

Victory Loan Drive Has Auspicious Kick-Off Dinner-Meet Monday Night

Minute Men Meetings to be Held Throughout County Next Monday Night

The victory loan drive in Washington county had an auspicious kick-off dinner on Monday night, at Gonnings resort. There was a hundred per cent attendance of all the chairmen—that is community chairmen, banking chairmen and other members of the executive organization. The feeling of the meeting was very high; and, if that is any indication of what will happen in the victory loan drive, Washington county should again go over the top as it has in every one of the drives.

Next Monday night, Oct. 22, twenty minute men meetings will be held simultaneously in each and every city, village and township in Washington county. There are six hundred minute men in the Washington County War Finance organization. All of them will be out at these meetings throughout the county. If you are a minute man be sure that you attend the meeting in your locality.

Washington county's quota for individuals in the victory loan drive is $971,000.00. This will be the last of the organized bond drives—the eighth drive in the series. Washington county has gone over the top in each of the preceding seven. Robert H. Rolfs, executive chairman of the Washington County War Finance committee, opened the dinner meeting last Monday night with the reasons why this drive is necessary. He pointed out that the United States treasury needs the money for the following reasons:

- (1.) Care of the wounded and rehabilitation of veteran.
- (2.) Cancellation and termination of war contracts.
- (3.) To curb inflation.
- (4.) To bring the boys and girls back home.
- (5.) Maintaining the armies of occupation.

He informed those assembled that in the banks of Washington county there was as of September 29, $24,892,063.00 on hand in demand and time deposits. Of this amount, in savings accounts there was $13,465,289.00.

Following Mr. Rolfs' talk, Harold O. Leiser, chairman of the community division, spoke briefly on the house to house, farm to farm canvass. Every prospective bond buyer in Washington county will be called on by the minute man in the organization. Mr. Leiser spoke also on the local advertising and publicity that will be carried on throughout the drive and then had a film shown which depicted the tremendous amount of advertising the newspapers, magazines, radios, posters and all forms of media which will back up the minute men throughout the drive, telling to everyone the victory loan story.

Mr. Louis Kuehlthau, chairman of the banking division, pledged the support of all of the bankers of Washington county in this last victory loan drive. Incidentally, the bankers have played a tremendous part in all of the drives to date. Mr. Kuehlthau also spoke this past Tuesday at a regional meeting of bankers of South-eastern Wisconsin. The subject of his talk was "The Victory Loan—Our Responsibility."

The payroll savings division told their story of what they were doing in this drive. Harold Schatz, of the Payroll Savings Division committee, informed the chairmen at the meeting that payroll savings was still doing a remarkable job in Washington county; and that practically all of the people who were buying war bonds on the payroll allotment basis before V-J day were still continuing their fine job. He informed all the chairmen that industry would follow up on the house to house, farm to farm canvass.

Honorable Frank Bucklin, judge of the county court, who has served as honorary chairman for the Washington County War Finance committee during the last few years, spoke on the necessity of doing a good job in the victory loan drive. He was impressed by the fact that gathered at this last meeting were practically all of the same men who started out on war bond financing four years ago. He asked the chairmen to finish the job in a "Blaze of Glory."

Mr. Rolfs then closed the meeting with a brief resume of the activity of the first, the Defense Savings, Staff, then the War Savings Staff and then the War Finance committee throughout the last four years, showing the remarkable records that have been set up in the past drives. He stated that practically 20 million dollars worth of war bonds have been sold in Washington county. He informed those present that this was the last drive and that when Washington county went over the top in the victory loan drive and finished the job that the Washington County War Finance committee would be demobilized.

Now, on next Monday night, Oct. 22, the minute man meeting will be held—the last minute man meeting which will then start the ball rolling for the victory loan drive. Then, it will be the 28,000 people in Washington county who will have to do their part to finish this job as Judge Bucklin so aptly put it "in a Blaze of Glory."

$30,000 Fire at Bauer Bros., Campbellsport

Thousands of bushels of grain and cattle feed and large quantities of flour were destroyed in a $30,000 fire which swept the Bauer Brothers elevator, office building and warehouse in Campbellsport shortly before 11 p. m. last Friday. Floyd Bauer is head of the firm.

The buildings, located between the Bauer hotel and North Western railroad tracks, were practically completely destroyed and little of the contents could be salvaged. The Kewaskum fire department was called to the village to help the Campbellsport department battle the flames. The local firemen remained there until almost 1 a. m. until the fire was well under control while the Campbellsport department stayed longer to prevent the fire from starting anew or breaking out in any of the adjoining buildings. The firemen poured water from several hose lines into the burning mass. Campbellsport had two pumps and Kewaskum one and village officials praised the volunteers for their success in keeping the flames from spreading to other buildings.

Cause of the fire was not determined but it is believed that it may have started from a dust explosion in the elevator. A couple in the Bauer hotel said they heard an explosion at about 10:30 p. m. and that when they looked out of a window they saw the entire upper section of the elevator burst into flames. The fire spread rapidly. All of the buildings were connected by canopies and within a short time the office structure and warehouse at the rear were burning.

Men had been at work in the elevator up to about 10 minutes before the fire broke out. They had loaded a car with grain which escaped damage. Approximately 5,000 bushels of grain, much of it barley, four or five cars of bag feed and a carload or more of flour were destroyed.

The fire, which burned until 3 a. m. Saturday, attracted a large crowd. Mr. Bauer said that the loss is, partially covered by insurance and announced plans for immediate replacement of the buildings.

4 Towns, 3 Villages Top War Fund Quotas

On Monday, three more townships went over the top in the war fund drive, joining Farmington, which passed its quota last week. Among the villages, Germantown, Jackson and Kewaskum have exceeded their quotas.

George Kibbel reported that his town of Wayne "quota-busters" had topped their $660 goal, with a few reports still outstanding. The town of Erin, whose war fund chairman is A. J. Cleary, did an outstanding job in beating its quota of $600. Earl Schilling and his committee in the town of Polk made their goal in the first ten days of the drive, in spite of the fact that their report was not in until the twelfth day.

Dr. R. A. Dehmel captained the successful war fund crew in the village of Germantown, which is now past its quota of $660, with more expected. Ralph Wint erhalter of Hartford reports that the city of Hartford has gone over the eight per cent mark and is still working.

All in all, County Chairman D. J. Kenny was very pleased with the results of those who have completed the war fund-community chest contacts. However, several communities are lagging in completing their reports because one or two committee workers have not made all of their calls. Every effort is now being made to get all solicitations wound up this week. Washington county would like to be one of the first counties in the state to report "over the top" on the war fund drive.

Kewaskum Tips Lomira 45-32; Leads Conference

Last Friday Kewaskum evened the score with Lomira who handed them their only defeat in the last two years when they trounced Lomira 45-32. After trading touchdowns in the first period, Wierman of Kewaskum recovered a fumble and ran 30 yards for a touchdown and then caught a pass from Krueger and ran 25 yards for another touchdown to give Kewaskum a 19-7 lead, which they never relinquished.

Long runs by Stutz, McElhatten and Krueger in the second quarter accounted for three more Kewaskum scores while Lomira made two, leaving the score 38-19 at the half.

In the second half Lomira scored on an intercepted pass which Klebesidel ran 70 yards for a touchdown. Shortly after Voight scored his third touchdown of the game to come within six points of Kewaskum's lead. Kewaskum rallied early in the fourth quarter to score the final touchdown of the game on a pass to Glen Backhaus and leave the score at 45-32, Kewaskum's favor.

Defensive stars in Kewaskum's line were Stahl, Koepke, Schaub, Wierman and Glen Backhaus who constantly rushed hard and broke up Lomira's plays before they started.

Kohler beat Kewaskum in a non-conference game 54-18 Tuesday night at Kohler. The Kewaskum B squad also played and lost to Kohler's B 26-6.

CONFERENCE STANDINGS ARE:

Tiny taffeta bows trimmed the full net skirt of the gown and her headpiece was a tiara of flowers fashioned of illusion. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Harvey Krueger, sister of the groom, Miss Mary Ann Reis, a friend of the bride, and Miss Louise Sherman, sister of the bride, were gowned alike in pink frocks styled like that of the maid of honor. They wore matching headpieces of illusion. All the attendants carried bouquets of pink mums and white pompons. SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER. Post-war automobiles may ride on rubber springs which will eliminate noise and the necessity for lubrication. B. F. Goodrich has supplied over half a million rubber springs for military landing vehicles. B. F. Goodrich is now making tires of a new kind of synthetic rubber. The new rubber makes tires wear longer. Since cotton is of almost equal importance with rubber in the manufacture of tires, the rubber industry is one of the biggest customers of the Agricultural South. Steel and brass are used in the manufacturing of ordinary passenger car tires.

Tomorrow is Forever by GWEN BRISTOW

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, successful motion picture producer, had married Elizabeth, after her first husband, Arthur Klitredge, had been reported killed in World War I. They had three children, Dick, Cherry and Brian.

Elizabeth had been orphaned when a baby and had been raised by her aunt and uncle in Tulsa. One summer vacation she met Arthur at the country club. They were married soon afterwards. Within a year he enlisted and before long was sent overseas. Then came the telegram from the war department, announcing that Arthur was killed in action. The light seemed to have gone out for Elizabeth.

CHAPTER VI

The words revolted her. Without trying to understand her reaction, she exclaimed in protest. Arthur had given his life for his country and that was all there was to it. Nothing his country could give her could restore him and she had no desire for anything else. But when she tried to tell them this, Uncle Clarence and the banker, two kindly men with gray mustaches and sympathetic if astonished eyes, explained to her as gently as they could that it would be very foolish of her to insist that she had no need of a pension, since she unquestionably had. Most of what her father left had been spent on her education. And then—didn't she remember?—when she married she had spent a good deal on furnishing her home. Arthur's insurance, though as much as he could have afforded, was small—and in short, the American lawmakers had taken all these matters into account when they provided pensions for the widows of men who died for their country. Uncle Clarence knew this was a painful subject; he would have liked to spare her these details, in fact, he had already attended to everything, but there were a few forms to be filled out, and then her signature here, and here, and here—the banker dipped the pen into the ink and held it out, the handle pointing to her.

time, never anything but Arthur. Stop it, Elizabeth! I don't care how it hurts, stop it! Arthur is dead. Yes, say it and get used to it. He's dead, and you're burning yourself up like those Oriental women who lie down on their husbands' funeral pyres. Arthur wouldn't want this. He loved living and he wasn't afraid of dying, but he'd hate this imitation death you've been slipping into. If you're ever going to be anything better than a sick vegetable, you've got to learn to count on yourself. The only minute you've felt alive since you lost Arthur was the minute you said you didn't have to depend on him any more."

strength from the strength of her country.

In Los Angeles she learned to typewrite, and took the first job that offered itself through the employment office of the business school. It happened to be a minor clerkship in a law office, where a large part of the business was concerned with the contracts of Hollywood actors. This was before the days of the great agencies, and actors were supposed to handle their own contracts with the advice of privately retained lawyers. Elizabeth's work was mostly routine, answering the telephone and copying legal documents, but the moving picture business was young and even her own small contact with its bounding growth was interesting enough to demand all her attention.

When she woke up in the morning she no longer faced the blankness of an empty day, and at night she was tired enough to go to sleep. She had an apartment consisting of one room with a bath and kitchenette, but she was not uncomfortable. With the other girls in the office she talked about the immediate affairs of the day. She never talked about Arthur. They had not known him and could not be interested in him, and this was the reason why she had come to California.

As for the men in the office, they might have been sexless for all the thought she gave them. The first time one of them asked her to have dinner with him she felt startled, with a curious under-feeling of resentment; but it was the most ordinary sort of invitation from a friendly young fellow who disliked eating alone, and she accepted, though still with a sense of strangeness. But they had a pleasant evening, talking about nothing more personal than the bad temper of their boss and the unreasonableness of all actors, and when she came back to her apartment she looked at herself in the glass thinking, "I do believe I'm getting normal again."

She was getting normal again; she could feel it, like the return of equilibrium after dizziness. Her fellow-workers liked her and she was beginning to enjoy their companionship. When she got a promotion and a raise she felt a justification of herself that was real delight. As her job in the office brought her into contact with a great many employees of the moving picture industry, her acquaintance increased and with it her invitations. She lost her sense of strangeness at going about with men who were not Arthur. There were plenty of them to go out with, and there was nothing unpleasant in discovering again that she was an attractive woman. She did not try to pretend to herself that she was happy, but she was not unhappy either. There were still hours when she ached for Arthur, but she was grateful for what she had.

She had been in California two years when she met Spratt Herlong. Spratt worked in a studio publicity department. It was sometimes necessary for him to visit the office where Elizabeth was employed, to get information about screen players under contract to his company. The girls in the office liked him, because while he was always friendly he never stared meaningfully at their legs while he talked to them, or sat on their desks killing time that they would have to make up by staying an extra hour to finish the day's assignment. Though she had not been long in Hollywood, Elizabeth had already had sufficient experience of both these habits to appreciate the lack of them. She observed also that Spratt worked hard and got results in the form of a great deal of magazine and newspaper space for the actresses he was paid to publicize, and her own brief career in the business world had taught her to admire anybody who concentrated his attention on doing his job well.

As Spratt was invariably good-humored and reasonable in his requests, in contrast to some of his colleagues, who were too impressed with ideas of their own importance to take the trouble of being either pleasant or reasonable with office clerks—she responded by giving him all the assistance she could, even when it meant extra effort on her part. Spratt was grateful, and proved it not only by telling her so but by sending her tickets to pre-arranged coming by to drive her home in the evening, or calling for lunch or dinner. Elizabeth liked him increasingly. Before long she found herself hoping, when she started for work in the morning, that there would be a call from him to enliven her day.

Spratt was very unlike Arthur. Later, Elizabeth thought that one reason for her immediate pleasure in his company had been that he roused her interest without at the same time rousing her memories. Spratt was terse, practical and coolly ambitious. He liked the moving picture business and intended to be successful in it. His expectation had no elements of uncertainty—he was as matter-of-fact about it as a man who walks toward a chosen destination with the purpose of reaching it. Elizabeth had no doubt of his getting what he wanted. Spratt knew his trade. Though he had never done anything in a studio more important than direct publicity build-ups for actors, he had learned so much about how pictures were put together that he astonished her with his technical expertness. He rarely talked about himself, but he enjoyed talking about his business, and he regarded it, with characteristic clearness, as a business and not an art. "Look around you," he said practically.

"No, I don't want the government to pay me for Arthur."

vigorously getting ready to leave Tulsa, doing everything briskly lest she be overwhelmed with the pain of parting. Her first act was to buy a ticket for Los Angeles. Having it there bolstered her determination on the occasions when she thought she could not go through with it. The ticket safely in her desk, she began deliberately to strip herself of the physical objects that linked her with Arthur. She had to do this, because if she had taken them with her she would simply have built up another home like this one, where she could not pick up any article of use without remembering that Arthur had touched it. She sold most of her household possessions, and what she could not sell she gave away. It was hard to do, but not as hard as it would have been to live among these reminders of her lost happiness. Her acquaintances were puzzled by her vehemence, and Aunt Grace was volubly shocked. They could not understand what she was doing, and believing like most other people that if they could not understand a matter it had no explanation, they said, "Who would have thought Elizabeth was so heartless?" Aunt Grace agreed sadly, and told them Elizabeth had not only sold the desk where Arthur had worked, but had even given his clothes to the Salvation Army. Oh well, said Uncle Clarence, Elizabeth was young, and the young were noted for their springing adaptability. But Aunt Grace shook her head. "She has no soul," said Aunt Grace. "And after all we've tried to do for her." Contemplation of Elizabeth's lack of soul sometimes moved Aunt Grace to tears.

Since it was useless to explain to Aunt Grace, Elizabeth kept quiet and went on doing what she had to do. If she was going to leave, the break had to be entire. There was no other way. She parted with everything except a few keepsakes too precious to be given into alien hands, but even these she packed in a covered box which she put underneath the clothes in her trunk when she took the train for Los Angeles. As she crossed the continent she looked out with amazement at the immensity of her native land. No book of geography had given her any conception of such a space. This, she told herself as she looked out at the cities, the ranches, the desert, this was what Arthur had died for. Every acre of it was a safe place where Americans could live in security. Watching the states go by, Elizabeth felt as if she was drawing Fattening Lambs One help in putting weight on lambs is to keep sheep and lambs free from parasites, especially nodular worms and stomach worms. Infestation with parasites holds back growth and increases feed costs. Serious losses from parasites can be prevented by providing clean pasture, by the use of phenothiazine, and by taking other precautions.

Egg Eating Egg eating by chickens is a habit usually developed by young pullets. This costly habit can be prevented by providing plenty of nests—one nest for each six birds—so eggs will not be broken by nest crowding at laying time. All nest bottoms can be kept well padded with litter such as hay, straw, cottonseed, shavings, so eggs will not be broken as they are laid. If the egg-eating habit has gone so far that some of the birds break the eggs themselves, it may be necessary to remove those birds from the flock for a few days or dispose of them entirely.

Heating Safety One of the most notable innovations in safe heating is the wet base boiler in which water circulates under the ash pit. The fact that the boiler can be placed on a combustible floor is of interest in connection with the trend toward the basement-less house. In such houses it is often desirable to install the boiler on a wooden floor in a utility room or kitchen. Other safety features of modern boilers are foot-treadle door openers, ball-shaped, air-cooled handles and side shakers, making it easier to open and close doors.

FALL LIMING IS BEST FOR ACID FIELDS

The autumn months are the best time to apply lime to acid fields. Lime can be best produced by local crushers during these months as the raw limestone is fairly dry and lends itself to pulverization. Also, lime applied in the fall months has a longer period of time to neutralize soil acidity before the next crop is planted.

Many Washington county farmers are planning to apply ground limestone this fall. Such lime can be applied as a top dressing on new seedlings or broadcast on fields where legume seedlings will be planted next spring.

Some farmers prefer to mix it with the barnyard manure putting about 300 lbs. or more on each load and spreading it with the spreader. This method may save some labor which is an important factor on many farms today. Farmers wishing to order lime should place their order with the AAA fieldman in your township.

Since part of the soil of Washington county is not in need of lime, farmers are urged to have their soils tested before applying this soil sweetener. Soil samples together with a record of the fields from which they were taken may be sent or delivered to the county extension office, post office building, West Bend. A soil sample should consist of about a teaspoonful of soil taken from three or more places and from a depth not greater than the plow furrow. One such sample should be collected from about every two acres of the field. If desired, commercial fertilizers may be mixed with the lime.

PULLETS NEED SLOW CHANGE TO DRY FEED

Now that the time is at hand for moving pullets from the range to the laying house, "Barry" Hayes, extension poultryman at the University of Wisconsin, suggests that the birds be not changed too quickly from luscious feed to dry feed.

In place of the green feed the pullets have been getting on the range, Hayes says it would be well to give them such feeds as cabbage, mangels, other root crops, fresh-cut green feed, such as alfalfa, or short succulent fresh grasses when they are placed in the laying house. In this way, he says, digestive disorders may be prevented from too sudden a change to dry feed.

This will also be a good time for poultry raisers to start feeding hay to the birds, Hayes says. He explains hay will give them something to occupy them after being accustomed to running on the range, and that it may help prevent cannibalism.

FARM LABORERS NEEDED

We have almost 50 requests for farm workers on file at the county agricultural extension office in West Bend. Many of these farmers are greatly in need of help. In some cases, one man is doing the equivalent of two men's work. In others, the operator is not physically able to continue such heavy work, or other members of the family, such as school children, need to be relieved of some of the work they are doing.

The nation and the world still need food and until a great amount of restoration has been completed in Europe and the Orient, the American farmer will be expected to supply such food. He cannot do so if his laborers are not available.

FALL PLOWING HELPS TO CONTROL THE CORN BORER

Fall plowing is becoming increasingly important according to the advice of the Wisconsin Experiment station. In fact, they go as far as to say that fall plowing of all crop fields is necessary for the control of the corn borer which is spreading rapidly over the corn producing area of the state.

When corn stalks and corn stubble is plowed under in the fall and covered with at least three inches of soil, the corn borer larvae is unable to emerge as a larva. This usually occurs during May and June. The practice of plowing under corn stalks and stubble to a reasonable depth is our only hope to control the corn borer. It cannot be controlled by any spray or dust.

In addition to helping check the spread of the corn borer, fall plowing of corn fields permits earlier seeding in the spring. This is important where new grass seedlings are planted. Also, earlier seeding of grains usually result in higher yields. Then, too, fall plowing, if done early, does a fine job in helping to control weeds.

In plowing under corn stalks or any big weeds, it is very desirable to hook a heavy shank, 10 to 14 feet long, to the coupler or the plow beam to help cover all old material completely. Such a wire is held tight under the furrows as the earth is turned over and pulls under the corn stalks and weeds as it moves along.

SOFT CORN—HOW IT CAN BEST BE USED

Corn this year gives promises of being in various stages of development by frost. This means that practically every farm will have some acres of immature or soft corn this year unless we have a very late frost and unseasonably warm weather for the remainder of September and extending well into October. How can local farmers best handle their corn crop so as to get the most out of it is a question that is frequently asked.

In general, soft corn is much more valuable as silage than as grain; therefore, farmers should fill their silos with what soft corn they may have and leave riper fields for husking purposes.

Farmers should save for husking or snapping all the corn that prom-ses to keep well in the crib. It will pay to do this even if harvesting is made more difficult by keeping parts of the field for husking and putting other parts into the silo. The more doubtful corn should be fed early with only the best held over for late winter feeding. Otherwise, there is apt to be a large amount of spoilage in the crib. If corn has to be harvested when in the "milky" stage of growth, it is best to ensile it even if the erection of temporary silos are needed for extra capacity. When heavily frosted corn which has become quite dry has to be put into the silo the following suggestions may prove helpful:

1. Set the cutter for the shortest possible cut.
2. Add water to the silage by letting a hose empty into the cutter.
3. Have someone in the silo at fitting time to properly distribute and tramp thoroughly.
4. Add extra water to the top of the silage in the silo or cut in some green materials if any are available to secure a good seal.

An increased supply of silage can be put up on most farms by building a temporary silo using snow fenced with strong reinforced paper. Preferably these should not be over three columns high or there is danger of caving in. Such temporary silos should be emptied first as silage will not keep for any length of time in them. When filling a temporary silo, and extra water to insure more heat for packing the silage.

Trench silos, made by digging rectangular trenches in the ground and when lined with a good quality tarpaper, offer perhaps the best way of storing the surplus corn crop. They need a well drained location, a hillside being ideal. When once built, trench silos can be used for many years with very little maintenance cost. The cost of constructing them is greater than for the snow fence silo.

Farmers are producing something like 1,600,000 pounds of clean Ladino clover seed this year, or 200 per cent more than in 1942. California and Oregon produce about 90 per cent of the crop, which yields an average of 60 pounds of clean seed per acre.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. HOMEMAKERS PLAN FOR YEAR AT FALL COUNCIL MEETING

Officers of the local homemakers' groups in Washington county met in West Bend Oct. 9 for their annual fall council meeting. Plans were made for the coming year. Projects to be taken up by club members this year include "Choosing and Making Dress Accessories," "Care and Repair of Non-Electrical Equipment," "Meeting 1946 Clothing Problems Including the Use of Food and Flour Sacks" and "Planning Family Needs to Include More Minerals."

Women who attended also heard brief talks by Miss Mary Knau, child welfare worker, and Miss Clara Jaehning, Red Cross representative. Two 4-H club members presented demonstrations to the group. They were Phyllis Indermuhle of Jackson, who showed the right types of China and table linens to buy, and Donna Mae Held, also of Jackson, who demonstrated the preparation of vegetable trays.

The afternoon closed with the serving of light refreshments.

DDT USELESS ON WHITEWASH; USE DDT CAREFULLY
DDT is safe to use if:
You don't breathe the mist or dust; don't use it near fire, and do wash afterwards. C. L. Fluke, entomologist at the University of Wisconsin, adds another precaution: do not use as a mosquito repellent or rub it on the hands or face. DDT is absorbed through the skin when in oil solution and may cause serious illness.

Now that the product is reaching civilian markets, homemakers may be disappointed in the results, because, while widely acclaimed, DDT will not cure-all for all insects. DDT will kill silverfish, flies, mosquitoes, carpet beetles, clothes moths, cockroaches, bedbugs, and many plant-feeding forms such as cabbage worms, leaf-hoppers, and codling moths. It will also kill beneficial insects such as lady beetles, honey bees and syrphid flies.

The insecticide is available in several forms: TECHNICAL GRADE (not generally available to the public); POWDER DILUTIONS FOR DUSTING, valuable for household use—it may be dusted in attics for silverfish, under rugs, mattresses, etc.; POWDER DILUTIONS FOR SPRAYING, the safest form for household use from the standpoint of fire hazard and danger to the user. The spray has a drawback, as it leaves a residue when sprayed or painted on dark walls, screens or woodwork. Another form is DDT DISSOLVED IN PENTHOLE OIL, GENERALLY 5 PER CENT, the form most generally offered for sale in stores, and most commonly used; although it is a fire hazard when the oil mist is in the air, the oil evaporates rapidly, ending the fire menace.

A fifth form of DDT is an OIL EMULSION to be diluted with water for farmers to use in spraying barns, etc., although the other spray is equally useful. Fluke points out that DDT applied in whitewash or whitewashed walls is no good—the alkali deteriorates the DDT so quickly that the insecticide is useless.

TOO much has already been written about the "T." And yet it is surprising the number of siddlers who keep writing in to ask just what the "T" is and how it works.

1. The "T" doesn't demand old-fashioned blocking or hard body pressure. It depends more on speed and deception.

2. It needs a hard-hitting fullback who can split an opened line.

3. It needs a fast-moving back who can circle a massed or tightened line.

4. It demands a good passer who can work with deception and smooth ball-handling.

These latter three qualities put heavy pressure on the greatest pro "T" I ever saw operate.

The greatest college "T" I ever saw at work was Notre Dame's 1943 outfit with Bertelli, Creighton Miller, Kelly and two or three good fullbacks.

It's true that the old Bears and Notre Dame's 1943 squad would have been hard to handle under any system. Material makes the system more than any system ever made.

The main answer to football success is your playing strength—the forward wall and the backfield—your man power. And don't ever let anyone tell you a different story.

After all, they can't rush out on the field and do their own passing, running, blocking and tackling.

Sports Fans' Squawks
Sports fans who move up into the 50 or 60-million class, ranging from ages between 10 and 80 years, are certainly entitled to their beliefs, their squawks, their praise and their blame.

For, after all, they are the big part of sport, the major part by a little 90 per cent. They pay all the expenses, all the salaries. They make both amateur and pro sports possible.

They are usually the greats, who have grown accustomed to taking the worst of it. Their hardihood and their capacity for punishment is the most amazing feature of sport.

They are too often packed in after the manner of human sardines at race tracks and other sporting centers. They are too often overcharged.

It has been said there is no law that forces them to take this beating. This is true. But they happen to love their games, whether it is boxing, baseball, football, racing, golf or something else.

They are astonished at little courtesies they are so seldom shown anywhere or any time by the hired people who live off their main outlet for recreation and entertainment.

They are really an amazing breed. They take it on the chin and on the shin, back of each ear, in the stomach and also in the pocketbook.

Courses Too Tough
It has always been my belief that any golf course should be trapped only for the star player. Put all trouble out beyond the 200 yard mark which the average player can't reach.

The duffer or average player has enough trouble trying to hit the ball or get his bogeys. Why should he pay uncounted millions to make his golfing life more miserable?

We have built too many golf courses against the skill of the pros and the crack amateurs who, after all, give most of their life to golf—and who pay nothing in return.

Who cares whether a pro shoots a 63 or a 58? Why build courses to keep him from breaking par on courses which the average golfer can't handle in a 95?

The Nelsons and the other par-breaking stars are a breed apart. Let them go ground in even 3's. Who cares? But why keep punishing the 98 per cent who pay all the freight?

Golf is our greatest playing game for everyone. It is a friendly and a companionable game, demanding its share of psychology, philosophy, sportsmanship and nerve control—as well as physical skill.

This is just one example of the beating the backbone of the game has taken.

There is only one answer. The real fan, the support of every game, is the top snip. As long as he likes it, what can we do about it?

There is no reason why club owners and promoters should do anything—at least from the financial viewpoint. Ball fans were clamoring for World Series tickets in mid-August, before anyone knew the pennant winners. All big football games were sold out in early September. Punk fight cards draw big crowds.

Young Moderns Demand Clothes Styled With That 'American Look'

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

laine completes this definitely all-American costume. There's outstanding style distinction also in the page-boy red wool jumper dress shown to the left. It has all the attributes of youth and style and feminine charm teamed with a practicality and dependable wearability that makes it ideal for classroom and campus wear.

American designers are doing themselves proud in establishing a definitely distinctive, individuality in the fashions they create. This has come to be recognized and acclaimed as the "American look."

The keynote to the new all-American fashions is their striking simplicity, a simplicity that bespeaks a new era of smartness that gives accent to the uncluttered silhouettes, tuned to feminine prettiness in a most practical way. Such are the smartly styled dresses here pictured. These up-to-the-moment fashions by Emily Wilkens, the designer who is noted for her inimitable way of creating clothes for the campus set, are just the sort that are bringing a refreshing "American look" into the present-day fashion picture.

Simplicity plus is expressed all the way through the styling of the swank bolero suit. The designer makes the skirt and bolero of the now-so-fashionable wide-wale corduroy, which in this instance is in a striking electric blue, for bright colors are making a tremendous splash this year in the fashion realm. Using the wide wale horizontally instead of vertically is a master stroke as it gives a strikingly original look to the entire costume.

The slightly peg-top skirt has a shaped built-up waistline bespeaking an important trend in the season's styling. A blouse of light blue rayon is a smart choice.

Characteristic features of the important "American look" are seen in wide shoulders that round down softly into the new wing sleeves, in hug-waist and belted effects with bulk at the top, in peg-top skirts and the wrap-around types. Smart as can be are the dirndl-with-contrast-top costumes. With the dirndl that is gaily colorful a waist depth black jersey blouse is top fashion. If it is noticed, that American designers favor gray as a color for smart wool suits and dresses.

Dressmaker Touch

Many of the new fabrics are made of rayon and aralac, the latter a new fiber made from casein of milk. Combining fibers in this manner produces lovely soft fabrics with the feel of wool and the drapability of silk.

The simple one-piece frock shown is a handsome soft flannel of the new rayon-aralac type. The dressmaker touch is seen in the streamers of self fabric laced through silver eyelets on the blouse and belt. Front tucks, slit pockets and a kick pleat give skirt interest.

White Wool Wrap, Richly Embroidered, Is Latest

Evening wraps, which have a big season before them, are richly trimmed and about them centers increasing interest. A new vogue is on for white wool wraps that are richly embroidered in paillettes and beads and exquisite thread work. Many of these capes are made with yokes that extend over shoulders to give a broad effect, the yoke enriched with all-over embroidery and beadwork.

Gray Is a Favorite Color This Autumn
Favor for gray is seen throughout the fall collections. For daytime dresses the smartest fabric you can choose is gray flannel. As for gray furs, they are right in the lime light this autumn.

Velvet Bows Return
Remember when velvet was the fashion to pin a big velvet bow here or there on one's frock as a glamorous finishing touch? The pendulum of fashion has swung around again to justify that. It's smart to have in reserve a velvet bow or more to make your basic dress take on a dressy air.

Fur-Lined Coats Popular
If you believe in preparedness now is the time to take up the matter of buying a fur-lined coat. News from style headquarters is to the effect that more fur-lined coats than ever will be worn this winter.

Lacing Is Newest Fastening
The smartest way to fasten one's dress is to lace it up. Even the wool casuals have metal or plastic rings or slots cut in the material or eyelets of one sort or other through which is laced up the self-fabric cord.

On the New York Scenic Railway:

The long parade and the exciting band music in the fierce rains and winds north along Fifth Avenue — with hardly anyone among the pedestrians brave enough to pause and watch. (What dope insisted upon that parade, anyhow, in such pneumonia weather?)

The cacophony of buses, taxis, trolleys, cars (and women) as they merge at 34th and Broadway in what seems like an inextricable tangle—then miraculously emerge again without a fender dented — a symphony of NYclatter.

It is startling when you realize the great number of theatrical personalities on the Sardi walls who have faded out.

Put Pocket in Tablecloth
Make a pocket in the corner of the tablecloth you use for picnics. Then place a small stone in the pocket when necessary to act as a weight to prevent the cloth from blowing away.

Dressed to Kill
Farm workers who wear loose, torn clothing around machinery are "dressed to kill." For every job around the farm, proper safe clothing should be worn.

Better Eggs
Poultry is being bred to lay eggs with a thicker white than usual so that the eggs poach and fry better. Another line of breeding is working for thicker, less porous, and stronger egg shells.

Stretch Soap
After laundering lightly soiled pieces, such as neckwear, use the suds a second time for wiping off dusty windowsills and fingermarks on woodwork.

Soot Checks Heat
A heating engineer estimates that a crust of soot one-sixteenth of an inch thick wastes as much as a ton of coal in an average home during the winter.

Need Three-Squares
You can't get the foods you need in less than three square meals every day. A good breakfast is especially important for good health.

Mud Stains
For heavy mud stains soak them in lukewarm water. If necessary, use a bleach for white material; for colored, try kerosene.

Tidiness While Sewing
An old sheet, spread over the rug around the sewing table will catch threads and ravelings and make cleaning up easier.

Farm Dangerous Workshop
The accident record for farm workers is three times as serious as it is for factory workers.

Enrich Surface Soil
Deep rooted plants are important in enriching surface soil. Their roots draw from the deeper layers of the soil various plant nutrients, particularly minerals.

Farm Accident Toll
In the United States, 10 farm people are injured every three minutes on the average, and every day, 40 to 45 farm residents die as the result of accidents.

Celery Soup
Chopped celery tops flavor roasts, stews, bread stuffings. To make a base for cream of celery soup, combine celery tops with coarse ends of celery, cover with water and cook until soft.

Full of Protein
Soybeans are high in protein, the principal nutritional element in meat and eggs, and therefore make excellent substitutes and extenders for these foods.

Lost Production
Enough time was lost from farm accidents last year to have produced five bushels of wheat for each of the 137 million persons in the United States.

Extends Sugar
Drinks to be served cold, such as iced tea, coffee, etc., should be sweetened while hot, when less sugar is required.

The Burlington railroad has started a farm in Nebraska to raise 4,000 chickens a year to supply its dining cars.

Coccidiosis is caused by a parasite which invades the surface or lining of the intestinal tract of chickens.

Best Suds
Don't use too much soap. A suds about two inches thick has proven best for washing clothes clean.

Germ Control
Experiments in controlling epidemics of measles, chickenpox and mumps by the installation of germ-killing ultra-violet-ray lamps in classrooms of three large rural schools are being made by the New York state department of health. The three schools selected are built on the same general plan. All have similar ventilating systems so that the amount of air circulated per pupil is the same. Lamps are made of a special kind of glass which transmits ultraviolet bactericidal light. Trough fixtures protect the children from ultraviolet "sun burn." Disinfection of air depends upon circulation in the upper irradiated section.

Make Shopping Bag
Material from discarded awnings you may find salted away in a store-room can easily be made into a shopping bag. Wornout "pup tents" or outgrown raincoats will also fill the bill. After cutting out U-shaped back and front, selected are built on the same general plan. All have similar ventilating systems so that the amount of air circulated per pupil is the same. Belgian Blocks
Belgian blocks are stone paving blocks, generally granite, cut as truncated pyramids with the base five to six inches square, a depth of seven to eight inches and the face opposite the base slightly smaller than the base. They are called "Belgian" blocks, according to builders, because it is probable that they were first used or perfected in Belgium.

Scrap Iron Missiles
During the War of Independence and the War of 1812, knife blades, old nails, copper slugs, iron bolts and scraps of metal in cans were used in cannon. They were known as "langridge." Bayonet blades were bound with rope yarn and shot from cannon for the purpose of cutting the rigging in the enemy ship and effecting the fall of her masts.

Timber Seabed
That bare mineral soil is a much better seabed than the original duff surface of the natural forest floor or duff shaded by a thin layer of logging slash is shown by an experiment with artificial seeding of white spruce, black spruce, and balsam fir under upland forest conditions in northeastern Minnesota.

Shine Mirror
When the mirror gets splattered with tiny flecks of tooth paste and shaving soap, use a crumpled piece of toilet paper to wipe it off, rubbing the whole glass, and you'll find you've polished it as well. Make this quick shine up trick part of your daily tidying routine.

Aircraft Output
More airplanes were produced during 1944 by the American aircraft industry than the total of all aircraft of all types produced in the country from 1903 to Pearl Harbor. In the 38 years of its history prior to 1942, the industry produced an estimated 45,000 airplanes of all types, military and commercial. In 1944 a total of 96,359 military airplanes was produced.

Aircraft Engines
The expansion of aircraft engine production facilities from July, 1940, to June, 1944, exceeded air-frame factory expansion by 10 per cent, indicating the pressing need for increased engine production following Pearl Harbor. WIESNER IN TOKYO BAY; WRITES OF POUNDING GIVEN JAP COAST, IWO JIMA, OKINAWA

Mrs. Jim Koenen received a recent letter from her brother, Silvin B. Wiesner, QM 2/c, who is now "sitting" in Tokyo Bay, in which he describes some of the terrific action his ship the USS Vicksburg, went through in pounding Iwo Jima, the Jap coast and Okinawa and of the fireworks against the Jap planes before V-J day. Seaman Wiesner, a son of the Anton Wiesners, writes in part as follows:

"You don't know where we are at right now. Sitting as pretty as you please right in Tokyo Bay. Never thought that I'd be here that soon. Feels good to come to a place like this without getting shot at. Doesn't seem right at all. Before this for the last three years we used to look up with our finger on the trigger of the guns waiting for a slopehead to show up and then blast him down. But not any more.

"Have a few things I'm very happy about. Our mail isn't censored any more and the war is over. When I get the news I didn't know if I should laugh, cry or scream. You see we got it over the Tokyo radio when they asked for peace. So we hit them a little bit harder so they wouldn't change their mind.

"I'll try and tell you a few things that happened since we left the States. Left Norfolk on Jan. 1st, New Year's day. Went through the Panama canal, then to Pearl Harbor. Stayed for two weeks and then went to Saipan. Were there over night and then Iwo Jima. We got there three days before the marines landed. We pounded that place day and night. Then the morning of the invasion we went right up to the beach and cut loose with everything we had. We saw everything that happened. We took some wounded aboard for treatment because they didn't have any more room on the hospital ships. Then we got ours. Got hit with mortar fire. Guess we were a little too close to the beach. Had eleven wounded. They are back with us again.

"We stayed there from Feb. 16th to March 6th, then took off to Ulithia. Stayed there for ten days, then we were off with Task Force Fifty-Eight. You probably heard of us at that time. The first morning off the coast of Japan the fireworks started. Jap planes all over the place. You should have seen that. The first one that came in had Vicksburg all over it because it came so close that the bomb and torpedo he dropped pretty near took the paint off. Saw him coming and froze on the wheel. After changing my scivies we started beating them off again. They were falling like flies. Wish I had the money that was spent on ammunition that morning just in the first two hours. Could retire for life. The sky was red with tracers. They never got through to the ships. After it was over the score was no runs, no hits and no errors and a lot of slope heads less in this war. They thought they could chase us away but we stayed right there and wouldn't budge.

"We were there for forty-five days and that's a long time when you see nothing but water. Went back to Ulithia for ten days of rest they told us but we worked harder than ever. Loaded ammunition, fuel and stores, then we were off again some place. This time it was for forty-seven days. We were steaming along nice and peaceful one day when a suicide plane came straight down at us, and I mean us. We cut loose and threw everything but the kitchen sink at him. Hit him time after time. He was on fire but still he came. He missed, thank God, or else a lot of us wouldn't be around to tell it, but it wasn't far. The ship shook as if a giant hand was shaking it when the bomb went off.

"Then we went to Okinawa. Had a few close shaves there but not too bad. Were there for a little over a month. In that time we fired over a hundred thousand rounds of ammunition. We traveled miles equal to the distance three times around the world. It's a lot more now. Went to Leyte Gulf in the Philippines in June. We're supposed to stay there for three days but we got dysentery. Couldn't eat for five days so the doctor gave me blood plasma and fed me through my veins. I'm over it now and sure don't want it back. Then after two months we joined Task Force Thirty-eight. Just patrolled the coast of Japan to make sure they didn't pull a fast one on us. Yesterday morning we came in here. How long we will stay I don't know. Have hopes of getting back soon. December at the latest. Will get thirty days leave then."

WIETOR, CREW HOLD DUAL CELEBRATION IN PACIFIC

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC—Cyril Norbert Wietor, seaman, first class, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Wietor of Ashford, formerly of Route 3, Kewaskum, took part in a dual celebration aboard his Pacific aircraft carrier, the USS Intrepid, recently. The officers and men of this famed warship celebrated the victory in the Pacific and the observance of the ship's second year in service.

The day of celebration began with thanksgiving services and closed with a spectacular fun show. The noon meal was turkey with all of the trimmings.

The INTREPID has a proud record as a fighting ship. Four times she suffered battle damage. Her history records 80 enemy ships sunk and 65 enemy aircraft destroyed by the carrier's planes and guns.

HERRIGES' SHIP IN PACIFIC ACTION; CLAIMS TWO FIRSTS

ON THE USS ALASKA IN THE PACIFIC—Francis Earl Herriges, seaman, second class, USNR, Route 2, Kewaskum, can claim two "firsts" along with other members of this ship's crew.

The ALASKA was the first of a new class of fighting vessels—the battle cruiser—and she took part in the first raid on Tokyo in February, 1942.

The 3,000-ton vessel has taken part in most of the Pacific naval actions since that time. She is credited with shooting down a twin-engine suicide plane headed for a large carrier nearby during a strike on the Ryukyus.

Her length of more than 800 feet is exceeded only by the IOWA-class battleships and the ESSEX-class carriers.

PFC. BUNKELMANN AWARDED THE BRONZE STAR MEDAL FOR HEROIC SERVICE IN GERMANY

Pfc. Wilmer Bunkelmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bunkelmann, has been awarded the bronze star medal citation for heroic service against the enemy in Germany. The citation reads as follows:

"Pfc. WILMER E. BUNKELMANN 36973394, 335th Infantry, United States Army, for heroic service in connection with military operations against the enemy in Germany, 21 April 1945. While serving as a platoon runner during an attack on a German town, Pfc. Bunkelmann maintained contact between his platoon and the leading platoon as the troops advanced. After the platoon had reached their objective and set up defenses, several men were hit by sniper fire. After locating the approximate position of the snipers, with complete disregard for his safety, he led a squad within close range of the objective. In crossing the open ground, Pfc. Bunkelmann was wounded by enemy fire. His action, however, enabled the squad of riflemen to eliminate the enemy resistance. The courage, initiative and devotion to duty displayed by Pfc. Bunkelmann were a source of inspiration to members of his unit and reflect high credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States. Entered military service from Wisconsin.

Major General, U. S. Army,

AWARD CPL. DORN BRONZE STAR MEDAL FOR HEROISM ON LUZON; KILLS SEVEN JAPS

By direction of the President, the Bronze Star Medal has been awarded by the commanding general, 1st Cavalry division, to Cpl. Albert Dorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Dorn, Route 2, Kewaskum, for heroic achievement against the enemy near Luneta, Luzon Island, Philippine Islands, last February. Cpl. Dorn, who is now with the 1st Division, 12th Cavalry in Japan, served in Australia, New Guinea, Admiralty Islands, Leyte and Luzon. He was inducted into the service on April 3, 1942. The citation reads as follows:

"Cpl. Albert Dorn, 36221297, Cavalry, U. S. Army, for heroic achievement in connection with military operations against the enemy near Luneta, Luzon Island, Philippine Islands, on 21 February, 1945. While protecting the right flank of a troop advancing on the virtually indestructible fortifications in the Luneta area, his squad suddenly encountered furious fire from a heavily fortified enemy bunker. Cpl. Dorn, acting squad leader, ignoring the withering hail of enemy fire, blasted away with his automatic rifle at the firing ports of the bunker. After killing three of the Japanese, four others frantically rushed from the bunker and attacked the squad, but Cpl. Dorn quickly liquidated them. His quick and effective action at the risk of his own life was in a large measure responsible for the success of the assault on the Luneta area."
