Kewaskum Team to Play Campbellsport Here Sunday

An exhibition baseball game will be played in the local ball park Sunday, Sept. 18, between Campbellsport, one of the topnotch teams in the Kettle Moraine league the past season, and a Kewaskum team. Campbellsport will use its regular league team in the game while Kewaskum's nine will be made up of a picked team of all home players, and not the regular Badger State league team, which has disbanded for the year. Campbellsport's team is in the best of shape and will be at its strongest, having played in the Sentinel's state tournament at Milwaukee the past two weeks. On the other hand, Kewaskum's players have had no practice for two weeks and will not be accustomed to playing together, but officials of the team accepted Campbellsport's challenge anyway in order to see local young players perform, who may become members of next season's Badger league team. Furlong for Campbellsport and Marx for Kewaskum will be the probable opposing pitchers. The game will start at 2:15 p. m. Come out and see these rival teams put up a real exhibition game.

typing and find it very interesting. The class is also taking world history, algebra and biology, which they find to be interesting but a little more complicated than their freshmen work.

MERE SPECKS IN THE UNIVERSE

The freshmen science class is studying the relation of the earth to the universe. The earth being the third smallest planet, is a mere speck in the universe. "A mere speck" might define the way many of the freshmen felt the first days of school. Upon being instructed to appear at a certain class we would all trot to the corridors and ask the first instructor in sight where to go. After a great deal of instruction we would finally find the classroom.

In English class the freshmen are now studying the short stories' position in literature. Examples of short stories are "The Freshmen Fullback" by Ralph D. Paine and "The Elephant Remembers" by Edison Marshall.

The general business class has been studying the use and value of money. Money, we find is a very valuable thing and we all could use more of it if we only had it.

WHAT'S NEW IN MUSIC

Band: The Kewaskum High school band had its first meeting Monday. Russell Belger was elected president, Annabelle Grotenhuis, secretary and treasurer, and Lucille Penning and Betty Jane Petri as librarians. Mr. Furlong hopes the band will continue with the fine work it has been doing.

Girls' Glee Club: Miss Dachenbach, our new director, extends a hearty welcome to all girls who are interested in singing. Thirty new girls have indicated that they would like to join the girls' glee club. In all, the chorus will consist of about sixty members.

Miss Dachenbach is planning an operetta, which will be given some time in November. She hopes to do some a capella work, and to continue the fine work of the chorus that was done last year.

Boys' Chorus: Miss Dachenbach has also organized a boys' chorus group. So far sixteen boys have expressed a desire to participate in such things as spiritual and sacred songs. This same group of boys will participate in the operetta in November. Miss Dachenbach hopes that more boys will become interested in singing and join the boys' chorus group.

Three Popular Kewaskum Young Ladies Married

In a very charming, early autumn nuptial rite at which the Rev. Philip J. Vogt officiated at 9:00 a. m. Wednesday, Sept. 14, in Holy Trinity church, Miss Kathryn Marx, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marx of Kewaskum, became the bride of Carl Malischke, son of Mrs. Chas. Malischke, Wauwatosa.

Pretty bouquets of white asters decorated the church for the ceremony.

The bride was attended by her friend, Mrs. Jerome Klein of Milwaukee, as matron of honor. Two little Misses, Irita Schmidt of Kewaskum and Mary Marx of Milwaukee, cousins of the bride, served as the junior bridesmaids.

Harold Marx, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom as best man. Jerome Klein, friend of the groom, and Sylvester Marx, brother of the bride, both of Milwaukee, acted as ushers. Gerald and Alan Stoffel and Robert Schmidt, cousins of the bride, and Harold Perkins were the apolites at the solemn high mass.

The bride was attired in a beautiful white brocaded velvet gown with finger tip veil. She carried a white prayer book with streamers of white ribbon, holding Finch roses and lilies of the valley.

Rose taffeta was the attire of the bridesmaids. She carried an arm bouquet of light blue delphiniums. Dressed alike in rocks of moon taffeta, with net, the junior bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of yellow tea roses and delphiniums.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Dinner was served to the immediate families at the Republican hotel here.

Mrs. Buschkopf wore a floor length peach lace gown and a crown of flowers in her hair. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and gladioli.

A wedding dinner was served at one o'clock at the Republican Hotel to immediate relatives and friends. Following the dinner a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Saturday, Sept. 10, at St. Bridget's church near Kewaskum, the Rev. Philip J. Vogt officiating. The church was decorated with cut flowers for the ceremony.

MRS. PINNEY had called to see Miss Bowman, and the two women were in close conversation in Miss Bowman's private office. Miss Bowman was chief executive of the governing board of the hospital, and Mrs. Pinney was a director.

"Well, it simply has come to this," Miss Bowman said, wiping her eyeglasses nervously, "we'll have to close the hospital, if we can't get something to run it on. The citizens have done nobly—nobly, but they can't do everything. It remains for some moneyed person to come to the front now."

"Like Mrs. Chichester?" suggested Mrs. Pinney. Mrs. Pinney was a small, eager woman, who looked rather worn from the long-continued struggle of keeping the precious little hospital going on next to nothing a year.

"Yes! Mrs. Chichester. She is our richest citizen. She could give $50,000 and never feel it."

"But would she?"

"There's the question. I'm afraid she wouldn't. I've approached her unsuccessfully—"So have I," moaned Mrs. Pinney. "Well, you can't force a person to give up her money, that's certain. I suppose it's hopeless."

"I don't know about that. I've been thinking I'd send Sally Drew to her and see what good that would do."

"Sally Drew!" Mrs. Pinney jumped. "She's the very one. I'll see her this afternoon."

Sally Drew was a tiny woman with hair like snowy wool and a pale pointed little face. Her eyes were wonderful, so bright, so black, so alive. They danced in her face. But her smile was more wonderful than her eyes.

The smile came now at sight of Mrs. Pinney.

"Julia!" she cried. "Come right in."

In Sally's small living room, so old-fashioned, so cozy, and withal so well suited to Sally herself, Julia Pinney told her story.

"Well, what do you want me to do?" Sally asked.

"I want you to go to Helen Chichester and get her to give us $50,000. That will keep the hospital running for one year. After that—but we'll hope."

Sally's smile vanished. She was silent an instant.

"I'll go, of course," she said quietly.

Mrs. Pinney arose.

"Sally, you're a dear. If any one can do it you can. You are our last resort."

Not What You Learned

Don't be too surprised, upon going abroad, to find that the names of cities are not at all like those you learned in school. You may know all about Rome and Milan, Florence and Genoa, but the trick lies in recognizing them in Italy as Roma, Milano, Firenze and Genova. Also, the native calls it Napoli and Venezia; not Naples and Venice.

If you are entrained for Cologne you may never get there. You will, however, arrive at Koeln. You may speak of Vienna, but it's Wien. Antwerp is Anvers, and The Hague is den Haag.

SYNOPSIS

The minister tore the letter open, glanced through the contents with an expressionless face, then held it out to his son.

Dear Doctor Farwell:

Mother has asked me to invite you and your son to our home for Sunday dinner. I have delayed the note purposely, so that you will not have the opportunity to refuse us again. Please do accept. We will find you after morning services. Just a family dinner, of course.

Hastily but sincerely,

Evelyn Marblestone.

"I've seen her rolling around in a big roadster. Are we accepting?" Dale wanted to know.

"I presume we shall have to."

Farwell dismissed the subject by opening the morning paper.

Henry Marblestone's genial expansiveness was in full flower as he waited for his chief guest to receive a subdued chorus of acclaim after the morning service. And with reason. The ushers had been obliged to fill the aisles with chairs and the banker appropriated a share of the credit.

"We've another guest today—a friend of yours," he remarked to Doctor Farwell as the two men, followed by Dale, walked to the church door. "Cash Brady. You met him out West."

"Surely, I did not know that he was in the city."

"Back yesterday. Another widower," the banker suggested with his usual freedom. "His wife's in poor health. Off on a little trip with the girl. Great fellow, Cash. Best yourself where the funds get to. You're cheating yourself, now that the Doctor's here. Real sermon this morning—two-fisted stuff. We had to hang out the SRO sign."

"So I heard."

"Say, Doctor..." Marblestone spoke abruptly. "I should think you'd find it a slight disadvantage for a man in your profession to not be married."

"Why?" Farwell turned to his host. His white face was impassive.

"Oh, you know. It's more or less a popular notion that a preacher's wife has a lot to do with his getting on."

"As a preacher, you mean? I always have been in the habit of preparing my sermons unaided."

There was no indication of resentment in the words.

"Oh, no. I didn't mean that. Of course not. I was referring to general success in the community. There are social affairs, for instance. It takes a woman, after all..."

Brady flashed a quick glance at the banker. There was the suggestion of a warning in the gray eyes behind their shining lenses. Why the devil couldn't Henry see that he was broaching an untimely topic? But Marblestone was speaking again.

"Well, it's always seemed to me that a man in your position would find himself rather on a spot, as the saying goes. Under pretty close watch and—well, fair game for a lot of unattached females." He prosecutor we've ever had. Keen as they come, close-mouthed as a clam. He's about the only man in Locust Hill I ever tell my business to."

Brady was standing by the Marblestone limousine listening to his hostess and her daughter when the others came up. He stepped forward at once to greet the Farwells and bid them a delayed welcome to the church and community. Then came Dale's turn to be introduced to the occupants of the car.

When Marblestone stowed his guests to his daughter's satisfaction, he took his own place beside the chauffeur and conversed steadily and loudly over one shoulder.

Dinner proved to be a long drawn out affair, served with little attempt at formality. Marblestone carved and orated in generous fashion from the head of the board, demanding frequent confirmation of his many opinions from the older men.

Evelyn, dressed again in green, gave bored attention to the masculine talk, occasionally giving Dale a smiling glance from across the table intended to signify that she considered the situation hopeless.

That young man found the meal something of an ordeal, marooned as he was between his hostess and Cassius Brady. Dale attempted several times to converse with the lawyer, but his hopes were dashed each time by Marblestone's dislike of losing an auditor. He did disengage, however, that Lenora had taken her mother on a brief motor trip that included a stay with relatives. They would be coming home shortly.

At the conclusion of the meal, Marblestone suggested an adjournment to his library on the second floor. Dale was never to know whether the banker considered him mature enough to be included in the many sessions, for Evelyn had plans of her own.

"Come on, Dale. Out in the sun room," she suggested, slipping her hand within his arm.

"May I offer you one of these?" Cassius inquired of the minister as they followed their host into a room with a beamed ceiling and a huge fireplace at one end. The walls were lined with books. Brady had taken several cigars from his pocket and was extending them tentatively.

"Thank you, no," Farwell returned with a quiet smile. "I smoke only in my study. I am a pipe addict."

Marblestone lifted the cover of an ornate humidifier and selected a cigar for himself.

"I've no objection to your smoking your own cigars, Cash," he grumbled, "but I can't go 'em. If you think you can stand a good smoke, help yourself to one of these." He lighted his own as he spoke, with little smacking noises of his lips. "I say, Cash, you'll have to reform along another line, too."

"How's that?"

"Going to church. Seeing for chuckled at his expression of the idea, as he leaned forward and deposited his cigar ash in a heavy bronze tray that rested on a corner of the library table.

"I am afraid I am not in a position to say, from experience," was the deliberate answer.

"Then I can tell you one thing, Doctor," Marblestone resumed good-humoredly. "You have the good women here guessing in one respect. It worries them to have you and your boy keeping bachelors' hall. That's a new one on them."

Brady had been studying the glowing end of his cigar abstractedly.

"Your advice strikes me as being sound, Henry," he observed quietly.

"My attending church," Brady straightened in his chair. It was high time for someone to take the conversation out of the banker's hands.

In the meantime, Dale was making the acquaintance of Miss Marblestone in the sun room.

"You know, Dale," she began languidly, leaning back among the cushions of the willow settee to which she promptly had guided her guest, "it's quite an event when a new young man comes to this town. You don't mind if I call you Dale, do you?"

"I wish you would. All my friends do," the boy answered politely.

"Well, it is stupid to be so formal. And we are going to be friends, too. You'll find some cigarettes in the box on the stand. I'll have one, if you don't object. Now tell me all about yourself," she demanded, after Dale had obliged with a lighted match. "Do you like being a minister's son?"

"I'm bearing up," he smiled. "I've never been anything else."

"I want to know about your past. All the dark secrets."

"Very simple, Miss Marblestone. Evelyn," she corrected, with a slight lift of her brows.

"Right." Well, I've been in school and in school—and in school. Most of my vacations have been spent in holding down jobs. Since I was big enough. That's my recent history."

"But we heard you were graduated last spring," Evelyn said in surprise.

"I was, by dint of great luck. Then I spent this summer on a survey. I have a chance to go back to the U for the second semester. Have a sort of a job there in the department. I may run out there sooner and get in some studying. After I get father safely settled." He smiled.

"Now I am disappointed. We thought you would be here."

"Unfortunately, I have to work. I have visions of becoming a geologist. There are a lot of rocks in the world that need somebody's care. I'm going to try to break one good rock every day."

Glitter...

"Keeping up with the Joneses" becomes a boomerang when we allow snobbery to distort our true sense of values.

By WINIFRED WILLARD

SISTER SUE was invited to be adviser to the rich couple furnishing their new home in New York. That's because she has good sense, eye for values and impeccable taste. The living room after it was blue-printed, lacked snap. It needed a dash of color. The interior decorator had brought as bait two red elephants, price $9. Mistress was charmed; said they were "so impressionistic, so intriguing."

Sister Sue thought they were shapely, badly sized and off color. Next day Sister Sue said, "Why pay $9 when you can get a more stunning pair at Covington's for $6.50?" But "no," thought Mistress, "there couldn't be anything so beautiful as these particular red elephants."

A few days later, Sister Sue played a trump card with apparent unconcern. Very casually she said she "couldn't see the point in paying $9 for two red elephants that could be bought identical in every way at Lacy's for $1.49!" In the face of that dismaying information, Mistress wilted. Of course she did not want for her new home what could be bought at Lacy's. She finally acknowledged that she had never quite liked those red elephants. It took a Sister Sue with brains and diplomacy to handle that bit of decorative difficulty.

The "Million Dollar" Room

The walls of the million dollar room of the Union League club at Chicago are papered with certificates of stocks that were once said to be as good as gold. We believed the people who said they were. Maybe they believed themselves too! The only trouble was that the values just weren't there. We do the same things. We plaster our lives thick with standards of cost instead of worth.

We carry the same sort of standards as far as the schools we choose for our children. Tradition, price, social register, what the Joneses do, all weigh heavily with us instead of where our children will learn the most and become their best.

Over New York way is a family whose educational affections are rooted in one particular exclusive college. Costs $2,500 a year for daughter to go there. Just now that's too much. Family is very sorry for itself at the mere thought that it may have to consider another college to which their daughter may be obliged to go, where expenses are only $1,000. It doesn't seem to occur to family that this school is very high class; a topper in the educational world with faculty as good as the country affords, a great library, a century of associations and traditions, good enough for any blue-blood; a beautiful campus more than a hundred years old! But it costs less. That is the only thing against it. Thereby family concludes that it has to be worth less. Strange that after all our lessons we can't learn to tell gold from glitter.

Possibilities of Prevention

Yet there is little or no excuse for the appalling amount of dental decay that afflicts the American people. For in recent years a vast amount of laboratory and clinical research has been undertaken in this field and there is impressive evidence that dental caries, or decay, may be completely controlled by dietary means. Then, too, our understanding of correct dental hygiene has advanced tremendously, and scientifically designed tooth brushes and skillfully compounded dentifrices are available in every town and hamlet throughout the country.

Diet and Dental Disease

Various investigators have advocated different dietary formulas for the control of dental decay. There is a lack of agreement among them as to which single element is the most important in constructing a diet to prevent caries.

But outstanding authorities hold that each of the five following dietary factors has a controlling influence: vitamins A, C and D; an adequate supply, in the correct proportions, of the minerals, calcium and phosphorus; an excess of alkaline or base-forming foods over acid-forming foods; and a generous allowance of raw foods, with emphasis on those that leave an alkaline ash.

Vitamin C and Tooth Structure

Notable research has demonstrated that vitamin A is a definite factor in controlling tooth development. The development of the enamel is governed by a complex structure which begins to deteriorate as soon as vitamin A is withheld. When experimental animals are placed on a diet lacking in this vitamin, their teeth become brittle, chalky and white. This is due to the loss of the enamel, with its orange colored pigment, and the exposure of the dentine.

An English authority also claims that vitamin A is necessary to help prevent diseases of the gums.

Inasmuch as vitamin A likewise has many other important functions to perform in the body, every homemaker should see to it that her meals contain an abundance of milk and other dairy products, and the green, leafy and yellow vegetables which are a good source of this vitamin.

Vitamin C and Tooth Health

Vitamin C is closely associated with the health of both teeth and gums. There is strong evidence that this vitamin is essential to the dentine, enamel, cementum and the bone of the jaw. And there are on record remarkable experiments which demonstrate that dental decay and gum disorders are both prevented and arrested when extra amounts of foods containing vitamin C are included in a well-balanced diet.

Vitamin C is best obtained from the citrus fruits, tomatoes and raw leafy vegetables such as cabbage.

Vitamin D which we get from

Dew on Walling Wall

Since the destruction of Solomon's temple in Jerusalem in 70 A. D., the dew that condenses on the Walling Wall has been considered, by superstitious people, to be tears shed in sympathy with the Jewish mourners, says Collier's Weekly.

The sapo is also known as the singing fish. It lives under stones along the Californian shore and produces a humming noise by means of its air bladder.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice On Avoiding the Menace of Tooth Decay

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the most serious indictments against our present-day civilization is its failure to preserve the teeth of men, women and children. Countless examinations in all parts of the country reveal that practically 100 per cent of the adult population is afflicted with some form of oral disease. And surveys of the physical condition of school pupils in different localities and under various circumstances disclose that tooth decay affects between 90 and 97 per cent of our school children.

Remarkable and widely heralded advances have been made in our knowledge of how to control and prevent many dangerous and debilitating diseases. Yet we appear to be complacent in the face of the fact that the majority of our population is handicapped by decayed teeth!

Nor does the mere statement of how to control and prevent many dangerous and debilitating diseases. Yet we appear to be complacent in the face of the fact that the majority of our population is handicapped by decayed teeth!

Through brushing is necessary after every meal to remove all particles of food which remain between the crevices and cling near the necks of the teeth. If not removed, this debris may ferment, giving rise to unpleasant odors and creating acids which may attack the tooth enamel.

It is important, however, that the brushing be done correctly, away from the gums and with a slight rolling stroke, so that the bristles can penetrate between the teeth. Never use a horizontal stroke nor brush toward the gums. This may irritate the tender tissues and may also force food particles under the gums at the necks of the teeth.

A Good Dentifrice Essential

The selection of a dentifrice is most important because an agreeable dentifrice encourages thorough brushing—an efficient dentifrice helps to float away minute bits of food not reached by the toothbrush.

It is also advisable to use a paste or powder which helps to restore luster to teeth which have been surface-stained by foods and beverages.

The use of an antiseptic mouthwash, at least once daily, especially before retiring, is commendable as it leaves the mouth fresh and clean.

It is also important to give the teeth regular systematic cleansing, and to see your dentist periodically for a careful checkup.

Braid Trimming Is Smart

IT'S so easy to sew a few rows of braid onto a house dress or a little girl's party-frock, and it's such a smart way to brighten up simple fashions and make them more becoming. So let's rejoice that the fashion of using braid trimming is back with a bang, this Fall. Here are two very attractive and unusual designs that you'll enjoy making at home, in pretty fabrics of your own selection. Each includes a detailed sew chart to guide beginners.

The House Dress.

Here's a style so becoming and attractive that you'll probably want to make it of thin wool or sports silk for general wear, as well as of percale, calico, gingham for the house. The very short kimono sleeves are just as easy to work in as no sleeves, and much more becoming. Straight panels front and back, gathers at the sides of the waistline only, give this design an unusually good figure line.

The Panty-Frock.

High waistline, puff sleeves, square necklines—they all look adorable on little girls. This flaring frock buttons down the front so that ambitious tots can easily dress themselves in it. This design will be pretty in so many different materials—gingham, challis, percale and dimity. A dress-up version in taffeta will be sweet, too; trim that with ribbon instead of the braid.

The Patterns.

1570 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material without nap; 2 3/4 yards braid to trim.

1516 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 3 yards of 35-inch material; 4 1/2 yards braid or ribbon to trim; 1 1/2 yards ribbon for belt.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Teaching the Child.—The best way to help a child develop attractive manners and genuine courtesy is to set a good example.

Quick-Baking Pies.—Fruit and berry pies with lattice-style tops require less baking time than the regular two-crust pies.

For Sealed Mouths.—When a too-hot drink scalds the mouth and throat, take a teaspoonful of olive or cod-liver oil. It eases the pain at once.

A Tempting Dish.—Mashed sweet potatoes seasoned with powdered cinnamon or nutmeg are a favorite dish in some parts of the country.

Examine Soiled Cloth.—Before removing a soiled tablecloth and napkins look for fruit stains and put camphor on them. Then wash the same as any white goods.

For Long Sheets.—When buying sheets, always allow at least 10 inches on each side and top and bottom, as the bed will never stay neat with sheets that are too short.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

SLEEPING SICKNESS IN HORSES
More than a score of cases of sleeping sickness in horses has been reported in Washington county. The outbreak is not overly serious, and in another week or two the main sources of infection, namely mosquitoes and flies will be on the decrease.
Most animals reported infected are ones that have been out on pasture both day and night. Farmers are advised to keep all horses in the stable and screen the stables as much as possible against mosquitoes and flies. The liberal use of a good fly spray is also recommended.
Experience shows that in localities where the disease does appear that 75% of the horses will escape infection even if nothing is done to prevent it; where proper preventive measures are used 89% of the animals will escape infection.

Weekly News Review Britain Feared Capitulating In Czech-German Argument

By Joseph W. LaBine

Foreign

At his office in Fleet street, Publisher Geoffrey Dawson decided that wisdom was the better part of valor. Next morning his London Times put in black and white what England's conservative Cliveden set has thought all along: That Britain had best let Adolf Hitler cede Czechoslovakia's Sudeten territory if no other settlement would satisfy him.

Nor did Der Fuehrer appear content with anything less. While nervous France protested such an idea and rushed troops into her amazing Maginot line like gophers rush to their holes, all eyes converged not on London or Prague, but on Nuremberg where the Nazi party was holding its annual congress and clamor.

AMBASSADOR HENDERSON He wouldn't go home.

opened to Nuremberg. Some evening Fuehrers Hitler and Henlein opened them, found satisfaction for every demand except (1) establishment of a one-unit government for Sudeten and (2) freedom for practice of Nazi ideology.

Prague's concessions might have been sufficient a week earlier, but shrewd Adolf Hitler now saw a chance to take the whole hog. Britain, anxious to avoid war at all cost, had capitulated, unofficially admitting she was willing to sell Czechoslovakia down the river. And by midnight another unexpected joy had developed, so important that Konrad Henlein was sent scurrying back home with orders to hold out for complete surrender.

At Maerfisch-Ostrava, in Sudeten territory, Czech mounted policemen had horsepiled a noisy crowd, striking a Sudeten legislator on the shoulders. While apologetic Prague hastened its investigation, the incident offered Konrad Henlein a new chance to play the role of martyr. Next day, with all odds in his favor, Der Fuehrer could afford to assure the world of his peaceful intentions. While Nuremberg's show continued, he received Germany's foreign diplomatic corps, including France's Andre Francois-Poncet who suggested: "Democracies are not exactly lauded at the Nuremberg congress, but their emissaries usually feel welcome." Answered expansive Adolf Hitler: "I hope to continue to make the ambassadors feel welcome, and I also hope that during my regime no mother will have cause for wet eyes on account of any action of mine."

Most foreign envoys left after the reception, but not Britain's Sir Neville Henderson. He stuck around like a guest who won't go home, trying to corner either Der Fuehrer or Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. If he succeeded, Germany would learn that Geoffrey Dawson was only fooling, that Britain still meant business.

Aviation

U. S. commercial airlines could not operate without government mail subsidy, but since 1934 even that assistance has been insufficient to prevent huge deficits. Part of the infant industry's trouble has been of its own making, as when monopolistic practices caused the U. S. army's painful experience with air mail five years ago. Throughout its brief history, aviation has contended with improper and vacillating government supervision. Not until last winter did congress create a civil aeronautics authority, which was organized last month under Edward J. Noble.

Last week, CAA gave a party. To Chicago they invited representatives of 25 commercial lines for a "get acquainted" meeting that ended in a lecture. Led by Air Transport Association's Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, aviation plumped for immediate stop-gap relief in the form of increased air mail subsidies. Also outlined was a five-point industrial program which requires CAA's moral and financial aid.

All this was well enough, but if airlines expected CAA to be a financial angel, they had another guess coming. Up stepped Member Harlee Branch to dispel, once and for all, any mistaken ideas. Said he: "It seems proper to remind carriers that while the authority desires that they shall receive fair compensation, no line should assume that the authority is going to dish out public moneys in any reckless or ill considered fashion. No one should be deluded with the idea that all an air line has to do... is convince the authority it has succeeded in operating at a deficit. There will be no premiums on bad management."

War

North of the Yangtze river, two Japanese armies captured three Chinese positions in their drive on Hankow. South of the Yangtze there was a different story, for defenders pierced Jap lines six miles south-east of Juichang and forced the invaders to retreat, leaving 300 dead. Fresh from Tokyo came 100,000 troops, determined to intensify the campaign on all fronts until Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government is crushed.

On the Ebro front, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's African Moors swept through a gap in the loyalist Cobera line, next day capturing mountain heights dominating the river valley.

Domestic

In Ohio, 110,000 aged people receive federal-state assistance, which costs the U. S. social security board approximately $1,275,000 per month. In August when he ran for Democratic renomination, Ohio's Gov. Martin L. Davey pointed with pride at his record. One accomplishment: Establishment of old age assistance, which has also been established in 47 other states.

Three days before the primary, Social Security's Director Frank Bane charged Governor Davey with using old age assistance to get votes. Though the governor was defeated, that did not stop Social Security from sending out investigators who last week reported to Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer.

At a hearing from which Martin Davey pointedly absented himself, Social Security claimed that (1) requests for old-age aid addressed directly to Governor Davey received preferential treatment; (2) some pensioners were told it would be "a good idea" to vote for Governor Davey; (3) political and personal influence replaced the merit system in appointment of Ohio's old age personnel.

Next day, Chairman Altmeyer's threat to cut off federal pension grants brought a sharp retort as Martin Davey answered a "dirty politics" charge with a dash of the same medicine: "Frankly, I do not believe you dare deprive these (Ohio's) aged citizens of one-half their scant living to support your political maneuver. This is surprisingly dirty politics for one who pretends to be as righteous as yourself."

Before he ever became President, Franklin Roosevelt's pet public utilities idea was a four-point program including (1) Grand Coulee for the Northwest; (2) Boulder for the Southwest; (3) TVA for the Southeast; (4) St. Lawrence waterway for the Northeast. Boulder dam had already been built, and since coming to the White House Franklin Roosevelt has started Grand Coulee, expanded TVA. Only the St. Lawrence waterway is unstarted, nor will it start until Ontario's stubborn Premier Mitchell Hepburn gives his blessing, not forthcoming until Canada's railroad situation improves.

Without mentioning St. Lawrence, the President managed last week to focus attention on it. At Hyde Park he read reports by the war department and federal power commission on power needs. Then he decided an electricity shortage in case of war constitutes "a serious threat to national security."

Appointed at once was a special committee for further study, to "find and recommend definite ways and means of meeting this problem." Best bet was that the St. Lawrence plan would be the "ways and means."

doorway and two latticed windows. The hunting box was once occupied for a time by Princess Johanna, King John's daughter, and her governess, Christina de Rumsey. Later it was used as the guest house of Rumsey's abey, then as the house of the ex-steward of the abbey, and later still as a workhouse. For centuries it was camouflaged as a block of rather tumble-down cottages in a court off Church street, and was finally discovered by workmen carrying out repairs.

Business

Not since June, 1937, has the U. S. treasury asked the capital market for "new money," though last December it borrowed $450,000,000 to pay maturing bills. But when congress voted billions for relief this past spring, when Recession kept government payrolls swollen above normal, it was obvious that money must come from somewhere. Fortnight ago, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., returned from Europe, busying himself immediately with Budget Director Daniel W. Bell. Then came the inevitable announcement.

This month, said Secretary Morgenthau, the treasury will go into the market for $700,000,000 in "new money" to help finance Recovery. Still ahead are requests for $1,400,000,000 more in "new money," though these will not come before next calendar year.

Nor was this all. In the next few weeks, notes totaling $433,400,000, due December 15, will be refinanced. Short term treasury bills, totaling $1,300,000,000, will be refinanced at a rate of $100,000 per week. Bolstered by its new borrowing, the U. S. cash box will operate on a larger working balance between now and December. On hand last week was $1,620,000,000.

How much it cost Secretary Morgenthau to raise his national debt to $38,300,000,000, was evidenced by loan rates. The $1,300,000,000 in maturing bills cost the treasury an average debt service of 0.05 per cent, possibly the lowest rate in U. S. history. Net result of new borrowing will be to decrease bank reserves, now nearing an all-time high, and to increase deposits. Though bank earnings thus far in 1938 are under last year, Secretary Morgenthau was optimistic. Said he: "It's quite remarkable the way banks are paying dividends and covering them. I think they seem to be doing very well. As you know, we have no failures to speak of."

Agriculture

Last spring, the new U. S. crop control measure placed domestic and export corn requirements at 2,470,000,000 bushels, promised to make loans if 1938 production exceeded that figure. Though much corn has suffered from disease, America's crop this year has still turned out above expectations. By last week it became apparent that corn loans will be necessary. At Washington, AAA's H. R. Tolley reported the August estimate of 1938 corn was 2,566,000,000 bushels, which is 94,000,000 bushels in excess of the original estimate. Though loan figures will not be determined until next November's crop board estimates, loans were virtually assured, probably at 57 cents a bushel.

Politics

Nevada's Pat McCarran backed Franklin Roosevelt for re-election in 1936, opposed his Supreme court and government reorganization measures. But while the President sought to "purge" other half-hearted New Dealers in this year's primaries, he made no intervention in Nevada's primary. Opposing Pat McCarran for renomination were Reno's Albert Hilliard and Carson City's Dr. John Worden, both "100 per cent New Dealers." The outcome: Pat McCarran won easy re-nomination.

At Little Rock, Ark., conscientious J. Rosser Venable, defeated candidate for Democratic senatorial nomination, submitted his $683.90 expense report with an explanation of one item: "I bought one 25-cent melon for a few persons in a store and divided with them this delicious, juicy melon."

People

Premier Queen Victoria of Spain is a Battenberg, and for generations all men of the Battenberg line have inherited hemophilia (tendency to bleed), though Battenberg women are free of it. Among victims was the count of Cavadonga, eldest son of Queen Victoria and King Alfonso. As a child he nearly bled to death from a tooth extraction. Two years ago, he had 20 transfusions over a malignant tumor which could not be relieved by surgery for fear of bleeding. Last week, at Miami, the count of Cavadonga sped down Biscayne boulevard with Mildred Gaydon, night club cigarette girl. Their car swerved to miss a truck, slid, smashed into a telephone pole. Nine hours later the count bled to death.

Son James Roosevelt, at Rochester's Mayo clinic, prepared to have a stomach ulcer removed.

Refusing all attempts to lure it away, a goose has been on sentry duty outside the Kralievo barracks in Yugoslavia for three years. Latest reports in Belgrade were that it is still on duty. It is always in the same spot, standing first on one leg and then on the other, and is so attached to the army that it will not take food from any one not in uniform. When taken from the post it mopes and goes on hunger strike, until permitted to return.

Old-Age Pension Schemes Figure In Primaries in Several States

Lead to Success of Senator Pepper in Florida and Defeat Of McAdoo in California; Delude Aged and Infirm Voters; Fallacy of Plans Shown.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — A good many Easterners had nearly forgotten about Dr. Francis Townsend and his $200-a-month pension plan until lately they were suddenly awakened by the far South and the far West. Sen. Claude Pepper won a Democratic nomination to the senate in Florida largely because of espousal of the Townsend plan and just recently Sen. William G. McAdoo had his public career abruptly terminated because Sheridan Downey, his opponent for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California, proposed and promised some fantastic scheme of paying $50 every Thursday to persons over 50 years of age.

In addition to these results, there have been 12 or 15 candidates for the nomination to the house of representatives who have won in primaries by saying the Townsend plan or the $30-every-Thursday or some other impossible and illogical and unsound pension plan would be put through congress. I cannot describe them all; they are obviously variations of the Townsend plan, and none of them will work any more than the Townsend bill itself, and each has been used to delude aged and infirm voters whose ballots were needed to swing an election.

It is tragic that such things have happened, and are happening today. The fact cannot be ignored, however, because the condition is with us. One the one thing to do, then, I believe, is to attempt to disillusion those folks who have swallowed the slick words of those campaigners or those racketeers who are preying upon the faith of folks who, through no fault of their own, do not have access to information that shows these schemes to be rainbows. And, as far as history records, nobody on earth ever has found the end of the rainbow where the pot of gold is reputed to be.

I am not concerned about the public career of Mr. McAdoo who has been in public service off and on since 1913. He never impressed me as being any great shakes of a statesman. As secretary of the treasury, he did the job probably about as well as the average political appointee. I never have had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Downey. So I can't comment. Senator Pepper's senate record is a great deal like many another senator's record, and probably will continue to be just so-so. In other words, here were two average senators—one winning with the aid of the promises about the Townsend plan and the other losing because he stayed away from such promises, although he was thrice blessed by the President of the United States. That situation, along with some letters accusing me of giving the Townsend plan a "silent treatment" in these columns, seems to warrant a new analysis of the conditions that now confront the country.

It Appears Townsendism Is Not Dead After All

As I said there is evidence that Townsendism is not dead at all. It has formed the basis of a dozen panaceas, of which the $30-every-Thursday is but an example. It happened that this scheme was proposed in California which, particularly in its southern sections, has a vast population of aged people who have gone there to enjoy the famous climate and have the health that it gives them. Old people are militantly behind these schemes. That is one of the reasons why Mr. Downey was able to boast more than a million signatures to the petition that made the question an issue in California. And Florida, too, with a fine winter climate, is a fertile field for the racketeers who promote such ridiculous programs. It is a harsh thing to blame the strength of these movements, all of which crop up during depression times, upon elderly people. It is nevertheless the cold fact that they are the type among whom such schemes are promoted, and because they have voters, the candidates for office stoops to the level of adding further to hopes that never can be fulfilled in that manner.

To show how silly the scheme of $30-every-Thursday is as a campaign issue for Mr. Downey—just as an example—he is a candidate for the United States senate. The pension dream he has advocated is planned as part of the welfare program of the state of California. How Mr. Downey can do anything about it as a member of the United States senate, I can not understand, and I seriously doubt that Mr. Downey can explain it.

Nor will the plan work if made into law without bankrupting the state of California. I doubt that it will work anyway, but assuming that it may work, the state will be assuming a burden that will cost it so much money that the California books will be so far in the red as to cause them to appear splattered with blood. This idea of paying "stamps" on each warrant each week so that an actual $1.04 has been affixed by cash payment in a year will stop the transfer of them very shortly. Few storekeepers, for example, will accept them beyond the necessities of their tax payments to the state of California; it is certain also that those who continue to accept them would not pay the face value, and the possessor would be forced into paying higher prices for the things that he buys. That is, the possessor would be buying 50 cents worth of sugar and probably would be handing over a dollar warrant for it. All of this is the result of a lack of confidence among the people in any form of exchange except the currency that is backed and guaranteed by the United States, as has been shown so many times before.

Downey Plan Would Make Trouble for New Dealers

Then, I believe I foresee some other trouble respecting such warrants as Mr. Downey's scheme proposes; not that I think his plan is worse than any others but that as an illustration. It is proposed that the possessor put a two-cent state stamp on the warrant for each week in his possession, or 52 such stamps in a year. Well, I imagine that the warrants would be in the hands of many persons who had no cash at all—not a cent. Immediately, there would be a cry to go to have the state supply the stamps free, and it is quite certain that there would be some politicians dishonorable enough to campaign for office on that issue.

Now, assume that Mr. Downey comes to the senate; assume that he is elected over his Republican opponent in November. I seem to sense some added trouble for President Roosevelt and his New Deal friends who have been promising too many things and too much of them. Of course, many persons believe that Mr. Roosevelt's methods to date have encouraged all kinds of quackeries because he has talked at length of humanitarianism. He has aroused the minds of elderly persons who are suffering under conditions not of their own making. He has likewise aroused a lot of feebly brained individuals among the younger people who live on illusions. It is made to appear that congressional leaders, seeking to follow presidential policies, are going to be confronted with frequent bulges for national pensions of a kind that no nation can bear.

The number and type of these panaceas ebbs and flows with the economic tide. When business is good and there is plenty of work, when storekeepers are able to sell and people are able to buy, we hear little or nothing of the dream-world children of the Townsend plan and the Downeys and the others. When there are "hard times" and there are thousands upon thousands without work and food and clothes, those suffering minds become easy prey to the silver tongue.

Pursuing the thought a bit further, it then becomes possible for a movement which demands not $30 every Thursday for persons over 50, but one demanding $40 or $50 every Friday or $60 every Saturday. The amounts can be pushed up and up and the fervor of the suffering under this illusion grows greater and greater. And always, such movements provide the breeding ground for other racketeers who want to promote dissension and dissatisfaction. Always, too, there will be political champions for the "cause" whatever it may be, because there is something, some halo, about public office that will lead men into the strangest views.

President Cannot Dodge Some of Responsibility

Mr. Roosevelt has said with emphasis several times that none of these things will work. He believes they should not be propagated and spread, because he recognizes how easily miserable humanity can be lead off at a tangent. It is a type of hysteria, an emotion. The President, however, must not dodge responsibility for a part of it. As I said above, his methods have been conducive to hysteria of several kinds. These panaceas that threaten again to cause grief for his administration are but an outgrowth of the numerous plans that have been given birth by various persons in official position. True, they have been fed by the dregs of hard times, but they had their encouragement first from illogical phases of the New Deal.

Truer words were never spoken than President Roosevelt uttered at Pittsburgh, Pa., in his 1932 campaign when he said: "Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns, but you and I know that a continuation of the habit means the poor house." Adoption of any of the pension schemes, whatever their variation from the Townsend plan may be, means the poor house because there can not be enough taxes levied or collected to meet the need.

fleet expansion program which congress approved this year, the admiral said. He added that next year's construction program contemplates two battleships, four cruisers, eight destroyers, and six or eight submarines. Admiral Leahy, the navy's top ranking officer, said in an article in the Army and Navy journal that when the navy's present building program is completed, the fleet should be adequate to protect the country against any foreign force.

Navy to Ask 200 Million Extra to Build Warships

WASHINGTON. — The navy expects to ask congress next year for $200,000,000 more than was provided for the current year, Admiral William D. Leahy said after conferring with President Roosevelt. The regular appropriation for this year is $546,898,494.

Holiday Fatalities Drop — Nine persons were killed in automobile accidents in Wisconsin over the Labor Day week end this year. Thirteen were killed in 1937.

Bandits Rob Movie — After taking in the show at a Lake Geneva movie theater, four gunmen forced the manager to go to his office and turn over to them $1,400 of holiday week end receipts.

$196,000 for REA — The federal rural electrification administration has announced Wisconsin allotments of $186,000 to the St. Croix county co-operative at Baldwin to build 170 miles of line to serve 559 customers and $10,000 to the Jackson electric co-operative at Black River Falls.

School Ban at Bayfield — A health board order prohibits all children under the third grade from attending public or parochial schools at Bayfield, due to a serious outbreak of infantile paralysis. There are ten cases of the malady in Bayfield county.

1,000 Go on Strike — More than 1,000 members of a CIO union employed by the Harnischfeger Corporation of Milwaukee went on a strike in protest against a 10 per cent wage cut announced by the firm. Mass picketing at the plant barred all entrance for several days.

'Sitdown' by Fired Teachers — Three married teachers recently discharged by the school board at Dallas, Barron county, conducted a "sit-down" strike on the opening day of school. The ousted teachers reported for duty and sat tight at their desks until told by board members that they would have to hold their strike in the hall, which they did.

Frog Hunting a Nuisance — Commercialized frog hunting, with dealers gathering supplies by truck in nearly every section of Wisconsin, has aroused the antagonism of farmers, who complain that crops have been trampled and fences broken. Protests reached such proportions that the state conservation commission issued temporary orders prohibiting frog catching in Polk, Barron, Burnett and Pepin counties.

Hydro Group Hoping — Belief that federal financing can be obtained for the proposed $26,000,000 power and flood control project on the Wisconsin river has not been abandoned by supporters of the Wisconsin hydro authority, although PWA authorities at Washington have released $10,000,000 for other Wisconsin PWA projects. Gov. L. La Follette has suggested joint financing of the hydro project by PWA and RFC.

Confess Brutal Attack — The brutal beating of Mr. and Mrs. John Wittig, farm couple living near Hartford, resulted in the arrest of five young men of that community and a sister of two of them, who admitted that she had acted as a lookout during the attempted robbery. The robbers, who believed that a safe in the farm home held a large sum of money, clubbed Wittig into unconsciousness and one of the men threw Mrs. Wittig to the floor and stomped on her abdomen. Milton and Lester Schumacher, brothers, pleaded guilty to being implicated in the attempted robbery and stood three other men as their accomplices.

Rain Causes Floods — Five days of continuous rain brought to western and central Wisconsin the worst flood conditions in many years, causing great damage and the deaths of at least four persons. Derailed by a washout near Hudson, a North-western road train went into the ditch, killing the engineer, August Rieck, and Albert Newland, a news vendor. Roger Glenn, 25, of Holcombe, Chippewa county, was drowned when a bridge on which he stood dropped into Fischer river.

Judith Howard, 84, lost his life when his rowboat was swept over a dam at Baraboo. At the height of the flood, water ran two to three feet deep in streets of Stevens Point and Sparta, almost the entire village of Owen was inundated, about 30 families living in lowlands at Bloomer were forced to flee from their homes and Black River Falls was in danger with the Black river at a higher stage than in 1911, when that city was almost entirely swept away by a flood. Like conditions prevailed at many other points. More than 500 feet of Soo Line railroad tracks were washed out near Stevens Point, paralyzing traffic, and many state highways became impassible for several days.

Highway Route Restored — After a one month test, the new routing of highways 13 and 54 through the city of Wisconsin Rapids was abandoned and both highways again run through the main business section. The rerouting caused many business firms to protest to the state highway commission.

Fire Destroys Elevator — The grain elevator of the New London Farmers' Exchange was destroyed by a fire believed to be the result of spontaneous combustion. Loss was $20,000.

Perry Seeks Pardon — George W. E. Perry, "the marrying brakeman," who is serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary for the murder of Cora Belle Hackett, his bigamous wife, has made a third application for pardon. The crime occurred in 1930 in Vilas county.

Reliefers Allowed Liquor — In an opinion to the district attorney of Jefferson county, Attorney General Loomis has ruled that a county board has no authority to prohibit a tavern keeper from selling liquor to persons on relief rolls.

Unnatural Nature

NATURE sometimes startles man by turning its tables and revealing amazing quirks. For example, the above beach on the western coast of Hawaii has unusually fine sand. But imagine the result of volcanic deposits.

Picture Parade
Carolina is famous "Blowing Rock" over the precipitous John's river. The young lady tosses her handkerchief over the edge and a moment later sees it wafted gently back into her hand. In winter, it actually snows upward at this strange place, and winds are constantly moving up.

Some made peculiar things in the sea, too. At Seaside Park, N. J., blowfish expand a blowfish which was chased ashore by larger fish. When released they deflate—with a snort. Next, yellow, or you'll explode!

Some of nature's underground secrets have never been fathomed. In a stream near Lake Lure, N. C. Miss Helen Hoffman found the black abyss that holds a mystery never fathomed—deep deep the water is. Several similar pools are in the same area and no one has ever been able to reach their bottoms.

Some made this man-shaped face; man gave it a smoke!

Resin Made by Accident
The discovery of a way artificial resins might be made for use in paints and varnishes came about quite by accident. In 1901 an English dyestuff maker produced a tough resinous mass in his laboratory. Experiments made over a number of years perfected the product as we know it today and opened the way to an inexhaustible source of supply, obtainable at will. Natural resins are still used, of course—being largely collected by natives of tropical swamplands where it is found embedded in the mud.

Termites Use Caterpillars
A naturalist describes the occurrence of the larvae of a Tincid moth in the nests of a New Zealand termite. The larvae depend upon the material of the nest for their food, and they may be seen moving along in file, at regular intervals, as if in a procession, each escorted by a few soldier and worker termites. It appears that the larvae exude a strong odor which is attractive to the termites. Just as one may have flowers in his room for the sake of their perfume, so the termites have caterpillars.

'Stream of Death'

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Maurice Dunford of Chicago is today's distinguished adventurer. He was a volunteer fire fighter and "smoke eater" in the little town of Russellville, Ark., in 1929, when his adventure happened. It was a quiet, warm, summer afternoon in the little town that nestled in a valley at the foot of the Ozarks close to the bank of the Arkansas river. Every one was dozing and taking life easy, but suddenly the fire siren let out a shrieking blast that brought the whole town to life.

Maury made a rush for the station. Firemen from all over the town were running to the same point. They poured into the building and the big truck rolled out even before the sound of the siren had died away.

The burning building was only two blocks from the fire house. It was a small dwelling and the fire was in the attic. Maury says that smoke was pouring from under every shingle. He grabbed a line from a coupling and went around to the back of the house looking for an opening through which to get at the fire. Then, seeing no openings, he went into the house, dragged the hose up through a small trap door in the ceiling, and crawled with it into the attic.

"The heat and smoke were terrific," he says. "I started creeping forward so I could get at the seat of the blaze. Water was now belching through the nozzle in my hands, and the boys outside were playing another hose. The water from that hose was drenching me, but it was doing little toward putting out the fire."

Maury couldn't even move a muscle. He couldn't even turn around.

The little attic was fairly flooded with water now. What's more, that water was hot. "It felt as if it was cooking my knees," says Maury, "for I was kneeling in it, between the sills, with my head bent down to my chest to keep as much smoke out of my lungs as possible."

And then it happened. He felt as if something had grabbed him all at once. He tried to look around—and found that he couldn't. He simply couldn't move a muscle.

His whole body was stiff. It wasn't exactly trembling, but it felt to Maury as if something was trembling inside of him, giving him the shaking up of his life. All at once he realized what it was. An electric shock!

Paralyzed by Electric Current

Where was the shock coming from? He had stepped on no wires. There wasn't any wiring anywhere within ten feet of him. It took Maury a minute or two to figure that out. The hose! That stream of water had found a bare electric wire somewhere back there in the smoke and flame. The electricity was traveling down the stream to the nozzle, and Maury was gripping that nozzle with both hands. His wet clothes and the water-soaked floor were completing the hook-up that was sending the voltage through his body.

He tried to move the hose—divert the stream of water away from that wire—but he couldn't budge an inch. He tried to drop the nozzle, but for the life of him he couldn't let go of it. He tried to use his voice—and that worked. Somehow his vocal cords weren't paralyzed by the flow of electricity, and he shouted at the top of his lungs. "Shut off the juice," he was yelling. But he didn't think any one could hear him over the bedlam and confusion of sounds that came up to him from below.

"The pain was getting terrible," he says. "Every joint—every muscle—every bone in my body was aching. Smoke was choking—blinding me. I was held there by that shock, as immovable as if I'd been chained there. What was I to do? What was going to happen to me? Was I going to stand there until the fire crept over and burned me alive? Or would I succumb to the shocks of the electricity before the fire reached me?"

Some One Pulled the Switch

Maury knew that even house current could kill a man under the proper conditions, and he was sure that current would kill him if he held on long enough. The pain was getting worse by the minute. He felt as if he were about to lose consciousness, but he fought that giddy feeling that was making his head spin round and round. Once he let go of himself—well—he knew that would be the end.

And then, all of a sudden, Maury felt his body relax. He tried to move—found that he could—and turned the nozzle upward. Some one downstairs had pulled the main switch, shutting off all the current in the building. And he'd done it just in time to save Maury from collapse—and probably from death.

Says he: "The force of the upturned stream of water battered through the roof. Shingles went flying. Sunshine came pouring in. And I felt like a million dollars!"

Roman Women Used Creams

Roman women of fashion kept their face creams in glass boxes, while alabaster cosmetic phials were favored for rouge. But while the ancient Romans were "on top" with all these beauty devices, it took the "barbarian" Gauls to teach them how to manufacture soap.

Star Dust

- Sing You Sinners
- Langdon's Return
- Allen's a Cop

By Virginia Vale

AT LAST Bing Crosby has made an outstandingly good picture. Apparently Paramount should have found out long ago that it's a good idea to hitch a man's job to his hobby; that's what happened in "Sing You Sinners," for Bing plays a young man who makes his fortune, accidentally, in horse racing.

The picture is uproariously funny, and has two good songs. It also has an excellent cast, including Elizabeth Patterson and Fred MacMurray. Incidentally, it looks as if the character Bing plays, "Joe Beebe," might be part of a new cycle, so far as heroes are concerned. "Joe" is a ne'er-do-well, that kind of young man who, in real life, is so badly adjusted to life that he's just all wrong.

And along comes "Four Daughters," a grand picture in which John Garfield plays "Mickey Borden," another young man who's off on the wrong foot. "Mickey" is bitter and reckless and rude, and Garfield plays him magnificently. And that is no easy trick, for Priscilla Lane is very good indeed, and young Mr. Garfield has plenty of competition from May Robson, Frank McHugh and Claude Rains.

John Carradine, an excellent actor, turns in such a swell performance in a bit part in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" that he deserves bigger and better roles and many of them. He had hung up a record for himself on the stage before he took to the movies, and if he doesn't grab stellar honors in movies soon it's going to be because the producers can't recognize real talent.

Current news of George Raft's squabble with Paramount—Lloyd Nolan will be seen opposite Dorothy Lamour in Raft's role in "St. Louis Blues." Other changes: Harry Langdon's chance for a come-back as a partner for Hardy of the team of Laurel and Hardy, as a result of Stan Laurel's suspension by the studio, and Dorothy Lamour's departure from her role in radio as one of Charlie McCarthy's co-stars.

Speaking of radio, Kay Kayser and his band are going on tour, and the man whose cry of "Students!" has become so popular a part of modern dialogue will be doing his broadcasting from a lot of places, including a couple of universities (Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania) before he returns to New York. Kayser's rise to fame has been speedy; it's not so long since he was a college student himself.

When Fred Allen returns to the air it's pretty certain that he'll write two characters for himself into two of his scripts—an honorary policeman and a judge of a marathon race. The reason being that he's been appointed a policeman and a judge this summer in Old Orchard, Maine, and he's as proud of his honors as the late Will Rogers used to be over his job as mayor of Beverly Hills, Calif.

ODDS AND ENDS—There's a new trend in pictures at the moment: Central Casting bureaus get call after call from the studios for extras under 35 years old. . . . Pretty hard on the old-timers who are supporting themselves by work as extras. Janet Gaynor has a favorite story, "Forever," the rights of which she owns; she'll probably make it as her first picture under the new Selnick "share the profits" plan. . . . Three characters have been written out of "The Cowboy and the Lady" since it went into production, and three players dropped, all for the sake of economy—the picture got to costing too much. . . . The three who got the ax are Benita Hume, Thomas Mitchell and David Niven. . . . They're still laughing at Claudette Colbert's reason for not working in "Spouse of the North"—so the effect that she "wouldn't star with a fish." © Western Newspaper Union.

Why It Is Old Point Comfort
Old Point Comfort, Va., a historic resort, was given its name by the English colonists who established the settlement at Jamestown in 1607. Their first sight of land, it was so named because it put them "in good comfort."

Prefers Simple Language
"I admire education," said Uncle Eben, "but I don't believe a man ought to say 'assistance,' when he might get so much quicker action out of just plain 'help.'"

Make Distinctive Bed Linens in Sets

By Ruth Wyeth Spears.

OPENING mail is always stimulating—especially so when one comes upon a letter like this: "Dear Mrs. Spears—If you could step into my house you would see in every room ideas I have gotten from your Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Your drawings are so easy to follow that I have made slipcovers and even upholstered a wing chair. I never knew there were so many good ideas for curtains and bedspreads. "All my friends admire those I have made. I am now planning to make some new sheets and pillow cases. Can you suggest some kind of trimming? Sincerely, T.S." I wonder if "T.S." has my Sewing Book 2, Embroidery, Gifts and Novelties? On Page 14 of that book is a suggestion that just about fills her requirements, and for those of you who are keeping scrap books of these sewing lessons as they appear in the paper, here is an idea for contrasting facings for sheets and pillow cases. The diagram shows each step in the making of the colored facings. Make your own cardboard pattern for the scallops by drawing part way around a small plate or saucer. Use this pattern to mark and cut the scallops. After the scallops are cut, turn the raw edge over the cardboard pattern with a warm iron as shown.

With the help of Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, you can make many of the things you have been wanting for the house. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making things for yourself or to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, crazypatch quilt leaflet illustrating 36 authentic stitches is included free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
