WASHINGTON. - The house of representatives has in its collective hands one of the most far-reaching by the majority recommendations and vital documents that has been presented to it in many years. I refer to the partial report of the investigation into the National Labor Relations act and its creature, the National Labor Relations board. The report is vital because it exposes some of the most damning evidence that has come to light since the famed senate investigation into the happier if Chairman J. #### Government Housecleaning Should Be Undertaken

That course is fine. But it affects only the National Labor Relations board. True, the committee has no jurisdiction over any other questions than those connected with the act and the board. But the point that I seek to make is that the government woods are full of such setups as the National Labor Relations board, and they are dangerous to the future of America. I hope that the congress will see fit to do something about the odd mixture of justice and personal government that is represented by the National Labor Relations act (which is sometimes called the Wagner act, after its father, Senator Wagner of New York) and the National Labor Relations board, but I hope the attempted cure will not stop there. There can, and ought to, be a thorough job of housecleaning, because no government is going to remain really the servant of the people where such agencies operate with plain old-fashioned campaign. And the law in its own hands. There are few political appointees within the realm of my knowledge who could be so completely unbiased as to administer their jobs without favoritism.

The National Labor Relations strength on either side of the dividboard, as at present constituted, was recommended for a good firing, in the committee's report. It did this on the basis of facts that showed a strange cocktail of judicial action, conferences with board attorneys who handle prosecutions, biased statements and actions and peculiar conditions of investigation by board agents. It arrived at the only conclusion possible, namely, that the If the weaknesses are corrected bepresent structure for dealing with fore the dog days begin on the stomach ulcers. Cigarette and beer taxes go into the state general fund while the other revenues are returned to local units of government.

Fewer Lost Driving Cards-Fewer Wisconsin drivers' licenses were revoked or suspended in 1939 than in 1938. Last year revocations totaled 927, compared with 1,071 in 1938, while suspensions reached 1,384 in 1939 compared with 1,456 in 1938. Tipsy drivers constituted nearly 75 per cent of the total number of persons whose licenses were revoked.

The plant was constructed in January, 1934. Hesslinger contended it depreciated the value of his property and he sued in 1938 when he was unable to obtain a settlement.

To Pay Aids in April-State aids due this month to local communities, including $5,300,000 for local roads and streets, will be paid in full early in April, the state budget bureau announced. These obligations, amounting to $18,000,000, will be met with an $8,000,000 current treasury balance and anticipated revenue from individual income, ciragette, beverage and gasoline taxes, and auto li-

The largest cut in personnel was made in the Madison office, where 13 were ordered released. The employes, most of whom were engineers and engineering aides, received salaries ranging from $100 to $200 a month. Their dismissal was estimated to save about $90,000 to $100,000 a year.

For good or ill, it is Maj. Edwin F. Armstrong, Columbia professor, who brings in the change. More than 20 years ago, back in the days of the cat's whisker and crystal sets he has been crowding the future with new radio devices. Wars are apparently propitious for his inventive spirit. In the World war, we couldn't catch German signals. He caught them, with a rig which brought along the super-heterodyne, and other fixings which led him into a 20year legal battle with Lee de Forest. He was a hayloft radio experimenter, and has been a professor of engineering at Columbia since 1934.

This writer drives by his great steel tower on the cliffs at Alpine, N. J., on which he staked $300,000 to bring through today's frequency modulation. We never understood but, hung with red lights at night to warn aviators, it had a Wellsian look of the "shape of things to come."

MADELEINE CARROLL, the IVI moving picture actress, is back from Europe expressing deep concern over the fact that French soldiers behind the lines earn only 33 cents a month. At Hollywood, Miss Carroll organized a knitting brigade for distressed French civilians and soldiers, and took with her to France eight suitcases of sweaters, socks and the like which she and girls of the University of California at Los Angeles had fash-

She became somewhat of a Francophile when she majored in French at the University of Birmingham, England, where her father was a professor. She taught French at a girls' seminary, but took her first pay check of £20 and went to London to try for the stage. There was a stretch of tutoring and some other trying expedients before she joined a road company, at $15 a week, to her father's chagrin, but later gratification. Later she became a pet of the British moving picture public. In 1934, her first Hollywood picture was "I Was a Spy."

"The Name Is Familiar" FELIX B. STREYCKMANS

'Fine Spencerian Hand'

and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN THIS day of typewriters, tele-I grams, telephones and even order blanks where all you have to do is check the items, handwriting is becoming a lost art. But perhaps you can remember when it was still an attainment to be able to write "a fine Spencerian hand."

Why "Spencerian"? Because Platt Rogers Spencer, an Ohio farm boy, born in 1801, became famous as the father of American penmanship. As a schoolboy he loved grace and elegance and practiced fancy writing almost to the exclusion of everything else. He became not only proficient as a penman but the

Bloomers

VOU probably think "bloomers" I are called that because the word sounds the way bloomers look. Well, what would you think if they were called "jenkers"? That might have been the word by which they were known today had not Miss Amelia Jenks, for whom they were named, been married to Dexter C. Bloomer. Mrs. Bloomer The Lily, and its purpose was to advocate temperance and women's rights. For publicity purposes, Mrs. Bloomer adopted a costume consisting of a jacket with close sleeves and a pair of Turkish pantaloons secured around the ankle by bands. Several of her contemporary advocates of women's rights wore the same costume and these persons were known as "Bloomerites" or just "Bloomers."

The campaign died out but the pantaloon idea did not. A modified form, shortened to gather just below or above the knee was adopted and became the bloomers as worn today-or are they worn today? At least, Amelia Bloomer was the inspiration for bloomers as they are have taken their place.

'Let George Do It'

THERE is only one man in the history of the world who ever said "Let George do it" and really meant it-really meant to let George do it and knew what George he was talking about. When the expression is used today, it may mean to let anyone else do it or just to dodge the responsibility knowing that nobody will do it. But when Louis XII of France

So we see that the good old American phrase, "Let George do it," is really a French expression and it was only with super-control that we resisted the desire to start this with, "Once there were two Frenchmen, Louis and George." (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

"The dancers face each other about five feet apart. They stand motionless for a moment, then rear their heads upward and bow low, fingers touching the floor. After a few seconds they arise, then greet each other by rubbing noses. The head is then put under one's left arm, then under the right arm, then raised toward the ceiling. The dancers then hold each other lightly by the waist, suddenly breaking into an extemporaneous bit of hula, and then, just as suddenly, they repeat the dance. This routine is performed three times."-From a description of "The Gooney," the new Hawaiian Stonington, Connecticut, closed its the other day because of lack of ited these days except by people who anchor there on a cruise, but it is a quaint New England seacoast town which once knew the pomp and the glory. Swift steamships on the Boston-New York line once made it daily. It was a buzzing ship terminal, and the rotting timbers of its ancient piers are still visible. The town itself still has some of the loveliest dwellings of a former day and it is like stepping into the quiet, calm and orderly past to visit it. Bank my eye! Stonington is too rich in other things to miss it, say we.

It was the crowning ignominy of his plight that he must stoop to beggary or to starvation. He postponed the admission of his penury to the last moment and then postponed it again.

And the answer to his nauseating apology was that she had known it all the time. Jaffar, finding him unconscious in the street, had, at her orders, undressed him, bathed him, put him to bed, and taken his clothes, drenched as they were with rain, to dry them in the kitchen and to iron them while the other servants slept.

Jaffar had reported that there was not a thing in all the stranger's garments-only the usual pocket dust, not a portemonnaie, not a card, not a coin, not even a bronze baish-para. As delicately as might be she strove to put Jebb at his

"Don't go!" he pleaded. But she was gathering herself together to stand up. He leaped to his feet to help her. To rise from a crosslegged position is something of a feat. It is one of the few that harem laziness permits. Miruma rose straight in air like a lark leaping upward from a meadow.

But as she stepped forward, her foot caught on the hem of her robe. She lost her poise, swayed, would have fallen. But Jebb had risen from the divan; he put out his arm; her weight was upon him so suddenly that he had no little difficulty with his own equilibrium. The recovery of both was a matter of brief and busy delay. Miruma gave a little cry of alarm at her plight, another of dismay at finding herself in a man's arms. And then she fled, soft-footed, spiria mountainside.

He put out the lights and groped his way to the window where the moonbeams beat in and showered the floor.

I cannot tell." Hellwald shook his head in dismay and exploded his "Bomben, Granaten!" in a whisper.

Past the cafe where Jebb and Hellwall sat pondering flowed the eddying traffic of the street. Now and then a Turk, a Russian, an Austrian, or a Macedonian saluted Hellwald after the manner of his race or station, and the Austrian answered in

At length a sound of distant wailing, and a hint of doleful chant began to define itself above the clatter. The crowd paused and massed to give way to a funeral procession led by bearded priests of the Greek Church in gorgeous vestments, marching slowly and singing.

The procession turned the corner and disappeared. Among those who had paused to watch the cortege was a venerable white bearded Turk in fez and frock coat; he seemed to be deeply touched. After the crowd had dispersed he still stood in de-

As he was saying this to Jebb, the Bey was pouring fluent Turkish into his other ear. Hellwald translated in short asides:

"He is asking me if you cannot come to see his son at once-don't accept-look solemn-you are busy -you are leaving town-the other physicians have failed to help him, he says-they are ignorant dogs-his son cries aloud in agony. But don't accept too readily. Don't go yet. Remember this is Turkey. They expect to bargain for everything. He is rich. You need much money."

But Jebb agreed and on the way they passed a miscellaneous bazaar, where a meager supply of drugs was kept for the foreign population. There Jebb managed to find a large hypodermic needle and a supply of tablets, which he purchased along with a few of such simples as the ezja-hane possessed.

While the relatively higher prices charged for better eggs might be expected to discourage consumption, just the opposite has been true in states where egg grading programs have been followed.

According to the egg-marketing specialists, consumers of the better grades of eggs appreciate two features of a well-conducted grademarketing system. They are assured of the superior quality of the better grades, and of the quality that comes with the purchase of a product properly handled from the time it was graded to the time it reaches them.

Simple Erosion Controls

Will Check Small Gullies For small gullies—those less than three feet deep-comparatively simple erosion controls are recommended. Large gullies and those with extensive drainage areas usually can be stabilized only by using a combination of protective measures. The first step in gully control is to keep as much runoff as possible out of the gully channel. For this purpose, retarding water draining into the gully is often enough, but in some cases a diversion ditch just above the head of the gully may be necessary. Once the retention or diversion measures have been applied, control of the gully becomes much simpler. To protect the channel from further scouring, use adapted vegetationgrasses, vines, trees, and shrubs wherever possible. Structural devices are recommended only to help establishment of vegetation or to provide permanent protection at points that cannot be protected in any oth-
