HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Behind the Curtain"

YOU know, boys and girls, Old Lady Adventure has some funny ways of sneaking up on a guy. Sometimes she just comes up behind your back, and sometimes she drops on you from above. And there are times, too, when she comes walking right up to you from the front, and you don't try to get out of her way because she is in disguise and you don't recognize her.

That's the way it was with John Hoven, New York city. You know, John started his adventuring career as a sailor before the mast, and every sailor has half a dozen or more adventures he can tell you about. But the one John remembers best is his first one—a thrill he got in 1894, and still remembers.

It happened when John's ship called at the port of San Lucar, Spain, to take on a cargo of lead. It was the 18th of November when they arrived there, but the weather was still warm and balmy. In the evening, most of the crew went ashore to see the sights of the town. John went too—and that's when Old Lady Adventure walked up and grabbed him.

You know, I said that the old girl with the thrill bag sneaked up on John in disguise. She did. She came in the clothes customarily worn by another lady known to the world as Little Rosie Romance. And John never knew the difference until it was too late.

On their way into town, the sailors from the ship stopped to watch a group of Spanish señoritas and señors dancing their native dances. John says he thinks the dance they were doing was the fandango. Anyway, it was the sort of dance in which a señorita who wants a new partner, just throws her shawl around the neck of some bird on the sidelines who looks good to her. John was standing pretty close to the platform where the dancing was going on, and the first thing you know a shawl was looped around his neck.

John Adds Fandango to His Accomplishments.

New John says he never was much of a dancer, and fandango went out of his class. But this girl was a beauty, and one look from her big round eyes had John feeling that he'd dance in a barrel of red hot nails if it would please her any. "I got away with the dance somehow," he says, "and then she left the platform and motioned me to come along. She led me to a little cafe—a two-story building with a lot of tables and chairs out in the open and a big canopy sloping down the side of the wall. There was a big bay window above this canopy and a small side entrance led to the room above."

On that bed lay a dead man, his throat slashed, and blood dripping all over the floor.

The girl led John into that side entrance. He followed her up the stairs and into a big room on the second floor. "She spoke to me in Spanish," John says, "but I couldn't understand a word. However, I said, 'Si, Si,' to everything she said. She smiled, and so did I. Then she opened a cupboard, brought out some wine glasses and an empty bottle and made a motion meaning that she was going to take the bottle and have it filled. Then she left the room."

John could hardly believe his luck. When the girl was gone he began to look around the room. There was an alcove at one end, with portiers drawn across it. He walked over and peeped through these curtains—and right there John got the shock of his life. In the alcove was a bed, and on that bed lay a dead man, his throat slashed, and blood dripping all over the floor!

"I felt a chill run up my spine," he says, "and for a minute I was so stiff I couldn't move. I turned away from the grisly sight in the alcove and ran toward the door. I turned the knob, but the door didn't give. It was locked!"

John ran to the window—and what he saw there made the hair stand straight up on his head. Down below in the street was the girl, coming back—and with her were two big husky Spanish policemen. John says that thousands of thoughts ran through his head then, but the principal one was the realization that he was the victim of a frame-up. That girl had killed a man and was going to put the blame on him!

Says he: "I knew my only chance lay in getting out of that room. The girl and the policemen were almost to the door now. I waited until they were all in the hallway, and then I threw open the window. They would be opening the door of the room at any moment, and I had to hurry. Swiftly climbing through the window, I slid down the canopy below it."

John Finds Dagger in Coat Pocket.

"It was only a drop of about ten feet to the ground, and the minute I felt earth under my feet I ran like a deer for the waterfront. I reached it all out of breath, for I had never stopped running the entire distance of almost a mile. I went aboard ship and sneaked below. Once in the forecabin I stopped to catch my breath again. I was still shaking like a leaf. I started to remove my coat and felt something in the pocket. I took it out. It was a double-edged dagger, about eight inches long, with a hollow groove in the middle."

Just another link in the chain of evidence against John. The girl had planted that knife in his pocket to make the case against him all the stronger. He hid the thing under his mattress and tried to calm his jumpy nerves. And just then one of John's shipmates came into the forecabin. "Say, what's the matter with you?" he wanted to know. "You look pale as a ghost, and I saw you running."

Well sir, John says he knew he could trust this pal of his so he blurted out the whole story. And his shipmate laughed. "Why," he said, "you just fell for an old swindle. I thought it had been played out long ago in these parts. That was only a dummy you saw in the room, and the blood was probably catsup or something. The police were fakers, and all they wanted to do was make you give them all your money to keep them quiet. Don't play around with any of those Spanish señoritas. You're playing with fire if you do."

Ricksha, Oriental Gadget, Invented by American Sailor

The marines have staked out one more claim to fame by establishing the fact that the ricksha that furnishes a living for thousands of coolies in China, Japan and Singapore was the invention of a member of the corps.

It came about in this fashion, the corp official bulletin states:

Private Jonathan Goble, of the marine detachment on the U. S. S. Susquehanna, one of the ships in Commodore Perry's fleet which visited Japan in 1854, conceived the idea.

Goble had been a farmer in New York before he entered the marine corps in 1851 at the age of 24. He remained in the service four years.

Just when Goble conceived his idea of the girnikisha is not known, but after leaving the marine corps, and returning to Japan as a missionary, he suggested to the Japanese the idea of making these enlarged go-carts a means of conveyance.

The first ricksha, constructed as a result of his suggestion, made its appearance in Japan in 1867, and subsequently its use spread to nearly all the countries of the Far East.

DOLLAR MAKERS Cold Details Seldom Make Great Appeal

By GEORGE T. EAGER

FROM time to time government officials seek to impose restrictions on advertising and make advertisements cold, logical presentations of technical information. They believe that logical reasons for buying would be more productive than emotional appeals.

In appealing to the emotions of readers advertising men are merely taking advantage of facts that famous writers and philosophers have known for centuries. Roamez said, "Reasons come afterward, but at first a thing pleases or shocks me without my knowing the reason."

Wilkie Collins, the famous English novelist, when asked for his rules for writing successful novels, said "Make them laugh, make them cry, make them wait."

The great French writer, De Maupassant, said, "The public in general is composed of numerous groups who cry, 'console me, amuse me, sadden me, fill me with tenderness, make me laugh, make me tremble, make me weep, make me think!'"

Some time ago two radio manufacturers published full page advertisements in farm papers. The first manufacturer devoted his entire advertisement to telling of the technical excellences of his product. The second manufacturer headed his advertisement, "Why Do Your Children Leave the Farm?" said a few words about keeping children at home through entertainment and finally told about the excellence of his product. The emotional appeal produced many times more sales than the logical reason-why appeal.

ADS COMBAT FIXED HABITS

THE American standard of living is the highest in the world. One of the most interesting things about it is the fact that the public seldom takes the initiative in demanding new and improved products. It has always been a man with a new idea—something to sell—who has made the improvements and offered them to the public through advertising. Gradually the public has accepted the new idea and a new standard has been established from which to start still further improvements.

Our mothers and fathers gladly accepted crackers scooped out of a barrel into a paper bag. Then someone conceived the idea of crackers boxed in moisture proof paper, trademarked and sold for five cents a package. The new idea was advertised, the public accepted it and a whole new industry was created.

This conception of advertising as the most economical means of offering a new and better idea to the public explains many so-called failures of advertising. Such failures are due to the fact that advertising is often used to offer an idea, product or service that is not interesting to the public or because the new idea is not kept before the public for a long enough period of time for consumers to thoroughly understand and appreciate it.

Twenty years ago a large insurance company spent a large sum of money offering a new type of policy. Results were not satisfactory and the officers of the company said, "Advertising of insurance is a failure and we will never spend another penny in advertising." It was later learned that the policy offered in the advertising was not popular and five years later had completely disappeared from the insurance business.

PULLMAN, WASH.—Because bacteria do not breathe but absorb materials only in solutions, effective disinfection for fumigation is difficult and rarely succeeds, according to Dr. Ernest C. McCulloch, research veterinarian of Washington State college.

For many years early bacteriologists did not know that disinfection must be carried out by means of solutions. They attempted to kill bacteria by fumigation. Dr. McCulloch said, "Formaldehyde vapors or the fumes of burning sulphur were used."

Prologue to Love

By MARTHA OSTENSO

Linda Parr had turned large and wondering eyes upon the Laird. "It's a Dean," she ventured, "but the whole affair is quite accidental and we regret it quite as much as you do. We probably regret it more, since it was we who had to sleep out. On the other hand, young people are quite capable of taking care of themselves nowadays."

Autumn was amazed at Linda's sudden glare. At the quick glare of the old man's eyes, however, the girl ceased abruptly, and biting her lip, looked rather hopelessly toward Autumn.

"I'll not have my daughter's name bandied about the country as though she were a common strumpet!" the Laird roared, and brought his hands down resoundingly upon the arms of his chair.

Linda got to her feet with characteristic languor, and begging to be excused, left the room and went upstairs. Autumn surmised, with a cynical affection for the girl, that it was the desire for a cigarette that sent her off, rather than any marked distaste for the scene.

"You are carrying on quite unnecessarily, Father," Autumn objected quietly when Linda had gone. "It isn't good for you—and I'm surprised that you should treat such a simple situation so seriously."

"Simple? Simple? That was almost inarticulate. 'Have you no sense of decency, girl? You put yourself in a position where men engage in a brawl over you in a gambling dive—and you call that simple!'"

"I have tried to explain to you, Father, that it was an accident," Autumn persisted. "We were miles from anywhere. What on earth were we to do, at three o'clock in the morning?"

The Laird drew himself up and his nostrils flared in the magnificence of his indignation. "You had no business being there—or anywhere else but in your bed at three o'clock in the morning. And I'll have no more of it!"

Autumn's eyes narrowed. She glanced sharply at Hector, who was slumped wearily in his chair. "What do you propose to do, Father?" she asked finally in a cold voice. "Keep me under lock and key?"

A dull flush lay like a sultry shadow on the old man's cheekbones. Autumn knew that her words had started the ripples of an old and cruel memory in the depths of his consciousness, and for a moment she was sorry for what she had said.

For some moments Jarvis did not reply to her question. Then, his mouth grimly set, he pronounced his ultimatum. "You will conduct yourself from now on like a lady—or back you go to where you came from! I'll not have the Dean name made the cause of drunken brawls in public dives!"

Autumn got angrily to her feet. In that moment, all the wretchedness of those long summer weeks came back upon her, those weeks of striving to tear the love of Bruce Landor from her heart, and instantly her regret for the pain she was causing her father retreated.

She confronted him now with wide, blazing eyes. "The Dean name!" she said. "That's what's behind all this! It isn't what will happen to me that you are thinking about. You know I can look after myself. I've done it for years without giving you anything to worry about. But the Dean name must be defended! It hurts your pride to see it defended by Bruce Landor. You have been living in the past so long that it's more real to you and more important to you than your own daughter. Well, let me tell you, Da—

"I don't give a damn for a name that needs defending. I've suffered what you will never know—ever since I came back—defending the Dean name. I can't go on—I won't go on! Let the name of Dean—"

The Laird was on his feet instantly, his huge frame trembling with emotion. "Stop it!" he cried. "Stop it! You've gone far enough. You've gone—far—enough!"

Autumn stared at an instant starting at him. He seemed to have gone suddenly feeble, defeated. He turned away from her and stretched his hand out to support himself by the mantelpiece. His body appeared to crumple forward, to sag and dwindle as though shrinking from a blow. In that moment Autumn's compassion for him rose again, and her impulse was to go to him and throw her arms about him in an effort to make peace between them. But Hector was already beside him and was waving her away. She turned silently and left the room.

Long after Linda was asleep in the room next her own, and the house stood in its dark silence, Autumn lay awake, turning over and over in her mind the restive thoughts that had had their inception in that disconcerting clash with her father. At last, unable to bear any longer the coming darkness of her own room where thinking had become a torment, she got up and put on a dressing-gown and slippers.

Noislessly, Autumn went out into the hall. Her father's hound, Saint Pat, who slept on a mat outside the Laird's door, rose at her approach, but she caressed him reassuringly, and he flung himself down again and Autumn continued on down the stairs and out of the house.

She strolled quietly to a secluded nook in the garden where, within the circle of flowering mock-orange trees, her mother's bronze sundial still stood on its low pedestal. Here the smell of roses lay in a still, dark pool of heavy sweetness; in the purple field of the sky over her head the stars leaned down, a white blur stooping to the fainter nimbus of the white and yellow roses. Here days and nights of her last summer. It was because of Millicent that old Hannah had kept the retreat unchanged; it held still the spellbound air of plaintive sanctuary.

Autumn seated herself on a bench beside the sundial and gathered her robe closely about her. A curious vacillancy seemed to possess her mind now, a receptivity to some strange reassurance, to some strong and calming influence that drifted in upon her from the sweet cloistered gloom of the lowery crypt that had been her mother's. A quieting affirmation was growing upon Autumn. Millicent Odell was living again, rising above her own tragedy and that of Jarvis Dean and Geoffrey Landor, and the poor, unhappy Jane. Autumn closed her eyes in the buoyancy of her spirit, where love for Bruce was an inevitable and inexorable predestination of life that Jarvis Dean's opposition could neither change nor destroy.

She was startled suddenly out of her absorption by a sound behind her. Turning quickly, she saw Hector Cardigan standing within the dimness of the crypt.

"Hector!" she said softly. "What ever brings you out at this time of night?"

He chuckled in an embarrassed way. "It isn't the first time I've prowled around here," he said in a low, oddly strained voice. "But it's the first time I've been caught at it."

She did not have to ask why he had come. Millicent lived for him here, as she was living for Autumn herself.

"I couldn't sleep," she told him, "—after that scene with father."

Hector came and seated himself on the bench beside her. "It was rather bad, wasn't it?" he said heavily. "But I think I warned you that your father would be difficult, though I had not foreseen—quite this, I confess."

"What am I to do?" she asked him.

"You will know that yourself—better than I can tell you," he replied.

Autumn plucked a blossom from a low-hanging branch and held it to her lips. "I love father," she said simply, "and I love everything I have come home to. I don't want to leave it."

Hector was silent for a moment. Then, as though he were talking to some third person who was present beside them, he said, "Autumn is in love with Geoffrey's son."

She straightened herself involuntarily against the weird sensation that had come over her.

"Is it so evident as that, Hector?" she said.

"The past is repeating itself," he said. "My eyes are not too old to see that."

"It is the past that has come between us, Hector—between Bruce and me," she said.

Hector leaned forward and patted the back of one hand against the palm of the other. "I shall have something to say about that, my dear, when the time comes that I must."

Autumn stared at the ghostly blur of a heavily flowered white rose bush. "If you had told me all you knew—when I first came home," she said, "we might have been spared much of what happened tonight."

Hector drew a deep and unhappy breath. "You forget, my child, that there is such a thing as loyalty still left in the lives of some of us," he said. "If I did not tell you everything I knew, it was because I could not tell it."

"It doesn't matter, after all," she said. "It is too late now."

"On the contrary," he replied, "it is still too soon."

Autumn shifted impatiently. "How long must you hold your silence, then?" she asked him.

"Until I can hold it no longer," he replied.

A slight wind stirred in the tree above them, and a shower of white petals fell on the grass at their feet.

On the following morning, when Linda telephoned to the Landor place with the intention of paying Bruce a visit during the day, the Breman, Andrew Gilly, informed her that Bruce had gone to Vancouver and that she would not cover on business and would not be back until the end of the week.

"So that will be that!" Linda observed, stretching herself on the served, stretching herself on the couch in the sunlit drawing room and opening a volume of French verse which she had brought down from Autumn's room.

"What's the matter now, Lin?" Autumn asked, turning from the piano.

"It's a bad sign when a girl begins to live vicariously in erotic poetry," she said.

"At least, it saves one a lot of trouble," Autumn remarked.

"And leaves you where you started. There's a little satisfaction in trouble, at any rate. It has the spice of variety in it, if nothing else. I'm dying of nothing to do, Autumn. You can at least work up a good fight in your own family now and then."

Autumn stared moodily at the floor. "I'm not particularly proud of that," she said. "It was rather a mess—the whole affair—innocent as it was."

In her preoccupation with the new evidence she had had of her father's strange fixation, she was scarcely aware of what she said. But Linda must be given no inkling of the shadow that lay over her mind.

"I'd love a mess," Linda commented dreamily, "so long as I could have Bruce Landor to champion me. You're an unappreciative wench, Autumn."

Autumn got abruptly to her feet and went over to the window and stood looking out into the garden, where she had experienced so strange an exaltation the night before.

Now, in the spread of the midsummer morning, she knew that that almost supernatural assurance of the night in the garden had been a delusion. There was nothing for her to do but carry on, for her fore it gets too warm," she suggested.

Linda stretched in sinuous luxury across from the couch. "Which—being interpreted—means, for heaven's sake, lay off!" she said, and went with Autumn to prepare for the ride.

On the following morning, Bruce Landor's foreman drove his car in the gates of the Castle. Linda Parr had departed for home only an hour before, and Autumn was cutting roses in the secluded recess of the garden. It was no usual thing for Bruce Landor's foreman to visit the Dean ranch, and a swift shock of apprehensiveness for Bruce passed through her. She gathered her flowers together at once and went to the house.

In the yard before the door, Bruce's foreman was talking with Tom Willmar, Autumn hesitated for a moment, but at an odd glance from Tom she stepped down and approached the men.

Andrew Gilly turned his cap awkwardly about in his hands as she came up to him. His expression was one of utter distraction.

"Good morning, Miss Dean," he greeted her.

"No," Gilly replied, "he hasn't. And I'm in no hurry to see him, either. I'll have very bad news for him when he comes."

"Bad news? What has happened?" Autumn asked.

Tom Willmar cleared his throat. "Gilly found over thirty of his sheep dead in the pasture this morning," he told her.

Autumn clutched her flowers tightly in her hands that had gone suddenly cold. "Not—his prize sheep—the Merinos he was experimenting with?" she asked breathlessly.

"The same," said Tom Willmar. "Poisoned, they were. Poisoned with strychnine in the salt trough."

"You'll come nearly breaking the boy's heart," Gilly observed in a voice that was shaken with agitation.

"Oh!" Autumn felt an abrupt stricture in her throat that made further speech impossible.

"I come over to see if you folks had had any trouble," Andrew Gilly went on, "but Tom tells me there's been none of it here."

"No," said Tom quietly. "There's been a bit of vetch about that's—"

"Nature had no hand in this," Andrew interrupted. "It was a sneak that did it—and he must 'a' crawled on his stomach during the night to get to the trough or the dogs would've been at him."

"Have you any idea who did it?" Autumn asked faintly. It seemed to her that her heart had sunk entirely out of her body.

The man had the sensibility to avoid her eyes. He looked away, but the expression that came to his weathered face was one of bitter fury.

"I have my own opinion," he said significantly, "and I think I'm not far wrong. I think the boy will agree with me, too. Though a lot of good that will do either of us. There's no proof—not a whit!"

Autumn knew that he was thinking of her father. "You suspect Belford, don't you, Mr. Gilly?" she asked bluntly.

He gave her a direct look from eyes that were angrily misty. "You can make a shrewd guess," he said. "There's no doubt in my mind—and that's something more than a suspicion."

Tom shook his head. "It'll be a tough job to get anything on Curly Belford's gang," he remarked.

"Gosh, what a shame!" Autumn stood for a moment helplessly trying to beat back the tears that sprang to her eyes. Then, her emotions collapsing within her, she turned and fled into the house.

As she did so, Jarvis Dean came slowly up the path from the corral, Saint Pat at his heels.

Andros Notable Figure

In Early Boston History

Sir Edmund Andros, who was born on the island of Guernsey, in the Channel islands, on December 6, 1637, and who died in London in February, 1714, left his marks on American history. As a friend of the duke of York, brother of the king, went to New York as governor in 1681, remaining there until 1684, writes a correspondent to the Detroit News. Five years later he returned to the Colonies, to carry out James II's idea of consolidating the New England colonies into one royal province.

When he heard of the landing of William of Orange in England in 1689, the people of Boston rose and seized the royal officers, including Andros himself. He was returned to England for trial but acquitted, and in 1692 was appointed governor of Virginia, where for five years he had considerable success. From 1704 to 1706 he was lieutenant-governor of Guernsey. "The Dictionary of American Biography" says that "though not popular with advocates of democratic government, nevertheless, he was one of the ablest English colonial governors of the Seventeenth century." He was essentially a soldier, and where soldierly qualities were needed his rule was excellent; but he lacked understanding of business affairs and of Puritan psychology.

Chopping Nuts.—When finely chopped nuts are needed for cakes, salads or sandwiches run the nuts through a food-chopping machine.

Read the labels on canned foods. Many tell the number of slices contained in the can. Others give additional useful information about the contents.

Picking Lemons.—Lemons that have a fine-textured skin and are heavy for their size are usually of a better quality and have more juice than those that are coarse-textured and light in weight.

Protect House Plants.—Drafts of cold air or night temperatures that approach freezing handicap house plants. It is best to remove them from windows for the night.

About Grapefruit.—A soft, discolored area at the stem end of a grapefruit indicates decay and decay, even in one small spot, will affect the flavor of the whole fruit.

Attractive Centerpiece.—A wooden salad bowl of the old-fashioned chopping variety makes an attractive centerpiece for the holiday party if it is filled with appetizers assorted. Surround the bowl with holly, pine and mistletoe sprigs.

Ventilate Kitchen.—The following bad air conditions in a kitchen may cause fatigue: Not enough oxygen or an excess of carbon dioxide, and the presence of carbon monoxide, excessive moisture and excessive heat. The kitchen, more than any other room, requires frequent ventilation.

Patchwork border for lunch cloth.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THE new uses for crazypatch stitches in Sewing Book 3 have aroused so much interest that it set us to thinking of smart new ways to use pieced quilt block designs. This border pieced of small patterned cotton prints of all kinds and colors put together with red and blue strips is the result. It is very striking and decorative for lunch cloth shown here which, by the way, is made of unbleached muslin bags. The seams where the bags are joined to make the cloth the desired size are covered with straight 1-inch bands of the red and blue material as shown at the right.

The diagram at the lower left shows you how to make a pattern for the blue, red and print pieces. Cut a triangle of stiff paper 4 1/2 inches high and 7 inches wide at the base. Mark the blue strip 1 inch wide along the left edge as shown and then the red strip joining it on the right edge. Now cut away the top and lower right corners as shown. Cut the red, blue and print sections apart and use them for patterns in cutting the fabric pieces adding 1/4-inch seam at all edges.

NOTE: Readers who are now using Sewing Books No. 1, 2 and 3 will be happy to learn that No. 4 is ready for mailing; as well as the 10-cent editions of No. 1, 2 and 3. Mrs. Spears has just made quilt block patterns for three designs selected from her favorite Early American quilts. You may have these patterns FREE with your order for four books. Price of books—10 cents each postpaid. Set of three quilt block patterns without books—10 cents. Send orders to Mrs. Spears, Drawer 10, Bedford Hills, New York.

Pamela's Enthusiasm Was Wasted on John
John felt that he could never ask Pamela to be his wife. True, he loved her as he had never loved anyone else before, but then she was an angel, while he had many little weaknesses of which no angel would ever approve. Pamela, on the other hand, spent her time thinking that it was high time John popped the question!
One night he came to the point. "Pamela, Pamela," he urged, "will you marry me?"
"You bet," she replied briskly. "I know, darling," he answered, ashamed. "But if you'll only say 'Yes,' I'll promise never to back another horse!"

 The Washington County Barley Improvement meeting will be held in the Jackson village hall on Tuesday, Jan. 9. The meeting will begin at 10:00 a. m.
 Every step in barley growing will be considered and discussed at this barley growers' conference. Among those scheduled to speak at this barley improvement meeting will be George Briggs, R. A. Vaughan, and J. G. Dickson, all of the College of Agriculture.
 Barley growers are invited to attend the meeting and to bring in one quart samples for examination. Such examinations are for the purpose of detecting mixtures with two-rowed varieties and for market qualities. Your participation in and cooperation with these

DAIRY PROMOTION MEETING
 A meeting of Washington county dairy plant operators and dairy farmers will be held in the court house at West Bend on Thursday, Dec. 28th, at 1:30 o'clock, to consider proposed dairy promotion policies. Similar meetings are being held in all counties of the state. These meetings are of vital interest to both milk handlers and milk producers and are held under the auspices of the Wisconsin Dairy Industries' association. Anyone interested in the dairy industry is urged to attend.

BANG'S TESTING INDEMNITY
 Many questions have recently been received at the agricultural extension office concerning the payment of indemnities under the federal Bang's testing program, hence this item of explanation.
 The limited funds available at the present time makes it possible for the state to pay indemnities on herds only under contract now, but not for new herds signed up for future testing.
 Any cattle owner wishing to have his herd tested may do so and in the future, if and when funds are available, the herds will be assigned for indemnity payments in the order in which the herds were tested.

County Agent Notes

TREE SEEDLINGS
 Farmers who want evergreen or hardwood seedlings for next spring's planting must place their orders before Jan. 1st. Orders must be accepted after that date. The seedlings available are two-year-old nursery stock of evergreen and hardwood varieties, and one-year-old seedlings—free upon payment of shipping charges. Any one wishing to plant in such seedlings for reforestation planting, must place their request with the county extension office before Jan. 1, 1940.

ORDER AGRICULTURAL LIME NOW
 The production of agricultural lime is going on at full capacity in a quarry east of Rockfield. The stone which is being pulverized is ideally suited for the production of barn or field lime. Orders can be filled within a few days after they are received. The price in truck load lots of about four tons is $1.40 per ton delivered to your farm for the distance of ten miles or less from the quarry. For greater distances the price is slightly higher. This lime fulfills Milwaukee or Chicago dairy inspection requirements.

FRUIT GROWERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING
 The annual meeting of the Washington County Fruit Growers was held in the Jackson village hall last Thursday. The morning session of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of the business of the association and the election of the officers for the coming year. Those elected were: President, Joe Morawetz, Route 4, West Bend; vice-president, Elias Koop, Route 3, West Bend; secretary-treasurer, E. E. Skallskey, county agent; delegates to Skallskey, county agent; delegate to G. L. Kuehner, farm orchard specialist, College of Agriculture; H. J. LAND USE PLANNING
 The organization meeting of the county land use planning committee was held in the court house, West Bend, on Thursday evening of this week.
 Land use planning, as was mentioned in these columns last week, is work which is sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Its primary purpose is to determine as nearly as possible the agricultural goals of a county. It is also to help plan a system of land uses which will enable these goals to be reached. This is to be accomplished by compiling the constructive suggestions of nearly two hundred men and women who will serve on community and county committees. Out of these suggestions should develop sound and practical plans for the utilization of the land in the rural areas of Washington county.

THE HAPPINESS OF PEACE

SAFETY PRESERVES HAPPINESS

PRESERVE THE GREAT AMERICAN CHRISTMAS

By FRED W. BRAUN
 The Safety Man
 Compare the happy, peaceful Christmas America will enjoy this year with that of war-torn European countries—countries in which Christmas has for ages, been celebrated with traditional safety and enjoyment—a day filled with age-old customs, many of which were brought to America by our forefathers and have become established customs here. We will enjoy them this year as usual. They will be missed by the people of Europe because "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" has been forgotten for the moment. Let us be thankful for the happiness that is ours as Americans! Let us preserve it by keeping America free from those elements that destroy it.
 We in America do have one danger to face in our daily lives—the danger of accidents—the one menace that stands ready to destroy our happiness at the first slip of carelessness. In the factory, on the road, in the home, the danger of accident exists night and day. Nearly 100,000 lives were snuffed out many thousands of them by automobile accident. Let us checkmate this danger by carefulness! Whatever you do, wherever you go—especially in your car during the holidays, BE CAREFUL! Driving conditions, especially in snow, sleet, and fog, should be considered and your speed and alertness gauged accordingly. America is free from the destructive forces of war—keep your home, your family, and yourself free from the danger of accident!

We wish you all

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Russia's Ouster From League Is Empty Victory for Finland Because Geneva Is Powerless

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

They Figured in the Battle of Nations

JOSEPH AVENOL

Secretary-general of the League, he called the special session of Finland's best after the little Baltic nation was invaded by Russia.

VIACHESLAV MOLOTOV

Premier of Russia, he replied bluntly by referring Avenol to an earlier Soviet message which said Russia considered Finland's appeal "unfounded."

KARL RAMBRØ

League assembly president and representative of Norway, he was among leading pro-Finnish workers who argued for Russia's expulsion following receipt of Molotov's message.

JAKOB SURITS

Russian ambassador to France and delegate to the League, he packed his bags and left Geneva silently while the forces of democracy cheered.

TREND

SLASHED—Cotton export subsidy rate, for second time in a week, from four-tenths of a cent to two-tenths of a cent.

MODIFIED—To pacify Nazis, Sweden formed a new government under Premier Albin Hansson, retiring Foreign Minister Richard Sandler who had drawn German wrath.

EXCLUDED—Mexican participation in the new low tariff on U. S. crude oil imports, as provided in the new trade pact with Venezuela. Reason: Mexico has expropriated U. S.-owned oil wells.

RAISED—U. S. tariffs on imports from Danzig and Poland now controlled by Germany, which pays a higher duty on exports to the U. S. than any other nation.

WHITE HOUSE: Trade Pact

At his press conference President Roosevelt nixed his ship of state smack into a brewing storm that will break soon after congress convenes.

Received a message from Finnish President Kyosti Kallio thanking him for his sympathy toward Finland. (The President announced the Red Cross is sending $500,000 for Finnish aid; meanwhile the Finns were negotiating to buy gas masks here.)

Joined California's Rep. H. Jerry Voorhis in attacking the Dies un-Americanism committee (of which Voorhis is a member) for the "undemocratic" way in which it released a report charging 13 consumer organizations with communist activities.

Attended the White House diplomatic reception where assembled the Washington envoys of warring Finland and Russia, Germany and France, Japan and China.

THE NEUTRALS: Flight From Rome

In non-warring European nations, news was made by:

Russia's Ambassador to Italy Nicolai Golezhnik, who arrived in Rome just as Soviet troops reached the Finnish frontier, and left abruptly for home without waiting to present his credentials.

Italy's Editor Virginio Gayda, who hinted how Britain might win and his nation's support. Said he: Italy must have "certain free exits," all of which (Dardanelles, Suez and Gibraltar) are now controlled by Britain.

An explosion in Rumania's cellulose plant at Zarnesti, killing 80, injuring 200. Following quick on the heels of train wrecks and oil plant fires, the incident was blamed on "foreign agents" who are pressing Rumania from all sides.

LABOR: NLRB Probe

Introduced before the house committee investigating the national labor relations board was evidence designed to show NLRB is badly in need of a housecleaning.

Senator Borah, who charges of bias on the part of fellow board members (Edwin L. Smith and Warren Madden) were interspersed with revelations from the board's correspondence files.

Crux of the holding company act is a "death sentence" clause providing for integration of all utility systems geographically and economically.

NAMES ... in the news

Buried: Screen Actor Douglas Fairbanks, Drug Magnate Charles Walgreen and Michigan's G. O. P. Rep. Carl E. Mapp.

Made political news: New York's Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., who announced he would enter the 1940 G. O. P. presidential race; Candidate Tom Dewey, who planned a New England drive; Idaho's isolationist Sen. William Borah, who fought a plan to sidetrack foreign policy as a campaign issue.

New job: Bishop John F. O'Hara, who relinquished presidency of Notre Dame university to become auxiliary army and navy bishop of the U. S. under papal appointment.

Bruckart's Washington Digest Some Good May Come to America Out of Awful Finnish Catastrophe

Mask Pulled Off Communism in United States and Left It Thoroughly Damned; Ways of Helping Finland Freely Discussed in Washington.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Press and radio have been filled for days with news of the cowardly and ruthless attack by Russia upon the sickeningly harmless Finns.

For one thing, the latest sor-did page in Soviet history has pulled the mask off of communism. It has left communism standing before Americans, nude and thoroughly damned, with its hands dripping with human blood, with gory filth oozing from every pore, and its true rapacious character exposed to the last grimy detail.

Moreover, the Soviet destruction, or near-destruction, of the helpless Finns has posed questions to be answered in this country by a good many thousands who have held up communism as the acme in government theory. Those folks now are called upon to attempt a justification of the great "liberalism" which has used miserable excuses to invade and bomb and mutilate.

Another thing that is happening and it is taking on quite a bit of steam is the demand that the United States recall our ambassador, cut loose the diplomatic ties to the extent that withdrawing an ambassador shows disgust and disapproval.

Might Be Unwise to Recall Our Ambassador to Russia

Recall of the ambassador has been strongly advocated by Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, who is out looking around for delegates to the Republican national convention next year.

Soviet officials, if they desired, could interpret such an action as amounting to a declaration of war on our part.

We have seen enough of their operations to suspect that they will do more anything which will further their own ends—things just as ridiculous as announcing to their ignorant and illiterate millions that Finland was planning to "capture" Leningrad, a great industrial city.

Many Believe That Stalin Double Crossed Hitler

There are many persons in official life here who believe that Stalin has double crossed Hitler, and most of us add that there is little to choose between the two.

Pushed Soviet Buyers Out And Told Them to Stay Out

There is danger in that proposal, however our hearts may desire that we help the Finns.

U. S. Quizzes 'Hams' Operators

WASHINGTON.—Amateur radio operators and owners of amateur station licenses are being canvassed by the federal communications commission with a view to obtaining data needed in solving problems of national defense and neutrality.

Motor Carrier Workers Placed Under ICC Rule by Court

WASHINGTON.—A three-judge federal court ruled that the interstate commerce commission has authority to regulate the hours of all employees of common and contract motor carriers.

Badger State "Happenings"

Menasha Tax Rate Cut—The Menasha council adopted a tax rate of $32 per $1,000, a decrease of $2 per $1,000 from the previous year.

No Umbrellas for Cops—Fond du Lac policemen are under orders to refrain from carrying umbrellas while on duty.

Oshkosh Chest Sets Record—The Oshkosh Community Chest drive this year was the most successful on record.

Start "Clean Reading" Drive—More than 10,000 persons in Fond du Lac will be asked to co-operate in the Clean Reading councils drive to ban "obscene" publications from city newsstands.

Economy Reduces Taxes—Taking advantage of a surplus resulting from economical operation during the last year, the Sturgeon Bay city council passed a 1940 budget that will give the city a tax rate of an even $35 per 1,000 valuation.

Again Reject Housing Offer—The Madison common council voted 15 to 2 to reject the United States housing authority offer to help finance construction of a $1,000,000 slum clearance project in Madison.

Uniform Speed Limit Urged—Legislation to enforce uniform traffic regulations in Wisconsin's 71 counties was advocated at the annual convention of the Wisconsin's Sheriff's association in Milwaukee.

Writ Granted in Phone Case—The Wisconsin Telephone Co. was granted a permanent injunction by two federal judges, restraining the public service commission from enforcing temporary rate reduction orders issued in 1932 and 1933.

Teachers Get Salary Cut—The Superior school board ordered reductions of 8 to 20 per cent in teachers' salaries, effecting a total cut of $51,100 from the budget.

Utility Price Approved—Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann has approved an order of the public service commission fixing $25,000 as the price to be paid by the village of Pardeeville for the Pardeeville plant of the Wisconsin Electric Light Co.

Photo Decree Rescinded—Photographing of state employees was left to the discretion of department heads following Gov. Heil's rescinding of an order to all employees to be photographed or lose their jobs.

Settle Motors Strike—A strike which has kept 1,100 Waukesha Motor company employees idle since Nov. 12 was settled when members of the (AFL) International Machinists' union voted to accept an agreement drawn up by company and union representatives.

Must Stand Perjury Trial—William H. Dinneen, former secretary of the state public service commission, must stand trial in Dane county circuit court on a charge of perjury.

Compromise on Tax Payments—Mayors of Wisconsin cities resigned themselves to receipt of privilege highway tax revenues in installment, but with assurance that next year the $3,705,000 payment will be made in a lump sum.

Ask Special Session—The Wisconsin State Federation of Labor urged Gov. Heil to call a special session of the legislature to raise new revenue, declaring that otherwise the current biennium become bankrupt.

Back Dairy Advertising—Farmers from 10 nearby counties at a meeting in Fond du Lac endorsed an extensive advertising campaign to promote Wisconsin dairy products.

Reward for Luck—Edward Bernston, of Milwaukee, stepped over and plucked a $10,000 gold certificate out of the gutter.

North Carolina Peaks—One hundred and twenty-two mountain peaks in North Carolina are over 5,000 feet high; 48 of these are above 6,000 feet.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—Britain has been trying out its decision to bar certain man exports from the seas.

Can He Pocket Germans as He Did Decisions?

He is Sir Hubert du Parcq, judge of the High Court of Justice, and now chairman of the enemy exports committee.

The savage outbreak made England a bit jittery, as such occurrences are rare there.

Taking his master's degree at Oxford, he won honors in the classics. He was president of the Oxford Union in 1902.

Early's Say So Second to That Of the President

Born into an old Confederate family of Crozet, Va., Mr. Early became a Washington correspondent.

CAUGHT in the ruck of the Russian revolution was a 17-year-old girl, playing the piano with swollen and half-frozen fingers.

Genius Is Like A Pine Growing From Rock Cleft

afternoon until 10 o'clock the next morning. Today, she is Madeline Ania Dorfmann, Arturo Toscanini's guest soloist at a recent New York concert.

The years between have made her a world-famous pianist. In 1920, she escaped to Constantinople. Thereafter she was never ragged or hungry.

Her home is in Madison Avenue, New York City. "Music," she says, "is a holding force." Hers has held through epic stress and strain.

I Guess It's—No It Isn't!

Artificial Christmas? You might call it that, for modern chemistry has pulled all sorts of synthetic rabbits out of industry's hat for Christmas gifts. In fact, today's fashionable miss will find in her Christmas stocking enough synthetics to keep her busy from morning 'til night. Give a look!

Picture Parade

The morning tub with mountains of suds and a generous-sized bath sponge! What, not a sponge? No, this "sponge" is made of paper, but it works just as well.

Surely there are no synthetics in this picture. Guess again. The brush had a speaking acquaintance with any animal.

Miss 1940 steps forth on a rainy day in her smart ensemble, waterproofed by a new substance made of coke, limestone and salt, which chemical science has made into a magic material called koroseal.

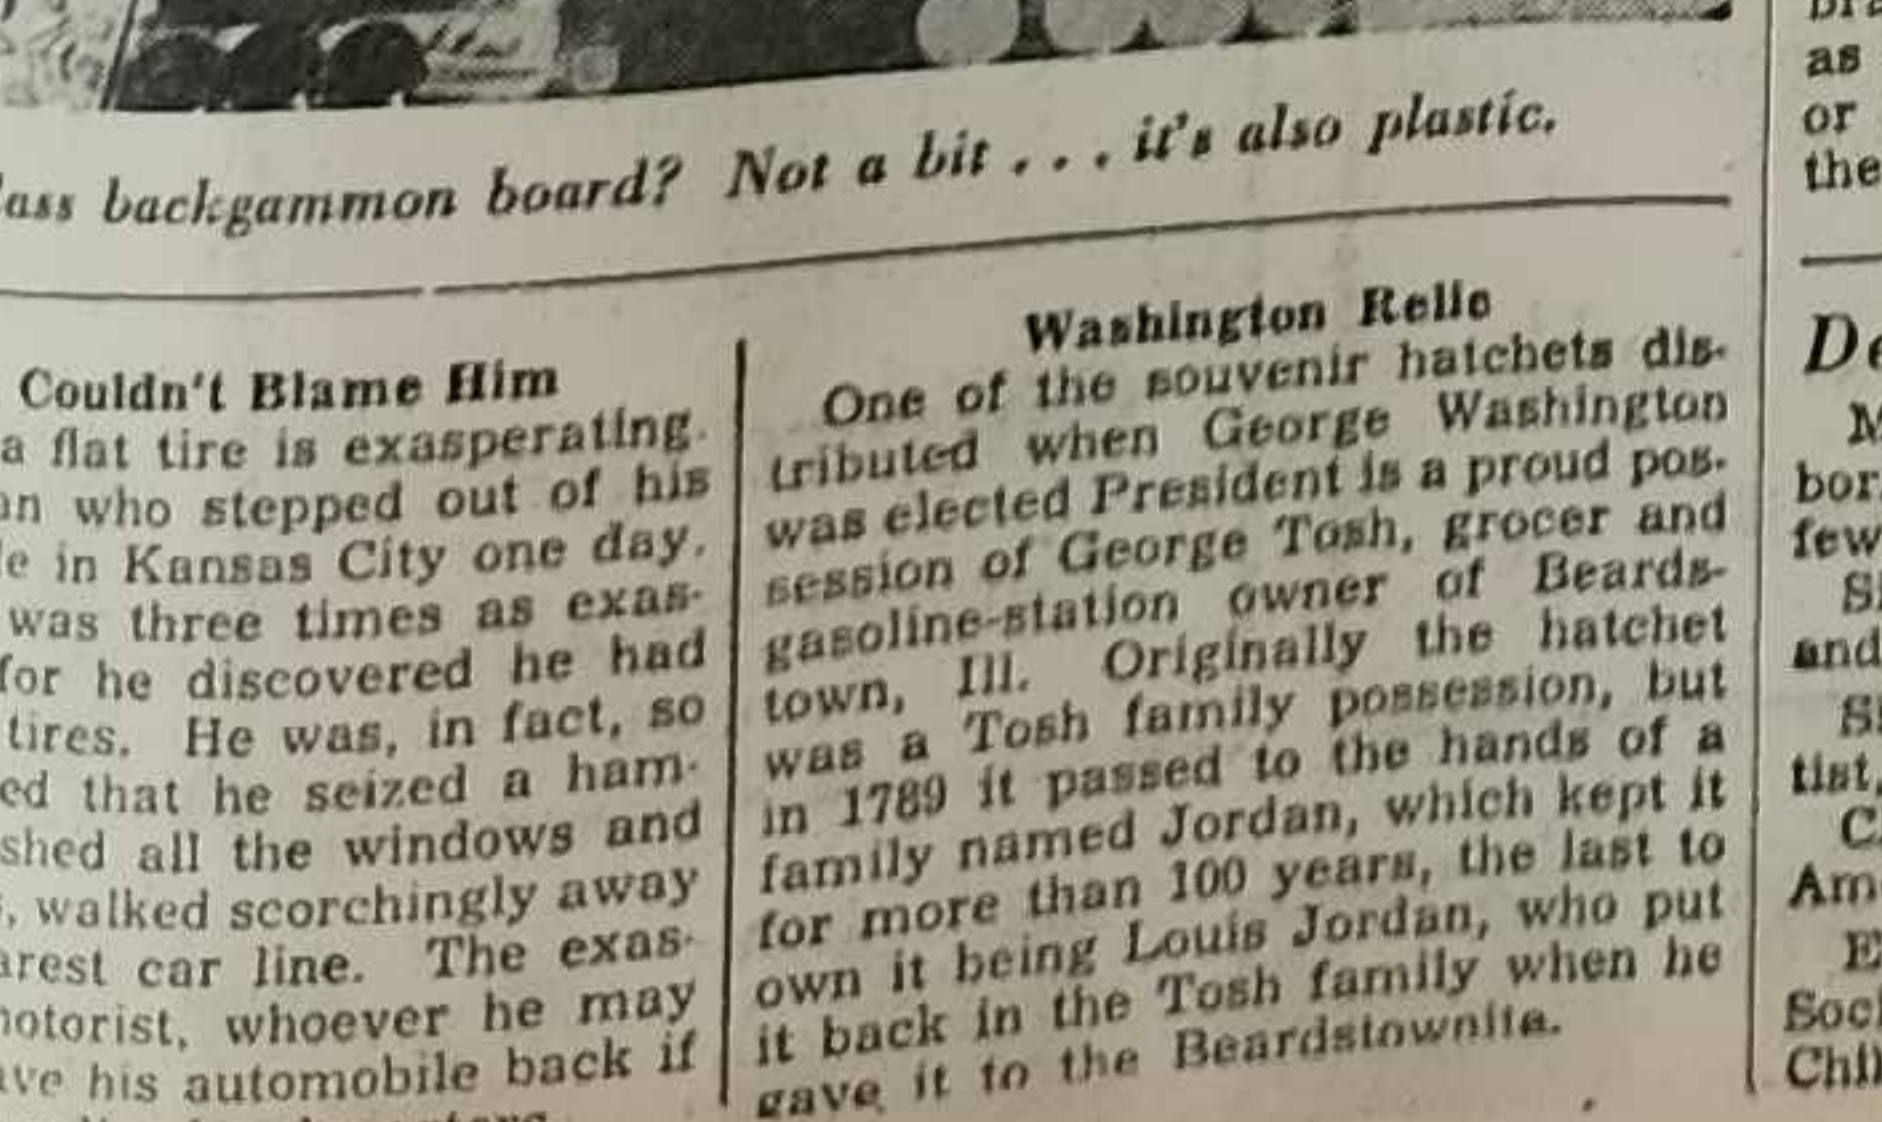

This Christmas' costume jewelry all comes from the chemist's laboratory.

As does this tricky vanity with a tiny light at the top for better makeup.

When milady retires, her traditional hundred strokes with the comb are accomplished with a combination brush-comb made of plastics.

More chemical magic: A pack of playing cards of synthetic paper, the brush are accomplished with a combination brush-comb made of plastics.

Glass backgammon board? Not a bit . . . it's also plastic.

You Couldn't Blame Him: To get a flat tire is exasperating. But a man who stepped out of his automobile in Kansas City one day recently, was three times as exasperated, for he discovered he had three flat tires. He was, in fact, so exasperated that he seized a hammer, smashed all the windows and headlights, walked scorchingly away to the nearest car line. The mayhemed motorist, whoever he may be, can have his automobile back if he calls at police headquarters.

THE CROWDED INN
By HELEN CLARK WENTWORTH

ALL day long they had been going by the inn, camels and donkeys stirring up dust, weary men and women resting by the stream outside the inn yard. The little country maid had never seen so much travel.

Just outside the city of Jerusalem, near by the village of Bethlehem, there were plenty of people who stopped for refreshment. And Jeremiah kept a good inn. He was a good man too. But he was hard, sparing neither man nor beast. And his niece Rebecca was hard put to do the tasks that were set before her.

There, lighted by a lantern, was Joseph, bending over the young woman and holding in his arms a tiny baby—her firstborn. At Rebecca's exclamation he turned, and in to her outstretched arms he handed the little figure and showed her the snowy lengths of swaddling cloth. Tenderly the maid clothed the infant and laid it beside the mother.

Children, according to legend, were soundly whipped Christmas day to impress on their minds the story of the baby martyrs. So intense was the fear of this unfortunate festival that the coronation of England's King Edward IV was postponed in order to avoid the fatal date.

White House Maintains Traditions 139 Years Old. WASHINGTON. — Santa Claus makes his 139th visit to the White House this Christmas, carrying on a tradition started December 25, 1800, when Kris Kringle called on little Suzannah, granddaughter of President John Adams from Massachusetts.

Christmas Tree Useful During Rest of Winter. AMHERST, MASS.—In northern states where Christmas heralds the coming of cold winter weather, the tree that warms the living room December 25 is being put to work the balance of the winter outdoors. According to Arnold M. Davis, extension horticulturist at Massachusetts state college, fir trees can make excellent "feeding stations" for birds and other cozy shelter on frosty winter nights.

December 25 Was Birthday of Prominent People. Many distinguished people were born on Christmas day. Here are a few of them: Sir Isaac Newton, mathematician and physicist, born 1642.

FESTIVE TRIUMPH FOR CHILDREN'S PARTY (See Recipes Below)

Children Need Parties Too. With all the holiday festivities for grown folks and for older children, it is a strange that the youngest members of the family get for a party, too!

Party refreshments, of course, must be geared to the age of the guests. If they are very young, it's a good idea to serve the feast at the end of the party, so that it takes the place of the regular evening meal.

Decorate the table with snapping crackers, colored balloons, and peppermint candy to give a really festive setting for the occasion. When Five and Six-Year Olds Get Together.

Special Peanut Butter Sandwiches. Raw Carrot Strips. Peppermint Stick Tapioca Cream. Cocoa.

Peppermint Stick Tapioca Cream. (Serves 8) 2 egg yolks 4 cups milk 1/2 cup quick-cooking tapioca 1/2 red cinnamon candies, crushed. Clear fruit-flavored candies 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 egg whites

Orange Ice. 1 cup granulated sugar 2 cups water 1 teaspoon gelatin 1 tablespoon cold water 2 cups orange juice 2 tablespoons lemon juice 1 teaspoon lemon extract 1 teaspoon orange extract

CHRISTMAS RECESS

After a final faculty voting, the Christmas recess return date has been set for Monday, January 5th. This rearranges the school calendar to allow a two weeks' vacation at Christmas time and the customary three days at Easter.

FASHIONS OF K. H. S.
"Sloppy Joe's" are seen throughout the class rooms. There is a perfect riot of red, green, pink, blue, white and yellow. They are worn both backwards and forwards, and many are decorated with Indian heads or Kewaskum High booster badges. Along with the sweaters, the accompanying knee-high socks are to be seen in just as vivid coloring as the sweaters. Even the nail polish and hair ribbons match the rest of the outfit. Let it never be said that Kewaskum girls are behind the times. They believe in the old saying: "Rather be dead than be out of fashion."

DRAMATICS
The Dramatic club is an active club of this school. During meetings which are held every Monday night, the members give their own skits. Miss Dachtelbach, the director of the club, has demonstrated street and make-up in one of the first meetings.
The Christmas play which was produced Thursday was given by the junior members of the Dramatic club. Other skits to follow will be participated in by all club members after the first of the year.

The sophomore English class has formed a club. One division of the class calls themselves "The Lucky Thirteen." The other division calls themselves "The L.L.L. Club," the meaning of which is kept a secret. The purpose of the club is to learn more about parliamentary procedure and about conducting business meetings. Each club has elected a president, a vice-president, a secretary, and a treasurer. Different officers will be elected every week. At the present the club meets every day in the English room.

BASKETBALL SCORES

In an overwhelming defeat from all sides the Kewaskum High school team beat Brandon by 31 to 11 last Monday night on the home floor. It was possibly the best passing that K. H. S. boys have ever done and they showed fine form all the way around. The second team preliminary game gave another victory to Kewaskum over the second team from Brandon. The score ended in a 22 to 14 victory for K. H. S.
For the second time this year, K. H. S. beat West Bend. The game played Tuesday at West Bend was not as great a victory as the previous one for the score at the final whistle was 19 to 18 in favor of K. H. S. The West Bend High school team was definitely improved since last we met them on our own floor. However, it is a sure proof of ability and coaching when the Kewaskum team can win two games in two successive years from a school that is almost five times as large as ours. Second team scores were West Bend 27, K. H. S. 7.

Friday night's game will be one of the biggest of the season so far as rivalry goes, for K. H. S. meets Campbellsport on the rival floor. After the victories made by Kewaskum in touch football, Campbellsport is not so willing to concede the Tri-County basketball championship to Kewaskum. It should be an exciting and well played game. Here is your chance to see Kewaskum in action. Come out and support the team.

WHERE ARE OUR ALUMNI?

- About Christmas time when we begin to think of old friends, we at K. H. S. often wonder where last year's alumni are and what they are doing. We are thought that perhaps you were wondering, too.
