Marsh South of Kewaskum

Friday, the thirteenth was an unlucky day for two truck drivers last Friday. At about 3.30 p. m. that day a Chevrolet truck owned by the Kays Wholesale Distributors of Stevens Point, ran off Highway 45-55 and tipjed over in the swamp about two and one-half miles south of Kewaskum, known as the Kewaskum or Techtmann swamp. The accident occurred when the driver, Joseph Kaczmarski, 25, of Stevens Point lost control of the truck. Enroute from Milwaukee to Stevens Point with a load of beer, much of the beer was destroyed in the accident. Marvin Wochinski, 25, also of Stevens Foint, was a passenger in the cab and along with the driver was treated at the West Bend clinic for minor injuries. The bottled and keg beer from the Schlitz brewery, Milwaukee, with which the truck was loaded, was dumped into the water in the ditch along the road all about the place. Most of the beer was recovered by people on the scene, and took more along home in their cars, so that there was little left to be evenly matched and should supply a 3. HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Tower of Terror"

HELLO EVERYBODY: You know, boys and girls, when I was a kid, listening to those Christmas-time tales about Santa Claus, there were two things I always used to wonder about. One was how could a big fellow like Santa get down that little bit of a chimney of ours, and the other was how he managed to come out through a fireplace with a fire burning in it without getting burned up

Nobody ever did give me a good answer to the first of those questions, and I had to wait until today to get the dope on the second one from Barney Donaghey of New York City.

And even the information Barney gave me doesn't help much. Barney pulled that Santa Claus act once. He came right down the chimney and went right through the fire in the fireplace and lived to tell the tale. But Barney doesn't know how he did it. He just did, that's all.

Now, in the first place it wasn't a chimney Barney got caught in, but one of those big towers in an oil refinerywhich is a whole lot worse. The refinery was located at Aruba in the Dutch West Indies, and Barney was employed there as a welder. At its best that's a dangerous job in an oil refinery. An open flame is always risky when there's oil around, and a welder has to do his work with a raighty hot open flame.

Takes Every Safety Precaution.

On the night of November 6, 1929, Barney had a job to do on one of the big hundred foot towers, and he took every precaution possible. The weld he was to make was on the inside of the tower, 90 feet from the ground and 10 feet from the top. He had to climb up to that spot from the inside, through a mess of pipes and coils, but before he started he made a mental note of the fact that there was also a ladder running up the outside of that tower, to a manhole at the top. If anything went wrong-if sparks from his welding apparatus set fire to the oil down at the bottom, there was a way out.

But Barney wasn't going to start any fires if he could help it. To make doubly sure he took along a helper and left him at the opening at the bottom of the tower with instructions to watch for any sparks falling from above and put them out the minute they landed. When that was done he started climbing up to the spot where the welding was to be done.

'Up I climbed," says Barney, "and went right to work as fast as could. I was working at night because it was cooler, but it was still air again. I worked steadily for about an hour, and then I noticed that a thick smoke was accumulating in the tower."

Barney noticed the smoke, but he didn't pay much attention to There are always fumes present around an oil well, and he figured that if anything had gone wrong down at the bottom his helper would have warned him long since. He was anxious to finish that job he was working on, and he was working at top speed. Working so absorbedly that he didn't pay any attention to anything else. He didn't even stop to take a glance down the shaft. And that absorption almost cost him his life.

Welder Light Saves His Life.

It was the light of his welder that saved him. Saved him by going out! As long as it was working the tower was bright as day. But suddenly it died-and then Barney noticed that it wasn't the only light in that tower. A bright red glow was coming up the long shaft from below. The bottom of the tower was on fire!

The first thing that entered Barney's mind was a question. Why hadn't his helper warned him? Loudly he shouted the helper's name. But there was no answer. At that moment Barney was more alarmed for his helper than for himself. There was that manhole at the top of the tower and the ladder leading down the side. He could get out that way. But if his helper didn't answer, something must have happened. Barney started for the top. .It took him hardly any time at all to climb that 10 feet and reach the upper manhole. But there, a surprise waited for him-a surprise that struck terror into Barney's heart. A beam of wood a foot square was blocking the 'I couldn't get my hand through that opening, let alone my head," Barney says. "And I couldn't move the beam because there was a black and fall attached to it. There I was with the heavens above me and hell down below. But the heavens were out of my reach and what lay below was hell and no mistake." But down was the only way Barney could go, so down he went. The blaze didn't look as though it were reaching far up the shaft. Maybe he had a chance after all. "The farther down I went," says Barney, "the more scared got. The smoke was thicker and the heat was terrific. For a moment I played with the idea of staying in the tower and waiting until the flames were discovered and put out. But in my heart I knew that wouldn't work. It was late at night, Sunposing no one discovered the blaze? Suppose it spread and the whole place went up in flames? He Made a Drive for the Bottom Opening.

No-Barney knew he had to take his chances with that fire. On down he went. He was almost at the bottom, and the flames were licking up at his feet when he played his last card. He pulled his jumper over his head, and, with hands protected by his heavy gloves, he dropped into the midst of the blazing inferno and made a drive for the bottom opening! One blast of heat, and then Barney was through the opening, his body hot and his clothes smoking. He landed sprawlingon something soft. Barney pulled the jumper off his head and took a look at that soft object. It was his helper-just waking up from a sound sleep.

'He jumped up," says Barney, "and took one look at me. And I naven't seen him since! When it was all over, there wasn't a single burn on my body. But just the same, I did no more work that night. let the fire boys do the rest with the steam hose."

Then we both got into the Rolls, and Winter let in his clutch.

"It's very seldom," said Herrick, 'that Fortune makes up her mind to do a thing really well. She almost always leaves you with two or three little knots, and you have to try to cut them . . . But here she's excelled herself, for I came upon the scene of the outrage as you went off, and so I can complete the astonishing tale you've just told.

"But before I do that, let's go back. Between us, we saw the whole thing. We saw Percy meet his bullies and lead them off to the ride. There, of course, he told them exactly what they were to do, watched them fix the wire and placed them in the positions which they were to occupy—the chauffeur at the end of the ride to watch for my lady's approach, and the woman to show him his place as soon as he'd seen her go by. And when Percy had posted them, he went back to the house. That's not guesswork. I saw him. Two minutes after you'd Finger to lip, Lady Elizabeth Virgilia appeared to reflect. A hand went up to her head. "So far as I can make out, I've I can't think as straight as I should. And when we get to your car, are you going to drive me to Brief?" "I'd like to drive you to Raven."

"To Raven? Do you know Ra-"That's where we're staying," said I. "All right. I don't care. I'd like to see Brenda again. I'll lie down there for a while. When you've been knocked out, you're never quite right till you've slept." Though she seemed to have taken no hurt, she was not fit to walk as far as the Rolls: yet I was afraid to offer to fetch the car, in case, before I got back, the hunt should be up. There was, therefore, nothing for it. Fortune had laid on my anvil "And Caesar?" she cried, sitting a red-hot iron. If I did not strike it

When she had stumbled twice, without a word I took her right arm and set it about my neck: then I put my left arm about her and held her up. I am given to understand that she had her mother's looks, but I find it hard to believe that the Countess Rudolph had all of her daughter's charm. I have said before that her eyes were large and gray, but I despair of disclosing the exquisite light which made them so very rare. This was a very soft brilliance, which could leap into a flame, but once you had seen it, you never could forget it, because forever after all other eyes' seemed dull. Her hair was soft and shining and black as night, and the face which it framed was strong and proud and fearless, but droop of her lips that gave her this till the chauffeur landed a good one wistful air, but you could not have wished it absent, because that might have altered the shape of her faultless mouth.

I had to carry her over a stream before I saw through the trees the flash of the Rolls. I never was so in the stables by now, and in two thankful, for though she made no minutes' time the hue and cry will complaint, I knew it was all she be raised. And if we're to be found, could do to stay up on her feet, and we're done. Herrick was not to be seen, but since he was sure to return by the first to last, and, thanks to your entrance-drive and the road, I bade Winter take the wheel and make for the spot at which he had set us down. If he was not in sight when ago, you're one of Fortune's pets: we got there, I meant to go on to but you know how to use your luck-Raven and then return, but, as luck I'll give you that. "I was wondering where you were and whether to follow the track or go back to the Rolls, when I saw the woman approaching between the trees. She was blowzed and out of breath and went by at a shambling run, and when she got to the car, she swung the door wide open and then stood biting her nails and staring the way she had come. "Presently along comes the chauffeur, sweating great drops, with a coil of rebellious wire, and going as fast as he knew.

" 'Where is she?' he cries. 'Have you got her?' "The woman lets out a gasp. "'Me?' she bleats. 'Max has got her. He sent me on.' "'Max hasn't got her,' cries the chauffeur, and the woman goes white as a sheet.

"The next moment, up comes Max, with his eyes bulging out of his head.

"When they told him she wasn't there, he threw the best part of a fit before my eyes. Then they all ran back in a bunch, like so many frantic beasts, to where she ought to have been. Less than two minutes elapsed before they came stumbling back, all three disputing hoarsely and, naturally, blaming each other for what had occurred. Bang opposite where I was lying the woman fell upon Max and scratched his face to glory before the chauffeur was able to pull her off. Then she fell down in a heap and burst into tears, and Max did his best to kick her and knocked him down. But for him, they'd have been there now, for he was the only one that wasn't beside himself.

"'D'you want to be taken?' he hissed. 'That cursed horse is back years.'

"That brought the others up to their feet and into the car, and 30 seconds later the latter was out of my sight.

"Well, there you are. We know the whole truth of the matter from enterprise, we have in our hands the remarkably beautiful subject of their activities. As I said two days

Although much Jules Vernish stuff has been written about his "rockets to the moon" and about shooting people across the Atlantic in a few minutes, he has been an aloof and patient scientist, intent on seeing only what he sees and not making any handsome promises.

So far as this courier knows, the suggestion by Maj. James R. Randolph that rockets may replace heavy artillery, for longrange bombardment of cities, is the first official recognition of their possible use in warfare. He specifically cites the work of Doctor Goddard, at a time when Doctor Goddard is piling up new patents and getting some of his biggest sizzlers under control. It is also the time when the tiny, motored plane, evolving from the toy, and controlled by radio, is absorbing the interest of the army experimenters as a possible bomb-dropper.

At Roswell, N. M., financed by the Daniel Guggenheim foundation Doctor Goddard has a unique desert laboratory with plenty of elbow room and sky room. He now has a gyro steering mechanism on his rockets, by which they may be accurately aimed. He has gained 30 per cent in range over his best shots of two years ago, and is now forcing his rockets to a speed of 700 miles

His most valuable contribution to rocketeering, noted by Major Randolph, is his continuous flow of power, instead of the single initial explosion. Gasoline and oxygen, mixing and exploding as they issue from a tail nozzle, give steady propulsion.

Doctor Goddard, an amiable, unassuming, baldish man, began his rocket experiments at Clark university in 1914. He is a physicist, absorbed in pure science, admitting that we might hit the moon with a rocket if we wanted to spend that much power, but so far he keeps down to earth on immediate and specific problems-and makes prog-

of Vitamin G, a Substance Essential to Growth and Normal Nutrition

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS A NUMBER of the vitamins have been discussed in these columns from time to time. The latest findings of nutritional science have been related, together with suggestions made by outstanding authorities concerning the amounts of different vitamins required to help maintain top health. So far vitamin G has not been discussed specifically. Yet a knowledge of some of the functions and sources of this vitamin should be possessed .by every homemaker. For advantage to make sure that we eminent authorities are of the do not lack for adequate amounts chiefly because of the amounts in opinion that it has a far-reach- of vitamin G.

Laboratory experiments have also indicated that when there is a shortage of vitamin G, digestion is usually impaired. In this respect, a shortage of vitamin G has a slightly different effect than a deficiency of vitamin B. A definite lack of vitamin B causes an abrupt and complete loss of appetite. Withholding vitamin G appears to affect the desire for food, so that experimental animals consume only about two-thirds as much as they would normally take.

A form of nervous depression may occur when the diet is low in vitamin G for any protracted length of time. Other unfortunate consequences may be a decline in the health of the skin. Studies with animals indicated that when the vitamin was withheld, not only did a loss of weight occur, but there were other signs of nuan inflammation of the mouth, a loss of hair, a thickening and in some cases, a cracking and scaling, of the skin.

Studies with a variety of experimental animals resulted in the startling disclosure that on diets lacking vitamin G the health of the eyes was distinctly affected. fer a splendid time to get some Not only was there a loss of sewing done. Homemakers will be glad to learn that heating does not appear to destroy vitamin G. Canned foods are therefore as good a source as though they had not been processed.

Milk must not be overlooked. For all practical purposes, and which it is consumed, it is probably our most important source of

The surplus should help to provide a headstart toward the goal of buoyant health.

HUNDREDS MARKED FOR AVOIDABLE DEATH

During the winter season there are between 500 and 700 Americans marked for death-a useless, avoidable death. Most of them will die in their garages while warming up the motors of their autos with the garage doors closed. Some will die while sitting in their cars with the windows closed and the motors running. Several may die while working the engines of their machines to the utmost in attempts to get out of snowdrifts n which they have become stuck. Some will die while driving their autos along the road. A few will die huddled around foul-smelling and poorly adjusted room heaters.

We know this not only because of past experience, but also because studies have revealed new facts-hitherto nknown ways carbon monoxide has of snuffing out a man's life. Much has teen written about carbon monoxide, but most of it has been by way of locking the barn after the horse is stolen. Here are some of the facts of which we are now certain.

Frequently there is NO warning headache or dizziness. Unconsciousness and death can hit you like a blackjack in the hands of a thug. Carbon monoxide is NOT heavier than air, but very slightly lighter. Automobile exhaust pipes NOT the only source of carbon monoxide. It is a product of incomplete combustion and may be given off by improperly yeated oil heaters, coal burners, and oil stoves. No person is immune, nor can anyone build up an immunity. Acute poisoning as well as exposure may leave serious aftereffects. You don't have to be inside a garage with the doors closed to be endangered; if you have a leaky exhaust pipe or manifold heater, your closed car will do as well. You are in danger if your exhaust isn't able to escape freely cars and trucks have backed up against hard snow bank which obstructed been asphyxiated. It does not take a concentrated amount but only one-fifth of the one per cent carbon monoxide in the air to put you to sleep.

THEREFORE, see that the doors of our garage are open when the motor tested, both when it is in motion and pected for a leaky exhaust system. Remotor running the exhaust has a tendency, especially when the exhaust -Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller were tipe is partially obstructed, to curl up uests of relatives at Milwaukee Sun- under the car and gather there. EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

International

When U. S. foreign envoys make their rare appearances in congress, it is usually to advise house and senate committees on foreign affairs. But two days before President Roosevelt gave congress his unprecedented defense proposals (see below), two top-ranking U.S. ambassadors walked into secret session not with the foreign affairs committees, but with a committee on military affairs. The ambassadors: Joseph P. Kennedy, home from London, and William C. Bullitt, home from

MESSRS. KENNEDY, BULLITT

Though committee room walls supposedly have no ears, it was learned that Messrs. Kennedy and Bullitt thoroughly frightened their congressional audience with the following opinion on European affairs:

Great Britain has favored "appeasement" of Italy and Germany because neither she nor France have adequate arms. So intense is British appeasement sentiment that London would permit Germany to build an airbase in Canada rather than revert to war. But since Czechoslovakia's "sellout" at Munich last September proved that one appeasement leads to another, France has determined to stop this policy. Therefore France will not concede to Italian territorial demands, knowing that in war Great Britain must come to her aid and that Russia, in turn, must aid the democracies.

Crux of the Kennedy-Bullitt opinion: That further appeasement, as advocated by Prime Minister Chamberlain, will only delay the eventual showdown and make war even more critical when it comes, which will probably be within the next few months. The U.S. will not be drawn into this conflict immediately.

If this was propaganda for President Roosevelt's long-range national defense program, committeemen swallowed it hook, line and sinker. And well they might, because the forecast appeared to be cold-blooded truth when measured in the light of that day's news from abroad. It all looked like war:

As Prime Minister Chamberlain left London's Victoria station for his appeasement visit with Italy's Premier Mussolini, unemployed demonstrators booed him and shouted: "Appease the unemployed, not Mussolini!" Between London and Dover, where he crossed the channel, Mr. Chamberlain might have reflected on the advisability of such a course. Hitler was clamoring for submarine parity with Britain; Italy was fighting the Spanish civil war and velling for concessions from France; both Germany and Italy were propagandizing about British "atrocities" in Palestine.

En route to Rome, the Chamberlain entourage stopped in Paris to (1) show Germany and Italy that France and Britain stand together, and (2) assure France that Mussolini could not induce Chamberlain to bring pressure for French concessions to Italy. After two hours of tea drinking, a spokesman announced Chamberlain would tell Mussolini that France agreed to consider concessions on "secondary" questions. These are (1) the status of 100,000 Italians in Tunisia; (2) control over the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad; (3) administration of the French-controlled Suez canal. mediate between France and Italy, or grant belligerent rights to Spain's troops are fighting the war.

But Chamberlain also knew he before the Anglo-French alliance had suffered a severe blow. At fenses. Last November's Italian-German commission settled a boundary for Czechoslovakia and Hungary, but neither nation liked it. Since January 8 a series of border incidents has kept both nations aflame, each holding the other responsible. Czechoslovakia has offered terms for truce, but Budapest refuses until Prague pays for damages, acknowledges responsibility for attacks and punishes individuals responsible. The outcome of this squabble is unpredictable, but Germany may well step in to help the Czechs since the Reich wants the border city of Munkacs to be retained in Czechoslovakia's Carpatho-Ukraine. The town is important in Berlin's program of fortifying Carpatho-Ukraine in preparation for a German drive into Russian Ukraine. Meanwhile there is war on the Czech-Hungarian fron-

"Britain and the United States are believed to be aware that should they resort to serious economic pressure against Japan, Japan would have sufficient deterination and preparation to resort to retaliatory measures against their mainlands and dependencies."

This war talk came from Japan's Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita in answer to measures Great Britain and the U.S. had already taken to combat growing Japanese domination over the Orient. Because Tokyo has closed China's "open door" in violation of the nine-power treaty, both London and Washington have given China financial support. Mean-

Minister Arita's statement, appearing in Tokyo's Fascist newspaper, Nichi Nichi, is the most warlike gesture yet made against the U. S. What equalized the threat, however, was a similar gesture made against Russia by Lieut. Gen. Rensuke Isogai, Japanese chief of staff in Manchuria. Said he: "We do not want war . . . But the Soviet authorities have shown no sign of cooperation. Instead they are strengthening their military works and reinforcing their armies in Russia and the Far East."

AT HOME

Checking the above news with Bullitt-Kennedy statements, congress was in fine shape to discuss U. S. defense measures. Tennessee's Rep. Andrew J. May of the house military affairs committee popped up to urge military training for 300,000 CCC boys. He also asked four-lane superhighways down Atlantic and Pacific coasts and across the gulf states.

Next day the President sent congress his defense message, well pared down from the multi-billion figures originally bandied about Washington. The total extra, emergency appropriation request: $552,-000,000, half of which should be spent before the next fiscal year is over. Presidential arguments, few of which were needed, pointed out that the U.S. is relatively no better prepared today than in 1917, when it took a year from the war declaration date for American troops to reach a major engagement.

WASHINGTON.-It is always ex- | 000 before it became a real burden pected that the annual message to upon the nation. It is only six bilcongress from the President of the United States will outline his policies. The message is presumed to reflect, in a broad general formula, what the Chief Executive regards as the major problems and what should be done about them. Moreover, the conferences are being held with cotannual message on the state of the Union is a document that usually lowest possible prices for matembraces some political considerations and, frequently, therefore, constitutes the basis for a test of its larly "merchandised." Said Mr. author's leadership either from Wallace: "We want increased conwhat is proposed or because of things which were omitted.

President Roosevelt's recent message meets each of the phases just described. He outlined the general policies: 1. the necessity for armed preparedness in protection of our religion, our liberty and our form of government-democracy; 2. he disclosed that he has no intention of retreating from his New Deal social policies and that to buttress them and accomplish national protection against dictatorship, he proposes to keep on with his policies of spending. He likewise omitted to give one bit of assurance that there is any prospect of a balanced budget or any means by which the business of the country, small as well as large, can look forward to less governmental messing. Thus, there seems little reason to doubt that what Mr. Roosevelt proposed, as well as what he omitted saying, places his current annual message in a position to provide a test of his leadership. There are those among the legislators who do not want larger armed forces; there are those who think an armed America will invite trouble; there are those wanting business recovery here much more than wholesale reform of our national business practices and social relations, and there are those who think there will be no reduction of unemployment until the government itself quits its wild orgy of spending and borrowing-they want a balanced budget.

In the matter of continued spending, Mr. Roosevelt's message must be regarded as having its greatest weakness. There was less justification in his words for the conclusions he reached than in any other phase of the document. Even a substantial number of his own partisans could not swallow his assertions that the spending of some 20 billions of borrowed money was an "investment."

Glasses Need Calls for Definite Fullness Not Detract From Beauty

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

SOME beauty authorities stress eye make-up if you must wear eyeglasses, but I stress hair styling and lip rouge.

In the first place, if your eyes are so weak that constant use of glasses is necessary, the less you tamper with them the better. The simplest care of daily bathing with a reliable lotion, and healing drops prescribed by your occulist, should be the extent of your fussing. Plenty of rest and eye exercise, of course, but no mascara nor eye shadow nor Touch up your brows, yes, and keep them trim. But do not pluck them to a thin line. Many physicians offer the opinion that too frequent plucking of the eyebrows weakens the eyes. So you see?

Concentrate on Hair and Lips

Put on your glasses and sit before your mirror. Comb your hair softly around your face. Change your regular part. Experiment.

In most cases, hair brought down softly over the ears, fluffed a bit to fall out on the cheek, just below the ear shaft of the glasses, is the most

But if you are the sleek type, and comb your hair back from your face, then you must accent your lips to detract from the frames. Full lips of rich color, not too deep, does a lot for you.

Sleek or feminine in hair style, the manner in which you rouge your lips is most important. Try two lip sticks. The lighter color for the upper lip, the deeper tone for the lower lip. Liquid lip rouge painted on with a fine brush and a steady hand, is the most lasting. It takes a little practice to apply it well, but it is worth the effort in the end. Keep your hair glossy, with daily care, and nicely set. Keep your skin clear and your teeth sparkling white; your brows trim and your lip coloring intact and I can vouch that your eyeglasses will be hardly If you feel the desire for some

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

Care of the Hair Not all women can afford the luxury of having their hair done by a professional every week. But with a little practice, you can do a professional job yourself.

Cleanliness of the hair is the first requisite. This means a good shampoo at regular intervals. Then choose a hairdress that you can handle yourself. Stay away from anything elaborate or extreme. That requires a really professional touch.

If you want curls, make them few and substantial. The trick combs that curl and comb at the same time are a big help. For grooming, the maker of one of these combs has a quick drying lacquer that makes an excellent setting fluid. The bottle has an atomizer, permitting you to spray the lacquer where you want it.

This lacquer helps tremendously with the new high hair-do. Spray it on the stragglers at the back of your neck and comb them flat. Your hair will stay in place for a long

White Rats in Demand

Rats of any description may be repulsive to the average person, but there is one breed, the white rat, which has proven invaluable to the numan race. The tiny creatures have been a great aid in help ing find a cure for cancer, bubonic plague and other destroyers of the human race. And to some, it has meant big business. Some breeders carry a stock of 50,000 rats.

How to Curtain a Group of Windows

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I want to tell you how much practi-cal help I have received from both of your books. I have been sewing for years but these books have explained many points that I never understood before. I am now planning new draperies to dress my living room up a bit. One group of three windows is especially difficult as the davenport has to be placed in front of them. Can you give me a suggestion? I think I would like a plain valance without gathers or pleats across the top. How should this be made and hung? I have just made a beige slipcover for the davenport with green pipings and bands .- A. D. W.

I would use plain cream colored glass curtains for all three windows and overdrapes at the ends only. A striped material in tones of tan and green and blue would be nice for the draperies with a narrow fringe edging in green and tan or green and blue. A valance board at the top of the windows is essential when a plain valance is used. This board should be four inches wide and 1/2 inch thick. It is screwed in place with L brackets. Ordinary metal curtain rods are placed just under it for the glass curtains and side drapes. The plain valance should be long enough to fit around the ends of the board and should be about six inches deep finished. It should be stiffened with an interlining of crinoline, and an allowance should be made at the top for a tuck or fold to be tacked to the board as shown. Be sure to save this lesson as it is not in either of the books offered below.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2-Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1 -SEWING, for the Home Decorator, is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Books are 25 cents each. Crazypatch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.
