Grain Belt Prepares For 'Hopper Attack

Poison Bait Offensive Awaits Insects as Federal, State Farm Leaders Seek Means of Protecting This Year's Bumper Crop

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

Kids enjoy devilish pranks. Remember how we used to catch grasshoppers, pull their legs and watch them "spit tobacco"? Innocent fun, perhaps, but today the lowly grasshopper takes his revenge. In Biblical days there were locust plagues, but no worse than the year-after-year grasshopper menace that has damaged America's most verdant crops every summer since the early 1930s. Preventative measures have met with minor success; this year the United States department of agriculture warns of an even worse invasion.

'Hoppers swarm like a horde of angry bees from one field to the next, ripping their way through ripening grain and leaving a path of desolation. They cut away fence posts, destroy shrubbery and finally splatter their gorged bodies against the windshield of a passing car. Sometimes they blacken the air and make men fear the millennium has arrived.

But when fall comes the grasshoppers disappear and farmers breathe easier, hoping the plague is gone forever. Then comes winter and with it come entomologists from state and federal departments of agriculture. They dig in the resting soil and shake their heads. Last year's grasshoppers have deposited millions of eggs which will hatch under favorable conditions and bring more trouble next summer.

This routine has been repeated for several years but farm men have not been idle. They've discovered the most effective method of combating 'hoppers is poison bait, a mixture of bran, sawdust, blackstrap molasses, crude arsenic and water. Innumerable tons of this delectable diet have been offered the grasshoppers since 1930; this year an estimated 178,000 tons will be needed and much of it will be supplied by the federal government.

Summer Morning's Pastime. Poison bait is spread in the fields during late spring or early summer, before the 'hoppers get started. Any morning this month you can drive through a midwestern farm area and watch it being spread from a wagon or truck.

Unlike humans, grasshoppers are particular when they eat and the bait spreaders must be patient. In ordinary summer weather the feeding time is from 8 a. m. until noon. They figuratively stay in bed if the temperature is less than 65 degrees; moreover they can't be bothered with food if it's warmer than 90 degrees.

The grasshopper's private life is an interesting chapter in the study of entomology. He hatches from an egg which is buried in the soil by his mother the previous autumn. As many as 41 eggs are known to have been deposited in one tunnel.

In contrast to many other injurious insects, the grasshopper when newly hatched closely resembles his parents except that he lacks wings. Almost immediately upon emerging from the egg he is able to hop about quite actively, beginning his life of destruction. Forty to sixty days later he has grown into maturity.

During the growth period he sheds his skin five or six times. Cast-off skins are often mistaken for dead grasshoppers and are frequently the basis for mistaken reports that grasshoppers are "dying by the millions."

Fight for Existence. Man is not the grasshopper's only enemy. Throughout its brief life the insect is plagued by parasitic two-winged flies which deposit maggots on the 'hopper. These maggots devour the internal portions of the grasshopper's body and soon cause its death.

But one of the most important factors in grasshopper control is the bird. Except for those living solely on vegetable matter, birds feed on 'hoppers and destroy large numbers of them. The assertion has often been made that grasshoppers are now so abundant because game birds are less numerous than formerly. But the worst grasshopper outbreaks in American history occurred in the great plains region 50 to 60 years ago when game birds were far more plentiful than now.

For years it has been believed that when grasshoppers come they remain seven years, destroying crops annually. After this period has elapsed they allegedly return to normalcy and are only a minor crop hazard until the next outbreak occurs. No definite proof of this theory has ever been offered.

It has been established, however, that dry, warm weather is favorable for grasshoppers and that the most severe outbreaks occur either during or following periods of drought. Perhaps most drought cycles are about seven years long, which would explain the 'hopper tradition.

Rains Haven't Helped.

But wet weather is unfavorable and great numbers of grasshoppers often die during wet springs from disease. Such is not the case this year, however, when the department of agriculture is planning the most active anti-grasshopper campaign in its history. The current spring has been wet in the Middle West and great plains area but grasshoppers will be bad anyway. Says the bureau of entomology:

"Recent rains over a wide belt in the Middle West and great plains area have much delayed the hatching of grasshoppers and have held those which have hatched in the edges of fields. But the reported mortality because of weather has been low. Not enough have been killed to permit any letting down in the control campaign. The delayed development of the grasshoppers and growth of vegetation have kept grasshoppers out of the crops, but it is too early to indicate that control will not be needed over this wide area.

"The delayed hatch may make it necessary to make several applications of poison bait, rather than one or two, which would be sufficient if all the 'hoppers hatched at about the same time."

Widespread outbreaks are expected this year in South Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. The greatest trouble is expected in North and South Dakota, which together will require 65,000 tons of hopper bait. Total requirements this year for the entire nation are expected to be 178,000 tons; two states will need one-third of it!

Extra Generations. The situation is made more acute by an unprecedented happening last fall. Whereas grasshoppers are known to hatch only once a year, last fall an extra generation appeared which ruined considerable fall sown grain and added greatly to the number of eggs which passed the winter in the soil.

GRASSHOPPERS—A menace to American agriculture that equals dust storms and drought.

Recognizing that successful control measures depend on co-operation, well-organized campaigns are already under way in many states headed by a trained entomologist who generally works with county agents. In turn come township and community leaders, mixing stations and bait-spreading crews. County financing has supported a large part of the campaign.

Last year 79,291 tons of poison bait were supplied at an approximate cost to the federal government of $1,104,000. This made possible a harvest, in many states where without control the crops would have been a complete loss. State co-operators estimated that crops worth more than $100,000,000 were saved in the north central and great plains area. But despite these savings, the losses to crops where hoppers were not controlled reached nearly $68,000,000.

Such is the picture of America's current agricultural pain-in-the-neck, a perennial nuisance that has driven more than one farmer to near insanity. Adding to the discomfort is the fact that these plagues have descended with greatest wrath upon those states which have suffered most harshly from drought and dust storms during the past eight years.

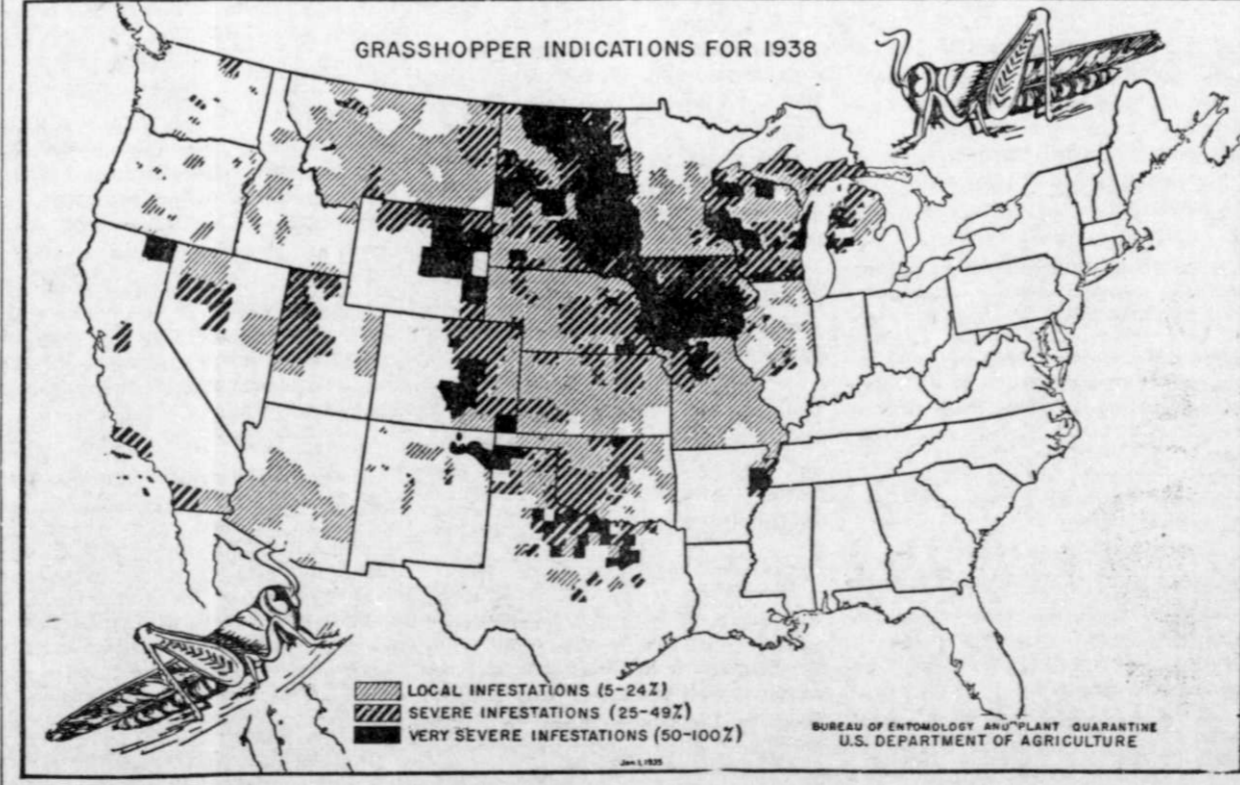

Disaster's Bedfellow.

Perhaps it is logical that grasshoppers, dust and drought should go hand in hand and that one of these pestilences should lead to another. Lack of moisture encourages grasshoppers. The 'hoppers, in turn, destroy foliage and loosen the earth to be swept about at the mercy of a strong wind.

More than one visitor from the industrial East has looked upon this desolation and turned his eyes away, swearing that drought, dust and 'hoppers will never be conquered. But there's always another year and each spring the 'hopper belt farmer faces life confidently, imbued with an undying faith that his luck must eventually change. So it follows that again this year he thinks it will change. Probably it will, because never since 1929 has the great plains area been so plentifully showered with spring rains. Maybe the rain will kill these grasshoppers; maybe the weather will become freakish and keep them from doing great damage; maybe the poison bait will work better than before.

Maybe. At least we'll hope so!

Interlaced Stitches In Tones of Pink

PINK is the newest color in decoration. It is charming for embroidered mats and table scarves for any room in the house. The runner shown here is palest pink linen embroidered in darker pink and deep rose. A pearl cotton embroidery thread, size 5, is best to use.
Cut the mat or runner the desired size allowing 1 1/4 inches all round for hems. Turn the hems and sew them by hand at the corners. Now, embroider around the top of the hem with plain catchstitching in pink as at A. Next, interlace these stitches with the rose as at B.

Three 1 1/2-inch squares are embroidered in each corner. Mark each square with a pencil. The method of laying the pink foundation threads is shown in diagram C. Bring the needle out at 1, place it in the material again at 2, and bring it out again at 3. Continue, following the numbers and weaving the stitches over and under as shown. Next, interlace these stitches with rose. Start at D and follow the diagrams until all the stitches are interlaced as at E.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' latest book fully illustrates ninety other embroidery stitches; also fabric repairing; table settings; and many things to make for yourself and the children. The directions in the book are complete—no patterns to buy. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Ask for Book 2 and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Breaded Meats.—A pinch of baking powder added to the bread-crumbs for the breaded meat or fish will result in a lighter coating.

Test Your Iron.—Too hot irons may weaken cotton sheets, even though the soen is not deep enough to be seen.

Improving Custard.—Stale cake crumbs, sprinkled over the top of a custard before putting it into the oven to bake, gives the top a delicate brown and the custard a different flavor.

Salt the Prunes.—A pinch of salt heightens the flavor of any prune dish.

Be Precautious.—If you should smell smoke in the house, don't just sit and wonder where it is—go investigate immediately. It may be only the neighbor building a fire—but then it may not.

Hooks and Eyes.—Did you ever try sewing on hooks and eyes with a button-hole stitch? It is the most secure method you have ever tried.

Worth Trying.—To drive a nail into plaster without cracking the plaster, heat the nail.

It has been truly said that the life of the city springs from the land, that cities thrive because there is an ever-increasing demand for their finished articles from the producers of raw materials; and it is readily evident that a great share of the city manufacturing is both indirectly and directly dependent upon agriculture.

POLK FARMERS MEET
Two meetings to organize town of Polk farmers for grasshopper control were held as follows:
Thursday evening, June 23rd, Polk Town hall (Cedar Creek) 8:00 p. m.
Thursday evening, June 23, Schuck's hall (Ackerville) 8:45 p. m.
Other towns will be notified of local meetings when schedules are completed.

GRASSHOPPER INFESTATION
Grasshopper infestation in Washington county is classed as moderate. On Wednesday evening there was a meeting in the court house in West Bend of all town board members of the county to determine the best way of carrying out the control program. The mixing of poison bait for the town of Polk farmers began on Thursday noon at the Frank Ganz Lumber Yard in Slinger. Hartford, Addison, Polk, Erin and Richfield township farmers will be expected to come to Slinger for their supply of poison bait. Mixing stations for other townships will be erected by the end of the week.

The poison bait is free to farmers at the mixing stations. All farmers having an infestation, no matter how small it may appear to be at the present time, are urged to cooperate with the "hopper control program and apply bait to pasture land, waste land, and along fences and road sides. Hay fields may also be treated, but preferably just after the hay is cut.

DESTROY CUT WORMS
Cut worms are causing much damage in some gardens and fields at this time of the year. They can easily be controlled as follows:
Make a bait using five (5) pounds of bran or old flour, one-fourth (1/4) pound of Paris green, sweet-worm molasses and moisten with enough water to make a crumbly mass. Spread the mixture on the surface of the ground around the plant. Apply in the late afternoon.

DOES COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER PAY?
Washington county farmers who want to see for themselves the value of using commercial fertilizer in connection with grain crops may see an excellent demonstration of it on the Ed. Gerner farm just east of Cheesewick where part of a barley field received 125 lbs. per acre of 0-16-4. On this part of the field the barley is completely headed and six to eight inches taller than on the adjoining field which did not receive any fertilizer.

STATE FAIR DATES
The dates for the 1938 state fair are August 20-28. These dates include both the adult and junior divisions of the state fair. A total of $85,317.50 in premium and expense money will be offered exhibitors.
During the present year the junior division of the state fair will be a separate organization and will take over the fair grounds with their displays and exhibits on the last four days of the fair, August 25, 26, 27, 28. A total of $20,000.00 in premiums has been voted for the junior fair. Wisconsin is blazing a new trail in state fair organization by creating a junior fair which is independent of the regular state fair. No other state has placed as much confidence in the ability of youth to put on a fair as has the Badger state.

Those who are eligible to exhibit at the junior state fair are boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 20. They are to be members of, or affiliated with any one of the following organizations: 4-H clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Future Farmers, agricultural or home economics high school students, Equity, Grange, or Farm Bureau Junior organizations.

RANGE SHELTERS FOR POULTRY
With young poultry on range, many poultrymen are finding a range shelter both a convenience and a necessity.
Inexpensively made, with just some roosts under a roof with wire floors, sides, and ends to protect from rodents, these shelters are proving to be a real "fresh air palace" for poultry. Such a shelter is very convenient when the colony house is too heavy for easy moving, and it is light in weight. A shelter may be a necessity especially when too many chicks are started in a permanent brooder house and additional roosting places must be provided. It is also convenient for providing roosting space for roosters and capons. A 10 ft. by 10 ft. shelter will accommodate between 100 and 125 for roosting.

J. B. Hayes, extension poultryman at the college of agriculture, finds that such shelters are coming into more general use and that they may be used early in the season for pullets from 6 to 8 weeks old. Early in the season, when some protection may be needed for closing the ends, heavy paper or bags are frequently used. He finds that during the summer, this type of construction assures good, well ventilated roosting quarters. Plans for these structures may be secured from the county agent's office or from the poultry department at the college of agriculture.

EDITORIAL

ALL NEWSPAPERMEN GO TO HEAVEN, WRITER SAYS

In the main, it is the providence of a newspaper to print the so-called crime news as it occurs. In so doing it provides a safeguard to the community at large, which is invaluable. Men are deterred from criminal actions by fear of publicity. Judicious use of printers' ink can do more toward law enforcement than a dozen peace officers. Newspapers, like all human agencies, make mistakes, but such errors are generally traceable to misinformation given to the newsmen. I am confident that all newspaper editors will go to Heaven. No matter how eloquently the editor may boost for the development and progress of his community, no matter how diligently he may labor to build up his home county, extols the virtues of a famous native son...urgently lays a metaphorical wreath on the grave of the departed, he seldom hears a "Thank you!" Rarely does anyone say "Well done." Almost never does he hear "We appreciate that." But let him make a slip, everyone in town then takes a whack at him. And that is why I believe that all newspapermen go to Heaven—they get their share of hell on earth.—The Rotarian (W. Earle Dye)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Mary Bassil, who passed away on June 15, 1938:

Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep!

Unbroken by the last of foes.
Asleep in Jesus! far from thee
Thy kindred and thy graves may be;
But thine is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep.
Sadly missed by the surviving children.

Here's a New Use for Grandfather's Bandanna

The smart young thing planning to spend a day at the beach needn't worry about the wind in her hair—not if she digs an old bandanna handkerchief out of the trunk. First, hold it like this, as illustrated by Miss Gloria Masson at an Ocean county, N. J., beach.

The shapely Miss Masson illustrates the second step in making your bandanna beach hat. After making a diagonal fold, turn down the corners as shown above. Better not try it in a strong wind, though—it wouldn't come out right and you'd be apt to lose your temper.

Above: The third step. Lay the handkerchief down and roll each of the two corners up tightly to produce a clever "topper" for her day at the beach. Wouldn't grandfather be surprised!

Right: Presto! In three minutes flat the adept maker-of-hats-from-bandanna-handkerchiefs can make the brim. Miss Masson had better hurry—her locks are becoming disheveled in the breeze.

BEDTIME STORY

Old Mr. Toad, Filled With Pride, Gets Another Dinner Invitation

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
OLD MR. TOAD was so puffed up with pride that he had become quite unbearable to his old friends and neighbors and all because he had dined with Buster Bear. He thought it an honor, a very great honor, to have been invited to dine with one for whom every one had such a very great respect as they had for Buster Bear and because he felt that it was such a very great honor, he puffed himself out with pride and felt himself so far above his old friends and neighbors that he would have nothing to do with any of them excepting Bobby Coon, who, you know, is a little cousin of Buster Bear.

usually very polite, but this time he quite forgot politeness. I am afraid he is rather apt to when fat beetles are concerned. But Buster didn't seem to mind. When the last beetle had disappeared Jimmy smacked his lips and then he told Buster Bear what he had come for. Of course, at first Buster had thought it was for the fat beetles. But it wasn't. No, sir, it wasn't for the fat beetles at all. It was to get Old Mr. Toad was so puffed up with pride that he had become quite unbearable.

At first everyone had laughed at Old Mr. Toad, but after a little they grew tired of being treated so and some of them put their heads together to think of some plan to teach Old Mr. Toad a lesson, and what a very foolish thing false pride is. The very next day Jimmy Skunk went into the Green Forest to look for Buster Bear. You know, Jimmy isn't afraid of Buster. He didn't have to look long and when he had found him the very first thing he did was to ask Buster if he had seen any fat beetles that morning. You know Jimmy is very fond of fat beetles, and the first thing he asks anyone he may happen to meet is if they have seen any.

Buster Bear grinned and said he thought he knew where there might be a few and he would be pleased to have Jimmy go with him to see. Sure enough, under an old log he found five fat beetles, and these Jimmy gobbled up without asking Buster if he would have one. Jimmy is proud of anything that he laughed and laughed, and his laugh was deep and grumbly-rumbly. Then Jimmy told him the plan to teach Old Mr. Toad a lesson, and asked Buster if he would help. Buster's eyes twinkled as he promised to do what Jimmy wanted him to do. Then Jimmy went straight to where Old Mr. Toad was sitting all puffed up taking a sun bath. "Buster Bear has just sent word by me to ask you if you will honor him by dining with him tomorrow at the rotten chestnut stump near the edge of the Green Forest," said Jimmy in his politest manner. Now, if Old Mr. Toad was puffed up before, just think how he swelled out when he heard that. Jimmy Skunk was actually afraid that he would burst.

"You may tell my friend Buster Bear that I shall be very happy to honor him by dining with him," replied Old Mr. Toad with a very grand air. Jimmy went off to deliver his reply, and Old Mr. Toad sat and puffed himself out until he could hardly breathe. "Honor him by dining with him," said he over and over to himself. "I never was so flattered in my life." And that night he refused to speak to Bobby Coon, even though Bobby was cousin to Buster Bear. © T. W. Burgess.—WNU Service.

TWO-MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES

JESSE H. JONES
Before he became a member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in 1932, Jesse Jones created a fortune for himself in such diverse fields as lumbering, building, financing, publishing and politics. He was born in Tennessee and spent his boyhood on a farm. At nineteen he struck out for Dallas, Texas, and took a job in his uncle's lumberyard. In three years he was manager. Jones started his financial career cleverly. He borrowed $500 from a banker, returning it unused. Later he borrowed $700, then $1,000 by the same process, establishing a credit rating. In 1902 he splurged, borrowing $10,000 to organize the South Texas Lumber Company. That gave him a start and today he is one of Houston's biggest capitalists. Active in World War relief work, he later became influential in the Democratic party and brought the 1928 national convention to Houston. In 1932 Republican President Hoover appointed him to the RFC board, a supposedly temporary body which has been running ever since. President Roosevelt named him chairman of the board in 1933. Jones found himself head of a corporation with $500,000,000 capital and lending agencies in 32 cities.

FARM TOPICS

INDIAN RUNNER IS GOOD LAYING DUCK

Ability May Exceed Any of the Breeds of Hens.

By a Poultry Authority in the Rural New Yorker.—WNU Service.
The outstanding characteristic of Indian Runner ducks, as compared with other varieties, is their superiority as egg producers. Good strains may equal or exceed any of the breeds of hens in this respect. They are lighter in weight than the "meat" breeds of ducks and give place to the Pekins on duck farms where large numbers are annually produced for the markets.

The standard weight of the Indian Runner drake is 4 1/2 pounds; of the duck a half pound less. They lay a white egg, larger than the hen egg, and make fair broilers weighing from 2 1/2 to 3 pounds at six weeks of age. They are not suited to the production of large green ducks, but rather to the production of ducklings of broiler size. They are active, hardy and non-sitters. In other countries, where they have been longer bred for egg production, they are said to show an average of 200 eggs or more per year.

Ducks require more food for growth and egg production than hens, more floor space and more labor in caring for and shipping the eggs. As an offset, they are less susceptible to disease. Some years ago, the Indian Runner duck was exploited as a competitor of the hen as an egg producer and achieved a popularity under general or poultry farms that it does not seem to have held, some part of the loss in this being doubtless due to the greater feed consumption of the duck coupled with the more limited year-around demand for duck eggs. While duck eggs are larger than those of the hen and should command higher prices, they are not given their due in this respect during the greater part of the marketing season.

Brahmas Majestic Birds; Hardy, Vigorous Layers

The Brahma has a comb different from most birds. This is called a pea comb and is rather a low comb consisting of three ridges instead of a rose comb or a single comb. Brahmas are very large, their weights being: Cock, 12 pounds; hen, 9 1/2 pounds; cockerels, 10 pounds; pullets, 8 pounds. They are truly majestic birds, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. The head of the Brahma is very characteristic, being broad, with heavy brows giving the bird a look of great intelligence. As a table fowl it is unexcelled in the very heavy class, and it is used pure and with crosses very extensively. In New England the bird had an extremely wide popularity, especially in the hands of specialists in Rhode Island, who turned out what was called the New England soft roaster.

Brahmas are hardy, vigorous and excellent layers of very large dark brown eggs. The fact that they have been bred by many of our very best breeders is evidence of their real worth. The Brahma comes in a color other than light. Then it is called the Dark Brahma. The males having a black body, black wing bar and white saddle and hackle laced with black. The female is steel gray, with each feather penciled with black.

Uncle Phil Says:

You'll Cherish the Smile
If you can make a person smile on you it is a greater victory than to make one laugh at you. It sometimes happens that the quest for gold leads to the land of guilt. "What passes for woman's intuition is often nothing more than man's transparency," says a critic.

But Not Angry Enough
Usually a man is quite angry at the circumstances that prevent him from doing his best. Everyone has the right of free speech, but the higher up he is, the less he'll use it.

Some are perpetually lamenting that they "are not understood"; and some are afraid they will be. Who wants to be "logical" with those they love?
Every Thorn Has Its Rose
Gold-brick fakery has entirely disappeared since the government segregated all the gold.

The biography of an ordinary man told in every detail by an expert psychologist might be as absorbing as that of a great figure in history. If your host and hostess want you to stay longer, you always know it.
