President and Attorney General Defend Supreme Court Packing Plan—Open Warfare Between C. I. O. and A. F. of L.—Franco Threatens Madrid.

He made an extraordinarily bitter attack on the majority of the Supreme court that has repeatedly upset New Deal legislation, and avowed frankly his determination to have a tribunal that "will not undertake to override the judgment of the congress on legislative policy." If the phrase "packing

"We have, therefore, reached the point as a nation where we must take action to save the constitution from the court and the court from itself. We must find a way to take an appeal from the Supreme court to the constitution itself. We want a Supreme court which will do justice under the constitution-not over it. In our courts we want a government of laws and not of

Mr. Roosevelt divided the opponents of his plan into two classes. The first, he said, includes those "who fundamentally object to social and economic legislation along modern lines" and opposed him in the last election; and of them he spoke with supreme contempt. The second group, those "who honestly believe the amendment process is the best," were told they could not expect faithful support from their "strange bedfellows," and that even if an amendment were passed and ratified, its meaning would depend on the "kind of justices who would be sitting on the Supreme court Attorney General Cummings appeared before the senate judiciary committee to speak for the President's court bill, and he used much the same arguments Mr. Roosevelt had employed. Senators Borah and Burke questioned him sharply and searchingly, but he was agile in evasion. However, he did satisfy the opposition senators by admitting bluntly that the purpose of the measure was to change the complexion of the court, to get men "liberal, forward - looking views.

Senator Dieterich of Illinois sought to curb the questioning of Mr. Cummings but was squelched by Borah. Dieterich has not committed himself on the bill but is now classed among its supporters. His candidate for the federal circuit court of appeals in Chicago, District Judge J. Earl Major of Springfield, has just been nominated by the President.

Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson was the second witness heard, and the foes of the measure sought to prove, by questioning him, that there is no actual need for the judiciary bill to relieve congestion of federal dockets and therefore that the only purpose of the measure is to change the viewpoint of the high tribunal.

SATISFIED with the way his administrative plans are going forward, President Roosevelt left Washington for a two weeks' stay in Warm Springs, Ga. He went directly to his white cottage on Pine mountain from which he looks down on the foundation for infantile paralysis sufferers. It was announced that he would see few officials or other visitors there, conducting all essential public business by telegraph and telephone. Temporary executive offices were set up in Kress hall at the foundation. Before leaving Washington Mr. Roosevelt said at a press conference that he and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada had discussed the St. Lawrence waterway treaty during King's visit. Whether the treaty will be submitted to the senate at this session, he said, is not yet known. It was rejected a

The organizers also discussed organization of gas station attendants, which would overlap with Lewis' plans to organize the petroleum industry.

General Electric and some of the other big concerns that vielded to a certain extent to the demands of the C. I. O. followed the example of the steel companies in asserting that they still reserved the right to deal also with other unions or groups of employees.

Eight thousand employees of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company's Pittsburgh plant demanded a 20 per cent raise in wages and it was feared they would start a strike if the demand were rejected.

Because the Chrysler motor company refused to recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as the sole bargaining agency for all its employees, a strike was called in all its major units in Detroit, and other plants of the company were closed because of dependence on Detroit production. More than 50,000 workers were thus thrown into idle-

Tajuna and Tajo rivers. Gen. Jose Miaja, loyalist commander in the Madrid area, charged that 7,000 Italian troops were taking part in the attack on Guadalajara. These men, he asserts, were landed in Cadiz on February 22, two days after the international neutrality committee's ban on permitting "volunteers" to enter Spain was declared effective.

The shelling and capture of the Spanish liner Mar Cantabrico by a rebel vessel was a spectacular event in the war. She was carrying a cargo of planes and munitions from the United States for the loyalists and sought to evade the insurgent cruisers by taking the name of an English ship. But, according to a story printed in New York, the complete plan of her movements was revealed to the agent of the rebels in that city and cabled to their headquarters in Spain. Also, according to the only member of the crew who escaped capture, the crew found the captain was communicating with the insurgents and executed him at sea. The Mar Cantrabrico, with fire in her holds, was taken to Ferrol. It was presumed most of the Spaniards aboard were slain.

Washington.-It has always been said that politics makes strange bedfellows. History has shown this statement to be Bedfellows true because in every political battle one can note unusual combinations, odd types working together, personal enemies fighting side by side-in truth, bedfellows for the time being. Never has the truth of this old adage been better demonstrated, however, than in the current political fight that was precipitated by President Roosevelt's demand that congress pass a law which will allow the Chief Executive to add six new members to the Supreme court of the United States. The real congressional fight on the President's bold move has not yet gained full headway. But time enough has elapsed since Mr. Roosevelt offered his history-making demand for power to add enough judges to the Supreme court, judges of his own selection, to give him a majority, that those close to the congressional scene are now in a position to predict probably the most heated con-Granite company here, cracked a troversy since the days immediately preceding the Civil war.

Already, it can be stated, one can see senators and representatives who are known for their liberal views standing side by side with hard-boiled conservatives in opposition to the President's plan, which they describe as a move "to pack the Supreme court." Likewise one can see conservative Democrats from the old South following President Roosevelt and joining hands secretively with the wildest radicals in the senate. One will see Democrats and conservative Republicans in earnest conversation planning ways and means to halt the President's drive for control of the court and at the same time one can see radical Republicans planning with Democrats in support of the program-strange bedfellows, every

While this condition is interesting, it is by far less striking as I watch the proceedings than the extreme bitterness that is now developing. While, as I said, the controversy is hardly under way, there is even now personal animosity evident in the senate to a degree that I never have seen before. I had the privilege of observing the famous League of Nations fight at close range. There was personal bitterness in that senate battle. Old friendships were crushed and close relationships torn asunder. Yet, I think that the current controversy is likely to cause the League of Nations bitterness to pale into insignificance. In other words, there lies ahead for the congress a raging fire that is bound to destroy political lives and political ambitions. Which lives and which ambitions depend. I think, upon the answer which the country's citizens give to the now direct question:

Are we to have a system of courts and judges, independent and free of politics, or are we to have puppets that will do the bidding of political masters?

I said above that the result of the Supreme court battle in congress will be deter-Up to the mined by the atti-People tude of the country. It is vital that the citizens realize this fact. Since

President Roosevelt made no mention during the campaign for reelection in 1936 of plans to reform the Supreme court, there has been no public expression on the subject. There will not be another opportunity for the voters to express their views until November, 1938. The only way, then, open to those who want to express an opinion for or against the court change is by sending their views to their congressmen and senators. Conversations that I have had with members of the house and the senate convinces me that the representatives and senators will appreciate word as to how their constituents feel. Further evidence of the desire of congressmen and senators to know the feelings of the voters is given in the tremendous propaganda that is going on. Friends and foes of the Supreme court reform program are on the air nightly; scarcely a day goes by that some senator and usually several of them and numerous congressmen participate in debate or issue statements concerning the great controversy, and from the tremendous source of propaganda supply at the command of the President come countless statements and interviews and radio speeches praising the President's plan. Even the President himself has made one of his famous "fireside chats" telling why he should be given the new In the meantime-and some more

The answer to this is the new fedral depository in Kentucky, which abodies every imaginable safelard that modern science has been able to devise. It is far enough innd-650 miles from the Atlantic om the Pacific—to require that an avading enemy conquer a large slice of territory before reaching it at all (it is virtually indestructible rom the air). Once reaching it, such an enemy would find its problems only beginning.

Guard Secrets Carefully.

From the outside the depository is a comparatively small and rather uninteresting square, white, twostory terraced structure. Its vital and larger sections are under the surface of the earth, hidden from view. Completely submerged is the actual gold vault itself, which is 64

If these precautions fail to stop the invader, the entire underground structure can be flooded instantly.

All these preparations assume, however, that someone has already made his way through the defenses outside. This alone would try the mettle of Aresene Lupin. Each of the four corners of the building is past and more than 2,000 miles protected by a concrete machinegun nest in a commanding position. More machine gunners are stationed in concrete and granite sentry huts at the entrance gate in the fence.

To top it all off, the depository has been built on a military reservation where a minimum of 1,400 of Uncle Sam's fighting men are at all times ready to guard it against attack. In addition there are quite a few United States treasury guards, including a dozen new ones which the department recently assigned to duty at Fort Knox.

It open. The three men know only one combination apiece. Whenever the door is opened other guards are summoned to stand by and see that there is no funny business. Only in trance to the building. No one is the secret files of the Treasury deallowed to enter either who has not partment is the complete combination known; this is necessary because of the possibility of death of one of the three who knows a part of the combination. Very few persons have a blanket pass to enter the depository. The chief of the depository has, of course, and so have the secretary of the treasury and the President of the United States. No one else, regardless of official position, can enter without the permission of the depository chief.

Thief's Load Heroic.

About the only possibility left, then, of thieves making away with some of the gold, would require a conspiracy which would involve, necessarily, just about everyone having anything to do with the depository.

If a thief or a band of thieves had cunningly discovered some way of beating the virtually indestructible walls, the multiple locks, the electrical safety devices, the flood waters and the poisonous gases, he would, upon leaving, have to pass the machine gunners outside, and finally the soldiers of the army post. But suppose he did all these to be an extremely strong man, for a 100-pound load requires superb effort if it is in the shape of gold bars. There is no standard, but gold bars for monetary purposes weigh about 400 ounces each. Each is 61/4 inches long, 31/2 inches wide and $50,000 worth. And he would have

1¾ inches thick. Once he has the gold out of the depository, the criminal is faced with the perplexing problem of converting it into spendable wealth. He would have to change it to dollars some way or other or it would be of no use to him. The only alternative would be to smuggle it out of the United States and convert it into foreign currency. This in itself would be something of a job, customs officials being what they are.

How Shipments Arrive. Readers will perhaps recall the great to-do which was made over the first shipment of gold bullion into the new depository January 13. And an interesting spectacle it certainly was. From Philadelphia, 200 million dollars worth of the bullion was sent to Fort Knox aboard a special fourteen-car train. There was approximately 200 tons in the shipment, since, at the present value of $35 an ounce, a million dollars in gold weighs about a ton.

Machine gun muzzles stuck out from the sides of the gold train like quills from an angry porcupine's back. A dummy train went ahead of it down the track to decoy any evil-doers along the right of way. The load was relayed to armored cars and trucks of the mechanized cavalry unit bristling with a ferocity guaranteed to defy the attacks of any pirate bands which might be in waiting. But the entire load was passed through the doors of threeinch steel and lowered in the 20-ton elevators to the subterranean vault without anybody turning a hair. Reporters and photographers were on hand, but were not admitted inside.

A week later the second shipment, this one of about 120 million dollars in bullion, arrived at the Fort Knox stronghold, once more accompanied by Uncle Sam's fighting men and their full equipment, but minus the convoy of photographers. It was safely deposited with the same lack of event as the first shipment.

EATING ADVISED

but Not More Food.

By EDITH M. BARBER A CCORDING to the custom of the country most of us divide our food rations for the day into three, though not equal, portions. In many other countries an extra meal or two is added. The Germans have their second breakfast and their coffee and cake in the afternoon. The English, of course, have their tea. The Viennese often have coffee with accessories, both in the middle of the morning and the middle of the afternoon. They are quite likely to have a late supper as well.

When we eat between meals in this country, we almost apologize for it. It will be a satisfaction then to many of us to hear the theories, backed by evidence, which Dr. Howard W. Haggard of Yale advances in regard to this matter. Dr. Haggard is associate professor of applied physiology of that university and the famous author of "Devils, Drugs, and Doctors" and of "Diet and Physical Efficiency." From his studies in industrial plants, Dr. Haggard has come to the conclusion that the drop in efficiency which is found late in the morning and to a greater extent in the late afternoon is due to the reduction of blood sugar rather than to fatigue. He advises, therefore, that some form of carbohydrates plus milk be taken at these times. He also suggests that eating before going to bed is advantageous for many persons.

Dr. Haggard makes clear that he does not advise an increase in the amount of food taken daily, but rather a division of the food into five or six instead of the usual three portions, which is customary in this

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

VOU'D think we were all the most domestic little wrens, to judge by the way we're being catered to by the manufacturers of household wares. And when you get down to it, most of us are, for all our club papers and charity bazaars. We're all aglow with the wonders of the things that smooth a lady's homeward way. There's been a housewares fashion show in New York recently where all the latest gadgets and utensils took their bows. Most of them are so new, they're nct for sale as yet, but they'll be appearing during the coming months. Something to look forward

We were particularly enchanted with a broccoli steamer because we've never been such a hot broccoli cooker, but maybe we'll improve with such a clever contraption, A glass double boiler was our next choice-glass skillets and baking dishes we'd seen before, but there's something about a double boiler that lures us doubly.

You'd think we were all the most domestic little wrens.

A sauce pan with markings inside to indicate various measurements struck us as a very good idea, and there's one new range with a Dutch oven compartment right in it.

The nicest idea in traveling irons was shown, a flat model less than a half inch high but with the same shape and size on the bottom as a big iron . . . and with just the same amount of heat. The handle folds down and the whole business packs very compactly and with much less weight to carry around than the old type of smaller traveling iron that wouldn't actually iron half so well as this one. Another wardrobe device that we liked was the new slide door utility mothproof cabinet. The front section instead of opening out like a hinge door rolls up and down like a roll top desk.

For the cleaning fans, there are lots of grand new things. Knee action carpet sweepers, for instance. They're streamlined and self-adjusting to any depth of rug pile or to the bare floor, and we're sure they'd even take the cat's tail in their stride too. And then there's a mop | will be maintained and spoilage that has a rubber ball up a little reduced with this type of storage. way from the mop itself . . . this you rest on a ledge and bounce . . . the mop shakes itself.

The Boy's Room.

He's a bookish little fellow who likes to draw and collect bugs and butterflies and tinker with radio and goodness knows what else.

So his mother writes for our advice about his room. She'd like to fix it up as comfortable as possible for him to work in. "It's in the attic and so has quite a low ceiling. I'd like to decorate it so that it won't appear too hot in summer. There's a lot of space -12 by 22-and it has three dormer windows looking out on woods. For furniture I will use a studio couch, a desk and a book shelf. What else would you suggest?" Would it be possible to have the walls covered with one of those wall boards that insulate at the same time? If so, it would certainly make the room a lot more comfortable in tinker with radio. both summer and winter. And that's important since he spends a good deal of time there. We'd like the walls in a very light fresh green, then a red denim or sail cloth cover for the studio couch and white scrim curtains at the windows tied back so that they don't cut out any light or view. These can have a plaid gingham valance across the top if you like and tie backs of the same plaid. Use this plaid for the cushions on the studio couch too, and if you like for a slip cover for an easy chair. It would probably be more practical to keep most of the floor surface bare-easier to clean. About furniture-he'll need, beside the things you've mentioned, an easy chair, a chest of drawers, a work table and a drawing board. The rest will be up to him! He'll add pictures and ornaments to suit his own ideas, and they'll give the room a boyish charm of its own. @ By Betty Wells -WNU Service.

Non-Skid Deck

It is wise for boat owners to remember when they're conditioning their crafts for summer that a wet varnished deck is a slippery one. A little powdered pumice or very fine grain sand in the varnish will reduce the risk of skidding.

Paint for Light

When selecting the colors for painting various rooms it's important to bear in mind that the lighter colors have the higher light reflection values.

Foreign Seed Is Less Productive

Imported Strains Produce Smaller, Unsatisfactory Legume Yields.

By J. J. Pieper, Professor of Crop Production, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Need for stretching the supply of legume seed as far as possible is found in the lower yields obtained from unadapted foreign strains,

Carefully conducted experiments have shown that on an average foreign red clover produces only 65 per cent as heavy yields as home grown strains. When compared to yields from good northern grown common alfalfa, yields of Argentine alfalfa ranged from 50 per cent to 100 per cent, with the average being 80 per cent as productive.

Substituting legume varieties that are available for those that are scarce this year, mixing legume seed with grass seed, and growing soybeans and cow peas as green manure crops are suggested for meeting the legume seed shortage emergency.

The practice of buying seed in which even small amounts of foreign grown seed have been mixed, especially if the legume crop is to be harvested for seed, is not a good plan. Since the low yielding foreign strains cross with the adapted domestic strains, years are required before winter killing, insects and diseases have eliminated the weak-

Large importations of foreign seeds come at irregular intervals and are dependent upon short crops in the United States and large crops in the exporting country. In any case, importations are greatest when the price relations are satisfactory. Importations are expected to be extremely high this year, following a period of three or four years of low importation.

The federal seed act requires that imported legume seed be stained. Foreign seed of mixtures can be recognized by this stain which in no way affects the germination of

Build Sash Greenhouses

Now for Spring Sowings

With an investment of a few hundred dollars, a sash greenhouse can be constructed in time for sowing seeds for early tomatoes, eegplants and peppers, says C. H. Nissley, extension professor of vegetable gardening at the New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.

Of the thousands of vegetable growers who have sash greenhouses, Nissley reports, there is not one who says he would be willing to go back to the old hotbed method of growing plants. It does not require much time to construct one of these build-

When selecting the site for a sash greenhouse, it is important to choose a well-drained location. If possible, have the green ning north and south so that the inside of the house will receive the full benefit of the sunlight both morning and afternoon and the sun's rays will shine directly on the center of the house at noon. Concrete or cinder blocks used as a foundation are permanent and will last considerably longer than wood.

Reed Canary Grass

Reed canary grass is higher in feeding value than timothy hay. In a trial carried on at University farm, St. Paul, it was found that fillies made larger gains with less grain when fed canary grass than when fed prairie hay. Prairie hay is just about as good, if not a little better, than timothy hay for horses. I do not know whether canary grass would excel alsike clover hay for horses, but I think it would be almost as high in feeding value. Alsike clover might prove a little more valuable than Reed canary grass for young stock because it is a little higher in crude protein. If Reed canary grass is not too coarse, it is excellent hay for horses .- A. L Harvey, Division of Animal Husbandry.

Bluegrass

Bulbous bluegrass, once thought practical only in regions of heavy rainfall and mild temperatures, has been found adapted to northern areas of moderate precipitation, according to a correspondent in Successful Farming. A patch has been growing for 15 years at Dickinson, North Dakota, where it has produced a good stand in dry years and has successfully resisted low winter temperatures (47 degrees below zero). It is suggested as suited for early poultry and sheep pasture and for pasture mixtures to be grazed by other livestock. It is distinguished by fleshy, bulb-like roots and also by a bulb-shaped seed

Wood ashes are a valuable fertilizer and the gardener with a fireplace will do well to save his own. Keep them dry, storing in tin cans for use in the spring season, says a writer in the New York Herald Tribune. As they are quite caustic in action, mix them well with the soil

previous to sowing or planting. It

Wood Ashes as Fertilizer

s their potash content that is of nelp to the plants. Add some nitrogenous and phosphoric fertilizer to make it a balanced plant food. Feeding Frozen Roughages Roughages such as alfalfa hav or corn fodder do not contain any appreciable quantities of poison dangerous to livestock, even though they have been frosted, says Cecil Elder of the Missouri College of Agriculture in answering inquiries concerning dangers in feeding roughages that have been frosted or otherwise damaged. There is, therefore, no danger of poisoning following the feeding of this material after it has been frozen.

I walked away with my purple bunch-and a lesson in my mind. "Keep a-goin'." What a motto! It reminded me of a little jingle that is oft quoted by a rollingstone friend of mine, who brought it back from the West of Canada, where he first heard it. It goes like

DEPUTY of the DEVIL

==by==Ben Ames Williams

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seem-ingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greed-ing meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car cuts in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle. Dan's father, and his daugh. Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "racketing, mischlevous spirit."
