TO-NIGHT'S GAMES

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS

Kewaskum 29, Rosendale 24
Campbellsport 26, North Fondy 21
Oakfield 30, Lomira 6

To-night, Friday, is the night when Oakfield and Kewaskum will battle for the Tri-County conference leadership in the Kewaskum gymnasium.

Kewaskum and Oakfield are tied in first place with six victories and one defeat each and will put on the feature basketball event in the conference tonight. Kewaskum lost its only game at Oakfield while North Fond du Lac handed Oakfield its only setback.

The Kewaskum-Oakfield game is strictly a toss-up. Kewaskum has a slight advantage only because it is playing on its home floor. Oakfield, last year's champion, will also have to find some way to bottle up Paul Kral, smooth Kewaskum center, who is liable to break out with anywhere from 10 to 20 points per game. Klein-felter is scheduled to officiate at this important battle.

Next week Friday night another important game is on tap. Kewaskum is scheduled to battle Campbellsport at the latter place in what appears like a scrap for first place pending the outcome, of course, of the Oakfield-Kewaskum tussle.

PAUL KRAL LAUDED IN SPORTS WRITER'S COLUMN

Art J. Daley, in his column, "Spotlighting the Sport Situation," appearing daily in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth-Reporter, paid a compliment to Paul Kral, Kewaskum High school's star basketball center, following the North Fond du Lac-Kewaskum game last week Tuesday. Writing about the game and North Fond's new gym, Mr. Daley included a paragraph as follows: "What Fond du Lac couldn't do with a few of those boys from North Fond du Lac or Kewaskum isn't even in the books.... Paul Kral is without a doubt on a par or even better than anything in the Fox River Valley conference.... although the type of ball handling is somewhat inferior to that in the Valley circuit, several of those big Tri-County centers have all the makings of fine players.... What I mean those county boys are big.... North Fond du Lac's squad would probably outweigh the Fond du Lac Senior High school team from 10 to 20 pounds per man and that isn't even mentioning height."

League Leaders Hand Salvation Army Drive Kewaskum Drubbing in Village Nets $90

Playing at Port Washington last Sunday evening, Kewaskum's basketball team took its most decisive beating of the season from the Ozaukee Musics, league leaders in the Land o' Lakes circuit. The score was 34 to 9, and Kewaskum never had a chance after the first quarter.

The team played far below its usual standard on an off night. Kewaskum came close to matching the Musics in the number of shots attempted but there was no match at all in hitting the hoop. Although the Musics played a stellar defensive game and held the visitors to a mere three field goals, they failed to keep Kewaskum from taking dozens and dozens of shots. Because the boys could not score on their shots the affair resulted in a lopsided score. Not only from the floor but also from the free throw line the aim for the basket was poor and the team sunk but three gift shots out of 11 tries. When the ball is as stubborn as it was for Kewaskum a large share of the cause for defeat can be attributed to hard luck.

Kewaskum scored more points in the first quarter than throughout the rest of the game. They tallied five points in the first frame, one point in the second, two in the third and one in the fourth. We cannot remember a time since joining the Lakes league that a Kewaskum team was held to four points in three quarters of a game. While Kewaskum scored five points in the first period Port was held to six and it looked like a ball game until luck went sour and the opponents eased out victory. The Musics led, 16 to 6 at the half, 20 to 8 at the end of the third quarter, and finally 34 to 9.

The winners were paced by Stevens, flashy forward on the fast and tricky Port team, who scored 12 points and took top honors. Strange how Kewaskum scored 54 points against a strong Mayville team two Sundays ago and still lost and then when they need 35, can make but nine. That's the way the game goes.

GRAFTON TEAM HERE SUNDAY; WALDO PLAYS SECOND TEAM

In the feature attraction the second place Grafton team will tackle Kewaskum and in the preliminary affair the strong Waldo five will battle with Kewaskum's undefeated B team. What more could fans ask for in the line of basketball so be sure and attend. Grafton has been the surprise team of the Lakes circuit this season and now rests nearly at the top of the standings Grafton uses ten men on two teams and one is as good as the other, enabling them to set a fast pace. The team nosed out the locals at the former place in their first meeting, 25 to 26. In the preliminary—Waldo has attained an enviable record thus far and the Kewaskum B's are unbeaten. One team is sure to lose its record.

President's Birthday Ball Here a Success Despite Bad Weather

The president's birthday party held in the Kewaskum Opera House Wednesday evening was attended by a good number of people considering the very unfavorable weather conditions. A heavy snow which fell throughout most of the day and night made driving hazardous and kept many from leaving their homes, so that the attendance was a lot smaller than it would have been otherwise. However, nearly 200 people who ventured out enjoyed a splendid evening dancing to the music of Jack Thull's orchestra.

A total of 193 tickets were sold for the affair. Of this number 96 were sold in advance and the remaining 97 were sold at the door. At 25c apiece, $48.25 was realized from the sale of tickets. The expenses for orchestra, posters, tickets and postage amounted to $36.25, leaving proceeds of $12.00, according to Postmaster Frank Hepp, chairman of the local celebration. The proceeds of the dance, which are considered quite satisfactory in view of the inclement weather, have been placed into the hands of Atty. Lloyd H. Lobel, county chairman, to aid in the fight against infantile paralysis and to benefit crippled children. Fifty per cent of the proceeds of the ball here and those throughout Washington county will remain in the county.

Five $100 door prizes were awarded to the lucky ticket holders, who were as follows: Miss Bernadette Kohler of Kewaskum; F. L. Vogelsang, Barton; Mrs. Lester Koon, Kewaskum; Ed. Anderson, Chicago; Norbert Dogs, Kewaskum.

Mr. Hepp wishes to thank the committee assisting him in arranging for the event, those who helped push the sale of tickets, and all who purchased tickets for this worthy cause.

DOROTHY MAJERUS WED TO ROLAND E. COMINS

In a marriage ceremony performed at 2 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 21, in the parsonage of St. Matthews church in Campbellsport by the Rev. A. Biver, Miss Dorothy Majerus of Campbellsport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Majerus, became the bride of Roland E. Comins, also of that village, son of Guy Comins of Aberdeen, Wash. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Enfelt of Campbellsport, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride and her attendant, Mrs. Enfelt, both wore street length gowns of teal blue crepe and matching hats. They had shoulder bouquets of pink and white carnations.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony where dinner was served to 35 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Comins will reside on a farm near Campbellsport.

FIRE DESTROYS IMPLEMENT SHED ON FARM NEAR WAYNE

About 75 chickens, a corn binder, plow and automobile were destroyed in the blaze. The loss is estimated at $1,000, which is partly covered by insurance. The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring.

Weekly News Analysis
Has Britain Ceased Appeasing?
Paris Has Reason to Doubt It
By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Europe

At Rome, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain had received no reassurances but merely Benito Mussolini's threat to end the Spanish war immediately by helping Rebels against Loyalists. That done, Duce would have his hands free to press Mediterranean territorial demands against France.

But within a few days some negative results of the Rome conversations were apparent. Back in London, Mr. Chamberlain paid no attention to a letter from Clement R. Attlee, Parliament's labor leader: "It is obvious that the policy of non-intervention (in Spain) has now become the means of insuring that the Spanish (Loyalist) government shall be unable to provide for its defense against aggression by a foreign power."

LABOR'S CLEMENT ATTLEE
Mr. Chamberlain ignored his letter.

In Paris, where first news of Chamberlain's alleged non-appeasement was greeted by demands for French assistance to Loyalist Spain as a self-defense measure, later news from London brought a cooling off. The whispers: That Chamberlain had secretly agreed with Mussolini to let Rebel Spain win, constituting an additional appeasement at the expense of France.

Meanwhile, despite disastrous losses in northeastern Catalonia, Spain's Loyalists felt their cause was not defeated. Authoritatively reported from Paris was the fact that Loyalists had reached an understanding with the Vatican, aided by a growing Catholic opinion that Rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco may be using the religious issue merely as a cloak for his fundamental Fascist aims.

Pressing their current advantage, Berlin and Rome are hastening diplomatic victories in the east before Britain gets around to calling a new four-power conference for European peace. While Italy's Count Galeazzo Ciano visits in Yugoslavia and Warsaw, Germany is making hay in at least three eastern countries: (1) A $60,000,000 credit agreement has been signed with Turkey for delivery of German manufactured goods; (2) Germany has accredited a minister to Saudi Arabia; (3) Hungary and Germany have tightened their bonds.

Agriculture

When commodity prices drop, U. S. farmers co-operating in the AAA crop control program receive parity payments, designed to maintain farm purchasing power. Under the first AAA parity payments came from processing taxes, later outlawed by the Supreme court. Under the second AAA parity payments merely increased the federal deficit since last winter's congress made no provision for them. This shortcoming was brought to congress' attention in President Roosevelt's recent budget message.

But even the President has failed to suggest means of financing the payments, having merely stipulated that no new taxes shall be levied which increase the consumers' burden. Processing taxes would do this but Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace favors pulling this trick from the bag once more, hoping a liberalized Supreme court will approve the idea. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, whose department must handle the deal, opposes processing taxes.

Since the administration cannot agree on a method of financing current parity payments of $212,000,000, congress is in no mood to take the initiative. It may well be that this decision is responsible for revival of last year's McAdoo-Eicher farm bill, just reintroduced in house and senate respectively by North Dakota's Rep. William Lemke and Sen. Lynn J. Frazier. Its crux: Minimum cost-of-production price levels would be established for domestically consumed farm products, while all surplus products would be dumped on world markets for whatever they would bring. Proceeds, less marketing costs, would be returned to the farmer.

Cost-of-production critics argue that removal of crop restrictions would glut the market, drive prices down and force grain dealers to pay a large margin between the actual market price and the cost-of-production price. This margin, it is maintained, would eventually be assessed against the consumer.

Taxation

Two former U. S. treasury secretaries, Andrew W. Mellon and Ogden L. Mills, condemned the inequity of tax exempt federal, state and local bonds. Since his "soak-the-rich" revenue proposal of 1935, President Roosevelt has fought tax exempt securities and one other unpopular exemption, that on federal, state and local employees' salaries. If that exemption could be abolished the U. S. government figures it would net eventually $300,000,000 annually from government securities, plus $16,000,000 from employees' income taxes.

One day before the President offered this program to congress in a special message, he sent Treasury Undersecretary John W. Hanes to pave the way before a special senate committee. Said Mr. Hanes: "The time for action has come."

The Constitution's Sixteenth amendment gives congress power to "lay and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source derived," therefore the administration thinks statutory enactment rather than constitutional amendment will suffice. Later, after congress has spoken, the courts can decide whether its action is constitutional. Argued Mr. Hanes:

Tax exempt securities now permit many large-income persons to escape income taxes entirely, therefore they are unfair. The $65,000,000 in tax exempt securities now outstanding (of which some $50,000,000 would be taxable) is so formidable that it discourages investment in private enterprises involving risk. Thus industry cannot compete. As for income tax exemptions, the U. S. Supreme court has already set a precedent by ruling that salaries of such quasi-public agencies as the Port of New York authority are subject to federal taxation.

As might be expected, state and local groups jumped into the fight overnight. Argued the Conference

TREASURY'S HANES
"The time for action has come."

of State Defense: Tax yield would not approach the immediate treasury estimate of $70,000,000 a year. Moreover it would work hardship on states and municipalities by increasing financing costs. The statutory procedure would be unconstitutional. Most important, once congress' power to tax income of state and local securities has been established, a situation could arise in which congress would attempt to tax state revenues. Argued the U. S. Conference of Mayors, in a similar vein: Federal and state governments may recoup from income taxes the higher costs to municipalities in interest on their bonds.

Observers thought income tax exemption could be repealed easily, but were less confident about tax security.

People

Left, for the U. S., Brazilian Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha, who conferred with President Roosevelt. The purpose, as explained in a Rio de Janeiro newspaper: "To discuss practical instruments for continental defense as well as national protection of each of the two countries against foreign infiltration."

Riding from Pennsylvania's executive mansion to the inauguration point in a horse-drawn Victoria carriage were three office-holders named Gov. George H. Earle and Gov. Elect Arthur H. James. James who three made two: Governor James retained his state supreme court judgeship until after inauguration, then naming his successor.

Between sessions of the Illinois state legislature, Rockford's Rep. David Hunter Jr. is building a dairy barn from timber felled on his farm.

Public Works

Two of President Roosevelt's pet projects have been the harnessing of tides in Maine's Passamaquoddy bay, and the digging of a ship canal across northern Florida.

"Quoddy" was started several years ago, much of the $7,000,000 original appropriation being spent on preliminaries to the actual job. When congressional opponents argued that Quoddy's power would have no outlet because it could not be transmitted profitably to New England industries, a new appropriation was refused in 1936. Since then the buildings have been used by NYA.

Likewise a start was made on the Florida canal, but last year congress balked on more funds. The arguments against it: That Florida's fruit industry might be damaged by seepage of salt water; that it was unnecessary; that southern Florida would suffer irreparable economic damages.

SENATOR GLASS
"It won't happen again."

This winter President Roosevelt has asked an economy-minded congress to revive both projects and appropriate $100,000,000 to complete them. On Quoddy: "... The time will come when there will be a joint agreement between Canada and the United States for the joint development of the larger sized project which would utilize all tidal power in that bay on both sides of the international date line. ... It is my thought that an appropriation for ... test borings and ... a small experimental plant ... would be justified." On the canal: "A Florida ship canal will be built one of these days. ... It is justified today by commercial and military needs."

While the house rivers and harbors committee under Texas Rep. Joseph J. Manfield prepared to argue the proposal, Virginia's outspoken Sen. Carter Glass spared no words: "In 1936 the late Senator Fletcher of Florida came to me with tears in his eyes, saying his political future would be ruined if Florida didn't get the canal. He asked me to vote for it, and like a ... old fool I did. But it won't happen again."

International

Last summer oppressed China begged the League of Nations to approve sanctions against Japan. This was done, but only by resolution suggesting that league members take whatever action they saw fit. Nothing happened until a non-member, the U. S., began applying pressure against export of arms to Japan. Great Britain followed suit in small measure, but thus far the international boycott has failed.

Showing typical Oriental resignation to fate, China's Dr. Wellington Koo, ambassador to France, has again broached the boycott issue in Geneva. His proposal: The international "co-ordination committee" be named to unify world action against Tokyo. Membership would include both league and non-league nations.

Only result of Dr. Koo's plea has been to focus attention on the league's weakness, also to point out that only Britain, France and Russia now hold that badly battered organization together. The Chinese diplomat knew he could get no Anglo-Franco-Russian support without first winning U. S. support. Hence he pointed out that President Roosevelt's January 4 message to congress had "proffered the co-operation of the American people in support of the cause of democracy and peace." France, Britain and Russia agreed. Not daring to speak, all three turned eyes westward across the Atlantic awaiting Washington's leadership.

Religion

In prosperous years church membership and attendance remains even or shows a very slight increase. During depression membership and attendance will rise through a return to religion. Foremost among U. S. religious statisticians is Rev. Dr. Herman C. Weber, whose report for 1937 has just been released.

Salient facts and figures: Total membership early in 1938 was 64,156,895, church members having increased 960,000 in 1937 (twice as fast as the population). Churches increased by 1,742. A trend to church unity was evident, since 97.3 of the total U. S. church population belongs to the 50 larger bodies. About 160 smaller bodies account for the remaining 2.7 per cent.

Texas' Rep. Lindley Beckwith, youngest member of the Seventy-sixth congress, is only 25 years old. Recalled by Washington historians is a far greater record. Rep. William C. Claiborne of Tennessee was elected and sworn in as a member of the Fifth congress at 22, on March 4, 1797. How he evaded the minimum age requirement of 25 is still a mystery. Back in congress this year is Michigan's Rep. Clarence J. McLeod, who 20 years ago came to congress at 25.

Federal Government So Huge
Few Can Grasp Its Magnitude

Multiplicity of Bureaus and Agencies Demanding Reports of All Kinds Places Tremendous Burden on Business; Many Agencies Covering Same Lines of Business.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Many times in these columns I have written expressions of fear about the size of this thing we call the federal government. It is so huge that few persons grasp the magnitude of the machinery. And it can not be explained satisfactorily. Certainly, one can not say that it is just "so big," and measure it by extended arms. On the other hand, incidents or actions of a unit of the federal government may furnish an indication of the size on the basis of a comparison. Such an incident came in the news recently and, unfortunately, very little attention was paid to it in daily newspapers of the nation.

Here is the basis of comparison, and it tells its own story as to the size of our national governmental machine: As on July 1, 1938, the director of the census estimated there were 130,215,000 persons living within the continental United States.

During the year 1938, citizens and corporations within the United States were compelled by law or regulation or special orders to file with federal government agencies a total of 135,000,000 reports, information forms, questionnaires, statistical facts and other required statements.

That total is the official calculation by Chairman Stuart A. Rice, of the central statistical board, who has completed a survey of all federal agencies upon orders of President Roosevelt. The President wanted to know whether there was a real basis for the thousands of complaints and editorial criticisms about the tremendous burden that has been placed upon every kind of business, including individuals, by their government. The Rice conclusions, however, have demonstrated in an understanding way just what an octopus our national government has become, and it may be—indeed, it is likely—that Mr. Rice has performed a chore here which will mark the beginning of the end of federal government expansion. His findings ought to have effect, in an event.

Then Began an Expansion
Of the Federal Government

Shortly after the World war ended the federal government got back to normal in the matter of size and the functions it was performing, there was a survey of all federal agencies upon orders of President Roosevelt. The President wanted to know whether there was a real basis for the thousands of complaints and editorial criticisms about the tremendous burden that has been placed upon every kind of business, including individuals, by their government. The Rice conclusions, however, have demonstrated in an understanding way just what an octopus our national government has become, and it may be—indeed, it is likely—that Mr. Rice has performed a chore here which will mark the beginning of the end of federal government expansion. His findings ought to have effect, in an event.

Like the government machine itself, I can not help puzzling as to what 135,000,000 reports mean. Of course, it can be said that it is one report for every man, woman and child in the nation, but it is not a true perspective. There are, of course, many millions of persons who make no reports to the government in Washington. That means others must make many reports.

Why So Many Different Agencies Doing Same Work? From the standpoint of effective administration—assuming that many of the government activities are proper—why is it necessary for the government to have 11 different agencies interested in housing? Why should the departments of commerce, labor, and agriculture, as another example, be asking the same business man to make reports to each one on the same subject? Why should there be a federal deposit insurance company, a board of governors of the federal reserve system and a comptroller of the currency all concerned with one industry—banking? Why should each of these agencies have examiners or investigators, doing very much the same thing, making investigations and examinations and reports to their respective agencies? And I forget this one: the securities and exchange commission also horns into bank management every now and then!

Aside from these types, there is the ever-present taxing authority. Now, there must be taxes and they must be collected and it must be admitted that not all taxpayers are honest. But hundreds of tax investigators are going around and around and undoubtedly they get their feet tangled up with other investigators and examiners. One wonders where the end is.

Change Rules Regarding Filing on Gas, Oil Leases WASHINGTON.—Secretary Ickes has announced a change of interior department rules by which the holder of a gas or oil prospecting lease may file the required $1,000 compliance bond without actually residing within the state in which he has the property.

Requirement for such a bond to guarantee compliance with lease provisions is included in interior departmental regulations. The new regulation, officials said, would benefit holders of several thousand oil and gas prospecting leases now seeking to exchange these permits for five-year leases on public lands situated in the West.

In a second order Ickes directed the general land office to withhold adverse action for 60 days on any application to exchange a permit for a lease in cases where no bond has been filed.

and the individuals or corporations required to meet government demands? My guess is that at least a third of our present government structure is of no value; that at least that portion could be eliminated and everyone would be happier, and that if a large chunk of these functions were forgotten, living wouldn't be so complicated and certainly not so costly. It must be remembered that every time cost of government is increased, there is more than the outlay for government expense involved. Every time a government agency gets slimy fins into business, just then does there arise an added cost of living.

It is not hearsay with me when I say that high pressure groups force additional government expense upon the nation. I have watched these groups immediately to look for ways to keep their jobs and the agency establishes a "liaison" with congress in order that congress can be "informed."

There are 20 or 30 boards and bureaus and commissions in the government today that were created for "temporary" purposes, but which continue to convince members of congress that unless the agency is continued thousands of persons will suffer—maybe die.

Too Much Burden Placed
On Every Kind of Business

Surely, Mr. Rice has corroborated the contention that government is placing too much of a burden on every kind of business by demanding and obtaining all of these reports—daily, weekly, monthly, annually. Of my knowledge, I can point to a hundred small businesses that have had to hire extra accountants and other experts to do nothing but make out reports to the federal government—and answer correspondence from some squirt here in Washington who tells them they have not filled in the proper items on line 87, etc. It has happened to me, personally, more than once, and that is the way my office is myself and my secretary.

I imagine that farmers got a taste of this business of reporting to Washington in connection with the agricultural adjustment program. In wandering around the department of agriculture I have seen hundreds of persons checking and rechecking farm contracts, reports of agents and inspectors, county committees, etc. Those farmers who did not encounter demands for statements about this, that or the other still have something to which they will get such demands sooner or later.

Like the government machine itself, I can not help puzzling as to what 135,000,000 reports mean. Of course, it can be said that it is one report for every man, woman and child in the nation, but it is not a true perspective. There are, of course, many millions of persons who make no reports to the government in Washington. That means others must make many reports.

Why So Many Different Agencies Doing Same Work? From the standpoint of effective administration—assuming that many of the government activities are proper—why is it necessary for the government to have 11 different agencies interested in housing? Why should the departments of commerce, labor, and agriculture, as another example, be asking the same business man to make reports to each one on the same subject? Why should there be a federal deposit insurance company, a board of governors of the federal reserve system and a comptroller of the currency all concerned with one industry—banking? Why should each of these agencies have examiners or investigators, doing very much the same thing, making investigations and examinations and reports to their respective agencies? And I forget this one: the securities and exchange commission also horns into bank management every now and then!

Aside from these types, there is the ever-present taxing authority. Now, there must be taxes and they must be collected and it must be admitted that not all taxpayers are honest. But hundreds of tax investigators are going around and around and undoubtedly they get their feet tangled up with other investigators and examiners. One wonders where the end is.

All Around WISCONSIN

Favors Licensed Games—A resolution adopted by the Oconto county board asks the legislature to legalize slot machines and license operators. No Relief for Lazy—Able bodied relief clients who refuse to accept jobs offered them are to be removed from relief rolls at Stevens Point, the city council welfare committee has decided.

1,431,300 Saw State Parks—A total of 398,600 automobiles carrying 1,431,300 persons visited the 15 state parks during 1938. Devil's Lake Park, near Baraboo, was the most popular, with 500,000 visitors.

Hotel Up for Auction—The Hotel Geneva, a Lake Geneva summer resort designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and erected at a cost of $100,000 in 1912, is to be sold at public auction Feb. 27 to satisfy a judgment of $9,500.

Accused of Shortage—A warrant for the arrest of Joseph G. Lazansky, former county clerk of Kewaunee county, charges him with a shortage of $2,300 in his accounts. Lazansky, charged for 24 years, was defeated for re-election last fall.

Sales Tax Unpopular—Hostile crowds attending Milwaukee city council hearings on a proposed sales tax of 2 per cent to replace real estate taxes caused members of the council committee to vote unanimously for indefinite postponement.

Many Students Earn Way—A survey made at Madison shows that 3,201 students, or nearly one-third of those attending the University of Wisconsin, receive no money from home and are earning their way through college. Another third work to earn at least half of their expenses.

Ask New Dairy Building—Dean C. L. Christensen of the state college of agriculture and members of his staff have appealed to the University of Wisconsin board of regents for a new $650,000 dairy industry building. The 50-year-old building now used was described as "a disgrace to any state."

Milk Prices Slump—Wisconsin milk prices during December are usually high compared with the rest of the year, but last December the average amount received by farmers was only $1.29 per hundred pounds, or 1 cent more than the 1938 average. In December, 1937, the price averaged $1.78 and the grand average for 1937 was $1.59.

Justice Moves Fast—Within 40 hours after Ernest Mahr, 24, of Milwaukee, killed Ruth Scott, a 16-year-old high school girl, with a hatchet, the confessed slayer was checked in at Waupun prison to serve a life sentence. Mahr, an acquaintance of the Scott family, entered their home at night for the purpose of robbery and killed the girl when she awakened.

Propose $60 Pension—Three Democrats and a Republican are sponsors of a bill introduced in the state senate to pay maximum old age pensions of $60 a month to all persons over 60 years old and to raise necessary revenue through a 2 per cent state tax on all gross incomes over $5,000 a year. It is estimated that the tax would raise $52,000,000 a year for pension purposes.

Would Bar Fourth Term—A joint resolution introduced in the legislature by Senator Kenneth White of River Falls proposes a constitutional amendment to prohibit any governor of Wisconsin from serving more than three terms. To become effective, the resolution would have to pass both houses of the legislature this year and in 1941 and then receive approval of voters in a referendum.

Rowlands Ousted—E. Merwyn Rowlands, director of the fair trade practice department, his deputy director, W. A. Stolte, and Dr. J. U. Luetscher, supervisor of oil inspectors were dismissed Jan. 20 by Gov. Heil. Rowlands, a former state senator, was appointed by Gov. La Follette in October, 1937. The governor also announced that the trade practice and oil inspection departments were to be under the direction of Lawrence C. White, a former trade practice commissioner and who served as executive secretary for the late Gov. Emanuel L. Phillip.

That appears as the start of a "house-cleaning" in the beverage tax division was the dismissal by State Treasurer Smith of an enforcement officer and an inspector. Both of these men had passed civil service examination but had served less than the probation period of six months.

Farmers Draft Labor Bill—A substitute for the present state labor relations law, drafted by directors of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture at a meeting in Madison, would abolish the state labor board and put all labor relations matters in the hands of the state industrial commission. The bill would give the industrial commission authority to conduct hearings and present findings to the circuit court, which would confirm, modify or set aside the orders of the commission. Union officials would be required to make annual audits of union finances, sit-down strikes would be made unlawful and employees would be required to give a 10-day notice and waiting period before striking in cases where the strike would cause the destruction or deterioration of farm or dairy property. Bitter opposition to the measure is expected from labor union officials.

Groom Henry for '40—State coalitionists meeting at Madison cheered the appearance of Robert K. Henry, former Democratic state treasurer, and indicated that they are grooming him to oppose U. S. Senator Robert M. La Follette in 1940.

Big Reserve Fund—The Wisconsin Telephone company has reported to Dane county circuit court that it now has a fund of $2,550,346 accumulated to repay subscribers in the event that rate reductions ordered by the public service commission are upheld by the state supreme court.

Sun Down, Accidents Up
When the sun goes down, traffic accidents go up. More than 60 per cent of all fatal traffic accidents occur at night, the National Safety Council reports. Some about a third of the driving is done at night, it estimates, the number of traffic deaths per mile is about three times as great at night as during the daytime. In the past seven years, night accidents have increased 60 per cent in rural districts, the reports say, and only 17 per cent in cities. Adequate lighting and drainage highways tend to reduce the glare and accidents, the committee said. Some states are experimenting with new reflector buttons placed along the side of the road to show the alignment of the highway on curves, hills and other hazardous places.

Wait, Mother—
Ask Your Doctor First
Never give your children unwise "Bargain" remedies to take less you ask your doctor.
A mother may save a few pennies giving her children unknown preparations. But a child's life is precious beyond pennies. So—ask your doctor before you give any medicine you don't know all about.
And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, always ask your doctor for Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.
Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation—merely gently for youngsters.
Many children like Phillips' Milk of Magnesia because it is so pleasant flavored tablets that give the equivalent of one teaspoonful of liquid Phillips' "25¢ for a big bottle" form—easy to swallow.
A bottle of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia costs less than 5¢. So mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Here's good advice for a woman desiring change (usually from 38 to 45). She should lose her weight, lose her wrinkles, and get a new look. She should get a good general system treatment especially for women. It helps restore up physical resistance, combats depression, restores vitality, and restores the system. WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Mushing along with Jim Titus, an old desert rat about twenty miles southeast of Tonopah, many years ago, this Case-Hardened Diplomat, Ticket on Key Pittman...

In Nome, Alaska, Mr. Pittman was a charter member of the Oratory Men's club, organized at Tex Rickard's bar. Years later, Ole Elliott, Tex Rickard's partner, reorganized the club in Tex's northern saloon in Goldfield. I believe Mr. Pittman's affiliations were with the Montezuma club, down the street, but he was a highly esteemed alumnus of the Alaska chapter and he found enthusiastic "sourdough" backing in his financial and political enterprises. Since 1913, Nevada has been sending him regularly to the senate.

He has been steadily against Japan—that is, against strong-arm Japanese trade and military aggression—and quite as fervently for silver. Well up in the headlines today is the conjecture that the President's new trade and credit bill will move first in the direction of Japan.

Born in Mississippi, educated in Tennessee, practicing law in Seattle, Mr. Pittman landed in Dawson, Alaska, with a Canadian dime in his pocket. He manned a unilateral bucksaw for a few months before he was appointed district attorney. Jack London and Rex Beach found in him a rich pay streak of copy.

THE son of a Buffalo dock worker, one of nine children, who had seen labor wars in his youth and through his lifetime, has sought ways to end them, was influential in bringing about the New York taxicab strike. He is the Rev. Father John Peter Boland, chairman of the unique New York State Labor Relations board since June, 1937. During his incumbency, New York has attracted the attention of the nation in its industrial mediation.

WHEN the young German immigrant, Max J. Kramer, landed in New York and slept on a park bench, he had no "Don't Disturb" sign. Hence a policeman awakened him by whacking his feet with a nightstick. It was really opportunity knocking. The policeman, who happened to speak German, steered him into a carpenter's job, and, before long, he was buying and building hotels with the facility of a child handling building blocks. That was the only time he ever slept out.

Last May, his wife, Maria Kramer, bought the 30-story Hotel Lincoln for $7,000,000 cash, tooling it over into the black in less than six months. She is a linguist, has made a career as a fashion expert and interior decorator. Mr. Kramer, who had $3.50 when he landed, built more than 500 tenements, and, in 1925, had more than $10,000,000 worth of buildings under construction.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"River of Death" HELLO EVERYBODY: Here's a yarn of two men who followed a dog—almost to their doom. One of these men was Fred Rowan of Pelham, N. Y. The other was his friend and hunting companion, Bat.

Fred was working down in Costa Rica in 1922, as overseer of a banana farm. Bat was another young American who also worked on the plantation. On New Year's morning, the pair of them started out on a hunting trip, taking along Bat's dog. And that mutt led them into the worst spot either of them had ever been in in their lives.

The dog, Fred says, was a brainless animal, untrained and more trouble than he was worth on a hunting trip. They had crossed a bridge over a river, struck into the tropical jungle along a well known trail and had been hunting for an hour when the dog ran off into the underbrush and, a few moments later, set up a terrific yelping.

Bat yelled: "Come on—the pigs have him!" And the two men were off the trail, crashing through matted brush to save the dog from the wild pigs of the region which would tear him to pieces in no time. They plunged into low, swampy land and found the dog. To Fred's disgust there were no pigs. The cause of all the commotion was a little moth-eaten swamp squirrel.

Rain Drives Them Toward Higher Ground. At that moment it started raining, as only it can rain in the tropics. Hastily the two men started back in what they thought was the direction of higher ground. "But," says Fred, "we couldn't see more than 30 feet ahead through the dense vegetation, and soon we were hopelessly muddled. All day long we tried this direction and that, but to no avail.

He covered the crossing with a big automatic rifle.

Stumbling over vines and roots, we floundered helplessly in that tropic swamp. Late in the afternoon we came out on a bit of solid ground beside the river. We tried to head upstream, but ran into another swamp. We made our way back to the high ground and all night we huddled there, cold and wet, with the rain dinning in our ears. Dawn found us wretched with hunger and thirst, for with all the water around us, none of it was safe to drink. Across the river we could see waving banana leaves. Over there would be trails, and a trolley line leading to the railroad. If we could only get across.

But to get across that river meant swimming—and the river was full of alligators. On the other hand, it would be almost as bad to go back into the jungle. In front of Fred's eyes was a picture of a native he had found a month before. He had been lost for 13 days, and when Fred found him he had gone into his last sleep—a shrunken body covered with torn and festered skin. Even alligators would be better than that.

It was Bat who decided Fred. Bat was just over an attack of fever, and he was the weaker of the two. "Stay here and rot if you want to," he croaked. "I'm going across the river." Fred felt the same way about it. He told Bat to go ahead—that he'd stay on the bank with a rifle and "cover" his crossing with his big automatic rifle. Carrying the lighter rifle—a .22—Bat called his dog and plunged into the water. He made steady progress, and no alligators showed their noses above the surface of the stream. But Fred was relieved when at last he climbed up on the other bank.

"Bat motioned to me to come along," says Fred, "and with a sick feeling I made a few simple preparations. My rifle was much too heavy and awkward to hold, so I unlaced my belt half way, threaded it through the trigger guard and refastened it around my waist. This permitted the barrel to swing between my legs and gave me freedom to kick. As I entered the water it occurred to me that Bat was covering my approach with a .22 full of water. A .22 wouldn't even dent an alligator's tough hide. But by then I was out in the current and swimming."

Fred swam steadily. He was making it. And then, when he was a scant 15 feet from shore, something struck him a terrific blow in the small of the back. At that moment, Fred had visions of a big, scaly snout poking at him before making the final grab. An alligator! Panic seized him. He threw up his hands and screamed "Oh my God!" And as he did so he got a glimpse of Bat's face above him—and horror was written all over it.

He Crawled Ashore and Fell Face Down. "I thrashed madly in the water," he says, "and as I did so I felt bottom with my knees. I crawled ashore and flopped face down on the ground, gagging and retching with nausea. I lay there for a while, and then Bat helped me to my feet and steadied me while I took the rifle off my belt."

As they started to walk away, neither man spoke. Nothing was said about Fred's terrifying experience. Darkness had fallen again, when, after much stumbling they came to the trolley line that led to the railroad. Just before midnight they came in sight of the twinkling lights of their plantation camp. They took some whisky and a stiff dose of quinine apiece—and went to bed.

The next morning Fred got up and began taking stock—and got the surprise of his life. When he came to examine his rifle he found that the barrel was split from the muzzle almost up to the stock. Then he asked Bat a few questions—they hadn't spoken of that swim across the river before—and found out all about that "alligator" that had given him such a scare the evening before.

That alligator just didn't exist. It was the gun that had given him that poke. "The motion of swimming," Fred says, "had pushed the catch off 'safety' and the drag against the belt had pulled the trigger. The cartridge, exploding under water, created a terrific recoil which drove the stock of the gun into the small of my back. Bat had seen what took place, and thought from my cries that I had been shot. Hence the expression of horror on his face. And I, of course, thought it was because something had attacked me. My mind had been too dazed to realize the folly of swimming with a loaded gun."

And another folly Fred says he'll never repeat is going to the rescue of a half-witted dog.

Red Herring Across Trail "Phrase Origins," by Alfred Holt says: "When one politician accuses another of attempting to drag a red herring across the trail, he is referring to the traditional use of a particularly strong-smelling smoked fish to throw the dogs off the scent. Red herring were sometimes used in the training of hounds. The figurative use implies evading the issue, dragging in something irrelevant, especially a personal insult fired at the other man to cover your retreat from a bad hole."

Bittersweet in Dune Country Bittersweet grows in various localities, one of its favored habitats being the dune country along the shore of lower Lake Michigan. In some places among the white sand hills the shrub is quite abundant. Sometimes it climbs a small tree, its own foliage all but obliterating from sight the leaves, twigs and branches of the tree. In this respect bittersweet is not unlike the wild grape. Other times it is supported by lower forms such as young sand cherry shrubs.

Marlins, Swordfish Confused Close kin to the swordfish and sailfish is the marlin. In fact, marlins and swordfish are often confused. The latter have neither scales nor big fins under their bodies, while the marlin has both. In the United States marlins are also called "spearfish" and "quillfish."

FARM AND HOME LINES

With only short hours of sunshine these days, scientists say we'll have to get our vitamin D through our food. Vitamin D is important because it plays a part in the development of good bones and teeth, and in the prevention of rickets in children. Only a few foods have this vitamin in important quantities—and these are fish liver oils and egg yolk. Other good sources, too, are butter, salmon, and sardines.

Cream should not be used for whipping until it has aged for some time depending upon the temperature and the fat content of the cream, authorities report. Usually 24 hours at ordinary ice box temperatures is sufficient and if the cream must be used after aging time the temperature must be kept as close to 0 degrees C. as possible.

The population center of the United States is now said to be a spot two and nine-tenths miles northeast of Linton, Green county, Indiana. As many people live north of this spot as live south of it, and as many to the east of it as to the west.

BREEDERS' SCHOOL FEBRUARY 7 AT ACKERVILLE

The second meeting of the Washington County Dairy Breeders' school will be held at Schuck's hall, Ackerville, on Tuesday, February 7. The meeting will be held in the afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The program is as follows:

A. C. Thomson—"Selecting Breeding Stock." (Practical uses of type, production records, pedigrees and proved sire and brood cow information in selecting breeding animals, particularly Jerseys).

G. E. Dickerson—"Successful Breeding Systems." (How and when inbreeding and linebreeding can be used in developing lines which more uniformly transmit desirable dairy characteristics).

PURE MILK, THE BEST FOOD

(By Chris L. Christensen, dean, College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin.)

"To the best of our knowledge there is available no single source of food materials containing so many valuable dietary constituents in such high concentration as milk."

That is the opinion of two University of Wisconsin scientists, Harry Steenbock and E. B. Hart, who have made extensive studies of milk as a food.

But in spite of the recognized importance of milk in the diet, we are a long way from the saturation point when it comes to the use of dairy products by the average person in this country. For according to federal statistics the average yearly consumption of butter per person in the United States is only 18 pounds, or about 1-21 of a pound a day. In contrast, the average of Australia is 29 pounds a year, of Canada 20 pounds, and of New Zealand 36 pounds.

When it comes to cheese our showing is even worse for we each annually use on the average but four to five pounds. At the same time the British consume 9 pounds, the Germans 9.5 pounds, the Danes 13.2 pounds, the French and Dutch 13.5 pounds each and the Swiss 23 pounds.

While statistics are not at this time readily available giving a comparative record of milk drinking, I do know that our consumption of milk falls far short of the standards recommended by the nation's greatest nutrition authorities. For it is generally known that scientists invariably urge at least a quart a day for every child and suggest a pint a day for adults.

Because of their food value, dairy products should be given a very important place on the consumer's table and a fair share of the consumer's food dollar should be spent for milk and milk products.

Now, what can we do to bring about an enlarged consumption of dairy products among the 122 million people of the United States?

First, we must continue to seize every opportunity to acquaint consumers with the high nutritional value of quality milk and quality milk products.

Second, we must continue to adopt those improved methods in producing, assembling, processing, and merchandising dairy products that will insure to the consumer a regular supply of uniformly high quality dairy products.

AGRICULTURAL LIME

Washington county is producing a good quality of agricultural lime in the Watterlin quarry in Germantown township. The lime is being produced with W. P. A. labor which was assigned to the project this week. All farmers desiring lime for stable or field use should send in their orders to the county agent's office.

GROW GOOD BARLEY

Now is the time to plan and prepare for a better barley crop for 1939. Careful attention given to seed selection and treatment, preparation of the soil, time and rate of seeding will result in more and better barley to fill the feed bin or to sell as a cash crop.

Pedigree No. 38 and Oederbrucker are two varieties highly recommended for southeastern Wisconsin. Be sure your seed barley is of one of these two varieties. A mixture of non-malting varieties and other grains are discounted on the malting barley market.

Considerable barley was damaged last summer with blight or wet weather and bin heating. All of these injuries lower the germination. Test a sample of your barley for degree of germination warns George Briggs, agronomist of the College of Agriculture. Be sure it gives a good strong germination.

Smut was bad in barley last summer. All seed stock should be treated with mercury dust which is sold under the name of Ceresan. The preparation of barley for seed treatment should include a good fanning to remove foreign material and light seeds. Any one desiring plans for the gravity type grain treater may obtain them by contacting the county agent's office.

SOIL CONSERVATION

The Washington County Agricultural Conservation association is rapidly completing its work on the 1938 farm program. At the present time practically all summaries of performances for farms participating in the program have been forwarded to the state office for payment completion. During the forepart of this week conservation payments on about six hundred farms were made. It is expected that all farms having money coming to them under the program will receive it before March 1.

Considerable work on the 1939 program has already been done. The new allotments for all farms in the county will have been completed and mailed to farmers before February 5. Thus farmers will know well in advance the acreages of the various crops they may plant. This should make possible an increased participation in the farm program for 1939.

EDITORIAL

A FINE RECORD
Despite a sudden upswing in the traffic fatality curve in December, the past year will go down in safety history as the most successful year since 1927. State Highway commission figures indicate that the traffic death count was lowered every month from the end of November, 1937, to the beginning of December, 1938, over the corresponding month of the preceding year.

Automobile accidents during the last Christmas-New Year season broke a 12-month record of saving lives. December of 1937 saw 63 deaths for the entire month, while that number was passed within 25 days in December of 1938.

Wisconsin's march against traffic killings almost was halted during July, when 54 lives were lost, compared to 66 the same month in 1937. Greatest strides were made in October, when the toll of 109 deaths in 1937 was reduced to 61 in 1938. Although the month of December dealt a blow to highway safety, the crusade against traffic accidents will go on. The year-around record of 1938 will inspire county safety councils, safety workers, civic organizations, teachers, schoolboy patrols, law enforcement officials, drivers and pedestrians to do everything possible in making Wisconsin's streets and highways safer than ever in 1939.

Rule for safe driving: Always expect the worst. If there's a tree beside the road ahead, figure a car may come from behind it. If there's a house near by, a child may run across the road there. If there's a parked car, count on its cutting suddenly onto the pavement.

—Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Heberer and daughter Malinda are spending today, Friday in Milwaukee.

—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Glander of Beechwood visited with Rev. and Mrs. Richard M. A. Gadow on Tuesday afternoon.

—Next Thursday, Feb. 2, is Groundhog day. Tradition says that the groundhog emerges from winter hibernation on Feb. 2, and that were in for six more weeks of cold weather if he sees his shadow.

STATE'S TRAFFIC SAFETY RECORD BEST SINCE 1927

Wisconsin's record for traffic safety in 1938 was the best registered in any year since 1927, the state highway commission reported to the Washington County Safety council.

State records show 667 fatalities in 1938 traffic accidents, contrasted with 879 deaths in 1937 wrecks. This represents a reduction of 24 per cent, or a "saving" of 212 lives. Records of the state highway commission show 13 fatalities in Washington county for 1938, and 14 deaths in 1937.

While state safety workers are pleased with Wisconsin's excellent record in saving lives during 1938, the improvement means nothing to the 667 persons whose lives were snuffed out. For does the reduction in fatalities mean anything to the thousands of persons who mourn the loss of loved ones in 1938 traffic fatalities.

But for some human failure, most of the 1938 traffic victims would be alive today, the state highway commission points out. Few of the fatal accidents were caused by mechanical failures or defective highways.

Wisconsin had 9,719 serious accidents reported to the state highway commission during 1938, with 8,109 persons being injured. Washington county reported 120 serious accidents with 112 injuries, while for 1937, this county listed 113 accidents and 79 injuries.

Picture Parade

Seldom has Twentieth Century sportdom seen a figure so sensational and consistently spectacular as Joe Louis, heavyweight champion who won his title on June 22, 1937, by knocking out James J. Braddock in the seventh round of a scheduled 15 round bout. Joe Louis is again in the news because he risks his title again January 27. Negro Louis (above left) will fight John Henry Lewis (above right), light heavyweight titleholder and also a Negro, a boxer whose success has been almost as sensational as that of the "brown bomber." In 1937 he rose like lightning, winning 11 out of 12 bouts. But Joe Louis has fought about 39 times since July 4, 1934, and has lost only once. That was when Max Schmeling, the German, knocked him out in the 12th round, upsetting all the dope buckets and making fans a bit dubious about his "invincibility."

Last June 22, Louis met Schmeling again. Earlier, Former Champion Jim Braddock and Jack Dempsey visited him at camp. Said Braddock: "I believe he will turn the trick in five rounds." Joe fooled him. After 2:04 minutes, the shortest championship bout on record, Announcer Harry Balmough raised the victor's hand. Joe floored Max three times in the first round, only to have Schmeling's seconds throw in the towel to mercifully end the barrage.

A sensible, calm-headed fighter, Joe Louis is retiring in private life. Much of his success he attributes to his wife, Marva Trotter Louis, shown here eating breakfast with him the morning after he trounced Max Schmeling.

Telling Sex in Geese
Ganders are usually bigger and coarser than geese, particularly in the head and neck. Also, their voices are harsher. When exposed to apparent danger, geese will retreat with heads low, while ganders advance with necks outstretched.

Name Colin of Greek Origin
The name Colin has been so appropriated by the Scotch that it is a surprise to find that the name is not of Celtic origin but Greek. It means "victory." The reason is that Colin is really a short form of Nicholas, meaning "people's victory."

Flood control of the Mississippi was begun by French settlers more than 50 years before the American Revolution.

A Little Bit Humorous

CAUSE ENOUGH

"Archimedes," read the schoolboy, aloud, "leaped from his bath shouting, 'Eureka! Eureka!'"
"One moment," said the teacher. "What is the meaning of 'Eureka?'"
"Eureka" means 'I have found it,'" said the boy.
"Very well. What had Archimedes found?" questioned the teacher. The boy hesitated, then ventured hopefully, "The soap, sir"—Atlanta Constitution.

JUST A SUGGESTION

Friends at the club were complimenting the judge on his having been in a stooping posture at the time a missile whizzed over his head during an election riot.

Not Guilty
The inspector was examining the class.
"Who drove the Israelites out of Egypt? You," he said, pointing to a boy in the corner.
"Twasn't me, sir," replied the boy. "I only came back from the country last week."

"You admit, then," said the magistrate, "that you stole the pig?"
"Yes, your worship," replied the defendant.

"Well, there has been a lot of pig-stealing lately, and I am going to make an example of you, or none of us will be safe."

Star Dust

- ★ Pick of the New Crop
 - ★ Tone Takes Up N. Y.
 - ★ Kerrigan Still Leaving
- By Virginia Vale

IF YOU don't believe that "Motion pictures are your best entertainment," but that only really good pictures can come under that heading, you'll be interested (I think) in knowing which ones an expert has selected as the best of the new crop.

The expert is W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Radio City Music Hall, in New York. Mr. Van Schmus is on a spot, always. Visitors to New York, as well as natives, troop to his theater. He can't let them go away saying that the show was good but why in the world did he select that picture to go with it!

Ushering in the new year with "Topper Takes a Trip," co-starring Constance Bennett and Roland Young, he picked "There's That Woman Again" (Melynn Douglas and Virginia Bruce), to follow it. Then "Trade Winds," (Frederic March and Joan Bennett), "The Great man Votes," (John Barrymore, Virginia Weidler), "Gunga Din," (Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks Jr.), "Made for Each Other," (co-starring Carole Lombard and James Stewart), "Love Affair," (with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer), and "Stage Coach" (with Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Andy Devine, John Carradine, and Louise Platt).

Each film is scheduled for a week's run. The theater accommodates an audience of more than 6,000 persons; the picture is shown five times a day. It has to be good, you see!

Franchot Tone bobs up all over New York these days; leaving Hollywood certainly didn't mean leaving the limelight. He is appearing on the stage in a new play, doing a bit of radio work, and recently shared honors with Abe Lyman and Dick Foran as a celebrity at the first of the International Casino's "Sunday Night Informals," dedicated to celebrities.

When J. M. Kerrigan arrived in Hollywood eight years ago he said that he'd stay long enough to play the film role he'd been engaged for and then he'd go back to Ireland. He was then one of the Abbey players. He's still in Hollywood, (a role in "The Great Man Votes" was the most recent bait), and still thinks that, as soon as he can get away, he'll go back to Ireland.

Edward Small is in favor of giving new people a chance in his pictures. It was he who brought Robert Donat to this country to appear in "The Count of Monte Cristo," and recently he made Louis Hayward a star in "The Duke of West Point." In his current production, "King of the Turf," starring Adolphe Menjou, it's 15-year-old Roger Daniel who gets the big break. With radio and stage tempting movie stars to lose interest in motion picture-making, it's a wise producer who can spot talent and cultivate it—and put it under contract!

By the way, in "The Duke of West Point" you'll see some old-timers—Mary MacLaren, William Bakewell and Kenneth Harlan.

All of the music that Frank R. White, organist on Dr. William L. Stidger's "Getting the Most Out of Life" program, writes for the Stidger hymns must stand up under Mrs. White's "24 hour test."

When he writes a new hymn tune Mrs. White plays it twice on the organ. Then if she's able to play it from memory the next day White feels sure that the public will remember the tune without any effort. But does he make allowances for the fact that Mrs. White probably has an unusual memory?

ODDS AND ENDS—Joan Fontaine can claim to be one girl in a thousand; the cast of "Gunga Din" numbers about 1,000, and she's the lone female in it. . . . Gabriel Heatter has a private telephone number, but this host of "We, the People" gives it to so many friends that it might as well be in the phone book. . . . Lum and Abner frequently telephone former neighbors in Arkansas in order to keep the right vocal inflections for their radio work. . . . Richard Himber's commitments for this year include three different programs on the three different networks for three different sponsors.

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes the Food Values of Nuts; Discusses Their Place in the Menu

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE is one food that can lay claim to being almost universal. It is eaten with relish by people in almost every quarter of the globe.

Nuts, of course, are seeds. But unlike most other seeds used for food by man, they grow in a hard shell that does not open naturally when ripe.

Investigators, however, determined as a result of careful experiments, that in adults the calcium of almonds was fairly well utilized by the body.

Nuts are not regarded as a significant source of any vitamin except B, though some kinds have also been found to contain vitamin A.

"I don't care about that. I want to be sure myself."

"So you shall be," said I, and made my way to the house.

Three minutes later I faced my lady again.

"There are the papers," I said. "One is your father's statement, which he had written and signed. The other is mine, which sets out what he told me before he died. Both of these are copies. The originals lie at my bank."

She read them through twice over. Then she folded the sheets and lifted her head.

"My God," she cried. "My God, how he must have suffered. Sent down into hell by the man he was trying to save. Sent down for good—for ever. Sentenced to death—for life... And what of the man who did it?"

"What of that double-traitor that saved his body by losing his brother's soul?"

CHAPTER IV There is at Raven a window, 12 feet from the farm's front door. Masked by one of its curtains, I watched a car approach and sweep to the foot of the steps.

In the car were four men. Two were strangers to me, one seemed faintly familiar, and Percy Virgil himself had the driving wheel.

I shot a glance at Herrick and wondered what was to come. Virgil switched off his engine and wiped his sinister face. Then he followed his fellows out of the car.

I heard the front door open before they had reached the steps. Then—"Good evening, Brenda," said Virgil. "I'm afraid I've some serious news. My cousin's been taken—kidnaped."

"The Lady Elizabeth? Kidnaped?"

shan't if we can help it, but Percy, er, knows no law."

She smiled and nodded. "All right."

And then we were back in our room and had shut the door. Quite apart from the fact that I could speak no German, Herrick was plainly the man to play our difficult hand.

"We've no time to discuss," he said, "the line we should take. But I think we must get dear Percy to help us out. This means giving something away, but charity sometimes comes off."

"You mean?" said I. "I'm not quite sure," said Herrick. "I have an idea, but it's still in a state of flux. Should it take shape, I have a horrid feeling that Percy is going to perspire. And now don't talk for a moment. If—"

Here Brenda flew in with her summons, fairly aglow with excitement and ready for any mischief that we might command.

"Have they found a map?" I said, rising. "They are now inspecting it, sir—with their eyes half out of their heads."

"Good," said Herrick. "Where's Winter?"

"At tea in the kitchen, sir."

"Tell him to stay there," said Herrick. "And if he should be sent for, to tell the truth—except, of course, on one point. He's never seen my lady at any time."

Brenda nodded and fled, and we strolled out of the house and into the drive. The police and Virgil were there, but the smith was not to be seen. I afterwards found that he had been left with the Rolls—to raise the alarm in case we should try to make off.

I had wondered if Percy Virgil would know me again, for while I had had good reason to study him and his ways, I had been no more than one of several guests at a country hotel. But he did—immediately. And though he would have concealed it, I saw him start.

Herrick was addressing the police. "Good evening, gentlemen. I'm told that you wish to see us. If we can be of service in any way..."

The police seemed taken aback. I supposed that we did not resemble the men they had expected to see. Then the sergeant took off his hat. "The matter is serious," he said. "Of course," said Herrick. "Otherwise you would first have asked us before inspecting our car."

Weekly Letter

From Washington County
Assemblyman
Jos. A. Schmitz
Wisconsin Legislature,
Madison

A Letter from Our Assemblyman
In accordance with my promises made before election, I will try to present to the people of Washington county, whom I represent in the Legislature, a brief picture of the functioning of our state government. It is my opinion that an informed public will naturally select more competent representatives and will otherwise plan to improve all forms of our government. With this in mind, I urge the residents of our county to visit the Capitol frequently to observe the Legislature in action. The teachers of the higher grades could give their classes a splendid lesson in civics if a group visit of this nature can be arranged.

On Wednesday, January 11, at high noon, the 44th Regular Session of the Wisconsin Legislature convened in the State Capitol at the city of Madison.
A slight delay in procedure was caused by the filing of objections to the seating of two assemblymen. All members-elect, however, were sworn in by Chief Justice Rosenberg, were seated, and signed the roll.

The Assembly then elected Vernon Thompson, 23, of Richland Center, to the speakership on the first ballot.
John Stocum, 33, of Wausau, was elected to the chief clerkship and Major Robert A. Merrill, of Eau Claire, as sergeant-at-arms. The latter two are not assemblymen.

The senators, in their house, elected Senator Edward J. Roethe, of Fennimore as president pro-tempore. In the absence of Lieutenant-Governor Goodland, Senator Roethe will preside over that body. Lawrence J. Larson, Racine, will act as chief clerk.

As soon as the Assembly and Senate were organized, a message to that effect was sent to the Governor and he appeared before a joint session of both houses in the Assembly chambers and delivered his message.

It contained a very constructive program and stressed the need of economy in governmental operations; loyalty of the men in state service to the people; elimination of useless duplication of services, and stressed the need of aid to the old people of the state. To the farmer, the Governor said that the business of agriculture must be brought to high gear, and that the products of the farm, as well as the scenic beauty of the state, must be advertised from coast to coast.

There now falls a great responsibility upon the Legislature to enact laws that will conform to these ideals.

It appears from the number of bills which have so far been introduced that there will be no shortage of legislative action in the 1939 session. During the first week of this session, about fifty bills have been introduced and another fifty are in the process of formation.
I venture to predict, however, that due to the harmony experienced thus far, that this will be a short session.

The only bill which has been passed and has become a law thus far is Senator White's resolution which wipes out every one of former Governor La-Follette's twenty-six orders by which he reorganized the state government.

Numerous state departments, bureaux, divisions, educational institutions, and agencies of government will thereby return to their former status.
The latter had all been reorganized and their status changed by the enactment of the Reorganization Act of the special session of the 1937 Legislature.

Either house could have modified these changes by individual action, provided such action was taken within ten days of the convening of the Legislature.

Bills will now be introduced to reinstate any of the cancelled measures which have merit enough to meet with a majority vote of both houses.

I shall reside in Madison during the Legislative session and anyone wishing to contact me at the Capitol can find me in Seat No. 17. Mail will reach me if addressed in care of Assembly Chambers, State Capitol, Madison.

When you were young,
You know what it means
When the test grades come.

Now English for instance
And History too,
They aren't so bad
If you know what to do.

Just take up your text book
And begin to read,
And you'll find that poetry
Is just what you need.

And Lincoln at Gettysburg.
My! What a speech—
His height in world history
We'd all like to reach.

Take Physics and Latin
They look to be tough,
For when you complete them
You've had just enough.

But all put together
They aren't worth a drop,
As compared to the knowledge Of dear Mom and Pop!

"JITTERBUGS"

The jitterbug is a funny thing,
It isn't a bug that flies on the wing;
Instead it "trucks" and "Susie Q's"
To the "Flat Foot Pluggie" and St.
Louis Blues.

It's very sensitive to swing—
To Benny Goodman; he is "king"—
They all go crazy over "jam"
And Ginger and Freddy doin' the Yam.

When the music's hot and screamy
There is no time to be dreamy;
And that song's right "in the groove,"
That's their cue to up and move.

Some go for swing that's slow and dreamy;
They go for it—dance all evening—
The jitterbug couldn't stand that "spot"—
They'd be happier doin' the "hop."

Some say it's silly—all that talk
'Bout the Big Apple and Lambeth
Walk
They say swing is nothing but madness,
The jitterbug don't care—call it gladness.

But after all is said and done,
Swinging is a lot of fun
When some "jam band" swings it high;
That's the one and only cry—

Heigh-Ho jitterbugs—away!

SOPHOMORE NEWS

We are reviewing what we have studied in the past semester for the semester tests. With the reviewing we have had everyone should have a pretty high grade.

FRESHMAN NEWS

The freshman general business class has finished its semester work book.
The English class has finished the three kinds of essays, namely: Adventuring with Animals, Adventuring with Life, and Seeing the Funny Side.
The Citizenship class finished the chapter on "Our National Government."
The Science class finished the chapter "Keeping in Good Physical Condition."

INQUIRING REPORTER

"Do you believe final exams should be given? Why or why not?"
Curtis Romaine: "I oppose final exams because I believe it is practical knowledge that counts, and not the material you learn by cramming. Things that you learned will always be remembered longer than that which you crammed."

Lucille Hansen: "I think honor-roll students should be exempt from exams."

Kathleen Schaefer: "I don't think they are necessary if you study." Patricia Bruchle: "Yes, I think they are beneficial because I have learned more through studying for the exams than I have learned the whole year."

Ralph Krauskramer: "I do not believe they should be given because most of the students study for the exams and then forget all about what they study afterwards."

Paul Kral: "No, I don't because you have to remember stuff that you had in the beginning of the year that you now have forgotten."

Russell Belger: "I don't believe final exams should be given because if a student really remembers what he has learned, he should not have to be tested on it."

Claire Horn: "No, I don't think final exams should be given because when you have review in class you find there is a lot you have forgotten. Then you try to cram your brains so full the day before the exams that when the time comes to write, you can't remember a great deal of what you reviewed before

KEWASKUM DEFEATS ROSENDALE, 29-24

Last Friday night Kewaskum High school's basketball team defeated Ro-sendale on their home floor by a score of 29-24.

Kewaskum played a better game than the score indicated. They controlled the rebounds from both the offensive and defensive boards, but were unable to connect with the basket. While the offense was not functioning properly, Kewaskum's poor defense work showed up. Defense is one of the Kewaskum problems yet to be solved.

Rosendale played their best game against Kewaskum, having scored more points against them than against any other team in the league.

Don't forget the big game between Kewaskum High school and Oakfield
High school tonight, Friday, January 27. Both teams are leading the league having won six games and lost one.
This game may decide the Tri-County championship, so let's all be there and cheer Kewaskum on to victory.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
FRANK B. KEEFFE

IT IS VERY evident that the November eighth election has made a very profound impression upon the attitude of both state and federal governments in the matter of reckless and extravagant spending and governmental waste.

Sensible Democrats have indicated clearly their desire to join hands with Republicans in Congress in curtailing the power of the President and his multitude of boards and commissions in the matter of spending the tax-payers' money.

After conversing with numerous Representatives and Senators I am convinced that the day of the yes-man in Congress is over and that the people's representatives intend that Congress shall have some control over the spending of the huge sums asked for by the President. The overwhelming manner in which Congress cut 150 million dollars off from the President's request for WPA funds is a clear indication of what may be expected in the future.

Congress is rapidly developing the thought that there can never be a permanent solution to the unemployment and relief problem until some assurance is given to private business that it can go ahead with private enterprise freed from unnecessary and vicious governmental competition and interference, and we can only look forward to putting people back to work at decent jobs and at steady employment by giving such assurance to business and agriculture.

When I speak of business I include the hundreds of thousands of small businessmen and small factory owners who, after all, furnish the greatest amount of steady employment in this country.

It is indeed heartening to note that while members of Congress of all political affiliations are desirous of seeing that those in need are adequately provided for, that there still is an ever growing demand that if the country is to ever live within its income and not face disastrous inflation, or continuous unemployment, that we must solve the problems that give rise to poverty and unemployment in America instead of merely glossing over the situation through the temporary expedient of government dols or pump priming.

CANDY SALE

On Tuesday between classes a candy sale was held for the benefit of the newly-organized camera club.

The club intends to buy equipment with which to develop pictures.

A "dark room" is being outfitted in the lower corridor of the school in which to develop pictures.

COLLECTION CLUB

A collection club has been organized during the past weeks.

The sixteen members have collected collections of stamps, postcards, movie stars' pictures, theater advertisements and match folders.

HOSTESS CLUB

The senior girls have organized an Emily Post Etiquette and Hostess club.

The girls are going to prepare a lunch for the basketball boys after this Friday's game.

They are also planning to sell hot dogs at some future time.

PEP MEETING

Due to the fact that exams are being given on Friday the pep meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon. The entertainment was given by the sophomore class, who put on an appropriate little skit about rabbits, fields of oaks, and streams, but we got the idea. The most humorous character was the dog
—a real one.

At the close of the skit the cheer leaders led the student body in several yells after which all united in assembly singing.

TOBY TYLER

Toby Tyler it will be
And his monkey whom we see,
Mischievous all day long,
Never knowing what is wrong.

How much money did Toby get,
Oh he wished he never met,
Old Job Lord the proprietor chan,
He ran away from that old man.

Along came a hunter one day
When Toby and Stubbs couldn't find their way
Bang, "What was that I hear,
Mr. Stubbs, come here, come here."

Where is Mr. Stubbs today?
He's lying under the moon's bright ray
"I wish he were here," every one said,
But poor Mr. Stubbs now is dead.

U. S. AIRFLEET

Doubling of the United States airfleet has been asked by the President in order to insure security by giving us strength. He asked that the Army and Navy be given force to raise the present combined force of 4300 planes to 8500 planes. This number would be only the needed amount to protect the American mainland, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone. The U. S. stands at present fifth in the world's air powers. If this request goes through, our place would jump to second.

FARMER CO-OPS

Cooperative buying and selling among farmers has reached such proportions that the business of their associations constitutes a large part of the business of agriculture. There are now approximately 15, 000 rural cooperatives in the country, including mutual water companies and insurance companies. We are considering recommending to the twelve regional banks for cooperatives that they employ cooperative business specialists who will work primarily with cooper-
