

INCREASED FARMALL POWER and McCormick-Deering Equipment to Use with It

Twenty per cent more power! That's the plus value you get with the new Farmall 20. Besides this increase, there's a full line of time and labor-saving Farmall equipment designed to work with the F-20, all helping you to cut field and belt work costs.

There's unbeatable economy in the other Farmalls, too—the smaller F-12 and the larger F-30. All burn distillate, kerosene, or gasoline. They burn distillate with unexcelled efficiency.

Let us show you other advantages of these tractors. Or call us for a demonstration.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

For an instant there was dead silence. "What do you mean?" he cried—"What do you mean?"

CHAPTER X

I do not know how far I went down, but I know that my lungs were bursting before I came up, and the first thing I clearly remember was scrambling upon a wall that was coated with slime and finding a crack too small to admit my fingers.

were swaying for want of air, when all of a sudden his limbs and his body went slack and I knew I was free. . . And then I was back on the surface and was blowing like any grampus and thanking God for the gift of that tainted air.

ADVENTUROUS AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

An American Spahi

FEW Americans have ever heard of Marius Van de Weghe. He stays pretty close to his tallow and caustics, test tubes and chemicals and other scientific apparatus in his laboratory at a soap company in Chicago.

You wouldn't suspect that Marius, a young man of less than 40 years, is an Quissam Alaouite Cherifien. But that is what you are when the Sultan of Morocco gives you a medal and says that's what you are.

Because Van de Weghe, while a soldier in Morocco, displayed unusual bravery under fire, the sultan knighted him. Van de Weghe was a spahi in the Moroccan army right after the World War.

The kind of men the soldiers were fighting were those who tortured their live captives and mutilated those who were killed. Van de Weghe's heroism prevented the natives from burying the body of his commander with his head protruding to be eaten by insects.

But there is nothing of the hero in Van de Weghe's present demeanor, now that he is an American citizen and the head of a family.

Though my case was not so bad, it was evil enough. I was not wholly exhausted, but the struggle had snapped my strength, and I badly needed the respite I could not take.

To show how desperate I was, I wasted the last of my strength in a frantic effort to find Elizabeth's key—this, with the mad idea of thrusting it into a crack and so creating a projection to which I could cling, and though, I suppose, a more utterly futile design was never conceived, as luck would have it, it actually saved my life.

To get a hand into my pocket was very hard, but the moment my fingers were in, they closed upon something which I had not known was there.

"Prince of Trinidad" "JAMES I. PRINCE OF TRINIDAD," is an impressive title. The holder of it was an American who married the daughter of a Standard Oil company magnate.

Trinidad was easy to rule, of course, because Mr. and Mrs. James Harden-Hickey, the American names of the rulers, were the only human inhabitants.

But their reign over this small domain that reeked with the odor of dead fish, ended in January of the following year when the British sent the warship Barracouta there to take over possession.

He died a suicide in El Paso, Texas, in 1898, just plain James Harden-Hickey, American citizen.

Audacious Robert Stobo HODINI was famous for his ability to escape from almost anywhere; Sergeant York was noted for his ability to capture enemies by the wholesale; but in pre-Revolutionary days, Maj. Robert Stobo was famous for both.

After breaking out of a cell in Quebec, he added up the St. Lawrence river with three companions. Camping one day on the bank, he noticed a small boat leave a French ship and make toward them.

He could easily have retreated into the woods until they gave up the search. Instead he and his companions surprised the party when it landed and captured the group that had been sent out to capture him.

Then, after waiting for darkness, he had the further audacity to order them all into the boat and with guns at their backs, row back to their ship as if he and his party were captives. They were all aboard the vessel before the crew realized that it was Stobo's party, not theirs.

In Irish mythology Bres was the son of Elatha, and was known for his great beauty. He married Brigit and became king of the Tuatha De Danann, who deposed him because of his exactions. He then roused the Fomorians to their war with the gods.

TIPS to Gardeners

Changing Methods

CERTAIN garden practices widely followed a generation ago have now been proved unwise.

Gardeners formerly allowed vegetable to grow as large as possible. According to Harold N. Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Breeding Station, this practice gave a higher yield in pounds, but very often lowered the quality of the vegetables.

Some vegetables, of course, like tomato, must be mature to be palatable; but carrots, cucumbers, beets, summer squash, turnips, radishes and others are more tender and tasty when not much more than half grown.

To keep a regular supply of vegetables of proper eating size, gardeners are finding also that it is advisable to plant often than once or twice a year.

Few gardeners nowadays save flower seeds. Fine flowers growing in the home garden often are cross-pollinated by others of the same species, making flowers grown from their seed inferior and untrue.
