America's Land 'Warships'

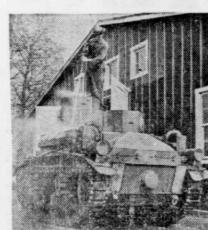

During the German blitzkrieg the tank took its place as the most deadly of military weapons in land fighting. While America has the best tanks in the world, we haven't enough of them, although we are industrially equipped to turn them out in gross lots. So let us give our army tanks-so many tanks that not even all the armies of the rest of the world combined would dare attack us. These photos, taken at Fort Meade, Maryland, show you some of the tanks we have.

Left: Medium tank in action in wooded terrain. Small trees are no obstacles to these juggernauts. They mow them down like grass. This one has a machine gun and a small cannon. Right: This U. S. tank soldier received the gash on his face during a practice run. Tankers wear special helmets to prevent head injuries when tossed about in the steel juggernaut.

Top: This tank, armed with machine guns and small cannon, spots a "scouting plane" during maneuvers. Tanks have been found vulnerable to airplane fire in the European war.

Center: Turning at high speed, this tank tossed the real estate skyhigh. This tank can hit better than 30 miles per hour in the rough.

Left: Just as the cavalryman had to look after his horse, the tank soldier must care for his steed of steel. This is washday for the tank after a run through the rough at Fort George Meade.

Spanish and asked for shelter. The sentry called the captain of the guard out into the rain from a game of seven-up.

Whether this was unpleasant for the captain, whether the call spoiled a winning streak, or whether the captain had had too much pulque, Bowie never could figure out. But he was very brusque. He ordered Bowie to dismount, ordered him searched and disarmed. No answer that the Texan could make to his insolent questioning would satisfy him. He pronounced Bowie a spy, put him under arrest and sent him to the guardhouse. The Texan's surprise was equaled by his annoyance and his contempt for his captors. However, he reflected that a night in the dry guardhouse would be better than a night in the rain. But to find himself for the first time in his California life without his knife, his revolver, or ands with Kit and his friends and his rifle and his ammunition was something to disturb him. He tossed all night and could console himself only by thinking that in the morning he would easily satisfy the comandante that his arrest was owing to the drunken stupidity of the guard. After much palaver the next morning he was brought before an underling of the governor and subjected to a grilling that astonished him. His own simple tale of who he was and what he was doing in Bowie himself insisted on reducing | San Diego was brushed aside as of no value, and he was questioned closely as to what his relations were with the faction that Governor Pico of the department feared was plan-

After hours of examination which naturally developed nothing Bowie was remanded to the guardhouse. There he fretted and fumed day after day until his resentment wore itself dumb. He was summoned at last before the governor himself. This, the prisoner felt sure, would on deaf ears. The strange revolver taken from him was not merely evidence but proof conclusive in Pico's judgment that Bowie was a spy. His protestations availed him noth-

At three o'clock he was notified that he would be shot as a spy next morning. Bowie took the message, silent and hard featured, from the guard who brought it. But with his wits keyed high by the amazing news, he studied closely through the bars of the peephole in the cell door the features of the Indian soldier who bore the message. It flashed suddenly on Bowie that he had seen that man before. "Sanchez," he said calmly, "I thank you for telling me this."

The Indian started at the utterance of his name. "I thank you, Sanchez," continued Bowie, unmoved by the stolid guard's amazement, "because you and I are old friends. You do not recognize me; I am covered with half a beard and unwashed and eaten by vermin. Look closer, Sanchez"-Bowie lowered his voice-"look closer. I am Bowie, whom you knew at Guadalupe. We fought together in the canyon of the Santa Maria-did we Sanchez stared hard at him. Bowie's very quiet pierced the sluggishness of his Indian nature.

"Senor," he stammered, speaking low and with the utmost caution. "I remember all. I did not know you. How can I help you? If I let you out they will shoot me."

"Do nothing of that kind. Only, as soon as you can, bring me something to eat and pass me a good knife. That's all-go. Tell them I will be ready.

Sanchez proved not ungrateful. Bowie's contempt for everything and everyone concerned in his imprisonment was not lessened by the threat of immediate death. But he set to work, within a minute after the knife was in his hand, to dig himself out of his crude surround-

Working feverishly for an hour in the clay underlying the stone floor, he had made progress in his tunnel when, although no sound reached his ear, the scant light through the peephole of his cell door lessened just enough to make him realize someone was looking in. Expecting a bullet in the back of his head, he turned as unconcernedly as possible from the bunk near which he was working. Behind the bunk lay the loose earth scooped from under the floor. He glanced toward the peephole. A face was there. But the aperture was so narrow and high that he could see only the face itself. Bowie, sitting on the bunk, studied keenly the eyes that studied him. For a long moment there came a calm voice from the barred window. "My son: I am a padre. May I speak a moment with you?"

Bowie was annoyed but prudent. "Certainly, Padre." He stepped to the cell door. "What courteous manner, though inwardly resentful. "The guard will be here present- ders?"

Bowie was stumped. "I-well, not exactly, Padre. You see . . Footsteps were heard outside. "Here comes the guard," said the padre, turning to look. "Let him open the door just a moment, my son. I promise I will not annoy you.'

After locking the cell door, the guard had gone, leaving the two men in Bowie's narrow quarters. "My leg is not very good. You notice my limp," said the padre. "May I sit down?"

hoped the padre's searching eyes would detect nothing of the loose earth piled underneath it. Yet to the uneasy prisoner it seemed almost too much to hope. His industry had made noticeable progress. "They tell me, my son, that you are a spy," began the padre casually. "So they tell me," returned Bowie, slightly acid in his tone. "I ask, is it true?" continued his questioner. "It is not." answered Bowie bluntly. "I have had no trial; not a shred of evidence lies against me. The truth is, Padre mio, your governor wants for himself a new and unusual firearm-it is called a revolver-that his men took from me. And he is putting me out of the way to get a clear title to it." "Do not, my son, say 'your governor.' I am not an officer of the Mexican government. I am a Spaniard. My sole earthly quest in California is the salvation of souls. You may be a spy-though I do not believe it, for the whole story has been told me-or you may be twenty times a spy; that matters nothing to me. But since you are condemned to death let me ask: what of your soul? what of eternity? You are an Americano?"

"No, Padre." "Not Americano-what then, my son?"

"A Tejano." "A Tejano," echoed the Franciscan, still searching Bowie's face narrowly and speaking as if musing or as if placing in his mind a fact at a time to serve as tesserae for a possible mosaic. "When did you first come to California?" "Some ten or twelve years ago, Padre. What," demanded Bowie impatiently, "has that to do with this trumped-up charge against me?"

"Nothing, nothing whatever, my son. But if you will be patient it may have something to do with what I have in mind. By what route did you come to California?"

"Across the Rio Colorado and the desert of the South."

The padre's interest seemed to grow. He spoke on with slight but increasing keenness. "Then you must have come in not very far from San Diego," he persisted, still musing.

"I did so come." "I presume," continued the padre gently insinuating, "that you spoke Spanish when you came to Califor-"When I came to California nei-

"Twelve years ago! Is it that long? It must be. These years have taken their toll of your health and strength. Give me the stool; you take the bunk. It is a little better. "I have a thought," whispered the padre. "But if I could provide a horse how could you, a stranger here, find it?"

"Please sit here with me on the bunk." Bowie spoke in whispers to one on whose good faith he was practically staking his life. "I shall not use this tunnel. It is a blind, Padre, to protect a friend. I shall walk out of the door tonight. A guard, to whom I once did a good turn, will aid me. Before daybreak shall be gone."

"If I can have a horse at the back of this guardhouse at a certain time tonight, can you get to it?" "I certainly can and I will thank you forever.' "But the time-"

"If I could see the stars I could tell you," said Bowie. "But I have A signal? I could hear no way. What time will the moon rise?"

"Not until after midnight." "Then, by ten o'clock. All will be quiet here. Padre, you could not get two horses?" "As easily as one."

"Then the guard will go with me. Two low whistles will tell me the horses are there. I shall be eternally grateful." "Shortly after dark," said the padre, "I shall pass your cell door. Be alert. If I do not speak, the horses will be there. And now we must think about eternity. If you are discovered escaping, you will be instantly shot." A heavy footstep approached in the corridor. It was the guard. He knocked roughly with his keys on the cell door. "Is my time up?" asked the padre quietly as the gward stuck his face against the bars of the peephole. 'You're long past your time," he answered in surly tone. "Come out."

"Give me but two minutes," pleaded the padre. "One minute."

"One minute-no more," roared the guard. "He's drunk," whispered Bowie. "You do not know how to make confession of your sins?" whispered the padre to his neophyte. "I do not, Padre." "But tell me-for I think your heart is good-now, in the face of possible death, tell me you are sorry for your sins. Can you honestly

Axis Powers Continue Balkan Drive, Attempting to Cut Britain's 'Lifeline'; Turbulent Labor Convention Forecast; Selective Service Lottery Completed

BATTLE FOR EMPIRE: Balkan Adventure

Reinforced by an "understanding" with Gen. Francisco Franco, dictator of Spain, and Vice Premier Pierre Laval, acknowledged leader of France, the Axis powers rode off on a new highway of conquest. Then without waiting for an answer, Fascist legions drove across the border toward Athens from their bases in already-conquered Albania.

What seemed to be happening was the result of Hitler's failure to make England capitulate on schedule. London was still taking a severe beating from the air but still holding out and apparently giving Germany as good as it received.

So, unable to conquer Britain, Hitler swung his force on conquest of the British empire with a pincer movement on both ends of the

Outposts

In this movement, Greece and Turkey were the last outposts linked to England in the fight against totalitarian domination. Outside of the Western hemisphere no independent nations lived, with the exception of parts of the British empire, virtually cut off from their mother country if the Nazi conquest succeeded.

Earlier, dignitaries of the federal government drew numbers, and later Boy Scouts, veterans, newsmen, radio announcers and volunteers from the audience were given the honor. has decided to lift an embargo on supplies of war to Japan. The embargo had been decreed five days earlier by President Cardenas. It was indicated there still may be some restrictions on oil and scrap, which are government monopolies. Otherwise exporters may engage in free trade, including much needed mercury.

One diplomatic source said a change may be made in the order after President-elect Manuel Camacho takes office in December. This spokesman said Mexico was anxious to co-operate with the United States and would recall the embargo if Washington indicated the international situation made it necessary. The four days' trial, however, cost Mexican exporters hundreds of thousands of dollars, since the war has shut off all other shipments.

REVOLT IN C. I. O.: Lewis Is Target

What is forecast as likely to be one of the most turbulent conventions in American labor history is due when the Congress of Industrial Organizations meets at Atlantic City. John L. Lewis' endorsement of Wendell L. Willkie in the just closed presidential campaign was coupled with the announcement that he would resign if Roosevelt were elected.

Lewis already faced growing opposition in the C. I. O. Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, split with Lewis on national defense. Hillman was named to the defense commission. Backing Hillman was the powerful Textile union. NO REST: Carol Pursued

The turbulent road to exile traveled by former King Carol of Rumania struck a new detour. One month on his way from Bucharest to Portugal and still not at his goal, the king learned that the Spanish government had ordered his consort, Mme. Lupescu, and his palace minister. Ernest Urdareanu, returned to Rumania. There they likely will stand trial before an Iron Guard court for crimes against the state.

Carol was informed of the order by Spanish police. "Pray, who gave those orders?" he asked. "My superiors," said the officers. "Who are your superiors?" asked the king. There was no answer.

LOST COLONY:

New Clues

In 1591, when George White, governor of the colony of Virginia, returned from a two-year trip to England, he could find not a trace of the settlement he had left on Roanoke island, N. C. The only clue was the word "Croatan" carved on a tree. It was the name of a local Indian tribe.

Until recently historians were mystified at the disappearance of the pioneer men and women. Three years ago a 21-pound quartz stone was found on the bank of the Chowan river, near Edenton, N. C. In Elizabethan English it told of the death of the colonists from "misery and war." Included in the dead was Virginia Dare, first white child born in America.

unearthed along a trail which showed the colonists plodded through North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. Twenty of the nation's foremost experts on pre-Colonial folklore, led by Dr. Samuel E. Morison, have declared the stones authentic. Most recently discovered stone told of the marriage in 1599 of Virginia Dare's mother to an Indian chief.

U.S. Interests

In Asia, the current situation had important complications. Japan, now linked to Italy and Germany by the new triple alliance, said it would fulfill its obligations. These may be interpreted by Tokyo to call for seizure of Hongkong and Singapore. The British base at Singapore always has been considered to prop up one end of the American lifeline.

The United States took action in another direction. Premier General Petain of France was notified in a personal note from President Roosevelt that if France surrendered bases to the Axis powers, the United States would feel duty bound to occupy French colonies in the Carib-

Excitement in Washington Calms As Election Ends Party Hostility

Successful Candidate Will Be 'Everyone's President'; Future Farmers Hold Annual Convention; Neutrality Is Hard to Grasp.

By BAUKHAGE

It's sort of quiet along Main street

I mean along the street that runs from the marble steps of the Capitol, up past the front porch of the White House and on out by the stores where you trade and the house where you live or maybe where your lane turns off. It's all the same street with different names in different places.

It's quieter because the howdy-do over election is through with, the people have cast their votes and chosen their President and have taken up their daily tasks again.

Before election day finally arrived, cool-headed writers and public men were warning that quadrennial campaign animosities should be forgotten as soon as the vote was counted. That the lame ducks should muffle their squawks and limp off the scene as quickly as possible, and that sore heads should be nursed with patience and without post mortems.

As Alf Landon said in October, 'Whoever is elected will be my President for the next four years,' and I believe what he said ought to go for all of us.

Federal Employee Resents 'Loafer' Charge

The other day I was sitting in the office of a man who has served the government for 30 years. He has had at least three offers from private business with a lot more salary than he's getting. But he wouldn't take any of them. He has an important job and he likes it.

He has no politics. He was appointed in Woodrow Wilson's day. He has never voted because he's a citizen of the District of Columbia and like the rest of us residents here is classed with idiots and children, and has no vote. He heard a lot about the New Freedom before we got into the war in 1917; he watched with a slight smile as the country went "back to normalcy"; he traveled peacefully, if a little skeptical ly, along Calvin Coolidge's "perma nent plateau of prosperity"; saw one or both chickens escape their pots in '29, and lived through the New Deal without being plowed under or made over. And after election day, 1940, he went back to his office exactly as he had done every other time, to do the work for which he gets his wage.

He is as trustworthy a hired man as ever wore a pair of Uncle Sam's overalls. Every President is his President, too. But he put it a little differently to me:

"The only kind of a political argu ment that makes me sore is one where some partisan gets up and hollers about 'those loafers' (Republicans or Democrats, according to kicker's politics) 'down in Washington.' They forget that the vast majority of us carry on through one administration after another, doing the work we have to do. The loafers come and go, it's true. I don't mind kicking about them myself. What I object to is this loose idea that the government is just one political party or the other. Most of us here belong to no party. For the rest of the people, one day in four years is enough to give vent to their partisan passions. The rest of the time, we ought to be just plain Americans and nothing else.

'Future Farmers' Are Bulwark of Democracy

While Uncle Sam is preparing to welcome the first draft of the citizen army which is to bulwark our democracy, another gathering of voungsters who are fighting every day for the democratic idea without perhaps realizing how important their work is, are having a big celebration.

I mean the Future Farmers of America who are holding their annual convention in St. Louis. I have known about these boys for a long time. I have been on radio programs with them and have met a lot of them who come down here to Washington to talk with their executive secretary, W. A. Ross. But I never realized until this week what a powerful influence for the preservation of the American system these lellows are.

I have two reasons for saying they are a bulwark of democracy.

First, their ideal is just the opposite of "let George do it," the way of people in a dictatorship. The Future Farmers learn "do it yourself." That's one reason. The other is that they all seem to be imbued DEMOCRACY The President chosen by a majority of the people should be accepted by everyone, Baukhage states. He believes that the "Future Farmers," now in convention, constitute a bulwark of democracy. One duty of the newly elected President, Baukhage says, may be the appointment of a new chief justice of the Supreme ccurt. He explains that Chief Justice Hughes is 83 years old and might soon retire.

And that, I figured out, after a ot more questions is why most of the boys join the Future Farmers. It's simple enough—they are future farmers.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will undoubtedly resign before another four years are over. He's in good health and spirits, and you were to meet that familiar figure on one of his daily walks, you'd hardly believe that he will soon pass his eighty-third year. And even if you had never seen him or his picture, you'd be very likely to

"That man looks like what a chief justice ought to be."

Mr. Hughes ought to be, and is. No head of our highest tribunal ever fitted the solemn setting of the Supreme court better.

Here is the law in all its dignity come to life-the classic forehead, the keen and friendly eyes, the white beard of the patriarch. He not only looks the part but acts it.

No one will begrudge Chief Justice Hughes a rest when he chooses to step down from the bench and up again to a high place in his-

It will not be easy to find a worthy successor.

Strict Neutrality Hard to Grasp

Neutrality is a hard state of mind to grasp. I mean neutrality of mind on everyday subjects as well as toward nations in a war.

Old Dr. "A. B. C." Fletcher, well known to an earlier generation as the great advocate of chewing your food, learned about neutrality while serving as a member of Hoover's commission that fed Belgium in World war I. In that job you had to be neutral or destroy your own usefulness.

Once he told me that you had to learn to be neutral-that it is an art. You just have to roll up your emotions and put them in a corner and look at everything objectively. Finally you get so that if a chicken runs across the road, it's still just a chicken whether you own it or whether you're the man who mixes it up with his fenders. I've learned a little about neutrality myself in trying to be nonpartisan on the radio in election years. It really isn't so hard to practice when you get used to it, but the difficulty lies in persuading other people that you are really nonpartisan.

Prohibition is back in the air

The Drys have begun a drive, tied up with the defense program, declaring that "America cannot prepare with the present gigantic drink traffic hanging on its arm."

The Prohibitionists say: "There isn't any group of communists in America that doesn't soak its resolutions with beer." And, we might add without taking sides, the Bible says, "Look not upon the wine when it is red."

Dr. M. B. Cohen, in Ohio State Medical Journal, points out that it is now necessary to use the large doses of epinephrine usually prescribed, that is 10 to 15 minims (drops.) This dose sometimes causes reactions that are more alarming to the patient than the attack itself. He therefore suggests that but three to six minutes of the usual 1 to 1,000 solution be injected under the skin, "The attack will subside in most cases in a few minutes; if it does not, the dose should be repeated in 20 minutes."

What can be done to prevent attacks of asthma while the cause is being sought?

Dr. Cohen states that in many cases injecting four or five minims of epinephrine under the skin every three or four hours, day and night, will prevent asthmatic attacks and less of the epineprhine will be needed than if the physician waits for the coming of the attack before giving

Facts Regarding Angina Pectoris

Y OU may wonder as to just what difference exists between coronary thrombosis and angina pec-

In coronary thrombosis there is an actual blocking of the vessels supplying the walls of the heart. The blocking may be due to a blood clot, a small piece of tissue from some vegetable-like growths at valves of the heart, or to thickened lining of the blood vessel itself. As this condition may last for hours or days, the pain in coronary thrombosis (under breast bone and up into left breast) may last for hours or days. There is some real damage present. In angina pectoris there may be some of the same kind of damage present, but often there is no damage or alteration present in the heart itself or nearby vessels, but nevertheless, something is interfering with the blood getting to the heart muscle. As the heart muscle is not getting enough blood (enough nourishment), it cannot do its work and there is a tight, viselike pain present. By standing still, thus not asking the heart to pump as much blood, the pain usually passes away in a few minutes. This pain is under the breast bone and is exactly the same-and caused in the same way-as the pain we got as youngsters when we were running or taking exercise, before we got our "second wind."

Cause of the Attacks. attacks of angina pectoris were due to effort or exercise, but it is now known that excitement, anger, walking into the cold air, or a heavy meal may bring on the attacks.

Sir Thomas Lewis in his book, "Diseases of the Heart," has encouraging words for those afflicted with these attacks following effort. He states that the expectation of life in these does not differ very greatly from those who do not have these

In other words, in the majority of cases, if these individuals will exercise, eat, and have control of their emotions within reasonable limits, their life line will be as long as the average for their age.

QUESTION BOX

Q.-What is kaolin and what is it

A .- Kaolin is a clay in powder form. It is used in dusting powders and for intestinal disturbances. Q.-Does insulin cure diabetes?

A .- No. But insulin enables the blood to hold and use more sugar which otherwise would be thrown out of the body in the urine. By the use of this sugar the patient is enabled to live on as long as he takes the insulin.

Worn and Soiled Floor. QUESTION: About 10 years ago we put down a hardwood floor and stained it dark. It has been waxed a number of times each year. It has worn in spots. Can I use anything on these spots, or must I scrape the whole floor? The floor looks soiled and I can't seem to get it clean.

Answer: As a first step in doing over your floor, you should wipe well with turpentine to remove all of the wax. It is very probable that much of the dirt is in the wax, and this treatment will go far to restor-ing the appearance. With the wax removed, you can touch up the light spots with oil stain. Apply a coat and wipe off immediately, and continue until with successive applications, the color matches the surrounding floor. You should then finish with two coats of good floor varnish before rewaxing. Without varnish, dirt going into the wax will work through to the wood. With umes on the general theme of varnish this cannot happen.

Warped Bedroom Door. Question: I built my house last fall, and now find that the door to one of the bedrooms is badly warped. The top corner does not come within an inch of closing when the door is shut. Can I do anything about this? Answer: A door with any claim to quality should be built so that it is proof against warping, and warping is something that would justify a complaint to the dealer. In the long run it will be better to replace your warped door with one that is warpproof, because even after it has been straightened, it may not stay A cabinet maker could do the job for you, by putting the door in a press, after which he would run heavy dowels into it to hold it straight. Stained Floor.

Question: In the case of a much stained flooring, we have been advised that the stain, due to general neglect, can be removed by washing with water containing soda. Is this correct? Answer: A strong solution of washing soda or trisodium phosphate will remove the finish, but if the stains are in the wood, only a saturated solution of oxalic acid will bleach it out, after the finish has been removed. A floor finish that is in poor condition and badly stained should be scraped with a floor sanding machine, then refinished.

for an all asbestos shingle finish, from the standpoint of appearance and durability. Asphalt saturated felt is always used under asbestos shingle siding.

Food Moths. Question: I find moths in my packages of cereals and crackers, which I keep in my kitchen closet. What should I do to get rid of them? Answer: Those moths thrive in dried food of all kinds. Boxes of food that have been opened or broken should be thrown out. Clear off the shelves and scrub thoroughly with hot soapsuds. All cereals, nuts, crackers, spaghetti, etc., should be kept in tight containers; tin boxes or tightly capped glass jars. Gold Leaf Frame.

Question: What can I use to restore the original color to an alabaster lamp? I would like to have it look as when I bought it, a creamy white.

NEW YORK.-Close in, in the critical diplomatic huddle at Ankara is our John Van A. Mac-Murray, ambassador to Turkey. A Our Ambassador veteran ca-reer diplo-To Turkey Is a mat, Mr.

Grim Fact Chaser MacMurray might have been a star reporter. He has a gimlet mind and is a diligent digger and researcher. While our state department may not have much to say about what happens in Turkey and the Balkans, it will surely have the record, when it all becomes history.

As minister to China, Mr. MacMurray studied the country and its people so diligently that his friends said he began to look like a Chinese. There was the matter of likin, or Chinese import taxes. No other western diplomat had worrried much about them. Mr. MacMurray completely surrounded them.

He is the world's greatest authority on the subject. When he left his post in China after five years, he had compiled two stupendous vol-"Rights and Obligations of China From 1894 to 1919." These were only small details of his encyclopedic roundup of knowledge of the Far East. That being the case, they shifted him. Which is a reminder that this writer has a friend, a career diplomat, who learned Chinese and amassed such information in eight years in China, and was shifted to Geneva last year to be replaced in Peking by a young man starting from scratch.

With all his grim fact-chasing Mr. MacMurray has, like all good diplomats, a touch of Dale Carnegie about him-that is, he makes friends and influences people. He has a charming, ingenuous smile, when his addingmachine mind is out of gear, and he has been happily placed in the gold-lace maneuvers of our diplomacy. He was born in Schenectady in 1881, educated at Princeton and Columbia and entered the diplomatic service as secretary of the legation in Siam in 1907. He became head of the far eastern division and minister to China in 1925. In 1930 he and Lithuania, and minister to Tur-key in 1937. Many big issues of space with litharge, to be had at a international politics seem to have about them.

miral. "Thank you, boys," he wigwagged to his three British cruisers, as a sporting gesture in which he gave credit where it was due. He had had 37 years in the navy without a swing of the spotlight in his direction. But the victory over the Graf Spee started songs in the Drury lane musical halls about "Hadmiral Ennery Arwood"-a natural-and now he's almost the ruler of the king's navee because he took the measure of the big Graf Spee. It doesn't quite scan, but he gets the job as assistant chief of the naval staff, and member of the board of the admiralty.

It was as a lad of 14 that he first climbed the rigging of the old wooden training ship Britannica. He moved on up through routine grades and in the World war was a torpedo boat lieutenant. In the years between wars, he was with the fleet in South America, China and the Mediterranean, known as a courageous and resourceful officer, but never in the headlines or in the British Who's Who.

He is thickset, square-jawed and ruddy of countenance, planted on the bridge as though he had taken root there and meant to stay. This war hasn't inspired any clanging, inspiriting Kiplingesque lines, but Admiral Harwood may yet touch them off. Ashore he has spent much time in staff training. He has two sons in their early teens, who expect someday to "climb the rigging like their father used to do."

AS A "man against death" Dr. James Ewing has been in the trenches for years in the world war against cancer. A medal is conferred by the New York City Cancer committee for "outstanding work during the year in the campaign to control cancer." He is director of the Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases, a world leader in the battle against the scourge of modern times. He voices hope, but ruthlessly limits his conclusions to demonstrable fact.

Baseball relieves the strain of his long campaign. Once three truant students, slipping furtively into the grandstand, found their professor leaping high and yelling lustily as Honus Wagner banged out a home run over the left field fence. Dr. Ewing's excitement was all the greater as he, too, comes from Pittsburgh. His medical degree is from the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He has 10 other degrees, some earned, the others honorary (doubtlessly also earned). He is 74 years old, and still alert on the firing

Mr. Skaliskey said that it did not take a student of economy to see the effect of the surpluses, "The farmer," he said, "receives less for his crops because the demand is not equal to the supply. This cuts down his purchasing power with the result that the merchant does less business. Reduced business for the merchant means less busiwholesaler, and this, means less employment." He also called attention to the fact that although farmers constitute 25% of our total population they "The reason for this lack of equality ' he pointed out, "is that in ability to produce the farmer has far surpassed the ability of the general public to consume." "The irony of the whole situation is," Mr. Skaliskey said, "that persons living in this land of plenty and receiving public assistance have been found to be living on an average of 5c a meal or about $1.00 a week for food. Everybody knows that these persons are not receiving adequate food and the result is general undernourishment that may become a national problem. I have heard that many candidates for enlistment in the army have been rejected because of various ailments resulting from undernourishment and it appears to me that one of the best moves we can make in the way of national defense is the use of these depressing surpluses to feed people wno are not
