LOCAL FIREMEN WIN AT FESTIVAL

The homecoming last Saturday and Sunday at Barton with the 44th annual tournament of the Badger Firemen's association as the feature on Sunday was a huge success. People from all over the state attended. An estimated 4,000 people were present on Sunday afternoon.

The firemen's races and contests got under way at about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The various events were as follows: Single men's hose coupling, single men's ladder climbing, assistant chiefs' contest, individual firemen's race, most men in parade, relay coupling contest, and relay bucket contest.

The Kewaskum firemen won $17.50 in prize money—quite a bit less than last year because of hard luck in the individual races. They won $10.00 in the parade for having the third highest number of men, 37. The remaining $7.50 was won in the relay coupling contest in which Kewaskum placed in a tie with West Bend for third. The time was 41.0. West Bend had the most men in the parade, 52, and Grafton second, 42. Grafton won first in the relay coupling contest with Cedarburg second.

Fourteen departments of the Badger Firemen's association were in attendance Sunday. Twelve of them competed in the contests. First prize money for the contests was awarded to Grafton with Jackson second, Cedarburg third and West Bend fourth. Other departments participating in the order that they placed are as follows: Richfield, Barton, Plymouth, Saukville, Kewaskum, Germantown, Menomonee Falls and Random Lake.

KEWASKUM TAKES UNDISPUTED LEAD

In a Badger State league baseball game on the home diamond last Sunday afternoon Kewaskum defeated Kohler 8 to 6 to break the tie for first place between the two teams.

Marx hurried the entire game for the winning nine, allowing eight hits and fanning six. Kohler used three pitchers, who were touched for 12 sa'eties and struck out only two men. Kewaskum possessed an 8 to 3 lead going into the ninth frame but Kohler rallied for three runs and four of its 8 hits in that inning as a final threat. Ray Jagmin, local shortstopper, was the hitting star, collecting four hits out of as many trips to the plate, two of them being doubles. He also scored four runs.

This was Kewaskum's fifth victory in six starts and puts the team a full game ahead of Kohler and Grafton, tied for second.

Kewaskum played without the services of its regular first baseman, Roy Niepow, who is no longer with the team. He has gone up a notch and is now playing in the State league with Racine. In his place, the local team has acquired two new players. They are Bainski and Kudek. Bainski played left field Sunday and did satisfactorily. CHAS. KLUMB WEDS ROSALIE CHESAK

Holy Angels church in West Bend was the scene of a pretty nuptial rite at 10 a. m. last Saturday, June 19, when Charles A. Klumb, one of Kewaskum's well known young men, a son of Mrs. Kate Klumb of the town of Barton, took as his bride a popular West Bend young lady, Miss Rosalie Chesak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chesak of that city. Rev. Edward Stelling performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in a white satin gown with a Chantilly lace jacket in princess style. Her train was of satin and lace. She wore a long tulle veil edged with lace, which fell from a tiara of lilies of the valley and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was made up of white roses and sweet peas.

A twin sister of the bride, Miss Lauretta Chesak, was maid of honor. She wore a pink embroidered net gown over satin and had a shower bouquet of briarcliff roses. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Arthur Weber, also a sister of the bride, wore an aqua blue lace gown over satin and carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his close friend, Armand Schaefer, as best man, and Arthur Weber as groomsmen.

Following the wedding a dinner and supper were served at the bride's home for the immediate families. In the evening entertainment was held for friends of the couple. Later Mr. and Mrs. Klumb left on a short honeymoon trip of unknown destination. They are now at home on Fond du Lac avenue in this village.

The bridegroom is employed in the L. Rosenheimer store. He is a graduate of the Kewaskum High school, class of 1932. His bride, a West Bend High school graduate, was engaged as a salesgirl at the F. W. Woolworth store in West Bend before her marriage.

The engagement of Miss Ruth Rosenheimer of Milwaukee, to William Wiersma, son of Mrs. E. F. Wiersma, N. Downer, Av., that city, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. PICTURED IN JOURNAL

A Milwaukee Journal staff photographer was present at the baseball game here last Sunday between Kohler and Kewaskum to take several pictures of the local players. One of these pictures, an action snap of Jagmin batting for the home club, appeared in Monday evening's Journal. Jagmin started with four hits. Three photos taken at the Fond du Lac-Plymouth game in the former city, also were shown. All of the pictures were large and together covered a goodly portion of the Journal sport page.

'ON THE LINE!' DEMANDS CIO Steel Refuses to Sign Contracts . . . And So There's a Deadlock . . . Look to U. S. for Strike Settlement

Monroe (Mich.) Women Defended Their Husbands' Right to Strike.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

THERE is no issue of wages, hours or other material demands in the strife between the independent steel corporations and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The corporations have agreed to all of the demands of the unions—verbally. "Verbally"—that is the word which has for weeks kept thousands of workers in eight or ten states from returning to their jobs.

The C. I. O. demands that the corporations put their agreement in the form of a written contract. The corporations refuse. And the unions have refused to call off the strikes until they get the signatures on the line.

Union officials have taken the position that if the company officials are willing to agree orally to union demands they ought to be willing to confirm the agreement in writing. Lewis has demanded that President Roosevelt intervene to force the companies to sign. At a press conference the President refused to say officially what was his reaction to the demand. He did say—and emphasized that he was not speaking "officially"—that he could not see why the companies would not make written agreements if they would make the same ones verbally.

Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, explained the companies' stand: "The reason the C. I. O. wants a signed contract is because such a contract would be the first step toward the closed shop and the check-off.

"Under the closed shop every worker has to belong to a union, whether he wants to or not. The closed shop is actually a 'deal' between the employer and the union whereby the employer helps to force every employee into the union. Under the checkoff the company takes unions dues out of the pay envelopes of all its employees and hands them over to the union. "Does the C. I. O. contract preserve industrial peace? It does not. They have broken numerous contracts."

Federal Intervention Asked

IT WAS virtually certain that there would be some federal action in the steel strikes, with Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio and Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, Pa., appealing desperately to the President for aid. Governor Davey, in a long telegram detailing the arguments on both sides, declared that the situation had gone far beyond the powers of one state to control. When a worker in the Johnstown steel mills was abducted by six strikers and stripped of his clothing in their automobile (he was later released), following weeks of rioting and bloodshed, the mayor decided that kidnapping was the last straw and appealed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins named a mediation board of three to meet in Cleveland and hear the cases of the union and the companies. On the board were Charles P. Taft, son of the former President and chief justice, a Republican and lawyer from Cincinnati; Lloyd K. Garrison, who served as the first president of the National Labor Relations board in 1934, and Edward F. McGrady, first assistant secretary of labor, and a known enemy of company unions, spy systems and the tear gas method of quelling strike riots. In Monroe, Mich., where the C. I. O. union threatened to import thousands of pickets from Detroit, a band of several hundred deputized vigilantes, armed, kept the peace, aided by the police force of twenty. In Youngstown, Ohio, Johnstown and other cities vigilante groups were also being formed.

Steel Wants Its Mail

THE Republic Steel corporation filed in the federal district court in Washington a petition for a writ of mandamus compelling Postmas-

Masterpiece of Colonial Building Fully Restored

The magnificent stairway in the Chase house at Annapolis, which architects regard as a masterpiece of Colonial building and one of the two or three best examples of its period in the country, has discarded the crutches upon which it depended for support these last 30 years and now stands alone, as firm and strong as when some unknown carpenter fastened the final mortise ter General Farley to deliver parcel post packages to steel plants in Ohio which local postmasters have refused to deliver.

The petition charged that the local postmaster at Niles, Ohio, was refusing to deliver packages containing food and clothing and addressed to the loyal workers who were being housed inside the Republic plant. It charged that this refusal was made after "the postmaster had reached an understanding" with two members of the union.

"Having waited a week for a reply to our letter . . . to Mr. Farley and having received none, we have no recourse but to such legal action as is available to us under the circumstances involved," said John S. Brooks, Jr., counsel for the corporation. He said separate suits will be instituted in Ohio against the local postmasters involved.

Court Plan Walloped

THE senate judiciary committee made short work of President Roosevelt's Supreme court packing plan. Its report, in summary: "We recommend the rejection of this bill as a needless, futile, and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle. "It was presented to the congress in a most intricate form and for reasons that obscured its real purpose.

"It would not banish age from the bench nor abolish divided decisions. "It would not affect the power of any court to hold laws unconstitutional, nor withdraw from any judge the authority to issue injunctions.

"It would not reduce the expense of litigation nor speed decision. "It is a proposal without precedent and without justification. "It would subjugate the courts to the will of congress and the President and thereby destroy the independence of the judiciary, the only certain shield of individual rights.

"It is a measure which should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America." Informed Washington correspondents were of the belief that the bill hasn't a chance of being passed, even with amendments. It seemed not unlikely that, due to the confusion and conflict over White House proposals and statutes, there would be an adjournment of this session of congress shortly, perhaps to reconvene in special session beginning November 1. The breathing spell would give the administration an opportunity to align its majority more solidly behind the President's desired legislation to improve the lot of the underprivileged.

Harry Loses 1st Round

DESPITE the pleas of Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, the full senate appropriation committee approved the Byrnes amendment to the relief bill, 13 to 10. The amendment to the $1,500,000,000 bill requires local governments to pay at least 40 per cent of the cost of all WPA projects, or else sign a kind of civic "pauper's oath." The South Carolina senator's amendment was seen as further evidence of the break between the administration and the conservative Democrats.

In the senate debate on the bill it quickly became apparent that Sen. Byrnes' "40 per cent amendment" would not carry. Sen. Joseph T. Robinson offered a compromise which would require states to pay 25 per cent of the cost of work relief projects. President Roosevelt had repeatedly made it known that he wanted no such rider on his relief bill, and it was Sen. Robinson's first break with the White House on an important issue.

Harry Hopkins

into its fabric and pronounced it finished, says the Baltimore Sun. Visitors to the house no longer are confronted by the unsightly white-painted columns which were installed a generation ago to prevent the then sagging structure from collapsing. They see, instead, a broad flight of easy steps which rise, with the inner edge of one resting so lightly that it seems to do little more than touch the top of the tread on the step below, to a broad land- ing lighted by a palladian window.

An Archeologic Find

Stunning finds in the mound of Tepe Gawra, 15 miles north of Mosul, in Iraq, have proved conclusively that the "painted pottery peoples" whom historians and archeologists considered a primitive race, had developed a remarkably artistic civilization. The stratum in which most of the diggings have been made goes back to the fifth millennium and reveals magnificent temples, built in clay, decorated in red brick.

Capital on the Move

THE Spanish loyalist government, after another terrific bombing of the city by insurgent airplanes of the German Junkers and Heinkel types, decided to move the capital from Bilbao to Santander, but to defend Bilbao to the death. The Basque battalions reorganized for a last ditch stand to protect the broken "iron ring" of the city's defenses from the forces of General Francisco Franco. The latter, it was admitted, already had penetrated the first line of fortifications near Pica and Larabazua, five miles to the east. Several persons were killed and many houses destroyed by the rebel bombs and machine guns. Meanwhile the loyalists were claiming important advances along the Cordoba front.

Reds Rub Out 8

EIGHT Soviet Russian generals, including Marshal Michail Tukhachevsky, former vice commissar of defense, learned the wrath of the Kremlin. Condemned for treason, they were led before a firing squad and killed, by order of the military tribunal of the Soviet supreme court. The court only the day before had declared them guilty of conspiring with the military intelligence service of an "unfriendly" foreign power. Although the "unfriendly" power was never named by officials, correspondents in Moscow declared indications were unmistakable that Red leaders believe the power was Nazi Germany.

Most of the Russian capital was virtually certain that the eight, who had been denied appeal, had been put to death for an ambitious plot to rob the Soviet of its western provinces and turn them over to Germany.

The Soviet purge was followed by the suicide of Alexander G. Chervakov, forty-five-year-old president of the White Russian Soviet Republic, westernmost of the Soviet Union's republics. While it was said that he had killed himself "for family reasons" his death came almost immediately after his denunciation in a meeting as a plotter against the Communist party. Hundreds of thousands of suspects were reported removed from the Communist party rolls by the government.

Fiscal Dictator for France

WHILE a congressional committee in the United States prepared to begin an investigation of alleged tax dodgers among the wealthy, Vincent Auriol, French finance minister, gave broad hints to French millionaires that they, too, had better get themselves square with the tax collector. He revealed that the tax rate will be raised on the higher bracket incomes and on products which are government monopolies, such as tobacco, matches and alcohol. Measures will be taken, in France's financial crisis, to prevent frightened capitalists from exporting funds abroad.

All this because the Communist party, reversing its long stand at the last minute, agreed to accept Premier's Blum's proposal that he be made financial dictator of the nation for six weeks. In that time he hopes to raise the 30 billion francs needed to finance the government throughout the year. Most authorities believe that he will be forced to ask for an extension of his "full emergency powers." Blum hopes that the long awaited business revival will actually set in during that period, solving the whole financial problem automatically.

We're in the Money!

IF YOU don't think things are picking up, maybe the United States Department of Commerce can convince you. It has just reported the national income for 1936 reached a total of $62,056,000,000, and officials predicted that the figure for 1937 would reach $70,000,000,000. The all-time high was $78,632,000,000 in the dizzy boom year of 1929, and the all-time low $44,940,000,000 in 1933. The department's report said that since 1933 the national income has risen more swiftly than prices and that the real purchasing power of individuals was much larger. Income, it said, increased 38 per cent from 1933 to 1936, while the cost of living advanced 8 per cent. The per capita income of employees last year was listed at $1,244, which was $58 more than in the preceding year and 88.4 per cent of the figure for 1929.

CIO Starts at Bottom

JOHN L. LEWIS aimed another blow at steel through the United Mine Workers, of which he is president. Workers in the captive mines (mines operated by an individual steel concern which is the sole user of the coal brought to the surface) in Pennsylvania walked out of the shafts and joined the steel picket lines. The purpose was to cripple further the steel plants now shut down or operating under difficulties while picketed; the immediate objective was the closing of the Cambria plant of Bethlehem Steel. The effectiveness of the walkout was a matter for dispute; plant officials claimed all departments were in operation. In some plants the miners outnumbered striking steel workers as steel pickets.

Message Causes Stir

These outbursts have continued partly because the President asked congress to make an investigation of tax avoidance where some very large taxpayers are involved. Of course, congress is going to do that because it will give congress, or at least certain individual members, an opportunity for publicity. And they do not overlook opportunities for publicity. Since the discussion of tax questions has continued on the basis of the projected investigation, it has given plenty of writers an opportunity to express their opinion in detail. Many of these critics have been quite personal in their assault upon Mr. Roosevelt and their biting observations are doing him no good politically at all. In fact, I have heard some rumblings beneath the surface to the effect that his tax message has hurt him as much politically as his proposal to add six new justices of his own choosing to the Supreme court of the United States.

Probably the worst of these criticisms appeared in the Washington Evening Star, a newspaper that seldom takes a bitter stand on any question. Usually, its position is confined to the presentation of both sides of the argument. But it was different as regards the tax message. The Evening Star called attention to regulations of the bureau of internal revenue which prescribed that a person must count as income anything taken in payment of services, whether that thing be money or some other thing of value. It cited the fact that the President occupies the White House without payment of rent and that he has available a large staff of servants who man that institution; that he is provided with automobiles and yachts and various other services and circumstances without cost. Editorially, the newspaper then goes on: "Has the President of the United States, unwittingly, failed to include in his income tax the value to him of the residence provided by the government which pays him his salary? Under these regulations it would appear that even the automobiles and the yachts provided by the government should be considered in making out an income tax return. There is no publication of income taxes and therefore the public is not informed as to whether the high officials of the government who are provided with residences, as some are, or with automobiles, as many of them are, take these things into consideration in reporting their income taxes. It would scarcely be an argument to say that residence provided for a public official is not part of his pay. Cabinet officers, for example, are not provided with residences by the government. They must provide residences themselves, at considerable cost. It is obvious, therefore, that a residence given a government official is part of his pay."

Piles Work on Congress

Now, in addition to the court reorganization proposal, there is before congress the far-reaching governmental reorganization plan, the billion dollar slum clearance and house building, farm tenancy bill and a highly controversial piece of legislation proposing to establish minimum wages and maximum hours for labor. These are, in addition, of course, to the tax revision proposition I have discussed above and the annual appropriation bills with the billion and a half relief fund measure. Each of these pieces of legislation is controversial, some more, some less, but each capable of provoking a battle in the halls of congress. I think it can be fairly said also that each of these measures requires prolonged and careful study. They cannot be dealt with intelligently otherwise. They constitute, indeed, a formidable program and the President is insisting that all shall receive consideration.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—As it becomes more painfully apparent that there is no basis upon which to expect present returns of federal taxation to produce sufficient funds to maintain the administration's rate of spending, the President and the Treasury are peeping into every corner for new sources of money. They have already recommended to congress that the present nuisance tax be re-enacted to bring in some five hundred million a year and they are casting their eyes elsewhere for other tax receipts.

In addition, and as a part of the general pinch that the Treasury now feels, Mr. Roosevelt has asked congress to revise certain provisions of income tax law to close up loopholes and prevent escape from taxation. The President's message to congress on this point was quite bitter and, many observers thought, rather unfair but, nevertheless, he told congress that it was up to the legislative branch to see that there was no tax avoidance. The President's message dealt with an alleged moral phase of tax avoidance and that part of his message has provoked much criticism of the Chief Executive's attitude. He sought in his statement to the congress to make it appear that some wealthy persons had avoided taxes and that, by so doing, they had sinned. Now, the President's view is entitled to consideration and his charge that there is tax avoidance is correct. Indeed, I believe no one can successfully dispute the charge that there is tax avoidance of a wholesale character in the United States. But when the matter is placed in the category of a moral issue, it must be examined in a different light. The President did not talk about tax evasion in his message; he talked about tax avoidance. Tax evasion is illegal and immoral. Tax avoidance is purely and simply the arrangement by an individual so that he pays the lowest tax he can and still complies with the law. I am inclined to side with those in congress who have criticized the President on the attitude he assumed. As long as congress tells an individual, through the language of a law, that he must pay so much tax and prescribes the conditions, if that individual complies with that direction of congress, he does not commit a crime when he pays only that much tax.

I am constrained to support my view in this instance with the language of the late Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes who, as a member of the Supreme court of the United States, gained probably as much respect as any man who ever sat on the highest bench. Mr. Justice Holmes said in a decision of the court 21 years ago and now strangely apropos the following words: "We do not speak of evasion, because, when the law draws a line, a case is on one side of it or on the other, and if on the safe side it is none the worse legally that a person has availed himself to the full of what the law permits. When an act is condemned as an evasion, what is meant is that it is on the wrong side of the line indicated by the policy, if not by the mere letter, of the law."

Again and again, courts have held that a citizen may employ "any legal means" available to him to diminish the tax which he must pay. It would seem then that Mr. Roosevelt's message used rather ill chosen and ill advised language when, in dealing with questions of tax avoidance, he sought to make it appear that it was wrong for a citizen to try to save his own money. It has been rather interesting to note the type of outbursts, editorial and verbal, that has come as a result of Mr. Roosevelt's tax message. These outbursts have continued partly because the President asked congress to make an investigation of tax avoidance where some very large taxpayers are involved. Of course, congress is going to do that because it will give congress, or at least certain individual members, an opportunity for publicity. And they do not overlook opportunities for publicity. Since the discussion of tax questions has continued on the basis of the projected investigation, it has given plenty of writers an opportunity to express their opinion in detail. Many of these critics have been quite personal in their assault upon Mr. Roosevelt and their biting observations are doing him no good politically at all. Probably the worst of these criticisms appeared in the Washington Evening Star, a newspaper that seldom takes a bitter stand on any question. Usually, its position is confined to the presentation of both sides of the argument. But it was different as regards the tax message. The Evening Star called attention to regulations of the bureau of internal revenue which prescribed that a person must count as income anything taken in payment of services, whether that thing be money or some other thing of value. They must provide residences themselves, at considerable cost. It is obvious, therefore, that a residence given a government official is part of his pay."

Pick on Big Ones

When the President proposed the tax investigation, he said that he believed there were a good many millions of dollars that could be forced into the federal treasury as a result of such inquiry. His action followed sweeping orders issued to internal revenue agents and auditors to review every income tax return with the utmost care. The agents and auditors, of course, will go over the returns filed by the entire list of income tax payers, little as well as big, but the congressional investigation will be devoted only to some of the men called by Mr. Roosevelt "economic royalists." It is obvious that congress cannot go into all returns so congress will pick on the big ones because those men will have names out of which good headlines in newspapers can be written. The Treasury had a different idea about the investigation which congress undertook at the President's request. The Treasury's plan contemplated a number of secret hearings, star chamber sessions, and I believe everyone knows what can be had in a star chamber session with bureaucrats operating with all of the powers they possess in our government. Word of the Treasury's ideas did not please congressional leaders and they very quickly put their foot down on the scheme. Of course, members of the house and senate figured they would not share in the political benefits unless they did the investigating. I hear much comment to the effect, however, that an investigation in the manner congress had decided to make it is much preferable to the star chamber proceedings which the Treasury proposed.

I mentioned that the congressional committee is dealing only with "big names." The reason for this is plain. It would do no good at all in a publicity way for the congressional groups to call in some small taxpayer who, by availing himself of the privileges of the law, had been able to reduce his total tax to a comparatively few dollars. On the other hand, if a big business man, an economic royalist, claims all of the exemptions and deductions that the law specifies and thereby cuts down his tax, he becomes the subject of the target for much ballyhoo about tax avoidance. I do not see the difference.

Since the President finds himself in a deadlock with congress on his proposal to add six justices of his own choosing to the Supreme court of the United States, he has turned to a new approach in dealing with the legislative situation. He has suddenly loaded congress down with the earlier years of his tenure when he submitted only one legislative suggestion at a time. Now, in addition to the court reorganization proposal, there is before congress the far-reaching governmental reorganization plan, the billion dollar slum clearance and house building, farm tenancy bill and a highly controversial piece of legislation proposing to establish minimum wages and maximum hours for labor. These are, in addition, of course, to the tax revision proposition I have discussed above and the annual appropriation bills with the billion and a half relief fund measure. Early English Pottery

In the Eighteenth century some of the most charming productions of the English potteries took the form of figure studies, such as pastoral groups, nymphs and shepherds, courting couples, gallants and their ladies, historical, mythological and fiction characters, birds, animals, even cottages with a bit of green grass and climbing roses over the porch—all of these realistically portrayed in the same materials of which your cups and saucers and plates are made.

Floors for Horse Stalls

A clay floor is better than any other kind for the good of the horses but it is difficult to keep this type of floor clean. The horse will also dig holes in the clay floor, making it impossible to keep it level. The next best type of flooring for horse stalls would be oak planks. Floors made of oak wear about as well as those made of any other kind of material and are comparatively economical, advises A. L. Harvey, University Farm, St. Paul.

FARM TOPICS PASTURE FEED IS FAVORED FOR PIGS

Clean Field Will Pay Well, Specialist Advises.

By H. W. Taylor, Extension Swine Specialist, North Carolina State College, WNU Service.

A good, clean pasture for spring-farrowed pigs will pay big dividends at marketing time next fall. When on good pasture, the sow and pigs are protected from disease and parasite infection and provided with feed essential to health and development. And pasturage is the cheapest form of feed that can be given the young porkers. Soy beans planted in rows and cultivated twice will furnish excellent grazing from the time the plants are about 15 inches high until frost.

On good land an acre of soy beans will support 15 to 20 sows, provided they also receive a full feed of corn and a good protein supplement. Such pastures should be sown on land where pigs have not been allowed to range during the previous year or so. Best results will be obtained if the land has been cultivated with some crop since the last time swine were on it. Land used for hog pasture or hog lots during the past year may be infested with parasites, particularly worms, or other forms of disease-producing organisms.

To get the pigs in top shape for fall market they should be kept on full feed at all times. Sunlight Is Source of Vitamin D; Aids Poultry Sunlight is just as essential to good poultry health as green feed, fresh water and clean quarters. The wise poultry raiser, whether he has a sizable flock or only a few hens, will find profit in providing proper sunshine. Pens, runways, feeding houses, brooders and yards should be planned carefully to take full advantage of the health-giving rays, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Know, too, that sunlight is an important source of vitamin D, essential to normal growth and health of all animals. In the case of poultry, they need the vitamin D of the sun's rays because: (1) Adult birds become weakened and soon develop rickets without adequate sunshine. Without the sun, the growth of young birds is stunted and they turn out to be sickly, scrawny specimens. (2) Egg production is affected vitally: If your flock is producing soft or paper-thin shelled eggs, the reason may be that it is not getting enough sunshine.

Yellow Newtown Apple

The Yellow Newtown apple, which has grown for many years in Virginia and is there known locally as the Albemarle Pippin, was brought to that state by Dr. Thomas Walker who was a physician with the Virginia troops during the French and Indian war. After the defeat of Braddock, Doctor Walker returned to his home in Virginia and apparently carried scions of the apple trees in his saddle-bag. These scions were successfully grafted on trees at his home in Castle Hill, Albemarle county.

Age of Fresh Eggs

The freshness of an egg is not determined by its age, notes a writer in the Philadelphia Record. J. Hansell French, secretary of agriculture, in response to queries explained that the new fresh egg law contains no time provision. Eggs cannot lawfully be advertised as fresh unless they conform with the following standards: The air cell must be not more than one-quarter of an inch in depth and must be localized and regular; the yolk must be visible but not plainly visible or mobile; the white must be firm and clear; the germ must not show any visible development. Properly maintained eggs will come within the provision of the law after weeks of storage.

Measuring Straw in Stack

In estimating the number of tons of straw in a stack, multiply the length by the width at the ground by one-fourth the distance over the stack. This last measurement may be found by throwing a rope over the stack. To get the number of tons, according to a correspondent in Wallace's Farmer, divide the multiplied product by 600 if the stack is well settled, or by 650 to 700 if the stack is new or not well settled.

Market Old Sheep

Old ewes which have poor teeth should be marketed as soon as possible, says the Prairie Farmer. It is an easy matter to check the age of sheep by looking at the front, or incisor, teeth which are in the lower jaw. Mature sheep have eight of these incisor teeth which fit against the pad in the upper jaw. After five years, sheep begin to lose these teeth, and from then on will have trouble in feeding, and should be disposed of.

FOUR MEN AND DOG AT THE POLE

They Are the Pioneers in Russia's Grand Scheme to Establish Air Routes Over Vast, Shifting Fields of Arctic Ice.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY.

SOMEWHERE in a vast blue and white desert of eternal ice and snow there drift today four men and a dog. For a year they will seek to keep alive, indeed to accomplish important scientific work which will make history, in the shadow of the north pole.

The four are led by Ivan Papinin, grizzled veteran explorer of the Arctic. His companions are Ernest Krenkl, radio operator who will be their only means of contact with the world outside, and who accompanied Admiral Richard E. Byrd to the Antarctic in 1929; Pyotr Shirshov, hydro-biologist who was marooned with 101 others aboard an ice breaker in the Arctic in 1934, and Eugene Federov, magnetologist who has been studying the magnetic waves of the north region for three years.

They are one of the most vital—and certainly one of the most dramatic—components of a fantastic, but possibly practical, scheme of the Russian communistic government to remap the polar regions with air routes that will cut thousands of miles and many hours of travel between northern Europe and Asia and North America.

The plan necessitates the establishment of an airplane base somewhere near the pole, a base that would involve international complications of vast proportions in the years to come, if it is successful. The Russians are certain that some day it will be. But first of all there are a great many facts to be discovered about the polar basin, particularly concerning weather conditions, existence of solid ground and the drift of the great ice floes. It is up to the dog drifting heroes to find these facts insofar as they are able.

Dog Warns of Bears.

It is hard to imagine more utter desolation than that which the scientists face. They live in tents reinforced with snow walls on a field of ice three or four meters thick. Their quarters are hardly spacious, for they have kept with them a great mass of equipment, including apparatus for observations of weather, ocean depth, physiography, magnetism, currents, etc. For food they have four tons of powdered chicken and other concentrated foods, bran, dry tea and caviar. There are also a windmill to generate electric power, skis, wolf-pelt sleeping bags, guns, sledges, a phonograph with 15 records, a radio, chess set, cigarettes and cigars, cameras and books. The dog is included in the party to warn them of approaching bears.

The Russians were left on an ice floe about 70 miles from the pole by Dr. Otto T. Schmidt, chief protagonist of Russia's development of the Arctic, and his convoy of airplanes. If they are to remain near the pole they will have to do some moving around before the year is out. It is impossible to predict the

These are the four men who will live for a year on an ice floe near the North pole to observe weather conditions for Soviet Russia: 1. Ernest Krenkl, radio operator. 2. Pyotr Shirshov, hydro-biologist. 3. Ivan Papinin, leader. 4. Eugene Federov, magnetologist.

aster, proved their ability to go to the rescue of unfortunates marooned in the Arctic, and airplanes and radio communication have improved by leaps and bounds since that time.

Landing Planes Is Tricky.

Conditions as they are known today do not permit a satisfactory airplane base in the vicinity of the pole. The pole itself is merely a mathematical spot; the area in which the spot is located is a broken field of ice. One year it may remain thick and solid when winds from the south force the ice together. In another year local storms may scatter it crunching and jamming for many miles in any direction. When leads are opened up heavy fogs, through which aerial navigation is all but impossible, loom. And as yet little is known about the ocean current which also may affect the movement of the ice. It takes a skillful—and lucky—pilot to land and take off on the broken, jagged surface of the polar basin. When two of Amundsen's planes were forced down 100 miles from the pole in 1925, it took the men three weeks to get themselves out.

Commercial Aspect Vital.

There are rumors in the news columns—they may be nothing more than just rumors—that the governments of the United States and Canada already are concerned with the possibility that their nations may be dominated by a Soviet air base at the pole. The rumors continue that these governments are preparing to demand that should such an air base be successfully constructed it must be subject to strict and impartial international control.

These are scary conjectures, however. It is probable that the Russians are far more interested in the commercial possibilities of the Arctic air routes.

Seeking new economic frontiers, the Communists turned quite naturally to the north. Here were great reserves of timber, fur, gold, oil and metals to fill the needs of modern industry. The modern pioneers laid out towns, dug mines, erected cities containing mills. The great market for their products lies in America. The shortest route to America is over the vast wastes of ice. Development of air routes seemed the plausible answer.

Internal air routes over the polar regions are almost equally important, for they can drastically shorten the distances between the eastern and western extremities of the vast Soviet empire. Flying by the curvature of the earth's surface from Leningrad to the new Pacific industrial and military stronghold of Khabarovsk, the distance is about 5,500 miles; via the pole it is less than 4,000 miles. If a polar aerial base could be established, commercial craft could make the hop from any large industrial city of central Russia to New York or Chicago in 25 to 30 hours.

Air Travel Now Heavy.

The reduction of the flying distance from one end of the Soviet empire to the other is of significance in another way. The two nations the Communists fear most are Germany and Japan, one at one end of the empire and the other at the other end. The precious saving of time in the transfer of planes and other aviation equipment would be sorely needed in time of war.

Russia already has made important transportation advances in the north country which is already settled. The northeast passage has been opened up along the Siberian coast; last summer, with the aid of icebreakers, 14 ships made the passage. Strategic commercial points have been connected with more than 11,000 miles of airways. Over these there were 267,000 miles flown in 1934; the figure estimated for 1937 is 1,389,000 miles.

The Russians want to know in advance what the conditions will be when they are ready for the trans-Arctic air lines, what the upper air currents will be, what moisture, temperature and winds may be encountered, what the effect of the Arctic centers of cold will be on the weather to the south. That is the reason four men and a dog are adrift with tons of scientific equipment in the Arctic today.

direction in which they are most likely to drift.

Russians, according to a report from Moscow, believe that the ice moves in a circle about the pole, but this does not agree with the observations of others. When Nansen crossed the polar basin, his ship drifted across it in nearly a straight line, a short distance from the pole.

Even in winter the marooned scientists will face the grave danger of the ice floes breaking under them, for they are always moving. If a split in the ice appeared suddenly they would stand the chance of losing much of their valuable equipment. The loss of a considerable part of their food supply would probably be fatal, for seals and bears do not ordinarily live that close to the top of the world.

If their food supply ran short in the cold and dark periods of winter, their chances of rescue would be rather slim. However, the Russians 12 years ago, in the Chelyuskin dis-continent. But for transarctic flying, which is sure to come some day, the observations of Russia's floating weather station should be invaluable.

If an air base could be maintained at the pole—and who can say, looking back over the aerial accomplishments of the past score of years, that it cannot?—the United States and Canada might well be grievously concerned. Russia seems bent on continuing the development of what is already, in numbers at least, the most powerful air force in the world. A base at the pole would bring the industrial centers of the United States and Canada within reach of even the present day bombing planes, and perhaps within a day's pleasure jaunt for the bombers of ten years from now.

Canada's most valuable mineral properties are within 2,000 miles of the pole, and her principal cities only another 500 miles south. The distance from the pole to New York

INSPECTION TOUR TO BE HELD
A garden inspection tour for all members of the 4-H garden clubs will be held on Tuesday, June 29th.
Separate tours will be held in the eastern and western sections of the county. Mr. R. A. Vaughan, plant specialist of the College of Agriculture,

WEED ERADICATION
The office has received a number of calls regarding the use of sodium chlorate for quack grass and Canada thistle eradication purposes. As this is the time of year when spraying is most effective as a weed control measure the method of using sodium chlorate is given below:
Dissolve two pounds of sodium chlorate in one gallon of water and spray with a potato or pressure sprayer.
Use one gallon of the solution per square rod of ground.

SHORT COURSE REUNION
Short course graduates of Dodge, Ozaukee and Washington counties are making plans to hold a reunion at the Washington County Asylum grounds on Friday, July 16th. Arrangements are being made with the College to bring to West Bend some of the ex-
Field Day.

COUNTY FAIR
The dates of the Washington County 4-H Fair have been set for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, August 13, 14 and 15. A revised premium list, containing many changes from the past year, will soon be ready for distribution to those who request a copy.
Farmers and home-makers of the county, as well as 4-H club members, are encouraged to exhibit at the fair.

LODGED AND THICK NURSE CROPS—THEIR REMOVAL
If the new seedlings of alfalfa and other hay crops are to make their best progress this season, it is likely that many farmers in Washington county may need to give close attention to the condition of the nurse crop in order that it may be removed at the proper time to prevent smothering of the crop.

George M. Briggs, of the College of Agriculture, in a recent report, calls our attention to the fact that lodged grains and thick nurse crops are often the cause of many poor stands of alfalfa and other hays. Should the grains lodge that are being used for nurse crops or the nurse crop be thick, Briggs recommends the cutting of the crops for hay.
Field tests and farmers' experiences over a number of years indicate that grains should be removed as soon as possible after they lodge. Thickly seeded grain crops, even though they do not lodge, can be removed as hay to advantage to the new seedlings.
Nurse crops to be used as hay are more palatable and valuable as hay when cut in the dough stage.

LARGE STRAWBERRY CROP IS EXPECTED THIS YEAR
Madison—A large strawberry crop is in prospect for Wisconsin and the nation as a whole. With an increase in acreage and good growing conditions it is expected that production in the state will be about 53% greater than a year ago, according to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States departments of agriculture. So far the cool wet season has been favorable to the strawberry crop.

The forecast of strawberry production indicates that Wisconsin's output this year may be about 144,000 crates compared with 94,000 crates harvested last year. Strawberry production in the nation this year is expected to be about equal to the five year average.

Pneumatic Water Agitation in McCormick-Deering Milk Coolers

The New Way to Cool Milk Fast

WARM DAYS create a serious problem in the cooling of milk—but not for owners of McCormick-Deering Milk Coolers. They cool the milk cans in the cooler in one hour or less the milk cooled to 50 degrees or lower kept at that temperature automatically, regardless of the temperature.

The pneumatic water agitator, exclusive with McCormick-Deering, brings about this fast cooling. A small quantity of water poured into the top filler hole starts the agitator pumping air to the bottom of the box. The action continues for approximately one hour and a quarter, after which the water action automatically stops. The McCormick-Deering Milk

The McCormick-Deering Milk Cooler—manufactured assembled, and tested complete, at the factory.

Cooler is simple, compact, and easy and economical to operate. It is built complete (both box and compressor unit) by International Harvester—and backed by the famous Harvester service. Ask us for complete information.

This cross section of the McCormick-Deering Milk Cooler shows how the constantly rising bubbles force the water to wash over the ice bank and to circulate all around the cans. An automatic temperature control maintains a 3 1/2-inch ice bank and uniform water temperature. The box of the McCormick-Deering is lined inside and out with heavy galvanized rust-resisting steel and insulated with 3 inches of the best-quality cork. Copper refrigerating coils mounted on galvanized steel encircle the inside of the box.

Sold—14,000 miles from home

It's a long way from any dairy farm in America to Chongmah, Siam.

By railroad and steamer and pack train the distance is more than 14,000 miles. Yet products from American dairy farms are used in Siam. Each year millions of pounds are bought and used in remote places throughout the world.

In 1887 Gail Borden's "canned" milk first opened the way for world-wide selling of dairy products. Foreign outlets for American milk are the result of modern sales and research pioneering.

Every million pounds of milk produced that finds a market in foreign lands, further supports the flow of milk money back to the farms of America.

"Wall of Windows" in Bryce Canyon Park

Towering above the floor of Bryce Canyon National park is this huge knife-like formation, a slender ridge of eroded rock, pierced by large openings. To it has been given the name "Wall of Windows." Its fantastic minaret-like top, in varying shades of red, brown and ochre, stands brilliant in the afternoon sun in silhouette against the blue sky. This is a Union Pacific railroad photograph.

JUST GO FISHIN'

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN the world is lookin' bluer Then you ever saw her, knew her, When you only stumble through her Day by day. When you think you're weary of her, Banker, worker, lawyer, lover, There's a way you can recover Right away. When discouraged and disgusted, When you're practically busted, There's a way to git adjusted And to smile: From your cares and competition Take a little intermission, Jump the joint, and just go fishin' For awhile. Why, ya great big mastadon ya, When your girl has gone back on ya, As she ought to do, doggone ya, You're so mean, When you're troubled in the gizzard, When you're sick from A to Izzard, When you look just like a lizard, Blue and green, Then to cure each ache and shaver, And to regulate your liver, Row a boat, or wade a river For a mile— Yes, to feel the old ambition And to git back in condition, Jump the joint, and just go fishin' For awhile! © Douglas Malloch.—WNU Service.

Applicant Finds Education Surely Is Requisite These Days.

"Well," inquired the man in the swivel chair as the seventy-fourth applicant of the day strode into his office, "have you had a thorough education in art?" "Yes, sir," answered the young applicant confidently, "I have." "Studied in Europe?" "Yes. Four years at the Beaux Arts." "And you're sure you could guide visitors through this place competently?" "Yes, I am sure." "Well, we shall see. What were the three Greek orders?" "Ionic, Corinthian and Doric." "Very good. What are the outstanding features of Gothic architecture?" "Pointed arches, vertical accent, skeletal framework with small wall space and large windows. This contrasts with the Romanesque where—" "Whoa. Whoa. That's enough. And you'd be able to explain reproductions of great painters to inquiring visitors?"

"Certainly. The perspective of Fabriano, the power and religious fervor of Masaccio, the splendid chiaroscuro of Leonardo, the relentless realism of Rembrandt, the brilliant color tones of Veronese, born 1528, died—" "Splendid! Now name some important sculptors."

"Praxiteles, Michelangelo, Houdon, Donatello, Bernini, Codion, Cellini—"

"You'll do. Now go and get your overalls on," concluded the proprietor of the Duval Filling Station, Inc., "and give that customer out there a few gallons of gas." — Parke Cummings, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE HERALD OF MISTRESS SPRING

PETER RABBIT was sitting in the middle of the dear Old Brier Patch. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had just begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, and Peter was wondering where he would go and what he would do when he heard a sound that caused him to suddenly sit up very straight with both ears pointing right up to the sky. Peter held his breath for a minute and then he heard it again. This time he jumped straight up in the air and kicked his heels together for joy. It was just the softest, sweetest whistle! It wasn't merry and it wasn't sad; it was just beautiful. And it seemed to come from everywhere and nowhere—just out of the air.

"Winsome Bluebird!" cried Peter Rabbit. "Oh, it's Winsome Bluebird! I wonder where he is! He sounds a long way off and yet he may be close by. Oh, I do wonder if I'm the first one to hear him!" "I guess you are, Peter," said a soft voice. "I guess you are, because you see I've just arrived and I came straight to the Old Brier Patch, because I just knew that you would be looking for me and I wanted you to have the pleasure of being the first to see me. Why don't you look up in the little cherry tree over your head, Peter, and say something?" "Of course, Peter felt very foolish, and he looked just as he felt, as he saw Winsome Bluebird sitting right over his head. You see that soft, beautiful voice had seemed to come from everywhere, and Peter hadn't been able to tell just where it did come from.

"Oh, Winsome, I'm So Glad You've Got Here at Last; I'm So Happy I Could Sing for Joy."

"Oh, Winsome!" he cried. "Oh, Winsome, I'm so glad you're here at last! I'm so happy I could sing for joy." "Ho, ho, Peter!" laughed Winsome Bluebird. "Do try it. I should love to hear you sing."

Peter grinned. "Well, anyway, if I can't sing I can dance," he cried and right away began the funniest little dance that ever was. Finally he had to stop to get his breath. "There, that's how glad I am!" he cried. "Now tell me all the news, Winsome."

"Oh, I couldn't, Peter. I couldn't tell you all. There's too much to tell and I haven't got time now. You know there are others waiting for me." "But do tell me if Mistress Spring is most here," begged Peter. "Of course she is! Don't you know

I am her herald? I've come all the way up from down south just ahead of her to tell everybody that she is coming. You know, that is what a herald is for. I had rather be the herald of Mistress Spring than anything else in all the world." Winsome half lifted his beautiful blue wings as he said this. "Don't go!" cried Peter. "I guess I know how you feel. It must be perfectly splendid to make everybody glad and happy as you do. I—I wish I could be a herald." Winsome Bluebird laughed—the sweetest laugh. "I guess you don't need to be a herald to make people glad to see you, Peter," he said. "Besides, you know you can be sort of a herald by telling everybody you meet that I am here."

"That's so!" Peter cried. "That's one reason I like to be the first to see or hear you. It's great fun to

PAINT AND VARNISH REMOVERS

PAINT and varnish removers do not actually remove a finish; their action is to soften the oils of a finish sufficiently to permit it to be wiped and scraped off. Liquid removers are a combination of solvents, such as wood alcohol, benzene, amyl acetate, and other liquids, usually combined with paraffin to check evaporation. Liquid removers act quickly; usually in not more than 20 minutes. By that time paint and varnish will be so softened that they can be wiped off with a rough cloth. For old paint, a second application may be necessary, and scraping with a putty knife. With liquid removers, there is no raising of the grain of wood. The vapors of liquid varnish removers are inflammable, and care must be taken to avoid fire. I know of one case, and it was not unusual, when this was overlooked with disastrous results. Liquid varnish remover was being used to take the finish from a table. The work was being done in a small room, and as it was winter, the windows were closed. In the middle of things the worker lighted a cigarette; there was an instant flash of fire, and the house was saved from destruction only by quick work with an extinguisher.

When using a liquid remover, there should be good ventilation to carry off the vapors, and there should be no flames nearby. To avoid trouble, a liquid varnish remover should not be used in a cellar when the heater fire is burning, nor in a kitchen with a lighted coal range; with a gas range the pilot light should be put out. With ordinary and common sense precautions, liquid varnish removers can be used with complete safety.

The use of a liquid paint and varnish remover should be followed by liberal washing with turpentine to take up the paraffin. Certain alkalis have the effect of paint removers; for example, washing soda, trisodium phosphate, and lye. Of these, lye has the great disadvantage of being injurious to wood fibers, and should be used only handcapping the stroke at the start. There are craftsmen in every field who grip the tools differently and golf is no exception. Two of the greatest golfers of this era, Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen, used different grips, the former overlapping and the latter, interlocking. Most of the good golfers of the present day possess large hands and this makes the problem of which of these two grips to use comparatively simple for both are suitable for big hands and long fingers. Among the rank and file of players, however, there are many with small hands and stubby fingers. Women in particular have a natural handicap in small hands and to overcome this the two handed grip is used. The hands placed on the club in the manner illustrated above, cover a good portion of the shaft and if held on the light side will co-operate together well. Many champions of the past have used this grip. The point to remember is that the hands must work in both directions equally well. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

GRAPHIC GOLF

GRIPPING THE CLUB

THERE are three ways of gripping the golf club; the overlapping, interlocking and the natural, two handed grip. In the overlapping grip the little finger of the right hand overlaps the forefinger of the left. With the interlocking grip the little finger of the right hand is interlocked with the forefinger of the left. A large number of the good golfers today employ one or the other of these grips and their value lies largely in creating better coordination of movement between the two hands.

The problem is to make the hands work as closely together as possible, to eliminate any tendency toward friction between the two. Good golf is a matter of smooth stroking and there is trouble enough along the swing's path without

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

Some Grown-Ups Never Get Over Wanting the Other Fellow's Toys.

THERE'S enough playfulness going on among adults these days to show them up. Have you run into parties where tin horns and toy guns are used for entertainment? If you have, you know that they usually end up in a nursery brawl, with women whining at their husbands, and men growling at their girl friends because they have had more turns than any one else. Maybe it's instinct. The minute some one blows a toy horn or bounces a ball once, you want to jump up and say, "Let me try it." You should have learned that you have to give the other fellow a long turn if you want a long turn yourself. Maybe you don't go in for childish sports. But if you do, see to it that you know the childish code that goes with them. WNU Service.

INDIANS EASILY DEFEAT SLINGER

The Kewaskum Indians kept up their league leading pace in the Land o' Valleys league with an easy 15 to 2 victory over the Slinger A. C. team here last Sunday. The game preceded the Badger State game and was called at the end of the sixth inning to allow for the main game starting on time.

This was Kewaskum's 4th straight win, which gives them undisputed possession of first place. Slinger was tied with the Indians up to Sunday.

K. Honeck did the twirling for the Indians, striking out 16 invading batters in six innings and allowing only three hits. Oelhafen and Bull, Slinger pitchers, were hit freely, giving up 16 bingles. Honeck also connected for three hits in as many times at bat.

This coming Sunday the Indians will travel to Bark Lake for their first meeting with that team.
