NEW SEAWAY PROPOSAL

Secretary Hull's St. Lawrence Plan Arouses Strong Opposition in Congress . . . Wallace Again Rebuffed

Adolpho Echagaray Somohano, commander of the Mexican federal troops engaged in suppressing the revolt in San Luis Potosi state led by Saturnino Cedillo, is here seen, right, giving orders to two of his officers.

SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Hull's St. Lawrence Plan

DRESUMABLY by direction of the President, Secretary of State Hull submitted to Canada a new proposal for development of the St. Lawrence seaway, asking that it be considered as a basis for a new treaty which would be a revision and amplification of the treaty of 1932 that the senate refused to ratify in 1934. Under the terms of the Hull plan Canada would obtain without cost

Secretary Hull

a completed St. Lawrence deep waterway, ready for power development, and also other valuable concessions. The United States would obtain the privilege of building the seaway at its own expense, increased power development at Niagara Falls, and the recognition by Canada of American sovereignty over Lake Michigan.

Immediate and vociferous opposition to the plan broke out in congress, both Democrats and Republicans characterizing it as a scheme to buy the support of the Dominion for a gigantic water power development planned by the New York state power authority.

From the State department leaked information that not even Canada was expected to approve the probe promoted by spending millions on a waterway for which there is not sufficient commerce and for development of surplus water power for which there is no demand.

Hull's plan provides that the United States shall develop the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river at an estimated cost of 400 million dollars. This was denounced by Senator Wagner of New York. Senator Copeland, also of New York, announced he was against the seaway project "1,000 per cent." He called it "an all-British canal."

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee having jurisdiction of treaties, said the new proposals would not have a chance of ratification unless materially modified. Senators and representatives from the Middle West were especially aroused. Senator Clark of Missouri pointed out that the treaty would permit diversion of only 1,500 cubic feet of water per second into the Chicago drainage canal. He said the nation by radio networks. the Mississippi river must receive more water than that from the canal in order to fill a nine-foot channel.

Illinois was even more emphatic in disapproval. "This proposed treaty," he said, "is about the worst mistake Secretary Hull ever made. Under the terms of his proposal to set up an international commission basin, Canada would be given control over our all-American Lake Michigan.

"Furthermore, the treaty would prohibit any further diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago of more than 1,500 cubic feet per second. The Illinois and Mississippi rivers must have at least 5,000 c.f.s. to insure a dependable waterway."

Wallace Slapped Again

STERNLY chastising Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson for making assertions that were unwarranted and wholly unfounded, the United States Supreme court rejected the government's petition for a rehearing of the Kansas City stockyards rate case. Twice before the court had recase and had set aside his order fixing maximum rates which commission men might charge for services been denied a full, fair, and open of old, unused appropriations.

New Food Act Passed

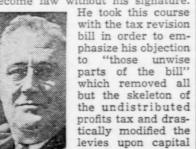

WITHOUT a record vote the house passed the new pure food and drug bill. The senate had passed a similar measure and the differences were to be reconciled in conference. The act brings drugs, therapeutic devices, and foods under regulation of the Department of Agriculture. It prohibits alteration or misbranding of cosmetics, 94 foods and drugs, requires adequate tests of products before they are placed on the market, provides for license restrictions to control bacterial contamination of foods, requires warning labels on habit-forming drugs, and provides for factory inspection.

"I call the definite attention of the American people," said Mr. Roosevelt, "to those unwise parts of Representative Claude Parsons of | the bill I have talked to you about today-one of them which may restore in the future certain forms of tax avoidance, and of concentrated investment power, which we had begun to end, and the other a definite abandonment of a principle of tax for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence | policy long ago accepted as part of our American system."

The President declared that he had no objection to removing any obstacles to little business which might be contained in the revenue laws but he reiterated the administration's determination not to allow the use of corporate forms to avoid what it considers legitimate tax burdens.

Mr. Roosevelt made plain that he hoped for a future revision of the revenue laws in line with the objectives he seeks. Such revisions, he said, should be designed to encourage new investment and the entry of private capital into new fields.

Another Recovery Plan

A BANDONMENT of experiments by the government and adoption of an industrial program based on experience was advocated by Charles R. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers before a meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce. "A return to sound economic reasoning and a common sense diagnosis is the sure solution to the problems of America today," Mr. Hook said.

Emphasizing that industry has a definite program for industrial recovery, Mr. Hook, who is president of American Rolling Mill company, outlined three cardinal points, including revision of the Wagner act, revision of the tax structure and banishment of existing and threatened government competition with private enterprise. "Remove these causes of fear and uncertainty," Mr. Hook said, "and private savings will rush back into the channels of private productive enterprise.

"We specifically urge amendments to the Wagner act to correct its one-sided character, to enforce responsibility on labor organizations, to separate the functions of fact finding, prosecution and judi-cial decision, and establish impartial administration by the national labor relations board.

Hybrid Corn Method Might Produce Better Farm Animals

East Lansing, Mich.-Breeding methods that have greatly improved the per-acre yield of | Psychical Investigation. corn will presently be applied to farm animals with equally beneficial results, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace prophesied lecture, delivered at Michigan State college.

Secretary Wallace himself pioneered the large-scale application of Mendelian genetical principles to corn breeding, in a day when corn judging was based solely on the production of big, handsome individual ears, regardless of yield per acre. Though he was only a young man, he persisted-in the face of skepticism on the part of his seniors -in producing inbred strains of corn genetically pure for the particular high-yielding qualities he desired, and then crossing them with other pure lines. This obtained the double advantage of combining the specifically desired qualities and at the same time endowing the offspring with the biological quality, still not well understood, known as hybrid vigor.

Applied to Animals.

Breeding of farm animals, such as dairy cattle, egg-laying chickens, and meat animals lags far behind corn breeding, Secretary Wallace declared. Selecting breeding stock on the basis of show-ring "points" is on a level with the old-fashioned methods of corn judging by individual ears. Performance tests based on egg-laying and butterfat-production records are somewhat better, but are still far short of certainty in selection and transmission of desirable qualities to offspring.

What is really needed, the speaker hammered home, is the selection of particular desirable qualities, the fixing of these in pure lines of sires and dams, and the uniting of these pure lines into high-production offspring by crossing. It will be the hybrid corn technique applied to an-

Carrying of this pure-line method of breeding into application in human eugenics did not appeal to Secretary Wallace as practicable. Antarctic Continent Was Discovered by American Philadelphia.-The Antarctic continent, once considered worthless but now the subject of international competition of claims and counterclaims, was first sighted by an American boy hardly out of his teens, in command of a tiny boat that would hardly be considered safe on a landlocked lake. This occurred on November 18, 1820, and the discoverer was Capt. Nathaniel B. Palmer, in the 47-foot sloop Hero of 45 tons register.

At the meeting of the American Philosophical society here Prof. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan told of discovering an old map in the collection of Yale university that definitely proves the claim of American priority in discovery in the Antarctic ocean, as commander was the discoverer of Antarctica. Entries in the Hero's logbook, now in the Library of Congress, confirm the data given by the map. It was not until 1832, 12 years after Palmer's discovery, that the coast was sighted by the British expedition which gave it the name by which it is still called on present-day maps, Graham Land.

Camels Formerly Roamed Plains of North America

Washington.-Camels and camellike animals that once roamed the West when it was really wild and woolly were described to the National Academy of Sciences by Prof. William Berryman Scott of Princeton university.

Camels actually originated in North America. Some of them migrated to Asia, others to South America where their descendants still survive as the llamas and alpacas. But in old days the camel population of North America was far richer and more varied than the present depleted assortment in the southern continent.

The last one was a creature now called Camelops, whose bones are found in the La Brea tar pits near Los Angeles. This animal may have survived until a human population had become well established on this

Feats of "Telepathy" Explained by Highly Trained Perception

London.—Science has probed the apparent telepathic powers of a well-known vaudeville performer, Marion, and found that there is nothing occult or super-natural about them. Neither are they due to extra-sensory perception.

Instead, they are due to supernormal development of the ordinary power of perception. A preliminary report of the investigation by S. G. Soal has been made public by the University of London Council for Marion, whose real name is Josef Kraus, had two especially significant accomplishments. One was the finding of a hidden object. There was absolutely no trickery to this, here in the Spragg Memorial Mr. Soal reports, and it was done without any physical contact with anyone in the room.

It was due, Mr. Soal found, to Marion's unusually sharp observation of the footsteps of a person walking behind him who knew where the object was. If all the audience was seated, Marion's ability to find the hidden object depended on his keen perception of involuntary head movements and changes of facial expression.

How He Recognized Cards.

The other unusual accomplishment of this performer was his ability to recognize any card he held in his hand. His skill at this was unknown to Marion himself until Mr. Soal tried it. Marion thought it was due to clairvoyance but after Mr. Soal's experiments it could be accounted for on the ground that Marion's acuteness of touch and his general alertness to sense stimuli are exceptional.

These findings do more than merely dispose of some claims to the power of clairvoyance and telepathy, comments the editor of the English medical journal, the Lancet. They show how highly perception may be developed.

The supernormally keen perceptive powers of Marion are of the order of those possessed by the great physicians of earlier days, the medical editor suggests. These men who practiced before the development of X-rays and laboratory tests had to rely almost entirely on their senses and their keen powers of perception in order to diagnose a case and foretell its probable out-

Men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is lovable for three weeks of the month—but a hell-cat the fourth.

No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smilling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional discorders which women must endure.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle of Pinkham's today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.

not act as Nature intended—fail to re-move impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder dis-order may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

FATTEN COCKERELS FOR EARLY MARKET

Poultryman Notes Ages for Economy and Quality.

When is the best time to fatten cockerels to market direct to butcher shops, hotels and homes? The answer is: For most economical gains in weight, fatten them at eight weeks of age. For best quality meat, fatten them between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks.

The United States Department of Agriculture found that when cock-erels were fattened for two weeks beginning at the age of eight weeks, they gained about 48 per cent in weight, compared with a weight gain of about 18 per cent in a twoweek fattening period beginning at 20 weeks of age. Between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks, the older the cockerels were when fattened the less efficiently they were able to put on extra weight. For each pound of gain during fattening, the eightweek-old cockerels required about four pounds of feed, the 12-weekold ones about four and one-half pounds, and the 20-week-old ones about six pounds. The 12 and 20week-old cockerels had the advantage of a larger proportion of choice breast and leg meat. The younger cockerels had a smaller proportion of choice meat after fattening, as well as before. Cockerels of all ages put most of their additional fat into edible portions other than leg and breast meat. Only a small part of the additional fat went into the breast meat. The proportion going into the thighs and the "drum sticks" also was small.

Cockerels used in the tests were obtained by crossing White Leghorn males with females from a cross of Barred Plymouth Rock males and Rhode Island Red females.

Herds of "Super-Cows," New Government Program

If the bureau of dairy industry reaches one of its objectives, the United States presently will have half a million "super-cows." With the help of federal funds earmarked the help of federal funds earmarked for this purpose, and with the co-operation of state and local dairy organizations, the bureau has launched a project to breed 30,000 herds of superior cattle. As the essential part of the program, it is hoped to obtain for each farmer interested a proved sire, or the son of a proved sire, for his herd.

Approximately 30,000 dairy farmers are now co-operating in the pro-Particular emphasis placed on securing accurate birth records. Herds involved, located in nearly every state, will be known ard course which the owners of other herds may eventually emulate.

The Department of Agriculture has recently published a pamphlet entitled "List of Sires Proved in Dairy Herd Improvement Associations." Though the names of the owners of the listed sires are omitted, a farmer interested can get the information from the agricultural college in his state, where the records are on file. The publication contains the names of nearly 1,600

tant to egg production that on many up-to-date poultry farms, hens get cod liver oil as regularly as if they were children.

See to it that green feed is provided for poultry. Alfalfa hay is excellent.

The soy bean is used to make macaroni, milk, soap, feed, fertilizer, enamels, varnish, linoleum, printing ink, celluloid, and lubricat ing oil.

Food Fads and Fallacies

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains How They May Endanger Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

As science and civilization have progressed, painstaking investigators have sought to replace ignorance with knowledge, to substitute truth for superstition. But in spite of their efforts, our eating habits are still influenced by a multitude of food fads and fancies, which should have no place in this enlightened age.

Fish Is Not a Brain Food

One of the most persistent fallacies is the notion that certain kinds of food are especially beneficial for certain parts of the body. Many people believe that fish is a brain food and celery a nerve tonic. Lettuce is thought to be a soporific. None of these things is true.

The idea regarding fish probably arose because fish contains phosphorus and the brain also contains phosphorus. How simple it would be if one could increase brain power merely by eating fish. Unfortunately, there is nothing to it? The brain, like other parts of the body, requires a balanced diet. No case has ever been reported of a man soothing the irritated nerves of his wife by feeding her celery. And as for lettuce, it is a fine source of minerals, vitamins and gentle roughage, but it does not contain any narcotic drug that in-

Other Fallacies Disproved Science has exploded many common notions about vegetables which may change your ideas of what is best to buy and eat. Many homemakers prefer lettuce that is light green in color and they believe that string beans which snap are superior in quality. But it has demonstrated that deep green lettuce is much richer in vitamins and that a snap in string beans merely indicates that the beans have been kept in a cold,

A score of superstitions cling to the eating of fruits. There is a false notion that acid-tasting fruits cause or aggravate rheumatism. because they produce "acidity." gardless of their acid taste, leave an alkaline ash following diges-

One often hears that fruit should not be taken at the same time as milk because the fruit acids will cause the milk to curdle. But the fact is that milk is always curdled in the stomach by the hydrochloric acid.

Not Necessary to Sip Milk Another false idea is the widespread notion that milk must be

One day he fed a man a pint of milk in 10 seconds. The next day the same man was fed the same amount of milk in 10 minutes. On both occasions the contents of the stomach were examined a half hour

It was discovered that the milk which was drunk in 10 seconds had formed smaller curds than the milk which was sipped in 10 minutes. And in both cases, the curds were of practically the same con-

Water With Meals? It is widely held that water should not be taken with meals, the argument being that it dilutes the gastric juice and thus interferes with digestion. This sounds logical and many people have been fooled. But the truth of the matter is that water stimulates the flow of the digestive juices and careful research has established that normally, water taken with meals in reasonable quantities aids digestion.

A widespread belief which has a small portion, but only a small portion of truth, is that whole wheat bread is vastly superior to white bread. Whole wheat bread contains more minerals, vitamins and roughage than white bread. But the minerals and vitamins lacking in white bread can easily be supplied by other common foods, and there is no justification for going to the extreme of omitting white bread entirely from the Fad Diets Lack Balance Far more harmful than the fallacies regarding individual foods are the fad diets constantly put forth by those who seek to exploit the homemaker's desire for dietetic knowledge.

Foods Not Incompatible

A fad diet which has gained a large number of adherents in recent years is based on the notion certain foods - notably starches and proteins-are incompatible and should not be consumed at the same meal because they cannot be digested at the same time. It is interesting to note that this fad has been condemned by the medical profession and that a physician of the highest standing has proved clinically that starches and proteins do not interfere with one another in the

"Say, is that Gunnar Thorwald? Feller that flew the ocean?" the attendant wanted to know excitedly. "Yes."

"Well—gosh! Hey, Eddie! That's Gunnar Thorwald! You know—the Norwegian ace?"

The other came running. "The deuce it is! Why, sure—that's his ship, all right. Hi, fellers!" he waved a beckoning arm. "Know who that is?-Gunnar Thorwald!"

Sarah Lynn was aware of a gathering group as the plane took off. "Can you feature that?" one of the workmen said in a low tone. "Just came down to dump her, huh?"

"Yeah; threw her out like she was a sack of mail." "And look at her! What's the big

A large and noisy element was added to the crowd, pouring out of the bright waiting-room, a man in evening dress, a girl in bridal costume, half a dozen men and girls with flowers and old shoes and rice and confetti, all staring at Sarah suddenly, of the curious throng. Her face flamed. She gathered up the blanket and shook it and tried to wrap it around her.

"We haven't another plane tonight."

"I must telephone my father," Sarah Lynn said. "Where-" The bride ran after her and caught hold of her arm. "Say, listen, sister," she said in a high, sweet voice, "are you in a jam?" "I'm quite all right," Sarah Lynn said stiffly. "Well, is that nice? Throwing you out like a stack of mail! Is that a good old Norse custom?"

"I want to telephone-" "Here-I'll show you!" She picked up her glistening train.

Sarah Lynn followed her. "Is this Fresno? "Well, for Pete's sake! Didn't you know where you were landing? Yes, this is Fresno, and here's your booth. I'll wait for you." "Thank you," Sarah Lynn said coldly. "It's not necessary." She looked fully at her for the first time and took in the details of white satin and filmy veil and orange blossoms. "I mustn't keep you from-"

"Oh, that's all right!" she said "It's just one of my wedeasily. dings! The youth lit a cigarette and strolled away, but kept within hearing distance.

"I want Danavale 3704. Yes. It's a suburb of San Jose. I want to ng along over a speak to Mr. Dana-Mr. Edwin Lynn Dana."

There was at once panic and reassurance in the sound of her father's voice, thick, drowsy, amazed. "It's Sarah Lynn. I'm at Fresno. Fresno. F-r-e-s-n-o! Why, I flew down. Flew! With Gunnar Thorwald. What? I don't know where Duncan is. Oh, Dad, please-I'll explain everything when I see you. How can I get home? I haven't any money." She was silent, listening. "Yes, at the Fresno airport. "Getting out, please! I'm perfectly all right. Yes -I understand-Mr. Pond, Californian hotel." Her voice, thin, strained, hoarse, warmed suddenly. "Oh, Dad, it was glorious—glorious!—yes. Good-by."

The young man came close to her, speaking with controlled excitement. "You're Miss Dana? From Danavale? I used to work on Sorry," Sarah Lynn began From Danavale? I used to the newspapers in San Jose. "He did not!" she defended him hotly. "It wasn't his fault-I mean, he didn't intend-" she stopped, confused.

"Why did he dump you out like that? Didn't you ask him to set you down at Fresno? But you didn't know it was Fresno, did you? I guess maybe it was a pretty wild party, wasn't it? Do you mind telling me just how-"

The bride put a protective arm about the forlorn, thin figure. "Lay off the interview, Beanie! Isn't it ness and went about a girl's privilege to get out and the countryside sowwalk home when she wants to? Probably the Great Dane got a lit-tle too primitive and she—"

"There's a flock of cars here. I'll have somebody drive you. Look— I'll come with you myself!" "Please don't trouble," Sarah Lynn was rigid. "I want a taxi, please.' "No trouble, lambie! Hi, Larry!" she hailed the groom. "Listen, angel; I'm driving this child to the hotel. Back in a jif'." She flung her long white gloved arms about him and gave him a painstaking cinema kiss. "No, of course I won't run out on you, beautiful! Boy, is this a wow or is this a wow?" He beckoned to a man with a camera who came swiftly forward. "All right, Mike; make it snappy."

The bride arranged her veil and settled the little lace cap, and thrust her arm through Sarah Lynn's. 'Come along, babe! Well, will you Sarah Lynn glanced up. There

The instant they were out of hearing the youth hung himself upon the telephone and shouted a num-

"Hello! Nick? Say, feller, just pin the ol' ears back and listen! What a story! Ready? Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who has just flown the Atlantic, and who had taken a vow never to fly a woman in his ship, set the Hermod down at Fresno at 2:45 a. m. and unceremoniously landed Miss Sarah Dana, of the famous Danavale colony, exclusive suburb"-he drew a reviving breath and went on-"of San Jose, and I got a picture that's a honey-the gal in a formal and a blanket-blanket, yeah, b-l-a-n-ke-t, standing beside Kitty Medill, Wild Woman of the Air, Hollywood's stunt-flyingest fool and her nth bridegroom!"

The big and beautiful lobby of the Hotel Californian was dimly lit and drowsy, the exquisite Regency cocktail room was asleep, but the man behind the desk was wide-awake and cordial. "Why, hello, Miss Medill!" Then he laughed. "Beg pardon! I mean,

Mrs. Van Dalton!" "Old stuff, big boy. Don't you ever read the papers? Sure, I'm another bride. I checked the groom out at the field while I brought you a customer. This is Miss Dana from up north. She was flying to Los' and changed her mind, and she wants to stay till her folks come for her. Make her comfortable, will you?

"Gladly!" His puzzled gaze went from her bridal finery to Sarah Lynn's blanket. "Will you register, Miss Dana?" A buzzer sounded behind him and he turned to answer the telephone. "Yes, Mr. Pond?just arrived this minute. Very well, Mr. Pond." He turned back to them. "Miss Dana, your father telephoned. Mr. and Mrs. Pond will be right down. Won't you have a chair?"

"Then everything's jake, and here goes the bride!" She waved aside Sarah Lynn's stammered thanks with a heavily jeweled, welldecorated hand which was slightly "You tell your Big Swede I don't like his fireman's hat! Tell him all the regulars over here wear boudoir caps." She gave her a com-radely hug. "Don't let it get you down, dearie! 'By!" She spread out her satin train, dropped her eyes with maidenly reserve, folded her hands and went out of the lobby with slow and timid steps, balancing uncertainly on the balls of her feet at every pace, humming tenderly-

Ulysses Made Great Hero in Homer's Saga

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

WE FORGET 70 per cent of all we have ever learned-so the scientists say. But fortunately, we never entirely forget anything. The path is still in the brain, though not plain enough for use. No doubt you remember Ulysses as a former acquaintance, but perhaps his story as told by the immortal Homer, is

When Paris stole Helen of Troy from Greece, all the kings of Greece were held to their oaths to fight in her behalf.

Ulysses, noted for his wisdom, refused to go into such a war. His life was happy with Penelope, his beautiful wife, so he feigned mad-ing seeds that had been cooked. The councilmen of Greece suspected so they placed the young son of Ulysses in the path of his plow. When the "madman" reached the child he turned the plow aside, thus disclosing his sanity.

James The ten years of siege at the walled city of Troy were tedious to Ulysses, who ever longed for Penelope and who feared for her safety after his long absence. In olden days a beautiful woman was none too safe without a husband to protect her. Glad was he indeed, when Troy fell into the hands of the Greeks after the trick of the wooden horse. With light heart he sailed away.

But ill winds beset him and Ulysses wandered over the whole sea, suffering disappointments and nar-

"GREATEST UNKNOWN"

Seven cities claim to be the birthplace of the Greek poet Homer. There is no accurate source for any definite information about the life of this man, yet he composed two of the greatest epics in all the centuries of mankind. We do know that he lived sometime between the Sixth and Twelfth centuries before Christ was born, and we know that in old age Homer was blind. He made his living wandering from city to city entertaining the people with the stories of the Trojan war and of the wanderings of Ulysses. His "Iliad" and "Odyssey" are known round the world.

rowly escaping death on many occasions. It was even necessary for him to make a trip into Hades, land of departed souls. Once he and his men found themselves on the island ruled by the one-eyed giants known as Cyclops. They hid in a cave which they discovered to be the home of a giant, who gleefully shut them in his cave and killed two men each day for his dinner. While he slept one afternoon, Ulysses heated a staff and put out the eye of the giant, hoping then to escape. But the passageway was narrow and the giant carefully felt each animal as he let his sheep out to pasture. With cunning, the Greeks killed all the sheep and skinned them. In the morning they walked out, holding the skins over them. Other adventures beset the men. There was the island of the Sirens, the lovely women who sang divinely, luring men to their island where the men were then powerless. By stuffing cloth and wax into the ears of his men and having himself lashed securely to the mast, Ulysses passed the Sirens, being the first man to hear them and to escape their charm. Another adventure was the island where an enchantress turned men into animals, but Ulysses gained power over her and freed all the men whom she held.

Penelope's Troubles. After wandering long and far, Ulysses reached Greece. He had heard of the suitors who had fastened themselves to the household of Penelope on the assumption that her husband had long been dead. They had stolen her substance until she had much ado to protect her husband's home. To evade them she had said that as soon as she completed the web which she was weaving, she would choose a husband. Each day she wove, and each night she unravelled, but now they had discovered her trickery and had forced her to set a date for choosing a husband from among them. Disguised as a beggar, Ulysses went to the back of his home. The only living thing that recognized him was his dog and it died of joy. His old servant, now a swineherd, recognized a scar on Ulysses, and rejoicing and sorrowing together, told his master of the situation in his home. He praised Penelope's skill in handling the lecherous men. Ulysses sent for his son, now a man, and they two planned re-

A crocheted rag rug like the one shown here uses odds and ends. Wool rags make a nicer rug than cotton, or rug yarn may be substituted if desired. Either a wood or large steel crochet hook is used. The rug shown here measures 36 by 21 inches. The 5-inch squares are made separately in single crochet stitch and then joined with crochet slipstitch. If rags are used, tear or cut the strips not more than 11/4 inches wide, and work with the raw edges turned in as shown here at

Slight Difference

There is a difference of .0000028 inch-about one-thousandth the thickness of a hair-between the official United States and British inches. Engineers, however, are not waiting for legislative action to do away with the discrepancy but in both countries have agreed on 25.4 millimeters as the standard inch. If only international differences covering greater territory could be settled with the same fine scientific detachment, we should all breathe easier.—The Pitt make? Commentator.

He brought back a fish not as long as his little finger. This was his most valuable specimen, a sailfish 11/2 inches long. The familiar sailfish caught by anglers in California or Florida weighs from 30 to more than 100 pounds. Their length measures the height of a man or a giant. Some are even ten feet long. The "baby" sailfish measuring 11/2 inches may not be a "baby" at all. The tiny fish exactly like the ten foot sailfish puzzles Doctor Beebe.

In an interview on landing, the well known scientist says the tiny sailfish might be the first young sailfish ever captured, or may be a new miniature species. There is much doubt of the 11/2 inch sailfish being the young of the ordinary sailfish because the little fish seems fully formed. The sailfish derives its name from the huge dorsal fin that extends a foot or two above the body and resembles a sail. These fish feed on the surface of the water and they are caught by trolling in the daytime. The miniature sailfish secured by Doctor Beebe was caught at night under search lights, on a voyage that took Doctor Beebe and his companions 2,000 miles down the west coast from Cape Lucas to Panama.

Dog Man's Friend, but-

No one likes to quarrel with the statement that the dog is man's best friend. In fact, we all like to believe it without question. But neighborhood dogs that insist on staining prized ornamental evergreens and shrubbery certainly do put a heavy strain on friendship. Home owners have faced this problem sadly, angrily and ineffectually-until recently a very simple solution came to light. All that you do is spray the lower branches of your evergreens and shrubs with a little nicotine sulphate mixed in water.
