USE WATER GLASS TO PRESERVE EGGS

Poultry Flock Owners Save the Over Supply.

Supplied by Nutrition Specialists at Ohio State University.—WNU Service.

New-laid eggs can be put down in water glass at any time, so many owners of poultry flocks have found it to be an advantage to preserve some eggs during the high-producing season for use during the months of low production, according to nutrition specialists at Ohio State university.

Only clean, fresh, infertile eggs should be put down in water glass. Dirty eggs will spoil and, if they are washed, the protective coating which prevents spoilage is removed. Cracked eggs should never be used. Even minute cracks may cause spoilage and contamination of the other eggs in the jar. It is a wise precaution to candle every egg before putting it into the water glass solution.

A five-gallon crock or jar will hold about 14 dozen eggs with room for at least two inches of water glass solution above them. The container should be thoroughly cleaned and scalded and allowed to dry before it is used. It is a good idea, too, to set it where the eggs are, to be stored, as it is difficult to move safely when filled with eggs.

To prepare the solution, boil nine gallons of water, then cool. Add one quart of sodium silicate, or water glass, which can be bought in most drug stores, and mix well in the container. Put eggs carefully into the solution to avoid cracking them. Keep at least two inches of the water glass solution above the top layer of the eggs.

Evaporation can be prevented by covering the crock with a tight lid. This can easily be removed to put in more eggs. If the solution evaporates perceptibly, add enough water to maintain the level. Eggs preserved in water glass solution may be taken out at any time. If they are used for boiling, make a small hole with a pin in one end to prevent them from cracking.

Black Leghorns Found to Be Popular on Farms

The black-feathered sister of the White Leghorn is becoming increasingly popular on thousands of poultry farms for a number of reasons, says a poultryman in the Philadelphia Inquirer. First, the birds are extremely hardy and very healthy. Diseases common to other breeds, such as white diarrhoea, laying mortality on account of pickouts and cannibalism, are unknown in Black Leghorns. They require no bloodtesting, no vaccination or coddling of any kind, and thousands of farmers are depending on them for their living. They lay large white eggs and lots of them and are the only black-feathered fowl that dresses flesh for market purposes. Their flesh for the table is not excelled.

In England they are the leading breed. At the English egg-laying contests they have won every point for several years—most eggs, largest eggs, lowest feed cost.

FIRESTONE TIRES AND AUTO SUPPLIES SAVE MONEY IN EVERY FARM OPERATION

EVEN though the prices of farm crops are advancing, the best way you can make more money is to SAVE IT in production costs.

YOU SAVE 25% in fuel costs and 25% in time by putting Ground Grip Tires on your tractor and all wheeled farm implements. They ride flat and easier and reduce repair bills.

YOU SAVE because one set of Firestone Tires will fit several implements. Your Implement Dealer or Firestone Tire Dealer has a plan whereby he will cut down the wheels on your present implements to a uniform diameter and weld a flat, steel rim to the end of the spokes. And by the use of Firestone Durable and Rims the tires and machines can be taken off one machine when not in use and applied to another.

YOU SAVE because Firestone Ground Grip Tires are built with EXTRA construction features.

These outstanding advantages are patented and used only in Firestone Tires. Gum-Dipping saturates and coats every cord with pure liquid rubber. This process counteracts internal friction and heat and makes the tire much stronger to resist the strains of the extra pull. The two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread bind the tread and body together into one inseparable unit of tremendous strength. The scientific arrangement in spacing of the deep, rugged bars of the self-cleaning tread gives greater traction and counteracts blowout when new Firestone Standard Tires cost so little!

More and more farmers are buying Firestone Standard Tires because they get the benefits of Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process that counteracts internal friction and heat which ordinarily destroy tire life. They get longer non-skid mileage and unusually low cost per mile with dependable SAFETY.

It is almost unbelievable that so much tire could be bought for so little. Firestone developed this tire primarily for rural highway use and a tire of first grade quality could only be made to sell at these low prices by building them in tremendous quantities. That's why you SAVE in first cost and in cost per mile. You also SAVE yourself from accidents because they give greater protection against dangerous skidding and blowouts.

Farmers everywhere are making Firestone Dealers and Firestone Auto Supply and Service Stores their headquarters for all automotive supplies. You get better value for everything you buy and you get all your needs in one place—including tires—tubes—batteries—spark plugs—brake lining—fan belts—car radios—home radios—gasoline hose and garden tools—seat covers—light bulbs, and much more. You can be sure when you buy Firestone products you are getting the greatest value for your money. If you have not received the new 1937 Firestone Auto Supply Catalog, write for it today or address Firestone, Akron, Ohio, or Los Angeles, California.

Listen to the Voice of Experience. Money talks—over N. B. C. Red Network.

YOU SAVE by buying NOW as tire prices are sure to advance. The price of crude rubber has advanced 110% and cotton more than 200% during the past two years. Tire prices are bound to go higher. Buy Firestone

RESURRECTION RIVER

By WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

WNU Service.

SYNOPSIS

Warren Lovett, thirty-three, junior partner in the powerful Wellington, Parkes & Lovett, Incorporated, office in Chicago, who makes a secret trip to the Canadian Arctic where a few years before a small, but richly mineralized field has been discovered by Resurrection river, which flows into the Arctic sea.

"Oh, I got you or two claim stake' down, back in '28," he gestured down Resurrection river. "But I don't care a whole pile 'bout prospecting, care a whole pile 'bout making money, he's a feller who ain't so much that got to work on 'em so much that 'stead of 'em being stake' down; down, they get 'em stake' down; and me, I don't 's'k dat."

"What do you do, then?" "Oh, I hunt wolf, trap, roam." Patricia offered him a cigarette, lit one herself to his great astonishment, and sat down on a mossy rock for a coat with this Poleon fellow. He was so buoyant, so kind and sunny-hearted, that she liked him instantly. Naive as a child in some ways, he was sensitive and she thought in many others; and she found him to be a mine of information about Dynamite Bay.

The main prospecting field, he told her, lay up Resurrection, beginning at these sawtooth hills and extending northeast into the barrens. "The Bay" was a sort of central point where the men came to get supplies, recuperate, and have a bit of human association.

"I thought there'd be a lot of excitement here, and several thousand men, and all that," Patricia remarked disappointedly. "But I don't see any boom at all." There never had been any rush, Poleon informed. The city country was far away; the Arctic winter was something that no tenderfoot could face; and expenses were sky-high. All food supplies and equipment had to be brought in by plane, at $200 a ton for freightage alone. In the entire field there were only 300 prospectors. Thirty or forty of them were from the cities, but the great majority were "northern men"—trappers, free-traders, ex-military.

"What! You mean to say you've been around here off and on for three years and don't know that?" "I don't, Mees. And I don't 'tink any of these utter men know for dead certain." He went on to explain that the formations back in those rolling hills and barrens were all hard-rock, not placer stuff. Hard-rock took expensive trenching, diamond-drilling and big-scale assay work before a true valuation could be made. A few rich pockets had been found, true enough, but none of the pick-and-dynamite prospectors knew whether the deposits had any worthwhile size to them. Competent geologists could make fair estimates, but the men had nothing except "prospector's faith" to go by.

out on her. He and she had been together almost a solid week, on the long trip, yet she knew no more about his secret mission than she had known in Chicago. She had tried earnestly to break down that sense of strangeness between them, but so far she had miserably failed.

She cared little about his mission itself; she only wanted him to be open and warm and honest with her. But she did want that, dreadfully; and his evasive silence hurt.

Instead of reading, she lay in the hammock in a reverie mood, staring up at the apple-green Arctic sky. Down at Chicago she had thought about Resurrection river, and now on Resurrection she was thinking about Chicago, brooding about it and her life there.

Toward six o'clock she slid out of the hammock and wandered down to the bank of Resurrection, to find Poleon St. Jacques and have him take her on a little "slumming expedition."

"If you can spare a couple of hours, Poleon," she said, "I'd like for you to take me across the river. I'll pay you for the trouble, of course." "Why, you don't need pay me nutting, Mees Pat. I take you over dere as a friend, jus' lak if sometin I come to Cheeago you take me 'round as a friend."

Poleon set a near-by canoe to water, handed her in; and with a heave and a cheery "Allons!" he sent the craft dancing out upon Resurrection. It was a perfect summer day, lazily warm and golden. Butterflies flitted past the canoe, and over the region a legion of dragon-flies were snapping up mosquitoes in their trapdoor jaws. Although late evening by clock time, the sun stood as high in the sky as at noon in Chicago. Patricia knew, rationally, that she was in the land of the midnight sun and that there would be no sunset for several weeks; but night had always been so infallible an event that she didn't quite believe it wasn't going to arrive.

The canoe approached the north shore. Up the lake beach 300 yards was a cluster of large cabins—the wireless station, land office, Mounted Police buildings and Hudson Bay store. Poleon skirled the canoe deftly ashore, grounded it, handed Patricia out; and they walked up the bank.

a drum up the skids, he caved in completely and sank down in a heap on the sand. Poleon sprang in, rolled off the drum which had fallen back on the man's legs, and slipped an arm under his head.

"Steady, Bill," he soothed, as the man's eyes flickered open. "Every-'ing's fine-dandy. Dose drum, dey too much for you to wrassle. Lemme take you back to your tent." "You won't no such thing!" the man refused, weakly. "I can stick it. Soon as this spell kicks over, I'll out the mustard okay. I got to, Poleon."

"Non, non, Bill! If you jus' got to have dat money, I'll take your place for de res' of dis job." Still shaking his head, the man slowly pulled himself together, got up, trudged to the lake edge, soured water over his tousled hair; then came back to the gang and doggedly set to work again.

"What's the matter with that fellow?" Patricia demanded, as Poleon rejoined her. "Is he drunk?" "Sacrelieu, non! He seck, poor Bill is—a terrible seck man, Mees Pat. It's inside of heem, here—" Poleon rubbed his stomach. "He can't get well, neivar. Bimeby, in t'ree or four mont's, he got to die."

"But—but—" Patricia stammered, "a man who's as sick as that—My Lord, no person should work when he's so sick that he keels over!" "But Bill got to work, wedder he able or non," Poleon told her. In a few words he explained Fornier's plight. Formerly a free-trader over Norman way, Bill had been stricken with cancer two years ago. Knowing that his days were numbered, he had left home and come across to Dynamite Bay in hopes that he could make a good strike and so not leave his wife and two little girls penniless.

He had staked five "fine-dandy" silver claims, Poleon said; but now he was going to lose them, for he was flat broke, and his assessment for that year was not completed. He was trying to scrape up a few dollars for grub money so that he could go back to his claims and work off the assessment on at least one or two of them. That was why he had hired out to Lupe Chiwaughimi that afternoon.

With wide eyes Patricia stared down at the landwash, at Bill Fornier, struggling with a drum of gas. Here was a man looking death in the face. Forced to do heavy labor with the pangs of death inside of him. Getting up from a faint, joking about it, going back to work again when he could barely stumble around. It seemed a bit ghastly. She had never known that such a thing existed in the world. She suddenly hated the whole camp, wished she never had seen it.

Warren saw that she was angry, and he retreated tactfully. "Your act was very kind-hearted, dear, I'll admit. But my point is that a very large number of those men over there are in difficulties, and if you start to take that whole camp under your wing—" "Don't be silly. I don't want to ever see that crazy camp again. As a matter of fact, I'm thinking of going back home in a few days."

"She expected Warren to object strongly, but to her surprise he did not object at all. A few moments later, as he held a match to her cigarette, she asked abruptly: "Warren, why did you bring so much money along with you on this trip?" "What money?"

"Down there in the Chiwaughimi tent. Why, it's a regular pirate's treasure trove! I looked into that chest and saw whole stacks of big yellow banknotes and piles of gold pieces. You've got at least $50,000 in that trunk." "Warren hid a frown of vexation. "How did you find out about this?" "I was looking around in their tent, and Mattu Chiwaughimi tried to keep me away from that chest, and that made me curious to know what was in it. So I ordered him to let me see."

Warren flicked the ashes from his cigarette and deliberated a moment. "About this money, I can very easily—" "Don't!" Patricia stopped him. "I can tell by the tone of your voice that you're going to lie." "Why, Patricia!" he remonstrated. "That isn't a very nice word, d'you think?" "Maybe not, but also it's not very nice of you to be so evasive with me."

"Evasive about what?" "Your business here at Dynamite Bay!" she shot back. "You've got some big scheme up your sleeve and you won't tell me one truthful word about it." "I've told you the truth, dear. If you don't believe me, I presume there's no use in my repeating it." "There certainly isn't!" Patricia agreed; and they dropped that subject too.

Presently Warren remarked, eyeing Patricia narrowly, "I found out, just this afternoon, that there's a former acquaintance of yours here at this place." Patricia looked up in surprise. "Of mine? Who?" "You remember Tarlton, don't you—Craig Tarlton?" Patricia started violently. "Here—at Dynamite Bay—Craig Tarlton?" "Yes."

Awful of Warren's eyes upon her, Patricia fought to hide her confusion. She was ashamed of the tell-tale flush which had leaped to her cheeks, but her emotions were in such a whirl that she could not help herself. Craig Tarlton was here! She would meet Craig, see him once more! Here in the Arctic she had suddenly run across him, after giving up the expectation of ever seeing him again. In a few moments, when she could speak evenly, she asked, "What's he doing here, Warren?" "He's the deputy mining inspector for this Resurrection district, I understand."

Strain and rub through sieve, then add eggs and salt. Line pie plate with paste, pour in filling and bake in quick oven at first to set rim, decrease heat afterwards.

Stuffed Celery—Prepare inner stalks of celery. Fill them with equal parts of creamed Roquefort and cream cheese, mashed till smooth with paprika, and serve side by side on a boat-shaped dish, or diced, in place of celery and cheese. Or if preferred use creamed cream cheese for the filling after flavoring it to taste with pepper, salt, paprika, chopped chives or shallots and pimiento. A touch of tomato catsup can also be added.

Béchamel Sauce—Melt a quarter cup butter in saucpan, add one-quarter cup flour, stir until smooth. Add gradually one and a half cups of highly seasoned chicken stock while stirring constantly. Add one-half cup of hot cream and beat until smooth and glossy. Season with salt, pepper and fine grating of nutmeg. If a yellow sauce is desired, remove sauce from range and add the beaten yolks of two eggs diluted with one-quarter cup warm cream. Do not allow sauce to boil after adding egg yolks.

Here's the DRUM-MAJOR of the motor car parade

If you know a leader when you meet one, you'll see the moment you try this sparkling Buick why it's called the out-in-front car of the year.

You'll go for the way it goes for you—serene, steady, gallant as the figurehead on a buoyant ship—you're in for a thrill every time you put it into action.

You handle a wheel that turns as easy as the pages of a book. You press the treadle—and sink inches deep back in the soft cushions with the swoop of its take-off.

You click off miles by the score, the hundred—and no matter how far you range or what gait you travel, you can't get a whine out of that softly whispering engine!

The answer is you've got a car that was born to go places the way you want to go—smoother, safer, steadier than any car you've known.

Power in this flashing Buick is the power of eight straight valve-in-head cylinders. Its gait is the level gait of a car built close to earth with enough bulk to hold it there. Its maneuverability is the quick mobility of a charger.

Yet the crowning touch of its creators was none of these but the figures they succeeded in writing on its price tag. The hard-to-realize fact is that this great straight eight can be bought for less than some of today's sixes!

There's just one way to get the true picture of Buick's stand-out value, and that's to drive it yourself. See us soon and get your order in, and you'll enjoy a summer like you've dreamed of!

NOT FROM CANNON FOR A LIVING

Strangest of All Occupations Is That of Human Bullet; Dozen Have Been Killed, but Applicants Are Many.

WILLIAM C. UTLEY

For three hours the show was going on under the Big Top at a furious pace. Elephants, rough riders, wizards, tight wire lion tamers and a hundred others who dare death to satisfy the public hunger for thrills have followed one another. Violent, savagery, such as only a circus can produce has added excitement to the show.

It is still, almost solemnly, the only way to get a living. The big finale is about to come. A remarkable affair is going to be shot. A live man is to be used as a projectile. It is enough to produce a shudder in the most sophisticated of us.

At the fabled Strassburger fair, the cannon continued to fire more human bullets for the public edification. In 1929 it was brought to the American Sells-Floto circus by the human bullet who called himself Cliff Aeros. The original Cliff Aeros was killed performing his act in Oklahoma City in the early thirties.

"Bullet" Cherishes Marcel. The Sells-Floto circus is long since dead, but the cannon which has sent several human projectiles to a violent death is still in operation. It is being used today by a man named W. O. Parent in the Hagenbeck-Wallace show. For some reason the circus makes no attempt to capitalize on the fact that this is in truth a death dealing weapon.

The human bullet in the act is a young Pole named Boysi Fendrick, who uses the pseudonym "Parent" and apparently doesn't give a hang for the cannon's awesome history. Mr. Parent, nee Fendrick, is far more concerned with the wave in his hair. The marcel is just about as pretty as Parent thinks it is, at that. There is a picture above of Parent crawling into his cannon. For realism, it should really have shown him with the helmet which he wears when actually performing his act. In fact there was quite an argument when the picture was being made. The photographer wanted him to wear the helmet. Parent didn't want to cover his lovely locks. Parent won out because he was adamant in his policy of no marcel, no picture.

Victor, Hugo and Mario. Two of them are with the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus, while the other tours county and state fairs. They brought their cannons to the United States when they discovered that there was more money to be made here.

The Zacinhis are expert showmen. Victor, who does most of his work out of doors, is an artist in building up the crowd by making his act look even tougher than it is. After the net and the cannon are set up, he will spend many minutes surveying the apparatus from this angle and that angle, measuring the velocity of every little breeze, backing the cannon up and moving it forward again, sighting the barrel and resighting it until the spectators' nerves are thoroughly frazzled.

He has even been known to refuse to go on after half an hour of testing wind velocity, claiming that it would be almost certain death to attempt so dangerous a feat on so windy a day. Then after much coaxing by his assistants and a great deal of clamoring by the crowd, he will, in the manner of a true martyr, consent to go ahead with the show, entirely "against" his better judgment. Of course, he always lands safely, right in the heart of the net, a bigger hero than ever.

Not all human bullets are so lucky as to land in the net every time. There is now with the Coles Bros.-Clyde Beatty circus one Wilno, who is by no means the first of his line. The original Wilno was killed when the same cannon now being used, one of the German type, failed to project him far enough to reach the net.

Human Rocket Misses Aim. Lying in a hospital in Buffalo, N. Y., right now is a daredevil who has cracked up several times, but intends to try it again as soon as he is well enough. This is one Albert Barkus, billed as the "Human Rocket." Not satisfied with merely being fired from a cannon at 200 miles per hour, which is the speed of a human projectile as he leaves the gun, Barkus invented a device to wear which explodes while he is in mid-air. This, theoretically, is to make him appear like a bursting shell or rocket.

He crashed the first time while trying his act at Atlantic City. After recovering from that mishap, he tried it again in Buffalo. This time the rocket device gave him a little extra "push" which threw him 20 feet past the net into a brick wall. He'll be in Buffalo for a little while. Occasionally women have been used in the cannon act, but their legs do not seem to be equal to the strain of the first jolt as they take off. Also, according to Parent, they are "too fidgety" and are likely to be out of position, powdering their bullet noses, when the cannon is fired. There are at the present a few of them doing such an act with some of the smaller shows, but the cannons are smaller than the men's type, and shoot them only 25 or 35 feet. Such cannons are looked upon with some disdain by the human bullet fraternity. There are only four of the giant cannons in use in this country: Parent's, the two belonging to the Zacinhis, and Wilno's. One woman who used the giant cannon, a certain Garrett, the Rocket Girl, recently cracked up, breaking her nose, at Richmond, Va., in her first attempt.

Almost any kind of person is likely to apply for the human bullet job in the circus, says Mr. Parent, who owns the Hagenbeck-Wallace cannon. This year he had 25 applicants for the job, fourteen of them women. None of them knew anything about it, he said. They were just thrill-seekers. It seems to me I have read somewhere that certain kinds of breakfast cereals are "puffed" by being shot from a cannon, but Parent declares he never knew of a human being getting puffed that way. Too bad if they did, he says. They'd get stuck in the cannon.

There are three of the Zacinhis, Victor, Hugo and Mario. Two of them are with the Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey circus, while the other tours county and state fairs. They brought their cannons to the United States when they discovered that there was more money to be made here.

For realism, it should really have shown him with the helmet which he wears when actually performing his act. In fact there was quite an argument when the picture was being made. The photographer wanted him to wear the helmet. Parent didn't want to cover his lovely locks. Parent won out because he was adamant in his policy of no marcel, no picture.

Parent Goes to Work.

Parent's five feet five, weighs 135 pounds and is somewhere in his middle twenties. Besides the marcel he is the possessor of a trick mustache, a flashing smile and a gentle, ingratiating personality. He is not at all the tough sort of guy you would expect the enemy to fire at if they were real mad.

He says there really isn't much of a sensation after the first time you get fired out, and you can believe him or not. The first time leaves you a little pale back of the gills, though.

"Sure," he says, "I've been getting fired from a cannon twice a day for some time now. The only accident I ever had was a black eye, when I bumped into a door in the dark."

Italy has offered some competition to Germany as a producer of circus cannons. There the Zacinhi brothers developed one which uses compressed air instead of rubber. It is said that this makes the act a little safer than the rubber-powered gun, for rubber reacts to climatic conditions.

COOKY JAR HAS PLACE IN HOME

Great Family Problem Is to Keep It Well Filled.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WE ALL love the cookie jar when we are children, especially, but even when we grow up cookies out of the cookie jar seem to taste better than they do out of a pasteboard box or a tin container. If there are many healthy appetites in the family the problem is to keep the cookie jar filled. There are many recipes which are not expensive and which will produce cookies with good keeping qualities (as far as the cookies themselves are concerned). These may be made in large quantities because they do not get stale.

Spicy cookies are especially good because they ripen as they are kept and their flavor grows even better. They may be either rolled or dropped. In the latter case, they are sometimes called rocks, perhaps because such a thick batter is used that they do not spread. Cookies of this sort usually have raisins or dates in them, and often nuts are added.

Molasses cookies may be thin or thick and either rolled or dropped. If they are thin they are known as finger snaps. Sometimes this mixture is packed in a bread pan and chilled and cut into slices for baking.

Molasses Nut Bars. 1/4 cup shortening, 1/4 cup boiling water, 1 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup molasses, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped nuts. 1 cup shortening in bowl, add boiling water and when melted add sugar and molasses. Sift dry ingredients together and stir into first mixture. Chill, roll thinly, cut in strips or in fancy shapes, sprinkle with chopped nuts and bake about ten minutes in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F.

Drop Cookies. 1 cup butter, 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 3/4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 teaspoons water, 2 cups seedless raisins, 1 cup cut nuts. Cream butter, add sugar and cream together. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir lemon extract. Sift flour with soda and salt and add alternately with the water to the first mixture. Stir in raisins and nuts. Drop from a teaspoon on to a greased cookie sheet about an inch apart. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F.

Jumbles. 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 1/4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, White of 1 egg, Blanched almonds, 4 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and the egg well beaten. Then add the flour mixed and sifted with the baking powder. Chill, toss one-half the mixture on a floured board, roll one-eighth of an inch thick. Shape with a doughnut cutter. Brush over with white of egg and sprinkle with sugar mixed with cinnamon. Split the almonds and arrange three halves on each of equal distances. Place on buttered sheet and bake eight minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.).

Sour Cream Doughnuts. 2 1/2 cups cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 4 egg yolks well beaten, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup sour cream. Sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt and nutmeg together. Beat eggs until light and thick. Add sugar and beat until fluffy. Add cream, then other ingredients and beat until smooth. Turn out on floured board. Roll one-quarter inch thick, cut with small doughnut cutter or form into balls. Fry in deep fat, 375 degrees Fahrenheit until brown, turning frequently. Drain on soft paper. When cool, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

Sour Cream Cookies. 1/2 cup shortening, 3 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 2 cups sour cream, 5 cups flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, Salt, 2 teaspoons nutmeg. Cream fat and sugar together, add eggs and beat well. Sift flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg together, and add alternately with cream. Chill, roll out, cut into rounds. Brush with water, sprinkle with granulated sugar, and bake about ten minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). They may be garnished with raisins or with halved almonds before baking. Sour milk or buttermilk instead of cream may be used if fat is increased to 1 cup.

Paint Used in India. All the rooms in the homes of the richer class in India are painted. In recent years, the better class of Indian with the necessary means has been turning away from the Indian styles of decorative work and adopting Western.

The Garden Furniture. Bright, strong color is the note in garden furniture. Vermilion, lemon, coral pink, sapphire, emerald, brown and gunmetal are among the new effects.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

IN AMERICA, a lady with a house and no maid usually has an easier life than her sister abroad who has several servants, and this is because of all the mechanical helps we have to simplify the hard jobs. But there are no machines for raising babies, and not likely to be any! So, it looks as though we'll keep on being tied at home pretty close during the years when the children need watching, because nursemaids are hard to get and expensively out of the question for most of us.

In certain progressive communities and especially in the larger cities there are nursery schools for pre-school age children. These are actually neighborhood play places with some one on the job watching to see that the children are safe and happy. These will no doubt be the eventual solution of the problem of the busy mothers who can't be two places at once—in the house doing the work and in the yard watching the children play outdoors.

The nursery school is fairly rare as yet, but we know one neighborhood of mothers who clubbed together and organized a playground for their own youngsters. The way it worked was like this—two mothers would be on duty at a time and all the children of the group were gathered together to play under these watchful eyes. They took it by half-day shifts, and no one woman had to serve but once a week. This left each mother free the rest of the time for her work or for going out. Since the success of the scheme depended on dependable co-operation, each mother made it a point to be on the job when her turn came so that she could feel free to park her own youngsters the rest of the time. Think how many hours of worry that saved—knowing that the children would be in good hands!

The Easiest Way. There's no two ways about it, a buffet service is the easiest way to feed a crowd. And it has an informal camaraderie about it that practically guarantees a good time. No danger of lulls when you're helping yourself to entertainment along with the relishes and ham. And so all the crabbers - at - lap - suppers should take a back seat. If they had to do the work, they'd get the point. However, it's gracious to make things as smooth as possible for guests as well as hostess and in the interest of that, we offer these tips for buffet suppers:

Lots of little tables—if you entertain this way often, it's a good idea to have several nests of tables. They won't be in the way between times and for buffet occasions, they will provide table tops for the men.

A buffet supper is the easiest way to serve a gay gang. at least who don't manage so well with their plates on their laps since they don't have laps worthy of the name. A stack of party trays—very fancy ones to get away from the cafeteria touch. But they'll make for less spilling and dropping. Individual saits and peppers, so that each tray can have a set. Saves too much jumping up and down, and they needn't be expensive. Serving spoons and forks—separate ones for each dish of something good. This will eliminate a lot of confusion.

A big pitcher of ice water—whatever else you have to drink, be sure there's water to drink—and handy. And it goes without saying that it will save you a lot of dither to have enough coffee or tea ready so there won't be any delays in the middle of the party while you retire to the kitchen. Napkins big enough for business. Remember that a little cocktail napkin isn't good for much, so when you're serving a hearty supper, have hearty sized napkins to repair the damage of accidents that will happen.

Color Essential. In the composition of a color scheme for a room, it is necessary to have one prevailing, or predominating, color if the composition is to have any coherence or continuity.

Applying Trim Color. When you're painting furniture that is to be striped or trimmed, first do the entire piece in the principal color and let it dry. Then take a small trimming brush and apply the accent colors to knobs, edges, etc.

Paste Wood Filler. When using a paste wood filler, be sure to thin it to a creamy consistency with benzine. Select the color of filler specified for the stain being used.

AUNT ALMA, there's just one thing I don't like about my new dress—it's so attractive I'm afraid Sis over there will appropriate it when I'm not looking. Outside of that I'm crazy about it, and I think you're swell to make it for me. Why—

"What's this, what's this? If that isn't a laugh. Aunt Alma! Imagine me wanting anybody's dress. Why since you've taught me to sew my own I never want anything. I just make it and that's that. This sport dress, for instance, took me only one afternoon."

Praise From Auntie. "I think you do wonderfully well with your sewing, my dear. You'll be making my clothes the first thing I know. I feel especially pleased with my new spring dress and I have both of you to thank for suggesting this style. It does right well by my hips, and it's so comfortable through the shoulders. I guess I should diet but in this dress I feel nice and slender. More important it is to choose a style that's particularly becoming? It's abiding by this theory that gives some women such enviable chic."

Uncle Phil Says: Getting a Child's Confidence. You don't need to "teach" a child a great deal, if you admit him into your conversation on the plane of equality. No matter how persistently you say, "I told you so," nobody remembers that you did. If you want to flatter a man tell him he is working too hard. If you like a man's dog, the man will probably like you.

Indignation is only another form of anger, and a great deal of anger isn't good for anybody. Peculiarities may indicate individuality, but they can be irritating.

Is the Highway at Fault? After you have sprained a leg two or three times on the broad highway of life, you don't think so much of the highway. Don't say "Don't" to the children unless they are in peril. Let them give the word its proper value. Somebody always discovers how to be chummy with the unapproachable man; and it is pretty sure to be one who isn't afraid of him.
