Deaths of Several People Well Known In Vicinity Occur

JOSEPH ROSENHEIMER
Joseph Rosenheimer, 75, prominent business man, died at his home in that city Monday, Jan. 9, at 2:30 a. m., after an illness of several years.

Rosenheimer operated a retail business in Slinger, and insurance business in Slinger. His wife, Mrs. Rosa Rosenheimer, operated the grain elevator in Slinger.

Rosenheimer was born in Slinger on Jan. 12, 1863, and spent his entire life in Slinger. He married Miss Sarah Schaefer in 1880. He predeceased his wife on June 19, 1930. He married Miss Clara Toepel of Slinger in 1902. He and Mrs. Toepel have three children: Walter, who survives him, and a daughter, Mrs. Agnes Allen of Lewisville. Three children preceded him in death. They were Walter, who died in 1912; Nellie, when she was 12 years old; and Joseph, Jr. at the age of 12 in 1892.

Survivors include two brothers, Joseph Rosenheimer, Sr. of Kewaskum, and Joseph Rosenheimer, Jr. of Slinger; two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Stark, Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Elizabeth Boerner, Cedarburg, Wis.; a daughter, Miss Josephine Rosenheimer of Minneapolis, Minn., where she attends the University of Minnesota; Richard Rosenheimer, St. Paul, Minn.; and Miss Dorothy Mulon, St. Paul, Minn. He was a member of the Lutheran church.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 10 a. m. at St. Peter's Catholic church in Slinger. The Rev. W. J. Schaefer officiating. Interment was in the Slinger cemetery at the grave of Mrs. E. T. Soper of Hartford.

MRS. CHARLES B. NOWAK
Mrs. Charles B. Nowak, nee Rose, nee an aunt of George, Theodore and John Schmidt and Mrs. John Schmidt of this village, a resident of 1300 W. Main, Milwaukee, passed away at her home in Slinger at the age of 68 on Monday, Jan. 9, after a long illness. She was survived by her husband, Charles B. Nowak, who survives her, and a daughter, Leona, who lives here through frequent visits.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 10 a. m. at the Geau church, Slinger. The Rev. W. J. Schaefer officiating. Interment was made in the Slinger cemetery, that city.

President's Birthday Ball to be Held Here

Again this year as in the past, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's birthday anniversary will be the occasion for birthday dances all over the United States to raise funds to aid the fight against infantile paralysis. Atty. Lloyd H. Lobel, West Bend, is chairman of the celebrations to be held in Washington county.

Included among the celebrations to be held throughout the county and nation is the one to be held here in Kewaskum. Postmaster Frank Hepp, who has been appointed local chairman by Atty. Lobel, has completed arrangements for a celebration at the Kewaskum Opera House on Wednesday, Jan. 25. Music will be furnished by Jack Thull and his Texas Rangers. Admission to the ball will be 25c per person and five $1.00 door prizes will be given.

The proceeds of this dance, which aid in administering one of the worthiest of charities, will be equally divided. Fifty per cent will remain in Washington county and the rest will be deposited in the National fund for the fight against infantile paralysis and benefit of crippled children.

The distribution of these funds has been previously carried out by the West Bend chapter of the Wisconsin Association for the Crippled, Inc. Some of its activities include the purchase of textbooks for crippled children who can't attend school, getting medical aid and surgical help, purchasing artificial limbs, and many other worthy purposes in instances where parents are financially unable to help their crippled children.

While we can be thankful that we are not afflicted we must do more by supporting the foundation. We can do this by purchasing a ticket for the local president's ball or sending a small contribution to the local chairman. Tickets will go on sale within the next few days and further details will be published next week.

FIVE CORNERS
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller and family of Barton visited Sunday with Wm. Schiefel and family.

SKAT AND SCHAFKOPF
A skat and schafkopf tournament will be held at Casper's tavern Sunday afternoon, Jan. 15, at 2 p. m. All money over expenses returned in cash prizes. Delicious lunch. You are invited to spend an enjoyable afternoon at cards.

Kewaskum Hi's basketball team begins the after-Christmas league play to-night, Friday, in the local gymnasium against Lomira. This is the first meeting of these teams this year.

Oakfield tops the league with four wins and one loss with Kewaskum close on their heels with three wins and one loss. The league race is close now, especially between the first four teams, and promises to be a great battle all the way.

In the eight games Kewaskum has played to date, they have won 7 and lost 1, averaging 31 points a game to their opponents 22 and seven-eighths. This includes four non-conference games.

The outlook toward the future shows Kewaskum's hardest games are North Fondy at Fond du Lac next Tuesday, Oakfield at Kewaskum, Jan. 27, and Campbellsport, there, Feb. 3.

Glenn Morris will officiate at the Kewaskum-Lomira struggle to-night.

EQUITY MEETING AT WIETOR'S HALL, WAYNE, NEXT THURSDAY
The Equity Livestock Shipping association of Milwaukee, which has various branches operating in Washington county, will hold a meeting at Wietor's hall in Wayne on Thursday afternoon January 19th, at 1:30 o'clock.

BROWNIES HOLD MEETING
On Saturday afternoon the Brownies met at the Brauch home. The girls spent a pleasant hour making peanut parrots and pasting pictures in their scrap books.

HOSPITAL NEWS
Rev. Jos. F. Meyer of Johnsburg, former pastor of St. Michael's church at St. Michaels, underwent an appendicitis operation at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, Friday, Jan. 6. Rev. Meyer's numerous friends in this vicinity will be glad to hear that he is recovering very nicely at present. Rev. Philip J. Vogt and P. J. Haug visited Rev. Meyer at the hospital Tuesday.

Plan Future Action at Safety Council Meeting

Various traffic safety procedures came up for a lengthy and general discussion at a meeting of the Washington County Safety Council in the offices of Sheriff Leo R. Burg in West Bend on Monday evening, Jan. 9. Although no definite action was taken, the council considered a course of future action and reviewed proceedings taken by it in the past.

Among the matters discussed were ways and means of more effectively checking the lights of motor vehicles, a continuation of the light dimming and tilting campaign instituted by the safety division of the state highway commission, the checking of school buses and other vehicles used in the transportation of school children in line with a request from the state highway commission that these vehicles be inspected as a matter of safety, and the proper display of safety signs and posters in the county.

It was voted to hold the next meeting of the council at Hartford at 8 p. m. on Monday, Feb. 6.

Port Banks Win Over Locals in Close Game

Paced by Herb "Pretty Boy" Schaefer, who hit the hoop for 19 points, the Port Washington State Banks, one of the Land o' Lakes topnotch teams, continued its march toward the top of the standings by winning out in a fast, rough battle against a brilliant Kewaskum team here Sunday, 49 to 44. The teams were never more than a few points apart. Kewaskum held the lead most of the first half, which changed over to the invaders in the second period of play.

In losing Kewaskum surprised the crowd as well as their opponents by showing a great amount of strength against a team that lost only one game this season. With the return of Gibson to the lineup, the locals were at full strength for the first time since the opening game on Dec. 4. Martin C. Weber, league director, recently stated that Kewaskum's young team would be one of the strongest in the circuit before the season ends and Sunday's performance showed this to be a fact.

The game was very fast, probably the fastest Kewaskum has been called upon to play this season. With adequate substitutes Port could set a fast pace. Kewaskum stuck right with them on even terms for three quarters but in the end a tired team succumbed to the whirlwind pace, although fighting to the finish. The second half was extremely hard fought and several time outs were taken due to injuries.

Kewaskum held its biggest lead over the Banks at the end of the first quarter, when it was 11 to 9 in favor of the home club. The lead changed several times during the next period but Kewaskum was still on top, 17 to 16, at the intermission. The advantage continued to see-saw back and forth as the game progressed with Kewaskum usually ahead, until Stenschke had to be removed from the scuffle due to an injury. Following this Port, through hard play, took a one point lead of 24 to 23 at the end of the third quarter.

In the final period Port maintained its lead and increased it in the closing minutes to win by five points, 49 to 44.

What Schaefer was to the Banks, Marx was to Kewaskum and he netted 13 points on 5 goals and 3 gift shots. Next in line were Honeck and Krier, each of whom scored 11 points.

SECOND TEAM BEATS OLD TIMERS IN PRELIMINARY

In the preliminary game the Kewaskum B team experienced little trouble beating a picked team of married men of the village, 33 to 22. The married men's team was composed of former stars who have retired from the game and who showed they still can play by running up 22 points. They had only men for the game and had to play the entire time against the B's, who substituted frequently and are in good training. So a bit of praise must come forth for the benefactors for the showing against odds. The B's completely outclassed their opponents the first half, which ended 17 to 2. But in the second half, after the married men had had a little practice and loosened up their rusty joints a bit they outscored the B's, 20 to 16, to bring the final score to 33-22. The married men's team had Carl Backhaus and Ellis Ramthun, forwards; Al Wietor, center, and Henry Rosenheimer and "Pessy" Dreher, as guards. The B's used Prost and W. Werner, forwards; C. Werner and R. Marx, centers; Dorn, Meilus and Weddig, guards. Backhaus led the married men in scoring with 12 points, while C. Werner scored 9 for the B's. A return game may be played at a later date.

STRONG MAYVILLE FIVE HERE SUNDAY; WAYNE PLAYS BEES

The powerful Mayville Legion team, which holds second place in the league, and is right on the heels of the leading Cedarburg quint, will play Kewaskum in the local gym Sunday evening, Jan. 15, in the feature attraction. Mayville is led by Bronko Malesovitch, former University of Wisconsin football star, and league leading scorer at present. Along with the others, Mayville has an excellent team. This will be one of the season's best games and if Kewaskum can repeat their performance of last Sunday the boys stand a fine chance of upsetting the dope. In the

Local Furniture Men Attend National Show

Edw. E. Miller and his brother, Fred, spent three days this week at Chicago attending the National Home Furnishings Style show. "We attend the national markets primarily to see the new merchandise, get a line on what the leading factories are doing and to insure that we obtain the best value for our customers," Mr. Miller explained. "However, we also find the shows are helpful to us in more ways—model rooms reflect the current trend in interior decoration, showing color harmony with carpeting and furniture in each room. Market attendance helps keep us up to date with the industry and provides us with last minute information on new things for the home which we can pass on to our customers."

The Chicago exhibition is the largest home furnishings show on earth. Buyers from all over the country attended and most of all of them expect 1939 to be a very good year, which they showed by placing many orders.

In a few weeks the two Miller Furniture stores will be displaying a large selection of the new furniture and carpeting which was selected at the national style show. Watch this paper for announcement of arrival and then be sure to see this smart looking merchandise at Miller's.

Annual Salvation Army Appeal Opened In Village This Week

Another year has passed since The Salvation Army made its annual financial appeal in Washington county. While there are some signs of improvement in conditions in many places, there are still countless numbers who look to agencies such as The Salvation Army for temporary help and encouragement. As far back as the time of Christ, He said: "The poor ye have with you always." Yet, in this land of opportunity and wealth, there are still, in spite of high taxes and living costs, millions of Americans who are in the comfortable class, and who should still be grateful for all their many blessings. It is to these good citizens that The Salvation Army is now appealing in Kewaskum for funds wherewith to maintain its well known, many aided ministrations.

Ed. S. Heberden is field representative of the Wisconsin and Upper Michigan division of The Salvation Army this year, replacing A. H. Christian, appeal director, last year, who has been transferred to another state.

Mrs. D. M. Rosenheimer again has kindly consented to act as chairman of the appeal which has been going on in Kewaskum this week, and M. W. Rosenheimer of the Bank of Kewaskum is treasurer of the fund. The following ladies are helping with the solicitation as the Army does not use any outside workers. Persons other than our local citizens, who solicit in the name of The Salvation Army, are not authorized, and are probably impostors.

The ladies are Mesdames Henry Rosenheimer, Lyle Gibson, Clifford Rose, Theo. R. Schmidt, M. W. Rosenheimer, Leo Brauchle and Jack Tessar.

The local industries and institutions have the following chairmen: Kewaskum Aluminum Co., Albert Hron; Kewaskum Creamery Co., H. W. Quade; Kewaskum Public school, Clifford Rose.

Next week's paper will carry a full report of the drive.

LAKE FIFTEEN

Miss Irene Hahn spent Sunday with Miss Gretchen Gatzke.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ehner of New Fate visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Gatzke.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wunder and Mrs. C. Krewald spent Monday afternoon at Fond du Lac.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gatzke and daughter Gretchen spent Tuesday at the Herman Molkenhine home at New Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sikorski of Milwaukee and Mrs. Bertha Metzger of West Bend spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gatzke.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kobs of West Bend, Mrs. H. Meilke and daughter Meta of Fond du Lac, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wunder and son Edward of Cascade spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Wunder.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mrs. Joe Koehler entertained the following at a supper Sunday evening in honor of her daughter Bernadette's birthday: Misses Ione and LaVerne Terlingen, Doris Sell, Dorothy Smith, Theresa Kern and Mrs. Cathrine Kern of Kewaskum, and Miss Meta Barth of West Bend. With a few additional friends, the evening was enjoyed in singing, dancing and playing games. Prizes were awarded to the winners. Lunch was served by the hostess later in the evening.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—This writer, encountering Frederick Jagel of the Metropolitan Opera at luncheon the other day, quizzed him about his season at Buenos Aires, from which he recently returned. He thinks cultural penetration of South America might be more effective than our trade and diplomatic missions, in which he is inclined to believe we aren't getting anywhere.

South America has long had the idea that we were a nation of hard-boiled money-grubbers. Any credible performance in the arts, he believes, will be our best line of export. He said he found the Argentines most generous and appreciative hosts. Once they find you haven't an extra ace in your cuff and you measure up to their standard of propriety, they wear their hearts on their sleeve.

Incidentally, Mr. Jagel's singing makes audiences weep, but no one meeting him ever feels sorry for him. He is a businesslike, compact Brooklynite, formerly an actuary with the Mutual Life Insurance Company, long before he took his perch in the old red plush aviary, where, on occasion, he still hits high C.

As an actuary, young Mr. Jagel, charting other careers, began to think of his own career. He tossed his insurance job out of the window, found a backer, sang in movie houses up and down Broadway and proved to all and sundry that he had a voice. He studied with Portanova in New York and with Calandini in Milan. Making his operatic debut in Milan, in "La Boheme," he hit Rodolfo's high C with a bull's eye that greatly improved Italo-American relations. He sang for four seasons in Italy, before making his New York debut as Radames, on November 8, 1927. He knows about 40 roles, and 26 of them he can sing offhand and on the slightest provocation.

With the precision and clarity of a man trained in business, he tells you of the superiority of our South American competitors in their specialty of quid-pro-quo trade economics. Hence, his talk of "cultural penetration" isn't just ivory tower stuff. If Secretary Hull could sing as well as Mr. Jagel can talk international trade, he, too, would be in the Metropolitan.

Mr. Jagel thinks we have the making of a grand musical renaissance in this country, with talent, teachers and a fine national appreciation vastly enhanced by the radio.

THE amiable white magic of John Mulholland once enabled me to deal myself four aces against another's four kings, which, of course, revived faltering hopes of the existence of kindly elves with whom Mr. Mulholland was wired in and whom he could summon in behalf of his friends. But now one of the cleverest magicians in the country—the cleverest, to this none-too-seeing eye—publishes a book, "Beware Familiar Spirits," in which he banishes all trolls and makes all magic just manual dexterity and technique. It isn't exactly a debunking book. He leaves the door open for faith in the occult, if you think you have evidence, but, as to prevailing mystagogy, he reduces it to fraud or to honest self-deception, aided by slow eyesight.

He sold school books and was a teacher of dramatics and industrial arts at Columbia university, before he became a full-time magician and vice president of Society of American Magicians. He has performed and lectured in about 40 countries. Nobody, anywhere, ever had more fun. He likes to shepherd four or five friends through a subway turnstile, with one nickel, making it reissue from the slot each time and click through the next man. That brings the change dealer roaring from his den. Mr. Mulholland hands him a half-dollar, the wayfarers take their train, and then the dealer finds he has an aluminum disk with a rabbit in a silk hat on it. He usually screams and butts his head against the wall. But, in each case, the subway already has its full count of sound nickels.

As to the above poker hands, it happened at a luncheon table of five or six men. Mr. Mulholland sent for a new deck of cards and asked me to shuffle them and deal four hands. It couldn't have been a trained deck. It was thoroughly shuffled. Mr. Mulholland never touched the cards, standing with his back turned a few feet away, and never said a word. The hands fell as he ordered, the orders apparently issuing silently from the back of his head.

'Dutch' Form of 'Deutsch' The word "Dutch" is simply an English form of "Deutsch" and related words of the Germanic tongue. It was formerly applied to all peoples of Germanic stock or language, and it is only in comparatively late usage that its application has been more or less restricted to Hollanders. The "Pennsylvania Dutch" who play so important a part in the life and history of that state, and of the nation, are almost entirely of German and German-Swiss descent.

"The Man Who Came Back"

HELLO EVERYBODY: There was a time when Frank S. Helmar of Shamokin, Pa., could get a kick out of ghost stories. But not any more. Frank says the old spook yarns leave him cold nowadays, and never again will any mere piece of fiction make the hair crawl up the back of his neck. For Frank went up against the real thing once, and now he knows what a scare really is. Hold onto your hats while Frank tells us about it, boys and girls—the strange tale of the Mumbling Ghost!

Quite a few years ago—when Frank had just passed his eighteenth birthday—he began to get that restless feeling that comes to most young lads his age—the itch to travel. It seemed to him that there wasn't any opportunity for a young fellow in the little mining and manufacturing town in which he had grown up. He was tired working in coal holes and hanging around with the same old gang under the street light every night, so one day, after work, he tucked a little bundle under his arm and, with a little lump in his throat, struck out over the hill toward the railroad tracks and points north, east, south and west.

Planned to Settle Down in Elmira. Frank didn't know where he was going, and he sure got there. For five years he wandered about in practically all of the eastern states, working in a factory here and a restaurant there, doing odd jobs, and sometimes even landing in jail on suspicion of vagrancy. At the end of five years, Frank found himself working in a silk mill in Elmira, N. Y., and liking the job and the town so well that he was planning to settle down.

He had even subscribed to a newspaper back in Shamokin and ordered it sent to him in Elmira. But it was that newspaper that proved his undoing. For it not only set his feet to itching again, but also provided him with the most horrible shock of his whole life.

It was just a little paragraph, way down in the corner of a page, in one of the first papers that came to him from back home in Shamokin, but it made the tears fill Frank's eyes. His old pal, Jack Hasco, so the paragraph said, had been killed that day, and mangled beyond recognition. Frank felt pretty bad about it for two or three days, and thinking of Jack also made him wonder how his other old pals were getting along. And he decided to go back to the old town for a visit.

He arrived in Shamokin about midnight on February 14, 1929. The sky was dark and a storm was brewing. The wind blew fitfully and the few people on the streets were wrapped up in heavy overcoats and hurrying to get in out of the cold. Frank pulled the collar of his own coat up around his neck and headed for the East Side, where he once had lived. "It seemed strange to be back home again," he says. "I had expected to find the East Side improved, but it was still the same old hole, with its blind alleys and poorly lighted streets. I was heading into an alley near my old home when I saw a dark form coming toward me. I saw, as it approached me, that it was a man, and thought it might be some one I knew. As he came up to me I looked closely at his face.

One look at that fellow's face and Frank felt his body stiffen. "I let out an insane scream," he says, "and beads of perspiration began forming on my cold brow. My heart was beating violently! I was rooted to the ground! And that face was slowly coming toward me, its eyes bulging in surprise and a slight smile coming to its lips. Yes—you guessed it. It was my old pal—my dead pal, Jack Hasco—and he was mumbling! Mumbling something in some outlandish language that I couldn't understand!"

Falls Unconscious in Terrorized Flight. Frank fought to pull himself together. Gathering up all the energy that was left in his weakened, trembling body, he let out another wild yell and, with a leap and a bound, he practically flew out of that alley. "Then I ran," he says. "Ran on and on, until everything turned black in front of me and I slid in a heap to the ground. When I regained consciousness strange faces were looking down at me. When I told them my story they looked incredulously at one another, said I was drunk, and walked away. I picked myself up, brushed off my clothing and moved on."

A little way down the street, Frank saw the lights of an all-night lunch wagon. A cup of coffee would go good after his experience, and it might help him pull himself together. He was sitting on a stool in the lunch room sipping his coffee when the door opened and another familiar figure came in.

But this time it was a LIVING figure. Baldy Williams, another member of the old gang. Never in Frank's life had the sight of an old friend thrilled him so. "Baldy!" he yelled. And Baldy said, "Why, Frank Helmar, where in the heck have you been all these years." And for the next few minutes they talked about Frank's travels, but Frank wasn't long in bringing up the story of his strange experience.

Friend Explains Weird Reunion. As he talked on, he saw a twinkle come into Baldy's eyes. The twinkle turned into a broad grin. Frank wondered why Baldy was laughing at him. Did Baldy think he was drunk too? At last Baldy put up a hand and laid it on Frank's shoulder.

"Take it easy, Frank," he said. "Don't let this get you down. What you read in the paper about a Jack Hasco being killed is true enough, but there were two Jack Hascos in Shamokin. The one who was killed came from the West End. Our old pal, Jack, is just as much alive as you or I."

That sounded swell to Frank, but still he wasn't convinced. "But the mumbling!" he cried. "It was ghastly. Jack never talked like that!"

Again Baldy smiled—a little sadly this time. "Well, that's another thing," he said. "You see, Jack had an accident a few years ago, and he lost half of his tongue."

It Comes To Every Man!

Women Must Utilize Their Natural Gifts

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

SOMEONE has said, "No beauties are born, all are made." And what hope and encouragement to all women lie in that statement! True it is that few of us are born beautiful but persistence in making the most of what Nature endowed us with does make us attractive. And after all, it is the interesting-looking woman today, rather than the pretty-pretty, who is recognized and toasted as the modern beauty. The woman who has developed her natural gifts by being beauty-loving and beauty-seeking.

Gone are the days when one's earnest devotion to good looks was frowned upon, or when doctors voiced their disapproval of cosmetics. Today it is considered a woman's duty to society to be as lovely as possible and leading physicians believe strongly that the healthy, normal woman should keep abreast of her times and make herself most attractive.

No matter what your age, your occupation, your circumstances, you owe it to yourself as a woman, and to those around you, to make the most of your feminine heritage. Husbands and children alike unconsciously adore wives and mothers who have not allowed themselves to become duds. Proud is the child who can produce a personable mother to show his friends and school-mates.

—But Don't Be Extravagant!

But in seeking beauty, I do not advocate spending the rent or grocery money on expensive treatments or a flossy wardrobe. No, indeed. If you can afford such luxuries well and good, but don't encourage frowns and wrinkles and a distorted mind by fretting over what you cannot have. You can exercise your body into a pleasing figure just as well in your own home as you can in a costly studio. Current newspapers and magazines offer sound advice on meticulous grooming and body care, so there is little excuse for you to moan because you have not the wherewithal for frequent visits to beauty salons.

Every woman's budget, however, should allow for occasional visits to a reliable physician to check her general health and diet, and also

C. Houston Goudiss Suggests the Part Played by Diet in Helping to Prevent the Common Cold

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

STATISTICS compiled over a period of years indicate that during the months of January and February, the number of colds and other respiratory infections continually mounts. Usually a peak is reached in late February or early March.

It is during the next eight or ten weeks, therefore, that, in the light of past experience, more adults will lose time from their work and more children will be absent from school, as a result of colds, than at any other period during the year.

The Tremendous Cost of Colds

It has been estimated that colds cost the United States more than a billion dollars a year. That figure, of course, is only an estimate. It merely attempts to gauge the dollars and cents lost in wages; and in the money spent in an effort to overcome colds. It does not take into account the discomforts that may be caused by this common complaint. Nor does it allow for the possible after-effects of a neglected cold.

Cause and Cure Obscure

No scientists today are willing to state what causes colds or how they may be cured. Large numbers of clinical and laboratory tests have been performed throughout the world in an effort to discover why we catch cold. Numerous records have been made concerning colds in men, women and children, as scientific workers have patiently and persistently tried to investigate the cause of colds. They have sought even one clue that might help to outwit this common enemy!

Various theories have been advanced. Many have been discarded, and others have been considered sufficiently plausible to investigate further. There is one point on which many authorities agree: that is a belief that a cold is caused by a germ so small that it cannot be seen by the most powerful microscope.

It has been suggested by a number of competent observers that whenever the weather becomes damp and raw, and wherever crowds of people gather together, the cold germ may find victims among those whose resistance is low.

Prevention Rather Than Cure

Though we may not know precisely what causes a cold, nor how to cure it once we have been stricken, we can and should help to build up bodily resistance, so that we develop strong reserves against the unknown cold germ and any others lurking about.

Inasmuch as a program for building up bodily resistance is one which encourages greater health and longevity, it is a program which all forward-looking homemakers should put into effect for their families.

Helping to Build Resistance

Such a program should include proper food, normal elimination, adequate exercise and sufficient rest and sleep so as to avoid fatigue. Just as food plays an important part in helping to promote growth, maintain health and increase the chances for longevity, so does it have a stellar role in the battle to prevent colds.

The Right Food a Strong Weapon

The well balanced diet, as I have previously stated, is one that is built, first of all, upon a firm foundation of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. These are the foods that are richest in minerals and vitamins—substances which help to regulate body processes and help to guard against deficiency diseases.

There should be adequate protein to allow for the demands of growth and to help repair worn-out body tissue. There should be enough bulk or cellulose to help promote normal elimination. And there should be a sufficient amount of water and other fluids; for water flushes the countless channels of physical existence, as it passes from the body through the lungs and skin, as well as through the kidneys and the large intestine.

Significance of Vitamin A

Nutrition authorities are frequently asked, "Is there any specific food substance that may be said to be particularly helpful in preventing colds?" or "Is it true that vitamin A is especially valuable in combatting colds?"

Here is one answer to both questions: scientists have found evidence that vitamin A, which occurs most abundantly in milk and other dairy products, and in green, leafy and yellow vegetables, helps to keep the epithelial cells of the mucous membranes in good condition, so that the natural defenses are preserved.

One of our outstanding nutrition authorities has gone on record as saying that in his opinion, at least four times the amount of vitamin A required for apparent health may bring a good return in health protection.

It is important to remember, however, that the best single piece of advice that is given regarding diet is to eat moderately of well balanced meals.

Don't Overeat

In addition to partaking adequately of the protective foods, those who are endeavoring to plan a program of living that will help to prevent the common cold should likewise guard against overeating.

One should also do everything possible to avoid coming in direct contact with persons who have colds.

Through a routine of correct eating and sound habits of hygiene, the homemaker can go a long way toward helping her family to prevent colds. Remember that here, especially, an ounce of prevention is worth perhaps more than a pound of cure!

Questions Answered

Mrs. L. A. C.—No, it is not essential to include an egg in the school child's breakfast, provided he receives an egg in some form during the day. An ample, and easily digested breakfast might include fruit, cereal with milk, toast and milk to drink.

Miss C. M.—Yes, it is true that molasses contains calcium. The amount in a tablespoon and a half has been compared to the amount of this mineral which can be obtained from one and one half cups of diced carrots.

Practical

A preacher likes to tell this story of a confere who missed his train because he relied on a watch which misled him. "I can scarcely believe it," he said as he looked after the train just disappearing. "I had such faith in this watch."

"Well, it seems to me," remarked his companion, "that this is a case for good works rather than for faith."—Montreal Star.

Myrna Loy epitomizes the charm for which women should strive. An arresting, smiling personality, an interest in her work, and a piquant beauty enhanced by scrupulous grooming.

For a few good cosmetics—specific aids for ailing skin or hair and those necessary to preserve personal daintiness. To these, every woman has a right—they assist her mentally.

But just as pertinent as cosmetics to a woman's loveliness is the right approach to living. Gracious thoughts and characteristics, an active interest in something other than herself and her home, a desire to be an inspiration to society, rather than a burden. Such attainments certainly enhance the charm any woman creates by being pleasing to look at.

Keep Child's Mind Active

If you are truly concerned about her beauty you cannot fail to keep her mind active and growing. What nonsense to allow her to concentrate on make-up! Teach her simple daily groomings. Fill her day with small duties and childish pleasures. Let her grow! Every child loves to paint and draw pictures. Think up new activities that will teach her to be self-reliant and progressive.

There is no beauty as appealing in all the world as a child's beauty. It must be held sacred. It must not be scarred by stupid parents who feel that artificial beauty aids can possibly make their child more attractive!

Body health, skin health, mental health are the goals to be reached. Help your child by concentrating on those. She will grow to lovely womanhood, happy in the knowledge that her parents were wise parents who did not sacrifice her youth needlessly.

Origin of Word 'Chipper'

Although it is conceivable that the word "chipper" may come from "chipmunk," an Algonquin word, with the derived meaning, "as lively as a chipmunk," it is generally listed in dictionaries as derived from English dialect forms akin to "chirrup" and "pert," with the addition of some onomatopoeia.

Twenty-five Years Ago

January, 1914
 William Batzler, aged 42 years, a resident of St. Killian, and residing about seven miles west of this village, was instantly killed last Tuesday evening at about 6:45 p. m. at a crossing about a mile from Theresa station. Batzler had gone to Theresa with a load of barley in the earlier part of the day and was returning home with a load of shingles. It was very foggy and the steep grade at the railway crossing very likely disoriented Mr. Batzler to notice the swiftly approaching south-bound Soo train.

Jacob Honeck of the town of Kewaskum, who died last week Wednesday, as a result of injuries received in a runaway accident near Allenton a few weeks ago, was buried at St. Bridget's last Saturday. Rev. Vogt of this village officiated.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Miss Malinda Guth last Sunday afternoon in honor of her birthday anniversary. Those in attendance were: Manilla Klessig, Ruth Wollensak, Gertrude Mohme, Elva Weddig, Celesta Martin, Cecelia Heas, Florence Groeschel, Norma Koerble, Gladys Perschbacher, Elester Backhaus, Melvin Brandt, Leroy Groeschel, Norton Koerble, Neal Wollensak, Frank Peters, Herbert Beisler, Leo Ockenfels and Herman Schaefer.

County Agent Notes

BARLEY MEETING HELD AT ROTH'S HALL, SLINGER
 Washington county farmers had an opportunity to have samples of barley analyzed at a meeting held in Roth's hall at Slinger, on Thursday, January 13th. All barley samples brought in were checked for planting and matting qualities.

During the past year Washington county produced nearly a million bushels of barley. Only one other county in southeastern Wisconsin produced more than did this county.

To grow this large amount of barley and to grow it on almost every farm in the county makes it almost impossible to keep varieties from becoming mixed or to keep oats and other cereals from mixing with the barley. All of these tend to produce a barley which is inferior for matting and commercial purposes.

The purpose of these barley improvement meetings is to help farmers determine if their samples are sufficiently free from two row varieties or other impurities to warrant planting. Barley growers must strive to produce a more uniform product if the top prices are to be received.

Four or more speakers were present to carry on the discussions. They included George Briggs, barley extensionist of the College of Agriculture. Mr. Briggs discussed such problems as what varieties are most profitable to raise and how do mixed varieties influence barley prices. He also discussed the seeding, fertilization, and threshing of barley.

R. E. Vaughan, plant disease expert of the College of Agriculture, discussed barley diseases, seed treatment, and other factors causing the production of an inferior barley.

J. G. Dickson, also of the College of Agriculture, discussed barley problems of the maltster and directed the analysis of the barley samples brought in.

The Federal Grain Board was represented by Mr. Combs of the Chicago Grain Exchange. He demonstrated and explained how barley grades are established and how farmers and shippers can cooperate in improving grades thereby receiving the highest market prices.

Mr. F. E. Benson, of the Archer Daniels-Midland Company of Milwaukee was present to discuss the commercial production of soy beans.

AGRICULTURAL TIME

Agricultural time at very reasonable prices will be available for the southeastern part of Washington county on and after about January 16. Those who want such lime for barn or field use should place their orders for it at once. The lime will be produced at the Waterlime quarry in Germantown.

The limestone in this quarry is of the very best, testing better than 100% lime. The use of W. P. A. labor will make it possible to produce and deliver this lime at $1.15 per ton delivered to your farm in truck loads of about five tons per load for distances under ten miles. For distances between ten and fifteen miles the price will be $1.50 per ton in truck load quantities. W.P.A. regulations require that all lime be delivered by the quarry operator. All lime must be paid for by the farmer when received.

Every farmer in Washington county can possibly use at least one truck load of lime for barn use. Also much of the land in the county needs lime applied at a rate of about two tons per acre for best crop yields. Every ton of alfalfa hay removes about 100 pounds of lime from the soil and Red clover takes out 75 lbs., an acre of corn 25 lbs., and an acre of oats about 20 lbs. Hence, we can readily see that after 50 to 75 years of steady cropping our soils are low in lime content. Sprayers for sowing the lime on fields are available.

The W.P.A. labor grant by the federal government makes possible the production of lime at these reasonable prices. When W.P.A. labor is no longer available, the cost of producing the lime will be materially increased. Hence, place your order now!

FARM ORCHARD MEETINGS AT SLINGER & NENNO JANUARY 16
 Two farmers' fruit courses will be held in Washington county during the coming winter months. The purpose of the four meetings of this fruit course will be to interest farmers in and acquaint them with the best local fruit growing practices. Mr. C. L. Kuehner, farm orchard specialist of the College of Agriculture will be present at all of the meetings. THE FIRST MEETING will be held on Monday, January 16.

The morning group will meet promptly at 10:00 o'clock in Roth's hall at Slinger. The afternoon group will meet at 1:30 o'clock in Neuberger's hall at Neno. Both meeting places will be warm and comfortable. All four meetings will be held at the above places.

"Sure, the FARMALL'S the Best Bet... and You Know They've Cut the Price, too!"

SIXTEEN YEARS have passed since the original FARMALL first took its place on the farms of America. In those sixteen years the FARMALL System has revolutionized tractor design and farming methods. It was natural that many of the manufacturers during this period should also begin to build tractors of the FARMALL type. They had to—farmers themselves settled that by demanding FARMALLS.

In the meantime, the original FARMALL has been completely transformed. Every year has brought valuable improvements, but the time-proved FARMALL principle is unchanged. The greatest all-purpose tractor value on the market is today's FARMALL. Come in—let's talk FARMALL advantages as applied to your own farm.

No Other Tractor Brings You All of These Features:

- 1—Patented automatic steering-wheel cultivator gang shift. Clean cross-cultivation at 4 miles an hour.
- 2—Most complete line of direct-attachable machines to choose from.
- 3—Unmatched ability for all row-crop work.
- 4—Outstanding economy on distillate or other tractor fuel.
- 5—Smooth 4-cylinder power-valve-in-head efficiency.
- 6—Replaceable cylinders.
- 7—Steering operates wheel brakes automatically when making pivot turns.
- 8—Unequaled record for long life.
- 9—High resale value.
- 10—Complete nation-wide service.

EDITORIAL

ONE RESOLUTION YOU SHOULD KEEP

By this time, most of your New Year's resolutions have probably been broken. That's only human. But there's one resolution every one of us should make and keep for the twelve months ahead. Here it is: "I resolve to do my part, as a motorist and pedestrian, to help reduce America's ghastly death and accident toll."

During a large part of 1933, the accident rate declined. But we haven't yet earned the right to compliment ourselves and sit back on our laurels. Tens of thousands of people died unnecessarily last year—the victims of recklessness and ignorance. Tens of thousands more will die unnecessarily this year—unless all of us do something about it.

There are three basic approaches to the accident problem. First, comes education. And that doesn't mean just teaching the rudiments of safety to school children. It also means reaching the adult—continuously and pointedly—with those simple instructions and suggestions that, if followed, will reduce the hazards of motoring 90 per cent.

Second, comes law enforcement. Incompetent police—wholesale ticket-fixing—slithery prosecutors—inefficient traffic courts—these are among the best friends the Grim Reaper has. A number of American cities have materially reduced their accident rates by revising their traffic codes, training their traffic police, and going away with fixing.

Third, comes better street and highway design, to eliminate "accident-prone" locations. Many an intersection which was a virtual death trap has been made safe through competent engineering. Every community should start on a long-time program that will gradually do away with this cause of deaths and injuries.

We can have safety—if we want it, and are willing to earn it. This is a universal problem, and its solution depends on the cooperation of us all. We made progress toward that end last year—let's do a great deal more this year.

Wisconsin farmers produce 21 per cent more than last year. The 1933 spring dig would be about 7 per cent smaller than the 5-year average. The 1933 crop would be about as large as the pre-drought years of 1930 and 1931.

Weekly News Analysis Election 'Cleanup' Suggestions Leave Vote-Buying Loopholes

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Politics

Since the dim day when America's first pork barrel was burst open, politicians have legally or illegally used federal funds to further their personal ends.

In an election year, political abuse of relief funds becomes a paramount danger.

SENATOR SHEPPARD Recommendations were easier.

Morris Sheppard offered his committee's report on campaign expenditures. Skipping lightly over the routine fact that some campaigns cost nothing while another (that of Ohio's Robert P. Taft) cost $159,453.77, the committee outlined results of relief-politics inquiries in 18 states.

Kentucky. Gov. Albert B. ("Happy") Chandler collected about $70,000 from state employees whose salaries came partly or wholly from federal funds.

Pennsylvania. WPA state high work cards were issued to high school children, who returned to their classes without doing any work.

Tennessee. Federal employees were solicited for contributions; WPA labor was used to repair private roads.

Illinois. In Cook county, 450 men were added to state highway crews, 70 of whom did no work other than canvass their respective precincts.

No criticism was directed at former WPA administrator Harry Hopkins, nor was action taken against any candidate. The pathetic truth is that no individual office-seeker could be singled out without ripping open an unwholesome, futile investigation.

(1) Prohibition against political contributions by relief recipients and legislation forbidding relief officials to influence votes.

(2) Legislation limiting individual contributions to candidates, preventing corporation donations and requiring complete reports of campaign costs.

(3) Consideration of legislation to make all political contributions by federal workers illegal.

The most applauded recommendation called for curtailment of the congressional franking (free mailing) privilege. This recalled the annual report of Postmaster General James J. Farley, made a few days earlier, which pointed out that abuse of the franking privilege was in a large part responsible for the post office department's deficit.

Before congress opened, President Roosevelt's critics believed his rising enthusiasm for rearmament was merely a cloak to focus public attention away from last November's election defeat.

But rearmament turned out to be a recognized national problem and Mr. Roosevelt turned out to be a smarter psychologist than his critics expected.

Congress did not need long to figure out that if military rearmament would cost real money, internal rearmament would be even more expensive.

As congress dove headlong into its six, seven or eight-month task, President Roosevelt may have been surprised to learn his initiating utterances won more public acclaim at home.

President Put Over Fast One in Naming Hopkins to Commerce Post

Reduces Chances of Investigation of WPA and Its Relief Spending; Appointment of Harrington to Hopkins' Place Seen as Strategic Move.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Many persons in Washington are convinced that President Roosevelt has slipped a fast ball right over the plate in front of his congressional critics by the transfer of Harry Hopkins to the job of secretary of commerce.

The President knew of the brewing trouble that had Hopkins as the focus; he was told how much mud slinging was due to take place, and how the haters of Hopkins and his methods were prepared to leave no stone unturned in exposing everything about Hopkins and his organization that could be made to appear slimy.

In naming Hopkins to the post of secretary of commerce, vacated only at Christmastime by the veteran official, Daniel C. Roper, Mr. Roosevelt has had to take the chance that the appointee would meet some razzing in senate confirmation.

At the proper time, therefore, congress will learn of what is going to be done by the new administration.

Appointment of Harrington Another Strategic Move

I am told on very good authority that this will be the strategy employed when the Hopkins nomination is under consideration.

The President also strengthened his position in the coming battle with congress by the appointment of Colonel Harrington. The colonel is a regular army engineer.

Mr. Roosevelt is taking no chances on any ruckus arising over Colonel Harrington, however, and has avoided it by a clever piece of detail.

Well, Mr. Hopkins will draw his pay regularly on the first and fifteenth of each month. He will be faithful in going to his office in the powerful automobile that is provided by the government for the secretary of commerce.

Secretary of Commerce to Make 130,000 Appointments

The patent office will run, as it always has run by itself, in a very efficient manner. The bureau of air commerce will be well managed because it has capable people in subordinate positions.

Many Attacks on Relief Policies to Be Expected

To keep Mr. Williams out of the clutches of the wolves around the capitol, Mr. Roosevelt took him off the job of deputy relief administrator and appointed him as director of the national youth administration.

Ban on Jap Purchase of U. S. Airplane Woods Requested

WASHINGTON.—Japan's purchases are depleting the American supply of choice spruce, essential to the manufacture of light airplanes, according to Carl I. Friedlander, of the Aeronautical Corporation of America, who petitioned President Roosevelt for an embargo on export of the wood.

The sudden maneuver by the President. There will be many attacks on the relief policies at an early date because the WPA must have something like $750,000,000 in additional money before the middle of February, and that request will be laid before congress along with other calls for money in the first deficiency bill.

The appointment of Col. Harrington will be much advertised by administration supporters in order to help others forget that Hopkins once held the job.

Beneath the surface, plans are said to be under way to give the country a "correct impression" of the new WPA. Colonel Harrington is reported to be planning to do away with most of the boon dogging, sewing circles to make baby diapers, writers' projects, art projects, what-else-have-you. He wants to use the WPA money for "constructive purposes."

Hopkins Is Objectable To a Majority in Congress

At the proper time, therefore, congress will learn of what is going to be done by the new administration.

And then comes the climax. The President again will ask congress for relief funds in bulk, in blank check, just as happened before. The members will be reassured by the administration concerning the ability, honesty and soundness of plans of the administrator.

She Painted Her Face

A story of love and intrigue... by DORN FORD YATES

SYNOPSIS

Almost at once I remarked that on one of these, three first were standing together to thrust a gray-green steeple into the sky; this, I was sure, could be seen from the farther side and so would make us a landmark for future use.

We were now approaching the castle and the drive was so serpentine that we could not see what was coming for more than some 50 yards beyond each bend. We, therefore, took the precaution of leaving the road for the bracken before we reached a curve to make sure we were not empty before we reached the next curve.

As I will say once for all that throughout this tale I shall report in English such speech as was used. "What could be better?" said Herrick. "But don't get involved. We're here to find out—not give battle. Don't forget that."

"I promise," said I. "Don't be long, and, with that, I was gone. Retracing my steps, I did not use the drive, but moved by its side through the bracken beneath the trees. As I approached the track, I saw that the car was still there and had not been moved."

Now all I knew was that Virgil and his companions had passed up the track out of sight. How far they had gone or whether they had kept to the track, I had no idea, but since it seemed pretty clear that they would not be very far off, from now I took greater precautions against being seen. When I moved, I did so gently and went on my hands and knees, and whenever I rose to look around, I did so against a tree-trunk, as though, indeed, I were stalking some wary prey.

First of all, I took a good look at the car. This was roomy and powerful and something the worse for wear. Its number-plates had been oiled and were coated with dust. One of its doors was ajar, and within I could see an old suitcase, no doubt containing "the clothes." But that was all, and after a long look round, I went on my way.

It was nearly six o'clock, and I had been gone from Herrick a full half-hour when the track beside which I was moving came to an end. This to my dismay, for now I had nothing to go on, although, of course, the track might have led me wrong.

In vain I sought for a broken stem of bracken which might declare the trail which my friends had left: in vain I scanned the forest and strained my ears; but for the birds and the squirrels, I might have had the world to myself.

Flat against the trunk of an oak tree, I wiped the sweat from my face. Five paces ahead a ride had been cut through the woods: though this was thick with bracken, it gave me a pretty clear view to right and to left, but the flood stretched smooth and unbroken and I could see no sign of its having been crossed.

Loth to admit defeat, I tried to think what to do. To proceed was easy enough, but, for all I knew, with every step that I took I might be going away from where I was sought. Yet to stay where I was was useless. If only there had been a hillock to add a few feet to my height, I could have looked down upon the bracken and that point of view might have shown me but traces the others had left. But there was no hillock: the ground hereabouts was sloping, but nothing more.

Suddenly I thought of the oak tree and lifted my eyes...

If I could reach it, there was the place I desired. One of the mighty branches was stretching out over the ride—a branch twice as thick as my loins, some 20 feet up. If I were there, I could see for a quarter of a mile, while the leaves of the lesser boughs would save me from being seen.

After a long look about me, I leaped for a sturdy sucker and swung myself up. My branch was not easy to come to, because what handhold there was so far between, and I must confess that, whilst I fought my way up, I could not help wondering how I should ever get down. However, I would not turn back, and after two or three minutes I flung a leg over the perch upon which I had set my heart.

I now had a very good view of the whole of the ride, which sloped, on the left, to the meadows southwest of the house, and rose, on the right, to a circus, whence three other rides ran out, as spokes from a hub. Across the ride two definite trails had been left—or, rather, one and a half. The first, which stretched right across, was 30 paces away, to the left of the oak; and the second, which stretched but halfway, as far to the left again. At the end of this second trail, full in the midst of the ride, the woman was sitting alone, with her back towards me.

To say that I felt bewildered means nothing at all. What on earth she was doing there, I could not conceive, and at last I made up my mind that she must be hiding from Virgil with whom she had had some fuss. Of him or the other two men, I could see no sign.

Now that for the sight of the woman, I should have at once descended and taken the other trail, but whilst I was still considering whether to follow this course, the woman got to her feet and stood perfectly still. When I saw her do this, it came to me in a flash that, unless the woman was mad, she must be acting in concert with somebody else. And so she was. Before two minutes had passed, the chauffeur appeared.

He made his way straight to her side, when the woman handed him something and then hurried out of the ride and so out of my view. Preparing to descend, I had turned about and was standing upon the branch with my hands on the trunk, when the scream of a dog in agony rent the ear. Half-turning again, I saw the chauffeur standing where I had seen him last, holding the dog at arm's length by the scruff of its neck and flogging the luckless creature with all his might.

I was just about to cry out when I heard a galloping horse coming down from the right, that is to say, from the circus from which the four rides ran out. Because of the leaves before me, I could not see it go by, but an instant later a bay flashed into my view. On his back was a girl, and the two were going full tilt down the midst of the ride, and making straight for the chauffeur still thrashing the dog.

So for a second or less. Then the bay turned head over heels and the girl went flying beyond him, as though shot out of a gun. I never saw such a fall in all my life, but before I had time to think, much less to descend, a man and a woman were rushing to where the girl lay. They were, of course, the two that came out of the car and they must have been standing directly in line with the bay when he came to the ground. And the chauffeur, too, was running as fast as he could.

The bay was up now and was moving off through the bracken with heaving flanks, but the girl lay crumpled up and perfectly still. To my surprise, instead of attending to her, the man and the woman began to lift her up and began to stumble with her towards my oak. They passed directly beneath me, seeming to think of nothing but getting their burden along. Had this been the carcass of a dog, they could scarce have used it with less propriety. The girl was dead or senseless—I could not tell which. They passed directly beneath me, instead of supporting her head, they let her hang, and one of her legs was suffered to trail on the ground.

This was too much for me, and at once I began to go down; but, for all my indignation, I could not for all my haste, because, as I had made haste to descend, as twice as fast as I had made, I was stiff as the climb I had made.

HERE'S an encouraging word to the woman whose wardrobe upkeep must needs be held down to a limited budget. The skirt with contrast tops leads the style program this season. With the separate skirt or simple foundation dress and a flock of flattering sweaters, jackets and blouses tuned to occasion you can dress as well as the next one and not be extravagant especially if you "make your own."

Here's hoping the suggestions offered in the accompanying illustration will prove an inspiration to get busy sewing, knitting and embroidering on a wardrobe of pretty things that will carry you triumphantly through the season from the dress standpoint.

Let's start with the right skirt to wear with the right top accompaniment. It is easily possible to carry on a well-dressed appearance with two skirts in one's wardrobe, a wool or crepe for routine wear plus a velvet or handsome crepe or slipper satin weave for more formal wear. However, you can go as far as you like in laying in a supply of skirts and then not have too many if you go a lot. A tweed, a colorful plaid, a pleated-all-round type, a smartly fashioned crepe or satin for day with a floor-length velvet or crepe for evening formality, are none too many.

Of course, with your tweeds and your plaids you will want a swank utilitarian sweater. The model pictured to the left in the group is easily knit. You will love it because it is so unusual. It has style distinction written all over it in that it is knit in a different way, using two patternings that contrast a vertical and horizontal handling. A soft wool yarn in a delectable deep raspberry pink is used for the knitting of this clever sweater.

A dress-up jacket-bouise to be worn with skirt or suit lends allure to your formal afternoon or evening costume. You can get the fine leaf-patterned lace that fashions the jacket-bouise pictured below to the left in ravishing colors or in black. The glittering rhinestone buttons complete the formal look.

Not a few of our best movie stars are enjoying Joan Blondell and Dick Powell these days. For since they can accept those tempting radio offers that they used to turn down, regretfully, because the studio wouldn't let them accept.

Jack Haley was busy enough to suit him before "The Wizard of Oz" came into his life, what with doubling in movies and radio. Now he figures that he'll have to spend exactly one month out of the next three on making up for his role of "The Tin Woodman" in the screen version of the Frank Baum story; three hours a day to put make-up on, three to take it off—23 1/2 days altogether.

Lawrence Tibbett is preparing to commute from New York to Hollywood and back again this winter. He's been signed for that new radio program—known generally as "The Carole Lombard-Cary Grant program"—but he is also scheduled for frequent appearances at the Metropolitan Opera House, where he is one of the biggest draws. So he will fit back and forth, with practically no spare time except while he's sitting.

ODDS AND ENDS—Charlie Chaplin says that he positively will talk in his new picture, which will be a burlesque on the Hitler dictatorship. . . . If he makes the picture as slowly as he has some others, there's danger that the European scene will have changed so completely that it will be ancient history. . . . Loretta Young's sister, Polly Ann, has an important role in Manorgan's "Sky Pirate," first of a series of six "Tailsipin Tommy" features.

First Mention of Sugar Cane Perhaps the first authoritative mention of sugar cane is in the records of the expedition of Alexander the Great down the Indus river in 325 B. C. Nearchus, an admiral in this expedition, mentions honey-bearing reeds and Dioscorides, who lived during the time of Nero, wrote: "There is a sort of hard honey which is called saccharum (sugar) found upon canes in India. It is grainy like salt and brittle between the teeth, but of sweet taste without."

Bed-jackets by Worth offer a number of new ideas. Paquin, Paris designer, concentrates on three-piece lingerie sets. A Paris woman has ear clips of a very white metal on which her initials have been engraved. Molyneux creates a charmer, a flaring model of black silk tulle that is covered almost entirely with huge, pleated cartwheels of tulle.

Dress Charmingly Within Limited Budget; Here's How

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S an encouraging word to the woman whose wardrobe upkeep must needs be held down to a limited budget. The skirt with contrast tops leads the style program this season.

If it's something a wee bit dressier you are wanting, a touch of gay hand-embroidery will do just that. See what can be done in the way of intriguing embroidery in the sweater blouse pictured to the right.

Coming to the dressier modes, handsome laces of every type and description make the news headlines for blouse and jacket and bolero fantasies in a big way. It's almost like magic the way a bit of lace transforms into a jacket or blouse masterpiece and even if you are not an expert in making things, a charming jacket-bouise or bolero as pictured can be put together with little effort.

A lace bolero does wonders in dressing you up, and does it click charmingly with last year's frocks! It is never so welcome and useful as at the tail-end of winter when you are feeling a bit jaded with dark dresses and feel the need of something to perk them up.

A dress-up jacket-bouise to be worn with skirt or suit lends allure to your formal afternoon or evening costume. You can get the fine leaf-patterned lace that fashions the jacket-bouise pictured below to the left in ravishing colors or in black.

In Sleek Satin

Slipper satin in dark or evening shades is playing an outstanding role for dine and dance wear. It is fashionable either in dark or pastel shades. Youth is in the red this season and no mistake about it. This time it is in gorgeous ruby red sleek satin.

Give White Bead Embroidery Trim

Among newcomers in the field of popularity are very attractive black dresses for afternoon wear that are prettified with white bead embroidery. The character of the embroidered motifs are unique. Sometimes the embroidery is done around the neckline in the new necklace effect. Likely as not here will be a dash of the white beadwork on the girle or belt.

Fur Dyers Adding To Lure of Skunk

Both kolinsky and Russian fitch in sable coloring and mink-dyed muskrat have found great favor. The fur dyer has also contributed to the continued success of skunk, now available in stunning sable and baum marten shades. Foxes—silver, red and blue—are extremely important now in the making of fur coats in short and intermediate lengths. And a newcomer in this field is the silky lynx.

Odd Companions

Tweed and sequins may seem to be strange companions but they go together in this season of striking fashions.

Picked Up in Studios of Style Designers

Pockets are more than just a place to hold your handkerchiefs this season. Party bags for winter are charming complements to the most important after-six or evening costume.

Star Dust

It's a Western Year Watch Cagney Go! Sleeping Producers By Virginia Vale

THIS begins to look more and more like a Western year, so far as the movies are concerned. Glorified Westerns these new ones will be, with the big studios offering you good casts, stories and sets, with A-1 directors handling the whole thing.

Walter Wanger will tempt you soon with "Stage Coach," starring Claire Trevor and John Wayne, Louise Platt, John Carradine, Donald Meek, George Bancroft, Thomas Mitchell and Andy Devine, with John Ford as director. The picture was shot at Kernville, Calif., and the story is one of those things in which an odd assortment of characters is thrown together under unusual circumstances.

Cecil B. DeMille gives you "Union Pacific," history from a movie angle, but history for all that. Darryl Zanuck contributes "Jesse James," which, if it even faintly resembles the stage play of that name, recently done in New York, should make you cheer.

And you'll see James Cagney in Oklahoma Kid" by courtesy of Warner Brothers. It is said that his characterization is based on "Billy the Kid," and that's interesting. Years ago, before Hollywood had whipped up interest in young Mr. Cagney, he was just one more of New York's actors, doing pretty well, but wanting to do better.

Hollywood's best scenario writers, learned that one of the major complaints was about to do a picture based on the life and adventures of Billy the Kid, and she and her husband did all they could to persuade the governing powers that Cagney, a friend of theirs, was just the boy for the part.

He didn't get it. Hollywood didn't know him, which was their bad luck. Now he has his chance. Speaking of actors who aren't appreciated brings up the young woman known professionally as Elsa Lanchester, and otherwise as Mrs. Charles Laughton. If you meet a motion picture producer kicking himself around the block you'll know that she is the reason.

For "The Beachcomber," made by Laughton independently, with the two Laughtons in leading roles, had no more than begun its showing in New York in late December than everyone began to rave about Elsa Lanchester's performance. She had everything! And Hollywood, when she was there with her husband, gave her no chance to do anything but the brute in "The Bride of Frankenstein" and a couple of bits. Better see "The Beachcomber" when it comes your way; it is being mentioned as one of the best of the year.

Nearchus, an admiral in this expedition, mentions honey-bearing reeds and Dioscorides, who lived during the time of Nero, wrote: "There is a sort of hard honey which is called saccharum (sugar) found upon canes in India. It is grainy like salt and brittle between the teeth, but of sweet taste without."

Easy Cutwork Will Delight the Beginner

Anyone who can do simple buttonhole stitch (that's all cutwork is) can have lovely linens such as these. Here are a number of motifs suitable for those smaller useful linens—scarfs, towels, pillow cases and tea cloths. Begin now. Pattern 6237 contains a transfer pattern of 14 motifs ranging from 3 by 3 inches to 3 3/4 by 15 inches; materials needed; color schemes.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in coins to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 West 14th St., New York, N. Y. Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Save Coal.—Put a lump of chalk on the fire. The chalk gets red hot, throws out a great heat and can be used many times.

Use for Leftovers.—Leftover pieces of soap may be made into a jelly for laundry use. Leftover pieces of toilet soap make a nice jelly for a shampoo.

Step Saver.—A working surface with cupboard above it to the left of the sink, so dishes may be put into the cupboards as soon as dried, saves many steps in the kitchen.

Slicing Figs and Dates.—To slice figs, dates and prunes for cooking, cut them with scissors dipped frequently in warm water. This helps avoid stickiness and makes even-edged pieces. For fruit puddings, it often is advisable to cover cut fruit with warm water so it will mix better with the other ingredients.

Correct Table Height.—For persons below or above average stature, the following test will determine the best height for a kitchen table: When a worker, standing erect, can place the palms of her hands on the table without stooping, the height of the table is correct.

Care of Steel Wool.—Steel wool will last so much longer if dried in the sun or on the radiator after each using. This will prevent its rusting and becoming unpleasant.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds. Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Bearing Injuries It costs more to revenge injuries than to bear them.—Wilson.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

DOAN'S PILLS

GUIDE BOOK to GOOD VALUES When you plan a trip abroad, you can take a guide book, and figure out exactly where you want to go, how long you can stay, and what it will cost you. The advertisements in this paper are really a guide book to good values. If you make a habit of reading these carefully, you can plan your shopping trips and save yourself time, energy and money.

MAGAZINE SALE PRIZES

The premiums were awarded Monday to those who sold magazine subscriptions in our recent sales campaign. All the students who sold two or more subscriptions received a prize. Among the prizes awarded were key cases, evershams, fountain pens, manicure sets, telescopes, charm bracelets, and lamps.

GRADE NEWS

We have started two part singing during our music period. Many of us received new story books for Christmas, so we're having lots of fun making new book friends.

'WHO'S WHO'

I hope you haven't forgotten to solve the last mystery I gave you. You've had a long rest and a long time to solve your problem. Now, who was the Romeo? The answer is Gordon Feltenz. Were you right?
Now let's see if you know who this week's senorita is. Oh, here she comes. Her left arm is encircling a set of bookkeeping books so she must be a business minded young lady. Miss Brynne tells us that her shorthand average is one of the highest. But commercial work is only a part of her study routine. She is also in the senior English class, in Social Problems, and is interested in dramatics. She has dark hair and eyes and has a very, very cheerful disposition. She has appeared in several plays presented by the St. Michael's talented dramatic club.
Now, who is this charming senorita?

VACATION NEWS

We're back, and from the looks of things Santa was very good this year, or was it Santa? Anyway, James McKee has been sporting a sweater, nice one too, but he doesn't have a thing on Ralph Krautkramer and his new jacket.
LaVerne Terlingen comes forth in a satin blouse that one can't help but notice. Annette steps proudly in her new shoes—very nice.
We haven't seen but we've heard about Mary's radio. She must have been a good girl. Alexia was good too; she rated a clarinet, and have you seen Wesley's green hat? It is, in truth, something to behold.
And have you noticed Beulah Hirsig's hair dress. Santa may be changing his list and again he may not be.
Lucille Pfennig went to Milwaukee to see what 1939 would bring. Sounds good.
Yes, apparently we've been good children, studied hard, and minded our teachers, or, has Santa been deceived?

AROUND THE CLASSES

After a most enjoyable two weeks' vacation the students have all come back to start a new year in the winter, which will close the last week in January.
As we enter the freshman classroom we hear many interesting things about our water supply. We learn how the quality of our water supply is maintained, how the water is delivered to the consumer and how the water supply is controlled in our buildings.
In their English class the freshmen are now studying the essay.
In the sophomore class we too hear about essays. We have learned that there are three kinds of essays: descriptive, narrative, and expository.
In their World History class the sophomores are studying Christianity in the Roman Empire.
The sophomore Algebra class is quite a time dividing polynomials by monomials. They say "it isn't hard, you catch on." Don't we all know that?
Again we hear about the essay. The now we are in the junior section and discovered that they are studying the American essay.
The juniors in the American History class are studying the period before the Civil War in which the slavery question divided our country.
The senior Bookkeeping class is working on a practice set, composed of business transactions for one month. This practice set gives them an experience in real bookkeeping as it has to be done in a large firm.
The senior Shorthand class is beginning to work in their secretarial practice sets. They have to type letters with carbon copies and learn all the other forms of business correspondence.
Each member of the senior English class has been given a part to write about. These essays on the various subjects are to be not less than ten pages long and are to make a great treat to the six weeks grade.

DECLAMATORY

This year we have ten students taking declamatory work. Several are taking dramatic selections and several are taking humorous. The contests are usually held during April or May and we have decided that if we kept to choose our selections now, we will have worked on them enough by next spring to give a very good showing. The county meet, including Lomira, St. Michael's, Campbellsport and Kewaskum will be held in our own auditorium this year.
We hope that we can get more of the freshmen and sophomores interested before spring.

SCIENCE LAB HAS NEW EQUIPMENT

During the Christmas vacation Mr. Furlong and a few of the manual training boys made some new chemistry tables for the science room. Several of these tables were enough to accommodate the chemistry class. They have also been installed in the chemistry room new Bunsen burners for various experiments. These tables and other equipment have added an entirely different atmosphere to the chemistry room.
