LOOMIS TO SPEAK HERE

Attorney General Orland S. Loomis of Wisconsin, (above) Progressive candidate for that office, will be the principal speaker at a county Progressive rally to be held in the Kewaskum Opera House on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 8:15 p. m. The county candidates will also be present.

It is said there are some wives who still go through their husband's pockets at night, just to keep in practice. Maybe elderly people cut candles on their birthday cakes to make light of their age. If you would rise in the world, the first thing to do is to settle down. The Kleenex company has discovered a tremendous boost in the sale of their product this week. The faculty has stocked up because report cards are to be given out.

FALL
Fall, fall, fall is here,
The prettiest part of all the year,
The flowers are starting to lose their lust,
The air is full of leaves and dust,
The hunting season has begun,
And are those hunters having fun,
Going hunting with a dog and gun,

MY DADDY
My daddy is a funny chap,
When supper time is near
Mother says, "It's time to eat."
But daddy never hears.
He has the paper in his lap,
The while we say the prayer.
We start to eat and are almost through,
But daddy just don't care.
Daddy has to see the funnies first,
The headlines to be sure,
Then mother says, "Come children."
Oh! I wish there was a cure.
We just can't talk to daddy,
Till the evening paper's read,
And the first thing that we know
It is time to go to bed.

A Big League Baseball Player Comes to Town

Fabian Gaffke, better known here as "Able," who led the Badger State baseball league in batting as a member of the championship Kewaskum team in 1934, now a big leaguer owned by the Boston Red Sox of the American League, returned to Kewaskum last Saturday noon for a short visit with friends while enroute on a hunting trip. With him were Stanley Wisniewski, who also has many friends here, and friend of Milwaukee, Stanley was the star pitcher on the local championship team of '34.

Gaffke spent most of the 1938 baseball season recently completed with the Boston team, on which he played outfield and also, relieved at catching. He was with the Minneapolis Millers of the American association the last few weeks of the season. Boston, you will remember, is the team that finished second in the American League race, behind the world's champion New York Yankees.

We had the pleasure to have a talk with Gaffke during his short stay here and he urgently requested that his best regards be sent along to all his friends and former teammates here whom he claims he won't forget. Glancing at the photographs on the wall at Eberle's of the old team on which he played here, Gaffke stated the big league was O. K. and all that but he still likes Kewaskum and would like to spend another season playing out here, preferably as a manager. Although the property of the Boston club "Able" says he doesn't know yet where he'll play next season. Gaffke will spend the winter in Milwaukee and intends to make trips to Kewaskum quite frequently. He drives a brand new Buick Special sedan which he purchased after the season with some of the shekels peddled off to him by owners of the Boston and Minneapolis clubs.

ADVICE TO POTATO GROWERS

Because of the prevalence of late potato blight in southeastern Wisconsin, many potato growers will find it advantageous to store their potatoes in temporary quarters where they can conveniently be sorted a week or two after digging. Those showing a brownish coloration should be discarded as they are affected with a blight rot and will spoil shortly.

Joe Eberle's Beagles Score Again in Show

Jos. Eberle, local beagle fancier and president of the Wisconsin Beagle club, John Mueckerheide, Arnold Martin and Ed. Krautkramer motored to Bass Lake, Ind. over the week-end where the former entered his champion dogs in the Western Beagle club show and field trials. About 35 hounds from Wisconsin were entered in the show and these state hounds again "brought home the bacon" according to Mr. Eberle.

Two of Mr. Eberle's dogs really "brought home the bacon" to the tune of $80 in cash prize money. "Eberle's Martin," a young hound only 11 months old, was awarded a cash prize of $65 as the best beagle entered in the show. "Eberle's Little Lady" won a cash prize of $15 as the best female in the show.

Joe's beagles have won in the Bass Lake show every year for the past five years, always as the best dogs in the show, much to the envy of the others having hounds entered. Each year he entered a different hound while many of the other entrants used beagles that had previous experience in the show. This makes the great record set by Mr. Eberle's beagles all the more outstanding and is a record that will be hard to beat. Every one of the prize winning dogs exhibited by Joe in the five years' time were bred from his dam champion "Eberle's Darkness."

Joe's beagles have won much acclaim and fame in various shows the past few years, including cash prize money, loving cups and blue ribbons, of which he has dozens upon dozens. He can be justly proud of the records set by his little beagles.

MARQUETTE GRIDDERS PLAY TEXAS CHRISTIAN SATURDAY

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Texas Christian university's famed Horned Frogs, carrying a reputation as the greatest razzle-dazzle team in the country, will provide the next opposition for the Marquette university Golden Avalanches in an inter-sectional game in the Hilltop stadium here Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22.

It will be Parents' day at Marquette as the mothers and fathers of students make their annual pilgrimage to the campus.

Coach Leo R. (Dutch) Meyer of T. C. U. will bring to Milwaukee the heaviest varsity line ever seen here and will introduce in his captain, J. B. Hale, 245 pound left tackle, a giant who has a big head start for all-American honors. The Frogs' forward wall averages 206 pounds from end to end.

The sparkplug and bright star of the Fort Worth eleven, however, is little Davy O'Brien, 150 pound senior quarterback whose forward passing is the chief weapon of the invaders. O'Brien inherited Sammy Baugh's aerial toga at Texas Christian and has proved to be a sensation.

Fans had an early tipoff on T. C. U.'s power this fall through the Horned Frogs' convincing victories over Centenary, Arkansas and Temple, their 28-6 win over Pop Warner's Owls being particularly impressive. They are favored to win the Southwest conference race.

Marquette lost to Meyer's team in the 1936 Cotton Bowl game at Dallas, but is all even against Southwest loop aggregations as a result of its recent surprise 7-0 win over Southern Methodist in Chicago. The Hilltoppers, of course, will be underdogs in the coming battle.

A report of the progress of the association will be presented by the secretary-treasurer. One director will be elected for a three year term. Guido Schroeder, president of the association, will preside at the meeting. The meeting is called for 11 o'clock, and a free dinner will be served at 11:30. International

The U. S. has long maintained splendid trade relations with Western hemisphere nations, has more over done this without resorting to heavy armaments. Until five years ago the U. S. was similarly strong in China. Reason: European and Asiatic nations have always been busy at home, not daring to risk invasion of the Western hemisphere.

But since Japan became supreme in the Far East, the U. S. has been forced to expand her Pacific fleet. If this was cause for worry, a much greater cause is the Munich pact which sheared friendly France and Britain of their power. Dominant in Europe, anxious to increase their foreign trade, Italy and Germany that city's capture easier; (2) to cut the Hankow-Canton railroad and stop war supplies; (3) to force Canton into an independent peace with Japan. But if Japan hopes thereby to force surrender of China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, she will be disappointed. Though 70 per cent of China's war materials have come through Canton, General Chiang has foreseen that city's fall and developed four alternative lines of entry. Two railroads enter from Indo-China and highways can carry supplies from both Burma and Russia. Moreover, Chinese are resigned to a 10-year struggle if necessary.

Far more likely than Chinese capitulation is a breach between Great Britain and Japan. Not since the siege of Japan has the British lion been so imperiled. Canton lies a scant 75 miles from the crown colony of Hong Kong, whose prosperity depends largely on trade with Canton. The maddening air of righteousness surrounding Japan's invasion of South China, coupled with warnings to Britain, France and the United States, shows clearly that Japan now considers herself the Far East's No. 1 power.

Races
During the World War Great Britain helped liberate Palestine's Arabs from the Turks, thereby winning Arabic support against Turkey. Although Arabs expected they would be rewarded with complete domination over Palestine, England's Lord Balfour led a successful campaign to establish part of the Holy Land as a haven for the wandering Jew.

Since then world Jewry has sent 400,000 persecuted Hebrews to Palestine, investing $385,000,000 to build a national home. But disgruntled Arabs have protested with warfare, keeping harried Britain busy policing the land over which she was given a mandate in 1923. While blood ran freely through the streets of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Jaffa, Colonial Secretary of State Malcolm MacDonald has led a commission in search of amicable settlement.

Meanwhile, Jew-hating Germany and Italy have given restrained cheers for the Arabic cause, cheers that need no longer be restrained since the Munich peace treaty has placed Great Britain on the defensive. Faced with threats of Italo-German intervention unless Arabs were given a square deal, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has been reported ready to "sell out" the Holy Land's Jews.

Thoroughly miserable, Prime Minister Chamberlain and Secretary MacDonald (son of the late Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald) were bombarded with protests the minute their weakened position was rumored. Indirectly, the U. S. could place another feather in her cap when Brazil called home its ambassador to Berlin, apparently breaking off diplomatic relations with the Reich. This is President Getulio Vargas' answer to Chancellor Hitler's efforts for Brazilian Nazification.

Aiding the U. S. will be increased domestic desire to woo South America. Already a campaign is under way to boost our consumption of South American goods. A natural result of this activity has been growing American disinclination to complete the long-pending U. S.-British trade pact, a sentiment resulting from the rebirth of isolationism which followed Munich's peace treaty. The greatest stumbling block is that isolationism calls for strengthened trade relations with Canada, a plan blocked by Great Britain's renewed efforts to tighten her dominion bonds. A U. S.-Canadian trade treaty is bound to hurt American agriculture; a U. S.-British treaty will hurt American manufacture. Therefore economists are betting the "most favored nation" agreements now pending with Canada and Britain will never be consummated.

Meanwhile, Germany is coxcomb of her position. Bustly flitting from one European capital to another, Economics Minister Walter Funk has completed bilateral accords based on barter of goods with several Balkan states. In this way the Reich hopes to increase its economic orbit. But when Minister Funk optimistically announced he would next attempt a barter treaty with the U. S., state department officials made it clear that optimism is unfounded.

War
A large part of China's war supplies for defending Hankow have come up the railroad from rich, southerly Canton. Moreover, Cantonese troops have shown remarkable bravery, reportedly wiping out 10,000 Japs near Tehan early this month. Although Canton has therefore been a thorn in Japan's side, Tokyo feared to move into South China lest Great Britain might object. But since Britain capitulated in the Czech crisis, Japan has become bolder. Result is the landing of 35,000 troops near Canton for any or all of three purposes: (1) to force frightened Cantonese to withdraw troops from Hankow, making

The department obtained no exact figures on the number of "sidewalk farmers," but reported 1,100,000 persons moved from farms to villages, towns and cities last year.

Power Eases the Tasks Of 'Sidewalk Farmers'
The "sidewalk farmer" was replaced the "suitcase farmer" as a non-resident tiller of the soil, the department of agriculture reports.

"As distinguished from the 'suitcase farmer' the 'sidewalk farmer' lives in the nearby village or town and drives the short distance to his farm," the department said. The "suitcase farmer" is one who "comes" on the farm during the

Politics

On Tuesday, November 8, the United States did elect an entire house of representatives, one-third of its senate and a host of governors. Since U. S. politics swings back and forth from Republican to Democratic domination, since the Democratic swing which began in 1933 has reached and passed its peak, the safest prediction is that Republicanism will start swinging back into power this year.

Obviously, it is Franklin Roosevelt's ambition to stymie a Republican comeback. But his chief interest in last summer's primaries was not Republicanism, but the construction of a coherent liberal party through so-called "purge" tactics. Since "purge" failed, since preservation of New Deal gains already made is now more important than party purification, November's election has resumed normal political color for the first time since 1930. As in 1936, this year's Republican candidates can base a strong campaign on New Deal failure. Unlike 1933 and 1936, this year's Democratic campaign becomes essentially a defensive proposition. But developments of the past month show that the New Deal's defense will not feature such argumentative points as AAA, relief and budget-balancing, will attempt instead to shift public interest on Franklin Roosevelt's accomplishments as a peacemaker. Three points of peace:

World Peace: The world may never know if President Roosevelt helped smooth the Czech-German crisis, but his final message to Adolf Hitler and simultaneous pleas to every other world power came only a few hours before the Reichsfuehrer called his historic Munich parley. But, coming when it did, Roosevelt intercession looked tremendously successful. Thus, praising the administration's foreign policy as a safeguard to world peace, Democrats hope the voting public will overlook the fact that Munich's plotting did nothing to help democracy's cause, was instead a bloodless victory for Germany.

Business Peace: If the administration's foreign policy helped win world peace, it also helped U. S. business. Uphold has been a tremendous stock market upturn, greater steel and automobile production, higher railroad carloadings. But part of this upturn is also due to governmental "pump priming," which is just beginning to show its effect. Nevertheless these signs of optimism came at a time when U. S. business decided to quit warring on the administration, choosing instead to play ball until a Republican government throws out New Deal measures which it considers oppressive. President Roosevelt has asked for less "saber rattling" and more cooperation between government and business. Charles Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, has assured him that business is eager for co-operation. Thus, Franklin Roosevelt looms as a peacemaker with business.

Industrial Peace: When the American Federation of Labor convened in Houston, Texas, the President messaged his desire for a settlement of the factional war between A. F. of L. and John Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. Obviously a solid labor front, thoroughly New Deal, would be a potent vote getter. How it could exercise this solidified strength against employers is an unpleasant thought, but the average business man is inclined to hope a patch-up will bring more conservatism to labor. Already the Rooseveltian business upturn has brought men back to work, resulting in fewer disputes between labor and capital. Though the President's efforts for peace between C. I. O. and A. F. of L. have been unsuccessful, the nation may well appreciate his gesture.

Despite the political connotations these peace efforts must certainly carry during election season, the President's self-chosen role of arbiter wins favor with a war-weary U. S. populace. Whether this popular appeal will overshadow Republican criticism on November 8 is anybody's guess.

Navy
Few navies have a definite system for naming their armor-clad war chariots. Even England's huge navy mingles historic and geographical names with unconcern. But the U. S., having started its gigantic naval construction program, will not permit such confusion. The new nomenclature system: Battleships named after states, cruisers after large cities, aircraft carriers after historic ships and battles, destroyers after naval officers.

Bears Taste Electricity
Bears love honey. Because of this, up to now bee-keeping has been almost impossible in the Rocky mountains, traditional home of "grizzlies." But science has stepped in, and the University of California and the U. S. department of agriculture have resorted to electricity. Hives are now surrounded with four-wire fences—and the wires are charged with electricity. Since charged with electricity. A photo electric cell controls the current.

Deficit Is $700,983,353
At End of First Quarter
WASHINGTON—In the first quarter of the 1939 fiscal year the government had a gross deficit of $700,983,353, the treasury statement disclosed. This compared with a deficit of $287,073,673 in the corresponding quarter of last year. Expenditures totaled $2,210,165,365, against receipts of $1,509,182,032. The largest single expenditure item in the quarter just closed was for the works progress administration. The WPA cost $59,333,347, against $33,926,213 a year ago. Its relief roll has risen to a record of 3,100,000 persons. The deficit to date is slightly less than the income for September. Through September 30, the government took in $710,602,997, but expenditures exceeded receipts by $54,335,149. The deficit for the current fiscal year has been estimated at 4 to 5 billion dollars and it is believed may set a new record.

Old Trickery Again Being Used In Writing Views of a President

That Intangible Personality, the 'White House Spokesman,' Is Back on the Job; Makes Goats of Writers; Taxes Blamed for Added Burden Business Carries.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—The "White House Spokesman" is back! That ghostly, shy and sometimes playful figure has been resurrected from the grave where President Roosevelt interred his intangible personality early in March, 1933. He was placed there with proper ceremonies by Mr. Roosevelt after his witchlike voice had served during the administrations of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, and after he had served valiantly as the source of one inspired news story after another. Mr. Roosevelt unmasked the "White House Spokesman" as just the President of the United States, speaking behind his hand. But lo! Here is that man again.

I could not help laughing a bit the other day when the "White House Spokesman" reappeared on the front pages of metropolitan daily newspapers, in the work-a-day clothes of "authoritative White House sources." Grieving as most writers did that this trickery had to be employed in order to write a President's views, I enjoyed the humor of the situation, nevertheless. If the White House Spokesman was going to be reborn, what more proper place could there be than Hyde Park, N. Y., the President's summer home. That delightful home on the banks of the Hudson river is only about the length of an airplane runway from the fiction scenes of nightly riding by "the headless horseman of Sleepy Hollow."

But restoration of the "White House Spokesman" to his place of eminence is a serious matter. Use of such a disguise, such a mask, has no place in American life. Many a time in the period when Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover occupied the White House, there were stories sent to all parts of the nation that came from the "White House Spokesman." It was a silly procedure. It was both silly and cheap. The head of the government was simply using the correspondents as vehicles to carry the responsibility which the then occupant of the White House should have assumed.

Some stories were trial balloons; some were expressions of a personal opinion by the President which he was not quite ready to espouse publicly, and others were pieces of just plain trickery, given out with the understanding that the President should not be directly quoted. The course was adopted, so it was claimed, as a means of giving the writers all of the available facts right up to the minute.

Just Kidding and Fooling Readers of Newspapers
Well, without questioning the sincerity of purpose, the fact remains that the writers were the goats. And here they are being made the goats again, and the public, the readers of newspapers, are to be kidded and fooled some more. What's the excuse? There is none. It is the same old ostrich and the same old sand in which he is hiding his head; so why do it?

The present, and rejuvenated, "White House Spokesman" had a good deal to say, behind this show-off veil, about the desirability of a truce between business and labor, a truce with the administration in Washington. The bitterness between industry and government was made almost into a parallel with European conditions, and the "Spokesman" went further to suggest that some method of getting together, comparable to the European "settlement," should be used here.

Well, I imagine there is none in our country who do not hope for, and believe in the need of, a lasting peace between business and government. As the shadowy form said, as floated over Hyde Park, there has been too much name calling, too many charges and recriminations. The condition has slowed up general business; it has made the relief rolls full to overflowing. But when the "White House Spokesman" seeks a "settlement" like that at Munich, Germany, where Dictator Hitler grabbed everything he wanted—well, let me observe that it was a swell subject as an illustration why the "White House Spokesman" should remain in his grave!

There was another phase of the "Spokesman's" performance, snarling that it is bound to disturb the neighbor's sleep. It was tantamount to a demand that business stop misrepresenting the government's attitude—this being the New Deal attitude—toward business. That is to say, there was a veiled charge that business, which is to say, "the economic royalists," have been lying about the government's programs and objectives, no mention being made of some of the abortive results.

Blame Taxes for Added Burden Business Carries
The news dispatches from Hyde Park made reference to unfair stock taxes about taxes. The "Spokesman" specifically asserted that business interests were all wet when they asserted that federal taxes are heavier now than one, three or five years ago. It struck me as being a queer complaint, because federal taxes are higher; there are more of them in number and the rates on nearly all the old ones are higher. Treasury figures show that the federal government collected $3,115,000,000 in taxes five years ago. The same official figures show collections of more than $4,100,000,000 three years ago, and in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, the collections were announced as $5,290,000,000. Then, on June 30, this year, the official figures recorded collections of $6,240,000,000. To be absolutely fair, it must be considered that business was at its lowest ebb five years ago. Hence, tax payments were at the lowest. But, without attempting to cite all of the increases in rates and new taxes invoked, new taxes and new rates have been responsible, too, for the increased burden which business carries.

It is important, also, in connection with the consideration of taxes to call attention to the federal government's budget condition. At the end of September, when the first quarter of the fiscal year was completed, there was a deficit of more than $700,000,000. The Treasury had been called upon to pay out $700,000,000 more than it had taken in by way of taxes. If my country school multiplication still serves me, there is a deficit indicated for the current fiscal year of approximately $2,800,000,000 since there are four quarters in each year. It may be less—or it may be more.

No 'Breathing Spell' Ever Has Taken Place
In the matter of a truce between the government and industry, I believe I recall accurately the famous "breathing spell" of several years ago. Roy Howard, the Pittsburgh New York newspaper publisher, wrote a letter in which he told the President of the need for cooperation between the government and business and suggested at the same time how encouraging it would be if business could be assured that government harassment of business was at an end. If I remember, Mr. Roosevelt said in his reply that the major portion of his New Deal reforms was completed and there would be a "breathing spell." It was about that time, too, that Vice President Garner was reported to have said it was time to let the cattle get fat; that they had been chased around until they were just skin and bones. He meant, of course, that if business was going to expand and re-employ workers, then on relief, the government must quit taking everything the employers received. Well, neither the "breathing spell" nor the fattening process ever has taken place.

Wisconsin News
Briefly Told

Former Justice Held — Harlan Stamper, attorney and former justice of the peace at Crandon, is under bond at Antigo charged with the theft of $49 from a filling station in that city.

Farm Prices Climb — A rise of 2 per cent in the average price of Wisconsin farm products for September is reported by the department of agriculture. The farm dollar purchasing power is now about 80 per cent of the pre-war level.

Strike Makes 600 Idle — Six hundred were thrown out of work at the Connor lumber mill in Laona when union men went on strike over a disagreement as to wages and a closed shop agreement. The mill management sought to reduce wages.

Strife for Revenge — In a confession to the state fire marshal, Emmons Burke, 38, said he set fire to the barn of Mrs. Agnes O'Neill of Waldo, Sheboygan county, in revenge for his not being invited to a party at the O'Neill home. The blaze caused $10,000 damage.

Mystery Just Hoax — After driving his father's bullet marked auto to the sheriff's office in Monroe and claiming that someone had shot at him six times, a Green county farm youth finally admitted that he had fired the shots himself to win sympathy from a girl friend.

Held for Extortion Notes — Charged with writing threatening letters to five Rusk county officials, James C. Hagelbarger, 56, was held by federal officials at Eau Claire. The letters threatened to "make daylight shine through" the recipients unless Hagelbarger was released from an adultery charge.

Protest Hiring Outsider — The trade and labor council of Racine has vigorously protested the employment of a Milwaukee man as inspector of construction for a $100,000 school structure. A strike of workers on the project was threatened if he was not dismissed and the job given to a local man.

Plane Hits Store — The crash of an aerial survey airplane into the front of a grocery store at Eau Claire caused the deaths of three members of the airplane crew and of a bystander. The plane, which was being used in making a federal survey, developed trouble when about 4,000 feet up and went into a dive.

Getting Licenses Easier — Wisconsin auto owners will no longer need to send their certificates of title to Madison when making applications to re-license their cars, the secretary of state has announced. This is expected to save the state about $20,000 a year, being paid on first class postage in returning the certificates to owners.

REA Plant Ordered — Announcement has been made from Madison of a federal REA allotment of $500,000 for construction of a central generating plant to supply wholesale electricity to co-operatives serving farmers in Grant, Crawford and other southwestern Wisconsin counties. Plans for the plant are patterned after the one built in Chippewa county for northern co-operatives.

Ask Pension Law Repeal — Declaring that the present state law governing pensions for police and firemen is unfair to taxpayers, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities in session at Madison adopted a resolution urging repeal of the present law and the adoption of a "sound" pension system for all municipal employees. More than 600 city and village officials attended the league's fortieth annual convention.

Emergency Fire Rules — With tinderlike conditions existing throughout the region, emergency forest fire regulations went into effect Oct. 15 in all forest areas of northern Wisconsin as the upland game bird season opened. Smoke drifting into Wisconsin from Minnesota forest fires has reduced visibility from lookout towers to such an extent that patrols were being used. The inability to detect fires immediately is considered a serious danger.

Guard Against Job Rush — The state bureau of personnel seeks to avoid next January difficulties that were occasioned by the presence of 400 eager job seekers at the opening of the 1937 legislature. For the 1939 session, only 115 to 120 jobs will be certified for the 107 persons as legislative clerks, messengers and typists. For 1937, the bureau certified an applicant for every classification from each senatorial district. The new practice will distribute possibly 120 men over the 33 senatorial districts to meet past objections that Madison residents obtained most of the jobs.

To Move 'Cutover' Farmers — The department of agriculture at Washington has announced that it will spend $75,000 this year as the initial step toward purchase of submarginal land in northern Wisconsin's "cutover" area. It is planned to move 2,000 families with total holdings of 150,000 to 175,000 acres over a period of five to eight years and to re-establish about half of them on new farms in more productive areas. Many of the families to be moved are said to constitute an economic and social problem because of the cost of providing them with roads, schools and other public services. Sixty-three per cent of the farmers in the "cutover" region had cash income of less than $100 last year.

Push Monthly Tax Law — The common council of Manitowoc has asked the Wisconsin League of Municipalities to draft legislation, to be uniform throughout the state, permitting installment payments from taxpayers.

ERYSIPELAS AMONG SWINE

Erysipelas among swine is on the increase in Wisconsin, according to word received from Dr. B. A. Beach of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. An outbreak recently occurred in Calumet county.

Swine erysipelas is carried over in the soil or it may be spread by contact between infected and healthy hogs and through moving hogs from one farm to another. It generally reaches its highest point during cold, wet fall weather, Beach finds. Weak, unthrifty hogs unable to resist the disease or hogs kept in wet, drafty quarters are most likely to develop erysipelas.

"Infected hogs lose all appetite and like to hide themselves in their bedding. They develop a high fever and often large red patches appear all over their bodies, particularly on the under sides and on the ears and snouts," the veterinarian explains.

In the worst cases the animals have been found to die in from three to five days. If a hog does recover, it is quite often left in a weakened, sickly condition. A serum has been developed which will check the course of the disease in its early stage and which will make well animals immune, but little can be done for animals in which the disease has gotten a definite foothold.

Some danger exists of swine erysipelas being transmitted to human beings, Beach pointed out. Usually this is the result of infections through wounds on the hands or on some exposed part of the body. Cases of erysipelas are more often reported among veterinarians or among people who handle pork from infected animals.

ESTIMATE SMALLER YIELD OF WHITE CLOVER, TIMOTHY SEED

The production of white clover and timothy seed this year is expected to be much less than a year ago, according to the Crop Reporting Service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture.

The nation's production of timothy seed this year is expected to be less than half of last year, but the carry-over from the 1937 crop is sufficient to provide about an average supply. Estimates for Wisconsin and the United States show a decrease in the acreage of timothy for seed as compared with a year ago.

Estimates for the United States show that the acreage of white clover for seed is much less than a year ago. In Louisiana, where most of the white clover seed is produced, the acreage is about two-thirds of that harvested last year, and the production this year is expected to be about 130,000 pounds compared with 300,000 pounds produced last year.

In addition to the decrease in acreage the reduction in the white clover seed crop is due to an unfavorable growing season which caused a lower yield per acre.

WISCONSIN'S ONION CROP TO REACH ALL-TIME HIGH

Wisconsin will produce a record crop of onions this year, with the largest acreage ever reported for the state, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Onion production in the state this year is expected to be about 271,000 sacks, each weighing 100 pounds, which is about 28 per cent larger than the production of last year. Estimates of the onion crop last year show that Wisconsin produced 196,000 sacks. The 10-year average for the state is reported at 183,000 sacks.

In addition to the increase in the state's onion acreage as compared with the recent years, the yield per acre is reported to be one of the highest in the history of the state's agriculture. This year Wisconsin has 1,320 acres of onions. The harvested acreage last year was estimated at 1,150 acres and the 10-year average is reported at 1,110 acres.

MORE CARE NEEDED IN MARKETING LIVESTOCK

A federal board has given some years to a careful investigation of livestock marketing conditions. It reports that losses aggregating 12 to 15 million dollars annually fall upon the livestock industry because of careless, rough usage on farms, but more particularly because of faulty, brutal conditions surrounding the transportation of livestock to market.

Try This With Your New Ruffled Curtains

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS "DEAR Mrs. Spears:—I want to thank you for the clear diagram of how to hang draw curtains in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. This was just what I have been needing as we have casement windows and no shades in our living room. With a pull of the cord my new curtains shut out the light or the outside view. I wonder if you would help me with another problem? I do not want to make the curtains for the rest of the house. Thought I would buy ruffled net ones. Do you think they would be too commonplace? J. T."

Answer: Here is a suggestion for hanging ruffled curtains that will make your windows a little different from those of your neighbors and lend no end of style to your rooms. Double curtain rods are needed to give the crossed effect and a valance board is added to the top of the window as shown. Here the valance is the sort that comes with ready made curtains and the top is folded back to make it double. In thumbtacking it to the valance board, do not stretch it—just "ease it on" so that it hangs well. If you feel that the windows need color, the valance and tie backs may be of plain glazed chintz that repeats the strongest color in your room color scheme. A contrasting valance may be either plain or gathered.

Let Father and Young Son and Little Sister help you make the home a center of interest. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator contains many useful things that every one may take a hand in making. Book 2 shows you with pictures how to make many novelty gifts. Books are 25 cents each. Order both books today and get the patchwork quilt leaflet picturing 36 authentic embroidery stitches free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Though England has not been invaded for 1,000 years, modern airplanes bring danger of bombing and gas raids. So A.R.P. (Air Raid Precautions) has been organized to teach civilians how to wear masks and defend themselves against bombs. Most masks sell for 75 cents and the government has an extra 40 million on hand for emergency use.

This year, Britain is spending $1,715,000,000 on rearmament, building anti-aircraft guns (above) and fixing out defense troops with oilskin suits (right) as protection against disastrous mustard gas. Though the nation is outwardly calm, A.R.P. has perfected an amazing organization of 600,000 community "wardens" who will have charge of A.R.P. fire brigades, first aid units, evacuation and contamination squads. Moneyed classes are building underground bomb-proof shelters where they will retire to live in comparative comfort during raids. But poorer classes cannot afford this luxury, indeed cannot even afford gas masks, thereby creating a defense problem of major importance.

England hopes her coastal defense measures will drive away planes to forestall a repetition of World War raids which killed 1,414 people. One phase of this defense is the artillery, another the fantastic wire mesh supported by balloons, which would surround London and possibly scare off planes. A third phase is fast transportation of troops by planes, enabling England to move man power to any part of the coast in the event of invasion. Though she hopes for the best, Britain realizes the English channel is not so wide as it used to be, that an enemy can knock at her front door within a few minutes after leaving the continent.

Post haste, British pilots see how fast they can take off.

Meaning of 'Right,' 'Left' Wing The right wing, when used in connection with politics, is the conservative element, or, as in Europe, sometimes the monarchist element in a political party, legislature or parliament. The left wing is made up of the more radical element of a political party or legislature.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Beast of the North"

HELLO EVERYBODY: It's sixteen-year-old Bob Shreves of 1333 Pacific St., Brooklyn, N. Y., who crashes into the Adventurers Club today and wins himself the rating of Distinguished Adventurer. A ten smacker check is on the way to him right now, and Bob dragged it down with the story of a fight with a wild animal—on the streets of Brooklyn.

Now it's been years since big game hunters roamed around Brooklyn looking for animals to shoot. Hunting parties have been giving it the go-by since the days when Peter Minuit was mayor of New York and the town belonged to the Dutch. It took Bob Shreves, then eight years old, to get into trouble with one, in November, 1927, and just a few blocks away from the Long Island railroad station and the Williamsburg bank.

It was just twelve o'clock noon, when eight-year-old Bob filed out of Public School No. 15 with a bunch of other school kids and started up State street toward his home, which was then at 146 South Elliott place. Bob was going home for lunch, but he wasn't in such a hurry to get it that he couldn't spare a moment to investigate a crowd of people across the street.

The Bear Looked Harmless.

The crowd was standing at the back door of a large theater. Young Bob went over and joined it. On the sidewalk by the stage entrance was a huge brown bear. Bob learned later that the bear was a trained one—part of an act that was playing in the theater. Two of the trainer's helpers had him out there getting a little air.

"The bear was lying down," says Bob. "He was pretty old, and looked like a harmless creature. The helpers were holding him only by a small piece of worn clothes line tied around the collar on his neck."

That bear may have looked harmless—but Bob soon found out that he wasn't. A lot of other people shared Bob's opinion that the bear wouldn't hurt anyone. Nearly the whole student body of Public School No. 15 had trooped down to the theater stage door, attracted by the gathering crowd. Such a mob of kids you never saw in your life. They pushed and jostled one another as they crowded closer. They yelled to one another and directed loud, shrill questions at the men who were holding the big brute. The bear began to get nervous—and then frightened. And the helpers began to get uneasy, too. They coaxed the bear to get up, and then began to lead him back into the theater again.

Broke Away and Charged the Crowd.

Then that mob of kids began milling and pushing in their effort to follow the bear in. Bob Shreves was way up in the front row, being pushed along by those behind him, when suddenly the bear fell into a panic. He broke away from the two helpers with one toss of his great shaggy head. Then, swiftly, he turned around and charged the crowd! He was coming right toward the spot where young Bob was standing—and with a mob of three or four hundred kids pushing from behind, there was no way for Bob to escape. A big boy in front of him screamed and turned to flee. And in his frantic effort to get away he ran squarely into Bob and bowled him over. Bob fell flat on the ground. For a moment he was confused. All around him now he heard the screams of other kids. Then he looked up—to see the bear charging straight at him—almost on top of him! Bob's heart leaped to his mouth—and in another split second the bear was on him. One great paw lashed out in a vicious swing at Bob's head. Instinctively, Bob ducked. "If I hadn't," Bob says, "he would have ripped my face wide open. As it was, he took away a piece of my scalp as big as a man's hand. He was standing over me now, snarling and growling, and suddenly I found myself in his big, powerful arms."

"I was still conscious. I don't know why that slap on the head didn't knock me out. But it didn't, and at that moment I didn't even feel any pain up there. But I could feel the brute crushing the breath out of me with his paws. I could feel my ribs cracking under the pressure. And I could see him tearing at my shoulder with his teeth. It was cold weather and Bob had on a heavy overcoat. That coat was all that saved his shoulder from being ripped wide open, too. But the overcoat was no protection against the squeeze of those powerful arms."

Was Slowly Crushing the Life Out of Him.

"I thought my chest was going to cave in," he says, "and my lungs felt as if they would burst. I tried to cry out, but that was impossible. I couldn't even draw a breath." Meanwhile, one of the helpers had grabbed up the bear's rope again while the other ran in to get the trainer. Little Bob wasn't even conscious of that. He wasn't conscious of anything but the big, hairy animal that kept squeezing—squeezing—slowly crushing the life out of him. The last thing he remembered were shouts in his ears and strong hands taking hold of him, dragging him from the bear's embrace. The next thing he knew he was in Cumberland hospital, with a badly lacerated head and right shoulder, and a broken rib—and the doctors told him that if he hadn't had on a thick overcoat he'd have been maimed for life, if not killed outright. But three months later Bob was out of the hospital, and all right except for a lasting scar on his head. The bear weighed 380 pounds and stood seven feet tall when erect. He was the biggest critter Bob ever took on for a fight before—or since. And he's still wondering if Schmeling, or Joe Louis, or even Dempsey in his prime, could have done any better with that animal than he did.

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Flowers and Vase for Sick.—It is an excellent idea when sending cut flowers to a hospital to send an inexpensive vase with them. Nurses often find it difficult to find vases enough to hold flowers.

To Press Ribbons.—Dampen ribbons and iron them between two sheets of paper.

When Cooking Greens.—If a piece of fat about the size of a nutmeg is added to the water in which any kind of greens are being cooked there will be no boiling over and no stirring will be required.

Bright Clothes for Children.—You may not like variety colored clothes, but they are the most visible to dress children in such costumes to help protect them from accidents.

Keeping Paint.—If a can of paint has to be left open, stir it thoroughly, so as to dissolve all the oil, then fill up with water. When it becomes necessary to use the paint pour off the water and you will find it as fresh as when first opened.

Salt Improves Coffee.—The flavor of coffee is improved if a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the pot before the coffee is put in.

Apples for the Winter.—To keep apples through the winter, bore holes in the bottom and sides of a barrel and store on a dry platform a foot or more from the ground. Where only a few apples are available for storage, a good plan is to carefully wrap them singly in paper, then pack them in layers three or four deep in shallow boxes and place them in the coolest position in the house or outbuilding.

To Clean Satin Slippers.—Rub slippers with a cloth dipped in a little alcohol to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added.

Well-Fitting Hose.—Children's stockings ought to be selected carefully. Short ones cramp toes and will eventually make them crooked. Too long ones wrinkle and twist, irritating toes and heels. Also, children should be taught to wear a fresh pair of stockings each morning. Don't allow your youngsters to wear galoshes in the house or classroom.

NO ONE IS IMMUNE TO ACID INDIGESTION

But Why Suffer? Here's how you can "Alkalize" anytime—anywhere—the easy "Phillips" way!

WHY SUFFER from brooding "gas," "upsets" and "biliousness" due to Acid Indigestion—when there is a way that relieves excess stomach acid with incredible ease? Simply take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets at first sign of distress. Carry them with you—take them unnoticed by others.

Results are amazing. There's no nausea or "bloating" feeling. It produces no "gas" to embarrass you and offend others. "Acid indigestion" disappears. You feel great! Get a bottle of liquid "Phillips" for home use. And a box of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets to carry with you. But — be sure any bottle or box you accept is clearly marked "Phillips" Milk of Magnesia.

STARTLING FACTS ABOUT RURAL AMERICA

$5,000,000. ANNUALLY IN FAIR PRIZES

#83 SOW PRODUCES $1750.00 LITTER OF PIGS

50,000,000 PEOPLE ATTEND FAIRS EACH YEAR IN U.S.A.

It isn't difficult to visualize why agriculture is the world's largest industry, after reviewing some of the figures just released by the Firestone Farm Service Bureau. These amazing facts were announced in connection with the Voice of the Farm monthly radio program. (1) Five million dollars is the figure that's handed out in the prize money each season. State fairs contribute about half of the figure and county fairs put up the remainder. (2) C. P. Mills, St. Joseph, Illinois, farmer, has shown an average profit of about $1,000 annually since he started keeping books on his farm operations. His bookkeeping takes about 208 hours a year and that figures $5.00 an hour. (3) In Nehawka, Nebraska, Harry Knabe paid $80.00 for a Hampshire brood sow. The $1750.00 he received for the first litter of pigs for breeding purposes was a gross profit of 2100% on his investment, and he kept two pigs from the litter. (4) Crowds equivalent to almost two-fifths of the population of the United States attend fairs each year. Fairs contribute to attendance at big league baseball, college football, basketball and professional hockey combined. Through the efforts of the Firestone Farm Service Bureau, millions of farmers throughout the country are receiving accurate information concerning problems that confront them in the way of better farming practices. This organization maintains a complete file of practical farm experts and counselors who are prepared to handle any type of farm problem that may arise.—Adv.

WAS HER FACE RED?

The woman church editor of a Pacific Coast daily was having trouble hearing over a poor phone connection. "Say it again," the spinster editor asked on failing to understand the sermon title selected by a bachelor pastor. "Say that again, please," she pleaded a second time as static once more stifled the message. Her embarrassment was intense as the message finally came through: "Beloved, let us love one another."

Answer
The prim spinster was dining out, and while the waiter was standing by the table, she asked him to find out the title of the piece the orchestra was playing. Other duties claimed the waiter for a time, and when he returned the spinster had forgotten her request. To her confusion the waiter bent towards her and whispered: "What can I do to make you love me?"—Answers magazine.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Vitamins And Vision; Explains How and Why You Should Feed Your Eyes

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOR a number of years, scientists have stressed the importance of a well-balanced diet as a means of maintaining health, promoting growth and preventing disease. Recently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is a close relationship between a good diet and good eyesight.

Your Food and Your Eyes

Many people regard their eyesight as one of the five senses which operate in some mysterious manner of their own! If they suffer from indigestion, they recognize that it is quite apt to be due to something they ate. If they are troubled with stomach, liver or kidney complaints, they quickly appreciate that prolonged dietary indiscretions may be at the root of the trouble. But it never occurs to them that what they eat may affect the eyes just as profoundly as it affects the internal organs.

It is not uncommon, during an attack of biliousness, to suffer a disturbance of the vision. But that disturbance usually disappears with the disorder that caused it. On the other hand, a deficient diet may produce eye troubles that have a far reaching effect upon health, efficiency, and even personal safety.

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

The visual purple might be compared to the film in a camera. When you are in a dim light and the eyes are suddenly exposed to bright light, the visual purple is greatly reduced or bleached. This change results in a stimulation of the optic nerve and enables you to see clearly.

When an adequate supply of vitamin A is present in the body, the visual purple is rapidly regenerated. But when the supply is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

That is the condition known as "night blindness." And it accounts for the fact that a large proportion of serious motor accidents occur at night. Victims of this deficiency disease are first blinded by approaching headlights, then cannot quickly readjust themselves after the oncoming car has passed. Their ability to drive safely is subsequently impaired for they cannot clearly see the road ahead, and they may miss dangerous curves, pedestrians or other vehicles.

A Common Complaint

Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that ocular disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims

Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 26 to 79 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness.

The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild to moderate degrees of vitamin A deficiency were present in from 10 to over 50 per cent of each group tested.

Yet here is the remarkable thing—in nearly every case, a diet rich in vitamin A for a few weeks restored the vision to normal.

A Significant Experiment

An even more striking example of the power of food to affect the eyesight is to be found in the report of an experiment in which has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

This suggests the tremendous importance of including in the diet foods rich in vitamin A—cod and other fish-liver oils; milk and other dairy products; green leafy and yellow vegetables; and egg yolk. Experiments with rats, whose dietary requirements are similar to those of man, show a close connection between cataract and a deficiency of another vitamin—vitamin G. This is found most abundantly in meat, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

Were she concerned about protecting the blessing of good eyesight alone, that would be sufficient reason why every homemaker should plan meals that are rich in vitamins. But it is not only the eyes which are dependent upon vitamins, for they have many other functions to perform.

An improper diet may cause people to drive automobiles blindly at night so that they are dangerous not only to themselves and their passengers, but to everyone on the streets and roads. A deficient diet will also send them through life with half-efficient bodies, half-efficient brains, half-efficient senses.

That is why I urge you to learn everything you can about food, so that in planning meals you will not only feed your eyes, your husband's eyes and your children's eyes, but will take advantage of the wonderful discoveries of nutritional science to make every member of the family so efficient that they will enjoy the best of health each day of their lives.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. C. L.—Yes, indeed, nutritionists do approve of a mid-afternoon snack for most school children. A glass of milk and a slice of buttered bread with jam or preserves; fruit juice and oatmeal cookies; or a chocolate milk shake and graham crackers will provide fresh energy for late afternoon play. Without the between-meal lunch, some children become so fatigued that nerve strain results. Take care, however, that the snack does not destroy the appetite for the evening meal.

A Little Different

"Well, my good man, what brought you here?" asked the sympathetic visitor of the prisoner.
"Borrowing money, lady," replied the prisoner.
"Borrowing money!" she echoed, "but surely they don't put people in prison for borrowing money!"
The prisoner shrugged his shoulders unhappily. "I know," he replied, "but I had to knock the man down three or four times before he would lend it to me!"

SOMETHING NEW FOR FARMERS

The automobile makers are beginning to let the public in on the secrets of their new models. Every one of them has improvements and refinements of construction and design, intended to increase the comfort and safety of those who ride in them.

Looking over the advance announcements, it seems apparent that anybody who buys any of the new 1939 models will get a better car for his money than he has ever been able to get before.

There is only one radical innovation in motor vehicles that has come to our attention. While everybody has been trying to make motoring more comfortable for those who use their vehicles only for road travel, nobody heretofore has thought of making it more comfortable for the man who rides over plowed ground—the farmer who drives a tractor. If comfort is not needed there, it would be hard to say where it is needed.

The newest thing in tractors has an enclosed cab, with safety glass, cushioned seats for two, is air-ventilated and provided with a heater for cold weather. It has a self-starter, an electric cigar-lighter, a complete set of lead and tail lights, and even a radio. If that doesn't take a lot of the hard work and monotony out of farming, what would?

This new motor vehicle, in addition to being able to pull plows and harrows across the field can "go to town" at forty miles an hour on the highway, hauling one or more trucks to market. One imagines that might also serve as a vehicle for joy-riding on moonlight nights.

At least, it is something new in farm equipment.

Probably the worst fault in driving a car is believing you haven't any fault.

FARM AND HOME LINES

Tenancy has grown with great rapidity; the number of tenant-operated farms increased from 1,024,601 in 1880 to 2,865,155 in 1935, and from 25.6 per cent of all farms to 42.1 per cent.

The property tax, which is primarily on real estate, tends to have a greater effect in intensifying the financial difficulties of farmers and those engaged in timber enterprises.

Research goes hand in hand with education. Because agriculture in the United States is so complicated and diverse, a broad research program is especially important in this country.

Twenty-five Years Ago

George Klein, who resides on a farm near Campbellsport, on Thursday shot a large American eagle on his farm. He brought the eagle to this village the same day, it being on exhibition at the Bank of Kewaskum. The eagle was still alive when brought here. It measured about three feet from the tip of one wing to another.

George Johnson, aged 25 years, son of Chairman Tom L. Johnson of the town of Ashford, passed away at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, last Thursday evening at 10:15 o'clock. Death was due to lock-jaw. Johnson thought that his inability to open his mouth was due to sore teeth. A few weeks ago, while operating a corn shredder, his hand was in some manner caught between the rollers of the machine and four of his fingers badly smashed.

The village of Campbellsport has at last gates at the C. & N. W. Ry. crossing. The gates were ordered to be erected there about two months ago by the railroad commission, which met there. The crossing was quite dangerous before the gates were erected. Dr. M. A. T. Hoffman having been killed there several months ago.

A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schaefer in the town of Kewaskum last Tuesday evening, the occasion being their fifth wedding anniversary.

Announcements of the promise of marriage of Miss Kathryn Eirschele to Roman Smith, both of Tomah, Wis., were received here this week.

FARM AND HOME LINES

While corn exports have been growing, the amount of corn shipped in has dwindled away practically to nothing, reports show. The United States shipped out about 30 bushels for every one shipped in during the first seven months of 1938.

The United States is a democracy; it does not accomplish ends by handing down decrees from above, but by the initiative and with the consent of the citizens, who must first know what they want and how to achieve it.

The county agents of the Extension Service form a connecting link between farm people and the research agencies—the State experiment stations and the Department of Agriculture. These agents carry on demonstrations work and use many other means of education, including bulletins, newspaper articles, motion pictures, radio talks, exhibits, talks at meetings, and discussion groups.

It has been estimated that some 3 billion tons of soil are washed annually from overgrazed pastures and cultivated or barren fields, to be poured into streams, harbors, reservoirs, lakes, and oceans, or deposited on bottom lands and flood plains.

We know little, as yet, about the management of forest trees, by comparison with what we know of other farm crops. Because almost half of Wisconsin is more suitable for growing trees than for any other purpose, authorities regard it as highly desirable that information be assembled on forestry problems, to the end that timber production may be placed on a more profitable basis.
