New Street Lighting System Turned on in Kewaskum This Week

Kewaskum is a greatly improved little city at night since last Monday when the new ornamental street lighting system brightened up the streets for the first time. Kewaskum's Main street and Fond du Lac avenue are dark no more at night but as light as day under the new standards. That is up until 12 midnight when over half of the lights are switched off.

Plans are now being made to hold a big street carnival and celebration later on in the village in honor of the major improvement to its streets. The celebration may not be held until spring because the weather might be quite cold for such an event at this time of year.

Work was started on the new lighting last week in August and has been in progress since. Upon being completed, enough so that the lights could be put into use, residents of the village were surprised over the great difference from that of the former suspended arc lights.

All work is not yet finished. The Wisconsin Gas & Electric company, supervisors of the project and village workmen have yet to place several additional light standards on the east end of town, beyond the bridge, which originally were not planned for. These will be inserted soon. Workmen are now busy closing the holes around the standards with concrete.

The old poles holding the former lights are to be cut down to greatly improve the appearance of Kewaskum's two most important streets. The electric company has an allotted time of six months in which to do this work.

Twenty-six standards were erected on the two streets with an additional six on the bridge on East Main street. The standards extend 20 feet above the street and hold a six foot bracket extending inwardly toward the street which holds the lights.

William Kuciauskas attended the bridegroom as best man. A wedding breakfast was served to 12 people at 11 a. m. at the home of the groom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kuciauskas in Sheboygan.

Annual Field Trials and Beagle Show Here Draw Record Entry

The Wisconsin Beagle club's annual show Sunday evening and field trials from Saturday through Wednesday, Oct. 1-5, had by far the largest number of entries and greatest attendance ever held here. There were 80 beagies entered in the field trials compared to 58 last year. The show drew an increased entry of 25 dogs. Several states besides Wisconsin were represented in the show and trials.

The rabbits were quite numerous and some very fine trials were held during the five days. All owners who had their dogs entered in the trials were very well pleased with the ideal location here for the affair and expressed the desire to come again next year. Next fall's site for the annual meeting will be named at the spring meeting of the club and no doubt will again be brought to Kewaskum.

The committee in charge of the trials wishes to express its appreciation and thanks to the farmers for allowing the use of their land in the immediate vicinity to run the trials. Those who had dogs entered and spent the time during the trials in the village also greatly appreciated the cordial treatment and hospitality given them by the citizens of Kewaskum which was of the best.

Joe Eberle, local beagle fancier and president of the Wisconsin Beagle club, acted as host to its members and how well he performed his duties to the visitors is quite evidenced by the praises accorded him on every side, regarding the use of his kennels and excellent treatment rendered. As usual, Joe was again successful in winning several cups and a number of ribbons with his highly rated dogs.

The beagle puppy, raffled off to the lucky ticket holder on the night of the show, was won by Clem. Thompson of Aurora, Ill. Proceeds from the tickets will be used for the benefit of the club.

Among the 25 beagies competing in the show at 8 p. m. Sunday evening were dogs from as far away as St. Louis, Mo. The only two owners whose dogs scored points in the show were S. D. Fell of Oaksho, who had the best male beagle in the show, and Joe Eberle, whose dog, Eberle's Martin, was chosen reserve winner as the best female beagle in the show. Other entrants won ribbons but failed to score points.

Reinders Goes Out of Business in Village

Gerhard Reinders, who managed the Kewaskum Funeral home for William Techtman of Barton for the past several years, on Tuesday had his possessions moved to Manitowish where he will reside in the future. Mr. Reinders has obtained a position in the undertaking line under a funeral director in that city. He has been engaged in Manitowish for the past several weeks but did not move there until now.

Mrs. Reinders, who operated a bakery business in the Gruber building on Main street the past summer has also left the village. At present she is spending a several months' vacation in Arkansas. The four children are staying with relatives in Chicago until Mrs. Reinders returns from her trip. Her plans for the future are unknown. Her stock on hand in the bakery was cleared from the shelves and sold in the past week or two.

The building which occupied the funeral parlors, the former Mrs. Mary Jacobitz home, is now for rent. The Gruber building is left vacant and at present no plans for a new business have been made.

America Fights Fire Menace

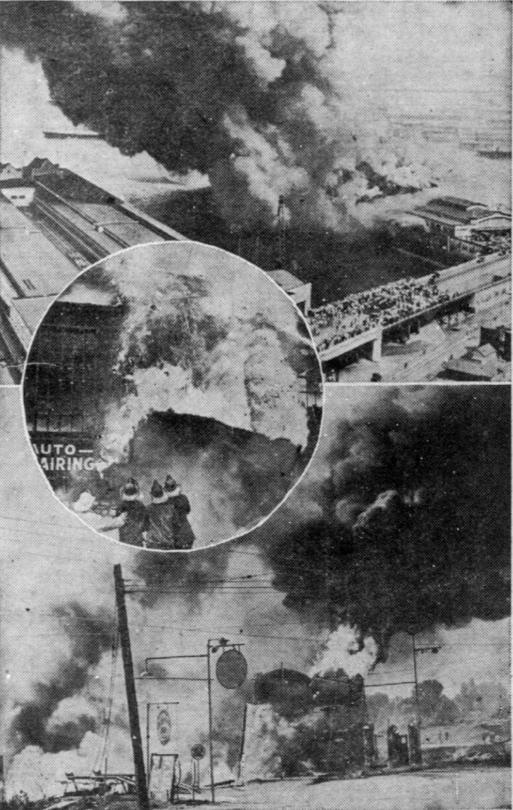

Each year, the fire demon takes 10,000 American lives and destroys $300,000,000 in property. Of this, 7,000 fatalities and $100,000,000 damage is caused by residential fires.

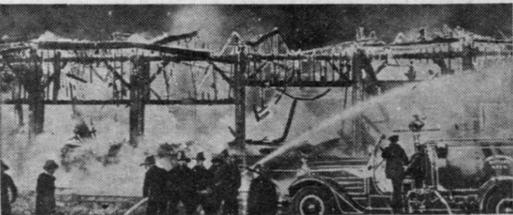

Picture Parade

During Fire Prevention week, most of the 25,000,000 homes in America will be inspected for "fire susceptibility" by firemen, 4-H clubs, rural scouts, state fire marshals and others. They will look for such menaces as forgotten rubbish piles and faulty heating plants. Many fires are caused by carelessness, but the more important consideration is that most fires are preventable. The bare truth is that America has one of the highest per capita fire losses in the world. Every two minutes of every hour, an American home catches fire.

Here are the greatest fire hazards in order of their importance: (1) rubbish; (2) defective chimneys; (3) combustible roofs; (4) defective heating equipment; (5) matches and careless smoking; (6) gasoline and kerosene; (7) electrical defects, and (8) hot ashes. Watch for these menaces in your home and help keep down America's fire toll. Remember that every 24 hours, 19 persons—half of whom are children—die as a result of fires; burned to death, suffocated or asphyxiated!

WEAK EGG SHELLS LACK VITAMIN D

Requirements of Birds Are Of Great Importance.

By Prof. C. S. Platt, Associate Poultry Husbandman, Rutgers University, WNU Service.

A lack of sufficient vitamin D in rations for laying flocks can be determined far more readily by egg shell quality than in the number of eggs produced. Egg shells become weak before production is in any way impaired when vitamin D is deficient. With an adequate supply of the vitamin, the number of cracked and weak-shelled eggs produced in a day should not exceed 3 per cent. This means that with a collection of 400 eggs daily, there should be more than about one dozen cracked or weak-shelled eggs. If the number exceeds this, the indications are that the vitamin D requirements of the birds are not being properly met.

To correct this condition, the cod liver oil content of the ration should be increased. Normally, the use of 2 per cent of a high grade, natural cod liver oil in the mash will provide a sufficient amount of the vitamin for good results. If this amount is being used and the number of cracked eggs still exceeds 3 per cent, it is possible that the quality of the oil is not up to standard.

Egg production alone is not a very good criterion of the needs of the birds for vitamin D, because under most conditions the birds obtain a sufficient amount through the ordinary open windows of a poultry house to meet their requirements for egg production.

Most Fires on Farms From Common Causes

Farm fires in the United States take about 3,500 lives and destroy $100,000,000 worth of property each year, says a recent United States department of agriculture publication, "Fires on Farms."

Eighty-five per cent of this loss is from such commonplace causes as defective chimneys and flues; sparks on combustible roofs; lightning; spontaneous combustion; careless use of matches, smoking; careless use of gasoline and kerosene; defective and improperly installed stoves and furnaces; faulty wiring; and misuse of electric appliances.

Four simple precautions that the author, Harry E. Roethe, of the bureau of chemistry and soils, gives to reduce needless waste caused by farm fires are: Use fire-resistant roofing, dispose of waste and rubbish, never use gasoline or kerosene to start or revive a fire, and guard against overheating of stoves and furnaces and clean smoke pipes at least once a year. He also suggests that major buildings be equipped with lightning rods.

In addition to removing the fire hazards, Roethe suggests preparations to fight a fire should one occur, that is, fire-fighting equipment on every farm, kept in a handy place ready for instant use.

Many Eggs Do Not Hatch

About 300,000,000 good eggs a year, which would be enough to feed thousands of persons, are wasted every year because they will not hatch. Most of these can be saved in edible condition, according to the claims, by a device recently patented which will detect whether an incubated egg will produce a chicken or not before it has a chance to spoil. It is claimed that from 15 to 20 per cent of all the eggs set annually in the United States never hatch.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Death From Aloft"

HELLO EVERYBODY: I guess you'd call this a success story, because it's about a young lad of eighteen who made the grade. On the other hand, you can call it an adventure story, too. Because it's one of those yarns where success and adventure are all mixed up together. It's from John R. Mills of New York City and while I don't claim it was the adventure that made a man out of Jack Mills, I do think it convinced a lot of other fellows that he was one.

Jack's New Job Was Plenty Tough.

This story starts in the fall of 1927, when Jack was hired by a structural iron working firm as a rivet jack. And Jack sums up that job of his very neatly in two sentences. "My duties," says he, "were to supply four or five riveting gangs with rivets and with coal for their forges. The duties of the riveting gangs were to supply skyscrapers for New York city."

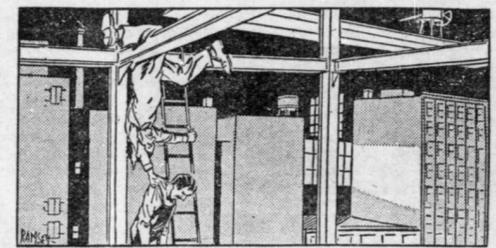

But it wasn't that easy. Structural iron work is one of the hardest trades in the world to break in on. You've got to get accustomed to walking like a cat along narrow steel girders only a few inches wide and hundreds of feet above the ground. The only way to do that is to get up there and walk those girders. There are no schools that teach a man to keep his head in a tight or dangerous spot. You can't acquire a steeplejack's courage out of a book, or learn it in some safe place on the ground.

"In the ironworkers' trade," Jack says, "you have to develop those iron nerves you hear about. Even the bravest man is nervous at first, walking along those narrow beams with arms and back loaded, and not even a semblance of a hand or foot grip to catch hold of if you lose your balance. My debut in the business was on a building that was an extra hazardous job because there was a double shift of ironworkers and that created a lot of confusion. The ironworkers ran up a framework of steel that was far in advance—eight stories at least—at all times, of the concrete floorlayers who worked below."

Jack was on the night shift, but somehow he couldn't feel that he was one of the gang. It wasn't that he was afraid. It wasn't that he didn't do his work. But somehow or other the veterans on the job made him feel like an outsider. To them he was just another rookie. They weren't unfriendly to him—but they weren't friendly either.

Things Went Haywire After Payday.

Jack didn't let that bother him. He went right on doing his work—and then came a night when everything went haywire! It was the night after payday and the men on the job, with hardly an exception, had been celebrating their fat pay envelopes. A lot of that stuff out of the little brown jug had been imbibed and those boys were not quite up to par. The raising gang was having trouble holding onto the great iron beams they were lifting, and the riveters were dropping red hot rivets right and left. A couple of beams had been allowed to fall and a couple of men had had narrow squeaks.

"A 4 by 12 beam missed me by inches," says Jack, "and with the deafening chatter of innumerable riveting guns, the clang of beams against beams and the banging of hammers on steel, the scene was akin to pandemonium. It was no place for a man with a case of nerves, and I still had some, although a few weeks of work and a few narrow escapes had hardened my nervous system considerably. It seemed to me that the quietest of the lot were my fellow apprentices, the rivet jacks."

Jack was just a little bit nervous as he went about his work. To get coal for the riveters' forges he had to climb down through eight stories of open steel work. He was on his way back to the top with a bag of coal on his shoulder, and as he struggled up the ladder with his load he began envying a couple other rivet-jacks who had rigged up a makeshift hoist and were hauling their coal up by means of ropes.

Jack Sees Doom Dropping From Above.

At that moment Jack reached the beams of the third story below the top, and stood waiting while two other ironworkers climbed up the next ladder. Another ironworker was following him up the ladder he had just left and Jack watched him coming for a moment, and then turned his attention back to the rivet jacks who were hoisting bags of coal. He had just turned his gaze in that direction when he saw the bag of coal slip its noose and come hurtling toward him!

Jack was right under that descending bag. He dropped to a sitting position and wrapped his legs around the beam. He knew he was going to be hit, but with luck, he might keep his hold. Gripping the beam he waited. Then—CRASH! The bag hit him on the shoulder, tore off his shirt sleeve, and ripped a big patch of skin from his right arm!

He was numbed—bewildered. But his eye took in everything that happened. At that moment the ironworker who had followed him up the ladder had almost reached the top. His head was "about even with Jack's waist. And the bag of coal, glancing off Jack's shoulder, hit the other fellow square on the head!

Like a flash, Jack swung out and caught him with his injured arm. And none too soon either. That fellow was out cold. His eyes were closed and he had let go his hold on the ladder. He was a dead weight, and Jack, hanging from the beam by one leg, now, was holding him with the fingertips of a numb and bleeding arm.

Five Stories Aloft and Concrete Below!

Says Jack: "We were five stories above the nearest floor and that was nice hard concrete. The weight was causing my left leg to slip, and that leg was holding me on the beam. I grew dizzy from the strain and began to feel sea-sick."

Meanwhile, another ironworker, coming up the ladder, began maneuvering himself into a position to straddle the injured man and hold him. But all that took time. And when, at last, other help arrived and many hands were assisting the man on the ladder, Jack was so far gone with dizziness and fatigue that he had to be helped himself before he could get back on the beam.

Both Jack and the other fellow were back on the job the following night, and that same night, other ironworkers began to speak to Jack. They didn't say much—just a remark or two about the weather. But it was enough to let Jack know that he had made the grade.

Milk to Make Pound of Butter

A possible reason why many farmers prefer to remain dairy-men proper rather than butter manufacturers may lie in the fact that it takes 27 pounds of milk to make one pound of butter.

PASSING JUDGMENT

... on others can often get us into "hot water" when we do not know all the circumstances.

By WINIFRED WILLARD.

MAN, orange and bunch of boys on the lower East Side of New York. The man tossed the orange to see the boys scramble for it. One chap, about 10, fought like a young tiger, tooth and nail, eyes flashing, face grim, fists hitting furiously—all for an orange. The man who had tossed it told his wife at home: "I saw the meanest boy in the world this morning. Didn't care for anybody or anything except to hog an orange himself."

Business took that man later the same day to a pitifully poor room. On a cot in the corner a little girl's cheeks flamed with fever and her body was wasted with suffering. The door flew open. In bolted that little chap, the "meanest boy in the world." Breathless with running, he tiptoed up to his sister's bed and whispered excitedly, "Here's an orange I brought ye. Sis; fought for it 'cause I thought ye'd like it." How her eyes sparkled! Tiny hands reached eagerly for it. Parched little lips craved the refreshment it offered.

The man went home, sat long slumped in his chair. Then he called his wife and with shame and regret struggling in his voice blurted out: "You've married the meanest man that ever lived. That little shaver I told you about, the one I said was the meanest boy in the world, fought for my orange to take to his sick sister and I'm lookin' for somebody to kick me round the block!" He didn't know the whole story before he sat in judgment; that's all.

Flimsy Evidence

A big bishop spoke rather caustically and disparagingly about a woman in public life who traveled the nation and who had an exceptional salary. "Why doesn't she wear better clothes?" he asked, "same old things season in and out; that hat certainly's been on the road winter and summer two solid years." It had. She knew it better than the bishop. But he just didn't know that her money was spent instead for nurses and comforts for her sick father whom she adored. What did a new hat matter if father needed what the cost of a hat could provide? Just judging on flimsy evidence!

For months two people dodged each other. Each knew the other was haughty, unapproachable, cold and undesirable. Finally they met. Didn't want to; tried to avoid it and couldn't. Almost at once barriers began to fall. From the dislike of misunderstanding, they got proper appraisals of each other; to their surprised satisfaction, each began to enjoy, then to admire the other. For the first time they saw behind the scenes and found only what was good. Nearly always so!

Case of the Railroad Man

It seemed strange that the man who lived in Washington breakfasted ungodly early, walked four long blocks, took a street car across city, then rode the tiresome train every day to his Baltimore office. We could all have told him how much shorter, simpler and more sensible for him to step into the bus in front of his house and out at his office; most anybody would know enough to do it this easier, quicker way. Then we learned that he is of the railroad staff and it is his professional responsibility to take the train. Buses weren't his line. Trains were! We sat in judgment without knowing what we were talking about.

So easy to turn our imaginations loose on any pretext or person; so easy to see what isn't there; to misunderstand and misinterpret; to see the little lad fighting for an orange for his sick sister as "meanest boy in the world"; so easy to be critical instead of kind; to tangle human threads that need straightening, not snarling, and thus to spoil many a lovely pattern of life.

A world of saving wisdom abides in the old philosophy that reveals "there's so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us that it scarcely behooves any of us to say things against the rest of us." Just another way of suggesting that it's better all around to "judge not." It keeps things from boomeranging on us!

Palms in Coat of Arms

The palm is in the coat of arms of South Carolina. Legends have it that the Virgin Mary commanded the palm to bend its leaves over Christ during the trip into Egypt. Palms were known to have supplied tribes not only with food, but also oil, fuel and shelter. One of the superstitions pertaining to palms. Yorker, is that if one would make a cross of leaves he would be free from injury during a heavy storm. People in some sections of the country believe that it will drive mice away from granaries; that if leaves are eaten it will cure fever, or that if a palm leaf is put behind the picture of Virgin Mary on Easter morning it will drive away all animals without bones.

QUITE TRUE

The professor had been lecturing the class on poisons, and after discussing various deadly substances, says London Answers magazine, he asked the class to name a few more. At once one student put up his hand. "Well," said the professor. "Aviation, sir." The professor stared. "Come, come!" he exclaimed. "This is no time for hilarity. What do you mean?" The reply was completely unexpected: "Why, sir, one drop will kill."

"Why doesn't the water leave the shore?" "Probably because it's tide there."

Even Worse

A woman rushed out of a house shouting "Fire!" A passer-by started to run to the fire alarm, while another dashed into the hall and, being unable to see or smell smoke, says Stray Stories magazine, turned to the excited woman and asked, "Where's the fire?" "I didn't mean fire! I meant murder!" A policeman arrived at that moment and demanded to know who had been murdered. "O, I didn't really murder," wailed the hysterical woman, "but the biggest rat you ever set eyes on ran across the kitchen just now."

A Banker

"What's the matter, sonny?" said a kindly faced gentleman to an urchin on the street. "You must be very poor to wear such shoes as those of this kind of weather. Have you any father?" "Well, I should say I have." "What does he do?" "He's a banker, he is." "A banker!" "Yes, sir. He's the feller that piled the snow on this here sidewalk."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Miss Louise A. Boyd, wandering far from sunny San Rafael in California, pushes farther up the East Greenland coast than any American ever went before. She was a comely woman of 30, skilled in the rubric of serving tea and all the niceties of Victorian etiquette before she shoved into the ice pack and began pot-shooting polar bears—nine in one day. She might have felt like the late William James who, free from a long stretch at a Wisconsin chautauqua, asked passersby if they could direct him to a nice Armenian massacre.

For the last 12 years she has been equipping stout little Norwegian sealers for her Arctic expeditions. She has trained herself in scientific observations and her findings are published under scientific auspices. She holds decorations from two foreign governments and the American Geographical society has published two of her books. She surveyed a stretch of the Greenland coast, previously uncharted, and for this the Danish government named the area Miss Boyd Land. She has ventured farther north than any other white woman.

She dislikes publicity and has little of the histrionic sense common to explorers. So far as the reporters are concerned, she might just as well make an expedition to Flatbush. At great labor and expense it has been ascertained, however, that she takes a nice wardrobe north with her and that she always powders her nose before going on deck. She probably was trapped into these indiscreet admissions as she has made it clear that all this is nobody's business.

Weaving through ice packs on an Atlantic voyage gave her her big idea. One of her chief interests on her northern voyages is photography. She is the daughter of John Boyd, wealthy California. The old manse at San Rafael, which this writer has seen on occasion, is a citadel of decorum, from which, it would seem, none would ever wander, so far and so dangerously.

THOSE who liked Thomas Mann's "The Coming of Democracy," will find in Dr. Cyrus Adler, who celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday just the other day, a living statement of Herr Mann's theme. A scholar and humanist, he has given his life to an exemplification of democracy as an ethical and cultural aspiration and not a political formula—which is Thomas Mann's impassioned thesis. This writer thought of that when he read the book, and spotted up Doctor Adler's birthday in the future book for attention here.

He is the only president of two colleges, Dropsie college of Philadelphia and the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York. A fellow of Johns Hopkins university, where he obtained his doctorate, he taught at the University of Baltimore. He has been a staunch defender of science and the humanities against bigotry and insularity through the more than half-century of his teaching, writing and speaking.

At his retreat at Woods Hole, Mass., he is still creative, alert and vigorous. He is saluted here as the proprietor of one of our most important birthdays.

DR. GEORGE D. BIRKHOFF, professor of mathematics at Harvard, seems to be the first to note the competition in the academic world from the influx of superintelligent refugees from Europe. As the doctor sees it, mathematicians won't be worth a dime a dozen if these highly gifted men keep on coming. However, his observations indicate no narrow insularity on his part. He is all for the enrichment of our intellectual life, but notes that somebody may have to ride on the running board with all this overcrowding.

When Einstein began bating his hot relativity grounds this way, Doctor Birkhoff was one of the few men in America who could field them. He is a prolific writer in the overlapping zone of mathematics and philosophy, one of the most heavily garlanded men in the scholastic world, a distinguished Catholic layman holding high papal honors for scholarship. He is a native of Michigan, educated at the University of Chicago and Harvard.

Webster's Tribute to Hamilton

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Relates the Romance of Wheat and Discusses Flour, the Basic Food

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THE story of wheat flour is the story of civilization. Before man learned to cultivate this golden grain, he was obliged to move from place to place, with the seasons, in search of food to sustain and nourish his body.

Then, on one happy and momentous occasion, perhaps 6,000 years ago, an inspired nomad plucked the kernels clustered at the top of some waving grasses, observed that they had a nut-like taste, and passed along the far-reaching discovery to his fellow tribesmen.

The beginnings of wheat cultivation are lost in antiquity. But we do know that for thousands of years, it has been one of the most important crops in the world—so necessary to man's well-being that the supplication, "Give us this day our daily bread," has summed up his most fervent desires.

Food for the World

Today, nearly three quarters of a billion people use wheat as food. And modern methods of milling have developed flours of such superlative quality that breads are more appetizing and more attractive than ever before; special flours make cakes and pastries light as the proverbial feather; and there are prepared mixes available for biscuits, waffles, muffins, griddle cakes, pie crust and gingerbread.

For Energy and Vitality

The form in which wheat flour makes its appearance on the table is of less importance than the fact that it is and should be an essential item in the family food supply. That is because it offers a rich supply of fuel value at little cost. The different types of flour contain from 61 to 76 per cent carbohydrates, from 11 to 15 per cent protein, and varying amounts of mineral salts and vitamins.

It is necessary to know something of the structure of the wheat kernel and to understand how the various flours differ, in order to select the flour best suited for each purpose. A kernel is made up of several outer layers of bran; a layer of cells high in phosphorus and protein, just inside the bran; the endosperm, composed of cells in which starch granules are held together by proteins; and the germ. The starch cells are so small that one kernel of wheat may contain as many as 20,000,000 granules.

White and Whole Wheat Flours

White flour is made chiefly from the endosperm. Whole-wheat, entire-wheat and graham flours are loosely applied terms which refer both to products made by grinding the wheat berry without the removal or addition of any ingredient, and also to a flour from which part of the bran has been removed or to which bran has been added.

One of the most prolonged discussions of the last two decades has involved arguments for and against the use of white or whole wheat flour in making various types of bread and muffins. As a result, many people have been confused and misled—often at the expense of their enjoyment in meals.

Here are the facts: White bread contains important energy values, proteins, some minerals, chiefly potassium and phosphorus, and when made with milk, it also supplies some calcium. It is easily and almost completely digested, tests indicating an average digestibility of 96 per cent.

Bread and other bakery products made from whole wheat flour also contain proteins and carbohydrates, plus good amounts of iron, copper, phosphorus and potassium; and vitamins A, B and G. The whole grain products are less completely digested than those which are highly refined, however, so some of their nutrients may be lost to the body.

When the two types of flour are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as practically interchangeable. Whole wheat flour is conceded to be richer in minerals and vitamins, but where white bread is preferred, these elements easily can be supplied from other sources.

As a matter of fact, foods made from both types of flour belong in the well-balanced diet, where they add variety and splendid food values at minimum cost. And it goes without saying that for many purposes, only white flour is suitable.

Bread Versus Pastry Flour

Different types of wheat differ in their proportions of protein and carbohydrates, and that accounts for the difference between bread and pastry flours. Bread flour is made from wheat containing a large amount of gluten, which gives elasticity to a dough and helps to make a well-pleated loaf. Pastry flour contains less gluten and more starch and has a lighter texture that produces fine-grained cakes. All-purpose flours, as their name implies, are usually a blend of different types of wheat and are designed for general household use.

It is a tribute to American enterprise that the world's largest flour mills are now to be found in this country, and that tremendous staffs of technicians and research chemists supervise every step in the preparation of the flour which may pass through as many as 17 grindings and be subjected to 180 separations.

Experts begin by checking the quality of the grain while it is in transit to the mill. But their work does not end when the flour emerges pure white in color and unbelievably fine in texture, after having passed through silk-bolting cloths of 100 mesh or finer. After that, there are baking tests, day after day, to be sure that every sack which is sold is of uniformly high quality.

Self-Rising Flours

An interesting development of recent years has been the self-rising flours and other ready-to-use mixtures. Some of these contain only a leavener; others include dried milk and eggs; fat; and baking powder, so that only a liquid is needed. All are planned to save the homemaker's time and maintain her family's interest in their most important energy food—the products of wheat—the foremost cereal grain.

Questions Answered

Mrs. F. B. L.—Flour should be stored in a moderately cool, dry, well ventilated place, and should be protected from vermin and insects. It should not be exposed to excessive heat, nor to freezing temperatures.

Miss F. B.—You are right! Rye flour is next to wheat in popularity, though it is usually mixed with wheat in making bread. Flours or meals are also made from potatoes, bananas, soy beans, lima beans, buckwheat, barley and rice, though the percentage is small compared to the amount made from wheat.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Lengthen Life of Towels.—Machine a piece of tape along each side of your roller towels before you use them.

Testing a Pillow.—One test of a good pillow is to press it in the center; the more quickly and fully the pillow comes back to its original shape and size, the better are the feathers.

A Bit Ahead.—Call the children for their meals a little before time so they have an opportunity of washing their hands and faces without holding up the dinner.

Brighten the Window Sill.—Small paper doilies placed under porcelain plant pots keeps the window sills clean and helps to prevent marks on the paint.

When Washing Silk Stockings.—Slip on a pair of rubber gloves when washing stockings. There will then be no danger of catching the silk and causing a ladder.

The administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act is the joint responsibility of farmers and of the national government. If the farmers and the government both do their full share in carrying out the provisions of the Federal Farm program it will achieve the purpose for which it was created by Congress.

These purposes are: (1) to conserve and improve the soil resources of the nation, (2) to stabilize and maintain adequate food supplies for consumers;

FINAL DATE FOR CARRYING OUT SOIL-BUILDING PRACTICES

The final date when soil-building practices must have been carried out under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program, in order to count toward the achievement of the soil-building goal on a farm is October 31, 1938.

TO COUNTY AAA EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEES

A series of important announcements on the 1938 AAA program will be given by Chairman H. O. Wells and his associates over the state radio stations (WHA and WLBL) on the following dates:

October 5 (12:30-1:00 p. m.)
October 19 (1:00-1:15 p. m.)
November 9 (12:30-1:00 p. m.)
November 23 (12:30-1:00 p. m.)

These broadcasts will give an opportunity for community committeemen and others to get current information upon the proposed program.

CORN EXPORTS AND IMPORTS

Word has been received by the county agent from the Wisconsin Agricultural Conservation Committee that the second largest corn export movement since 1900 was completed on September 30th, when an estimated 130 million bushels of United States corn will have been sold on foreign markets during the current marketing year.

Such a movement of domestically produced corn into foreign markets has not taken place since 1922, when total United States production amounted to nearly three billion bushels. In only seven years in the entire history of the country have corn exports been greater than during the year just closing.

While corn exports have been growing, the amount of corn shipped in has dwindled away practically to nothing, reports show. Total imports of corn for the first seven months of 1938 amounted to only 2,881,974 bushels, or about three-tenths of one percent of the amount the United States shipped out during that same period. In other words, the United States shipped out about 330 bushels for every one shipped in during the first seven months of 1938.

The larger imports which entered this country in 1938 were caused by the high prices which accompanied the drought-reduced crops of that period. At that time, the secretary of agriculture forecast practically a complete disappearance of these imports upon the production of more normal crops. That time has arrived, authorities say, and exports of corn have soared to near-record peaks.

Some folks think that the "fell"—or thin, paperlike membrane covering the lamb carcasses—causes the characteristic flavor. But authorities say that the covering does not affect the flavor. As a matter of fact, the covering helps to keep the meat from drying out during storage and when being roasted.

Twenty-five Years Ago

A deal was closed whereby Ed. Heise sold his residence to Otto Backhaus, consideration being private. Mr. Heise will sell his household goods and personal property at auction at that place Oct. 8. Mr. Heise expects to move to Florida in the near future.

This village experienced the first blizzard of the season last Monday afternoon. The storm broke out late in the afternoon and continued throughout the night. About a third of the remaining timber lands of the country are in the hands of farm owners. Foresters say that better methods in selecting the trees to be cut, proper thinning and pruning will make these timberlands more profitable to their owners.

The operator of a farm, even though he is listed as an owner, does not feel that essential stability in the community or security for his family if his farm is mortgaged beyond his ability to pay.

FIRE TAKES 7,700 LIVES

This year, if last precedent holds, some 1,500 people will be cremated in burning buildings. Six thousand more will die as the results of burns and scalds.

When an airplane crashes and a dozen people burn to death, the news makes international headlines and the world is horrified. Yet the public at large is callous to the fact that our annual total of deaths from fires is greater than the toll would be from 600 airplanes carrying to flaming doom 12 persons each.

Practically every one of those thousands of fire deaths could be easily prevented. Due to the carelessness of adults, children are among the principal sufferers. Unprotected stoves, matches left about, steam and hot water—these are major causes of death and suffering among the very young. Death takes no holiday when those things which may cause fires and scalds are within reach of a child's untaught, exploring fingers.

Equally dangerous, particularly in the case of adults, is the practice of starting stoves and furnaces with kerosene, gasoline or other inflammable liquids. You may get away with it a thousand times. But the thousandth and first time may mean a job for the undertaker—with you and possibly others as the objects of interest.

Next time you read of a spectacular disaster, reflect that something equally horrible can occur in your home. Think of this before you stir up a balky fire with kerosene. Think of it again when children are about. It is easy to prevent a fire—but it is impossible to ever make up for the consequences of a fire that takes a life.

A safe motorist drives as if the rest of the world is both deaf and blind.

Peace Wins Shallow Victory, Compared to That of Hitler

By Joseph W. La Bine

Foreign

Since early August, when Czechoslovakia's Sudeten area first began attracting Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's serious attention, Italy's Premier Benito Mussolini has been out in the cold.

Another rebuff came when Franklin Roosevelt drafted his first note to Germany and Czechoslovakia (See WHITE HOUSE), sending copies to Britain and France, but not to PREMIER BENITO MUSSOLINI ... headlines into the headlines.

Italy. Sorely hurt, Il Duce was ready to jump headlong into the headlines first chance he got. That chance came unexpectedly.

In such a crisis, as President Roosevelt paved a smooth entre with his second note to the Fuehrer, both Washington and London appealed secretly to the one man whose persuasion might stay disaster.

Terms: (1) Czech evacuation of Sudetenland by October 10; (2) supervision of evacuation by international commissioners; (3) plebiscites in Sudeten areas with minor German population; (4) exchange of German prisoners, soldiers, police; (5) settlement of Polish, Hungarian minorities disputes by four-power meeting if nations concerned fail to reach agreement among themselves; (6) international guarantee of Czech integrity.

As Europe's peacemakers headed for home, a world well accustomed to treaty breaking might well wonder how long the Munich pact would stand.

For peace, only victory at Munich was that the world's war lords had avoided unspeakable disaster even after mobilizing their armies, a feat unparalleled in history.

Transportation

Though 928,500 members of 19 railroad unions voted to strike October 1 in protest against a 15 per cent wage cut, their walkout has been averted until at least November 20 by presidential intervention under the railway labor act of 1926.

Ten Trees Are Listed As the Most Important

Ten trees, according to Harry Clepper, secretary of the American Society of Foresters, are the most important of all the useful and notable trees in the world.

James M. Landis of Harvard university's law school, Chief Justice Walter P. Stacey of the North Carolina supreme court. With railroad-union's monumental problem brought to a head, labor's protests became secondary to an investigation of why one-third of U. S. railroads are in receivership, why another third borders on bankruptcy.

When committeemen finish their inquiry, unions must wait another 30 days before striking. Chief hope is that a solution of railroad financial difficulties will obviate a strike by that time, with congressional aid following close behind.

White House

"This country can best be served by putting in positions of influence men who believe in peace and who will resist administration in seeking to give free advice to either side in Europe."

Day after he recited this opinion of Franklin Roosevelt to Chicago Republicans, Iowa's onetime Sen. Lester J. Dickinson might have admitted that he spoke too hastily.

Only scant hope for China's future came from far-away Geneva, where the League of Nations council

"On behalf of 130 millions of Americans and for the sake of humanity everywhere, I most earnestly appeal to you not to break off negotiations..."

Next day, as Iowa's Dickinson was speaking, came Adolf Hitler's reply disclaiming responsibility, maintaining the "terrible fate" of Sudeten Germans made delay impossible.

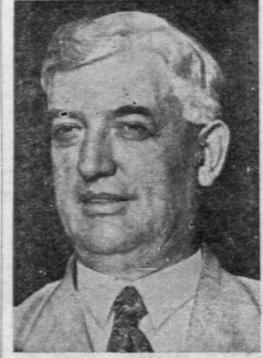

"There are two points I sought to emphasize: first, that all matters of difference could and should be settled by pacific methods; second, that the threatened alternative... of force... is as necessary as it is unjustifiable."

Craftily phrased to maintain U. S. neutrality, the President's message nevertheless contained the word "unjustifiable" which connoted a measure of sympathy for Britain and France.

No President in modern U. S. history has ever taken such a step, nor did much time elapse before tongues started wagging.

By daybreak the last question was answered. To Munich, Adolf Hitler summoned Britain, France and Italy for peace negotiations that undeniably resulted in part from Mr. Roosevelt's intervention.

Unnoticed, shoved into the background by Europe's crisis, was the U. S. political picture which nonetheless may change definitely as an upshot of the President's action.

IOWA'S DICKINSON No "free advice" to Europe.

poll which showed the New Deal's two most favored features were rearmament and foreign policy.

Whatever might result from Munich's peace parley, the Czech squabble proved (1) that Germany's expansion efforts will continue to threaten Europe, and (2) that the U. S. cannot escape some measure of participation in world affairs.

Saddest U. S. news of Spain's war was the capture by rebel troops of James P. Lardner, 24-year-old son of the late, famed Author Ring Lardner, in the last engagement of his company, the renowned Lincoln-Washington brigade.

People

Launched at Clydebank, Scotland, the liner Queen Elizabeth, by Queen Elizabeth, who barely had time to smash a bottle of champagne before the ship slid down to sea ahead of schedule.

It must be a species which, if suddenly swept from the earth, could not be replaced by any other species of identical usefulness.

Meeting these requirements the following trees may, on these terms, be considered the 10 most important trees in the world: Date palm, coconut palm, almond tree, olive tree, fig tree, mulberry tree, apple tree, lemon tree, cinchona tree, rubber tree.

It will be noted that most of these trees furnish food for mankind.

War

So engrossing was Czechoslovakia's problem that both China and Spain (See Below) received scant attention. One press association's total 12-hour report from both battlefronts was 29 words, but U. S. headline writers knew the name of Hankow would soon be flashing from their pencil tips.

Chief question is whether vengeful Nipponese troops will turn Hankow into the wholesale slaughterhouse they made of Nanking last winter. If they do, it will wreck central China's No. 1 industrial city, a trading and manufacturing point of inestimable importance.

His main theory of proceeding with a new and wholly untried policy of law is to gain co-operation of business, the business which the law is to enforce.

"We are going to depend upon the citizens of the United States, not an army of inspectors from Washington, to make this law work."

The administrator further espoused the policy of giving the states the job of enforcement within their jurisdictions as far as that can be done.

Since the law, with its minimum of 25 cents an hour becomes effective October 24, (where interstate shipments of products are concerned) Mr. Andrews obviously believes that individual workers will get pretty well acquainted with their rights before the effective date.

Asks for Co-Operation To Minimize Crookedness

Mr. Andrews warned against chisellers. He took the position in an interview that chiseling was to be expected and added that "chisellers will get rich and fair employers will go broke in the short run" of things, but he seems to believe that there can and will be sufficient co-operation to insure the minimum of crookedness, undercutting and cheapness.

Not too optimistic was China's scholarly delegate, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, who reluctantly admitted:

"The only question now is to what extent various members of the League will participate in sanctions."

Though Spain's war was postponed last week on account of wet grounds, observers thought they saw clearing skies that bore close relation to the Munich peace parley (See FOREIGN). From Rome came almost unimpeachable word that Premier Benito Mussolini is withdrawing support from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent army, and at the same moment Paris heard insurgent Spain would be neutral in any European war.

By the time these two rumors were patched together, they added up nicely. If Generalissimo Franco remained neutral, he would be useless to Italy in fighting France. But a more important reason lay in Premier Mussolini's sudden about-face from which he emerged as Europe's No. 1 peacemaker.

Already credited with proposing the Munich parley, since no one else could deal with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, Il Duce was probably seeking to improve his relations with Great Britain by invoking the Italo-British friendship pact.

Whatever the cause, observers hoped a Europe gone suddenly peace-mad would let the Spanish war fizzle out. With Italy quitting, with Germany likely to follow suit, and with loyalist Spain already dismissing her foreign fighters, the hope was a bright one.

As to the sources of information upon which the staff of the administrator may subsequently act, there is some reason for doubt. I mentioned some of them above. My doubt as to the value of a "watchman" in enforcement is based upon what we all saw during the early days of prohibition.

Co-Operation of Business Sought By Wage-Hour Law Administrator

Andrews Pictures Industry of Country as Mainly Decent; Will Depend on Citizens, Not Inspectors, to Make Law Work; Warns Against Chisellers.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Elmer F. Andrews hasn't been in Washington long enough yet to become either widely praised or cordially hated, but he has started on his job as administrator of the new wage and hour law, and so it will not be long until the country knows him.

Now, Mr. Andrews says that one of the things he hopes to accomplish is to "clean out dark corners." That is to say, to finish the job of helping industry get rid of that low level of humanity which, by virtue of its momentary power as an employer, oppresses labor or refuses to pay wages earned.

Summed up, then, it seems to me that Mr. Andrews has a job in which he can turn out to be either a hero or a villain. A very great deal will depend upon the type of individuals with which he surrounds himself in administrative work.

Relief Rolls Decline—Cases receiving general relief in Wisconsin showed a further decline in August from the 1938 peak, but still were more than 40 per cent higher than in August, 1937. While relief figures were going down in August, WPA employment increased to 80,500 persons, an all time high.

Married Teacher Wins—Holding that marriage is not a just cause for dismissal of a teacher, Circuit Judge Belden has ordered the Racine school board to rehire Mrs. Mae Freeman Ryan, who had been denied a new contract following her marriage last spring. It is expected that the school board will appeal the case to the state supreme court.

Mead Tax Upheld—The federal board of tax appeals has upheld an income tax deficiency assessment of $127,432 against the Mead corporation of Wisconsin Rapids, controlled by the family of George W. Mead, paper manufacturer. It was held that the corporation was formed to prevent the imposition of surtaxes on members of the family.

Prosecutor Cleared—Complaints asking for the removal of District Attorney C. J. Dorackel of Brown county, who was charged with permitting gambling and prostitution to run unchecked, have been dismissed by Gov. La Follette. Hearings on the complaints were conducted by John W. Reynolds, former attorney general, who recommended denial of the ouster petitions.

Henry Withdraws—Robert K. Henry of Jefferson, coalitionist candidate for governor, who received the Democratic nomination in the recent primary, has withdrawn from the election race and announced that he will support Julius P. Heil, the Republican nominee. In the primary election, Henry's combined vote for governor on the Republican and Democratic tickets exceeded the Republican vote for Heil and was greater than Gov. La Follette's total on the Progressive party ticket.

Joseph Boyd Paroled—Gov. La Follette has signed a parole for the release of Joseph M. Boyd, aged Madison financier serving a 25-year sentence at Waupun prison for embezzlement and violation of "blue sky" laws. Collapse of Boyd's investment firm in 1933 caused huge losses to investors. Boyd and R. R. Kropf, company secretary, were sent to prison in 1934, while their associate, Alfred T. Rogers, prominent Madison attorney, escaped with a heavy fine and disbarment. Kropf was pardoned a few months after he entered prison, when it was seen that his death was imminent.

Deadline for Choice Plates—Motorists holding select license plate numbers who wish to renew them for 1939 must make applications and pay fees no later than Oct. 15, Secretary of State Darmann has announced.

Indian Sawmill Profitable—Sawmill operations on the Menominee Indian reservation at Keshena, Shawano county, showed a profit of $84,763 for the last fiscal year. Wages paid to mill workers were $324,853 to Indians and $197,096 for white labor.

Safety Council Votes to Secure Schoolboy Safety Patrol Belts

On information supplied by John Hall of the safety division of the state highway commission, Madison, who was present at a meeting of the Washington County Safety Council at Dickel's hall, Richfield, at 8 p. m. on Monday, the council unanimously voted to secure 75 schoolboy safety patrol belts from the highway commission and distribute them among the schools of the county as desired and needed.

Mr. Hall informed the council that the state highway commission is able to supply such safety belts to county safety councils who, in turn, may distribute them among schools upon request of the schools to the safety councils. The belts are furnished by the highway commission free of charge, thus allowing schools to have them at no cost whenever the schools desire to form safety patrols.

The safety council decided to secure a number of the belts after E. C. Grissmann, Hartford, a member of the council, stated that a Catholic parochial school in the city of Hartford desired to form a safety patrol and sought belts for this purpose. Along with furnishing the belts, Mr. Hall said that he would see to it that the highway commission sends information for schools on the proper formation and operation of safety patrols.

Following up action taken at a previous meeting, the council Monday night voted to remind the state highway commission again that the end walls on a culvert on Highway 41 at Willow Creek in the southern part of the county constitute a traffic hazard and that they should be removed and the road at that point widened. The council previously recommended to the state highway commission that this be done, but thus far no action has been taken by the commission.

Because of the fact that Highway 45-55 is a heavily traveled road, the county safety council unanimously voted to go on record recommending that the city of West Bend continue to do all in its power to push ahead a prospective project leading toward the widening of Fourth avenue. The highway enters the city on that street. The thoroughfare at present is 30 feet wide, and the safety council feels that this width is too narrow and constitutes a definite traffic hazard.

The council also voted in favor of a motion recommending that stop signs be installed at the intersection of County Trunks C and Z in Cedar Creek and at the intersection of Z and a town road a mile north of Cedar Creek. Chairman Harold Riley reported that no further word had been received from the state highway commission in regard to making Highway 60 a through arterial. At two previous meetings of the safety council it was recommended that this be done.

At a recent meeting of the council it was recommended that the village of Slinger install a basher type warning signal on a sharp curve on Highway 41 in the village at St. Peter's Catholic church. Joseph Gundrum, president of the village and a member of the safety council, told the meeting Monday night that the village board will consider this safety measure at a meeting this week. The curve has been the scene of a number of fatal accidents.

At its last meeting, the council voted that a stop sign should be installed on a side street in Slinger leading from the schools there on to County Trunk J. Chairman Riley reported that this had been done. The chairman also reported that a recommendation of the council that extra deputies be placed on duty over Labor day week end to help handle heavy traffic had also been followed. As a follow-up of safety council action, it was reported that 30 miles-per-hour speed limit signs had been installed on Highway 41 in Ackerville, where the highway joins Route 60 at the bottom of a steep hill.

After some further generalized discussion, it was voted to hold the next meeting on Monday, Nov. 7, at 8 p. m. at Barton.

LET'S GO PLACES THIS YEAR

Let's go places and enjoy ourselves this year. Everyone craves entertainment. It seems natural because everyone's desire is to enjoy, to as great an extent as possible, the variety of amusements offered in the community. Well, here's good news for the entertainment seekers. The faculty and students of the Kewaskum High School are planning one of the most interesting and entertaining years ever to be presented. It has variety! It has comedy! It has music! It has drama! It has everything to make it the best obtainable.

There's a big party being planned for Friday, October 7. Its sponsors, the freshmen, are honoring the sophomores with this return party. There will be entertainment for all who plan to attend. The next big event, which everyone will plan to attend, is the operetta. Its preparations are already under way. The casting committee is busy seeking the talented students to whom parts will be given. Who will they be?

The sports fans are probably sitting on the edge, wishing that basketball would start. Well, you won't have to wait long. A very exciting sports calendar has been arranged. Go, pile up your pep and save it for the opening game. The annual Christmas program will be very dramatic this year. It has variety and spirit to the fullest extent. The senior class play will be planned with the beginning of 1939. There are some very dramatic seniors who are willing to do their best in putting on one of the most entertaining events of all.

By all means, don't forget the most spectacular event of the year, the junior prom. It arouses one's curiosity when thought of. How will the gymnasium be decorated, what colors will be used, who will reign as king and queen? Watch the school column and you'll find out.

There are other parts of this year's entertainment program that have been omitted, but watch for the announcements in your school column. You just simply can't afford to miss the pleasure in store for you.

County Library Makes Hit With Teachers

The Washington County library is making a hit with the teachers of the one and two room schools, according to M. T. Buckley, county superintendent of schools. Six hundred and ten books have been withdrawn to date, depleting the supply on hand. On Monday, the library received an order of $243.00 worth of books suitable for the first four grades and an order of $73.00 worth of books is on the way.

These books are drawn by teachers whose boards have approved the county library project, and will interest those schools to know that their teachers have received books, the cost of which runs from five dollars to thirty dollars. This rotation of books will multiply the books available to each district many times.

The districts that did not approve the project will receive their books direct from the town clerks. The books in the county library will not be available to them.

The new plan is organized for the specific purpose of supplying books that will supplement the text books and enrich the course of study. The youngest group will find well selected books illustrated with pictures of an aesthetic or practical value, urging them to become acquainted with the printed page.

The next group of books is designed to furnish simple material in which the children are interested. There is a group of skill books, books of information and books for leisure reading. In all, the library supplements the reading program now functioning in the county.

Late Fair and Apple Show This Week-End

The corn, late potato and apple display of the Washington county fair will be held in Klassen's hall in West Bend on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9. The reason for this late showing is that the county fair is held early in August at a time when corn, potatoes and apples are not ready for showing.

Fruit Growers Sponsors

The Washington county apple show is sponsored by the Washington county Fruit Growers' association, and will be held in connection with the late fair. More than 150 trays, consisting of about one-half bushel of apples per tray have already been assured the apple show management. This large showing of apples should prove a real attraction to visitors.

Visitors Invited

The farm crop and fruit display will be ready to be viewed by the public on Saturday afternoon and evening, and again on Sunday afternoon and evening. The public is cordially invited to visit the display and see for themselves the high quality of Washington county apple and farm crops. A few bushels of apples will also be offered for sale. Premiums Over $250.00

More than $250.00 in premium money and more than 200 blue, red, and white ribbons will be awarded. The apple show will award ribbons only, while the fair will award its customary ribbons and cash prizes. Judging will be on the group basis. This will enable all who show high quality fruit an opportunity to earn a blue ribbon.
