Noted Wanderer Will Talk at Peace Church

Mr. Leon Ray Livingston, traveler, author, and orator, better known as the "A-No. 1 Wanderer" will speak at the Peace Evangelical church, Kewaskum, next Thursday evening, July 13, at 8 p. m. His subject will be "Where is My Wandering Boy?" Not only the members of the church are invited but also the community at large. Bring all your friends, old and young, particularly the children, to hear this eminent orator. A free-will offering will be received.

Mr. Livingston has had a checkered career, running away from home in San Francisco when but 11 years old, he roamed about for 30 years. When he finally returned, he discovered that his good parents had died of broken hearts because of his disappearance. He settled down to a life of industry and usefulness, married and raised a family. He is now giving all his time to the run away children problem. He is trying to show the youth of America what a serious mistake they make when they desert home. He tells the parents why their children run away, where they go, the things they experience and how to keep them home. In his travels, Mr. Livingston has covered 520,000 miles at an expense of $7.61. He knows the life of the runaway; he has a vital and most interesting message as he actually passed through all he relates.

Think of it! Figures indicate that approximately 80,000 girls and 200,000 boys run away every year; 40,000 girls and 35,000 boys are never seen again by their unfortunate parents who almost invariably die of a broken heart, because of grief over the missing loved one.

Mr. Livingston comes here with the very best references from pastors of all denominations. Everyone who has heard him, speaks well of the man and his message. With millions of men totally unemployed and numberless men and youths tramping aimlessly from place to place, this address will prove most interesting, instructive, unique and beneficial. He reveals the tricks of the traps—their marking of homes, etc. Rarely ever is a woman vagrant met with. Every family is taxed annually up to $5 aiding worthless, if not actually dangerous, wandering beggars. He teaches us to distinguish the unfortunate man who is honestly in search of employment from vagabonds who not only spread foul, if not deadly disease, but educate harmless young runaways in the dynamiting of safes, robbing of banks, burglarizing of post offices and school houses and the murdering of folks who gave them passage in their automobiles—all exclusive specialties of the training fraternity and never taught in any church, school or home—will be told Thursday evening, July 13, at 8 o'clock. You should hear Mr. Livingston and bring as many others with you as possible.

Delbert is a graduate of the Kewaskum High school and his many friends here wish that he will recover as rapidly as possible.

LOCALS WIN FIFTH IN ROW AND TAKE SECOND PLACE IN FIRST HALF
The Kewaskum team lost its first two games of the season and then came back to win five straight and cop undisputed second place in the Kettle Moraine league for the first half of the split season. The last victory of the five was gained on the Fourth of July in a morning game here when the locals came from behind and easily downed the Sheboygan Falls nine, 15 to 8. Although the heat was terrific the largest crowd of the season watched the contest. The second half starts next Sunday and all teams begin over with a clean slate.

Tuesday's game was postponed one of June 11, when it was rained out. It turned out to be a slugfest, with both teams hitting the ball freely and the players making numerous errors. The affair lasted nearly three hours. Bartelt for Kewaskum and R. Visser for Falls started at the plate, each banging out four hits. Visser's 4 were made in 4 trips to the plate.

H. Marx and R. Heidenreiter opposed each other on the mound at the start of the game. Marx pitched 4 innings and was relieved by Honeck in the fifth after giving up 11 hits and allowing 6 runs. Honeck pitched the last 5 frames and allowed 2 runs and 2 hits. Heidenreiter lasted 3 innings, being replaced by A. Willardson in the fourth. Although he only gave up 3 hits, he was wild and walked 5 men. Willardson was less effective, allowing Kewaskum 12 hits and 13 runs in the 5 innings he hurled.

Heidenreiter, Morkin and Kennedy, to take a lead of 4-0. The home team came back with 2 runs in their half of the second on two walks, a stolen base and R. Marx's timely single to make it 4-2. Falls regained a 4-run lead in the third with 2 more counters on a walk and singles by Visser and Deloria. The score then was 6-2, in favor of Falls.

Kewaskum tied the score in the 4th with a four run rally. Smith and R. Marx walked and Bartelt singled. A. Willardson came in to relieve Heidenreiter. P. Kral was safe on an error and H. Marx's double brought in the last 2 of the 4 runs. The tie was not for long as Falls tallied another run in the fifth. Visser and Deloria singled, Honeck relieved Marx and walked G. Willardson to fill the sacks. Prost's error let a run across, after which Honeck pitched fine ball to retire the side without another run.

The locals took the lead for the first time in their half of the fifth with 3 more runs and from then on never were headed. F. Kral singled, Smith was safe on an error and Bartelt, Honeck and P. Kral all singled to take a 9-7 lead. The home team made it 11 for their side with 2 in the sixth when Prost singled, F. Kral was safe on an error and R. Marx drove out another batter. Falls scored its last run in the eighth on a home run by G. Willardson. Kewaskum ran up its score to 15 with another spurge in the eighth which netted 4 runs. LOCALS PLAY AT RANDOM LAKE
This coming Sunday, July 9, all Kettle Moraine teams will begin play in the second half of the split season. In the second half games of the first half are just reversed. Random Lake opened the season here so Sunday Kewaskum opens the new half at Random Lake. In the first meeting between these two teams Random nosed out the locals 12 to 10 in a wide open game. Kewaskum should have won by poor playing, because of lack of practice, cost them the encounter. Since then, however, Kewaskum has improved 100 per cent and has set an enviable record for the other teams. The boys will seek revenge and should get it. Accompany them and help them along. Let's get behind the boys and try to cop the second half championship.

'America,' Largest U. S. Boat, Is Launched at Newport News

Picture Parade

JULY 15 is the proudest day in American maritime history. On that day the "America," new flagship for the United States lines and largest liner to be built in this country, slides down the ways at Newport News. How is a modern steamship built? These pictures tell the story. Above: Scale drawings of each plate on the "America" were made on a 15-foot working model of the hull. These models were used in making full-size patterns of the plates. Right: The man who welds the plates electrically. Note his Martian-looking helmet, leather overshoes and heavy gauntlets, which protect him day after day from the fierce heat of his welding apparatus.

Above: Blading the low pressure turbines. Some 15,000 of these delicate metal blades are required for the turbine casing shown here, arranged in semi-circular parallel rows. Some 15,000 more blades will be fitted into the rotor which fits into this casing. Left: An early construction picture at Newport News where seven cranes swing to and fro amid a clatter of riveting machines that would put most July Fourth celebrations to shame. Here the ship rises slowly as months go by.

Finally, the christening and launching of the finished vessel. Scheduled to enter service next spring, the "America" is 723 feet long, 93 feet in the beam and 75 feet deep from the promenade deck. It will accommodate 1,219 passengers in all three classes, and a crew of 639.

ADVENTUROUS AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

The First Rebel

JAMES SMITH led the first uprising of American colonists against England, drew the first blood in actual battle and all this 10 years before the Revolution began.

At the age of 18, young Smith was captured and held prisoner for four years by the Caughnawaga Indians. During this time he not only acquired their skill in woodcraft and their cunning in warfare but also learned to hate the traffic in whisky and rifles that both the French and British were carrying on with the Indians. He could see the disastrous effects on the red man of the white man's greed for money.

Smith organized a band of frontiersmen called "Black Boys," in 1763. Their purpose was to keep the drunk and bloodthirsty Indians out of Conococheague valley. But two years later, Smith decided that the best way to fight them was to cut off their source of supply for whisky and arms. Accordingly, his "Black Boys" held up a pack train and burned the goods.

On May 6, 1765, a platoon of British Highlanders, members of the Forty-second regiment of His Majesty's army in America—the famous "Black Watch"—marched on the town of Fort Loudon, Pa., to preserve law and order and put this lawless band of "Black Boys" in their place.

But when the British soldiers reached Smith's forces and Sgt. McGlashan ordered them to "Halt! In the king's name, halt!" a pitched battle followed in which the soldiers were driven into the cabin of a certain Widow Barr. The rebels kept them there until the British agreed to march back to Ft. Loudon from whence they came. And so the truly first battle of the American Revolution, fought 10 years before the famous battle of Bunker Hill, was won by America's first rebel, James Smith.

He preached in the streets, but received no money for it, supporting himself by manual labor, such as cutting trees, chopping wood and firing a sawmill boiler. Even his preaching was not only spiritually but physically difficult—he had to shout at the top of his voice to be heard above the raucous calls of the gamblers and entertainers.

On Sunday, August 20, 1776, after his usual morning services in the main street of Deadwood, he started out for Crook City, 10 miles away. He put his Bible in one pocket, the copy of his sermon in another and pinned a note on his cabin door that said, "Gone to Crook City, and if God is willing, will be back at 2 p. m."

God wasn't willing. When about halfway there, he was stalked and killed by a Sioux war party. For some strange and unknown reason, the Indians did not rob him or scalp him, but crossed his hands peacefully on his breast and put his Bible in them.

The Railroad Raider

ON THE morning of April 12, 1862, a train stopped at Marietta, Ga., en route from Atlanta to Chattanooga. An unusually large number of men passengers came aboard, claiming they were refugees from within the Yankee lines and wanting to join the Confederate forces.

When the train stopped at Big Shanty for breakfast, James J. Andrews, a citizen from Flemingsburg, Ky., and one of the large party of alleged refugees, cut away all but three cars, climbed into the cab and steamed away.

Capt. W. A. Fuller, who was in charge of the train, dashed to the telegraph office to warn the station agents up the line but found that the telegraph wires had been cut. Andrews really was the leader of a group of Union soldiers in civilian clothes who started out to paralyze traffic on the Western and Atlantic railroad—one of the vital arteries of Confederate transport.

Captain Fuller got a handcar and with a couple of men started in pursuit. But Andrews burned 15 bridges, pulled up many sections of track and placed several obstacles along the right of way, all while keeping ahead of his pursuers who finally abandoned the handcar when they were able to board a locomotive.

About to be overtaken, Andrews set fire to the last freight car, left it on a bridge and ran into the woods with his crew. Mounted militia finally captured all of Andrews' party and he, with several others, was executed as a spy.

HELLO EVERYBODY: Today's Distinguished Adventurer didn't write his own story. He can neither read nor write.

That, of course, is nothing new in the realm of adventure. Plenty of great adventurers couldn't as much as sign their own names, but that didn't stop them from getting into tight spots and danger from living lives that were packed full of thrills and excitement.

And it's the thrills and the danger we want in this column. I can't give a whoop how well you can write, or whether you can write at all. The writing part of it is my job, and all I want you to do is give me the facts. Write 'em down on an old piece of wrapping paper, or if you can't write, get somebody else to write 'em down for you.

That's what today's Distinguished Adventurer did. His name, by the way, is Jip. He is one-half foxhound and one-half pointer, and he's one of the best all-around bird and rabbit dogs in the state of Illinois.

Jip's boss, Newton Belgium, of Chicago, sent me all the dope about Jip's adventure. Newton raised Jip from a pup, and he was right there when things began to happen. It was on a cold day in December, 1933, when Newton and Harry Russell and Frank Blackford were off on a hunting trip along the Kaskaskia river near Sullivan, Ill. Newton, of course, had Jip with him.

After Breakfast They Started for the River.

They arrived in Sullivan about four o'clock in the morning, had breakfast and started for the river. It was a bitter cold morning, with the mercury down to five below.

Newton was hunting through a cornfield, when suddenly he heard a yell that came from the river.

There was Jip, swirling about in the icy water. He had become thirsty and started out to get a drink, but the thin ice near the edge had broken and he had fallen in.

The three men stood on the bank and looked helplessly at one another. There wasn't a thing they could do for Jip, so they stood watching on the bank while the game little animal did his best to help himself.

The current was strong at that spot. Already it had carried him down from some point farther up the river. Now it was tugging at the poor little animal, trying to pull him away from the bank and whirl him out into the stream.

Gamely, Jip tacked the ice with his paws. He broke it for about five feet toward shore, but he couldn't climb up on it when it became too thick to break.

Again and again the current pulled him out. Each time he managed to swim back. But already he had been in that icy water for 10 minutes, and he couldn't keep on fighting that current forever.

And all that time, Newt, standing up on the bank, was going through a hell that was almost as bad as the one his dog was fighting.

"Each time Jip fought his way back to the little cut he had made in the ice," Newt says, "he would look up at us with appealing eyes, as if he were trying to say, 'For God's sake, save me!'"

"By this time I was bewildered and desperate. I wanted to try to go out on the ice, but the other fellows told me it would be suicide and reminded me that I had three daughters at home depending on me.

"As I stood there, watching him fight for his life, I felt as though the whole world was going to pieces. To Frank and Harry I said, 'Fellows, he's done for, and I can't go home without him.'"

They Started to Gather Up the Dead Branches.

"Finally I hit on an idea. We started gathering up all the dead branches we could find and throwing them into the water, hoping the current would drive them back of my dog, giving his hind legs something to kick against and enabling him to climb up on the ice."

But that idea of Newt's didn't work. The current was in the wrong direction. Jip had been in the water for 15 minutes by that time.

"There was ice on his eyebrows and nose," Newt says. "I couldn't stand it any longer so I went back and got my shotgun. My friends stopped me—told me not to shoot him as long as he had a fighting chance."

And then Newt had another idea. He loaded his gun and began firing at the ice!

Jip was out in the stream again, fighting his way back. The first shot ripped out a chunk of ice, lengthening the cut Jip had already started. Newt fired again—and again—and then the other two men got the idea. They picked up their own guns and started to help.

They cut that channel almost to the shore. Jim swam into it, but still he couldn't get his hind legs up on the ice. Then Newt had another idea. All three men fired at once at the ice on the upstream side of the dog. That did the trick. A big, triangular piece of ice, half sunken in the water, floated down and got under Jip's hind legs, and Jip kicked himself up to safety.

They called Jip down to a spot where the bank was lower, and then icicle. He was cut and bleeding, and there was ice on his face and ears.

Newt put his coat around him and rubbed him until he could stand him down, out jumped a rabbit from a brush patch a few feet away.

"And when Jip got through chasing that rabbit," says Newt, "he was O. K. again."

The bowler hat, known in this country as the derby, got its British name through having first been made more than 60 years ago by William Bowler of St. Swinith's lane to the design of a Norfolk farmer. The bowler or derby is popular in Britain and has many adherents here. The bowler is a symbol of solidity. The high silk hat represents lofty social standing. John Hetherington invented the "topper"

Oilcloth Folders for Your Cooking Booklets.

EVERY efficient kitchen has a book shelf. The paper book booklets that all homemakers love to collect may be placed in bright oil cloth folders so that they will make a brave show along with the bound cook books.

The prettiest folders of this sort that I have seen were made in green and yellow to match the kitchen color scheme. The diagrams given here show exactly how they were made. It is generally best to sort the booklets according to subjects rather than size.

The folders are stiffened with cardboard so they hold booklets of different sizes neatly. The cardboard should be cut the size of the largest booklet in the group. The fabric side of both pieces of oilcloth should be entirely covered with paste to make it stick smoothly to the cardboard. Letter or write the general subject of the booklets on a label and paste it on the back. Place the folder flat under something heavy until it is dry.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

For Polishing Glass.—Old linen is better than cotton. Newspaper paper may be used successfully.

Removing Whitewash.—To remove whitewash from windows, rub with a cloth dipped in hot vinegar.

Keeping Mustard Fresh.—Mustard will keep fresh and moist much longer if a pinch of salt is added during the mixing.

Storing Honey.—Store honey in a warm, dry place. It should not be kept in the cellar or in a damp place as it will absorb moisture and ferment.

Separating Covers.—When jam-pot covers become glued together, do not soak in water, but pass a hot iron over them with a thin paper laid between. They will then separate easily, though the gum will remain intact.

THREE SHUTTERED HOUSES

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

Copyright—WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

During a stormy night, three shuttered houses in a row on the edge of a town were struck by lightning. The first house, owned by Mrs. Cabler, was struck in the front door. The second house, owned by Mrs. Leard, was struck in the kitchen. The third house, owned by Mrs. Hurder, was struck in the bedroom. The storm was so severe that the power lines were downed and the houses were left in darkness. The three women, who were all alone in their homes, were terrified and tried to make their way out in the dark. The storm continued for hours, and the houses remained shuttered for days.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Rab set the pan of milk on the bedside table. He said: "I've been telling June she ought to get out of this mausoleum once in a while. Why don't you let me show her around? Why don't we three go to a party some night? I'll get theater-tickets, and we'll have dinner in town."

CHAPTER III

June undressed slowly, listlessly. There was nothing in life as she knew it which could provoke her to eagerness. Her movements were automatic, her thoughts went round and round a familiar circle.

Then the electric light faded and died.

June tried to persuade Kitty Leard to go with her to meet Uncle Jim. "You'd like him, Mother," she had urged. "I know you would."

But her mother would never go. The girl went mechanically about the business of preparing for the night. Her eyes drifted half-resentfully around the ugly room. She looked her hair and brushed it slowly for a while, watching her reflection in the mirror above the marble slab. The house long since was still. When at last she turned out her own light and opened one of the tall windows, she saw Aunt Evie's house next door was dark and silent too.

Also she saw, far off, a flicker in the sky; she even heard the rumble of thunder. Yet the storm might not come this way, or if it did, her mother might not waken. She got into the big bed and lay without drawing any covering over her for the night was hot, and the air was lifeless and still. The old house creaked all around her; mice scurried in the walls.

She must have slept at last, and for an indeterminate time. It was a gust of wind which woke her, a sudden quickening in the tempo of the night. Then lightning etched a net of flame across the sky, and the crashing thunderstroke burst in her ears.

June was not afraid of thunder-showers; but her mother, despite the drug she had taken, might have wakened; June decided to go in and see. She knew the older woman would be, if she were awake, covering now, and crying out as though from an actual physical pain. The girl got out of bed and crossed the hall to her mother's door.

right arm limp along the coverlets. June had seen her in a drugged sleep before, and there was nothing patently alarming in her appearance now. But though her mother lay on her side, her head was turned so that her face was upward. The posture looked uncomfortable; and June very gently tried to move her mother's head to the left so that it might be at ease.

But when June touched Kitty Leard's cheek smeared with unguents, her heart turned cold. June caught her mother's shoulders. She shook them; she cried: "Mother! Mother!"

But Kitty Leard made no response. June might as well have shaken a bolster loosely stuffed with sand. The girl backed away from the bed, her hands pressed to her lips. She turned and ran down the stairs to the telephone in the hall.

The instrument was dead. She snapped on the hall light—an electric bulb hanging by one wire in the midst of the gas chandelier—and in that naked illumination she tried the telephone again, without response.

Terror was clamoring in her; she tried to fight it down, to think what she should do. Grandpa and Grandma Hurder were asleep at the end of the hall, but she knew there was no help in them. Even if there were help anywhere.

Then the electric light faded and died, and June stood in the dark hall like a tomb. She was stifled by the blackness; she gasped for breath; and the front door blew open, banging against the wall, and the girl choked back a scream.

She was swept by desperate and nameless terror; a gust of rain came sweeping in, and June ran blindly to meet it, out through the door, into the full beat of the rain. The touch of it was sweet and cool. Then she remembered that the front door was always locked and bolted. Uncle Justus had bolted it tonight. Why had it opened of itself?

Blind panic possessed her utterly; yet she clung to one thought: she must fetch Doctor Cabler. She might have roused Rab or Asa, asleep next door. Rab had even a car. But she took no time to think of these things. She was already racing across the lawn; she found the gate in the hedge, and felt the smooth hard macadam under her feet, and ran swiftly. Occasionally lightning flashes illumined her way, kept her in the road.

She had gone halfway to Doctor Cabler's house when a car came down the hill behind her. She tried to run faster, to escape this pursuer; but this was vain, and she turned off the road, and fell, and scrambled to her feet and stood like a wild creature brought to bay.

The car stopped beside her, and someone asked a question. She stammered something, for this was a man's voice, and June was not habituated to encounter strange men. But instantly, while he used some persuasion, she found herself in the seat beside him.

He offered her his coat, but she refused it. Then this young man beside her turned out the dash-light so that darkness drew a protective garment over her, and she was warm with gratitude to him. She said: "Thank you—" She watched him covertly, controlling her breath.

BAKED EGGS IN HAM NESTS See Recipe Below.

Meals That Are Different

A slice of golden-yellow cheese with a time-mellowed sharpness of flavor is the perfect accompaniment for a piece of rich, juicy, apple pie—but all too often we forget that its usefulness doesn't stop there. There are so many varieties of cheese, and so many uses for each, that menu making with this versatile food is fun.

There are rich, full-flavored cheeses, cheeses with a tempting sharpness of flavor, and delicate, mild cheeses—cheeses to suit every taste, and for every use, from appetizer to dessert.

Because cheese is high in food value and comparatively low in cost, meals built around it are nutritious and economical, too. And if you're feeding a family that won't drink milk, remember that serving cheese is an excellent way of getting more milk into the diet, for most cheese is concentrated whole milk (or milk which has been partially skimmed).

This group of cheese recipes, which I've found temptingly delicious, will help you to plan meals that are different and very good to eat.

Man-Made Products vs. Nature's Version

By BETTY WELLS
REALLY, this modern age is enough to mix up even a very sophisticated bride embarking on her housekeeping adventure. She, like all the generations of homemakers before her, was brought up to respect guarantees of "genuine," "pure," "solid," and so on, and to snub "artificial," "imitation," "synthetic."

Yet, here she is in a world in which many man-made products have been developed to the point where they are actually better than nature's version. Take rubber, for instance. There is a specially patented method of making "airfoam" from milk of the rubber tree. This has no odor, is non-heating, is one-half air, repels vermin and moths. It is without doubt the coming material for upholstery filling to replace springs, hair, cotton or feathers. It is available in various degrees of softness and doesn't break down or wad up like other upholstery fillings. This Agricultural exports are vital to American agriculture, but exports must be paid for by imports. Unless this country is willing to buy from others, foreigners are unable to secure United States dollars with which to purchase our surplus agricultural commodities.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Defense Costs Zoom Skyward As Army, Navy Start Tapping Appropriations for New Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

HOESS HOMES AT HAMMOND, IND. (SEE HOUSING) A 40-acre white elephant may become a national model.

DEFENSE: Spree

In 1922 the U. S. spent only $380,000,000 for its army. By 1929 the dove of peace cooed so pleasantly that only $780,252,163 was needed for all defense—army, navy and coast guard.

Summing up the past year, Undersecretary of War Louis Johnson told readers of the Army and Navy Journal that 703 new planes (heavy and medium bombers, pursuit, attack, observation, cargo and training) had been delivered and that 763 more had been ordered, most of them single engine pursuit ships.

UNDERSECRETARY JOHNSON The army got its share.

Journal readers also heard from the navy's paymaster, Rear Adm. Ray Spear, that his extraordinary expenditures next year will help U. S. industry; 49.6 per cent will go for materials; 39.01 for labor.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Rows include Regular appropriation, 1930 deficiency bill, Extraordinary army bill, Panama canal, new locks, Civil pilot training, Civilian Conservation corps, Civil functions & works, and Total.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Rows include Regular appropriation, 1930 deficiency bill, Extraordinary navy bill, Strategic materials, and Supplemental construction.

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Rows include Regular appropriation, 1930 deficiency bill, Expansion, and Total.

When taxpayers totaled these figures they found defense costs had risen considerably above 1929's mere $780,000,000. The total 1930-40 bill: $2,861,560,720.

HOUSING: Hammond Plan

Biggest criticism of Federal Housing administration homes is that they cost too much for the small wage earner. Likewise, huge metropolitan slum clearance projects merely add to a city's congestion instead of following the future's inevitable trend to decentralization.

Last year at Hammond, Ind., four brothers named Frank, William,

Joseph and John Hoess divided a 40-acre white elephant into one-acre homesteads, sized up Hammond's workmen (who earn from $25 to $30 a week and have neither savings nor guaranteed jobs) and decided to build homes for them. Each was to be a five-room house with two bedrooms, kitchen, living room and bath, costing $1,600 to $2,500 including land.

This successful experiment might have gone unnoticed except for Nebraska's Sen. George Norris, who recently expounded its merits in the chamber as a comparison with FHA and PWA projects. Said he: "The idea is to build a home for as little money as possible. . . . We should extend assistance to the laboring men and poorer classes who do not now own houses, but desire to own them."

Next came a subpoena for Brother Frank Hoess to explain his project this month before Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney's temporary national economic committee, which may recommend it as the basis for a national program to amend the 1937 housing act.

Awaiting hearing time, Frank Hoess bussed himself opposing a proposed $4,000,000 clearance program for Hammond and nearby Gary, Ind., both suburbs of Chicago. His reasoning: Not only will tenement apartments increase congestion, but they also eat up in rent the money a workman might use for easy payments on his own home.

MEDITERRANEAN: Rebund

One year ago Turkey's Premier Refik Saydam ruled a mediocre nation no more important to war-frightened France and Britain than her inconsequential neighbors, Iraq and Iran. But by early July of this year the Turks were so solidly locked with allies far and near that both Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, frowned when they looked at the eastern Mediterranean.

First anti-Axis move by Turkey came following Italy's invasion of Albania, which bristled under the piffing Balkan entente. With Bulgaria leaning Axis-wise and Yugoslavia torn by a Croat-Slav feud, Premier Saydam made haste under British tutelage to form a new mutual defense pact with Rumania and Greece, both of whom are now ready to fight (1) a Nazi-Fascist invasion of Yugoslavia, or (2) a dictator drive starting in Bulgaria.

In desperation, Axis powers attempted to form a Balkan counter block of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Hungary, only the latter of which could offer much help in war. Adding to Mussolini's woes are three western Mediterranean developments: (1) Portugal's reaffirmation of fidelity to its alliance with Britain; (2) Spain's apparent insistence on neutrality in a general war; (3) increased British naval and military strength in the Gibraltar area.

Through previous decrees German agriculture already has assured reduced rates for electric power. This "electrification" of farms, it is announced, is designed to mitigate the chronic shortage of farm labor and, incidentally, enhance agricultural productivity generally. It is also intended, says the official announcement, to relieve farmers' wives from excess manual labor as the free electrical equipment can also be diverted to domestic and household purposes.

POLITICS: Decision

Not in many a moon has the U. S. seen a more popular politician than James Aloysius Farley, who lifted Franklin Roosevelt to the White House twice, who thus lifted himself from obscurity and who this year or next must make the greatest decision of his miraculous career: Shall he back the President for a third term, thereby forsaking his political friends who have left the New Deal standard? Or shall he desert, thereby losing the support of Roosevelt men?

Either path may be suicide, and best guesses hold that not even Jim Farley himself knows which path to take. But this much every politician knows: Next year's Democratic convention must build its re-election platform on the record of eight years under Franklin Roosevelt, otherwise the party has no leg on which to stand. If Jim Farley is to desert the President and seek a very logical vice presidential candidacy for himself under either Vice President John Nance Garner or Secretary of State Cordell Hull, he cannot afford to speak against his boss lest it undermine the party's only platform. Neither can he speak in his boss' favor, for that would stamp him permanently with the New Deal stripe. For a man whose entire future hangs on a network of friendships, any commitment before the President announces his decision would be fatal.

Meantime the postmaster general is wasting no time building more political fences for whoever can use them—himself, the President or any of a baker's dozen potential candidates. When he tells audiences his party will win in 1940 on the Roosevelt record, it means nothing.

PENNSYLVANIA: Titans' Dream

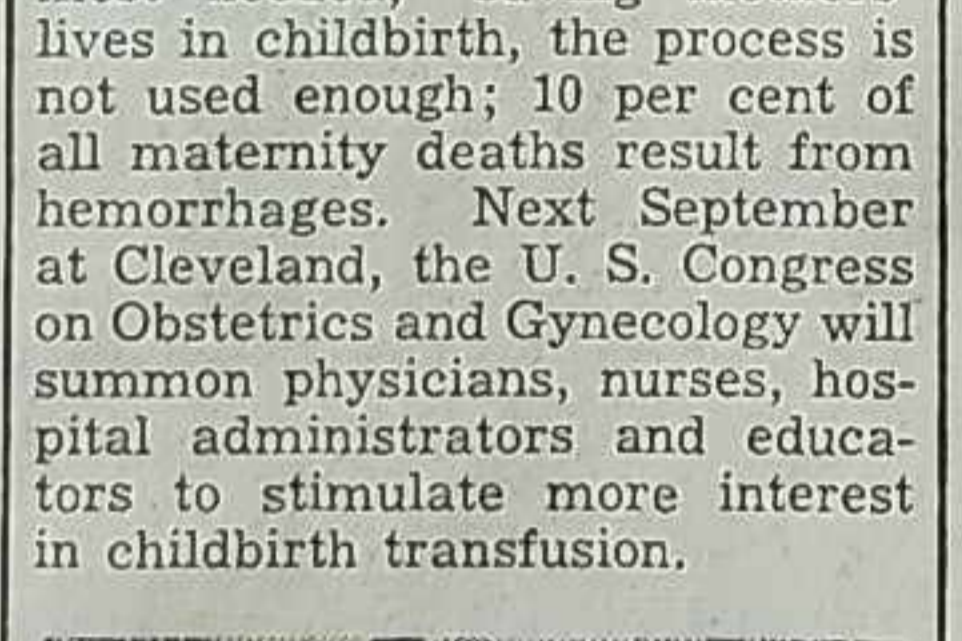

In 1837 intrepid Pennsylvanians first thought of building a "South Penn" railroad cut through the rugged Appalachians from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh. Fifty years later two industrial titans almost did it, Andrew Carnegie became another line controlled rail traffic and "pegged" freight rates out of Pittsburgh, William H. Vanderbilt because the same railroad purchased a line which paralleled his New York Central tracks along the Hudson. They abandoned it in 1885.

By 1940 the 100-year-old dream will be completed, not as a railroad, but a four-lane, moderate-level express toll highway which uses eight of the nine tunnels started by Vanderbilt's workmen, knocks the tops of smaller hills and spans deep valleys. Total cost $63,000,000.

Pictorialized

TRANSFUSION—Switching of blood from one man's veins to another's has improved tremendously since 1942, when Pope Innocent VIII and three donors who attempted to save his life all died in the first crude attempt. But in one field where transfusion is most needed, saving mothers' lives in childbirth, the process is not used enough; 10 per cent of all maternity deaths result from hemorrhages. Next September at Cleveland, the U. S. Congress on Obstetrics and Gynecology will summon physicians, nurses, hospital administrators and educators to stimulate more interest in childbirth transfusion.

RECRUITING—To man its vast new arms expansion program, the army must sign up 112,500 recruits in the next 12 months. Facilities: 400 recruiting stations, including 18 on wheels. Canadian Pensions Costly OTTAWA, ONT.—The cost of caring for Canada's aged amounted to more than $35,000,000 in the fiscal year ended March 31. A report submitted to the house of commons by Finance Minister Charles Dunning showed that the dominion government contributed $28,283,284 toward the care of the country's 181,514 old-age pensioners, and the provincial governments contributed another $7,070,821. The government pays 7 per cent of the cost.

Bruckart's Washington Digest Mixed Reaction Created by Huge Money Lending Program

Some Legislators Shout Halleluiahs, Others Are Bitter in Opposition to What They See as Another Gigantic Flop; Government Credit Menaced!

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt has asked congress for approval of another gigantic money lending program. He wants to put out $3,860,000,000 as a "stimulant to business." He wants to start right away and he wants to keep the money pouring into sinkholes through the summer and fall and winter and spring and next summer, too.

The President is not proposing government spending, as distinguished from government lending. That is important. While it has been shown by the years that this sort of thing is just as successful spending idea is just as successful as trying to pull one's self up by one's boot straps, those who favor the lending program say this method of bringing about recovery has not yet been fully tested. The brilliant-minded, self-appointed saviors of America, therefore, are out to prove that government cash can end a depression.

Arrival of the President's letter at the Capitol created quite a mixed reaction. Some members shouted their halleluiahs of more manna for the spawning ground for votes. Others expressed approval of cash and the gigantic outpouring of parts of the program. The third group on capitol hill at once voiced their wholehearted opposition to the scheme, offering several reasons why they could not support the President.

Nearly everything that is done in the national government is tinged with or steeped in politics. So the political phases immediately were stressed by the opponents of the program, and they are putting more steam behind their attacks as the days go by. Some of these members are objecting to further outlays by the government because they fear that government credit is about to crack any way, and they predict the newest presidential plan will seriously endanger the government's financial stability. The other group of oppositoinists take a brutal position.

Say Roosevelt Is Paving Way for His Renomination

They say Mr. Roosevelt is proposing the new lending program now in order to pave the way for his renomination to a third term in the White House. I expect that we will hear more of this aspect of the situation as the debate develops on the floors of the house and senate.

There is every reason to believe that the President will obtain approval for most of his program. He may not get it all, but when it comes to getting a legislative program through congress, nothing equals the distribution of money as bait.

Thus, it appears to me that we can treat the proposition from the standpoint of what will come from the program in the way of beneficial results, if any, and to find, if possible, what the long range effect will be.

First, let me recall that during the administration of Herbert Hoover, when the present depression first fastened its fangs on our economic structure, there was the first major outpouring of government funds. The Hoover thought was to stimulate business by lending money and by spending for public construction. It was Mr. Hoover, too, who sponsored "self-liquidating projects" for which federal cash would be loaned—the idea being that a self-liquidating project would earn enough money to pay off the government loan. That was the way the reconstruction finance corporation came into being, and that was the greatest mistake of the early days of the world depression insofar as our nation is concerned.

Well, the Hoover administration promoted loans for self-liquidating projects in a big way. As a stimulant of business, the plan was a magnificent flop. The current program, being modeled exactly as Herbert Hoover designed the first one, also will be a glorious flop. There is, as a matter of fact, not one bit of difference between the new Roosevelt program and the futile move in the Hoover day.

Few Have Confidence in Policies of Government

Whether this government lending idea is sponsored by Republicans or Democrats, by Communists or Fascists, the result is bound to be the same as far as accomplishing anything toward business revival. By its very nature, government lending creates a doubt in the minds of every one whether they recognize it just that way or not. The feeling that most every one gets is manifested in the form of a question: well, where are we headed when conditions are so bad that the United States treasury has to supply money upon which business operates? Which, to my way of thinking, is simply saying that few, if any, persons have confidence in the policies of their government. It was distinctly true in the Hoover administration, and I think it is equally true in the Roosevelt administration. But I want to go deeper into this problem. There is something more that we ought to think about, and it makes me shudder to talk about the possibilities inherent in moves of this kind by a democracy. Mr. Roosevelt says that, without a doubt, all of this money that he proposes to lend will be paid back. He said in his message on no loans subject that there would be assured approval unless there was reappreciation that the sums would be paid. Which is all very well and good. But experience of banking institutions and other lending agencies indicates that a certain per cent of the loans go bad. Poor management, unforeseen business conditions, deaths of key figures, labor disturbances, changes in the taste of the buying public for certain marketable products—all of these things, as well as the responsibility of the borrowers, go to determine whether the money will be paid back. And so it does not seem unbacked. And so it does not seem unbacked. And so it does not seem unbacked. And so it does not seem unbacked.

Personal Political Element Is the Most Disturbing

If we can dismiss the doubt, however, there yet remains the factor, the potentiality, of the program that makes me jittery. Frankly, it is the personal political element that disturbs me most. Let me illustrate. When Senator Norris, of Nebraska, began fighting a number of years ago for what turned out to be the TVA, he and all other sponsors of that socialistic government-owned power project shouted denials all over the place when it was charged they intended to put the government deeper into the field of private business. All they wanted to do, they insisted, was to develop a government power plant that would serve to measure profits of private companies. They argued that this experiment would show the power companies were taking too much profit out of the hides of consumers of electricity. They said that if this were not true, the TVA would be a blessing to private ownership.

What happened? The answer is pretty well known. TVA began competing with private companies wherever it could get in the field against them. Its means of entering some of the fields of competition were of the rottenest type.

On top of that came the operations of Secretary Ickes, and his public works administration. He tried, and is still trying, to make power plants grow where power plants never grew before—all from money loaned by the government. Throughout the nation, therefore, are scores of power plants, small as well as large, that were forced to sell out to the competing plant, financed by Uncle Sam, and the investors got what the little boy shot at. TVA, itself, has driven farmers out of their out of the field and has negotiated to buy one of the great privately owned systems that could not sell in competition with the government octopus which has no taxes to pay and borrows money on government-backed bonds.

Officials Say Thought Is To Help Private Business

It is only fair to report that the top officials in the government say there is no intention to use these funds as was done through the Public Works administration. There is, they say, no thought of discouraging private business; the thought is to help private business. But it is pointed out, meanwhile, that the funds which are planned to be used in this program will be under the control of half a dozen different agencies. Those who know the set-up in the federal government recognize this fact as important. It means this: Every agency of the federal government always has sought and always will seek to perpetuate itself, to expand its power and its functions. Give it a hundred millions or so to play with; and then express any doubt, if you can, that its officials will overlook any spot where they can boost their own importance. Truly, that would be too much to expect.

Then, give consideration to the fact that the current lending proposal contemplates expanding the original Hoover-initiated program occupied by a government agency. Self-liquidating highways, toll bridges, purchase of railway equipment, construction of more electric lines, to name only a few, are fields where the sloven hand of government bureaucracy will retard and handicap private initiative. Apparently, the dear pee-ulp are going to be given a great many things to use whether they need them or not and whether they want them or not. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Harry Hopkins Reports Rise in Alien Investments in U. S.

WASHINGTON.—Foreign investments in United States rose $47,000,000 in 1938 to a total of $7,883,000,000, according to a report made public by Harry L. Hopkins, secretary of commerce. Of the total, $5,690,000,000 represented long-term investments while $2,193,000,000 represented foreign-owned balances and other short-term banking items. Of the long-term investments, $1,685,000,000 were direct; $2,250,000,000 were common stocks; $425,000,000 preferred stocks; $580,000,000 bonds; $750,000,000 miscellaneous investments. About three-fourths of the common stocks held abroad are registered on the New York Stock exchange, the report showed. Secretary Hopkins pointed out that market value was used in compilation of the report.

Wisconsin News "Briefly Told"

July Relief Aids Released—The executive office at Madison announced that July relief aids to counties, amounting to $210,010, had been released by the emergency board.

Daughters Born to Sisters—Two sisters, wives of two brothers, gave birth to daughters at Appleton 24 hours apart. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Coenen, of route 1, Kaukauna, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coenen are the happy parents.

Hay and Grain Stock Large—Stocks of hay and grain on Wisconsin farms at the beginning of the new crop season are larger than in recent years. Last year Wisconsin harvested the largest hay crop in the history of the state.

Youth Is Electrocuted—Anthony Gregor, whose family arrived from Chicago for a vacation, was killed the day after arrival when he ran into a low hanging high tension wire in the woods near North Beach, a community on Shawano lake.

Most Accidents in 12 Counties—Twelve Wisconsin counties with only 19 per cent of the state's highway mileage had 58 per cent of the first five months of the year, the state highway commission revealed.

Poultry and Egg Day at Fair—A poultry and egg day at the Wisconsin state fair will be held in conjunction with Milwaukee day, on Thursday, August 24, it was decided at a meeting in Madison of the state's poultry industry leaders.

Selling Milk at Five Cents—Milk now is selling at five cents a quart at three of the four entrances of Two Rivers, just outside of the regulated market area. Joseph Lemberger, Mishicot farmer, started the movement, and other farmers followed suit.

Defeat Sterilization Bill—After an embattled career, the sterilization bill sponsored by the Wisconsin Race Conservation committee was killed in the assembly on reconsideration. The vote was 48 to 38. A reconsideration motion is the last parliamentary motion that can be made.

Water for Dorchester—The public service commission authorized Dorchester, Clark county, to establish a municipal water utility at a cost of about $71,100. Voters approved a bond issue of $27,300 for the project by referendum in April. A WPA grant will provide the balance of the cost.

Pea Packing Operations Begin—The Chetek canning factory is one of a few factories in the northwest to can peas this season. Operations for the annual pack have been started. Because of a surplus of canned peas and poor marketing conditions the plants at Barron, Rice Lake and Centuria are not operating.

Would Repeal Oleo Tax—The joint finance committee introduced in the assembly a bill to repeal Wisconsin's law placing a tax of 15 cents on oleomargarine. Members of the committee said they had been informed that cotton producing states in the south regard the tax as a barrier against use of their cotton-seed oil and had retaliated by refusing to buy Wisconsin products.

Dairy Products Well Known—That world-wide interest centers on Wisconsin dairy products is evidenced by inquiries received from foreign countries during June, national dairy week. Recent requests for the popular booklet, "101 Smart Ways to Serve Wisconsin Cheese and Butter," have come to the state department of agriculture from Sweden, South Africa, and Nicaragua in Central America.

Average Tax Rate $16.77—The state tax commission reported that the average rate of tax on general property in Wisconsin towns last year was $16.77 a $1,000 of full valuation but that some towns in the northern part of the state levied rates as high as $63.65. The top figure was that of the town of Tipler, Florence county. The lowest town tax rate was in Wilson, Sheboygan county, which levied $2.61 a $1,000.

Battery Salt Kills Five Cows—Five valuable Guernsey cows that mistook discharged radio batteries for salt blocks died of poisoning on the Peter Jensen farm four miles southwest of Berlin. An autopsy showed that stomach linings of the cows had been eaten by some form of chloride poison. Investigators found several discharged batteries near a summer cottage along the Fox river. The cows had licked the salty substance that oozed from the cells.

Killer of Two Shot to Death—Ray Olson, fugitive slayer of two volunteer deputies, was shot and killed in a blast of gunfire from the deer rifles of possemen. The law which he had defied in a grim man hunt of two weeks caught up with the renegade on the northeast shore of Lake Namakagon, about 12 miles east of Cable, in Bayfield county. The posse of 13 men fired about 30 shots at the desperado as he raced along the shore of the lake. Three bullets took effect. Olson toppled into the lake and died in about 25 minutes.

Explosion Fatal to Woman—Mrs. Sam Larson, 30, burned when a kerosene can exploded as she attempted to light a fire, succumbed in a Rice Lake hospital. Her 12-year-old niece was injured when she attempted to escape from the farm home which was set on fire.

Seize 12 Slot Machines—The whirl of slot machine wheels was silenced in the town of Mount Pleasant, south of Racine, following a cleanup by Constable Martin King, who seized 12 machines and arrested the proprietors of five taverns.

Strange Facts Undersea Painters 9-Day Railroad Thwarting Thunder

SEVERAL European artists dressed in divers' suits and using weighted equipment and thick oil colors that do not run when in contact with water, have painted pictures while standing on the bottom of the sea, sometimes 50 feet below the surface.

After 12 centuries, the house-leek, Sempervivum tectorum, a common evergreen plant, still is grown on roofs in many villages of several European countries to protect the houses from thunder.

Farmer Giles Found A Happy Equilibrium

Farmer Giles had married and all the village was talking. The bride was some twenty years younger than her husband, and, said the villagers, this was not right.

Eventually the rumor got to the ears of Giles himself. "Everybody's talking about you," began a friend. "They're sayin' you had no right to marry so young a girl as you did. The disparity is too great."

"Don't you believe it," said the farmer. "There's no disparity at all, for every time I look at my wife I feel twenty years younger, an' every time she looks at me she feels twenty years older!"

Director's Past nacious William Wellman, the director, long known as "Wild Bill," enjoys fighting sand-storms, having licked one almost single-handed when he was filming
"Beau Geste," in Arizona. He probably got a few good shots of the storm and will work them into the film, with his gift for improvisation.

He was the flying partner of Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player, in the Lafayette Escadrille in the World war, and revealed an instinct for showmanship by playing tunes on a machine gun as he zipped around the belfry. It was said that, before the Germans dropped him in a tree and sent him home, he could peg out "Silver Threads Among the Gold" without a sour note.

In aviation films, he has employed effectively both his histrionic talents and his training in air acrobatics.
His film, "Wings," of 1928, touched off his expanding fame. "Men With Wings," of last year, rated by discerning critics as a top-bracket film, told the story of aviation from the day of the Wright brothers' first flight.

He was known at times,
around Hollywood, as "Screwball Bill," but has simmered down considerably since he married Dorothy Coonan, finding a desert sandstorm only mildly diverting, considering his rough-and-tumble past.

He is, however, as Irish as ever, and his famous serial fight with an unknown Paris antagonist probably will continue. On leave in Paris, he found it necessary to rebuke an offensive stranger by knocking him stiff as a plank. Late, in Chicago, the stranger, spying Mr. Wellman on the street, did the same to him. A year or two later, in Hollywood, seeing his unknown sparring partner crossing the street, Mr.
Wellman put himself one up by a blow to the chin. There have been other encounters. I believe the score is now even. But he bears no grudge.
It is just a detail of his native ebullience, which leads him to such devices as galvanizing the chairs on the lot so his working crew can't sit down.

With Capra, La Cava and Hitchcock, he is achieving a sharp characterization and finished technique, as the movies get into long pants and offer adult entertainment. He grew up in Brookline, Mass., tried to sell chocolates and woolen goods, but didn't, went to the war with an ambulance unit and won the Croix de Guerre with the Lafayette Escadrille.
His friend, Douglas Fairbanks
Sr., steered him to Hollywood, soon after the war, as a messenger boy for Goldwyn. In 10 years, he did almost everything for every studio in Hollywood, before he hit his stride with "Wings."

He is 43, slender, whippy, with a touch of gray in his curly brown hair, and is apt to sock anybody in an argument and then affectionately buy him a drink. "A Star Is Born" hiked his fame considerably.

Were you ever alone
in a strange city?

If you were you know the true value of this newspaper Alone in a strange city. It is pretty dull.
Even the newspapers don't seem to print many of the things that interest
you. Headline stories are all right, but there is something lacking. That something is local news.

For—all good newspapers are edited especially for their local readers. News of your friends and neighbors is needed along with that of far off places. That is why a newspaper in a strange city is so uninteresting. And that is why this newspaper is so important to you.
NOW is a good time to get to . . .

Hats, Tiny or Big

There is no excuse for not having a flattering hat this summer for every type is included in the showings from tiniest toques to brims that go to extremes in the matter of size. The diminutive hat for dinner and evening wear, as shown below, gains daily in popularity. It is here interpreted in soft iridescent feathers with a touch of shell pink velvet.
The black veil is strikingly embroidered. Compared to some of the new brims the large mushroom hat shown here of black Milan is in reality quite conservative. There's no limit as to brim dimensions.

Favor Tweed-Like Linens for Suits

Although this year's linens abound in the traditional smooth finishes of the sort that denote well-bred aristocracy, many new versions are appearing. Something for the home make-your-own-clothes designer to get excited about is the smart new slubbed, nubbed and tweed-like linens which combine the celebrated coolness of flax with a fine aptitude for tailoring that insures a suit of distinction and comfort for town or travel wear.

Fruit Trims New White Straw Suits

Perfectly charming among summer-girl fashions are the new, usually large, rough white straw hats that are trimmed with clusters of gay colored fruit instead of the usual flower garnitures. This new fashion is wonderfully effective whether the hat be worn with an all-white costume or with a gay and festive silk print. It adds to the glory of this mode to carry a matching white straw handbag that is similarly fruit-trimmed.

Deck White Suits In Brass Buttons

There is a tendency to impart a military air to summer dresses and suits made of white sharkskin or white gossamer sheer wool by the use of handsome brass buttons, and in some instances epaulets of gold braid have been added. The fad for all white with gold trimming is also carried out in that gold kid belts are being worn with classic white dresses the draping of which takes on a sculptural beauty.

Fishnet Trim

A New York designer, on the search for something different to distinguish summer clothes, has turned to fishnet.

Picked Up in Studios of Style Designers

Even the lowly ticking is going slightly high-hat.
The suede jacket has come out of the strictly sports class.
All kinds of sleight of hand fashion tricks can be done with sport clothes.
The Dutch influence which began with the blue and white Dutch boy suits has spread into patterns for print fabrics.

Of interest in hosiery styles, is a new interest in colorful types.
In the fabric choice for new dress coats the designers are showing originality.
Those comfortable huaraches, or straw woven sandals, are in the shoe departments again.
You'll be calm, cool and collected this summer if you happen to fancy any of the net blouses.

Milk is a good starting point when you're planning the diet for a child, because it's an economical way to get many of the valuable food elements. A child from one to six years of age should have at least a pint of milk a day, and a quart is much better, authorities advise.

They scored 9 runs in the second inning and followed with 10 in the fourth, for 19 runs in two frames. Schweitzer was also the hitting star, getting four hits out of six times at bat. R. Kudok got three hits for Wayne. The losers were charged with 18 errors.

WASHINGTON NEWS
FROM CONGRESSMAN
FRANK B. KEEFE

Thursday, July 6, 1939
Many important matters of legislation that vitally affect the people of not only the United States, but of the world, have come before the Congress this week, and their consideration has necessitated the holding of night sessions.

Since Tuesday, June 27th, the House has been engaged in debate on the so-called "Bloom Neutrality Bill" and, in response to insistent demands of hundreds of citizens of the Sixth Congressional District, I have spoken before the House in opposition to the enactment of this law.

A reading of the mail from all over the country received by members of Congress, clearly indicates that there is a tremendous demand on the part of the people that this Congress enact a neutrality law that will tend to keep this nation out of war without exception.

The administration is demanding the passage of the "Bloom Bill" and, perhaps, before this communication is published in the papers, it will have been stamped in the House by a "rubber stamp" majority, acting under the whip and lash of administration leaders. It is worthy of note, however, that due to the militant fight on the floor of the House made by both Republicans and Democrats, the will and attitude of the common people has been very definitely expressed.

I was privileged to speak on this bill, and presented my convictions against its enactment before the House, and have no hesitancy in saying that if this bill passes in the form that it was originally offered, it will be a direct intervention by the United States into the affairs of foreign countries in Europe and instead of promoting the objects and purposes of peace, may be the very instrument that will promote incidents that inevitably drag us to war.

No one can be here as a member of Congress and not clearly see that this neutrality legislation, with other legislation that is proposed, is definitely intended not to keep us out of war, but to lay down rules and regulations to govern the conduct of Americans after we get into war. I believe the people of the Sixth Congressional District are entitled to know that despite all of the propaganda involved in the discussion or the question of neutrality, that the finest and safest thing that the Congress can do is to implement international law by writing definite prohibitions that will stop the incidents, such as the sinking of the Lusitania (that had a definite influence in forcing our entrance into the last World War).

The "Bloom Bill" would permit American munitions makers to sell to warring European nations all the arms and munitions they want, provided they pay for them before they are shipped. Any sensible person knows, however, that these arms and munitions will have to be shipped, and the country was led to believe that they could only be shipped in foreign vessels, manned by foreign sea-men. The fact is, however, that although arms and munitions, in international law, are regarded as contraband—when shipped to warring nations—and are subject to being seized or sunk on the high-seas, the "Bloom Bill" would permit this nation to export contraband to belligerent nations involved in war and permit such contraband to be shipped in AMERICAN SHIPS, MANNED BY AMERICAN SEA-MEN. It would, thus, permit an American ship to sail for a port of a warring nation, and—if captured or sunk, with resultant loss of life to American sea-men—an incident would be provoked of the type and character that led us into the last World War.

Beyond this, the administration proposal, in a separate bill, would create a war risk insurance company, to be financed by an appropriation of $100,000,000 of the taxpayers' money, to insure American ships and American sea-men transporting cargoes of contraband to nations of war, and it will be borne in mind that such cargoes would be the property of foreign governments because they could not be shipped until paid for. The administration proposal, further, would permit the insurance of foreign vessels carrying arms and munitions from this country, in which no citizen of America could have any possible interest, and—if such ship were sunk—the taxpayers of America would be called upon to pay the bill. I shall oppose this legislation as vigorously as I can—as I believe that such would be an unneutral act on our part and a needless and unnecessary and ridiculous burden to put upon the taxpayers of this nation.

I regret that the limitation of space does not permit a more extended review of this situation, but I want the people of the Sixth Congressional District to know exactly what my stand as their representative is on this very important public question.

Greens are valuable for minerals and vitamins, and some kind of these leafy, green vegetables should be served the year around.

Assemblyman
Jos. A. Schmitz
Wisconsin Legislature,
Madison

FLOOD HORICON MARSH

The legislature passed a resolution by Senator Peters urging that the conservation commission cooperate with the U. S. Biological Survey to work out the details of a program to flood the Horicon marsh. Under the Pittman-Robertson Act $100,000 is available at Washington for projects of this kind in Wisconsin, provided that the federal grant will be matched with state funds.

The people of Washington as well as other neighboring counties are all anxious to have the Horicon marsh flooded and to see it converted into a wild life refuge and public hunting and fishing area. It is hoped that this resolution will help to conciliate the differences between the owners of the land to be flooded and the sportsmen who desire the flooding.

MILK CONTROL BILL

Characteristic of the inability of farmers to come to an agreement on matters of milk control and moisture content of cheese, the agricultural members of the legislature spent almost two half days arguing over these questions in the assembly during the past week.

It was finally agreed to continue the fluid milk control and price fixing law for another two-year emergency period following expiration of the act on December 31 of this year. This law was originally enacted in 1933 and has been kept on the statute books ever since by succeeding legislatures in order to stabilize the fluid milk market in regulated areas which now number 33. Other features of the bill are:

1. Fixing a definite termination date as of Dec. 31, 1941, instead of making the provisions a permanent feature of the statutes, or at least until the state department of agriculture decides that the emergency has ceased.

2. Enabling the state to fix prices for fluid milk and cream sold at retail on the farm where produced, in excess of 10 quarts daily, but taking into consideration a proper differential between the retail delivery price to consumers and the market price obtained by delivering to distributors.

3. Imposing a yearly license fee of $1. or a special license of 50 cents for retail sales on farms for shorter periods. Regular distributors now pay $10 for a full year license and $5 for a seasonal permit. The object of this amendment is to give the department control over the sanitary conditions of farmers who sell their product direct to the cash-and-carry customers as some have recently done as a result of the lowered retail prices.

4. A provision authorizing the department of agriculture to establish a ratio between fluid milk prices and general dairy prices so that the fluid milk prices will fluctuate with the change in general dairy prices.

5. An amendment assuring the farmers of at least 50% of the retail price paid by consumers for their milk.

6. Conferring on the department of agriculture and markets the power to fix the price the producer and retailer shall receive for their milk in the regulated communities throughout the state.

The cheese discussion brought out much debate as to whether the moisture content thereof should be raised from 39 to 45%. This was in the form of a resolution to Congress asking that body to change the present law, which prohibits the transportation in interstate commerce of any cheese with a moisture content in excess of 39% to 45%.

TAXING MOTOR TRUCKS

The assembly passed and sent to the senate a bill permitting reciprocal agreements between Wisconsin and other states on the licensing and taxing of motor trucks. The bill enables the governor and secretary of state to enter into agreements for a mutual exemption of trucks from foreign licenses when traveling beyond the home state borders.

APPOINTED TO COMMISSION

The appointment of Attorney William J. P. Aberg of Madison, and president of the Isaak Walton League of Wisconsin, to the state conservation commission on the part of Gov. Heil is well merited. There has not been a more ardent booster of conservation, especially in the fight to restore Horicon marsh and in drafting conservation legislation in the interests of the public. Because of his unquestioned ability and qualifications the senate is expected to confirm the appointment.

DELINQUENT TAX BILL

The legislature sent to Gov. Heil for his signature a bill allowing taxes which are delinquent up to July 1, 1939, to be settled by compromise or by installment payments. The present law allows this privilege on taxes which were delinquent up to July 1, 1937.

The Hessian fly traces its ancestry back to the Revolutionary War. Hessian soldiers brought along straw from Germany for their horses, and lodged in the straw were a few Hessian flies which have since become serious pests to wheat growers in this country.

Authorities report that wood stains penetrate the surface without forming a substantial coating. As stains do not used to best advantage when the appearance of a weatherbeaten surface is not objectionable. One coat only is the usual application.

Accompanying the decline in the prices of farm products during the past year, a decline is also experienced in the values of farm land.
