PROPERTY COUNCIL TO MEET HERE

SCHOOL DRIVERS TO TAKE BRAKE TEST

The property council was unanimously passed by the village board at a meeting held at the village hall Monday evening, October 28. The council is composed of Mayor Harold Riley of West Bend, chairman of the safety council, and other members. It is deemed advisable to take action on the improvement of traffic safety of a curve on Highway 55 at St. Peter's Catholic church in the village of Slinger.

The council was passed after consideration, during which it was pointed out that the curve has been the cause of numerous accidents in the past and that it was the duty of the council to take care of it. The highway commissioner was instructed to have the curve widened and to have the necessary signs erected. It was also decided to have a sign erected to warn of the curve.

PAUL KRAL BREAKS LEG IN PLAYING FOOTBALL
Paul Kral, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kral, of this village, and one of Kewaskum High school's athletic stars, sustained a fracture of the small bone in his left leg, about one inch above the ankle last Friday, October 29. The mishap occurred while Paul was playing football on the school campus prior to the beginning of classes in the morning. Running with the ball, he stepped on a stone and fell, breaking the bone. He was rushed to a physician's office and the bone was set. He is now confined to his home. Paul's biggest regret is that he will be lost to the high school basketball team for some time. The injury jinx seems to be trailing the young man, as this was his third injury within the past year. Last winter he suffered a cracked up finger, in basketball and last spring was lost to the school's track team with a broken arm. Anyway, he escaped injury in his favorite sport—baseball.

BIRTHS
DREHER—A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Dreher of route 1, Kewaskum, last Friday morning, October 29.
DALIEGE—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Daliege of Dundee, a baby daughter Wednesday, October 27.
WESENBERG—An eight pound baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wesenberg of E. Main street, this village, the forepart of this week.

Question for Armistice Day by A. B. CHAPIN

MRS. WM. SCHAUB OF TOWN WAYNE DIES

Mrs. William Schaub, Sr., 64, nee Minnie Doms, of the town of Wayne, passed away at 8:30 a. m. on Wednesday, November 3, at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, following a two days' illness with chronic cholecystitis with myoraditis (gall trouble).

Mrs. Schaub took sick on Monday and on the following afternoon was removed to the hospital. She was operated upon the same night, from which she failed to rally, and died the next morning, Wednesday. Her gall bladder was very much inflamed and the pus spread rapidly through her system, poisoning it and weakening her heart. Deceased was born on May 1, 1873, in the town of Kewaskum, where she lived until her marriage to William Schaub on November 22, 1892, which took place in Kewaskum. Following this she took up her residence on the Schaub homestead in the town of Wayne with her husband. The couple made their home on that farm ever since.

Mrs. Schaub is survived by her husband, two sons, William Schaub, Jr. of this village and Melvin on the homestead; three brothers, Charles Doms of Fond du Lac, William and Louis Doms of the town of Kewaskum; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Guth of West Bend, and Lona (Mrs. John Elrks) of the town of Auburn, and four grandchildren. A daughter predeceased her in 1905 at the age of 14 years. Two sisters also predeceased Mrs. Schaub in death, namely: Tillie (Mrs. George Kibbel, Sr.) and Mary (Mrs. Dave Kibbel).

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, November 6, at 1:30 p. m. from the Schaub residence and at 2:00 p. m. from the Peace Evangelical church in this village. Rev. Richard M. A. Gadow will officiate interment will be made in the congregation's cemetery.

Mrs. Schaub was a kind and loving wife, mother and sister, and she enjoyed the esteem of all who learned to know her. Those near and dear to her will keep her within their fondest recollections. It is to them our heartfelt condolences are extended.

CARD PARTY
The McKinley school of the town of Scott will hold a prize card party on Tuesday evening, November 9th, in the school building. All popular games will be played. Cash prizes will be given for skat. Free lunch will be served. Everybody invited. 10-20-21-pd

POULTRY TOURNAMENT
All are invited to attend a dressed poultry tournament at Kohn's curve, on Highway 55, two miles north of Kewaskum, town of Auburn, Saturday evening, Nov. 6. A fine lot of dressed ducks and geese will be on display.—Alfred Ludwig, Proprietor.

FATHER OF LOCAL WOMAN DIES

Edward Lubach, aged 75 years, 8 months and 16 days, father of Mrs. Raymond Stahl of this village, well known resident of Beechwood, in the town of Scott, Sheboygan county, passed away at his home at 5:10 a. m. Monday, November 1. Death resulted from a complication of diseases.

Mr. Lubach was born in the town of Scott Feb. 14, 1862. He was united in marriage to Katharina Luhn on Oct. 12, 1886.

He is survived by his widow, one son and six daughters, namely: Alex Lubach at home, Alma (Mrs. Henry Kruemer) of the town of Mitchell, Ella (Mrs. Arthur Dubben) and Clara (Mrs. Henry Hicken) of the town of Scott, Frona (Mrs. Edgar Hicken) and Cora (Mrs. Albert Liermann) of Plymouth, and Marie (Mrs. Raymond Stahl) of this village. He also leaves one half-brother, fourteen grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. His parents, two brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

Mr. and Mrs. Lubach celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Oct. 12, 1936.

The funeral was held on Thursday, Nov. 4, at 1:30 p. m. from the home and at 2:00 p. m. from the Evangelical church in Beechwood. Burial took place in the parish cemetery. Revs. Boettcher of Milwaukee and Richard M. A. Gadow of this village officiated. Six sons-in-law acted as pallbearers.

Mr. Lubach was a very kind and loving husband and father, especially devoted to his family, and nothing pleased him more than when his children and grandchildren came to see him. We join in expressing our sincere sympathy to the bereaved survivors.

LOCAL BASEBALL CLUB TO HOLD DUCK TOURNAMENT
A duck tournament, for the benefit of the Kewaskum Baseball club of the Badger State league, will be held at Eberle's Buffet in the village this Saturday evening, Nov. 6. A very choice lot of dressed ducks will be on display. All are invited to come. Let's help the baseball boys along.

MULLEN MERRYMAKERS

WEST BEND HOME SHOW NEXT WEEK

Home modernization ideas for farm as well as city homes will be featured at the West Bend Home show November 11, 12 and 13. The show theme, "Better Homes Mean Better Living," will be applied in the numerous and varied exhibits to both city and rural conditions and requirements.

Home decorations, home furnishings, home appliances, home financing and many other related subjects will be covered as well as the building of new homes and the rebuilding or remodeling of existing homes. Exhibitors will tell the story of better homes in many ingenious ways. Every booth promises to bring a new revelation.

Two cooking schools will be conducted in conjunction with the event. On Thursday, November 11, the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company will open its cooking school, demonstrating the use of electric appliances at 2:30 p. m. On the succeeding day, Friday, November 12, the Wisconsin Eastern Gas company will put on an interesting demonstration of the use of gas appliances. Admission charge to the home show will include admission to these schools on cooking and other processes of housekeeping.

The educational and instructional will be interspersed with entertainment of the highest rank. Hutchinson's Hill, billies with their snappy musical characterizations are booked for Thursday. Miss Julia Desmond with her soprano will entertain on Friday. This young lady comes direct from a long engagement at one of Milwaukee's larger hotels where her playing and singing pleased many a large audience. On Saturday fine harmony and musical treats will be served by the Malone Sisters, who entertain with song and violin impersonations.

Home show opening will be promptly at 2:00 p. m. Thursday. Everything will then be in readiness for guests. Complete programs of special events scheduled for that afternoon and the succeeding sessions of the show will be distributed at the Masonic Temple. Visitors will be eligible for the attractive and valuable attendance prizes being awarded on each day that they visit the show.

Ideas on how to make home a better place to live are being splendidly exhibited for people of this community. Enthusiasm for the event and the interest of the many exhibitors has increased each day since the plan was first announced. All of this harbors well for everyone who will be in attendance.

See ad on last page of this issue.

Purchase Land For New Cemetery Site

The purchase of a location for a new cemetery was decided at a meeting of the members of Holy Trinity congregation in the school hall last Thursday evening.

The committee and others attending the meeting elected to purchase two and one-half acres of land from Jos. Schoofs on Highway 28, west of the village, opposite the Peace Evangelical church cemetery. This is the original site considered.

It was also decided to provide perpetual care for both the new and old cemeteries. Cost of this and the purchase of lots in the new cemetery will be the same as mentioned in these columns last week.

Henry Muckerhite was newly elected to the committee of eight to fill the vacancy of Hubert Wittman.

ARMISTICE DAY CARD PARTY

An Armistice day card party will be held at Boltonville Thursday, Nov. 11, starting at 8 p. m. given by the Triangle "B" Post of the American Legion. All popular games will be played. Many valuable prizes will be given, including a grand door prize. Admission 25c.

OPERATION

Mrs. K. A. Honeck of Fond du Lac avenue, this village, was removed to St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, Monday where she underwent a prostate operation the following day, Tuesday, November 2. She is recovering very nicely at this time.

TO ENROLL IN SHORT COURSE

Delbert Backhaus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Backhaus of the town of Auburn and a graduate of the Kewaskum High school, is one of eight Fond du Lac county young men who will enroll in the University of Wisconsin four months "short course in agriculture." School will open Nov. 15.

GARBAGE COLLECTIONS

Notice is hereby given that garbage will be collected only once a week during the winter months, on Friday of each week. The citizens should govern themselves accordingly.

RED CROSS DRIVE STARTS NEXT WEEK

Mrs. E. L. Morgenroth, local chairman, wishes to announce the Red Cross membership drive for 1938, which starts next week. The dates from Armistice day, next Thursday, November 11, to Thanksgiving day, November 25, have been set aside for the roll call.

Memberships are $1, $5, $10, and $25, and all donations will be gratefully received by the local workers. Of any amount given the Red Cross, only 50 cents goes to national headquarters, the rest remains here.

The Red Cross is quick to respond when disaster and disease, and other help is needed. However, it takes large funds to carry on this work and so it comes to residents of our vicinity to renew their memberships and assist this very worthy cause.

Mrs. Morgenroth also makes an appeal in behalf of the American Red Cross for gifts of clothing, household supplies, a home furnishings for the needy and distressed families of this community who do not have the means of purchasing these many necessary items.

During these days of fall activity within the household, many of our readers come across discarded articles which, although having fulfilled their use to the owner, would bring great warmth, comfort and cheer to the less fortunate.

The Red Cross, through Mrs. Morgenroth, the local chairman, would greatly appreciate any donations, no matter how large or small. Simply turn over your items to Mrs. Morgenroth, or call her, and she will see that any articles you have for disposal will be called for.

Many Gift Winners at Rosenheimer's Big Sale

The L. Rosenheimer store's big 10-day sale, marking the firm's 63rd anniversary, came to a close last Saturday evening. The sale, which lasted from Wednesday, October 20th, through Saturday, October 30th, was a success in every way. People from many miles away came to take advantage of the numerous bargains offered in this store-wide sale.

A valuable gift was given away free each day of the sale and on the last day five additional gifts were given to the lucky people whose names were drawn. Also on the last day, at 5 p. m. in the afternoon, L. Rosenheimer's beautiful anniversary cake, adorned with 63 candles, was cut. Each person in the store at the time received a piece of the cake, along with an envelope containing a coin.

Daily prize winners were as follows: Wednesday, October 29, Mrs. J. P. Van Blarcom, Kewaskum, blanket; Thursday, October 21, Mrs. William Voim, Kewaskum, turkish towel set; Friday, October 22, Mrs. Ray Klug, route 1, Kewaskum, basket of groceries; Saturday, October 23, Mrs. Wenzel Holzmann, Kewaskum, 98 pounds of flour; Monday, October 25, Anna Voim, route 3, Kewaskum, bridge set; Tuesday, October 26, R. J. Dettman, route 1, Random Lake, felt rug; Wednesday, October 27, Chas. Lau, route 2, Campbellsport, lace table cloth; Thursday, October 28, John J. Fellenz, route 1, Kewaskum, table cloth; Friday, October 29, Mrs. William Schief, Five Corners, bedspread; Saturday, October 30, Emil Domann, route 3, Kewaskum, blanket.

The five grand prizes given away on Saturday evening, October 30, the last day of the sale went to the following: 1. Electric Nesco roaster—Mrs. Clifford Stautz, Kewaskum. 2. 100 lb. sack of pure cane sugar—Mrs. K. A. Honeck, Kewaskum. 3. 98 lbs. Pillsbury's best flour—La Verne Abel, route 5, West Bend. 4. Electric heater—Francis Gilboy, route 1, Cascade. 5. Electric toaster—Math. Voim, Kewaskum.

SCHOOL PLANS TO HOLD THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS

Three one-act plays will be given by the young people of Kewaskum School District No. 4 in the Kewaskum Opera House on Thursday evening, Dec. 2, at 8 p. m. Plays presented will be "Widow on Wednesday," "Grandma Pulls the String," and "Lunch in the Suburbs." Tickets, which are now going on sale, are priced at 30c for adults and 15c for the children. Miss Marcella Schief is teacher at the school.

FIREMEN'S DANCE A SUCCESS

The dance, sponsored by the members of the Kewaskum Fire department, in the Kewaskum Opera House last Saturday evening was very well attended and was a thorough success in every way. The firemen realized a neat profit, which will go toward the purchase of much needed new equipment. The firemen wish to extend their thanks to all who helped to make the affair a success.

NO LABOR PEACE YET

.. Japs Drive Back Chinese .. Will Not Attend Parley

The news camera man took his life in his hands to secure this excellent photograph of Japanese "mopping up" operations in the Chapei district of Shanghai. "Mopping up" is the military euphemistic term for stamping out whatever life is left after the artillery bombardment has done its work.

Labor Parley Deadlock

LEADERS of the American Federation of Labor and the C. I. O. couldn't get anywhere in their peace conference in Washington. So they adjourned temporarily, and said the parley might not be resumed. George M. Harrison, head of the federation delegation, said that unless the C. I. O. attitude changed there was no prospect of peace.

Philip Murray

Both sides had made offers, but these were scornfully rejected by the opponents.

The A. F. of L. proposed that the C. I. O. affiliates organized since the split be decided at an immediate conference "between representatives of organizations chartered by the A. F. of L. and organizations chartered by the C. I. O. and which may be in conflict with each other, for the purpose of bringing about an adjustment to bring the membership into the A. F. of L. on terms and conditions mutually agreeable."

This clause of the federation proposal brought a denunciation from Philip Murray, chairman of the ten-man C. I. O. peace committee, who asserted that it asked "desertion and betrayal" of these unions.

The C. I. O. proposal was that its unions should return to the federation and that a new autonomous department should be created, to be known as the C. I. O., to have complete and sole jurisdiction over its policies and operations. This plan represented no concessions.

John L. Lewis called Murray and others into a strategy meeting to consider whether a new proposal for a truce should be offered by the C. I. O.

James Dewey, Labor department conciliator, and Senator George L. B. Benson of Tennessee were busy trying to find a way to peace. The position of President Roosevelt was unknown, but it was believed he would continue his hands-off policy.

Japs Smash Chinese

JAPAN officially declined the invitation to the nine-power treaty convention in Brussels, and her forces went ahead fast in their operations in China. They had been checked by a desperate stand of the Chinese defenders of Shanghai, but launched a new offensive that forced the Chinese to abandon Chapei, the native section, and fall back to a new line to the west of the international settlement. There they entrenched with their backs to the Sookhow creek on the other side of which were the United States marines. These American troops had orders from Admiral Yarnell to shoot at any planes attacking them or at non-combatants.

The British troops in Shanghai had similar orders, and the international tension was brought nearer to the breaking point when a Japanese tank fired on a British infantry detachment of which Brig. Gen. A. P. D. Telfer-Sollett, British commander in chief, was a member. A few days before a Japanese machine-gunner in a plane had killed a British soldier.

In refusing to send a delegate to Brussels the Japanese government said the conference was inspired by the League of Nations and would "put serious obstacles in the path of the just and proper solution of the conflict."

Counterpart of "Paralytic"
Acted 5,000 Years Ago

"Paralytic" and "Punch" possess a lineage compared to which the pedigree of the noblest of noblemen shrinks to insignificance, writes a Vienna United Press correspondent. A. Huter-Heilsberg, Austria's foremost student of theater history, deciphered a 5,000-year-old cuneiform brick inscription from Mesopotamia, which proved to be part of a dialogue.

Japs Mobbed in Frisco

FIVE eminent Japanese citizens, sent out on a good will mission to the world, arrived at San Francisco and were at once besieged on their steamship by a howling mob which struggled with the police for two hours.

The demonstration was sponsored by the district council of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, comprised of seagoing unions affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization. But about a third of the crowd was comprised of the city's vast Chinatown to vent their rage at things and persons Japanese.

Help for Stock Market

EVER since the slump in the stock market began the government has been urged to do something about it. Finally the administration yielded to the demands and the federal reserve board of governors reduced margin requirements on stock purchases from 55 to 40 per cent and imposed a 50 per cent margin on short sales. The new requirements went into effect November 1 and are not retroactive.

No official explanation was given for the board's action but it was understood that it was designed to adjust the margin requirements to current stock market conditions.

Imposition of the increased margin requirements on short sales was an innovation from the board's standpoint, a stock exchange rule requiring only 10 per cent protection on short sales. It was understood that before arriving at its decision the reserve board consulted with the securities and exchange commission.

Many brokers were doubtful that this action would stabilize the market; but the immediate effect was to give stock prices a start upward.

Yardstick for Royalty

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in conference with J. D. Ross, administrator of the Bonneville dam project on the Columbia river, established the "yardstick" rate by which the charges of privately owned utilities for electric current are to be judged.

The formula is to pay operating charges, amortize the federal investment in power generation in 40 years and provide a net return of 3 1/2 per cent. For the present the formula is to apply only to the Bonneville project, but Ross recommended that the same principle be followed with respect to power from the TVA and other government plants.

Miss Roche Quits Treasury

MISS JOSEPHINE ROCHE, first woman to be an assistant secretary of the treasury, has resigned that post and returns to the presidency of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company of Denver. The position will be left unfilled, for the administration hopes she will resume it later. She was appointed by President Roosevelt three years ago and has been in charge of the treasury's public health and other welfare activities.

Steiner to Retire

TWENTY years of public service is enough for Senator Frederick Steiner of Oregon, Republican. He has announced that he will not seek re-election next year, but will return to the practice of law. Steiner was the keynoter of the Republican national convention of 1936.

In this Babylonian comedy the "Mimus," doubtless the oldest known in the history of world literature, is the wise valet, or rather slave, of the isle master. To all contradictory plans and orders of his master, the slave replies with apparent naive approval, but in such manner that his own mental superiority over his irresponsible master is as evident to the present reader as it must have been to the ancient audience of the play.

Mussolini's Bold Talk

NEARLY a million Italians gathered in Rome to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on the Eternal City, and heard Mussolini declare that bolshevism must be driven out of Europe, meaning primarily that the rebels must win the Spanish civil war. Among the invited guests was a delegation from Nazi Germany, and for their benefit Il Duce asserted vigorously that Germany must obtain colonies, peacefully or otherwise.

"The motto of the sixteenth Fascist year is peace," shouted Mussolini. "There has been much use and abuse of this word by the bleating of the so-called reactionary democracies. But when it comes from our lips—the lips of those who have fought and who are ready to fight again—this word attains its real, solemn, original human definition. Because to obtain a durable, lasting peace it is necessary to eliminate bolshevism from Europe. It is necessary that some absurd clauses of the treaties of peace be revised. It is necessary that great peoples like the German people have again the place to which they are entitled, and which they once had, under the African sun."

The presence of the official Nazi delegation, led by Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the party, demonstrated "the ever closer political bond uniting the two people," Mussolini said.

Chauteemps Gives Warning

IF THE necessity arises, France is prepared and ready to employ force in defense of her vital interests. At the same time she offers peace to all nations "that will prove by their acts their desire to keep their engagements loyally."

Which brings us to the point of the reason for this discussion. It sets the stage for the question: If the government, national, state or local, is so punctilious about tax collections, the gathering in of people's money, why is it that government is not equally punctilious about the way the money is spent? This question is very much to the forefront now. It is a question of paramount importance because of a proposal for governmental reorganization which President Roosevelt insists must be considered by the forthcoming session of congress.

The federal government must be reorganized. The reason for this reorganization, according to the President's argument, is that the present structure is inefficient, wasteful, and generally ill equipped.

It is to be granted, I think, that much of the present federal government structure is inefficient, wasteful and unwieldy. Throughout the government one will find various agencies doing with the same responsibilities, doing things in opposite directions, winding and binding red tape around the citizens until some of them scarcely can get a hand free to mark their ballots. The whole thing needs a thorough going over, but as I see the picture, this view should be done with a going to making governmental machinery workable and rebuilding only where hastily conceived governmental agencies and functions have demonstrated that they are acting as a deterrent rather than an encouragement to the nation as a whole.

General's Progress

FRANCESCO FRANCO, having completed his conquest of Gijon and the rest of the loyalist territory in northwest Spain, began moving his insurgent forces eastward to the Aragon front, where his officers said the "decisive offensive of the war" would be begun. The loyalist government moved from Valencia to Barcelona.

Windsor Talks of Trip

THE duke of Windsor, speaking at a dinner of the Anglo-American Press association in Paris, said that he wanted to make it clear that "in any journey I have undertaken or may plan in the future, I do so as a completely independent observer without political considerations of any sort or kind and entirely on my own initiative."

He added that "I am a very happily married man, but my wife and I are neither content nor willing to lead a purely inactive life of leisure. We hope and feel that in due course the experience we gain from our travels will enable us, if given fair treatment, to make some contributions as private individuals to solving some of the vital problems that beset the world today."

Noted Editor Dead

DEATH came a shining mark when it removed George Horne Lorimer, retired editor of the Saturday Evening Post. He succumbed to pneumonia at his home in Wyncote, Pa. Honorary pallbearers at his funeral included former President Herbert Hoover and other men distinguished in public life. Mr. Lorimer became editor in chief of the Saturday Evening Post in 1899 and developed it from an obscure weekly to its high position in its field.

Ecuador Coup d'Etat

GEN. ALBERTO ENRIQUEZ, war minister of Ecuador, and officers of the army executed a coup d'etat which forced Provisional President Federico Paez to resign and leave the country. Enriquez at once assumed power as "supreme chief" of a cabinet composed largely of army officers. He decreed the establishment of a popular tribunal to deal with persons accused of tampering with public funds and announced "a national political purge." The people accepted the change of government quietly.

John Roosevelt to Wed

MRS. FRANCES HAVEN CLARK of Boston announced that her daughter, Anne Lindsay Clark, and John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, will be married in Nahant, Mass., next June, shortly after Mr. Roosevelt is graduated from Harvard.

Phosphate Rock in the World Estimated supplies of phosphate rock in the world are set at 18,000,000,000 tons by the Department of Agriculture. The United States possesses more than a third, Russia nearly a third and South Africa holds the greater part of the remaining supplies. Europe alone uses about 6,000,000 tons a year and Japan about 1,000,000 tons. Japan's supplies in the mandated islands she controls are set at not to exceed 41,000,000 tons.

Washington Digest
National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRACKINGTON
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington — In this so-called modern civilization of ours we are supposed to keep pace with progress, every one of us is confronted every day with some sort of government regulation or restriction. We are told what to do and what not to do and a good many politicians want to increase the number of things we are told to do.

Included in this modern civilization is a perfect network of spies who bear official titles of one kind or another, and probably the most insistent of these spies are the agents of government who look after taxes. All of which is necessary because tax payers undoubtedly will dodge a little if they can get away with it. The federal government has a good many thousands of them; state governments have them and county and city governments maintain a veritable army of employees whose job it is to check up on taxpayers. They do their job thoroughly. Make no mistake about that. If the taxpayer does not come through in accordance with the orders of the tax collectors, there is plenty of punishment.

Which brings us to the point of the reason for this discussion. It sets the stage for the question: If the government, national, state or local, is so punctilious about tax collections, the gathering in of people's money, why is it that government is not equally punctilious about the way the money is spent? This question is very much to the forefront now. It is a question of paramount importance because of a proposal for governmental reorganization which President Roosevelt insists must be considered by the forthcoming session of congress. The federal government must be reorganized. The reason for this reorganization, according to the President's argument, is that the present structure is inefficient, wasteful, and generally ill equipped.

It is to be granted, I think, that much of the present federal government structure is inefficient, wasteful and unwieldy. Throughout the government one will find various agencies doing with the same responsibilities, doing things in opposite directions, winding and binding red tape around the citizens until some of them scarcely can get a hand free to mark their ballots. The whole thing needs a thorough going over, but as I see the picture, this view should be done with a going to making governmental machinery workable and rebuilding only where hastily conceived governmental agencies and functions have demonstrated that they are acting as a deterrent rather than an encouragement to the nation as a whole.

Changes Proposed

I have no quarrel with Mr. Roosevelt concerning the need for changes in some parts of the governmental machine. I have a very definite objection, however, to some of the changes he proposes. I object strenuously, for example, to his move to destroy the present setup for protection against improper spending of the taxpayers' money. Specifically, I can see no possible excuse for Mr. Roosevelt's demand that the general accounting office be made subservient again to the whims of politicians by placing that agency under the control of a political appointee, namely, the secretary of the treasury. That is exactly what is proposed, and if the President's program is accepted by congress in its present form, the Congress of the United States, whether Mr. Roosevelt or his successor, again will be able to determine to a large measure how the taxpayers' money is spent.

That may appear to be an exaggerated statement. One may ask about the constitutional provision which requires that all appropriations shall be made by congress. This would seem to prevent executive mismanagement of the taxpayers' money. Such, however, unfortunately is not the case because we have had proof under President Roosevelt's administration what can be done when one political party has such complete control of the machinery of government. Congress appropriated billions. True, but had there been no general accounting office in existence, I doubt if anyone could have even guessed what would have happened to those vast sums of money.

It has been my privilege to watch operation of the federal government almost 20 years. Because of that experience, I think I am able to say that I am more conversant with the tricks to which politicians resort in getting money out of the treasury than persons who have not had an opportunity to study the government as it actually functions. And because of that experience, I am going to make the unequivocal statement that unless congress repels Mr. Roosevelt's plan to destroy the curb on trick and illegal spending, this nation and its citizens will pay for the folly in waste not now conceivable.

Drain on Treasury

Someone might arise and say that my statement is unjustified because there was not such a drain on the treasury before the general accounting office came into existence in 1921. My answer to that is that there was a tremendous drain on the treasury before 1921.

When the accounting, auditing of bills and checks, was done by the government. The difficulty is that, except for war time agencies, the cost of running the federal government before the general accounting office was established was only about one-seventh of what it is now. None of the federal agencies then in existence were as large then as they are now; none had as much authority nor as great a scope of operations, and the bulk of the new agencies have been born in legislation that is haphazard and undigested to say the least. The older agencies of government have come to workers who know how to handle their business. Regrettably, it must be said that most of the new agencies are controlled by, completely filled up with, men who are unfamiliar with the gigantic problems their jobs entail.

Public sentiment is a thing difficult to understand. For example, millions of people became wrought up when President Roosevelt brought to the membership of the United States by the addition of six judges of his own choosing. They rightfully fought back against the destruction of our judicial system. Fighting words characterized the criticism of Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers who sought to break down the system of checks and balances created in our government by the founding fathers, legislative and judicial divisions of governmental authority. So, I am wondering why thus far there has not been an outburst of vehement criticism of Mr. Roosevelt with reference to the proposed destruction of the check on spending. I am wondering, too, why people who complain so violently against spies in the form of tax investigators should not demand of their governments equal protection for the funds after they have been taken away from the taxpayers.

It is amazing how far the federal government and even the state and local governments go in telling a taxpayer what he must do. Every regulatory agency of the government prescribes how books of account shall be kept by business under its jurisdiction. Farmers will remember not too happily the difficulty they had in complying with the regulations laid down by the ill-famed agricultural adjustment administration. Merchants in small towns or large cities, employing one or a thousand workers, are learning what it is to keep their records and make reports for the social security board. Income tax payers long have been accustomed to having an internal revenue agent go over their records, their checks, their bank account, every business transaction they have made—they are used to it and don't kick much any more. But if this sort of thing is necessary for the protection of the revenues of the United States or of the state or county or city governments, why, I ask, is it not equally necessary that the records of the federal government be watched just as closely? Why is it not necessary for an independent agency of the government to enforce the orders of congress about the spending of this money?

There are two other agencies of the federal government which Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization plan eventually will destroy. Each has proved its worth. Each has a record of service to the nation and protection for individual citizens that cannot be ignored. I refer to the interstate commerce commission and the federal trade commission.

The ICC has supervised the railroads nearly half a century. It has compelled them to be fair toward some individuals in the railroad industry were inclined to cheat or take advantage of an unorganized segment of the population. Sometimes there has been criticism of the commission for placing the railroads in a strait-jacket, but the good that the ICC has done far outweighs any damages it has caused.

Yet, it is proposed in the President's reorganization plan to take away the independence which has characterized the history of the operations of this agency. The President wants to place over the commission a political appointee responsible only to the Chief Executive.

Through all of the years I have worked in Washington, there has been a never-ending effort on the part of politicians to get their hands on the agency that controls the railroads. It takes no stretch of the imagination to see what would happen if the politicians were able to succeed in this direction. I am quite convinced that if the ICC is subordinated to the political philosophy of one of us who uses the railroads as a paying toll. The toll will not go to the railroads but to the politicians.

With respect to the federal trade commission the same can be said. Like the ICC, the trade commission is quasi judicial. It is an independent agency. Times unnumbered, it has stepped on crooked business and has forced business into the stripe to play the game within the regulations. On occasion, I have criticized specific actions by the commission as lacking in judicial consideration. By and large, however, I think no one can say unqualifiedly that the federal trade commission has failed to do its job in the interest of individual citizens.

When the accounting, auditing of bills and checks, was done by the government. The difficulty is that, except for war time agencies, the cost of running the federal government before the general accounting office was established was only about one-seventh of what it is now. None of the federal agencies then in existence were as large then as they are now; none had as much authority nor as great a scope of operations, and the bulk of the new agencies have been born in legislation that is haphazard and undigested to say the least. The older agencies of government have come to workers who know how to handle their business. Regrettably, it must be said that most of the new agencies are controlled by, completely filled up with, men who are unfamiliar with the gigantic problems their jobs entail.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Young James Delmage Ross rode a bicycle from Chatham, Ont., to New York city to get a job as a chemist. He got the job, but noted that everybody in the factory did nothing but work pestles. Pestling seemed piffing, so he pedaling back to Chatham and kept on going. He's been around a lot and now, at sixty-four, the President hands him a job which no mere pestler or peddler could handle—the biggest dam in the world. He will resign from his S. E. C. post to become administrator of the huge power plant.

Pestling Is Piffing to Young Ross

Mr. Ross was for 20 years head of the municipal power development of Seattle. His selection for Bonneville is taken as an administration declaration that it is going all the way through on its power plans. He has not only been a vigorous champion of public development, but he has fought for public distribution. Here, he says, is the kernel of the whole business. He says private companies could manufacture power at possibly a lower cost than could the government, and makes his fight on distribution costs. He stakes out big regional power hookups through the Northwest, existing and planned. His policies are aggressive and far-reaching and his appointment would seem to sharpen the disagreement between the President and the power companies.

He has taken and administered a lot of punishment. Several years ago, a newly elected Seattle mayor tossed him out of his power plant job. They recalled the mayor and named a mountain after Mr. Ross, a rocky peak overhanging the Skagit river, which Mr. Ross wants to rope and hog-tie for the good of all concerned, as he sees it.

Then his partisans, just to show that they were with him, spotted a mountain side, on the Cascades, for a Gutzon Borglum has relief, like the sculptures of Presidents in South Dakota. The project is still being worked up. His was one of those "roll your own" educations. After his bicycle trip to New York, he headed for the Alaska gold fields in 1898, bicycling to the fade-out of the road, tramping up through Edmonton, making his own boat for the rest of the trip.

Later, in Seattle, he helped design the first municipal power plant and stayed on the job 32 years. He loves kilowatts and amuses himself in his rambling old house by keeping a copper ball in the air with no visible support and by trying eggs in an electrified pan held in his hand. On his living room table is a book on the natural sciences, published in 1832. He says it started him on his career and he keeps on reading it.

He was consulting engineer for the New York power authority when Franklin D. Roosevelt was governor; also consultant for the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. He went to Washington as consultant for PWA power development and later was appointed a member of the S. E. C.

As he caroms around mountain cliffs, a violet by the roadside brings a yell to the chauffeur and a screech of brakes. He just has to get out and look at it. He is childless, but he and Mrs. Ross have reared five children.

MRS. ANNIE NATHAN MEYER, founder of Barnard college, is against "Scabs." "I feel it would be better," she says, "if called 'Scabs' women, instead of scabbing for lower wages, would seek out new fields in which there would be no competition with the men."

Mrs. Meyer dislikes being called a feminist, but, in her early youth, she dropped her subscription to Godey's Ladies' Book and urged women to do something on their own account. Women as people have been her absorbing life interest.

She was an anti-suffragist, but now qualifies her opposition. She thinks women ought to be honest and admit that, when they take a job, they are out for a husband. And that, she thinks, is as it should be. She has written 15 plays, 8 of which were produced, some of them on Broadway.

Scenes of Shakespeare If you read "The Merchant of Venice" in that city, you should read "Hamlet" at Elsinore in Denmark, "Macbeth" at Glamis in Scotland, "Romeo and Juliet" at Verona, Italy, and in Windsor forest, England, the play of the "Merry Wives."

Habits of Chiggers Chiggers do not actually burrow into the skin. They attach themselves to the skin and suck blood. Although of minute size, the chigger can inject a large quantity of poisonous material into its host and this causes the persistent itching.

Bay and Bow Window Bay window denotes any window of any shape that juts outward, forming a niche in the room itself. A bow window forms a similar niche, but is curved in a semicircle.

INFANTS' UTOPIA

Youngsters Play at Will While Students Peek

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

IF LITTLE Johnny Jones next door makes up his mind that your youngster's sled is a prettier red and therefore more desirable than his own, and proceeds to appropriate it through the simple expedient of biffing your youngster in the eye and taking it away from him, don't tell your boy to turn the other eye and regard his neighbor only with humility. Tell him to biff right back—maybe twice, just to emphasize his point.

If your daughter insists on playing with her dolls so long that she is late for school, let her be late; she'll soon find out she can't get away with it.

And if you don't agree with these suggestions, you're probably not the only one. Nevertheless, they are characteristic of the New Deal in child psychology which is being given exhaustive "laboratory tests" for the first time in America at Fordham university, New York city's seat of higher education in the Bronx.

Frisch Had the Idea.

Fordham, distinguished as the alma mater of Frankie Frisch, is not accustomed to training her young hopefuls in unorthodox ways. Frankie, who used to play a whale of a lot of second base before aging legs forced him to the sidelines as manager of the garrulous Gas House Gang representing St. Louis in the National league, once gave a reaction to language growth, physical development, intellectual development, emotional reactions and socialization.

On the third floor at Keating hall, Fordham's new graduate school building, is a specially constructed nursery. Every day at nine the children arrive and every day at noon they are taken home. So far as the children ever suspect, they are being brought simply to a pleasant nursery where there are lots of interesting playthings, a place to rest and no one to spoil their fun.

How to Stop "Gimmies."

But they are not so isolated as they think. On four-foot-high stools behind a one-way screen, students of child psychology watch their actions, unobserved.

The onlookers will be able thus to learn first hand why babies cry; why they shouldn't be nagged to eat their food; why they should be encouraged to take off their own hats, coats and rubbers; why they should not be rushed through their meals; why they should be encouraged to return a blow struck intentionally; why they should not be rushed into walking; why parents should not be over-anxious about the early expressions in a child's talk; how to stop a five-year-old youngster with the "gimmies" (one who says "gimme this" and "gimme that").

To put it briefly, the observers may learn how to be better mothers and fathers.

"After all," says Mrs. Schloemer, who interprets the Buhler theory in the nursery, "you have to live with your children 25 years, and a few common sense applications in bringing up a youngster might make the difference between a life of happiness and one of regret." This does not mean a few "common sense applications" on the seat of the pants, either, she says, and she has personally given individual training to 500 children.

Parents Are Impatient.

"Don't hurry your youngster," says Mrs. Schloemer. "Too many mothers rush their children through breakfast, rush them off to school and pepper them with a barrage of 'don't's' only an adult could remember. Let your child be late to school once in a while, but show him calmly that he did the wrong thing. The average parent has not enough patience. Any normal child wants to do the right thing and will, if he is given proper directional stability. Rushing children through breakfast results in nervous indigestion, and forcing them to eat cultivates it. I have seen children two to three years old vomit when

These youngsters in the Fordham experiment are all normal, physically and psychologically.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay Heating Expert

Building Furnace Fire Is Easy Operation When You Follow Few Simple Rules

IT'S really no trick to build a good furnace fire quickly and easily.

Leave a layer of ashes about two inches deep spread on the grates. Spread about two inches of coal over this layer of ashes. Over the coal, place a generous amount of kindling—newspapers and light, dry wood.

The turn damper in the smoke pipe and the ashpit damper should be open wide. If the ashpit damper on your furnace is in back, open it and also the ashpit door in front. This assures maximum draft and quick ignition.

When the kindling is burning well, add fresh coal gradually. In this way you get a deep fire in little time—the kindling burning the coal beneath it, and the fire, in turn, igniting the coal above it. From time to time, add additional fuel until you have a solid, deep fire. When this is done, check your dampers and close the ashpit door.

Should the kindling while igniting smoke a bit through the furnace door crevices, it is due to the chimney being cold and not providing enough draft to carry off the smoke. This is easily overcome by wadding a bit of newspaper, lighting it, and inserting it into the check damper. This heats the air, creating a draft in the flue pipe and chimney and carries the smoke away.

'Tis Said Arithmetic

Is a Science of Truth

"Figures can't lie," said the professor earnestly. "For instance, if one can build a house in twelve days, twelve men can build it in one."

"Yes," interrupted a quick-brained student. "Then 288 will build it in one hour, 17,280 in one minute, and 1,036,800 in one second. And I don't believe they could lay one brick in that time."

While the professor was still gapping, the smart one went on: "Again, if one ship can cross the Atlantic in six days, six ships can cross it in one day. I don't believe that either; so where's the truth in arithmetic?"

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WORK OF 1937 WISCONSIN LEGISLATURE

By Henry O. Schowalter, Assemblyman, Washington County

The regular and special sessions of the 1937 Wisconsin Legislature have adjourned. The Kewaskum Statesman has gratified to me the opportunity to bring to the citizens of Washington county in a series of articles, a summary of the many measures enacted into law or considered. To the Kewaskum Statesman I wish to express my appreciation for giving me the privilege of making this report of my stewardship as your assemblyman.

—Henry O. Schowalter

I. INTRODUCTION

On the 14th of January the 1937 legislative session of the Wisconsin legislature convened at Madison. The session adjourned sine die on July 2nd. In spite of the fact that the session lasted 171 days it was the third shortest session in the last 25 years.

One thousand four hundred and four bills were introduced in both houses. Of these 826 were introduced in the assembly and 478 in the senate. Nearly one-third of the measures, 432, were approved by both houses of the legislature, signed by the governor, and published in the official state paper and are now part of the laws of our state. The total number of enactments is the lowest total in any regular session since 1899.

It is interesting to note that in no other session did so many bills fail to get final consideration. Five hundred and twenty-five measures were undisposed of when the final gavel fell on July 2nd.

The special session was called by the governor on the 15th of September and adjourned on the 16th of October. The only subjects considered were those included in the call of the governor and 15 measures were enacted into law.

II. CONSERVATION

One of the most far reaching fish and game measures to come before the legislature was the question of what could be done to revive the rapidly declining Great Lakes fishing industry. Commercial fishing was once one of Wisconsin's leading industries, but in recent years has lost much of its volume.

In order to maintain a large-sized annual catch the net meshes have gradually become smaller and smaller. The result is that many fish are caught before they have had a chance to reproduce.

While Wisconsin had some regulatory legislation on the statute books, and while a re-stocking program had been started, nevertheless the program was not co-ordinated. In many respects Wisconsin's regulations were the lowest standards on the Great Lakes. As to what was the proper procedure commercial fishermen were in sharp disagreement.

It was finally proposed that the conservation commission be given the same flexible regulatory powers over outlying waters as were conferred on the commission by the 1933 legislature over inland waters, relative to hunting and fishing. The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries after 17 years of experience on the Great Lakes recommended such a set-up. This bill, 778-A, passed and now is Chapter 366, Laws of 1937.

Briefly it provides for action by the conservation commission on its own motion or a petition of citizens; public hearings in the areas of the state affected; any order made by the commission being subject to appeal to the courts; and advisory committees of commercial fishermen to help work out their own problems.

It is my belief, that in putting the regulation of this great natural resource in the hands of a fact-finding, investigating body, the commercial fishing industry will in the coming years show improvement.

Of interest to the hunter, fisherman, and trapper is Chapter 164, Laws of 1937. It provides for a voluntary sportsman's license at a minimum fee of five dollars. The license will be issued to any resident over 15 who is a citizen. Such license grants all privileges for resident hunting (including deer tag), fishing and trapping. Two dollars of each fee will be set aside in a fund for the acquisition of public hunting and fishing grounds.

Among the more important fish and game measures which failed of passage were: 179-A proposing to strip the conservation commission of its powers to regulate the open and closed seasons, bag limits, size limits, etc., and other conditions governing the taking of fish or game; 378-A intending to increase the resident hunting license fee but providing such increase in part be used for a county game fund; and 272-S proposing to license coin-operating devices, one-half of the proceeds to be used for the acquisition of public hunting and fishing grounds. (Continued in our next issue)

FARM AND HOME LINES

Cancer and lung begins in a single spot and in that spot there is always first something that is not cancer. Failure to arrange early treatment is responsible for most deaths from cancer.

McCormick-Deering Spreader Makes Manure More Valuable

Fresh manure does more to build up soil fertility than manure that has stood in a pile for a long time. A McCormick-Deering All-Steel Spreader makes the easy way to get manure onto the land frequently, before it loses valuable soil-building properties. The McCormick-Deering is built strong in every detail. The box is made of heavy-gauge galvanized steel containing copper. It is resistant and non-warping. Capacity is 60 to 70 bushels. It is built low to the ground to make loading easy. Eight roller bearings, steel sides at the rear, five spreading speeds, pressure lubrication, the upper saw-tooth non-wrapping beater, the lower spike-tooth beater, and the wide-spread spiral are other quality features that make the McCormick-Deering the best buy in a manure spreader. Come in and look it over.

—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bath, the Misses Helen and Mary Rammel and Mrs. Don Harbeck called on Mrs. Catherine Harter and Mrs. Mary Harter at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, last Friday evening. Mrs. Catherine Harter, who recently suffered a serious hip fracture, is resting quite comfortably at present, although the hip has as yet not been set and indications are that Mrs. Harter will be confined for quite some time.

TWENTY-FIVE FROM HERE ATTEND FOOTBALL GAME

Principal Clifford Rose and Coach Lyle Gibson of the Kewaskum High school took 23 boys, mostly athletes of the school, to Madison last Saturday to witness the Wisconsin-Northwestern Big Ten football game at Camp Randall stadium.
Before the game the boys took in the campus sights. Mr. Gibson secured the tickets and divided them between the boys, each boy paying 25c for them. The admission really was free to the boys but the price of 25c was asked by the university ticket sales manager to cover the government tax Kilian Honeck, Jr. and Harry Koch, along with Messrs. Rose and Gibson, obliged by driving the boys.
The 25 who attended were: Mr. Rose, Mr. Gibson, Kilian Honeck, Jr., Walter Werner, and the following high school athletes: Louis Bath, Jr., Harold Bartel, Harry Koch, Francis Roden, Roland Koepke, Vernon Liermann, Byron Bunkelmann, Gordon Fellenz, Harold Hafemann, Frederick Buss, Marlin Dreher, Harold Prost, Harold Bunkelmann, Robert Smith, Jerome Hanrahan, James Strupp, Donald Sell, Ralph Krautkramer, and Roger Bilgo.

Ask Me Another A General Quiz

1. What is the origin of the acre?
2. What is the difference between a Zeppelin and a dirigible?
3. What queen of a foreign country was married to an American citizen?
4. What is the length of the Great Wall of China?
5. What is the shortest verse in the Bible?
6. Have ships ever sailed through a northwest passage above Canada?
7. How large a navy has the Irish Free State?
8. Who is the best-known woman inventor?
9. Why does the moon seem to change its size?
10. Were eggs used in painting some of the famous miniatures?

Answers

1. Originally it was the area a yoke of oxen could plow in a day.
2. A dirigible is any aircraft lifted by gas which may be guided and propelled by mechanical means. A Zeppelin is a rigid dirigible of the type invented by Count von Zeppelin.
3. Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii married John O. Dominis, a native of Boston.
4. The length of the Great Wall of China, including all its spurs and loops, is estimated to be 2,500 miles.
5. "Jesus wept," John 11:35.
6. Two ships recently met in Bellot strait, one from the east and one from the west, thus effecting intercommunication, which has been the object of navigators for four hundred years.
7. It has no navy. The name of this country has lately been changed by act of parliament to Eire, pronounced Air uh.
8. Miss Lulu Louise Henry of North Carolina is the most prolific inventor, with 52 patents registered.
9. The moon appears larger near the horizon because the atmosphere has magnifying properties and the blanket of atmosphere surrounding the earth is limited in height but unlimited as we gaze along its surface. When we look at the moon near the horizon we are gazing through more atmosphere and it seems larger.
10. Holbein is said to have painted his inimitable miniature portraits with egg yolk or egg white or both. Candy and honey were also used by some of the famous painters.

THE REASON HEADACHES ARE RELIEVED SO FAST

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST
Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.
By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.
This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.
At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is more severe, another dose is necessary later, according to directions.
If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.
The price now is only 15¢ for twelve tablets or two full dozen for 25 cents—virtually, only a cent apiece.

Virtually 1 cent a tablet

Bedtime Story for Children

WHY JUMPER THE HARE WAS NOT AFRAID

THE most surprising thing about the meeting of Buster Bear with the other little people of the Green Forest was that he was introduced by Jumper the Hare. Now you know, Jumper the Hare is very, very timid. Everybody knows that. He is so timid that some people say he is afraid of his own shadow. Of course, this isn't true, but it is true that he is very, very timid. So no one could understand how it happened that he dared to introduce Buster Bear. In fact, he didn't seem any more afraid of Buster than were Jimmy Skunk and Prickly Porky the Porcupine. But everyone knows why they are not afraid; Jimmy has a little bag of scent and Prickly Porky has a thousand little spears to make other people, even those a great deal bigger than they are, respect them.

"Why," said he, "Buster Bear comes from the Great Woods, where I came from."

But Jumper the Hare has nothing of the kind. He has nothing with which to win respect save his long legs, and as he uses those to run away with, of course, he never wins respect with them, for you know people who run away are seldom respected. So it was that when Jumper appeared not in the least afraid of Buster Bear and introduced him as a friend, the other little people, most of whom were frightened almost to death, couldn't understand it at all. Peter Rabbit wasn't there at the time, but, of course he heard of it, and it puzzled him more than it did anyone else. He is timid himself, is Peter Rabbit, but he isn't as timid as his big cousin Jumper. And yet here was he himself having little cold chills of fright at the very thought of those great claws of Buster Bear, while Jumper was not afraid at all. It was too much for Peter, and the first chance he got he asked Jumper about it.

Jumper smiled. "Why," said he, "Buster Bear comes from the Great Woods where I came from, and I know all about him and he knows all about me. So we are friends."

Peter scratched his head thoughtfully. Somehow he didn't understand any better than before. "Aren't you afraid of those great big, cruel claws?" he asked.

Jumper shook his head. "No,"

said he. "Why should I be afraid of them?"
"Because they can tear you all to pieces!" yelled Peter promptly.
"But they can't!" cried Jumper happily. That is just what they can't do, and that is why I am not afraid!"
"I don't see why they can't," persisted Peter.
"Because they can't catch me!" Jumper made a long jump, a very long jump, twice as long a jump as Peter could make, as if to show why those cruel claws could not catch him. Peter began to see what Jumper the Hare meant.

"You mean you are not afraid of Buster Bear because you think Buster cannot catch you; is that it?" asked Peter.
Jumper nodded his head so fast that he made his long ears flop. "That's just it!" said he. "Buster Bear can't catch me. I know it and he knows it, and so he doesn't waste any time trying. Instead we are very good friends. The only things to be afraid of in this world are things you know may hurt you, no matter how sharp you watch out. Now, I am afraid of Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote because they are so sly and swift that I am never sure that I am safe from them. But Buster Bear is not swift enough or sly enough to make me afraid. When you have known Buster as long as I have you will know that he isn't half so terrible as he looks, and that he really can be very nice and no end of fun. I'm not afraid of Buster because I've learned how to keep out of his way, and when you've learned the same thing you won't be afraid either."

Peter looked as if he would like to believe it, but found it a little more than he could quite credit.

CHOCOLATE EVER POPULAR FLAVOR

Be Sure It Blends Properly With Other Ingredients.

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE Spaniards, when they conquered Mexico, took back to Spain gold and other treasures. Nothing, however, was appreciated so much by the Spanish people as a whole, as the chocolate, which soon became the national drink, as it had been and still is in Mexico. This was accomplished in spite of the fact that church officials considered it a wicked luxury, especially when it became the custom to have it brought during long services to church. Dr. Doran in his "Table Traits" announces, "A cup of good chocolate may indeed afford the drinker strength and patience to undergo a bad sermon."

"To make really good chocolate," says Brillat-Savarin, "one must solve a number of very subtle equations. The roasting of the cocoa bean is an operation so delicate as to require a tact bordering on inspiration." The roasting of the beans is very important whether they are to be used for manufacture of cake, chocolate or cocoa, as fine flavor is developed by the roasting process just as it is by roasting coffee.

In this country cocoa is used for the preparation of beverages more often than is chocolate. In the preparation of cocoa powder, a large part of the cocoa butter is removed. The quality of the cocoa bean and the amount of cocoa butter extracted as well as the roasting are all important.

When chocolate is used care must be taken that it is prepared in such a way that it will blend smoothly with the other ingredients of the recipe. For cake and cookies it may be melted over hot—not boiling—water. When it is used with hot milk for pudding or for beverages it may be cut into smaller pieces and melted in the milk. Instead, it may be cooked with a small amount of cold water over direct heat until the mixture is smooth and thick. A cake of chocolate has usually been marked off in squares which weigh one ounce. Recently one of the oldest manufacturers has marked it into half ounce pieces, which allows us to measure even more accurately than before. In order to have a smooth beverage when cocoa is used cold water should be added and stirred with the powder over the direct heat until the mixture is smooth and thick after which it may be boiled a moment before the cold milk is added. This method allows us to make cocoa with the use of only one utensil. As soon as the milk begins to steam the mixture should be beaten until foamy with a heavy beater in order to prevent the scum's forming.

Whipped cream is usually served with both chocolate and cocoa. Instead a marshmallow may be put into each cup before the beverage is poured. This garnish is particularly favored by the children.

Chocolate Creole Cake.
2 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 1/4 cups brown sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sift flour with soda and salt. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add chocolate and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk. Add flavoring. Bake in two greased ten-inch layer pans or three nine-inch layer pans in a moderate oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) thirty minutes.

Chocolate Delicacy.
1/2 cup butter
3/4 cup powdered sugar
3 eggs
2 squares chocolate, melted
1/4 cup dry sifted bread crumbs
Cream the butter with the sugar, add the egg yolks, slightly beaten; the melted chocolate and bread crumbs. Beat the egg whites and fold into the mixture. Grease two shallow cake pans and pour one-third of the batter into each, reserving the rest for the filling. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) twenty minutes. Remove the pans and put together with the reserved filling. Serve garnished with whipped cream.

The United States Constitution
The United States Constitution is the basis of government in this country and is the highest and most permanent law. It was adopted September 17, 1787, by the federal convention and ratified the following year. It may be amended by a vote of two-thirds in congress, followed by the approval of three-quarters of the state legislatures or state conventions. It specifies how congress and the President are elected, the powers and duties of President, congress and the judiciary and the relation between state and federal governments.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

By Roger B. Whitman

SMALL COAL SIZES

BECAUSE of the demand, stove size coal sells at a higher price than nut coal and pea coal, which are smaller. There is, of course, a desire to use these smaller sizes because of economy. Under certain conditions this is quite possible, although if the conditions are not met, coal gas is produced. This may result in puffs and even small explosions in the fire-box, or the passing of the coal gas through the house.

With coal of stove size and larger, the spaces between the lumps permit the free passage of air, and coal gas is burned off as fast as it is produced. The flickering blue flame above a bed of fresh coal is burning coal gas.

As small coal sizes pack more closely, air cannot pass through so freely, and the gas, which cannot burn without air, may collect in the fire-box. Later, with a spark, there may be a puff that will blow open the fire-door.

A strong chimney draft may pull air through a bed of packed coal, but if there are thin places, air will rush through them with the effect of a blacksmith's forge. This is a cause of clinking. Forced draft is sometimes used through an electric blower that forces air into the ash-pit. With this there is also the possibility of clinking. But there is also a risk of coal gas trouble. If the fire has been stoked some little time before the blower is turned on, the space above the coal bed becomes filled with coal gas; then, with the starting up of the blower, sparks passing through will ignite the gas, and there may be an explosion. A blower is safe only with skilful stoking and with watchfulness.

When small sizes are used, stoking should be by what is called the "hot spot" method. The first step in stoking is to rake the glowing coals into a sloping bank with the top at the level of the firing door. This leaves a cavity at the back, which is filled with new coal. Gas that is produced is then ignited by the "hot spot."

While there is economy in buying coal of small size, there may not be economy in using it. Unless a furnace is adapted to it, much of the small coal will drop through the grates unburned. Besides that, much more attention is required in maintaining a good fire.

with a baby, or an old lady with a cane, always comes along and looks wistfully at our pile of belongings. And we're finished. By the end of the journey we're holding the baby or the cane.

So maybe it's sour grapes. But we've come to the conclusion that one seat is all a person with one ticket should try to fill. And the people who spread themselves out so comfortably over two should be firmly handled. If by scornful look, or gentle questioning we can't make them budge, we intend to sit right down on their feet, or their hats. That ought to teach them.

There May Be Many Reasons for Making Quilted Chair Pads.

IF ALL the reasons for quilted chair pads were lined up in order of their importance the most intangible reason of all might head the list. Yes, it is quite likely that any decorator, amateur or professional would place atmosphere at the top. But then it is also possible that first rating might be given to the reason that the pressure of slats across the backs of chairs is softened by quilted pads. Then, though it might not be mentioned, it is a known fact that worn out cane seats are sometimes replaced with inexpensive composition seats which may be disguised by gay quilted pads.

Chintz, calico or gingham chair pads are in fact one of the simplest and most inexpensive ways of adding color and charm as well as comfort to a room. Such pads are often used on the backs of chairs and not on the seats; and especially for side chairs, the seat pads used without any back covering. In making such small things as these it is quite easy to do the quilting on the machine. Or, if you wish to take the other point of view about it, the work of quilting them by hand would not consume an unreasonable amount of time. There is no doubt that handwork has a certain quaintness that machine work lacks.

The pads shown here are made with one layer of sheet wadding between the two layers of the chintz. The edge bindings and ties are made of bias tape. Cut the three layers of the pad material

Oliver was sitting up now. "I oughtn't to have come, I tell you. Bill and I've been thrown out of the hotel, we haven't been able to pay our room rent for three weeks and we're both down to carfare and we've been trying to find some body who'd tie us over, just a loan, things are bound to break better for us soon, and—there it is. Forget it, Rachel. I'll be all right in a minute or two."

"But you said you were hungry, Oliver, that you hadn't eaten for a long time."

"Did I say that? I'm a fool! When did I say it?"

"Just before you fainted. Is it true, are you hungry?"

"Not any hungrier than usual. I had coffee this morning, and a roll, the maid on our floor sneaked them off somebody else's tray. She's a good old scout."

Rachel looked about her distractedly. "There's almost nothing in the house to eat, but I can phone to that little restaurant across the street and get them to send something."

"No, don't think of it. I'm all right. If I could have a little more hot milk—"

"Of course." She hurried again to the kitchen, heated more milk, made a couple of slices of toast.

"Now," she said, when she came back, "I want you to eat all of this, it's not much. And, Oliver, look here, I've felt all along that I owed you something—a commission—for taking me to Vinco and getting me started there and now's certainly the time for me to pay it, and I'm going to."

"You don't owe me anything. I won't take anything from you."

"Don't be ridiculous. I do owe you something. And I'm going to pay it." She went into her bedroom and took out all of the money in her bag except a little silver.

"Now," she said, coming back and folding the bills flat, "you're to take this and find Bill and get yourself a room and some breakfast in the morning—"

Oliver had expertly flipped the corners of the bills. "There's $50 here! You don't owe me anything. I can't possibly take this. You know I can't." But he made no move to return it.

"I feel I owe it to you," said Rachel, "and anyway you need it. I wouldn't have it on my conscience to send you out of here broke and nowhere to go. And as for saying you can't take that little bit of money from me, that's rot. Why can't you?"

Oliver still held the bills in his hand. He looked at her miserably almost with tears. "You're so kind!" he said. "You're so lovely, Rachel. And I'm nothing at all. But I love you. That's why I can't take any money from you."

Before she could answer he went on, quickly: "Don't say anything, there's nothing you can say. I'm ashamed to be such a louse, I'm ashamed that I came here and—"

and made you all this trouble. I'm going now. You'll forgive me, won't you, beautiful, dear Rachel?" He rose unsteadily to his feet and picked up his hat.

"I'll forgive you if you take the money," said Rachel, shaken and distressed. "She caught the bills from his hand, pushed them into his pocket. "There, forget about it, go along and find Bill, unless—" really strong enough to go out alone, Oliver? Do you know where Bill is?"

He flung his arms around her and held her against him, kissing her cheek and forehead and eyes. "I'll never forget this as long as I live," he whispered. "There's nobody in the world but you who would be so wonderful!"

And as swiftly as he had embraced her he released her and went to the door and was gone.

Rachel stood perfectly still listening to his step on the stairs. Even to her confusion it occurred to her that he was oddly vigorous for a man who had just come out of a hunger faint. He had made it, seemed a quick recovery. Almost too quick. And hadn't there been something histrionic in the whole episode?

CHAPTER VII

She went to the morning conference in a mood of reckless determination, for she was still angry and disturbed about the scene with Oliver.

She came into Vinco's agency before the hour, but Curt Elton was already there and the two of them went together to the chromium, plate-glass and black lacquer arrangement which was Vinco's private office and the pride of his life.

"You still want to do this?" Curt asked, as they knocked.

She nodded. She didn't dare let him see how much she wanted it.

Terriss had not come but Vinco was waiting and gloomy.

"I don't know why Terriss is so late," he said, looking anxiously at a ghostly clock which was nothing but a glass face and black enamel hands and numerals, with no visible works.

"It's only two minutes past nine-thirty," said Curt; "yes, and there he is."

The door was the most commonplace man Rachel had ever seen, there was nothing about him that could be remembered. Not until later did she realize that complete inconspicuousness is the best disguise in the world.

Curt moved over beside her as they all sat down again. "I suppose you know something about this matter," he said.

"Terriss said to Rachel, 'but I'll explain more fully. My client is a wealthy business man. His wife is almost twenty years younger than himself and I gather he has always relieved her of responsibility, shielded her from everything, hard and disagreeable. They have, by the way, one son, a boy about seventeen, his parents think him brilliant and promising, but he's not very strong so they've never sent him away to school, he's had tutors and gone to private schools."

"There has been petty thieving going on in my client's apartment for some months; he has checked up everyone and everything as far as he can without saying anything to his wife, he doesn't want to alarm her or make her nervous. He has had, on one pretext or other, new and very intricate locks put on all the outside doors, thinking that some of the apartment house servants may have a passkey. He's had burglar alarms installed so that outside entry is practically impossible. He has had the private lives of his servants looked into and found nothing suspicious. He's up against it. At my suggestion he's finally consented to let me plant an operator in the household."

"And why don't you use one of our regular employees instead of breaking in on me like this?" grumbled Vinco.

"My client has seen my regular employees and refused to have any of them."

"He might refuse me then," said Rachel. She wondered why Cayne had not once been mentioned by name.

"May I ask you a few questions, Miss Vincent?"

"Of course."

"I'll explain first about my client's servants. There's a couple, the woman's the cook and the man's the butler, and he also valets for my client, they've been there a long time, my client has perfect trust in them. Then there's a chauffeur who lives outside, he's been there a long time, too. The lady, my client's wife, has never had a personal maid, I mean regular, there's been a sort of seamstress and maid coming in several times a week. But now this woman's taken a full-time place somewhere and my client thought it would be possible to put a woman in the house to look over the situation and trace this thieving and not have his wife disturbed by knowing about it."

Mr. Terriss Listened With Satisfaction.

"But I thought they wanted a housemaid or waitress—I don't believe—I don't know if I could do a personal maid's work!" exclaimed Rachel. "It would mean hairdressing and manures—and probably massage."

"I thought of that and asked my client, but he says his wife goes regularly to one of the big beauty establishments and he knows she wouldn't change, she enjoys the place and is used to it. But you'd have to keep her clothes in order and wait on her and be generally useful, maybe help out the butler and cook, answer the phone, perhaps look after the boy now and then, that would give you the run of the house and a way to get close to everybody in it."

"I could keep her clothes in order and I can sew," said Rachel doubtfully.

"I think all this is nonsense. Miss Vincent isn't the type, you can see yourself, Terriss, she's too good-looking and too well educated, your client's wife would smell a rat," objected Vinco.

"Miss Vincent, please take off your hat," said Terriss. He took his spectacles from his pocket. "Smooth your hair back, wipe off your lipstick and put on my glasses. Now, in a uniform and cap you'd be just a nice healthy-looking girl, with your eyes obscured. You'd have to leave the enamel off your nails. I'd never have gone this far if I hadn't seen that she'd look all right. As for education, that doesn't matter, she won't have to pull any Latin or Greek."

"I don't know any," said Rachel. "The thing now is to sell Miss Vincent to my client. He's difficult in some ways, but a very fine man, Miss Vincent. I've gone over your record here, Miss Vincent, I know that your father's dead, your mother's abroad for the winter and you're living with Miss Matthews, who's employed by an advertising agency. Can you direct me to some body for you to me and to my vouch? Someone who's known you from childhood and knows your family?"

Rachel hesitated. "It's a little difficult," she said. "There's Mr. Hobart Grable, my mother's lawyer, but he probably wouldn't approve my doing this and he might alarm my mother."

Mr. Terriss listened with satisfaction. "If Hobart Grable's your mother's lawyer you've already vouched for yourself, Miss Vincent. I know Mr. Grable."

Vinco broke in fustily: "Let's get down to cases, let's get down to cases. When will Miss Vincent see your client, when will she know whether or not he likes her? I want to get her appointments arranged, I want—"

"And another thing, Louis," said Curt Elton, "this may be a very short job for Miss Vincent. I think she ought to be sure you're going to take her back on your staff."

Terriss was suave and quick. "I don't consider that Miss Vincent has ever left Mr. Vinco's staff, this work is in the nature of a leave of absence and I can't begin to tell you, Vinco, how greatly I appreciate your finding Miss Vincent for me. I felt when I called you up you were the one man in New York who could help me."

Under this blandishment Vinco beamed. "Of course Miss Vincent's not leaving me permanently, I wouldn't think of letting her do that, what do you think I am?"

"I think you're awfully good," said Rachel, gratefully. "Nothing's settled anyway, Mr. Terriss' client may not like me."

"There you are," said Vinco. "Now everything's fixed except this cranky client of yours and the sooner you see him the better."

"We'll go over to his office right now if it suits you, Miss Vincent."

"If it suits Mr. Vinco to let me go, I'll go," said Rachel.

"Go along, go along, and let me know what happens."

The meeting broke up at this and Curt turned to Rachel. "You took just the right line with both of them. I'm going to wait here to find out what happens."

On the way with Terriss, Rachel felt the reality of her adventure and began to wonder how much Peter Cayne knew, whether or not his wife had told him about her first child and if he knew her name.

"There's one thing I'd like to ask," said Rachel. "Your client—can you suggest any way for me to make the right impression on him?"

"Be yourself and natural, that's all. Anything phony's bound to seem phony, that's my motto. I noticed you didn't talk much there at Vinco's which is all to the good. Let the other people do the talking, only listen to what they say."

They reached a high business building and took the elevator to the twentieth floor and Rachel saw that Terriss was watching her closely. "Are you nervous?" he asked, as they walked down the long hall.

"Of course," she said. "It's too exciting for words. I can't believe I'm actually doing this."

"You're all right," he said. "Here we are."

He opened a door marked "Planters' Engineering Co." and gave his name to the boy in the anteroom and a few moments later they were following this boy down an inner hall way to a door at the end. A loud impatient voice told them to come in and as they entered Rachel saw, rising from behind a great flat desk, an impressive man with a crest of white hair, his manner authority and decision personified.

"So this is the young lady," he said. Then disregarding Terriss and looking at Rachel, "What is your name, please?"

Terriss did not permit himself to be disregarded. "This is Miss Vincent, Mr. Cayne."

This was the crucial moment and Rachel held herself rigid with fear, but Mr. Cayne gave no sign of any recognition of the name. Nevertheless, Rachel could not speak, but she managed to bow naturally.

"Sit down," he ordered. "Sit down, Terriss, I suppose," turning to Rachel, "you know what I'm looking for?"

Now she must speak. She pulled herself together. "Mr. Terriss has told me something about it. Not in detail."

"Mr. Cayne," said Terriss, "Miss Vincent qualifies with me for a chance at this job. She assures me she can do the routine work of a lady's maid and we can have some extra instruction given her so that Mrs. Cayne will not suspicion anything. You don't want Mrs. Cayne to know why Miss Vincent is there? You want her to feel that Miss Vincent is a servant just like the others—"

"I haven't said that I'd engaged Miss Vincent yet. But that's right, whoever comes in there must be like the other servants and Mrs. Cayne mustn't be bothered. She isn't very well, she's high-strung and imaginative and besides she's—she's like an impulsive child, she couldn't hide her feelings, she'd be certain to give the show away without intending it." His voice softened into indulgence as he spoke of his wife.

"Would you like to talk to Miss Vincent alone?" asked Terriss. "I'll wait outside."

"That's a good idea. I won't be long." He nodded Terriss out and Rachel was left facing him. "Now, young lady, let's get down to brass tacks. You can do a lady's maid's work, can you? Where did you learn it?"

"At home, taking care of my own clothes. I understand that this position doesn't require expert beauty-shop work."

"That's right." He looked Rachel over from head to feet. "I don't know, I don't know, I've seen all the women on Terriss' regular staff and they're terrible. Elton wouldn't stand any of 'em for a split second. Now you're a lady, anybody can see that. Maybe you're too much of a lady, too pretty. You'd have to tone that down, but Terriss said you could. This isn't going to be easy, you know. Whoever's the thief he's smart, too damned smart. It must be one of the servants, but they're all been with me, why, they're like friends. It's unbelievable!"

Rachel, remembering Terriss' warning to let other people talk, sat silent through all this, listening and watching. "I wonder why he seems lonely," she thought. "He's grand. I like him."

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Intriguing Construction.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Downtown I saw some sort of siege-wall going up. At first I thought it must be a part of the proposed plaza leading from our new terminal.

Our new terminal has been under construction almost as long as New York's unfinished Cathedral of St. John. Inch by inch it progresses, giving creeping defiance to those critics who say that what Los Angeles needs is not any additional entrances, but more exits.

On second glance I decided the owner of the business property behind this strange rampart probably made the same mistake I did. I saw a picture in the paper and I said, "Pretty late to be printing a photograph of Fifth avenue showing how it appeared when the World's war heroes got through pranking last month." I looked again and saw it was only a scene in Shanghai after the Japanese finished bombing.

So I figure this forebanded Los Angeles is just getting ready for next year's convention of the vets out here. When his wall is absolutely impregnable against assault, he'll no doubt paint a big sign on it reading: "Welcome, American Legion."

Kindness for Reptiles. UNDEB the slogan "Kindness for reptiles," the National Park service discourages people from destroying every creature they encounter, merely because it wriggles or crawls.

I'm what you might call an occasional snail, indulging in snakes only in moderation. In other words, I can take my snakes or I can leave them be. But realizing that practically all snakes destroy noxious vermin, I refrain from murdering every passing snake, regardless of his private habits and personal disposition, just for being a snake.

I was raised in a locality where moccasin snakes were so numerous the Republicans used to accuse us of voting them at county elections. Yet I recall only one instance of a moccasin snake biting anybody, and it must have been tempted beyond all power of self-control, for the fellow bitten was a pious party who didn't think little children should be suffered to believe in Santa Claus. I regret to state that he recovered. It was the snake that died.

Movie Preferences. I DON'T like movies about hospitals where an impossible young surgeon performs impossible operations, in four strokes under par, using his irons all the way round; and then, while replacing the divots, makes love to an impossible although beautiful nurse. But between operations he washes his hands. Dadgum him, he's always washing his hands! Who does he think he is, Pontius Pilate?

I don't like movies about newspaper offices where the hero is a drunken reporter who behaves in a manner peculiar to newspaper reporters (in the movies); which is not damned peculiar that, in a real newspaper office, somebody'd beat out his brains with a wet towel.

I like movies showing Myrna Loy, when not playing nurse; and Spencer Tracy, when not playing reporter.

Anyhow, nothing could be an absolute failure that has a Walt Disney short separating the ultra-colossal or regular feature from the extra-special four-star absolutely unparalleled super-stupendous preview feature.

Gossip About Cobb. JUST a little effort to trace down gossip now going around: (I) The claim that I am going to play Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind" is absolutely unfounded. Latest word is that the coveted role will go to Fannie Brice, although the Ritz brothers are being mentioned. If they should be chosen, Scarlett will be played as a three-handed quartette.

(II) Dame Rumph hath it that the Atlantic sperm whale will be renamed the Justice Black sperm whale. Not yet confirmed, but sounds sort of plausible. The Atlantic sperm whale has a hide almost two feet thick.

(III) The statement that Charley McCarthy may join the reorganized brain trust at Washington remains unsettled. Probably without foundation. For while Charley is trained to sit upon his master's knee, he cannot be depended on to keep silent and has too many brains to be trusted.

(IV) Stories to the effect that Representative Ham Fish will be Republican nominee for President in 1940 may be regarded as absolutely authentic so far as Representative Ham Fish is concerned.

Interpreters of the Mode

SO LONG as you Sew-Your-Own, Milady, just so long will Yours Truly strive to interpret the mode for you. Today the trio brings you frocks for every size (from four years to size 52) for almost any occasion. Each has been designed to bring you the ultimate in style in its particular class and all claim a new high in simplicity and comfort.

Ultra-Smart Dress. It's nice to know you're easy to look at even if the occasion is only another breakfast session. That's why the ultra-smart dress at the left is so handy to have. Note the clever detail all the way through even to the inverted skirt pleats. See how beautifully the sleeves set-in—you just know at a glance how simple it is to put together. Cotton, of course, is the material.

Typical of Youth. The surest way to be a big little body is to wear dresses that are as expertly planned as the grown-ups'. The little number above, center, has the smart styling of a sub-deb's frock. It is typical of youth's freshness and activity, and is one model that gets little girls' complete endorsement. It is the number one dress for the number one sweetheart in anybody's family.

An Orchid to You. Do you think of a charming sorority tea with lots of atmosphere?

Uncle Phil Says: A Wide Difference. The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is that one often comes from a strong will and the other from a strong won't.

By courage and holding one's nose much can be accomplished. Strive to be patient. Work steadily. Remember the dictionary was not compiled in a single day or year.

Not All Can Laugh. A person with a sandpaper tongue may create more gaiety, but he with a velvet one is more comforting.

Intimate fellowships sail the sea of Give and Take. A man never forgets a snub. That is the reason it does him so much good, by stirring him into action.

To make a rooster, the vainest of creatures, run, is the first triumph of a very small boy. onlookers, is not sport.

Impudence is not due to lack of respect so much as it is to bad training in manners.

You're the Smithy. You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and forge yourself into one.

It would be strange if the company a man keeps didn't know him.

A gossip makes a mountain out of a molehill and then brings it to you.

It seems as if none of our history would ever be as interesting as the founding of the 13 colonies. The increase of knowledge only produces more to wonder about.

Friendly Talk. BUT after all, the very best thing in good talk and the thing that helps it most is friendship. How it dissolves the barriers that divide us, and loosens all constraint—this feeling that we understand and trust each other, and wish each other heartily well! Everything into which it really comes is good. It transforms letter-writing from a task into a pleasure. It makes music a thousand times more sweet. The people who play and sing not at us, but to us—how delightful it is to listen to them!

Yes, there is a talkability that can express itself even without words. There is an exchange of thought and feeling which is happy alike in speech and in silence. It is quietness pervaded with friendship.—Van Dyke.

EDITORIAL

"HAVING A SCHOOL CAFETERIA"

Studies have shown that children who have at least one hot dish for their lunch show a marked improvement in their afternoon school work. All cold dishes tend to upset or interrupt digestion, or cause headaches, which will show up the thinking process.

If there are quite a number of children who attend school from a distance and have to eat their lunch at the school, it is a great advantage to have a cafeteria. When a cafeteria is started in a school at least one hot dish can be served.

Pupils pay a minimum price for food obtained from a cafeteria. It is cheaper to buy from the school than to buy at a lunch room.

Having a cafeteria in school causes less trouble. The pupils are safer and more sure to be on the school grounds and not on the streets during the noon hour. It will be easier and better for the children to get their meal at school, especially in winter. When the children have money to go to the lunch stands they buy things that are not always good for them.

After reading these facts I would like to ask you one question: "Do you think it would pay to have a cafeteria in this school?"

GRADE NEWS

INTERMEDIATE ROOM—

The fourth grade is working on creative projects relating to their study of communities.

Rachael Brauchle's name was omitted last week in the list of those who had perfect attendance.

Miss Busch came to talk to us about New York City and lumbering in Maine and northern Wisconsin. We enjoyed her talk so much we each wrote a letter to her. The next day, to our surprise, there was a letter posted on our easel from Miss Busch.

GRAMMAR ROOM—

The seventh grade has completed a unit on transportation and communication. The sixth grade has started to study India as a possession of Great Britain. The eighth grade is working on business forms in arithmetic, and are also reading a unit on poetry appreciation.

County Agent Notes

LIME MEETINGS

On Tuesday, November 9th, Professor C. J. Chapman of the college of agriculture, who is Wisconsin's foremost advocate of the use of agricultural lime as a soil builder, will be in the county to help county agent E. E. Skaliskey with two meetings. They will be as follows:

Fillmore Turn hall, 2:00 p. m. and at Hartford City hall, 8:00 p. m.

Mr. Chapman will illustrate his talk on the use of lime with motion pictures.

Washington county has two lime pulverizers operating in the county at the present time. One is located near Fillmore and the other about two miles north of St. Lawrence. More than 600 tons of lime has already been delivered to farmers in the past three weeks.

Any one desiring lime may send or phone his order to the county agent's office.

USES OF LIME IN THE SOIL

Some of the more important ways in which an abundance of lime in the soil makes better plant growth possible are the following:

1. Lime is very necessary for bacterial growth in the soil. The soil contains countless millions of bacteria in its upper layers where most plant roots live. These bacteria serve us in two important ways. They must break down and help decompose all organic matter placed in the soil. Were it not for this important work our soils would soon become unproductive. The other way in which these bacteria help us is by taking nitrogen out of the air and making it available to the tiny root hairs feeding upon the plant food in the ground. This is very important work from the standpoint of agriculture. Nitrogen is one of the most important of all plant foods and one of the most expensive to buy. Yet three-fourths of the air is nitrogen. Farm plants cannot make use of this element. Bacteria of certain kinds are the only ones that can convert it from the air into usable soil nitrates which are the most important sources of food for plants. An abundance of lime in the soil insures for the farmers an abundance of soil nitrates made from the nitrogen of the air.

A second way in which a sufficient amount of lime in the soil helps the farmer is that it makes other plant food more available to the plants.

Phosphorus, for instance, is usually found in soils in very small amounts, and since it is sold in nearly every product that leaves the farm, it is in greatest danger of serious reduction. Phosphorus is contained in the bones of animals, in milk, in grains, and whenever these products are sold they take with them an amount of this element that should have remained on the farm for continued profitable agriculture. A large percentage of Wisconsin farms do not contain a sufficient amount of phosphorus to permit the largest yields of crops. There is a close connection between the amount of lime in the soil and the availability of phosphorus. In general, acid soils are low in available phosphorus and potassium. Soils that have been cropped for a long time usually are lacking in available amounts of these two elements. Legume crops, such as clovers and alfalfa, need more phosphorus than most other crops. Therefore, Wisconsin farmers can afford to increase the lime content of their soils so as to make available more of the phosphorus and other elements needed for plant growth.

1937 ACREAGE DIVERSION PAYMENT RATE

The average county rate for agricultural conservation payments has been set, Washington county farmers who took part in the 1937 program will average $3.22 for each acre of cropland they diverted from their soil de-

ARMSTRONG

States and from several of the countries from which seed is imported into the United States were sown in duplicate plots at the University Hill farms during the past summer. The drought and heat has had a striking differential effect on these clover plants. These test plots tell more than words can describe. Seedsmen and others interested visited these plots on Monday, October 25th, meeting at the Agronomy building at 1:45 p. m. and at the East Hill farm at 2:00 p. m.

AERIAL CAMERA TO MAP MORE FARMS

Due to cloudy and misty weather this fall, aerial photographs are not likely to be used this year in checking farms in four southern Wisconsin counties, reports the Wisconsin Agricultural Conservation committee. The 1937 program will have to be completed before these maps could be completed. The photographic maps taken will be used, however, for 1938 and five additional counties will be flown this fall if weather permits.

Southern counties that will be completed for use next year include Iowa, Lafayette, Grant and Dodge. Farm reports in these counties are being asked to make measurements by use of the tape line or Gandy wheel on farms on which changes have been made in the sizes of fields or that have not been previously measured.

New counties that will be flown include Adams, Green Lake, Marquette, Waushara and Winnebago. These counties include 2,662 square miles of farm land. It is estimated that approximately 10,557 square miles have been or are being flown in 18 southern Wisconsin counties by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The total number of square miles being flown in the 26 Wisconsin counties amounts to 15,000.

Counties where the flights have been completed in time to use the aerial photographs in mapping farms this year include Kenosha, Racine, Walworth, Rock, Green, Dane, Jefferson, Waushara, Milwaukee, Ozaukee, Waukesha, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Columbia, Sauk, Richland and Pepin.

POTATO CONTROL

H. P. Henry, regional field representative of the secretary of agriculture, has just announced highlights of the newly-appointed potato marketing program for the north central region, following a conference of the midwest potato control committee in St. Paul, Minnesota.

Administration of the program, Mr. Henry pointed out, will be in the hands of a 12-man committee, composed of two growers and one handler representative from each of the four states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and North Dakota.

Mr. Henry has been assigned by Secretary Henry A. Wallace to aid the control committee in administration and enforcement of the marketing orders.

The committee elected John F. Jardine of Waupaca, Wisconsin, as its general chairman. Three vice-chairmen were elected: O. J. Odegaard of Minnesota, Fred P. Hibst of Michigan, and George H. Hoopole of North Dakota. The chairman and the three vice-chairmen will be an executive committee and will supervise administrative details when the full committee is not in session.

The executive committee was asked to select a manager, who will handle routine administration of the program in the four states under the supervision of the committee. A central office will be established in St. Paul. Each state will set up a sub-office through which to conduct state business.

Potato marketing orders were put into effect in three late potato producing sections on October 19. Other states affected are Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska.

USE ONLY ADAPTED CLOVER SEED

Madison—"Provisions regarding the use of adapted red-clover and alfalfa seed in the 10 corn belt states of the North Central region, under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program, will be similar to the regulations governing the use of such seeds under the 1937 program," Claude R. Wickard, director of the North Central division of the AAA announced today.

"A great majority of these test plots demonstrated the superiority of adapted seeds over unadapted imported varieties, even during the year in which they were planted, and this superiority should be even more apparent in 1938, according to past experience. Unadapted seeds often show a reasonably satisfactory growth the first year, but fail to survive the winter. In 1937, even the first year's growth was very unsatisfactory in many cases."

County Agent Notes

States and from several of the countries from which seed is imported into the United States were sown in duplicate plots at the University Hill farms during the past summer. The drought and heat has had a striking differential effect on these clover plants. These test plots tell more than words can describe. Seedsmen and others interested visited these plots on Monday, October 25th, meeting at the Agronomy building at 1:45 p. m. and at the East Hill farm at 2:00 p. m.
