowd of rats. There were big rats, little rats and middle-sized rats. There were gray old grand-father rats, and sleek young rats. Never had the farmer seen so many rats at one time.

And it was plain to see that those rats were in a terrible fright. They were squeaking and squealing with fear, and every one of them was running as fast as he could. They scattered in all directions. Some made for the big barn, some made for the woodpile, some made for the henhouse, and others started off straight toward the next farm,

First Aid to the Ailing House

EXPOSED WOOD PORCHES

A PART of a house that sooner or later is almost certain to give trouble is an open wood porch. As porches are usually built, even the best of floor paint will not last for more than a year or two, and wood steps and their supports are likely to rot where they rest on the earth. Water soaking into cracks between floor boards and under the edges of a porch also leads to rotting.

In building a new porch or in making repairs, this damage can be largely offset through the use of proper materials and methods. Some kinds of wood are much more resistant to rotting than others. Two of these rot-resistant woods are redwood and cypress. One or the other should be used for the steps and other parts that are in contact with the earth. Heavy painting with creosote will protect any kind of wood from rotting.

All of the wood used in building an open porch should be "back-painted"; that is, all joints, backs and edges, should be given a coat of paint as a protection against moisture. Any kind of good paint can be used; aluminum paint is excellent, and so is white lead thinned with linseed oil to the consistency of thick paint.

In laying the floor, which is usually made of tongue-and-groove strips, the strips should be driven tightly together. As the joints are filled with paint, they will be closely bound, and cracks between boards are not likely to develop. Built in this way, floor paint will last for several seasons instead of but one or two. The application of paint on the floor of an open porch is due to the soaking of water into cracks between boards. The wood absorbs the moisture, which on dry and hot days is drawn out through the top surface of the boards. It is this that loosens floor paint. With the joints closed with paint, and the board prevented the fact that many great pianists have been miserably poor piano teachers because they did not know the fundamentals of teaching or the psychology of the pupil. Some of the world's great piano teachers have been obscure pianists who never became known as great artists themselves, but they trained many pianists. Great musicians often are unable to come down to the level of students, and thus are unable to lead them. The result is that they sometimes discourage the pupil rather than help him.

War's Object in a Word When in the year 1800, war between Britain and France was at its bitterest, an English statesman was challenged in parliament to define in one sentence the object of the war "without any ifs and buts" and special pleading ambiguity." He returned this answer, an answer that might be given today: "I know not whether I can do it in one sentence, but I can state it in one word. It is 'security'—security against a danger."

HOW HE HELPED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HIS father bought a sugar bush Back in the days when land was cheap. Of course, 'twas wrong of him to push Himself about his neighbors, keep An eye upon a rainy day, And worst of all to put away A little for his youngster, too, When times get bad, as times will do.

And yet he did, and then he died And past the place I often ride. (It's out on Maple Number One.) That sugar bush his father bought Turned out about the way he thought, Has been enough, with what he had, To keep the youngster of that dad.

I realize it's wrong to save, The newer name for thrift is greed, And that old farmer in his grave Should be condemned, his covetousness indeed. And yet I rather hesitate To do it—I have thought of late That when that sugar bush was best He saved for others than his own.

Upon the poor-list you will find No mention of that son of his, Though other farmers feel the grind Of taxes for some man who is. He saved a little for his son, But he was not the only one, He served his neighborhood the best.

separate element, much as you have determined the indications given by the thumb.

What the Fingers Signify. Finger analysis begins with the phases of personality represented by each, as shown by the accompanying illustration.

The general rules governing analysis of the thumb apply. When analyzing of the thumb, have thoroughly fixed in mind the qualities of temperament it stands for. Next determine its type from form and length and flexibility. Examine the contour of the finger as a whole, noting whether it is of square or tapered type, whether smooth or irregular, whether bony or well fleshed. And particularly note the length in relation to the lengths of the other fingers, as well as the relative lengths of the finger and that of the palm upon which it is set.

Memorize the meaning of each finger: The first, or index, finger represents power, purpose, progress. The second, the quality and kind of thought. The third, brilliancy and fame. The fourth, the psychic and idealistic qualities of the mind.

Control of Lice on Cattle Urged

Long-haired Stock Suffers From Insects; Breed in Cold Weather.

By E. J. Perry, Extension Dairyman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, WNU Service.

Lice breed most rapidly in cold weather on long-haired livestock and frequent examination of dairy cattle and prompt treatment of infested animals are necessary to prevent the pests from retarding growth of young stock and reducing the milk flow in the producing herd.

Although the presence of lice on long-haired live stock is nearly universal, their prevalence depends a great deal upon the state of nutrition of the animal and the extent to which the owner will tolerate the parasites.

The two main groups of lice affecting cattle are the sucking lice and the biting lice. Of the two forms, the sucking lice are the more injurious. The three common species are the short-nosed, sucking blue louse, the long-nosed, sucking blue louse, and the biting red louse. Sucking lice are large in size and have pointed heads and blue bodies, while the biting louse is smaller with a yellowish-white body and a broad, round, reddish head.

A louse passes its whole life on the animal. It lays eggs on the hair near the skin, where they hatch in about two weeks, and then two weeks later the young females begin laying eggs. The locations preferred by sucking lice are the head, the sides of the neck, the backs and the inner surface of the thigh. The biting lice are usually on the withers and the base of the tail but they may be discovered on other body parts. Among the common symptoms are rubbing, licking, restlessness and loss of hair.

A thorough spraying or wash with four to five per cent creolin solution or any of the coal tar preparations is effective in controlling lice. Nicotine sulphate also destroys lice when diluted with water so that the solution contains not less than five one-hundredths of one per cent of nicotine. Red linseed oil can also be used to great advantage and can be applied in cold weather. One pint, when put on with a stiff brush, will treat four or five cows. Since it is difficult to destroy two applications at 16-day intervals to make sure that all newly hatched lice will be killed. The animals should be inspected for the time after the second application to determine whether a third one is necessary. Vigorous daily grooming with a stiff brush is an important step against infestation.

Time Is Ripe to Plan

Home Vegetable Garden

It is time to think about home vegetable gardens, says Lee A. Somers, extension specialist in vegetable gardening, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

In listing the secrets of success in the production of vegetables in the home garden, Somers asserts that it pays to locate the garden in a spot that is fertile, well drained and free from shading. It is also important that the size of the plot be sufficient to permit ample plantings of a full assortment of vegetables without crowding.

Orders for seeds, fertilizers, fungicides and insecticides may well be placed in advance of the planting season. It is recommended that seed selection be limited to the best varieties and to most vigorous seeds and plants of these varieties. As soon as the garden is planned, the seed order can be placed with a reliable seed house.

Such a garden seed is planted far too deep, Somers believes, and also suggests that a thought be given this spring to the timeliness of applying insect control measures and to keeping ahead of the weeds by frequent shallow cultivation.

In the Feed Lot

A prune is a plum that will dry without fermenting.

Per capita consumption of onions in the United States is 10 pounds a year.

Great Britain's 1936 wheat crop was short of normal more than 300,000 tons.

Culling trees as the poultryman culls hens and the dairyman culls cows, is a need of the fruit grower.

A twenty-nine year record at Iowa State college shows that the sex ratio of 1,347 calves born was 112 males to 100 females.

The finest grades of tobacco are grown in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

A 1935 Iowa agricultural census shows that a majority of Iowa farm operators have been on the land they now occupy more than five years.

World production of wool this year is expected to be about 3,250,000,000 pounds. This does not include the crops of Russia and China.

More than half the phosphorus has disappeared from the surface soils of the United States.

Willows can be grown from cuttings. Make them from wood at least two years old. Each cutting should be about ten inches long, with a bud near the top.

All the vegetables, fruits, and nuts in this country are grown on only 3 per cent of the improved land, yet they supply more than 15 per cent of the gross farm income.

Experiences of Life—

Their Significant Interest and Some Ways to Meet Them

By Lydia Le Baron Walker.

THE journey through life is filled with experiences from the time we are born to the day we die. Without them life would be dull and uninteresting. The more experiences are crowded in to our lives the fuller and more interesting they become.

When we are in the midst of events that have elements of danger or when they are of momentous proportions with matters at stake that may be disastrous, should things turn out differently from our wishes, the mind is too excited or too much engrossed with results to grasp anything but the immediate moment.

Reviewing Experiences. However, on looking back over the past, we discover what thrilling times we went through, and how the experiences stand out as dramatic and of ludicrous interest. Often we find ludicrous features entered into the experience but we had no eyes to see them at the time. We can laugh over them and actually enjoy the remembrances of what were breathtaking events when they happened. No Age Limit.

Since life is so full of experiences some of which turn out so factually, there must be a reason for our having to go through the events. I remember when I was a little girl and there was something which, to me, seemed very important to do. I always knew just what to do! The faculty of this assumption we all know, but we do not all appreciate how dull life would be if it were true, and how development would be retarded. There is no age limit to the series of experiences.

Learning by Experience.

The benefits of our life experiences come through our way of taking them, and on our wisdom of decisions when these require our consideration. If we think ourselves only to become self-hard, and difficult. If we deal with a larger vision of results, as of the best good to others, as to ourselves, we become firm and strong characters. By the exercise of good judgment and making the best of things, we learn to develop well by experiences.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle-aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little money. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room his eye falls on a marble statuette which he dislikes. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and burst asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "tricking, mischievous spirit." Greeding pretends to Nancy that he has no objection to Dan. More interested in Mary Ann, Dr. Greeding induces her to take a position in his office. Eventually he finds he loves her. Jerrell continues to see Nancy, whose love for Dan is unchanged. The Greedings invite the Carlises to dinner. Dr. Greeding discusses with Prof. Carlisle the subject of "poltergeists," the doctor telling of some of his own experiences, but attributing them to a friend, Prof. Carlisle comments: "He who eats with the Devil will need a long spoon." The dinner party is interrupted by a call for Dr. Greeding from a neighboring town. He asks Mary Ann to accompany him. On the ride to see the patient, Greeding is extremely happy. He invites Mary Ann to visit their summer home. It is late when they finish the call. Nancy is disgusted when he kisses her hand on parting. Mrs. Greeding upbraids him when he returns home.

To each of the people who knew him best, this change presented itself in a different guise. Paul Master, through whom Doctor Greeding made his occasional investments, saw it in the shape of a reckless turn to speculation. Doctor Greeding had in such matters always heretofore been willing to hear advice and to be guided by sane counsel; but Associates Cottons was not the sort of security calculated to appeal to a conservative man, and Greeding had always been conservative. When during May and June he steadily increased his purchases of this stock, Master was more and more perplexed and uneasy. Cottons sagged steadily; but Doctor Greeding continued to buy, with a stubborn insistence which Master's best arguments could not shake.

From Mrs. Greeding's point of view, Doctor Greeding altered in the direction of an increasing irritability. He was apt to object to things which hitherto had evoked from him no least remonstrance. Between any husband and wife there grow up certain tolerances, certain acceptances. It had been so with these two. Mrs. Greeding always came downstairs to breakfast, usually in a dressing-gown and slippers and with a lace cap to hold in order her untended hair. Despite her presence, Doctor Greeding always read the morning paper, and Mrs. Greeding always talked to him constantly throughout the meal, content with his monosyllabic replies.

But now, when she did only what she had always done, he might explode: "I wish to heaven you wouldn't talk to me while I'm reading, Myra." Or: "Can't you find time to brush your hair before you come downstairs?" Or: "Isn't a woman wiser to make herself presentable in the morning before greeting her husband?" Or, obscurely: "They've a rule in Surabaya, I have heard, that no one speaks to anyone else before breakfast. It's a good one."

Mrs. Greeding was disturbed; but she was not in the least in awe of her husband.

"Nonsense, Ned," she protested, one morning. "I declare I don't know what's got into you all of a sudden. You object to the things I've done for years."

"Isn't the fact that you've done the same things for years enough reason for wanting to change?" he retorted.

"No, of course not. People our age are old enough to have arrived at a routine."

"Our age?" he demanded, in a rising exasperation. "You appear to think me on the verge of senility."

"I think you're on the verge of being a crosspatch," she said with a wistful tenderness. "Ned, dear, what's the matter with you lately? Tired? Nervous? Are things going badly at the office?"

"Nothing is the matter with me," he assured her angrily. "But you take the typical feminine attitude. If anything ruffles the placid surface of a woman's life, she decides there is something wrong with her husband. It never occurs to her that there is anything wrong with her."

"I haven't changed," she protested.

"I haven't either," he insisted. "I always did resent your coming down to breakfast frowsy and half-dressed, and gabbling like a hen. But I've kept quiet about it for twenty years."

She said, carefully: "I'm glad you did, Ned. It has made the years pretty happy ones for me."

So he knew a grudging contrition for his words, and came to kiss her cheek. "There," he said. "Sorry, Myra. Let me blow off steam on you, won't you?"

"Of course," she agreed, forgiving him completely. "As much as you like, my dear."

Early that evening Nancy and Dan had gone in her car, with sandwiches which she had herself prepared, to have a picnic supper together beside the Cochituate reservoir; they made a lark of it, enjoying the fact that all about them at little distances were other cars, other young folk like themselves who had come here to be alone.

"It makes me feel as though I belonged," Nancy confessed. "I suppose it's common, but I like it. I like to be doing the things all these other girls are doing, riding out here with their young men, and whispering together in the darkness, and making love." She said half-dreaming: "It makes me feel as though I were part of a big thing, a universal thing." She held Dan's hand tightly. "It is big, and universal, Dan; this loving, this mating, isn't it?"

Dan chuckled. "Bless you, yes, I suppose so," he said. "But I like to think it has never happened to anyone but us before. No one here can even half guess how I feel about you," he assured her. "No woman could!" He said, with mock gravity: "In fact, I seriously doubt if even a man could more than vaguely understand the depth, the profundity, the complexity—"

She smiled beside him, pressed her fingers on his lips. "Hush," she bade him. "Those big words are over my head. Just kiss me, my dear; that's something I can understand!"

But in his arms she confessed presently: "Men are different, though, aren't they?" And she asked: "Dan, do you like Father?"

"Like him?" he echoed. "Sure, I think he's a wonder."

"So do I," she admitted. "But I'm scared of him."

"Why?" he protested. "He's been mighty decent to us. I expected him to rave and cuss and swear and drive me out of the house with a shotgun; but he has—"

She interrupted reflectively: "I think that's what worries me. When he first guessed about us, I know he was furious; but since then, he hasn't seemed to object at all—except to want us to keep it secret and wait. Dan, I have a feeling that he's just waiting for something to happen to separate us; that he thinks we'll quarrel, or you'll find some other girl, or something like that!"

"He'll have a long wait," he assured her loyally.

"No, I'm serious," she insisted. "I'm worried, Dan. He'll stop us if he can. And he's so shrewd and wise." Then, remembering: "He's changed lately. Mother says so, and I see it myself. He always used to be so calm; but now little things upset him. It's like having a stranger in the house."

"I suppose he blows off steam at home," Dan suggested; and he said: "Mary Ann says he never gets up to meet when he's working, says nothing disturbs him. She thinks he's a marvel!" He added, vaguely puzzled: "And she says he's a lot of fun, too—joking all the time, and gentle and kindly and considerate. She likes him."

Nancy shivered in his arms; and he asked: "Cold?"

"No, not a bit," she assured him. "I don't know why I shivered. Just—something."

CHAPTER V

It was not wholly true that Mary Ann saw no change in Doctor Greeding. She did not confess this even to Dan; yet no woman can be wholly unconscious of the fact that a man's thoughts are bound tight around her.

A day or two after that trip to Kennebunk together, disturbed by her own perception of the developing situation, Mary Ann came to the Doctor to suggest giving up her employment with him.

"I think Dan and Father need to have me more at home," she said evasively. "To keep the house running smoothly."

He said seriously: "I can understand the need for you there; but there is also a real need for you here."

"You could get some one—"

He spoke directly, with a disarming frankness. "Let's be straightforward about this," he urged. "I know what you're thinking. You're ill at ease, since our drive together the other night. You suspect that—my interest in you is rather more than professional!"

Her cheeks flamed; and he said with a chuckle: "I suppose that suspicion on your part is not unnatural; but Mary Ann, if it will reassure you, I guarantee that I'm not in danger of falling in love with you."

"Heavens!" she protested, laughing. "I never thought that! You must think me insufferably conceited!"

He shook his head. "Not at all!" You know that I like you. I admire your ability, but I like you personally too. Very much indeed. But you need have no least misgiving, Mary Ann." He added soberly: "And in all seriousness, I do need you here. You are invaluable to me in my work. We can save a good many lives together, you and I."

In the end she did stay. He had, by stating her thoughts in plain words, shrewdly succeeded in making them ridiculous, and so destroying any reason she might have had for leaving him.

But also, she wished to stay. She found in this association with his work a daily pride and wonder. He had a healing magic in his fingers. He did miracles, without apparently realizing that they were miracles. She saw him perform operations which her training told her were beyond hope; yet the patient proceeded to swift and complete recovery.

Late in June, Mrs. Greeding and Nancy went to the lake to open the house for the summer, and the Doctor was left alone in Cambridge. Mary Ann suggested one night that he dine with them; but Doctor Greeding declined.

"I suspect your father is a little bored-with me," he said. And he added: "I'm dining with Jerrell tonight. I hope he will spend the week-end at the lake with me. . . . By the way, when can you and Dan come up there? Sometime during August, say."

"I know Dan will want to," she asserted, added evasively: "I'm not sure, myself."

But he insisted: "You must come. Myra and I like to have young people around. I suppose it makes us feel a bit younger ourselves."

"You're the youngest man I know," she assured him, smilingly; but she did not promise to accept this invitation.

He did dine that night with Jerrell; and Jerrell asked: "How's Nancy? I had no chance to see her before she went to the lake."

"You'd better run up with me over the weekend," Doctor Greeding suggested. "Myra will be glad to have you, and Nancy too, I know."

To this Jerrell readily agreed. He arranged, before they parted, that Jerrell should accompany Doctor Greeding to the lake Friday night; and at Jerrell's suggestion they chartered a seaplane and made the trip by air. Doctor Greeding telephoned ahead, and when they landed in the open water in front of the island, a boat put off to meet them. Nancy at the wheel, some one beside her, Doctor Greeding with a quick resentment and concern recognized Dan Carlisle. He had not anticipated the possibility that this young man would be here, and regretted it; and when they were in the boat, he said almost curtly:

"Hallo, Dan. Didn't expect to see you."

"I was on my way to the mountains," Dan replied. "Just stopped on my way through."

"I made my stay for dinner," Nancy explained, and turned the boat toward shore.

Mrs. Greeding was on the wharf to meet them, and Jerrell made appreciative comments. The house was like a Swiss chalet in outward aspect, with a low red-tiled roof. Within, they came into a big living-room that extended to the roof-beams, with a tremendous fieldstone chimney like a column in the center. A balcony ran along two sides of this living-room at the second-floor level, and bedrooms were accessible from this balcony. Doctor Greeding showed Jerrell his room, in the rear on the second floor, then himself returned with Mrs. Greeding to the big south bedroom which they occupied. And when they were alone there, he said to her in a low tone, resentfully:

"You might have used a little common sense, Myra. You knew Jerrell was coming. There was no need of his finding Dan here."

She said defensively: "I was playing bridge, at Mrs. Thurston's, when he telephoned. So Nancy answered, and when I got home he was here. After all, if Nancy is going to prefer Dan, she had better find it out before she marries Ira Jerrell, rather than afterwards."

"She'd have too much native decency to find it out afterward," he retorted. "You know, she's my daughter."

Mrs. Greeding chuckled in affectionate amusement. "Darling, of course! You are a model of loyalty, I know. Not many middle-aged wives can be as sure as I that their husbands have never looked around the corner."

"It's not a thing to brag about," he retorted.

"It happens to be one thing I'm proud of," she insisted smilingly. "The fact that you still love me. I shall even boast about it, if I choose."

He said morosely: "I've heard mothers boast about their immaculate sons, when I happened to know that the youngsters were plain devils."

She laughed. "Don't try to pretend that you're fast and loose, my dear," she protested. "I know you too well." And she added, still lightly: "Even if you and Mary Ann—"

He exclaimed: "Myra, for heaven's sake don't start being jealous. Even if you are ready to think the worst of me, you might have more respect for Mary Ann. She's hardly a — home-wrecker, you know. It's shameful to suggest—"

"There," she protested, laughing almost desperately, "I don't suggest anything except that you have a swim before dinner. Here's your suit."

So he was silenced, and began to undress.

After dinner Dan had to leave. Nancy suggested: "Shall we all go for a boat-ride, drop Dan at the harbor, and then have a run around the lake afterward?"

Doctor Greeding caught his wife's eye. "Take Mr. Jerrell," he suggested. "Ira, if you're a timid man, she'll give you bad dreams. There are some channels around this lake that I won't even tackle by daylight, but Nancy knows them in the dark. You go along!"

"I think I'll go too," Mrs. Greeding decided.

But Doctor Greeding said: "I want you to look over the bills with me, Myra, so I can have the checks sent out Monday." And when presently the others had departed, he said irritably: "You're singularly dense, sometimes. Jerrell doesn't want to ride around the lake at night with you!"

She seemed about to speak, then held her tongue.

After Dan was gone, the week-end passed pleasantly enough. Nancy and Jerrell played tennis together; they swam; they explored the lake. Sunday on the tennis court Doctor Greeding and Jerrell and the girl shot at targets. Pistol-shooting was the Doctor's pet hobby.

Jerrell proved singularly inept at this pastime. "I'd better stick to

Well-Dressed at Little Cost

IT WAS some job, Ladies of The Sewing Circle, to get these three lovelies together to pose for the camera this week.

They're under the strict tutelage of Dame Fashion just now, learning the latest lessons on how to be well turned out this Spring without benefit of a private mint. You can understand, then, why the co-ed above, center, sort of jumped the gun, so to speak, and was already on her way when the camera clicked.

A Frock That Clicks.
Speaking of things clicking, don't think that young princess gown she's wearing isn't doing it in a big way. Can't you see from where you're sitting that it is simple to sew besides being a figure-flatterer of the first order? The buttons half way and a neat little collar in contrast are all its lively lines need to complete the perfect balance—chic vs. simplicity. Take a tip from this stylish student and figure it out for yourself in cashmere or velveteen. The style is 1202 and it can be had in sizes 12-20 (30-38). Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material plus ¾ yard contrasting.

Go Print for Spring.
The charming young lady above, left, has chosen to model a very dainty and rather picturesque little frock for she believes you'll be interested in this style as a fitting gesture to Springtime. The skirt is bias-cut, and the circles of contrast aid and abet its gracefulness. Let yourself go print then, come Spring Style 1257 is designed in sizes 12-20 (30-40 bust). Size 14 requires 4½ yards of bias binding is required for trimming as pictured.

Gay House or Street Frock.
The trim-looking young lady above, right, wants you to concentrate now on her new gingham gown. Not an ordinary bread-and-butter cotton version, but a beautifully cut, carefully planned dress for general service. The linked button front is enough to give it first place on your Spring sewing list if Sew-Your-Own designers know their clients as well as they think. However, there's more to recommend it: a young becoming collar, a simple yoke-and-sleeve-in-one construction, and a slender action-built skirt. Put them all together they spell CHIC—that little word with a vast meaning. Style 1267 is for sizes 34-48. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 35 inch material plus 1¼ yards contrasting.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

When cream will not whip, add the white of one egg and thoroughly chill before whipping.

One gallon of coffee will serve 25 medium sized cups. The size that would accompany a dessert after a dinner.

A couple tablespoons of molasses will make beans brown nicely.

Chocolate stains may be removed by washing in cold water or by soaking in boiling water to which borax or a little glycerin has been added.

To make lace look new, squeeze in hot, soapy water, then in cold water, and then in milk to stiffen it. Press on the wrong side with a fairly hot iron.

When blankets are to be washed for the first time they should be soaked overnight in cold water and then rinsed. This is to remove the sulphur used in bleaching. After this they should be soaked until clear in a lukewarm bath made with boiled soap and water, and then rinsed well in clear water.

Horseshoe Sauce—This condiment gives the tang to hot roast beef. Mix together two tablespoons of grated horseradish, one tablespoonful of brown sugar, a good pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of mustard and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Lastly, add a quarter-pint of cream, or the yolk of an egg and a little milk.

Dishes that have contained sugar or greasy articles should be soaked in hot water before washing.

Don't treat your stockings carelessly. Put them on carefully, and be sure that feet and leg seams are straight. The slightest twist will alter the position of reinforced splittings, and wrinkles always run into holes.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. W. E. Shwab, New York, reports:
"In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Mrs. J. M. Miller: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. The first dose of Adlerika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But they sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, periodic headaches, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness and a wistful tenderness, a dear, what's the matter with you lately? Tired? Nervous? Are things going badly at the office?

"Nothing is the matter with me," he assured her angrily. "But you take the typical feminine attitude. If anything ruffles the placid surface of a woman's life, she decides there is something wrong with her husband. It never occurs to her that there is anything wrong with her."

"I haven't changed," she protested.

"I haven't either," he insisted. "I always did resent your coming down to breakfast frowsy and half-dressed, and gabbling like a hen. But I've kept quiet about it for twenty years."

She said, carefully: "I'm glad you did, Ned. It has made the years pretty happy ones for me."

So he knew a grudging contrition for his words, and came to kiss her cheek. "There," he said. "Sorry, Myra. Let me blow off steam on you, won't you?"

"Of course," she agreed, forgiving him completely. "As much as you like, my dear."

Milk boosts community income

In thousands of communities milk is the biggest single source of income for farmers. Trade operates in these communities largely on milk money. The total milk money going to dairy farmers daily is $3,500,000.

Milk needs many outlets. Selling milk in bottles provides a market for only 1/4 of the milk produced. Ice cream, butter, cheese, dry and evaporated milk and many by-products must be manufactured and sold daily so that milk money may flow back to the dairy communities week after week without interruption.

Since Gail Borden's invention of condensing milk in a vacuum 80 years ago, Borden has pioneered in research work that has meant new uses and new markets for milk products. Research an efficient merchandising of milk in all its forms are first-hand reasons why America produces and consumes more milk than any other nation.

John L. Lewis

YOU'VE got to hand it to John L. Lewis. The beetle-browed leader of the C. I. O. is going places and doing things, despite several setbacks in his plans to unionize all industry. The steel magnates are yielding to a great extent, and the threat of a general strike in that industry is fading out.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by WILLIAM BRUCKERT

Washington—Many times in these columns, I have called attention to the confusion that has come to be so much a part of the federal government's general administration.

When the government went into the business of loaning money on private residence it had experience upon which to base its program. Many years ago the farm loan system was organized with none of the happy results.

It is always difficult for a mortgage or bank institution, privately owned, to dispose of property which it has been forced to repossess through default of the borrowers.

So, we find one governmental agency serving as a landlord on a wholesale scale and with signs portending moves by politicians that will in the end cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

There is no way to tell now what will happen to these various proposals. Undoubtedly, most of them will fall by the wayside and receive no consideration in congress.

Now, concerning the other governmental agency involved in the game of cross purposes that I mentioned.

And who knows but what this may be more like that the Florida judge who refused to grant the foreclosure plea of the HOLC attorneys on a twelve hundred dollar mortgage on the home of a carpenter.

As early as Civil war days the sword had virtually become a national symbol. Only officers and cavalry men carried them into battle.

GOLDEN GATE EXPO TAKES FORM

"World's Fair of Western America" Will Rise on Man-Made Isle Now Nearly Completed; Said to Have First Ideal Plan.

Artist's conception of the finished Golden Gate International exposition in 1939. Oakland is in the foreground, San Francisco in the background, the San-Francisco-Oakland bridge at the left, the Golden Gate bridge at top center and the fair on the island in the bay.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

THE largest island ever created by man is rising in San Francisco bay under the shadow of the two great new bridges there. Flat and barren now, and a little lonely for the government workmen and the dredges, it will two years from today glow with the beauty and hum with the activity of the "world's fair of western America"—the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition.

This exposition, the first to be held on the bay area since the famed Panama-Pacific exposition, whose exquisite beauty enthralled some 34,000,000 visitors in 1915, expects to excite nothing in the way of interest and interest to the old fair, is confident of outdrawing it in attendance. Claims now are that 2,000,000 visitors will be attracted during the 230 days from February 18 to December 2, 1939. A fifty per cent increase in population in the western states, as well as vast improvements in transportation since 1915 form a basis, in part, for these claims.

The Panama-Pacific exposition celebrated the opening of the Panama canal; the Golden Gate exposition will also commemorate new and important developments in transportation and communication—the world's two largest bridges, the trans-Pacific and transcontinental air routes, the network of western highways and streamlined rail services, and the progress in the arts and sciences of moving pictures, radio and television.

World's Longest Span. So stupendous in size and so magnificent in setting are the two new bridges that, especially for the traveler whose home is in the interior of the country, they in themselves are worthy of a visit to the coast.

One of them, the San Francisco-Oakland bridge, is already carrying its burden of traffic across the bay, having been opened last November. Built at a cost of $77,000,000, this gigantic structure is eight and one-fourth miles long. In reality it is a series of bridges from Yerba Buena island and thence across to Oakland. Its double-decked six-lane highway takes care of automobile as well as interurban train traffic. It may be said to go half under the earth and far above the bridge, by means of the world's largest vehicular bore, tunnels through Yerba Buena, and the towers over the bay are 520 feet above the water, higher than any skyscrapers. Some of the foundations lie more than 200 feet below the level of the bay, and required construction engineering methods never before employed.

The Golden Gate bridge, not yet completed, rises out of the presidio to project the world's largest suspension span over the open sea. It is only bridge of its kind in the world. The great span, 4,200 feet long, is 700 feet longer than that of the celebrated George Washington bridge in New York. It joins San Francisco with Marin county and the famed "Redwood empire" to the north. Its 740-foot towers are the tallest structures west of New York. When completed, the bridge will have cost $35,000,000.

The island where the exposition will lie is being created over Yerba Buena shoals, off the island of that name. It is now about three-fourths completed; the last shovelful of the 2,000,000 cubic yards of fill will be put in by August 1. Work began about a year ago, when United States army dredges began filling the site.

The exposition area will be over a mile long and about two-thirds of a mile wide, covering about as much ground as Chicago's Century Progress exposition. Around it is being constructed a 16,000-foot seawall, using 220,000 tons of rock to approaching 2,000,000 in population and, for most of these people, will be easy of access. A six lane highway and ferries from San Francisco and Oakland will carry the traffic. Vessels of the nations of the world will anchor nearby.

From whatever direction it is approached the fair will appear in the heart of a scene of extravagant beauty, with the bridges and the Golden Gate in plain view. The grounds themselves will be beautified by $500,000 worth of trees, shrubs and flowers.

Entertainment Values Sought. The countries bordering the Pacific, and the eleven western states have been invited to exhibit, and there are already indications that many will. The international exhibits will be placed around a Lake of Nations, with the United States government building and those of the states adjoining. To date twelve states and British Columbia have pledged their co-operation.

Colonel Bell points out that the plans for other world's fairs have had to be adjusted to fit irregularly shaped sites with resulting loss of symmetry, balance and beauty. Many of these sites, he says, have been encumbered with permanent incongruous features which could not be made to fit into the general exposition plan harmoniously; that such sites have frequently been surrounded by ugly grounds and structures which detracted from the architectural, lighting and color effects.

Soon the fairyland city will be rising from Exposition island. The first buildings under construction are a $715,000 airport terminal and two hangars costing $400,000 apiece. The former will be used as an administration building during the exposition and the latter as exhibit buildings. When the fair is over the site will become a metropolitan airport for both land planes and the far-cruising "clipper ships," and will be one of the four or five finest in the world.

Fair Easy of Access. Also scheduled for construction during 1937 are four ferry slips, a ferry terminal, five major exhibit "palaces" and the paving of roadways. All this will cost $4,200,000, of which $2,315,285 is being paid by the exposition company and the remainder furnished by a PWA allocation. The entire fair, when completed, is expected to be a $40,000,000 project. Of this amount $8,250,000 has been provided by the United States government through WPA and PWA grants and $7,500,000 is being raised through private subscription. The remainder will be provided through admissions, exhibits, construction of exhibit buildings and concessions.

The fair will lie in the geographical center of a metropolitan area extravagance of greater scope than the famed "Wings of a Century" at the Chicago fair. Parades and spectacles will have a prominent place in the bill of fare.

The plan calls for a double row of exhibit palaces, running on two axes, at right angles, with a large lagoon and tower on the eastern edge of the site. The exhibit palaces will be entirely artificially lighted and air-conditioned. All courts and areas in which visitors will congregate will be in the lee of the high walls of the buildings. Illumination, upon which $500,000 is being spent, promises to be spectacular.

Exposition authorities consider the areas around the lagoon ideally suited to the features allocated to that area—playgrounds, sports and wild life and musical programs. Along the axes of the plan will be the formal gardens, the ornamental features, and the reflecting pools and fountains.

EDITORIAL

Again the time of the year has come for the students of the high school to set their minds on forensic work. The local forensic contest, in which is included oratory, extemporaneous reading and speaking, will be held on April 2nd and the league contest will be held on April 7th or 8th at Lomira.

In the past few years the turn-out for this contest has not been so good and not so many honors have been won, but the turn-out this year has been very good and we hope to have a better chance of winning a few more honors. Every one with a good voice and good speaking ability was urged to enter this contest as there is no better training for clearer enunciation, good speaking posture, and good pronunciation.

GRADE SCHOOL NOTES

The following grammar room students have given readings in the high school English classes during the past week: Edna Schaefer, Shirley Manthei, Mary Kleineschay, Lorraine Honeck, La Verne Terlinden and Patti Brauchle, Wayland Tassar read to the intermediate room on Wednesday.

The seventh grade geography class is studying the agricultural countries of Europe.

The eighth grade history class is giving three minute talks on social conditions in the United States preceding the Civil War.

The third grade geography class is studying seeds which we eat. Various pupils have contributed the different grain seeds and grain products which we grow.

IN THE CLASSROOMS

"Refraction and Lenses" is the unit now being studied by the physics class. In order to understand the phenomena of refraction one has to know the definition of refraction. It is the bending of a ray of light as it enters a different medium obliquely. That is the reason why objects seen obliquely through glass or water are not where they seem to be. For example, a spoon in a glass of water appears broken at the surface and distorted below the surface.

The economics class is studying production and nature's share in production. In this study, we learn that nature is the original source of everything. She furnishes the material wealth and the motive forces which aid man in producing wealth. Some of these motive forces are animals, wind, steam, electricity, etc.

In the study of American history, the seniors are discussing the Boxer Rebellion and the "Open Door" in China. With the discussion on the election of McKinley, they will end the chapter, "America Among the World Powers."

The sophomore World history class has begun the study of the French Revolution. In addition to this, they have weekly topics on current events.

The ten girls in Miss Lea's Latin class are studying participles. They are also translating Latin sentences into English and vice versa.

The freshman English class is learning to diagram.

The sophomores are completing their reading of "Journey" stories.

The juniors are studying gerunds, participles and infinitives and are revising faulty sentences which contain many everyday errors.

The seniors are working on Shakespearean plays. They are reading Macbeth in class, and as an outside project, they are reading other comedies and tragedies by the great dramatist.

AROUND THE SCHOOL

Tuesday morning Mr. Marshall, district field representative of the National Youth Administration, paid us a call. The general offices, in Madison, are asking the cooperation of all social agencies so the administration may compile a complete Social Research Directory.

Sixteen boys and girls are busy with their orations, declamations and readings, preparing for the local forensic contests which will be held on April 2 in the high school auditorium. It is indeed gratifying to know that so many young people see the benefits derived from forensic training and competition.

SENIOR BIOGRAPHIES

Beginning with this week, we shall give a short biography of each senior.

HOWARD WALTERS—Howard was born on October 7, 1918, at Port Washington, Wisconsin. A few years later his family moved to Wayne where he attended the Campbell school. After his graduation from the rural school, he enrolled in the Kewaskum High school. He is interested in all the sports, although he partakes in none. Howard's ambition it to be a shoemaker.

DOROTHY BECKER—Dorothy Becker was born January 3, 1920, at Hartford, Wisconsin. She was graduated from the Holy Trinity Parochial school in 1933, after which she entered the high school. Since her enrollment, she has taken part in various school activities such as glee club and forensic work. At present she is editor of the high school column which appears in the local paper every week. She is very fond of both outdoor and indoor sports and is known to many of her classmates as "Dot."

WILLARD PROST—One of our star basketball players, Willard Prost has a bit of interesting material for a good biography. He was born January 20, 1920, in the town of Kewaskum. The grade school career of Willard took place at Campbell's school. He was graduated from that school in 1933, and in the fall of the same year he started on a tour of four happy care-free years at K. H. S. Around school Willard is known as "Barney," a good sport, and a "swell kid." Willard's main ambition in life is to become an athletic coach. Good luck, "Barney!"

It's farther

in the Ford "60"

The 60-horsepower Ford V-8 engine was first developed for Europe, where fuel costs are high. Two years' usage there proved its unusual economy.

When the "60" came to this country this year, the Ford Motor Company made no mileage claims—waited for facts, written on American roads by American drivers.

Now Ford "60" owners are reporting averages of 22 to 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline. That makes it the most economical Ford car ever built!

Best of all, the Ford "60" is just as big and roomy—just as handsome, sturdy and safe—as the famous 85-horsepower Ford V-8. And it sells at the lowest Ford price in years.

If you want a big car for a small budget—a car you can drive with pride and profit—see the thrifty "60" soon!
