On Monday, June 19th, more than eighty congregations of the Evangelical and Reformed church in Wisconsin, south of Fond du Lac, were organized into the South Wisconsin synod, with a membership of nearly nineteen thousand. The organization meeting was held at Friedens church, Fort Washington, Rev. H. A. Fleer, pastor. Rev. Richard M. A. Gadow, pastor of the Peace Ev. church, Kewaskum, attended the conference.

This synod is one of thirty-four to be formed from the 20 districts of the Evangelical synod of North America and the 56 classis of the Reformed church in the United States. The two churches merged in 1934, on a basis of "mutual confidence," and the merging of their work is proceeding very rapidly. Other denominations contemplating merger have pointed to the Evangelical and Reformed church as an outstanding example of how two groups can iron out differences after they have united. The merger brought together a combined communicant membership of more than 650,000, in almost three thousand congregations. The North Wisconsin synod, with about eighty-five congregations and eighteen thousand members, was organized on May 10th. The South Wisconsin synod is made up of the conpregations of the Wisconsin district in the southern part of the state of Wisconsin, and of the Milwaukee

SPAIN:

Friendly Relatives

Last March 17 Dictator Francisco Franco accepted a friendship nonaggression pact with Portugal, whose mere moral support against the Loyalists was slight compared with the guns, planes and men of Rome and Berlin. Observers immediately predicted a cast-iron military pact with the Axis, but weeks dragged into months until the world suddenly realized General Franco would be no pushover; like a smart politician he was playing both democracies and dictatorships for all they were worth, staving off an Axis pact so long as possible.

Mid-June found Franco's brotherin-law and minister of the interior, Ramon Serrano Suner, visiting in Italy with persuasive Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's foreign minis-

India was the "sink hole" of precious metals before the World war. By mid-June of 1939 a cellar under Fort Knox, Ky., appeared to be the new sink hole, for there was kept much of the $16,008,915,000 which world's monetary gold stock. Most alarming to financiers, who see gold becoming cheaper and cheaper, is the fact that since January 31 the U. France, which lost $934,000,000 in 1935, offers the only encouraging picture in today's gold problem. While other countries bordering Germany have frantically shipped their metal elsewhere, the strongarm government of Premier Edouard Daladier is now enjoying an influx of gold and capital. Biggest reaction in the U. S. is a steady increase of adjusted demand deposits in federal reserve banks. In early June, as gold hoardings reached their new peak, reserve bank deposits also hit a high water mark.

The problem that now confronts the politicians, and about which there is no rule, concerns President Roosevelt's course. According to old precedent, Mr. Roosevelt is under no compulsion to suggest whom he favors as a successor. Indeed, he would be borrowing trouble were he to do so at this time. The Worst 'Bad Man'

THE life of Alexander Harvey, I one of the worst "bad men" of the fur trading days of more than a century ago, was just one murder after another. That isn't the kind of career to glorify, but there is no denying that if you can get away with it, there is adventure in it. His first murder was in 1840 at Fort McKenzie when he shot a mildmannered employee after first making him kneel down before him. He reported that a Blackfoot Indian did the killing and no one had the courage to contradict him. Later that year, while traveling to Fort Union, he quarreled with his While at the fort, he was bitterly hated, especially by a Spaniard, Isodoro. In the presence of a group of people including the commander of the fort, he killed Isodoro and then challenged those present to do something about it. None would dare. Back at Fort McKenzie a short while later, the commander was ordered away and a friend of Harvey's was left in charge. The two of them admitted a group of Indians to the fort and then discharged a cannon into the crowd as they were coming in the gate. Three Indians were killed and three wounded, including a chief. "Two Ton Tony" Galento of Orange, N. J., is the most unorthodox boxer in modern ring history. His big day is June 28 when an ambition of long standing is realized in his fight with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in Yankee stadium. Tony, who would rather make grimaces than get down to serious training, likes to pose for the cameraman and boast about his process, but he surprises scoffers by being a better fisticuffer than they think.

Barrel-chested Tony, who smokes big black cigars and drinks beer during training season (after biting off the bottle caps with his teeth) is shown at the left in Philadelphia last summer as he arrived to go into training for a fight. Tony spends his winters in Miami, close to the publicity cameras where last winter he squelched the ambitions of Abe Feldman and started a boasting campaign that resulted in his fight this month with Joe Louis. Tony calls Louis a "bum"; Joe calls Tony a WITH HIS OWN HAND! "third rater" and everybody's happy.

They laughed last summer when Tony stepped into the ring at Betroit with Nate Brown, who, at the right, scoffingly watches his opponem "train" on a bicycle in a Detroit gymnasium. Note that Tony sports a cigar for the benefit of news cameramen. But the stocky Italian proved his mettle by knocking out Brown in the fourth round, the knockout punch being so forceful that it carried Calento clear off the cannas. There's pretty good evidence that-when nobody's looking -Tony does a lot of shadow baxing, roadwork and rope skipping. But is this boastful little tough guy big enough to floor Joe Louis? The soorld's about to find out!

"Her Husband's Funeral Pyre"

HELLO EVERYBODY:
India! Land of mystery and—"Suttee!" Suttee, as you know, is the quaint little Indian custom of burning the widow on the funeral pyre of her dead husband. It is a Hindu practice of long standing and from this graesome sacrifice the soul of the immolated widow is supposed to receive a special blessing and follow her husband's spirit into that land of greater mysterythe hereafter!

The British government has prohibited Suttee for many years but it is suspected that many secret cremations still claim their living victims.

Mrs. Miriam Richardson of Caldwell, N. J., makes the page today with a tale of Suttee and she knows her stuff.

Miriam's parents were missionaries in India for a great many years. Their grass and mud bungalow was situated in a no-man's-land of trees, underbrush and jungle grass in the Central Provinces, which was in the heart of a vast jungle district. The jungles were infested with wild animals. For 20 years of her life she was lulled to sleep by the gruff, coughing roars of man-eating tigers, the weird yowling of cowardly jackals and the insane laughs of hyenas!

Late one night, Miriam says, there came a frantic knocking on the bungalow door with calls of "Memsahib, Memsahib!" Her mother hastily opened the door, thinking that perhaps one of the Christian natives had been fatally mauled by a tiger. An old native woman stood there wringing her hands. Her daughter-whose husband had just died-was about to commit Suttee and the woman wanted the help of Miriam's father and mother to save her.

His hand was to light the fire! The fire that would consume his living mother and dead father!

Miriam's Mother Starts on Mercy Errand.

They started at once, a chokadar-night watchman-being left to guard over Miriam. Her father grabbed a lantern and the distracted native woman led the way through a wild jungle path. Soon the beating of tom-toms throbbed all around them and they came to a clearing lit by hand torches.

In the center of the clearing, Miriam says, was a funeral pyre-a prepared bonfire of dried wood on which reposed the body of the dead man. Around it, at respectful distances, thronged the native crowd. Through the crowd and near the pyre wandered Hindu priests, their faces bearing the painted ghastly gray ashen marks of their calling. "The native woman pulled my mother to the women's quarters," Miriam writes, "here no man was allowed. My father remained with the men in an effort to dissuade them. In the center of a wailing group of women sat the young widow. She swayed to and fro, moaning and beating her breast with her fists. From the dull gleam of her eyes, mother knew that she had been drugged and hardly realized the frightful fate that was in store for her. "Mother went straight to her and putting an arm around the girl started a fight against time. She wanted to delay matters long enough for the effects of the drug to wear off so that she could reason with the distracted girl. Once a little boy-his naked body covered with ashes and paint-interrupted her. The boy was the widow's son. He carried a lighted torch in his little hands and he had been sent, he said, by the priests to get his mother. His hand was to light the fire!-the fire that would consume his living mother and dead father!"

Can you imagine how that kind of a proposition would appeal to an American mother? An innocent youngster being hoodwinked into thinking he was performing a holy act by actually burning his mother alive!

Responsibility Shifted to a Child. It looks to me as if the Hindu priests wished to shift the responsibility of the whole fanatical sacrifice to a child. Well, anyway, the sight of the little child with the torch made Miriam's mother redouble her efforts to stop the whole thing. She switched the conversation to the mystical side of Christianity. She sang hymns translated into the native tongue and the widow showed some signs of losing the effects of the drug. A painted priest appeared in the doorway. His eyes flashed in fanatical anger. "Come, it is time," he said.

But the determined American mother drove him away, too. She knew that priests are forbidden the sanctity of the women's quarters. He left muttering threats as she spoke to his victim of the God he hated. The widow was crying quietly now and listening.

Meanwhile, Miriam's father was doing his part. He was going from group to group-pleading with some-threatening others. A few native Christians appeared and helped him. The priests raged but all feared the heavy hand of British law and soon the missionary had his way. The torch was applied to the funeral pyre WITHOUT ITS LIVING VICTIM. Body of Husband Burned Alone.

The fire crackled and roared, Miriam says. Scorched human flesh smelt heavy on the oppressive jungle air-priests sulked-but the body burned alone.

It was not until the last ember had fallen and the last tom-tom had ceased its savage strain that her mother and father started back through the jungle over which the first signs of dawn were creeping. The native mother and daughter went with them and cried out their gratitude at every step. They promised to become converts to a faith that could win against the power of the Hindu priests.

"But," Mrs. Richardson ends, "the arm of the Hindu priests in that superstition-ridden land, is long. Thwarted once, it clutched at its victims again. The women were spirited away later and when last heard of were living as 'temple women' in the power of the priest whom they feared more than the God of the Christians!"

Mrs. Richardson lives in New Jersey now-far from the sounds of the jungle of India-but I'll bet she still hears in her sleep the mysterious throbbing of the Hindu tom-toms. Don't you? (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

He leaned forward more intently. This was a person, running ahead of stattered houses on the Hill might him along the road. It was a woman, running ahead of him through the rain. There was a curious shapelessness about her; and he recognized the reason for this: her dark hair was streaming over her shoulders, so that she seemed to have no head. Her feet, he thought, were bare. A woman in a night- like to-"

Clint was driving slowly, and the woman ran swiftly, so that she kept for an instant this distance ahead of him. Then, like a wild animal which perceives the hopelessness of straightaway flight, she suddenly turned aside off the road, and she tripped and fell headlong, and imusement on his own virtuous dis- and came to her feet again. Kewaskum Wins Third Straight From Waldo KEWASKUM NINE PLAYS AT Team in Ten Innings

The Kewaskum ball team went on to defeat Waldo in the tenth inning Sunday on the home field after Fred Dorn had tied the score in the seventh with a home run over the center f'elder's head. It was a nip and tuck affair and provided a great deal of interest to the fans. The victory was the third in a row for the team, which now is tied for second place in the Kettle Moraine circuit. Kewaskum worked up to a 3-0 lead early in the game but Waldo tied it up at 3 all in the fifth. The visitors went ahead 5-3 in the sixth but the home nine came back to tie it up again in the seventh. Kewaskum filled the bases with one out in their half of the ninth but falled to push the winning run across as the next two batters popped out. CAMPBELLSPORT SUNDAY This Sunday, June 25, Kewaskum will go to Campbellsport to tackle their neighbors for the first time this from a week's visit to the World's season. The Belles have been going strong of late and although they are a game behind Kewaskum in the standings, the two are evenly matched and should put up one of the best games of the year. Both teams will want this game, so be sure to attend and lend support to your favorite. Furlong will probably pitch for the Belles while Honeck is slated to take the mound for Kewaskum. This is the last scheduled contest of the first half of the split season, however, Kewaskum has a postponed game to rlay with Sheboygan Falls on July 4th here. This game may be played in the morning, so watch for particulars next week.

A LOT of folks have had their eyes opened wide by a ride in a 1939 an experience of building far Ford V-8. They just didn't realize how much more value and how many improvements we've put in this car the last few years.

Today's advanced Ford is a product of progressive engineering, fine materials and honest construction. It is backed by more cars than anybody else in the world.

One ride in today's Ford with its smooth 8-cylinder engine, stabilized chassis, hydraulic brakes - will prove it's the modern car in the low-price field.
