Weddings of Three Popular Couples

MATHIEU-HAUG
Miss Lorinda Elizabeth Mathieu, popular young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Mathieu of St. Killian, became the bride of John Haug of Campbellsport in a very pretty spring wedding ceremony performed by the Rev. J. B. Roedel at 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday of this week, May 17, in the St. Killian church. The church was decorated with cut flowers for the occasion.

The bride was given away in marriage by her father.
Attendants of the bride were Mrs. Roderic Reese as matron of honor, and the Misses Loretta Campbell and Rosemary Haug, all of Kewaskum, as bridesmaids. The bridegroom was attended by Roderic Reese as best man and Frank Mathieu and Jacob Kleinmans as the ushers. Little Miss Beverly Kleinmans was the flower girl.
The bride was attired in a charming white silk marquisette over white satin gown with a veil in coronet effect trimmed with rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of token roses and snapdragons. The matron of honor wore a blue silk crepe gown and had a bouquet of roses and snapdragons. The bridesmaids were attired in peach chiffon gowns with matching bonnets of net and ribbons. They also carried bouquets of roses and snapdragons. The flower girl wore a blue organdy dress.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was decorated with cut flowers and blue and peach crepe paper. In the evening a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the St. Killian auditorium for a wedding dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Haug left on a wedding journey to New York and upon their return will be at home to their many friends at Campbellsport after June 15, where the bridegroom, who is a graduate of the University of Georgia, is engaged as a prospering young farmer.
Guests from away who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Roe Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Krueger, Lola Rosenthal and Wallace Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hammes of Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. George Blingenheimer of Fond du Lac, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Strobel of Watertown, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Haug and Mrs. Math. Kohn of Kewaskum, and Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Campbell of St. Bridget's.

BUTZKE-KEMPF
The Rev. C. J. Gutekunst read the nuptial service uniting in marriage Miss Lauretta Louise Butzke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butzke of the vicinity of Dundee, and John Herman Kempf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kempf of New Fane, in a ceremony performed in the St. John's Lutheran church at New Fane last Saturday afternoon, May 14, at 2 p. m.
The bridal party entered the church and proceeded to the altar to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bride was attired in a white silk lace gown in rose design with a train, having a row of small buttons down the back and a Queen Ann collar trimmed with clusters of seed pearls. The waist was fashioned with a heart-shaped yoke. She wore a tulle veil from a cap of lace, also trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet consisted of calla lilies.

Attending the bride was Miss Ruth Krueger, a close friend, as maid of honor, and Miss Verna Butzke, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, William Kempf, and Elroy Butzke, brother of the bride.

The maid of honor wore a Blue Danube marquisette gown fashioned with a bolero jacket, trimmed with blue satin ribbon. The skirt, which was banded with a wide ribbon of the same, bore a design of flowers. The bridesmaid was dressed in a gown of peach red trimmed with peach colored satin ribbon in ruffles at the sleeves and hem line of the skirt. Both had bouquets of sweet peas and snapdragons.
A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony where a dinner was served to 100 relatives and friends. Decorated in white, blue and peach with white bells and baskets of lilies, the home was a pretty picture. In the evening a wedding dance was held in Kofars's hall at New Fane, which was very largely attended.

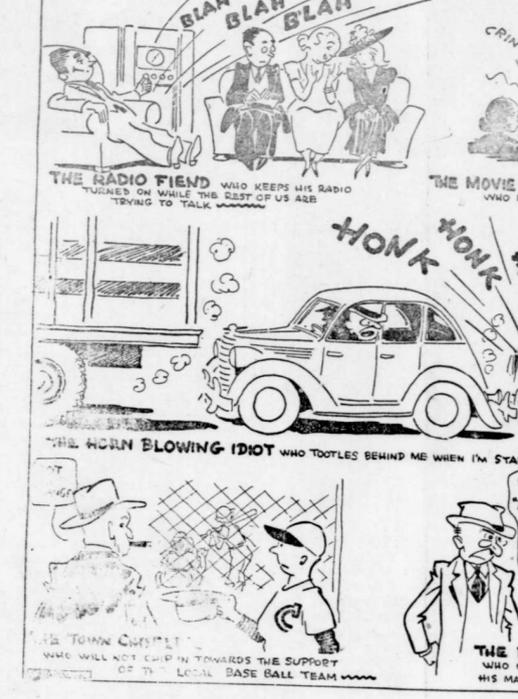

Mr. and Mrs. Kempf will reside on a farm near Beechwood, known as the Carl Heberer farm, where they are now at home to their many friends.

KUTZ-DETTMAN

A quiet wedding took place last Sunday, May 15th, at 7 p. m., when Miss Lorena Kutz, daughter of Mrs. Emma Heider of Dundee and Henry Dettman, formerly of Beechwood, were married in the Dundee Lutheran church parsonage by the Rev. Walter Strohschein. The attendants were Herbert Heider, the bride's brother, and her friend, Miss Marcella Wachs. The couple will reside on a farm south of Wayne.

More than one-fourth of the farm families in 12 southern cotton states are reported not to have a dairy cow.

Charlotte Romaine Wins In District Contest

At the annual District Music contest held in Columbus, Wis. last Saturday, May 14, Charlotte Romaine of the local high school won a first rating in the Class C soprano solo division. Opening Baseball Game is Postponed

For the second successive week the Kewaskum baseball team was refused the opportunity to open its 1938 Badger State league season when rain and hail caused postponement of the contest last Sunday. The game scheduled for May 8 at West Bend was also cancelled for the same reason and will be played Memorial day.

A large crowd was prepared to attend the opener and witness the gala opening day ceremonies and dedication here Sunday. The large 42 piece band was present but was forced to remain indoors when a heavy rain, accompanied by hail, began falling shortly before one o'clock. Showers continued for two hours, making it impossible to proceed with any of the plans made.

The local team's next home game is scheduled for June 5 and ceremonies to observe the opening and the dedication of the new grandstand and playing field. The band will play on that day and everything will be held as was scheduled for last Sunday so reserve June 5 to attend the baseball game here. West Bend will meet Kewaskum on that Sunday.

This coming Sunday the local team will make another attempt to open the season and will travel to Kohler. Accompany the boys and see some of the fastest baseball in the state in Kewaskum's first game.

County-Wide Pageant Committees Are Named

At a meeting in West Bend Monday night, sub-committee chairmen and in several instances committee personnels were named by Atty. Henry O. Schowalter, Washington county assemblyman, general chairman of a West Bend Chamber of Commerce executive committee sponsoring the showing of a huge pageant depicting the settlement and development of the Northwest territory, of which Wisconsin is a part, to be given by a group of players under federal sponsorship at the West Bend City park on Saturday night, July 16.

Atty. Schowalter had the assistance of the executive committee in making his selections. The chairmen and members of the various committees will be made public, it is expected, following a meeting of the committee chairmen in West Bend next Monday night, May 23.

The Northwest territory pageant is being brought to West Bend through the efforts of the West Bend Chamber of Commerce. The chamber is planning to make its presentation a county-wide event because its appearance in West Bend is one of the few on its itinerary in the state.
The pageant features a large cast, which travels from community to community in a laborious manner similar to the original settlers of the Northwest territory, i. e. by ox teams. Further details concerning this impressive show will be made public in later issues of this newspaper.

Beauty Standards Alter With Years, Says Betty Wells

By BETTY WELLS
EACH generation, and almost every individual, feels pretty superior on the subject of taste. In short, what we like is good taste—while bad taste is the prerogative of the other person. Isn't bad taste always something associated with somebody else rather than ourselves? But what about the person we accuse? Perhaps, in fact very probably, he thinks the same thing about us. And rarely, indeed if ever, does one generation fail to scorn the taste of the preceding generation.

Broadly, taste reflects standards of beauty. Yet we constantly hear authoritative artists and decorators say that there have been throughout art history certain recognized standards of beauty that can be accepted as beauty. We are convinced that there are no hard and fast standards, no set definitions. That beauty is a spiritual quality, like love. That it is individual and ephemeral, like happiness. That we can't measure it or make rules about it. So we try not to be glib about our taste. And so positive about what is beautiful and what is ugly. Because time and tastes change, and we don't see why we must consider our taste so superior to that of the gay nineties, just because it is different. If we like it, that's enough.

ADVENTURES OF PETER RABBIT

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

SURELY no one was ever in a tighter place than was Peter Rabbit when Reddy Fox chased him under the brush pile in the Green Forest and then Old Man Coyote and Granny Fox and Reddy Fox and Redtail the Hawk watched all the rest of the long day for him to come out. He couldn't stay there forever because, you know, there was nothing to eat and Peter, like most folks, just has to eat. But Peter has a great deal of wisdom in his funny little head, even if he does sometimes do very foolish things, and one of the wisest things that Peter does is never to give up hope.

So when Peter crawled under that pile of brush and so escaped Reddy Fox his first thought was one of thankfulness. He didn't know how he was ever going to get back to the dear Old Briar Patch, but he was safe so long as he stayed where he was, and he was very thankful for that.

After he had rested and quite got his breath Peter began to look around to see just what kind of a place the old brush pile was. He saw right away that just so long as he stayed there he was perfectly safe, for the brush was so thick that Reddy Fox could never crawl under. "It's a regular castle," thought Peter.

Now Peter didn't know much about castles. If he had he would have expected to find somewhere a secret passage. All castles, you know, have secret passages. Anyway, they are supposed to. But Peter didn't know this, and so when he came to an old stump right in the middle of the brush pile and between the roots of it found a hole he was surprised. But he was just as much pleased as he was surprised. He pulled out some of the leaves and sticks that filled the doorway and went in. There was a long hall which was very dark, and Peter knew by the smell that it had not been used by anyone for a very long time.

"It's an old house made by one of Johnny Chuck's relatives," thought Peter. "I wonder if there is a good bedroom where I can take a nap."

He kept on down the long hall, and sure enough presently came to a snug bedroom. He was just about to make himself comfortable for a nap when he noticed another hall.

"I wonder where this goes to," thought Peter. "I believe I'll find out."

So very carefully Peter crept along the other hall. It was very much longer than the first one. By and by he saw a little daylight ahead and knew that he was nearly to a doorway. Like the first doorway, this one was partly closed with dead leaves and sticks. Peter peeped out between them. Then his heart gave a great jump. That doorway wasn't under the old brush pile at all. It was almost under the very tree in which sat Redtail the Hawk keeping watch, and it was nearly hidden by a little hemlock tree growing close by. Peter chuckled, a still little chuckle, that no one should hear. Then he stretched himself out to watch and wait. When the black shadows began to creep through the Green Forest Redtail flew away to get Hooty the Owl to take his place, for you know Redtail cannot see at night. Then very carefully, Peter pulled aside the leaves and sticks and tiptoed out, taking care not to make the teeniest, weeniest sound. As soon as he dared he began to run, lipperty-lipperty-lip, and soon was well on his way to the dear Old Briar Patch.

BEAUTY HINT

Strengthening the Fingers

Hands require as much care as the face if a woman is to retain her all-around beauty. An important and effective exercise for strengthening the fingers is stretching, using a yardstick which shows how far you are extending them. Posed by Cecilia Parker.

TWO-MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
At sixty-nine, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain has tackled one of the toughest governmental jobs in Europe. He comes fresh from six grueling years as chancellor of the exchequer, assuming the new task at a more advanced age than any man since Campbell-Bannerman. Yet he has taken over more work than any prime minister since Lloyd George, who was only fifty-three when he began heading the wartime group back in 1916.

Nor is the prime ministership Mr. Chamberlain's only job. In 1924 Ramsay MacDonald took over both the premiership and the foreign office, thereby establishing a record. Chamberlain has taken the premiership plus about one-half the foreign secretary's duties. All this has been done at a time when the premiership alone has all but crushed two men, and foreign affairs have unseated three foreign ministers in three years.

Mr. Chamberlain is also leader of his party in the house of commons, which means he must be at his "bench" every afternoon.

Physically he is slight, but he possesses so much wiry vigor that he bears the task better than would some of his predecessors.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Making Patterns for Slip Covers

STRIPES are popular for slip covers this season. Don't forget to center a striped pattern in the back and the seat of a chair. The crosswise use of stripes may also have possibilities as for the bottom of the chair shown here.

Generally the main pieces of a slip cover are fitted and cut right on the piece of furniture with a generous allowance for seams and a tuck in around spring seats. For small shaped sections, such as the fronts of some chair arms and parts of some wing chairs, paper patterns may be made to use in cutting the fabric.

Pin the paper to the part of which you wish to make a pattern, as shown here at A, then mark the outline on the paper feeling your way along the edge line with the side rather than the tip of the pencil point. Cut the pattern 3/4 inch outside the outline as shown at B. This allows for a seam and slight ease in the slip cover which should never be taut at any point. When gathers are needed to shape the fabric over rounded parts, gather the edge and arrange the gathers with the cover piece pinned in place as shown at C.

Directions for making various types of slip covers are given in my book, SEWING for the Home Decorator; also many types of

Impossible Conditions

What would happen if an irresistible force hit an immovable object? The only answer to this old question is that it presupposes impossible conditions, the two terms being mutually exclusive. You cannot conceive of a force that is irresistible being stopped by any object, nor can an immovable object be moved by any force. As the existence of the two conditions at the same time is impossible, it is also impossible to say what would happen if they did exist.

Passionate Playing Brought Fame

PAGININI played the violin with astounding brilliance. So great was Pagini's virtuosity as a great violinist stated that Vienna that he saw the artist assisting him. With long hair and emaciated figure it is the proverbial genius. Where the most romantic stories were told about him. In England one story was that Pagini had been a political prisoner in a dungeon for 20 years. In the dungeon he played all day on a violin that had but one string. In this way he had gained his dexterity.

This story, like many about the famous violinist, is not true. It is true, however, that as a boy of eleven or twelve he would practice a single passage for ten hours at a stretch before he was twenty he had retired in Tuscany with a noble lady where he studied practiced excessively. Pagini's passionate and brilliant playing won him the award of the Order of the Spur, great wealth and fame. The perfection of his art during the 100 years of his life. Pagini's birth made possible the great popular success. One violin was made by Giuseppe a famous violin maker of Cremona, Italy. With this violin Nicolo Pagini displayed his virtuosity to his highest point.

County Agent Notes

COUNTY-WIDE PLAN FOR BETTER SIRE

Initial steps were taken at a meeting held at the court house in West Bend on Wednesday evening, May 11th, to organize a Holstein Breeders' Cooperative association. About twenty of the leading Holstein-Friesian breeders of the county were present. From these a committee of five were delegated to the breeders to perfect and incorporate the organization. Those elected to serve on this committee are: Herbert Schroeder, West Bend; Edwin Held, Hartford; Herbert Lepien, Hartford; Christ. Mayer, Slinger, and Paul Horlamus, West Bend.

Mr. Herbert Schroeder, who served as chairman of the meeting, said that the business of the newly formed association shall be: (1) To promote the breeding of purebred and high grade Holstein-Friesian cattle. (2) To take steps to improve the quality of dairy cattle within the county by providing according to an approved plan a method by which farmers may obtain bull calves of recognized superior breeding.

In past years Washington county has earned an enviable reputation for its high standard of dairy cattle. Its dairymen who have traveled the show circuit have been consistent winners in county, state and national shows. Eastern and other out of state buyers frequently visited the county to make purchases of high class foundation stock.

During the depression it is felt that a number of the herds have degenerated below the standard set by Washington county dairymen. This was brought about largely by the fact that during these years many farmers found it impossible to purchase herd sires of the quality and heritage they had been formerly buying. The plan as it is now being worked out by the committee representing the county breeders makes it possible for any farmers to obtain a good sire to head his herd.

There is no initial cost whatsoever to the farmer for the bull calf. He receives it free from the association. The farmer does, however, agree to feed and care for the animal until maturity, for which he receives the right to use the sire in his herd. When the animal has reached maturity, it is returned to the association which will make suitable disposition of it.

The ownership and pedigree of all calves placed with the dairymen will remain in the name of the association. Any farmer may at any time make an outright purchase of the animal.

No small measure of value will be derived by the purebred breeders of the county in placing such calves among the 4-H club members that take as their club projects two or more years of dairy herd improvement.

The county agent's office, working in cooperation with this newly formed association is anxious to place a reasonable number of these young bull calves with 4-H club members. A small number of good calves are now available. It is expected that the demand may exceed the supply. This is a real opportunity for 4-H club members to get purebred calves for their club projects without bearing the burden of the initial purchase price. 4-H club members who are interested should make arrangements with Mr. Skallskey as soon as possible.

In order to effectuate the purpose of the breed association, only purebred calves will be put out for use. These calves will come from dams in the better herds in the county. This high standard of inheritance qualification is the best reason why Washington county farmers should avail themselves of this unusual opportunity.

The merits of this program for the purebred breeder and for the dairyman are many. For the dairyman it makes possible the use of a high class purebred sire of recognized producing qualities without the investment of a single penny. For the purebred breeder it: (1) Promotes more efficient dairymen within the county, and encourages dairymen to use purebred stock. (2) Creates a market for purebred sire calves which results in improving the dairy interests of the county.

Washington county is the only county in the state offering a program of this kind to the farmers. Its success will depend largely upon the enthusiasm with which it is received by the farmer. It is truly an unusual opportunity for a farmer to head his herd with a high class purebred sire at no initial out-lay of cash.

KEEP YOUR NAME OFF LIST OF MEMORIAL DAY VICTIMS

Right now is the time to plan how you can live safely through Memorial day, May 30, the state highway commission declares. The double holiday last May brought shocking tragedies to several Wisconsin homes.

A little advance planning this week may save you from grief and suffering over the coming holiday, highway safety leaders point out. If you are going on a long trip, plan to start earlier than usual. The early morning hours, when travel is light and pedestrians are few, will be your safest motoring time. Keep off the main, crowded highways after dark, if you possibly can. Death always lurks where traffic is high and visibility is poor.

Don't drive too long or too far. A weary driver becomes a careless driver, and carelessness leads to trouble. Remember that 213 traffic officers will be patrolling the highways looking for drunken motorists; don't try mixing your alcohol with your gasoline, or you may finish your ride in a squad car or ambulance.

Avoid stunt driving. don't try to teach some friend to drive a car, and never take chances. Keep your speed uniform with the flow of traffic, use hand signals and remember your headlights dimmers.

You wonder how many will be killed in Wisconsin over the Memorial holiday. Don't be one of the victims yourself. Intelligent planning, plus careful driving, may keep your name off the next casualty list.

O. K. FOR PUMP PRIMING House Passes Three Billion Spending Bill With Only Few Alterations

Congressman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the labor committee, affixes her signature—the first one—to the petition which was signed by 217 other house members to force house consideration of the revised wage-hour bill. With Mrs. Norton are, left to right, Congressman R. J. Welch of California, J. Burrwood Daily of Pennsylvania, Arthur Healey of Massachusetts and Edward Curley of New York.

Three Billion Bill Passed

BY A vote of 328 to 70 the house of representatives passed the President's three billion dollar spending bill and sent it on to the senate. This action came during a turbulent session.

A motion to send the bill back to committee so that state administration of relief might be substituted for federal supervision was defeated. In addition to direct appropriations calling for the expenditure of 2 billion 519 million dollars, the measure carried authorizations to spend an additional 635 millions of dollars, making a total of 3 billion 154 million dollars which may be spent by the administration in an endeavor to fight the depression.

The biggest fight came on a move to strike from the bill a section allowing states and municipalities to exceed their constitutional debt limitations. This motion was defeated, 90 to 66.

The farm bloc put over two amendments. One makes farmers eligible for relief whether or not they are found to be in need if they can prove they are out of work. The other provides that farmers need not be in needy circumstances to benefit from free fertilizer provided by the WPA.

At the last moment the members added 100 million dollars to the authorizations in the bill to be spent for rural electrification projects.

British Policy Attacked

FROM two sources the British policy of "realism" followed by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Halifax was fiercely attacked in the meeting of the League of Nations council at Geneva. The recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, asked by Britain, and the "desertion" of loyalist Spain, both implicit in an agreement denounced and denounced and denounced. Halifax could make but a weak reply in defense.

Haile Selassie, former emperor of Ethiopia, was present in person to address the council, and he handed in a long note purporting to show that his country was far from conquered by Mussolini, less than one-quarter of it being occupied by the Italians. He asserted the Ethiopian troops actually were gaining ground despite the use of poison gas by Italian airmen, and that thousands of Italians have deserted. The "Lion of Judah" had nothing to hope for in the way of direct aid, but his mere presence was decidedly disconcerting to the British diplomats. He demanded that his protest be taken up by the league assembly.

No vote was taken on the question of recognizing the Italian conquest, but Chairman Wilhelm Munters of Latvia, summing up the declarations of the member nations, said: "The great majority of members of the council, despite regrets, considers that it is the duty of members of the league to determine individually their own attitude in the light of their own situations and responsibilities."

Haile Selassie strode from the chamber without a word. His last chance was gone. Julio Alvarez del Mayo, foreign minister of the loyalist Spanish government, also attacked the policy of Britain, and of France, and denounced the absurdities of the international accord for nonintervention in the Spanish war. "Both from the trenches and from the seat

No Hope of Harnessing Cosmic Rays for Power

Every minute, on the average, 100 cosmic rays crash through the body of each living person. And each ray presumably smashes to bits some of the atoms composing the bones and flesh. Biologists suspect that by cumulative effect through the centuries cosmic rays have influenced the development of life, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

of government," he said, "we have watched day by day the incomprehensible desertion of certain democracies. We have watched them conspire with the aggressors. They have signed agreements with the aggressors which legalize this intervention in Spain."

He proposed that the league send a committee to investigate charges of Italian and German aggression in Spain. In this he was supported by W. J. Jordan, New Zealand delegate, and Maxim Litvinov of Soviet Russia.

Hull Not to Resign

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL characterized as "absurd and fantastic" published reports that he would resign because of rumored dissatisfaction over President Roosevelt's recent statement praising the spirit of the Italo-British pact.

Japanese Take Amoy

JAPANESE naval forces seized the important port of Amoy, South China, 600 miles south of Shanghai. All foreigners there were said to be safe, but American and British warships were rushed to the island on which the city is situated to protect their nationals.

The Japanese also reported new gains on the Shantung front where they were moving steadily toward the Lunghai railway despite stubborn resistance. Their airmen raided Suchow, killing many Chinese.

Revenue Bill Enacted

THE 300 million dollar revenue act of 1938, as patched up by senate and house conferees, was finally sent to the White House for the President's signature. The compromise measure retains a vestige of the undistributed profits tax, enough to save the administration's face. But the tax is limited to the calendar years 1938 and 1939 and it is expected to die then. Under the act, corporations earning more than $25,000 will pay a maximum rate of 19 per cent if no earnings are distributed in dividends and a minimum of 16 2/3 per cent if all earnings are distributed. There is a credit of 2 1/2 per cent against the maximum tax on the amount of dividends paid.

Rail Wage Cut Announced

RAILROADS of the nation and the Railway Express agency served formal notice on chairmen of rail brotherhoods of their intention to reduce basic rates of pay 15 per cent on July 1. The carriers through this action hope to reduce their annual payroll by $250,000,000. Approximately 925,000 railroad workers are affected by the move.

The long-anticipated announcement brought a defiant warning from the Railway Labor Executives' association that: "We will fight the action with every resource at our command."

Oil Production Cut

TEXAS and Oklahoma, the two major oil states of the midcontinent, reduced petroleum production drastically to prevent a price collapse. In Texas wells were ordered shut down on Saturdays and Sundays to effect a reduction of 16 2/3 per cent. Oklahoma oil men were ordered to cut production during May 81,000 barrels daily, to 405,000 barrels.

Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma said the states' speedy action to stabilize production was removal of a possible threat of federal regulation.

"This act proves," Marland said, "that the states are capable of handling their own affairs."

Despite the fact that the fraction of cosmic-ray energy reaching the earth is just about equal to that received here from all the billions of stars, excluding the sun, physicists declare there is no hope of harnessing the rays for power. Although no other form of radiation packs such a wallop, the energy of all the rays which succeed in battling their way to the soil would, it is estimated, just equal that produced by a one-quarter-horsepower electric motor.

Insuring Farm Mortgages

INSURING of farm mortgages has been begun by the Federal Housing administration under Steward McDonald, administrator. Amendments to the national housing act passed in February permit the administrator to insure mortgage loans made on farms on which farm houses or other farm buildings are to be constructed or repaired provided at least 15 per cent of the loan proceeds is expended for materials and labor on buildings.

Farmers who operate their own farms, individuals who rent their farms to others, and farm tenants and others who contemplate the purchase of farms are all eligible to borrow from approved institutions. The maximum amount which may be borrowed in relation to the appraised value of farm property is 90 per cent for loans of $5,400 or less, between 80 per cent and 90 per cent for loans from $5,400 to $8,600, and 80 per cent for loans exceeding $8,600.

Wheat Loan Program

ONLY a major crop disaster like a nation-wide drought can prevent the United States from having the largest supply of wheat this summer in the country's history. Consequently the Department of Agriculture is preparing to announce a huge wheat loan program designed to prevent prices from falling to extremely low levels. Under the new crop control act loans are mandatory if the 1938 yield exceeds domestic needs and estimated export needs, which are put at about 740,000,000 bushels.

At the same time Secretary Wallace, as head of the AAA, was contemplating the prospect of asking the wheat growers of America to make the heaviest reduction in plantings ever proposed. This reduction may be as much as 37.5 per cent. Growers who this season planted approximately 80,000,000 acres would be asked to reduce their operations to about 50,000,000 acres—the smallest since before the World War. Allotments then would be 12,500,000 acres less than for 1938.

Government estimates place the crop at between 925,000,000 and 950,000,000 bushels. The winter wheat estimate is between 740,000,000 and 750,000,000 bushels while the spring wheat crop is expected to reach 200,000,000 bushels.

Added to this will be a carry-over of 150,000,000 bushels or more for last year's crop of 874,000,000 bushels. The total supply is expected to reach an all-time high of approximately 1,100,000,000 bushels.

In addition to the loan program, Secretary Wallace will move to bolster the market through the new government crop insurance program. Already a campaign is under way to "sign-up" farmers for wheat insurance.

Wage-Hour Bill to Pass

WHEN 218 members of the house of representatives signed the petition to discharge the rules committee from consideration of the administration's wage-hour bill it became virtually certain the measure would get through the house easily. Chairman Mary T. Norton of the house labor committee and other proponents of the bill predicted it also would be approved by the senate, but admittedly it faces a bit ter fight there, for the southern senators are angered by the omission of differentials favoring the South. In its present form the bill provides for minimum wages of 25 cents an hour to be raised to 40 cents an hour over a three-year period and maximum hours of 44 a week to be reduced to 40 hours in two years. It would be administered by the Labor department and enforced by the Justice department. It carries no differentials between the different sections of the country.

Deal of the Dictators

IN THE absence of official statements, the foreign correspondents were forced to guess at the results of the meeting of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Mussolini in Rome. They felt certain that the friendship between the two dictators was strengthened, that Hitler assured Duce Germany would not try to absorb the German minority in South Tyrol, and that Mussolini promised Italy would not interfere with the Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Mussolini was believed to have received from Hitler recognition of Italy's economic and political interests in central Europe, and a promise the Italian port of Trieste would not lose all its Austrian traffic as a consequence of Austria's absorption by Germany.

JOSEPH DAVIES, wealthy lawyer, was nominated ambassador to Belgium by President Roosevelt. Davies will be transferred from Moscow which he and his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton Davies, found boring because of the lack of social life among the soviets.

Air Currents Spread Disease

Air currents do not confine themselves to carrying plant disease germs, but also transport some of the human ills. Harvard scientists have come upon facts which indicate that many respiratory infections may also travel by air. They have found that the tiny germ-bearing droplets of water expelled from infected humans float in the air until they evaporate, and then the hardy germs may be carried long distances to infect other humans.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—I have an idea that most readers of newspapers overlooked the importance of a recent decision by the Supreme court of the United States. It is only a narrow one, and then dismissed the matter from their minds. That result would obtain in many places because the average person, concerned with his own problems, would not pause to trace the application of a rather obscure principle of law even though it is the expression of the highest court.

The decision to which I refer was in the litigation that hereafter is going to be known as "the Kansas City Stockyards case." An official and legal title in a court proceeding ordinarily fails to identify it. So, "the Kansas City Stockyards case," it is and will be. But "the Kansas City Stockyards case" did very much more than bring a ruling affecting the immediate parties to that litigation; it applies to every agency of the federal government and, I suspect, its application eventually will be broadened to cover actions by agencies of states and lesser subdivisions of government. That is to say, the decision is of moment to you and me and every other individual in our nation. It is fundamental.

Let us see, first, what the controversy was in "the Kansas City Stockyards case." The Department of Agriculture, under a 15-year-old law, has rather broad powers of supervision over public stockyards, one of the greatest of which is the marketing yards at Kansas City. Under that law, the secretary of agriculture is empowered to fix the maximum rates of fees, commissions and other charges made against shippers of livestock into the yards. That is, the secretary may establish those rates "after the facts have been determined," and due consideration has been given to all rights and duties of the parties concerned.

Several years ago, complaint was made to the department that the Kansas City stockyards was charging unreasonably high fees. The department had no choice other than issue a citation, hold a hearing, determine the facts and issue an order. The law required that course. But, according to the records in the case, the hearing that was held was something of a farce. All of the complainants were heard, and the department's own investigators submitted their reports. It appears, however, that the stockyards company was never allowed to present its side of the case—did not have its day in court. Well, the secretary of agriculture, Mr. Wallace, issued an order fixing new rates; the stockyards company appealed to the federal courts and the case finally wound up in the Supreme court of the United States.

That court has now rendered its decision, and that is the reason for this discussion. The highest court did not mince words in overturning Mr. Wallace's rates. It did so, it explained, because of the arbitrary way in which he fixed the rates. They may or may not be fair; the court did not go into that question, but the court very definitely said that any respondent or defendant was entitled to have his side of the case presented and Mr. Wallace had not permitted the stockyards company its opportunity for a fair trial. It may or may not be news to the readers of this column to know that there are upwards of 50 agencies of the federal government that have authority to act as "legislative courts." That is, they are fact-finding bodies and from the facts thus found, the agencies are empowered to render decisions that are as powerful as a court decision, except that these agencies can not render a final decision unless those charged are willing to accept the finding as final. That is to say, the accused or those charged may go into court for a review of the action taken or the order issued. In "the Kansas City Stockyards case," recourse was had to the court. A precedent and guideline for future orders by this flock of legislative courts, therefore, has at last been established.

And why was the Supreme court's decision so important? The answer is that, in that one decision, the highest court in the land laid down a rule of law that again will insure the protection of personal rights. It said, in effect, that the action by Secretary Wallace had been a denial of constitutional rights of the individual and, being such, the secretary had acted as a dictator who recognizes no law. The decision was the more important for the reason that such a large number of these legislative courts exist. They have a habit of expanding and extending their powers; they take action which constitutes a precedent, and in a subsequent order go further than in the prior one. As precedent is built upon precedent, it happens frequently that after a period of years such an agency is exercising authority never intended by congress. The authority has grown up frequently because none of the respondents have money to contest the case further. It costs money to prove innocence when you are accused by your government.

Again, as to the importance of the decision from the standpoint of its scope: there has been an immediate and vigorous reaction by the national labor relations board. That crew started running immediately after the court's opinion was read. They tucked their tails between their legs and went quickly into a retreat from the bold and brazen position they had held against all who sought to challenge their authority. To see the swagger and braggadocio transformed so suddenly into a meek and lowly attitude—well, any one with a sense of humor could hardly keep from laughing.

There never has been a federal agency in my 20 years in Washington that has relegated to itself the arrogant authority, the dictatorial authority, shown by the labor relations board. If the national labor relations act were sound in every respect, the personnel that is administering it would destroy whatever chance it had of succeeding.

U. S. Senators Put Over a $222,000 Mileage Grab

WASHINGTON.—With a mighty chorus of "ayes," the United States senate put over a $222,000 congressional mileage grab. By another voice vote, the senate refused to restrict the payment of the mileage (20 cents a mile) to members who actually went to and from their homes between the special session ending December 21 and the regular session beginning January 3.

So, when the court ruling told the legislative courts to be fair with those accused or charged, the labor relations board smelled a number of legal proceedings against it. Its members recognized that there were cases it had "decided" that would not stand the test in the spotlight of a federal court for the reason that the respondents had not been allowed to tell their side of the story. There were cases, for example, where the board had heard its own investigators' testimony, the testimony of several C. I. O. organizers whose job had been to stir up trouble—and where the respondents had been informed that the board had "no interest" in what they had to say. There were other cases where board investigators had gone into factories and had used methods taught the world by Dictator Stalin's OGPU. Naturally, the board tried to get out from under.

The board's lawyers, recognizing the dangerous ground upon which their cases in federal court were standing, sought to withdraw their request for court enforcement. But Mr. Henry Ford, one of those whom the board and the C. I. O.-Lewis labor group sought to punish, felt that the case should be tried in court, and he is insisting through his lawyers that the proceedings continue. The Ford lawyers happen to be the lawyers who fought the famous Schechter case, and won it—which ended NRA. They are going after the labor relations board and when they get through, it is possible we will know how much power that board has.

Only One Side Heard

Along with the Ford case, the board has other troubles. The great Inland Steel company of Chicago, and the Douglass Aircraft corporation have decided they did not get a square deal from the New Deal board. They have asked federal courts to review their cases and decide whether the orders issued by the board were in accordance with the facts, and they have asked also for a ruling as to whether they had been denied legal rights.

It is made to appear, therefore, that the board may have to undo a lot of things it has done. It may have to admit, I so, that in some cases there has actually been maliciousness on the part of some of its investigators. Consider the Ford case, for example. If the board withdraws its original order, it will be saying in effect that the facts upon which it based that order were not the facts at all. That will be somewhat embarrassing, it seems to me. It will be more embarrassing, however, if it comes forth with a new order which is based upon a different set of facts. Either the first set obviously is wrong—no facts at all in one of the two instances.

There are other instances of other boards and commissions which have been exercising all too much authority for the good of the country, according to the way I see things. Few of them have been so blatant about it, however, as the Blatant relations board. Some of the agencies, notably the interstate commerce commission, has never been accused of unfairness, as far as I know. It may have made mistakes, or legal questions may have been tested in court, but that agency holds the respect of railway executives, shippers and labor alike.

This Board on the Spot

Justice and revenge work together, when in hand-to-hand fight, Macduff kills Macbeth. If Shakespeare lived today, he would be skillful with the horror movie. In "Macbeth" there are witches who prophesy direful happenings. A storm is background for murder. In a cave filled with bats, a fire smoulders beneath a cauldron. The elements of tragedy are many. Macbeth violated every duty: to his king, to his subjects, to his wife, to God. As hatred and murder increased in his soul, love and sympathy decreased, until his wife became to him as a stranger, who should have died when it would not have disturbed his activity.

Dogs That Originated in U. S.

Of the many breeds of dogs which are recognized by the American Kennel club, only three originated in the United States, says a writer in Collier's Weekly. The Chesapeake bay retriever, registered in 1878; the American fox hound, registered in 1886, and the Boston terrier, registered in 1893.

TODAY'S STORY Lord Macbeth Found Similar To Gangster

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

IF YOU were to take the man Macbeth out of William Shakespeare's play, he would make a modern gangster. He strongly resembles Al Capone and John Dillinger.

Macbeth was unfit for organized society, he did not adapt himself to the scheme of things, but rather he tried to fit the world around himself. Selfishness ruled his thinking, he wanted that which belonged to others. His ego desired to be the head of the outfit. After he had gained his position of power, his life continued to parallel that of a gangster. He suspected all men of being murderous. To protect his life he employed the most extensive system of spies. Yet his days were lived in constant fear. As do many criminals, he thought he could beat the laws of right and wrong, but a fearful life and violent death showed him that he was subject to the same world as other men.

Elizabeth James

Most everyone recalls the plot of "Macbeth" either from the book studied in school or from some stage production. A sketch will re-establish it.

Wife Leads Plotters. Macbeth, a general in the king's army, won a great victory, as the play opens. The king honored his favorite subject by planning to spend that night at his castle. Immediately Macbeth and his wife revealed that this is the opportunity which they have been planning. They will murder the king in their own castle, and no one will dare to suspect Macbeth, the hero. When her husband faltered in his scheme, Lady Macbeth forced him to the deed by calling him cowardly, for she knew how much he wished to be king. She prepared all the details of the deed, even drugging the bodyguards. She said that she would have stabbed the king herself, but he resembled her father as he slept.

HE DIED RICH The life span of William Shakespeare, from 1564 to 1616, was almost identical with that of Queen Elizabeth, great ruler of the English Renaissance.

Of his life not enough is known to satisfy the world's interest. There are legendary tales, besides written evidences left by his friends. To his boyhood belongs the incident of his poaching, to his youth the relationship with Ann Hathaway, and to his manhood, his rise from lackey at the play houses to owner and producer of plays. He accumulated over a quarter of a million dollars. Of his contemporaries, some envied him, some loved him.

Macbeth killed the sleeping king, and was the loudest in his surprise and sorrow when the deed was discovered the next morning. Banquo, close friend and fellow officer, dared to show Macbeth that he suspected the truth. Macbeth later had him taken for a ride and murdered because he knew too much.

Life as king did not bring joy to Macbeth. Fear mounted in his own heart, and he increased the number of spies in the homes of his noblemen. Murder followed murder. As soon as he felt that any man disliked him, he notified his killers. Hatred of Macbeth grew on all sides of Scotland. Finally the time seemed ripe, and Macduff went to England for help. From personal spite, Macbeth had the helpless wife and children of Macduff murdered.

Lady Macbeth Dies. Life for Lady Macbeth was one long punishment. She had to watch her husband's degeneration, knowing all the while that she might have prevented it. Finally, her subconscious mind got the upper hand. Sleep was not restful, but was dominated by thoughts of the murder of King Duncan, whose blood she kept seeing on her hands. She became totally insane.

In the last act of the play she died, and when Macbeth heard the news he said, "She should have died hereafter. There would have been a time for such a word." (But it would have been a more convenient time!)

Justice and revenge work together, when in hand-to-hand fight, Macduff kills Macbeth. If Shakespeare lived today, he would be skillful with the horror movie. In "Macbeth" there are witches who prophesy direful happenings. A storm is background for murder. In a cave filled with bats, a fire smoulders beneath a cauldron. The elements of tragedy are many. Macbeth violated every duty: to his king, to his subjects, to his wife, to God. As hatred and murder increased in his soul, love and sympathy decreased, until his wife became to him as a stranger, who should have died when it would not have disturbed his activity.

The average Eskimo is a bit of a scoundrel, a barman, and steeped in some witties or unwholesome humor he usually keeps out of the way.

At any rate, in the American named Eskimo Canadian named Baker lake, near Hudson bay, they were northward into the act as guides. When to start, however, was mos, the best guide refused to go. He had changed his mind, and that was it.

Uncle Sam's Air Mail Service Marks Its 20th Anniversary

Product of Pioneering Flavored Early Development of America's Fastest Postal Transportation; New York-Washington Route Was First

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

It was Mineola, N. Y. The date, sometime between the 23 and 30, 1911. An excited postmaster lifted his eyes to the sky and saw mail pouches plummet toward him from the cockpit of an early model army airplane.

It was the start of air mail, a national institution which observes its twentieth birthday anniversary. Officially, it dates back to May 15, 1918, when the first scheduled flight between New York and Washington under postmaster supervision. But in 1911 the intrepid Earle G. King made history by carrying about 37,000 pieces of mail between the pouches and flew back home.

And even in 1918—it was considered an impractical proposition. Today, in 1938, giant silver airliners glide to the nation day and night, carrying the written word of man to distant destinations in incredibly fast time. Last year 760,000,000 letters were flown by a service which has become an all-important factor in American industry.

It was in 1913, when the Army and Navy decided to experiment with night flying, that the first night flight was made. It was a flight between Cleveland and Chicago in DH-4s and Lee herding Jenny biplanes over the Washington-New York route.

Night Flying Experiments

But this was daylight flying, necessitating the sending of mail by train at night and materially lessening the usefulness of air transportation. It was not until 1925 that the first night flight was made. It was a flight between Cleveland and Chicago in DH-4s and Lee herding Jenny biplanes over the Washington-New York route.

Jack Knight, one of air mail's pioneer pilots, as he appeared in the aviator's costume of 15 years ago, shortly after his epochal night flight from Omaha to Chicago. Knight, now retired from active flying, is with United Airlines in Chicago.

weather. Even the next pilot had left the airport.

Knight, realizing the flight's importance, volunteered to take off for Chicago, a route he had never before flown, and under difficult weather conditions. He took off for Des Moines, passed over that city without incident and headed for Iowa City where he was due to take gas. Storms and low visibility hampered him until he reached Iowa City, where he circled 20 minutes seeking the airport. The field crew there had been told the flight was cancelled at Omaha and had left for home. Only a blessed watchman was on duty and he finally heard Knight's motor, igniting a flare to help the beleaguered pilot land. His gas supply replenished, he headed for Chicago to complete the most dramatic flight in air mail's history.

The system began rapid expansion. To supply the transcontinental line with proper loads, feeder routes were established between Chicago and St. Louis and Chicago and the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. In 1925 the Kelly air mail bill was passed authorizing the postmaster general to turn the work over to private operators. By the end of 1926, 14 domestic routes were being operated by private companies. The postoffice department relinquished all control except the power to grant contracts, which it guarded jealously.

Private operators prospered in 1925 when the rate of pay for air mail was changed to a poundage basis on a fixed rate not exceeding

$3.00 a pound for the first 1,000 miles. Immediately began an aggressive advertising campaign to popularize the system.

Changes were soon made to provide for the granting of air mail "certificates" which permitted carriers to apply for contracts. By 1930 profits became excessive, according to the government, and charges were changed from a pound basis to the space-mile basis. Carriers were further ordered to fill all available space with passengers, amounting to government subsidy of passenger traffic.

In 1933 came the dark hour for commercial aviation, when four major companies emerged through a merger of operators. It had been expected that the act of 1930 would produce keen bidding for contracts but the mergers resulted and the major operators in turn entered into gentlemen's agreements about which routes each should seek.

That state of affairs led to cancellation of all air mail contracts by the post office department in February, 1933. The army air corps was ordered to fly the mail. But army pilots were ill trained for cross-country and instrument flying. Twelve deaths and great loss of property resulted during the tragic experiment.

Aviation's story since the 1933 affair is a complex one, filled with legislative investigation and new congressional acts. It will suffice that public denunciation of the government's unsuccessful operation resulted in a return of contracts to private operators under conditions more satisfactory from a mutual standpoint.

Rates Have Dropped. Today the United States probably has an air mail service superior to that of any other nation in speed, its dependability and economy. Its history is one of constantly decreasing costs. Oldtimers who dispatched their first historic pouch from New York to Washington may remember they paid 24 cents an ounce, compared to the present rate of 6 cents.

Such is the brief story of Uncle Sam's latest venture in speeding the mails. Who can say that the pony express, colorful symbol of an earlier era, held more adventure than the night flights of pioneer birdmen who flew above the same trails several decades later?

Liberty Statue of Copper. The Statue of Liberty is built of copper sheets, 2 1/2 m. m. in thickness. Its total weight is 225 tons, of which 100 tons represent copper and the remainder iron and steel. The pedestal is of stone and the base is a solid block of concrete.

Lithuania Another Belgium. In the World War Lithuania was the battleground of the German and Russian armies, and suffered as much as Belgium, perhaps, as a result.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Two or three years ago, I was one of a group of newspaper men arguing about who was the best reporter who ever worked a copy and here. One old-timer was holding out for Roy Burton, whom he had known on the Brooklyn Eagle in the nineties. Burton, he said, was the best leg-man and digger, the most fearless, and the most gifted in fanning up a story out of nothing at all. He knew make-up, too, said the oldster.

The diligent reporter has been duly rewarded. He is the Sir Pomeroy Burton whose magnificent French chateau the duke and duchess of Windsor were looking over recently.

With the Northcliffe papers in London, he became a multi-millionaire, as he transformed British journalism with daring American techniques. He became a British citizen in 1914 and was knighted in 1923. In addition to his vast newspaper interests, he is a magnate of electric power and utilities.

He was a printer's devil on his father's newspaper in Youngstown, Ohio, and, at the age of twelve, was knocking about country printshops in Ohio on the same job. He became a compositor on the Brooklyn Eagle. Hearing of a vacancy on the news staff, he persuaded the city editor to give him a try at reporting.

He hired evening clothes to cover a society function. There, Colonel Hester, owner of the Eagle, was tremendously impressed with the personable young man with whom he was talking, and thought he had met him somewhere. Young Burton did not remind the colonel that he had seen the young man in a printer's apron a few days before.

He became city editor and managing editor of the Eagle, held important executive positions with the World and the New York Journal and was taken to England by Lord Northcliffe in 1904. Ten years later, he owned all but a few of the Daily Mail shares not owned by Lord Northcliffe.

In the World War, he virtually headed the organization of British propaganda, and many of the most damaging anti-German stories were attributed to him. His enemies charged that he had "debauched British journalism with degrading American sensationalism."

His friends insisted he had enlivened and regenerated it. He makes an occasional trip to America with a staff of valets and secretaries, suave, dressy and still fit and impressive at seventy-two, with more than a touch of British accent.

Over here, he always hated the name Pomeroy and shortened it to Roy, but picked it up again in England. He had been named for "Brick" Pomeroy, the cyclonic journalistic disturber of the latter half of the last century, and he held Mr. Pomeroy in low esteem. Pomeroy was almost, but not quite, a winner.

From a Wisconsin crossroads, he rammed around the country in newspaper and financial brawls, and, in his old age, just through sheer animal spirits, started plugging a tunnel through the Rocky mountains, at Georgetown, Colo.

He was flattened by the '93 depression and died soon after, with nothing to show for his life's work but a hole in the ground. Then it was discovered that the tunnel had gouged into fabulous mineral wealth in Kelso mountain. Eight years ago, the tunnel went on through the mountain, as the Moffatt tunnel.

REPORTING the return of Poulney Bigelow from a visit to his friend, the former kaiser, and his fervent approval of dictators, has become a matter of annual routine. It is an old story, but the freshness and vehemence of Mr. Bigelow's disgust with democracy and enthusiasm for fuhrers always makes it interesting.

He is the patriarch of Malden-on-the-Hudson, with relatives and descendants, all up and down the river. He will be eighty-three years old on September 10. His father, John Bigelow, was American minister to France under Abraham Lincoln.

He hunted birds eggs with the kaiser, forming a lifetime friendship, broken only by the war, which he charged the kaiser with having started. He recanted afterward and the two old men meet annually to salute "Der Tag" when only the all-wise and all-just shall rule again.

So Would We "That is a skyscraper," announced the guide. Old Lady—"Oh, I'd love to see it work."

RAMBLER

With about eight days of class work left, there are very few students who are not spending more time day-dreaming than absorbing those important "end-of-the-book" chapters. Now that the prom is over, we can look forward to the next big school event, the annual picnic. We wonder how many "cuds" of gum Miss Busch has collected from the students during the year. Incidentally, John Petri has given the Wrigley corporation one of the best business in years. And aren't we proud of Charlotte, our dependable "bringing-home-the-bacon" girl. In case you haven't heard, she won first place in her division at the District Music contest at Columbus. Wouldn't it be queer if someone would catch James McKee not shooting spit-balls? There's a certain freshman girl whose object of affection is a certain tall and handsome Romeo from Port Washington. How about bringing him around sometime, Mary? Have you heard that William Roehrdanz is contemplating a career in nursing and will enter the Cook County School of Nursing this fall? Good luck, William! And that ends our rambling for this week.
