tained a new kind of aluminum dishes

The railroad car had been about half filled with the cartons of aluminumware by employees of the company the previous day. In the evening the car door was closed but was not sealed because the full order had not been loaded. Evidently the thieves knew this, which made it all the easier to complete their haul. However, disposing of the loot may prove more difficult than obtaining it because the dishes are a new line and have not been sold by the company anywhere in the state. According to Traffic Officer George 'Brandt, who investigated, two men apparently were involved in the job. The thieves must have been driving an automobile as more goods would probably have been taken had they a truck. The cartons, which are about 21/2 feet long, 11/2 feet wide and two feet high, are bulky and the nine of them were about the capacity a car could hold. Because of the bulkiness of their load which endangered their being caught, The St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran the thieves removed the dishes from Church Aid association outdoor service the cartons a short distance out of the and basket picnic held in the village village. New Tongue for Old!

If you've ever tried to order a dish of ham and eggs ir a foreign country you will understand the problem facing American immigrants. In New York the foreign-born population is estimated at 2,500,000. The New York Board of Education, through its adult classes for the foreign-born, has done wonders in acquainting these people with the new language. Strangely enough the tendency is to learn the current "wisecracks" first. These pictures show adult classes in progress.

Hyman Epstein, an ammigrant from Poland, strikes a pensive pose as he panders. over the idiosymmetricity of the new language. The teacher is gitting personal attention to Hymnn, Typical of the opposition faced by the measure is the attitude of Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) who has raised his voice against the legislation with the statement it would gradually transform the United States into an "international bully" bent on the destruction of other nations. Only present member of the senate who voted against U.S. entrance into the World war, Norris claims that the effect of military training on American youths would have a tendency to make them eventually recognize no ideal "except that of military force."

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Lately, however, the Smoot Sand & Gravel company has been much in the public prints of the city of Washington. It was in the news because its 250 workers went on strike. When those workers quit, the cessation practically stopped construction in the city, which is to say that the strike suddenly choked off the supply of materials for all new federal government buildings. This was no ordinary strike, not the usual walk-out. That's why the name of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company gained a place in the sun, small as is the business when compared with other great corporations. This strike was, in effect, a strike against a federal law-the wagehour law-the fair labor standards act as it is most inappropriately named

The details substantially are as follows: employees of the concern have been classified as maritime workers, because they operate barges and tugs and cranes and such like in connection with the movement of the sand and gravel This movement begins in the Potomac river and, of course, carries through to the site of the building construction.

Busybody Decides It's Improper Classification

Having been classified as maritime workers, these employees were able to work as many hours a day or a week as they desired. They had a union contract with the company to that effect. It is a matter of record that the employees did work sometimes twelve hours a day and seven days a week-and they were reaping the harvest of busy times because the demand for their product was extraordinary while the government building program was continuing. The workers had no quarrel with their employer, yet a firm policy with the communistic labor leaders and had those leaders been told to keep their men at work, France would have lasted longer against the Hitler "blitzkrieg." Instead, France refused to abandon the 40-hour week and its governmental officials chose to coddle labor leaders because of politics. We have something of the same basic situation in this country, right now. It is well known, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt has favored the labor leaders who could control votes. He was not alone. Others have done the same thing-Republican as well as Democrat. Policy on Shorter Hours Will Not Be Modified

Only lately, Mr. Roosevelt said at the White House that, come war or peace, there would be no modification of the New Deal policy respecting shorter and shorter hours of work. This New Deal reform was to stand, he said, and he is evidently going to stand on that declaration, just as the French did some months ago. Since the President is so firmly committed to this policy, I am wondering when this nation is going to draw its belt tighter and get down to war preparation.

I think, too, that attention might be called to the recent appointment of Sydney Hillman as a part of the national defense council and his designation as head of the agency which will have charge of training American boys and girls for war work. It was Mr. Hillman who broke through from the Wisconsin Rapids departand organized the textile workers of ment were tricked during a fire this country into a strong, well-knit | which reached out of a burning barn union. Pile Up continue to run at the highest levels since 1929, orders for defense goods are piling up much additional business for U.S. industry.

Since the beginning of the government's preparedness program, over one billion dollars in army and navy contracts have been awarded and while little cash has actually been expended these orders and those placed by the British government in this country are directly responsible for the current climb in business indices. Defense projects, including ship-ways, ammunition and fuel storage to orders for airplanes constitute the major factors in the general rise of business activity. Other business firms of a non-

poration (liquor) announced that net earnings for the first half of 1940 were up almost 50 per cent over the comparable period of 1939-returning $1.44 per share on common stock

they went on strike. Why? Some busybody in the wagehour administration decided that the works of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company were improperly classified. They were not maritime work As numerous mills and factories ers-not entitled to work all of the time they desired-and they had to be reclassified. The result was that most of the workers found themselves restricted to 42 hours per week. The net effect of this, of preparation. . course, was to cut their wages, and the men had no hankering for that. As these lines are written, the conclusion is not yet in sight. It is always difficult to get a bureaucrat to rescind an order. To do so, of course, is admission that the bureaucrat was wrong. That is not an admission which any one in government office is in a hurry to make. In the meantime, thousands of oth-

But, according to reports, Mr. Hillman has lost none of his antagonism for the "employer class" and that does not bode well for a preparedness program.

There are some stories floating around now to the effect that Mr. Hillman has been snuggling up to some labor leaders whose penchant for stirring up trouble is well known. Indeed, if one may believe the reports here in Washington, Mr. Hillman has given some indications that he believes the federal government should clamp down further on the employers, war preparation or no

Silverfish and Crickets. Question: How can I get rid of silverfish and crickets? Answer: For both of these insects use pyrethrum powder, which is the common yellow insect powder. Put it in a powder puffer and for the silverfish blow it into cracks in the woodwork, such as the crack between flooring and baseboard; blow it on shelves, behind books, and in similar places. For crickets blow it into the air behind pieces of furniture, boxes and radiators, and other places where crickets conceal themselves. Pyrethrum powder loses its strength on exposure to the air. It should be bought in sealed packages, and blowing should be repeatcommonest ailment known. How to Diagnose Each.

The early symptoms of the common cold are sneezing, burning and stuffiness of the nose, first a thin watery discharge which "thickens" and "plugs" the nose, making it difficult to breathe. Symptoms come on gradually, and patient is not greatly prostrated.

The early symptoms of influenza are different in that the symptoms come on suddenly; perhaps one or two days after exposure the patient may fall from severe prostration.

The cough in influenza is hard well done. Drain off all but chewy pastry, heavy, soggy cakes, and dry, and little or nothing is brought up from bronchial tubes In fact, it is to avoid just such even after a severe coughing spell, baking failures as these (and many whereas in the common cold, as more) that I have compiled this noted above, there is first a procookbook, "Better Baking." Sheer Black Hat

Is Smart Fashion

The new hats of sheer black horsehair braid or of thin net or chiffon are registering as one of the season's outstanding successes. The smartest ones have large brims that are styled to wear far back on the head so that they halo hair and face with a mist of wispy black. They give you the dress-up look that is so important for special occasions. You'll love a hat of this type with your black and white prints and with the all-black afternoon sheer costumes that are high fashion this summer.

Question: The kitchen walls of my new country cottage are finished with plywood. Can I use a spar varnish finish on the walls? Is it advisable to first coat the walls with linseed oil?

Answer: Spar varnish will be all right. I would advise two coats. Dull the gloss of the first coat of varnish by rubbing down with fine sandpaper, then wipe off the dust before applying the second coat. Linseed oil is not necessary.

Refinishing Station Wagon,

Question: The woodwork of my station wagon has weathered dull. Would like your advice on refinishing.

Answer: If the varnished finish is not peeling, wash the surface with soap and warm water, rinse with clear water; then wipe dry. Allow the moisture to dry out for a few hours. Refinish with one or two coats of a top quality spar varnish. Be sure the surface is dull before applying the varnish.

White Paint on Screens,

Question: My house is somewhat shaded by trees, but when I put on the screens the house is noticeably darker. Would white paint on the screen wire help? Would it make the house look crazy? It is now painted cream.

Answer: It would not be objectionable, and would help brighten the interior. Make sure the paint is thin enough so it will not clog
