The approaching marriage has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krueger of their daughter, Ruth, to William Kempf. They will be married on May 28.

A marriage license has been issued by Washington County Clerk Carpenter during the past week to Henry Dettmann, Route 3, Kewaskum, and Lorena Kutz, Campbellsport.

Geo. F. Brandt Honored In Woodman Magazine

Chief of Police George F. Brandt of this village, consul of Camp 2233, Modern Woodmen, Kewaskum, was honored with a tribute in the May issue of The Modern Woodman magazine. The article was accompanied by a half-ton cut, a fine likeness of Mr. Brandt, showing him in his police uniform. The writeup reads as follows:

"The accompanying likeness is that of Neighbor Geo. F. Brandt, Camp 2233, Kewaskum, Wis., who has a record of accomplishments worthy of the envy of any active man. He was recently installed as consul of his camp for the twenty-sixth consecutive term, and during his long tenure of office, missed only two camp meetings, those on account of illness. Kewaskum's only police officer, Neighbor Brandt has the reputation of being one of the best auctioneers in his section of the state; he is also a veterinarian with a wide practice, and still finds time to devote to affairs of his Modern Woodmen camp, in which he is intensely interested."

NOTE—The quoted article above overlooks Deputy Sheriff George Kippenhan and Traffic Officer George J. Brandt Jr. in the statement that Chief of Police Brandt is Kewaskum's only police officer.

New Baseball Park To Be Dedicated With Opening Game Here on Sunday

Grafton Plays Kewaskum. 42 Piece Band to Furnish Music. Mayor Rosenheimer to Throw First Ball. Other Entertainment. Large Crowd Expected.

PLAY BALL! That will be the old welcome call again on Sunday afternoon, May 15, when the Grafton baseball team will come to play the Kewaskum nine on the local diamond in the opening game of the 1938 season in the Badger State league, one of Wisconsin's strongest circuits. The season was scheduled to start last Sunday with Kewaskum playing at West Bend but rain postponed the game, as well as the other scheduled league game, until some future holiday date. The local team made the trip to West Bend but on arrival rain began to pour down and the affair had to be called. So, Sunday's contest will mark the opening of the baseball season along with the opening home game.

Sunday the first games of an eight-day game schedule will be played. Besides Grafton at Kewaskum, West Bend will travel to Kohler to play.

DEDICATION EXERCISES

Starting at 1:30 p. m. sharp dedication exercises of Kewaskum's new baseball park will take place. The new $700 grandstand which is now completed and ready to seat 500 people will be dedicated as well as the spacious playing field and other additions. Although not all minor repairs and improvements are completed, it will be worth the price of admission just to see the park and enjoy the entertainment to be held, without the ball game.

FORTY-TWO PIECE BAND TO PLAY

Music will be furnished all afternoon to pep up the baseball players and entertain the crowd. The Kewaskum Community band of 42 musicians, organized recently, will make its first public appearance Sunday. The band, under the direction of Harry Furlong, is composed of older, experienced musicians of the village and community along with younger musicians from the high school and Wayne bands. Their music will be a real treat to the fans.

OPENING DAY CEREMONIES

The combined opening day and dedication exercises at 1:30, besides the band, will feature an address by former Washington County District Attorney John Cannon of West Bend and a flag raising ceremony.

Following the program the baseball game will begin at 2:30 p. m. Mayor A. L. Rosenheimer Jr. of Kewaskum will pitch the first ball and Arthur W. Koch of the village, league secretary, will be on the receiving end. Get there early!

PROBABLE LOCAL LINEUP

Manager "Fritz" Kral, veteran catcher, has had the local team members practicing regularly in the past few weeks in preparation for the opener despite poor weather conditions and the players are eager to get started and do their best to win Kewaskum a pennant this summer.

The probable lineup for Kewaskum as the team takes the field Sunday will include H. MARX, PITCHER; KRAL, CATCHER; SPANGLER, FIRST BASE; MILLER, SECOND BASE; FELDA, SHORTSTOP; BIXBY OR ULLRICH, THIRD BASE; KUDEK, LEFT

High School Baseball Tournament Here May 21

The four-team high school baseball tournament to be held on the new baseball field in Kewaskum Saturday, May 21, is rapidly taking shape as a big event.

The four teams seem to line up in about this manner:

Hartland boasts a good team, with a pitcher, Gerbenky, who lost only one game in the Land of Rivers league last summer.

Waldo has a good all around team with plenty of defensive strength.

Slinger has a good pitcher in Oelhafer, who held Kewaskum to one hit in four innings recently and should be a strong contender for the championship.

Kewaskum has split in two games with Waldo, lost one game played to Hartland and won one game from Slinger.

The drawings for the morning games will take place at 9:30 a. m. The first game is scheduled to begin at 10 a. m. and the second game will be held immediately after the first.

The afternoon games will begin at 1:30 p. m. when the morning losers play for third place. The championship game will begin as soon as this game is finished. The trophy for the championship team will be on display at the Grand View Lunch Room next week.

Save Saturday, May 21, for high school baseball. You are sure to get your money's worth.

County-Wide Pageant Planned at West Bend

A huge pageant depicting the settlement and development of the Northwest territory, of which Wisconsin is a part, is to be given by a group of players under federal sponsorship at the West Bend City park on Saturday, July 16. The pageant is being brought to West Bend through the efforts of the West Bend Chamber of Commerce. The pageant travels from community to community similarly to the settlers of the Northwest territory, that is by ox team. It is a big show, featuring a large cast. The West Bend Chamber of Commerce plans to make the showing of the pageant in West Bend, one of the few cities in the state on the show's itinerary a county-wide event, and for this reason county-wide committees are being created to help toward a successful staging of the show.

Attorney H. O. Schowalter, West Bend, Washington county assemblyman, has been named general chairman of the showing of the pageant in Washington county. He is selecting a number of sub-committees to help him in the successful showing of the pageant. The personnel of these committees will be made public at a later date, as will further information concerning the pageant itself.

School Wins Second at Dist. Music Festival

The girls' glee club of the Kewaskum High school, under the direction of Miss Margaret Lea, won second place in their division at the annual District Music festival held at Columbus, Wis., last Saturday, according to a notice received by the school this week from the contest chairman. First place honors were awarded to the Ripon High school chorus.

The glee club sang two numbers in the vocal contest which took place in the Broadway M. E. church, Columbus, at 9:50 a. m. Taking into consideration the fact that the local chorus was competing with groups of over fifty voices, the school feels that they did very well. Kewaskum competed with twenty other schools.

More than sixty students of the school made the trip. Besides the glee club, members of the high school band also attended the contests. The band went mainly to attend the band tournament and to see the parade, beginning at 4:15 p. m. Thirty-seven bands participated in the parade down Ludington avenue and in the tournament. The local band did not compete this year because it was too recently organized and the required instruments have not all been made available.

On Saturday of this week, the school will again be represented at the District Music festival, Columbus, in the solo and ensemble contests. An a cappella sextet, under the direction of Miss Lea, will sing at 8:06 p. m. Saturday evening. The six girls singing in this group are Audrey Koch, Charlotte Romaine, Pearl Hron, Eunice Manthel, Bernadette Kohler and Annabelle Grothenius.

In the vocal solo division, Kewaskum has only one representative, Charlotte Romaine, who will sing at 1:50 p. m.

Organize Community Concert Band Here

Kewaskum is to have a newly organized community band. Harry Furlong, instructor at the local high school, and a musician of note, recently organized a high school band of some thirty pieces, and has made such rapid advance with this band that it is now ready to make its public appearance. The band has been working hard all winter and the young musicians have made strides in their work and have accomplished much.

Recently Mr. Furlong asked other older and more experienced musicians to join his school band and assist the youngsters in their work, which they did, and after several rehearsals together, decided to organize what will be known as the Kewaskum Community Concert band, consisting of 42 pieces. The object is to increase this number to 50. Anyone musically inclined and desiring to join this organization may do so by handing in their names to Director Furlong at the local high school.

Last Monday evening an organization was perfected and officers were elected as follows: President, Lloya Hron; business manager, Paul Landmann. Other officers will be elected shortly.

This band will play next Sunday afternoon at the dedication of the new grandstand at the new baseball park, when the Kewaskum team of the Badger State league opens the season with Grafton. Turn out and hear this excellent musical organization and see a real ball game.

Revised Schedule of Badger State League

Because of the last minute withdrawal of Plymouth and Fond du Lac from the Badger State baseball league due to lack of support and players, the league at present is composed of only four teams. Therefore the original official schedule for the season was dropped and a revised one has been adopted instead.

With this new schedule the season will be shortened to eighteen games rather than the former twenty. The split season has been abandoned and no holiday games were included. Holidays will be reserved for the playing of postponed games, according to Geo. H. Schmidt of Kewaskum, league director. The new arrangement provides for all teams to meet each of the other three teams six times during the season, three games at home and three away. The season was scheduled to start May 8 and will be concluded on Sept. 4.

The new schedule is as follows:

MAY 8—Kewaskum at West Bend; Kohler at Grafton. (Both games were postponed because of rain and will be played at some future holiday date).

MAY 15—Grafton at Kewaskum; West Bend at Kohler.

MAY 22—Kewaskum at Kohler; West Bend at Grafton.

MAY 29—Kohler at West Bend; Kewaskum at Grafton.

Men of the Mounted

"SOAPY SMITH" CHANGES HIS MIND

A MORE notorious political racketeer never lived than "Soapy" Smith. For years he and his gangsters did just as they please up and down the west coast, and when "Soapy" decided to hit for the Yukon during the historically famous gold rush, he took most of his gang of ruffians, cut-throats and robbers with him. Almost overnight "Soapy" gained complete control of Skagway, and soon the town was wide open multiplied by ten.

Skagway's streets became battlefields where provoked and unprovoked gunfights occurred daily as some of "Soapy's" ruffians robbed and plundered outgoing, well-heeled goldrushers and incoming goldseekers alike. At night, raucous voices singing lewd and filthy songs were augmented by cries of "murder" from the street. Might was right in every sense of the word, meanwhile all sorts of gyp-artists, card sharps, confidence men, and shell-game crooks robbed and plundered right and left, keeping out of trouble because "Soapy," the Big Boss, had arranged the police and judiciary to suit himself.

"Soapy" and his lieutenants planned and executed hundreds of robberies and swindling schemes, growing richer and more powerful while the town of Skagway was about to escort about $200,000 in notes and gold from Lake Bennett post, to Victoria, British Columbia, via the port at Skagway. Surely this was too juicy a plum for "Soapy" and his gang to miss. Moreover, up to this time, both "Soapy" and his henchmen had balked at any "job" that might make them step into Canadian territory. Even the reputedly daring "Soapy" entertained a healthy respect for the Men of the Mounted.

Here was a job they could pull right on American soil where, by rights, the Men of the Mounted had no business. And so "Soapy" and his brain-trusters sat down and schemed, planned and arranged for every emergency. This was to be the job of the decade. "Soapy" organized an army of 100 well-armed men, engaged boats, and planted scouts here and there; the commissioner of the Yukon territory bade good-by, and good luck, to three Men of the Mounted, Inspector Wood and two constables. Their load consisted of their own personal kits, and the $200,000.

After many anxious miles during which the three Men of the Mounted followed the Skagway trail, and nodded the time of day with furtive-eyed rascals who were evidently "Soapy's" scouts, Inspector Wood and his men arrived at Dyer where they immediately boarded a waiting rowboat and were soon rowing out across the bay. Halfway across several well-armed men in a rather large rowboat manned by half a dozen stout-muscled oarsmen, did their best to intimidate the Northwest Mounted and made several attempts to bring the two boats into a collision. Inspector Wood, handling the steering oar, warned the ruffians to keep their distance or he would fire upon them, and, thus arguing back and forth, the two boats finally crossed the bay without any shootings or drawings. Upon arrival at the wharf, however, Inspector Wood and his men received a rough and tumble reception from almost a hundred ruffians lined up and ready for the big robbery. As the Men of the Mounted stepped to the wharf carrying their $200,000 they were tripped and jostled and pushed about hither and yon as they tried to make their way toward a small steamer that lay alongside awaiting their coming. Kicked and pushed and tripped, and otherwise held up and delayed, things began to look really serious. The great robbery was imminent. And then, just when it seemed that the Men of the Mounted were about to be smothered by the mob, the captain aboard the steamer tooted the vessel's horn, and instantly a score of armed members of the Royal naval reserve were over the side and down among "Soapy's" gang. In no time the Men of the Mounted and their $200,000 were snatched from the mob and were aboard the steamer.

"Soapy" Smith, surrounded by at least a score of his most trusted gunmen, had witnessed the whole show from the deck of a tug that was "treading water" nearby. Although he had seen his best plans go haywire, he was still smiling and conversation with Inspector Wood.

"Like ter have yer stay 'round Skagway a day er two, 'Spector," said "Soapy," "it's a mighty nice town . . . y'kin have any'ting yer want . . . Name it . . . an' it's yours. How 'bout it? 'Spector?"

"Thank you, Mr. Smith," the inspector replied, coolly, "but I must be about my business. I'd advise you to keep off Canadian territory in the future, as you have done, so very well, in the past. Good afternoon, sir."

AROUND THE HOUSE

To Peel Oranges Quickly.—Put them in boiling water for five minutes or so. This will also make them juicier.

Cooling Bread and Rolls.—Freshly baked loaves and rolls should be cooled on a wire rack or inverted baking pan; never on a cloth, because that causes steaming which results in soggy crusts.

When Baking Apples, Etc.—Use muffin tins for baking apples, onions, stuffed peppers, etc. They will keep their shape much better.

Salt for Lard Shortening.—Many cooks add a small amount of salt when using lard for shortening in pastry and pies. This insures better results and flavor.

CAN WE CHEAT DEATH?

Science Admits, But Life Expectancy Can Be Raised

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE
Since the world began man has sought to cheat death. Some have looked for the Fountain of Youth; others, more scientific, admit earthly immortality is impossible but cling to the hope that man's visit here before he may be lengthened. Foremost pioneers in this work are America's insurance companies who currently celebrate Life Insurance week. The combined mass of statistics gathered by these firms during the past century has given America an amazingly accurate picture of how long the average man can expect to live, and what he can do to live longer. These figures, linked with reports of sensational medical developments, today give John the public good reason to believe he will live longer than his great-grandfather. He may even dream of the day when science can give him new mechanism to replace his decaying vital organs. But artificial hearts are as yet intangible. A more startling fact is that science has given the United States more than 4,000,000,000 years of life. The American Revolution. A man born 150 years ago could expect to live from 30 to 35 years, but seven years ago the newborn had a life expectancy of 59 years—a girl baby four years more than a boy.

This chart, prepared by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, shows how America's death causes have varied since 1901. Degenerative diseases, including heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage and cancer are rising. So are accidents and suicides. Communicable diseases include smallpox, typhoid, yellow fever, leprosy, malaria and cholera.

claimed to be 100 or older, the figure is open to question because nearly 2,500 of these were colored people who simply "guessed" their ages. If 100 years is the maximum average, it offers a far-away goal for scientists who have thus far increased life expectancy to 59 years. To increase the average only 10 years is a monumental task that would necessitate almost complete removal of the diseases now responsible for juvenile mortality. Ailments causing infant deaths must be strangled. Tuberculosis among young people, communicable diseases—and especially venereal diseases—would be stamped out, and advances in psychiatry would eliminate the menace of suicide. All this, and our life expectancy would be raised a scant 10 years!

2,000 Years of Progress.
No forward stride can be expected overnight. Expectation of life has been increasing slowly for almost 2,000 years, and we are now much more fortunate than Roman infants in Caesar's day who could look forward to only 20 or 25 years on earth. Insurance companies are both selfless and benevolent in their campaigns to increase longevity. The fact remains that every firm nowadays takes a deep interest in its policy holders' personal health. Many companies offer yearly examinations and distribute literature to help its customers get healthy and stay healthy. No definite set of health rules can be applied to all men. But physicians agree that a long life is encouraged by following certain general laws. They may be placed un-

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
NEW YORK—Georges Bonnet, France's new foreign minister, has been a vigorous advocate of a British-French-American alliance. He is regarded as more in accord with the Chamberlain policies than his predecessors. With the downfall of the Left government, the conclusion of an Anglo-Italian agreement and the appointment of M. Bonnet, interpreters of European politics see an advance toward a four-power pact, possibly five-power, with Poland in, and the further isolation and immobilization of Russia.

The abandonment of the French-Soviet treaty is expected to be an immediate issue in what is regarded as a sharply clarifying outline of dominant conservative policy in France and England.

M. Bonnet, shrewd, suave, dressy, is a somewhat rakish figure, with his hat usually on the back of his head, but a personage of power and dignity in the political forum. He is of the younger school of French politics, and, in that connection, one of the best Jai Alai players in France.

At his country place at St. Georges de Didonne, he spends much time making incredible kangaroo leaps, playing pelota basque, as they call it there. But, in statesmanship, he is no rubber-heeled bounding basque. He is rather a wary and adroit fence. When he was appointed ambassador to the United States in January, 1937, he brought with him a year's supply of truffles and pate de foies gras. He had to take most of it back, however, as, in July, he was recalled to save the franc in the Chautemps cabinet.

He was supposed to have saved it, but, as usual, it didn't stay saved, and in the turn of the Ferris wheel, which is French politics, he was down under and up again.

He is an economist, but also a philosopher and author, in the chamber of deputies from southwest France at the age of thirty-six and a former minister of budget, pensions and finance. He budgets a few wisps of hair carefully across his bald pate and surveys the world warily through gold-rimmed spectacles.

JAPAN'S strongly authoritarian government, with its feudal carry-over, has never fitted exactly into any of the molds of ultra-modern French and Anglo-American politics. The intensifying issue of fascism may force out the present government, and a former minister of budget, pensions and finance. He budgets a few wisps of hair carefully across his bald pate and surveys the world warily through gold-rimmed spectacles.

Sugiyama Tells Diet to Behave
Sugiyama, 59 years old, has been vice-minister of war and head of the military air force. His heavily underslung face, resting, neckless, on a heavy torso, is asymmetrical, with one eyebrow always cocked, one side watchful and the set of a Benda mask of a dictator. He is of the army caste, graduated from the national military college. He represented Japan at the 1928 disarmament conference at Geneva, remaining in Europe for several years thereafter.

Tibetan Black Magic
He reported a coffin containing the body of a man seven years buried was brought before the Lama. At word of command the "dead" man opened his eyes, advanced to the throne, bowed, and retreated to his coffin where he apparently became lifeless again. Dr. Cannon reported he made all the usual medical tests and pronounced the man dead. But the Lama assured him that in another seven years the body would again be resurrected!

Elephant Remembers
An elephant walked along a road near Rangpur, Bengal, a man in a garden shouted and made faces at it. The beast ambled into the garden, but the mahout restrained it while the mocker fled to safety. When the elephant returned along the road the same night it rushed at its tormentor's house and badly damaged it.

WHAT TO EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Describes the ACID- and ALKALINE-ASH FOODS and Explains Their Role in Maintaining the ACID-BASE BALANCE of the Body

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ACIDITY is the topic of the hour. On every side we hear people complaining that they have too much acid in their systems, that they suffer from acid stomach, acid headaches, acid mouth, acidosis. In fact, most adults fancy themselves victims of a great battle between acid and alkaline forces, with the acid having the better of it.

They confuse gastric acidity—which is entirely normal, for the healthy stomach is always strongly acid—with the potential acidity of foods which leave an acid residue following digestion. And many of them are convinced that they should take drastic steps to overcome the danger of acidosis.

The Vogue of Acidosis
There are fashions in disease, just as in dress, home furnishings and automobiles. Ten years ago, we heard much about the evils of auto-intoxication, and it was some time before people realized that they had been misled by the extreme claims of those who had some sort of remedy to sell. And now it is acidosis that is the most talked of complaint. Friends caution one another against this or that food, with the mistaken idea that it causes or aggravates an acid condition. Food faddists have frightened thousands by suggesting that acidosis is brought about by mixing various kinds of foods.

Health Endangered
Indeed, we have come to a point where the fear of a so-called acid condition is assuming proportions which indicate the possibility of real trouble unless the American people get the true facts and put aside these foolish delusions.

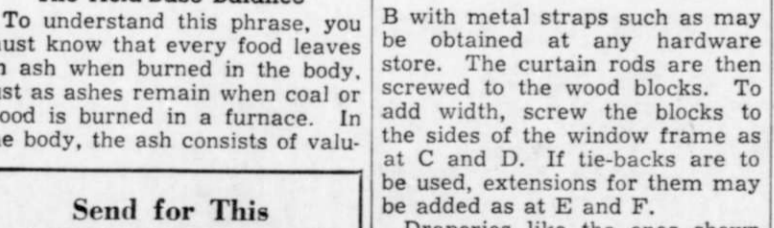

Physiologists believe that fear and worry have a detrimental effect on digestion, and, in turn, on the general health. Thus eating meals in constant fear of acidity may upset the digestion and bring about the very symptoms that you are trying to avoid. One well-known authority contends that perhaps 90 per cent of digestive distress, attributed to the kind or combinations of food eaten, is actually due to unfavorable mental or emotional states, and other causes such as over-eating, even when fatigued, or consuming at one meal too many foods that are difficult to digest. If, therefore, becomes apparent that thousands of people are contributing to their own discomfort as a result of fear, ignorance, or a blind belief in misleading claims which are opposed to scientific facts.

Acidosis Uncommon
The danger is not from acidosis, but from the fear of this bugbear, and from self-medication in the belief that certain remedies are required to overcome a fancied condition. For in spite of the large amount of acid produced in metabolism, the blood normally remains remarkably constant and slightly alkaline, due to a highly efficient buffer system.

The Acid-Base Balance
To understand this phrase, you must know that every food leaves an ash when burned in the body, just as ashes remain when coal or wood is burned in a furnace. In the body, the ash consists of valuable minerals which are required in large amounts to maintain optimal health.

Some foods, such as meat, fish, eggs and cereals, leave an acid ash because the predominating minerals are phosphorus, chlorine and sulphur. Other foods, chiefly milk and most fruits and vegetables, leave an alkaline ash because the remaining minerals are principally calcium, magnesium, potassium and sodium. These are the base-forming foods.

To Make Windows Higher and Wider
THE windows shown here are the same size. The center one is made to look taller by adding an extension at the top. The one on the right is made wider with extensions at the sides. Tall windows lend dignity and a note of formality. By placing the tie-backs quite high this effect is emphasized even more.

Showing Which Foods Are Acid and Which Alkaline
ONE of the principles in planning a balanced diet is to include at least enough alkaline, or base-forming foods, to balance the acid-forming foods.

To help you distinguish the foods that belong in each group, C. Houston Goudiss offers to send a free chart listing the principal acid-ash and alkaline-ash foods. Address C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th St., New York City.

Have You a Question?

Ask C. Houston Goudiss

C. Houston Goudiss has put at the disposal of readers of this newspaper all the facilities of his famous Experimental Kitchen Laboratory in New York City. He will gladly answer questions concerning foods, diet, nutrition, and their relation to health. You are also invited to consult him in matters of personal hygiene. It's not necessary to write a letter unless you desire, for postcard inquiries will receive the same careful attention. Address him at 6 East 39th Street, New York City.

digestion. But the fact is that the body performs a clever bit of chemical engineering and the final effect on the blood is alkaline.

Homemaker's Responsibility
A balanced diet must include sufficient base-forming foods to neutralize and counter-balance the effects of the acids formed in metabolism.

That is one reason why it is so important for the homemaker to provide her family with plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, in addition to the necessary meat, fish, eggs and cereals. In general, one is likely to feel better when base-forming foods predominate, at least slightly, in the diet over acid-forming foods. Some authorities believe that this may be due not so much to their effect on the acid-base balance as to the fact that they provide such splendid amounts of vitamins, minerals and fiber. However, one must not make the mistake of becoming so enthusiastic over building a highly alkaline diet that one overlooks good foods necessary to round out a balanced diet. To those homemakers who take seriously the important job of feeding a family, and wish to be correctly informed, I shall gladly send a chart showing which foods are alkaline and which acid. It can be used as a helpful guide in planning a balanced diet. Send for this chart and increase your food knowledge. In the meantime, don't under any circumstances allow misguided individuals to frighten you into joining the vast army of acid-minded people who are so concerned over the possibilities of acidosis that they haven't time to enjoy life.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T. R.—No, egg whites most certainly are not toxic, except to people who have an allergy toward this food. For all normal individuals, they offer an excellent source of protein.

Mrs. H. McK.—Generally speaking, the ideal weight for men and women over thirty is their normal weight at the age of thirty. From that time on, the scales should be watched, and the food intake reduced as soon as a gain is noticed. When maturity is reached, food is no longer required to support growth, and unless muscular activity is maintained at a high level, the total energy requirement will gradually decline.

Miss M. V.—Indeed I am not against the eating of fried foods, except in abnormal conditions where, for some reason, the fat intake must be restricted. The moderate use of fried foods, which have been properly cooked, makes the diet palatable and interesting.

STOP USE OF FLAMMABLE LIQUIDS FOR HOME DRY CLEANING

Often the question is asked "How can I use naphtha, gasoline or other flammable liquids safely for cleaning purposes at home?" A good answer to that question is "There is no reasonably safe way."

Though naphtha or gasoline or other flammable liquid is used for cleaning garments outside, the fact still remains that naphtha, gasoline and other flammable liquids have a very low ignition point. Washing garments, moving them, rubbing or scrubbing them in any highly flammable liquid is enough to cause a static spark which may ignite suddenly the highly explosive fumes always present near the surface of the solution. When an explosion of this kind occurs out in the open air, the person using the flammable liquid may be burned just as severely as if the accident had occurred in the home, except that the house may not be damaged by such explosion or fire.

There are approved non-flammable cleaning fluids that can be used safely in the home. Such liquids are more expensive than naphtha or gasoline and the housewife may feel that there is very little economy when using them.

Rather than clean with gasoline, naphtha or other flammable solvents, spend a few more cents for a safe liquid or send garments to the cleaners, who are prepared to do that kind of work safely. It may cost a little more money to operate the safe way, but it will be less expensive in the long run.

Every day news reports are received from different parts of the state bringing the gruesome news that someone was seriously or fatally burned because a flammable solvent exploded during a cleaning process. Dramatically, news items tell of the unfortunate experience someone had while cleaning floors or garments with flammable solvents.

The home users of gasoline or other products derived entirely or in part from petroleum or crude oil should never keep in mind the fact that one unexpected accident may horribly disfigure them for life, and that it is the unexpected that always happens with the use of gasoline or other flammable liquids however they are advertised or labeled.

CHAPTER I
A greyhound was running in the dark. Not running away, but running with a sort of aim, in the direction of a small house in a row of cottages...

"Hello, Penny!" Sarah Lynn said. Miss Ethelinda Pennington had been her governess in the old days and was still a component part of the Edwin Dana household. Sarah Lynn Dana was the lode star of her existence and she had not said ten words of praise to her in the 17 years she had lived with her. She spoke now in shocked rebuke.

"Running!" "Running away! Really, Sarah Lynn, at your age! I wonder at you!" "Not running away; running round and round in circles, the way I always do, Penny," her charge said bitterly. "Never getting anywhere."

"You're one a' the dark ones." Sarah Lynn murmured and her mother was upon her, big and beautiful, sunnily sweet. "Darling!" she cried. "I know you couldn't have realized how late it is! Are you quite all right? Then it doesn't matter! You'll be down just as soon as you possibly can—in your sweet new dress!" She kissed her. "Hurry, darling. Oh, Duncan! This naughty child walked farther than she realized and she hadn't a watch, but she'll be ready in two minutes!"

"You're one a' the dark ones." Sarah Lynn murmured and her mother was upon her, big and beautiful, sunnily sweet. "Darling!" she cried. "I know you couldn't have realized how late it is! Are you quite all right? Then it doesn't matter! You'll be down just as soon as you possibly can—in your sweet new dress!"

ly, walked away, stood looking up at the stars. Suddenly a single planet separated itself from its fellows and moved smoothly across the sky. Shooting star? Flying star? Plane. Sometime, she told herself, sometime she would fly away in the night.

Home-coming Danas always paid prompt respect to the matriarch. Sally Ann Dana, constant traveler and occasional author, would not even stop for her casual unpacking before she made her devoirs to the ancient head of her tribe.

"I thought you would like to go. It is to be a grand ball, and everybody wanted to go. I had much trouble to get it for you."

LITERARY GEMS Maupassant's 'Necklace' Is Perfect Tale

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES SHE had been born a poor girl and she had married a poor man. Yet Madame Mathilde Loisel, heroine of Guy de Maupassant's "The Necklace," did not give up life so easily. She dreamed of lovely things. Within her surged the power to charm, to sway emotions. One day her husband returned from work with an envelope which he eagerly handed her. Reading the contents, she began to cry. He was astonished.

The week of the ball arrived, but still Madame Loisel was not happy. Her husband inquired the reason, and she deplored her lack of jewels. He suggested her wealthy friend, Madame Forestier, a friend of convent days. At the home of her friend, Madame Loisel surveyed all the jewel cases and held each ornament up to see the effect. Finally she inquired if she might use the diamond necklace. Her friend assented and gave her the precious string of jewels.

At the ball, Madame was a triumph. All the men asked for introductions, and all the women inquired who she was. Her eyes shone with the fulfillment of her day-dreaming. It was early morning when they started for home. Standing before her mirror for a last glimpse of herself on this glorious occasion, Madame Loisel uttered a shriek. The necklace was gone! Her husband rushed to her side. When had she last noticed it? Where could it be? He started out to search for it hardly knowing where to look.

At seven in the morning he returned without it. They searched the streets, the police. They put an advertisement in the papers. At the end of the week they had not found it, so they made the rounds of the jeweler's shops. A necklace almost identically like the lost one, cost 40,000 francs, but they could get it for 36,000 cash. By using all their savings, and by borrowing at ruinous rates, they bought the new rope of diamonds.

When Madame returned it, she did not wait for her friend to open the box, for fear she might see the difference. Then began the paying back of all this borrowed money. They moved into a garret, dismissed the maid, and lived as laboring people. Madame lost her physical beauty. From haggling over prices she became loud and coarse. At the end of ten years they paid off the debt and could again face the world.

My Friend Joseph

THOUGH a strong wind was blowing, driving sheets of rain across my front yard, I wasn't surprised to see Joseph, my little seven-year-old neighbor, making his way up the front walk. Yesterday was my birthday and he was here when the postman brought me a five-pound box of candy, and Joseph has a weakness for good chocolates.

He comes puffing in and while he sheds his waterproof coat he looks around for the candy. But all the candy spots are vacant. My bonbon resistance is below normal on bad days and I have put all the sweets away and resolved not to bring them out for a week. But now from past experience I know that without once asking me for any candy Joseph will soon have me bringing out my five-pound box and urging him to take all he wants.

"I thought you would like to go. It is to be a grand ball, and everybody wanted to go. I had much trouble to get it for you." "And what am I to wear?" "What would a new dress cost? She calculated rapidly to see how much she thought he would give her, and then said, "Four hundred francs will do."

Once Upon a Time There Was a

Baseball announcer who announced an entire game without utilizing the adjective "beautiful" in describing the weather, the crowd, or the plays.

"Then," he says with enthusiasm. "I'd rub my lamp an' when that old genie came I'd tell him to bring me a motorcycle just like the road cops ride only littler, an' a police uniform an' a machine gun that could shoot forever an' a five-pound box of candy just like the one you got for your birthday yesterday. And," he adds with a smile that shows all of his dimples, "I'd bring you down about half of the candy."

The object of his visit has been attained. And he leaves with his pockets full of my birthday chocolates, the rain having let up somewhat.

"Even after months in England my wife sometimes had to call upon the housemaid to translate some item in the laundry list, or to interpret between her and the grocery boy," declares Mr. Harry A. Franck, the irrepressible globe-trotter in "Footloose in the British Isles." "In England a 'vest' is an undershirt, not a waistcoat. 'Suspenders' are garters, and 'braces' are suspenders. A child's underwaist is a 'bodice,' while rubber boots are 'Wellingtons.' The word 'sweater' still strikes many of the English as a trifle low-class and odoriferous; they call it a 'jersey,' 'jumper,' 'pullover,' or 'cardigan.'

"In the draper's shop (which means drygoods store) unbleached muslin is 'calico' and calico is 'cottonprint.' Cheese-cloth is 'butter muslin,' and instead of using cutting flannel for a child's pajamas one buys 'wincelette' and asks for a 'sleeping suit.' A spool of thread is a 'reel of cotton.' An American who asks for crackers will get firecrackers or a package of those Christmas paper bonbons that explode when pulled. In England a cracker is a 'biscuit,' and biscuit is a roll. A muffin is something else again, and cookies are as unknown as if the word were Persian.

"Our kind of bacon is 'streaky rashers'; a slice of ham is a 'gammon rasher,' and the best cut of beef is a 'piece of topside.' Gasoline is 'petrol,' kerosene is 'paraffin,' and paraffin is 'paraffin wax.' An English cook does not rinse the dishes, she 'swills' them. When my wife told the nursemaid to bathe the children, or to give them a bath, the maid proceeded to 'bath' them or give them a 'bathe.'"

Wise and Otherwise

Some people look on the bright side of things so persistently that they wind up the proud possessors of a gold brick.

Some men make money hand over fist. And then their wives make fist hand over money.

Big men get the best jobs. I'm told. Because the small men are so often overlooked? Then there was the man who was so lazy he bought a Great Dane so he wouldn't have to stoop over to pet it. Money doesn't grow on trees. Just the same, it's the smart birds that get it.

Growing Virtue

Bees will not work except in darkness; thought will not work virtue work except in secrecy. Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth! Like other plants, virtue will not grow unless its roots be hidden, buried from the eye of the sun. Let the sun shine on it, nay, do but look at it privately itself, the root withers, and no flower will glad thee.—Thomas Carlyle.
