By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

A red-headed American business man, the blood of old Erin coursing through his veins, is creating a sensation at Great Britain's austere Court of St. James.

His name is Joe Kennedy, the son of a one time Boston politician and saloon keeper, new United States ambassador to Joe Kennedy is placing his sturdy business shoes in the footsteps where formerly walked philosophers, poets, historians and members of the social elect. He is not America's first business man ambassador, but he is the first business man to get the job without first showing his listing in society's "Who's Who."

Others claim this right-hand man of the Roosevelt administration is being exiled by his appointment to St. James. Still others say the ambassadorship is a springboard to the Presidency.

More likely is the answer that President Roosevelt recognizes the need for a British ambassador of exceptional business ability, a man who can maneuver the proposed recriprocal trade treaty to a successful conclusion. Joe Kennedy, more than any other New Dealer, is the man who can do it.

Red Tape Bothers Him.

This dynamic American is apt to shock St. James. As SEC chairman and head of the Maritime commission he showed his distaste for official red tape and soft-couched procedure. In diplomacy as nowhere else, he will find just such

The Kennedy career reads like an unbroken success story, in which love and family life have played an important part. At forty-nine he is the father of nine good looking children. His wife, the former Rose Fitzgerald of Boston, is so attractive and slim at forty-seven that John Boettiger, Roosevelt son-inlaw, blurted out when he first met

"At last I believe in the stork!" Kennedy started as a Boston newsboy in a career that stretches from New England to Hollywood and back again. At Harvard, where he finished in 1912, he was a star baseball player and made $5,000 driving a sight-seeing bus during summer vacations. By the time he graduated he decided on a banking career, became a state examiner for 18 months and-when only twenty-five-was actually a bank president!

He Fought With Roosevelt.

Kennedy's first meeting with President Roosevelt came during the war when the Irish Bostonian was assistant general manager of the Fore River shipyards and the President was assistant secretary of the navy. It is recalled that the angry navy official dispatched troops to take over a ship which Kennedy refused to release.

Next came three years as manager of the stock department at Hayden, Stone company, a Boston banking house. It was there that Kennedy got the bright idea of buying American option rights on foreign motion pictures. That started his movie career.

Kennedy was new blood in Hollywood, one of the first young business men to approach the movie industry from the banking end. From 1926 to 1930 he was in the center of mammoth mergers and shifts in the big companies. By 1929, just before the crash, he decided to get out of the movie business. But during his brief Hollyof the Film Booking Offices of shipping interests as he had han-sensational report listing the needs of American shipping, a report that will probably go down in istory as another example of Kennedy foresight and common sense. When every other nation was building huge liners, Joe Kennedy predicted the day when fast aircraft would make liners impractical. Therefore he recommended emphasis on trans-Atlantic airplanes, together with construction of small and sensible ocean vessels.

He's "Pep" Personified.

To staid Britishers Joe Kennedy may be the perfect example of American "pep." Big and tall, he likes to work in his shirt sleeves, make instantaneous decisions and ride airplanes instead of trains. He is a go-getter, equally at home with any kind of an audience.

Joe Kennedy was living happily in It is significant that Joe Kennedy is one of the few New Dealers who his spacious homes at Hyannisport, Palm Beach or Bronxville. still retain the respect of business But the social consciousness which at large. Kennedy money backed the 1932 campaign and the dynamic Kennedy personality gladdened many a vote-setting tour. When it was all over he spent two and a half months reorganizing Radio Corporation of America and hobnobbing with his Wall street friends, trying to convince them that the world was changed. They wouldn't listen.

Few people have forgotten the turbulent days when the Securities Exchange commission was established with Kennedy at its head. Almost to a man, Wall street brokers protested it would wreck their profession. But the measure went through and today you'll find that a majority of SEC's old opponents are its staunchest supporters.

After SEC was established he left the government and returned to making money again, only to be recalled when President Roosevelt needed leadership for the Maritime wood career he had been president | commission. He handled American

American debutantes cannot appear before the queen of England unless Rose Kennedy sanctions it.

If Joe Kennedy engineers the Anglo-American trade agreement he will return to the United States more thoroughly in the spotlight than ever. Though some may consider him an "exile" in London, he can recall that five former ambassadors to St. James later became President. Coal Keeps Place as Chief Source of Economic Energy

By WATSON DAVIS

Washington. - Coal is still power king and is the energy source upon which the future must rely, despite the relative decrease in its use that has occurred in recent years.

Natural supplies of oil and gas and the electricity that comes from water power will not in future years supply our needs. Technical experts look forward to the day when coal will supply us not only with the bulk of our power from central stations but with superior synthetic fuels, such as gas for heating, liquid fuels for internal combustion engines, and smokeless solid fuel for nome heating.

Inevitably an end to flush producwill arrive, not suddenly but gradually and steadily, a survey made by the Ontario Research foundation shows. This will be due both to enforced conservation measures of the industry. Synthetic manufacture of oil and gas from coal will become more economically justified with increased cost of natural oil and gas. Relatively less coal will be burned raw.

Much Coal Is Processed.

Even now figures show that almost a third of the bituminous coal produced in America is processed. A single coking plant near Pittsburgh consumes one per cent of all the coal mined in the whole world.

Processing of coal, taking out the rich chemicals that dye our textiles, make our medicines, supply raw materials for industries, creating gaseous and liquid fuels, and leaving coke for metallurgical and other uses, will inevitably become one of the largest of our industries.

Public health factors, and the eco nomic losses due to smoke that blights many of our large cities will demand that smokeless fuels and fuels processed and purified for special purposes be used practically exclusively. Burning untreated coal may be considered almost a crime.

We derive our power from the fossil sunshine of past geologic eras. We are living on the energy savings of the past. We are, alas, scattering our power resources over the face of the earth in fine dust and degraded energy.

Sleep Fast in Georgia Did Not Break Record

Washington.-The University of Georgia students who stayed awake for 100 hours for scientific investigations did not break any records, although they came close to it. The longest sleep fast on record, apparently, is that of human guinea pigs in another scientific study who went as long as 114 hours without

Man cannot live without sleep, any more than he can live without food, but the period of wakefulness which would be fatal to a human is not definitely known. Dogs have been able to survive sleep fasts of more than 14 days, though others die after being kept awake that

Sufferers from insomnia generally believe that they have hung up records for sleepless periods. They often fail to take into account, however, the daytime cat naps which, added to the few hours they sleep at night, provide them with a fair amount of rest.

Farm Produce Outlets Sought With Large Fund

East Lansing, Mich.-Search for industrial uses for farm products will be speeded up through the use of a $500,000 grant by the Rackham fund to Michigan State college here. In addition to the researches looking to industrial uses, one special objective of investigators will be to make out of cornstalks, sawdust, straw, or other farm wastes, some material to be plowed into the soil for its physical improvement, as fertilizers are used for its chemical improvement. The sought-for material, by rendering the soil lighter and more porous, will increase its water-holding power, and thus indirectly make for better control of both floods and erosion.

New Features on Moon

London.-Revision of our maps of the moon may be necessary as result of the discovery of a series of craters and walled plains, near the edge of our satellite's visible disk by H. Percy Wilkins, British astronomer. Occupying twenty degrees of latitude on the southeast edge of the moon, this tangle of walled valleys, craters and high peaks has escaped discovery for many years.

Bombproof Power Plants

Washington.—Bombproof power plants are being constructed to serve some of Europe's chemical and munitions plants, states the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. A typical one, comprising high-pressure boilers and a small but powerful steam turbine generator set, is set into a tunnel driven into the face of a cliff. These plants are not intended for immediate use but are being built for use

Wealth in Minerals Brought to Surface by Many Volcanoes

Washington. - Boiling floods of lava and glowing clouds of gas are not the only products of volcanoes, geologists find. Many volcanoes have brought useful and valuable mineralsgold, silver, diamonds, or oil, close to the surface where men can get at them.

Reporting his field findings to the Geological Society of Washington, Dr. A. H. Koschmann, of the United States geological survey, told of the Cripple Creek volcano near Pikes Peak, Colo., whose eruption 25,000,-000 years ago brought millions of dollars worth of gold into the rocks near the surface, where it could be reached by mining operations.

After the first eruptions, the crater floor collapsed, carrying leaves and tree trunks deep into the earth, where they are now found as fos-volcano brought 250 cubic miles of new material to the surface at about the same time as the Cripple Creek eruption. This created the famous Camp Bird mining area, which built the fabulous fortune of the late Tom Walsh. To date, more than $270,000,tion of petroleum and natural gas | 000 in gold and silver have been mined in the San Juan area near Silverton, of which $30,000,000 came from Camp Bird. After the first eruption of the Silverton volcano, one of the craters, eight miles in and to changes in the economics diameter, collapsed, opening hundreds of fissures in the surrounding rock, which were later filled with rich deposits of gold and silver, some of them five to seven miles Volcanic activity in the ancient Gulf Coastal plain, an area which now includes Texas, Arkansas, and Mississippi, brought diamonds to Arkansas, and formed oil traps in other areas. Erupting 80,000,000 years ago, the ancient volcanoes were discovered during drilling operations only since 1915.

New Mexico, a million or so years ago, had a volcanic lake in the Valles mountains similar to the present Crater lake in Oregon. This crater, which is the largest explosive crater known, was 17 miles long and 13 miles wide.

One Wire Carries 12 Radio Phone Messages

New York .- A peek into the future of long distance telephonic communication was given at the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers here. Developments in the use of existing telephone wires as guide paths for carrier waves has made it possible to have 12 messages going over the same wire without interference.

Two engineers from the Bell laboratories, C. W. and E. I. Green, disclosed new details of the carrier system for toll cables.

The new advances are the culmination of a long range program of applying high frequency waves to wires. Early developments utilized special wires but the new work has succeeded in using existing cables, both aerial and underground.

"Plans already under way call for the application of large numbers of these systems to meet the rapid growth in long distance traffic,' said the engineers.

Cesium, Electric Eye Retina, Should Be Pure

New York.-Cesium, rare earth that makes the electric eye see, will not work if it contains more than one ounce of impurities in three tons of metal, reports Dr. J. J. Kennedy of the Maywood Chemical works, describing the cesium mining and purifying industry to the American Chemical society.

Mined in the Black Hills of South Dakota, pollucite, the dull and gumlike ore of cesium, worth fifteen dollars a pound, contains from 1 to 30 per cent of cesium oxide. Purified by successive stages, and reduced to a metal that burns in air and explodes in water, cesium is used as the sensitive metal in photoelectric cells-the "electric eves" of industry-and as a "getter" in radio tubes. A radio tube "getter" burns up the last bits of oxygen that the vaccum pump couldn't catch.

Man an Articulate Ape

Philadelphia.-Man owes his brain and his hands to his zoological kin, the apes, Dr. Earnest A. Hooton, Harvard anthropologist, states in Frontiers, a publication of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. "Man himself is but an articulate ape with acquirements, notably language and material culture," concludes Dr. Hooton. "Only the acquirements are human, the rest is a simian legacy."

New Dental Filling

Berlin .- A new dental filling that works like the cement and concrete used for building under-water structures in that it requires the presence of moisture in order to harden, has been developed in Germany. Saliva is a hardening agent for the new cement, which is colorless and, it is claimed, does not injure the pulp or the nerve of the tooth.

Anti-Skid Fence

Washington .- A new type of antiskid cement and concrete fence, which prevents skidding automo biles from leaving the road and overturning at highway danger points, has been put into service in Denmark, it is reported by the highway research board.

"Smart boy," sneered one of the masked fellows. "You're wise to be good. Hop into your trousers now, for you're going to take a nice cool walk in the bracing air."

Hodge had been made to get up also, and he was grumbling. Yet he wasn't making as much of a fuss as might have been expected. And he obeyed the order to dress himself with no apparent great objection or reluctance. They were allowed to put on stockings but not shoes. Some of the masked intruders took charge of their shoes. "Just so nobody will tled softly. drop them carelessly as we're going out," explained one of them. might disturb the sweetly slumber-

"Oh, sure. We never fry more than three freshmen in one night. It's quite enough, they're so very on the program was going to pop before the night was over. Hodge was in the hands of fellows who were giving their undivided attention to him.

The round moon, riding high, seemed to grin at them when they were out under the open sky. There the three freshmen were allowed to sit down on the steps and put on their shoes. The campus clock struck one as they moved on again. "It's a real lovely night for a murder," observed Merriwell pleas-

"Maybe you'll think it is before the night is over," said the one who had poked the shiny thing at him. Frank gave him a keen glance. The mask was baffling, but the voice had sounded familiar.

They left the school grounds by a well - trodden path that brought them, before long, near the shore on which the surf was murmuring. Farther on, they came to the cove where the academy boathouse was located. Merry thought of his first view of the building from the top of the hill, only three days ago. Plenty had happened since then. Now

The leader of the masks walked straight to the door of the boathouse and rapped a signal on it with the shiny thing in his hand.

"Who's there?" came a challenge from the other side of the door. "The execution committee with doomed victims," was the answer. "Bur-r-r!" shivered Mulloy. "It's a slight chill I have." The heavy door swung open. "Enter, Chief Executioner, with the execution committee and your victims," said a masked boy who had been waiting there with three companions.

"But who are you?" suspiciously asked the one who had knocked. He leaned forward and peered at the fellow who had opened the door. 'You're one too many here." "I am Justice," was the solemn reply, "and I'm here to see that my name is not defiled."

"You're just a butt-in," said the chief executioner, as if annoyed. 'Somebody must have got careless and slopped over. Oh, well, don't get the notion you're running the

The captive freshmen were led into the building. The door was closed and fastened behind them. The interior of the boathouse was lighted, but closed window-shutters

"But this is no hazing," declared the Chief Executioner. "It's a sacrifice and you're the goat. It won't do you any good to kick, either. Strip that sweater off him, boys.' "Say the word," whispered Mulloy in Frank's ear, "and I'm with ye to make good fish hash of this bunch ' Merry shook his head. "It isn't worth it," he replied, "the odds being what they are. Wait for a better break, Barney."

He didn't let them pull the sweater off him. He removed it himself and stood naked to the waist. The one who had called himself Justice took a look at Merriwell's torso, shoulders and arms, and whis-"Maybe this isn't the goat, after all," he said, "but we'll find out. It won't be long now."

Then Frank and Barney saw that several of the masked fellows had stripped Hodge to the waist also. Bart had protested against it, but his objections had sounded strangely weak. There was dirt in the air. One of the hazers had brought forward a set of boxing gloves. At sight of them, Merriwell got it. This was to be the show-down between him and Hodge, and Bart had been wise to it all the time. That was why he had submitted so weakly

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses he became violently ill within a week. CARBOHYDRATES and FATS

Foods That Provide Motive Power For the Body Machinery * *

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

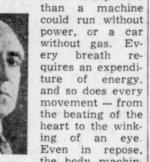

THE human body might be compared to a framework filled with machinery. It takes food to build the framework, food to run the machinery and food to keep it working efficiently and this food must be of the proper type.

Last week, I discussed the body building proteins and explained how to distinguish between those which build and butter, most nuts except chestnuts repair body tissue, and those that are adequate for maintenance, but not for growth. It is equally important that the fuel foods which are necessary to fire the body engine and furnish motive power to Carbohydrates Are propel the body machinery.

Fuel Foods Keep Us Alive

The body could not function in

The chief fuel, or energy prodrates-that is, the starches and pair tissue.

Some of the results of disregarding the absolute necessity for these foods are extreme irritability, and a greater susceptibility to fatigue, nervous diseases, tuberculosis and other infections.

Too Much Fuel

Causes Overweight

It is true, however, that an excess of fuel foods will tend to produce over-weight. For if we assimilate them, and do not utilize their potential energy in muscular effort, they will be stored -as fat-usually in most inconvenient locations! On the other hand, an excess

Since both carbohydrates and fats are energy foods, one might expect them to play an interchangeable role in the diet. To a certain extent, they do, although fat, being more concentrated. provides two and one-fourth times as much fuel value as an equal weight of carbohydrate

But because of the variation in the way these materials are handled by the body, it is generally

THE third of the series of articles entitled "What to Eat and Why," written by C. Houston Goudiss, the eminent food authority, author and radio lecturer, appears in this

Here is an interesting and important point which is frequently overlooked in unscientific reducing diets. Fat requires carbohydrates for its proper utilization by the body. That is why women Every type of daily activity, in-cluding work and exercise, re-quires additional fuel. If you walk slowly, you expend twice as much ting down on carbohydrates while overlooking the fats contained in milk, butter, and other foods.

Besides furnishing concentrated energy values, fats help to create the fatty tissue which cushions the nerves and abdominal organs, and forms the pleasing contours of face and figure.

Because it leaves the stomach more slowly than proteins and carbohydrates, fat retards the digestion of these food groups somewhat, and thus gives staying power to a meal. At the same time it promotes the flow of pancreatic juice and bile, thus helping in the assimilation of other foods. Foods rich in fat include butter, cheese, egg yolk, cooking fats and oils, margarine, olives, pastry, peanut and lichi nuts, various kinds of sausage and frie dfoods.

"Home-Wrecking" Qualities of Poor Furniture Polish

How often a houseful of fine furniture and handsome woodwork is spoiled by the use of a poor furniture polish! There are many polishes on the market today-some fair, some good, others excellent for luster and long life of the finish! The best is non-greasy, because made with a fine, light-oil base! In time, furniture and wood-Fats are so necessary to the work can be ruined by the persistent application of a cheap, poor polish! Such polish will contain kerosene, harsh abrasives could exist satisfactorily on an suspected! The housewife may use one of these polishes, feeling that she is economically keeping her furniture polished-but this is poorest economy, if she values her furniture (and what housewife does not?). The furniture in a home constitutes the larges part of the furnishings-and will show up like "sore thumbs" when dried out, cracked or checked. ing anything with cheese use a This is just what occurs, when low temperature, because intense other than a reputable oil polish dency to minimize the importance heat makes cheese tough and is used! Too, a quality oil polish is less expensive! Less is used at one time-for it's undiluted. The resultant glow is deeper, richer, pers are delicious when stuffed more lasting! Best of all, the finish of the furniture and woodwork is properly "fed" and kept in prime condition! So beware of harsh, "bargain" polishes-for through them, the furniture suffers!

Make Your Will NOW. Safeguard Your Loved Ones

Everyone needs a Will, those who have little, more than those who have much. Neglect to make a W causes untold grief, suffering, family disputes.

This Actually Happened A happy man with a good wife and two lovely children, owned a $7,000.00 house with only a $2,000.00 mortgage, and had about $3,000.00 in the bank. He caught a cold; it developed into double pneumonia and within a week he was dead.

There was no will. An executor had to be appointed by the court, a bond paid and a lawyer appointed. He had two brothers with whom he was on bad terms. Each applied for one-third of the estate. The executor got 5% and had one year to settle.

The mortgage was foreclosed, the widow dispossessed. Today this man's family are on relief, destitute. If our Will booklet at a total cost of one dollar had been used, all this trouble would have been saved. Things like that are happening every day.

and to other nations In brief, he set forth a policy of peace, no alliances, collaboration with peaceful nations, military preparedness, and opposition to the

'seclusionist' viewpoint. "It is my considered judgment that, in the present state of world affairs, to do less than is now proposed would lay our country open to unpredictable hazards," he said, referring to the naval expansion program. he said, "is whether the doctrine of force shall become enthroned once give that nation armed support more and bring in its wake, inexorably, international anarchy and a relapse into barbarism." Hull expressed "our deep concern over the rising tide of lawlessness, the growing disregard of treaties, the increasing reversion to the use of force, and the numerous other ominous tendencies which are emerging in the sphere of international relations."

His speech abounded with such sharp phrases as "methods of violence," "another dark night of international anarchy," "rule of force," "violators of international decencies," "medieval chaos" and "blind extremism."

He did not refer to any nation by name, but his implication with regard to legal recognition of Austria's absorption by Germany and Japan's expansion in China was clear when he said:

"The catastrophic developments of recent years, the startling events of the past weeks, offer a tragic demonstration of how quickly the contagious scourge of treaty-breaking and armed violence spreads from one region to another."

The secretary came out strongly for an adequate armed force for this country:

"In a world in which the rule of force has not as vet been firmly and surely supplanted by the rule of law, it is the manifest duty of a great nation to maintain armed forces adequate for its national defense.

"No policy would prove more disastrous than for an important nation to fail to arm adequately when international lawlessness is on the

"But there is not a trace of alliance or involvement of any sort.' He disclaimed "the slightest intention to entertain any such notion as the use of American armed forces for 'policing the world.' " He specifically opposed the proposal the United States retire from the Far East.

The triumph of the "seclusionist viewpoint," he said, "would inescapably carry the whole world back to the conditions of medieval chaos, conditions toward which some parts of both the eastern and the western worlds are already moving.'

in Russia time and phases here in the United States. So much alike are these things, indeed, that | guished from the New Dealers. one hears a great deal of comment on the circumstance.

Most persons are familiar, of course, with the fact that the dictator, Stalin, and the clique at present, and for the moment only, that is in his favor, are engaged in 'liquidation" of traitors. Now, "liquidation" of opposition in Russia means death at the hands of a firing squad. It means putting that opposition under the ground for eternity. This is accomplished in Russia under Stalin by the simple expedient of a so-called military trial. The farce that is called a trial is nothing more nor less than an exposition of charges against the accused who are, without exception, tortured until they "confess." That is to say, a torture in jail, a physical maltreatment, is administered until the accused would rather have death than a continuation of the physical suffering.

This thing is resorted to in Russia wherever and whenever Stalin or the clique then holding his favor believes it advisable to instill some more fear into the millions which fate placed in Russia. That is to say if, as always is the case with human beings, Stalin makes a mistake or his plans go awry, somebody must be the goat. In a land where the government has absolute power over life and death, the easiest, simplest way of solving the problem is by shooting off a few extra "counter revolutionists." Lately the purge in Russia has been directed at "counter revolutionaries" amongst the army officers. A few newspaper correspondents and government officials have been included just to make the propaganda effective on the proletariat.

The mock trials and the "liqui dation" in Russia are being carried on at this time because it is charged, there are elements in Russia that are seeking to bring back Leon Trotsky. Trotsky has a different type of dictatorship by the proletariat in mind. He has to hide out in Mexico, or get shot himself. Anyway, the Stalin group announces boldly that Russia is going forward (whatever that means) and will brook no interference with its plans -even if it has to shoot off all of its army officers and most of its government officials.

So much for the Russian system

Now, in calling attention to the similarity of conditions here, I have no notions of com-And in the paring them on the United States basis of the actual results. I want to deal with fundamentals, with principles. It seems to me this can be done without animosity. We will start, therefore, with one small and rather insignificant matter. A few weeks ago, President Roosevelt named Stanley Reed to be an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States. Mr. Reed had been solicitor general of the United States. The appointment can not be criticized in any way, because Mr. Reed will lend dignity to any job he undertakes.

I think the country is fortunate in that appointment. But when Mr. Reed was promoted, the President named Robert H. Jackson to fill the vacant place. Well, most people were rather glad to see Mr. Jackson placed in a job where he has to do legal work instead of being a political mouthpiece. Their satisfaction was shortlived, however, because who should be named to succeed Mr. Jackson but Professor Thurman Arnold of Yale university. It is an appointment that is worse, if that is possible, than that which placed Mr. Jackson in the job originally. For Professor Arnold is not a man to breed confidence at any time. Particularly is this true when it is considered that he manages a job that has to do with governmental relations with business. Which is to say that if business could have no certainty or assurance or guidance from Mr. Jackson, it will be like looking for needles in haystacks to learn what Mr. Arnold's ideas are voracious appetite. Thus we are come to the point of comparison. What does it mean that Messrs. Jackson and Arnold should be given those posts? The answer is comparatively simple, albeit quite significant. It means that President Roosevelt has taken control of the Department of Justice out of the hands of Attorney General Cummings. It means that he has yielded again to the left wing, the radical, advisers who have managed time after time to get the presidential ear and whisper con-

> But, you ask, what has that got to do with Russia, with Stalin, with liquidation of "counter revolutionaries." etc? Again, it seems to me that the analogy is plain. President Roosevelt has been convinced by the radicals and long-hairs that he has no great need any longer for the breed of simple, sound, sane thinkers, or the practical politicians. The advisors who are clinging to him like ivy to a wall have seen their plans go down in the crash of the depression and have to blame somebody. They argue that if their plans had not had interference from such as Mr. Cummings, or Secretary Roper or the Department of Commerce, or "Jim" Farley's practical politics, surely, the wishful thinkers would have succeeded. They could not line up the "counter revolutionaries" to be shot in this country, but they can destroy their political influence.

> To carry the fundamental thought to its ultimate and logical conclusion, therefore, it is necessary only to explain that the great liberal group (which boasts by mouth or by print) has yet ever to agree among its own numbers. They seldom agree to start with, and they never agree at the finish. It is always the 'other fellow'' that is to blame. "If my plan had been followed we would have succeeded," etc. and so on. There is that counterpart in Russia, I insist. It proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that no one can define "liberalism."

I mentioned Postmaster General Farley as being on the outs with President Roose-Farley May velt. It would not Quit be surprising if Mr. Farley quit his job. Observers in Washington know that he is pretty much disgusted by the refusal of the President to be guided by advice from the party's national chairman. It is possible, of course, that Mr. Farley will prefer to continue in the job as postmaster general and be quiet rather than expose the rupture. I understand he is giving that matter considerable thought these days, because, first of all, Mr. Farley believes in playing practical politics up to the hilt.

around Washington about Mr. Farley. It is said in many places that Mr. Farley may decide to remain on the job so that he can be more effective in helping to restore control of the Democratic party machinery to the Democrats. That is to say, Mr. Farley knows, as every one else who understands politics knows, that the New Deal theories will fall of their own weight in due time. They will fall because so many of them are contrary to human nature and to American traditions. Being immensely practical, Mr. Farley holds that the Democratic party is a party which is a natural opposition group to the Republicans. It will live, as it ought to live, and will continue to be a factor in American government long after the New Deal has burned itself out. Mr. Farley, therefore, is anxious to lend a hand in rebuilding the Democratic party for the Demo-

To that end, it is understood by many observers, there is a likely alignment between Mr. Farley and the canny, politically wise, "Cactus Jack" Garner, the Vice President. Undoubtedly, there is a strong and growing group in the house and senate which has turned away from the President. Recent votes have shown an increasing number of Democrats that are willing to stand on their own bottom. A very recent illustration of this was the vote on the New Deal scheme to tax corporations owned by a small number of persons at a higher rate than those whose shares are widely owned. There are thousands of these, all small corporations. To have kept that provision in the new tax bill would have saved the face of a small coterie of presidential advisers and even the President, himself. But half of the Democrats joined with on business practices. Maybe I the Republicans to kill off the plan.

From this and other circumstances, it is plain to see how the rumored Farley-Garner alignment would be backed up by such political powers as Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. Senator Harrison, it will be remembered, was rewarded for carrying New Deal buckets by having the President urge selection of Senator "Dear Alben" Barkley, of Kentucky, to be Democratic leader of the senate. Senator Barkley since has run into a fight for renomination in his own state. Senator Harrison is said to have a following of thirty-odd or more senators.

Sin of Father Almost Sends Son to Death

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

SPIES worked cleverly. The aristocracy spied on the peasants and the peasants spied on the nobility, while the professional spies had a lucrative trade. The guillotine cut off heads every day. The French peasants were revolting! Such is the opening scene in Charles Dickens' 'A Tale of Two Cities.'

Jerry Cruncher constantly licked the rust off his dirty hands. After a time we see Jerry at his honest trade, prying the lid from a recently buried coffin, so that he can sell the body to the medical students. Madam Defarge sat knitting, seeing nothing. But Dickens repeats the phrase too often, and we suspect this woman who knits and sees nothing. After a time we dis cover that in a code of stitches she

Elizabeth is recording the names of all people who are to die by the guillotine when that goddess shall come into power. But here is the story: Dr. Alexander Manette, voung physician of Paris, was escorted by the Marquis Evremonde and his twin brother to a peasant girl and her brother, victims of their merciless assault. Dr. Manette was overpowered by the noblemen and put into the Bastile without trial.

Solitary confinement and anxiety about his wife and his child, unborn at the time of his imprisonment, gradually wore away his mind.

Son Changes Name.

The lovely wife of the nobleman Evremonde, had tried to make retribution with the result that her son dropped his father's name

DICKENS-'INDISPENSABLE'

"A Tale of Two Cities" is unlike any other book that Dickens wrote. In the bulk of his writing, his characters and incidents overshadow his loosely connected plots; but in "A Tale of Two Cities," the plot predominates.

When Dickens decided to write an adventure novel and was considering the French revolution for the background, he wrote a letter to Thomas Carlyle asking for a bibliography for this period. In answer, Carlyle sent a wagon load of books, his own sources in preparing his famous 'History of the French Revolution!" Dickens looked over the group, read carefully Carlyle's book, and did not bother with the rest.

Charles Dickens lived from 1812 until 1870, and is called the most indispensable novelist of English literature.

and became known as Charles Darnay. He gave up all his inheritance, preferring to live in London.

Meanwhile, Dr. Manette's child was born, his wife died, and the child, Lucie, became a ward of Tellson's bank, and was removed to England.

The younger sister of the murdered peasant girl and boy grew to maturity, living with one thought: Revenge. She later married Ernest Defarge, one time servant to Dr. Manette.

After 18 years, Dr. Manette was freed. Completely insane, he was given into the custody of Ernest Defarge.

You recall Lucie's meeting with her father for the first time in her life, of going to London to live, of the meeting with Charles Darnay on the passage over, and of the resultant necessity of Lucie's witnessing at Charles' trial for treason, in London.

Dickens' portrayal of this trial is a masterpiece of satire. The court room was packed, for this execution was to be out of the usual run of entertainment, the prisoner was to be hanged, then quartered. Being French, he was as good as condemned before the trial started. But the people were cheated out of their day's sport, for Sidney Carton, lazy assistant to the defendant's counsel, shattered the circumstantial evidence by standing and calling the attention of the court of his own striking likeness to the defendant. Charles was freed.

Charles in Danger.

You recall the love of Sidney and Charles for Lucie, and the marriage of Lucie to Charles. Sidney worshiped her from afar, and was an occasional visitor to their home. After a time of love and peace, a letter came to Charles, that caused him to return to France to save the life of a family servant. But things had happened of which he knew nothing. As soon as Charles reached Paris he was imprisoned.

Again Sidney Carton saved the life of Charles, by means of their remarkable likeness. Sidney forced one of the prison guards to permit him to say good-by to Charles. Using drugs to overcome Charles, he changed clothes with him and died in his place.

Poultry Expert Urges Only Blood-Tested Stock.

By Cora Cooke, Poultry Extension Specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.—WNU Service. Well begun is half done," should be the watchword for poultrymen as they begin the task of pullet-raising.

Unless conditions change, a big hatch may be expected this spring, for poultrymen will need to replace a large share of their flocks for production next fall. When buying chicks, there are a number of things the poultryman cannot afany kind of chicks, regardless of how low the price on them may be. It is suggested that poultrymen purchase nothing but chicks from rung. blood-tested stock. Nor can the poultryman afford crowding more chicks into his brooder house than for which it was intended; 400 chicks is about enough for a house 12 by 14 feet.

Buying more chicks than the poultry raiser can feed well throughout the year is another addition to his 'cannot afford' list. Since feed supplies are now plentiful, home mixed feeds can be fed from the beginning. The chick ration can be the same as the laying ration. A finely ground mash is not necessary to feeding success, for in experiments at the Nebraska Experiment station, better results were obtained with a coarse mash, for both hens and chicks. Laying in a goodly supply of feeders so that no chick will have to "wait" for his feed is another recommendation. Needless to point out, no poultryman can afford to raise his flock on old ground.

Then, after the poultryman has raised his pullets, a task that will require six months of his time, he cannot afford to ruin his good work by leaving his pullets out on rang after they have started to lay, or after October 1, or to put anything but fully developed, well-fleshed pullets in the house next fall.

DORIS DENE'S column

Pre-Arranged Matches Seldom Satisfactory for Lack of Love.

REPLACING FLOCK DEAR DORIS DENE: I am twenty-two and the man I am to marry is twenty-six. For certain reasons our two families are very anxious that we should marry. We are not in love with each other but respect and admire each other. My parents tell me that there is a chance of our falling in love after we're married. I only hope this is true. I have talked things over with my fiance and he has agreed that it might be a good thing to talk over the situation with an outsider. Please give your opinion.-Mary F.

ANSWER-It's a pity that these nice arranged-for marriages don't go through as per schedule. It would be so comfortable if we could ford, among which is getting just | just allow our parents to fix us up with a suitable life - companion whom we would promptly fall in love with once the wedding bells had Nothing could be more satisfactory than a state of affairs in which neither the boy nor the girl had to take the responsibility of deciding what constituted a perfect marriage. Think of all the worry and anxiety to be avoided if the match could be arranged by somebody else -and guaranteed to bring everlast-But alas, it doesn't work ou' Ien and women don't fall in love with each other after they're married. The fact of their being bound together doesn't cause them to feel greater tenderness and love for each other. On the contrary it more than likely makes them restive and disagreeable. Without love to help them over that discontented feeling. they are merely too miserable misfits, tossed into matrimony.

Marriage doesn't make devoted lovers of two good friends. Too often it makes enemies of erstuchile sweethearts. Even the most ecstatic couples find that their early married life is a series of painful discoveries about the human weaknesses and foibles of the beloved. Imagine then the threefold misery of early married life with a man you don't love enough to forgive his faults and irritating ways.

Sometimes a woman can persuade herself into being in love with the husband who is good and kind to her. Woman is a possessive sort of creature who hangs on to what she's got and even learns to build a few illusions about it.

DEAR DORIS DENE: I am one of five children. I help to support my mother who is aging. The other children are married and have left home. I have been engaged for four years but have not seen my way clear to marrying yet as we can't afford a nurse for mother and she can't be left alone. Now I am wondering if it is not my duty to give up marriage and stay home permanently with my mother. My brothers and sisters help support her so they are not being unjust. I have tried to puzzle out what my duty is, until my head aches. Can you tell me what is right? My sisters think I should remain, my brothers advise me to get married.

-S. J. ANSWER-Few men could be callous enough to tell a sister that her duty was to give up love and stay home with an invalid mother. But naking. It is suggested for curing the female of the species has often tobacco, in the same way that sugar absolutely no compunction about and maple sugar are used. Among 'urging a good-natured sister to put aside romance and all the pleasant things of life and tread the straight of honey are brewing, wine making and narrow path of duty. The more comfortably married the adviser is, the more strenuously she accates. spinsterhood for her sister.

Ask yourself, S. J., why it is your duty and yours alone to take the full responsibility for your mother's well-being. Why aren't some of her other daughters ready to assume their share of the burden? Their answer is of course that their husbands and their children come first. But you can point out clearly that but for your sense of duty and your refusing to desert your post you might even now have your home and husband and children to take care of.

I honestly see no reason why you should be the family martyr. I don't believe the role would suit you. You couldn't go on being brave and sweet and noble through weary years of service-not unless you're a born saint. In time you would come to understand fully the injustice of your fate and then you'd resent the well-wishers who assured you that you would find perfect happiness in a needless sacrifice. Certainly men and women have attained real peace of mind through giving up their lives to someone else. But their sense of achievement has helped toward their peace of mind. You, S. J., could not have that sense of achievement, know-ing as you do that with a little manage-ment and planning, the care of your mother could be evenly apportioned throughout the family so that no one son or daughter was given more than his share of the responsibility. You will be bound to feel one day that your sacrifice was unnecessary, and nothing is more bit-ter than the realization that one's splendid self-denial has been futile.

And what about your duty to the man who's waited for you for four years? Are you forgetting all about him? Doesn't his opinion count for something? Don't brush his ideas aside as unimportant because he's not a member of your family. He has a real claim on you-and you caused by evaporation of some have a duty toward him. Don't forget that.

To set the springs you will need a ball of twine and a needle such as used by the upholsterer, enough webbing to replace the old, tacks %-inch long with large heads, a block of wood for stretching the webbing, a tack hammer and a tack lifter. Remove the cover from the seat carefully so that it may either be used again or serve as a pattern. Most of the padding may also be used. Observe how each layer of material is fastened in place, so that you may put it back the same way.

Remove the springs and all old tacks. Tack the first strip of webbing to one edge of the bottom of the frame, letting the end extend inch beyond the edge, then fold the end over the first tacks and tack again as at A. Draw the webbing across the frame using the block of wood as a lever to stretch webbing taut as at B. When all the strips have been stretched and tacked across the frame one way, stretch strips of webbing across the other way weaving these over and under the first ones as at C. Now, sew the

TIPS to Gardeners

Plant With Care

EXERCISE care in planting and Though soil may be rich, it will not produce as it should unless it is prepared thoroughly. A primary consideration in planting is to have the soil favorably moist; damp, but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches or drills before dropping the seed.

To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds immediately with fine earth and press down firmly.

Harold Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Institute, advises that temperature be considered at the time of planting. Too high a temperature is often as detrimental to seed germination as one too low. A temperature between 65 and 75 degrees is most favorable.

Soil must be loose so seedling sprouts can push through, and roots develop. Where the soil forms a heavy crust, it may sometimes be broken sufficiently to let seedlings through by gently pricking the soil with a rake.

Wise and Otherwise

The people who tell us the truth are our best friends-but not for long. Don't be afraid of idle tongues. It's the busy ones that do the damage. Men who play with fire usually get soaked.

Skating on thin ice usually lands you in hot water. Many a man has made a reputation as a wit by laughing at other people's jokes.

SPRINGS in furniture seldom | bottom of each spring to the webbreak. The twine that holds bing with the upholsterer's twine them does break and webbing and curved needle as shown in this diagram.

Next, turn the frame right side up, drive tacks part way in along the edges; then tie the springs across each way with upholsterer's twine as shown in diagram C. The twine is tied to the tacks and to each spring and regulates the height of the springs—the outside edges usually being lower than the center to make a rounded top. When the springs are regulated evenly, drive the tacks in; then replace burlap or muslin coverings and padding. Have you seen Mrs. Spears' book SEWING for the home decorator? Forty-eight pages of stepby-step directions for making curtains, slip-covers and other household furnishings. Woman's Prerogative

In the year 1901 one daring woman did something no woman had done before. Anna Edson Taylor stuffed herself into a barrel 3 feet in diameter and 4 feet high, braced herself with cushions, had herself pushed out into Niagara rapids. When the barrel was brought to shore again she. dazed, blurted out that she had changed her mind and didn't want to go over Niagara falls. When told that she had already done so, she fainted.
