

Dedication Tuesday of New Addition to St. Joseph's Hospital

$30,000 of $100,000 Goal Attained in Drive for New Wing

The dedication of the new addition to St. Joseph's Community hospital at West Bend will take place next Tuesday, March 18, at 10 a. m., and the ceremonies will be open to the public, the sisters at the hospital revealed this week.

The ceremonies will be followed by a solemn high mass, after which dinner will be served. His Excellency, the Most Rev. Moses E. Kiley, archbishop of Milwaukee, will officiate at the dedication services.

The dedication comes at a time when the people of this community are engaged in the biggest, most charitable undertaking ever launched here—that of raising $100,000 to help the sisters meet unforeseen costs incurred in constructing the new wing.

Up to Wednesday morning of this week approximately $30,000 of the $100,000 goal had been attained, according to Judge F. W. Bucklin, general chairman of the drive. Included in this figure was $1,420 from the town of Barton, first precinct in the community to complete its solicitation.

Judge Bucklin paid tribute to Paul Cypher and his solicitors for a fine job, and Cypher takes this opportunity of thanking his co-workers for their splendid efforts and the people of the town of Barton for their generous contributions. The judge added indications that all the townships in which solicitations are being taken will reach at least $1,000 each.

The villages are also responding generously, the judge reported, and the initial gifts committee is hard at work. The latter still has a large number of calls to make on prospective donors from whom it is hoped contributions ranging from $100 to $1,000 and more will be received.

The judge pointed out that much still remains to be done in the house-to-house solicitation campaign, with second and third calls necessary in many instances. Every effort, the judge said, is being made to make the drive a success.

Judge Bucklin disclosed a 7 by 8 foot hydro-therapy tub has been installed in the new wing for the treatment of four badly afflicted polio patients who are confined to the hospital. This tub will permit treatment of their paralyzed muscles by one of the best methods known to medical science today—the water bath method.

With such equipment as this, which makes the hospital as modern as any that can be found anywhere, an appeal is being renewed to the public to come to the support of their hospital at its hour of need. It is pointed out that many have liberally subscribed to the drive with cash contributions and have indicated they will give more if needed to help attain the goal.

Their generosity should serve as a spur to others to "Protect health and life—support your community hospital."

WITH OUR SERVICEMEN

DARWIN BRUESSEL HOME FROM GERMANY; WILL BE DISCHARGED

Pvt. Darwin Bruesel, son of Mrs. A. C. Johnson, village, arrived home on Wednesday of this week from the Bremerhaven, Germany, staging area, to spend a terminal leave. His honorable discharge from the army will be sent to him on April 4. He arrived in New York on the General Steward from Bremerhaven last week after a 10 day voyage across the ocean. Pvt. Bruesel entered the army in August, 1945 and after receiving his basic training at Camp Roberts, Calif. was sent overseas. He served overseas since March 2, 1946, a period of about a year, all of which he spent in Germany. He served 4½ months with a heavy machinery construction group and then was transferred to the military police. With the former outfit he operated various types of heavy construction equipment.

PARISH SETS PICNIC DATE

The Ladies' Aid of St. John's Lutheran church, New Fane, has set aside Sunday, June 15, as the date for their annual picnic to be held on the parish grounds.

ANNUAL RED CROSS FUND CAMPAIGN IS POSTPONED

The fund campaign of the West Bend area chapter of the American Red Cross has been postponed until May, it was announced by R. S. Grogan, fund chairman.

The 1947 quota of $4,500 is about half of last year's $9,180. It is less than half of the chapter's annual expenses and contribution to National Red Cross. The balance of the chapter's requirements will be paid out of unused funds from previous drives.

Dr. E. L. Morgenroth, Prominent Village Veterinarian Dies

Residents of Kewaskum were shocked Thursday morning to learn of the death of Dr. Edwin Louis Morgenroth, 50, a veterinarian for more than 50 years, and a prominent citizen and former public official of this village. Dr. Morgenroth passed away at 5 a. m. on Thursday, March 13, at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend. He suffered a stroke a week ago and when his condition became worse he was removed to the hospital Tuesday, but he failed to rally.

Dr. Morgenroth graduated from the Chicago Veterinary college in 1893, following which he took a post-graduate course. He practiced at Boltonville for more than 20 years and then came to Kewaskum where he practiced 32 years. Dr. Morgenroth was exceptionally active for his advanced age. Although he had been ailing for some time, he served his practice until retiring about a year ago. He gained a wide reputation through the capable, progressive, efficient serving of his practice.

He was also active in public, civic and social life. Dr. Morgenroth formerly served as president of the Wisconsin State Veterinarians' association, president of the village of Kewaskum, and president of the Kewaskum school board. He was a member of the Washington County Fair association, a member and former president of the Old Settlers' club of Washington county, and a member of the Modern Woodmen and Odd Fellows lodges.

The deceased was born at Boltonville on April 14, 1866, a son of Charles and Minna (Stautz) Morgenroth. He was married to Ottilia Berger on Nov. 7, 1894, at Fredonia and the couple was privileged to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Nov. 7, 1944.

Three children were born to the couple, one daughter having died in infancy. Surviving along with the widow are Elvira (Mrs. John C. Sweney) of Chicago and Edwin C. of Pasadena, Calif. Dr. Morgenroth is further survived by three grandchildren, John E. Sweney of Chicago, and Peter A. and Christopher A. Morgenroth of Pasadena; two sisters, Mrs. Ida (August) Schauer of West Bend and Mrs. Clara (Henry) Klessig of Milwaukee, and one brother, Dr. Charles Morgenroth of Milwaukee. Two sisters and one brother predeceased him, namely Emma (Mrs. Charles Weingartner), Anna (Mrs. Louis Juergens) and Dr. Henry W. Morgenroth.

The remains are in state at the Morgenroth residence on Fond du Lac avenue since 4 p. m. Friday. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the residence, the Rev. W. G. Schwemmer, pastor of the Peace Ev. and Reformed church officiating. Burial will be in Union cemetery at Boltonville.

WILLIAM JOHANN

William Johann, 69, of this village, a carpenter by trade, died at 2:15 p. m. Saturday, March 8, at St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend. Sickly for the past five years, he had been a patient at the hospital since Jan. 1 of this year.

Mr. Johann was born Jan. 29, 1878, at Sheboygan Falls. He made his home at Jackson for many years before coming to Kewaskum, and resided in this village and vicinity for the past five years.

The deceased was married to Anna Drilling, who survives. They were the parents of eight children, six of whom survive, Walter of Neosho, Mildred (Mrs. Melvin Wolf) of Hartford, Viola (Mrs. Lloyd Zahn) of Barton, Florence (Mrs. Joe Muenier) of Hartford, Dorothy of Hartford, and Marvin of Kewaskum rural route. He also leaves 13 grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. Carl Hafemann of Kewaskum and Mrs. Fred Hill of Maywood, Ill., and two brothers, August Johann of Wisconsin Rapids and Edward Johann of Minneapolis, Minn. One brother, Otto, Johann, predeceased him.

Funeral services were held at 9 a. m. Tuesday in St. Michael's church, St. Michaels, the Rev. R. J. Kastner officiating. Burial was in the parish cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We are sincerely grateful to friends and neighbors for their many kind acts of sympathy and assistance during our sad bereavement, the death of our husband, father and brother, William Johann. Our appreciation cannot be adequately expressed. Special thanks to Rev. Kastner, the organist and choir, pallbearers, drivers, for the beautiful floral pieces and spiritual bouquets, to the traffic officer, Miller funeral home, all who showed their respect by attending the funeral or calling at the funeral home.

Margaret Mandel Wed to William Windorf

Miss Margaret Mandel of Dheinsville became the bride of William Windorf of Rockford, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Windorf Sr. of the town of Kewaskum, in a wedding ceremony performed Saturday afternoon, March 8, at four o'clock in the parsonage of the Zion Lutheran church at Dheinsville by the Rev. H. Muehleisen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith of the town of Kewaskum, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, were witnesses at the wedding.

The bride wore gray with blue accessories and a corsage of red roses and white sweet peas. Mrs. Smith wore a sky blue dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and sweet peas.

Later in the evening a reception was held at the Old Heidelberg club in Milwaukee for the immediate families. The newlyweds will make their home at Meeker Hill, Wis.

D. J. Kenny Cancer Drive Chairman for This County

Delbert J. Kenny, president of the B. C. Ziegler company, West Bend, has been named chairman of Washington county for the American Cancer society. The appointment was made by Fred Epling, campaign chairman for the Fifth Medical Council district which includes Washington county.

Mr. Kenny will direct the financial campaign in business and industry in his territory during April, the month officially designated as CANCER CONTROL MONTH.

Individual solicitations will be made by field army personnel under the leadership of Charles Harris, Hartford, captain of South Washington county. Wisconsin's goal, exclusive of Milwaukee county, has been set at $750,000.00. The goal for Washington county is $2,200.00.

SCHAFSKOPF NOTES

Another large crowd of 56 players participated in the schafskopf tournament held at "Jimmy" Miller's tavern Tuesday evening. Winners of the prizes were: 1st, "Murphy" Miller, 46-10-36; 2nd, Ray Klein, 32-0-32; 3rd, Martin Schmidt, 36-4-32; 4th, Fred Baumgartner, 38-8-30; 5th, Arnold Bier, 34-6-28; 6th, John Botekowski, 36-10-26; 7th, R. Bonlander, 36-10-26.

Next Tuesday's tourney, on March 18, will again be held at Louis Heisler's tavern, starting promptly at 8 p. m. The following week, March 25, play will return to Miller's tavern.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

The Fond du Lac county clerk has issued a marriage license to Ernest "Bob" Gruber, Kewaskum, and Jeanette Serwe, Campbellport.

Mrs. Lawrence passed away at Sheboygan Memorial hospital on Sunday morning, March 2, at 8:30 a. m. where she underwent an operation on Feb. 22. She was born on Jan. 10, 1886, in Brandenburg, Richland county, South Dakota. On May 9, 1908, she was married to Herman Lawrence of Town Scott, who survives. Besides her husband she has two daughters, one sister and two brothers. One son preceded her in death in 1935.

Pallbearers were Norman Glender, Willard Glender, Carl Lierman, Raymond Garbisch, Marvin Garbisch and Raymond Justman.

Attending the last rites from away were friends and relatives from Wausau, Burnett, Sheboygan, Milwaukee, West Bend, Cedar Grove and Fredonia.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy extended to us during the recent illness and after the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Lawrence. We especially wish to thank Rev. Kaniess for his consoling words, the pallbearers, donors of cars, church children, those who sent flowers and cards, Lester-Yoho funeral home, and all who showed their respect for the departed by attending the funeral.

Miss Hildegarde Kohn, Route 2, Kewaskum, submitted to an operation at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, on Friday, March 7.

West Bend Schachts Spank Legion 70-38

In a post-season exhibition at the McLane gym in West Bend Sunday night before a large crowd, the powerful West Bend Schachts, champions of the fast Land of Lakes Major league with a record of 17 and 2, and victors over some of the best amateur teams in the state during the past season, trimmed the Kewaskum Legion, Land of Lakes northern division winners, 70 to 38.

Except for the first and third quarters, the ball game was all Schachts. The first quarter, which ended 14-12 in the Schachts' favor, was tight with Kewaskum holding the lead part of the time. Wayland Tessar was mainly responsible for the Legion's strong bid in the first quarter. He scored the first basket of the game and took scoring honors for the Legion with 16 points, 10 of which he tallied in the first half.

Led by the elusive Caspari, who had a field night of it by dropping in a total of 28 points for the winners, the entire Schachts team went on a spree in the second quarter. Headed by Caspari, Graff and Kissinger, they scored 20 points while holding the Legion to 8. This gave them a 34-20 halftime advantage. After a rest between halves, Kewaskum again played the Schachts on almost even terms in the third period, scoring 12 points to the winners' 14. It was still a ball game at this stage with the Bend five ahead, 48-32. But in the last quarter the Schachts hit another hot streak and walked away from the locals. They netted 22 points in this stanza while Kewaskum dragged along with only 8, being pretty tired out.

The speed of the Bender five and the big floor were responsible for the wide margin of defeat. Kewaskum is not used to such a large floor and with the experienced Schachts using a very fast break down the floor, they were unable to keep pace with them. Proving this point is the fact that the Legion played them on even terms in the first and third quarters when they were fresh but slipped badly in the second and fourth frames when they were tired. Another big factor in the setback was the work of West Bend's ace guards, Graff and Sauer, in holding Paul Kral, leading scorer in the Lakes northern division, and leading scorer for the Schachts last year, to only three points. Being up against a better team, Kewaskum, all told, did not play its usual good game, while the Schachts had a hot night both from the free throw line and the field, swishing in many lucky long and side shots from out on the floor.

Trailing Caspari and Tessar, the high men, were Graff, Kissinger and Honeck, all with 11 points. West Bend sank 12 out of 18 free throws while the Legion connected for only 6 out of 17. On a smaller floor Kewaskum no doubt would give the Schachts a close run. The game was the finale for the Legion which has decided against entering into a playoff with the southern division champs and all tournaments.

Charlie Palt Leases Bar-N Ranch April 1

Charlie Palt, former owner of the Wagon Wheel tavern south of West Bend, and present owner of the New Prospect Grocery store, has leased the Bar-N Ranch, located near Mantle lake six miles northeast of Kewaskum, from the local owners. He will take possession April 1 and with his wife and family will move there at that time. Charlie plans to have a grand opening at the ranch in the near future, when details will be announced in this paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Miller, youngest son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin "Murphy" Miller, West Bend, who formerly operated a tavern in Kewaskum now being conducted by another son, "Jimmy" Miller and wife, have taken over the grocery at West Prospect occupied by the Palts. The Harvey Millers, who had resided in West Bend, took possession of the grocery on March 1. Harvey is a veteran of World War II and served overseas for 18 months. He had been employed at the Amity Leather Products company since his return from the service.

KEWASKUM LOSES GUT IN GRADE SCHOOL TOURNEY

West Bend took the honors in the grade school basketball tournament conducted at the McLane school, West Bend, last week by Coach Carl Kuss of the high school. The Kewaskum grade team lost their opener Thursday afternoon to Port Washington team No. 1, 54-18. Kewaskum then upset Hartford, 26-24, in the consolation round on Friday afternoon but St. Mary's of Port Washington took the consolation championship by beating Kewaskum, 19-9, Saturday evening. West Bend team No. 1 capped the championship and West Bend No. 2 placed second. Other teams entered were Port Washington No. 2 and Cedarburg.

YOUNG MAN LOSES HAND IN ACCIDENT AT LOCAL PLANT

Raymond Gremminger, 18, of Campbellport rural route, an employee on the second shift at the Kewaskum Utensil company, lost his entire left hand when it became caught in a press at the plant at about 6:15 p. m. Tuesday.

The hand was severely mangled and almost completely severed at the wrist in the accident. The injured youth was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital at West Bend by Dr. R. G. Edwards, where the hand was amputated about three inches above the wrist. Gremminger is in fairly good condition at present.

CARS OF LOCAL DRIVERS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

Three cars were involved in an accident on Highway 55, at Knoeck's tavern, several miles south of Kewaskum on Saturday at about 9:30 p. m. According to the report on file in the sheriff's office, a car driven by Thomas Bouchard, 38, R 2, Kewaskum, hit an auto driven by Melvin Soyk, 29, R 4, West Bend. The Bouchard car then skidded sideways and the back end of the Soyk machine, careening from the impact of the blow, struck a parked car owned by Reuben Martin, R 2, Kewaskum. No one was in injured but all three cars were damaged.

UTAH THIS IS THE PLACE

(Editor's Note: This is another in the "Stories of the States" series.) By EDWARD EMERINE WNU Features.

Old Jim Bridger, at his lonely fort on Green river, talked to the leader of the strange band and learned these emigrants were headed for the Great American Desert beyond the mountains.

The emigrants moved on, and a hundred years ago, on July 24, 1847, Brigham Young looked out across a seared and desolate land of sagebrush and alkali, and said: "This is the place!"

One lone tree clung to life in the entire valley. Heat waves danced and hot breaths of air came up the canyon. If there were inward doubts among his followers, none is recorded. Obediently the band moved into the desert.

Mormon Convert. Brigham Young was a native of Vermont and of Revolutionary ancestry. He had become a convert to the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, the Mormon church, when Joseph Smith, the founder, was killed at Nauvoo, Ill., Brigham Young was chosen to take his place.

Rocky hills and desert did not deter him. They were but the materials with which he would build. In this strange land he and other Mormons would be far removed from religious and political differences. Here they would have a land of their own.

A dreamer was Brigham Young, but he was a doer as well. Perhaps his eyes saw more than the mirages on the desert that day. He might have envisioned the Territory of Deseret, the beginning of an American epoch, the birth of a vast and productive region. The valleys and mountains that his people were to colonize later were before him, and there was a temple to be built, cities and towns to be laid out, industries to be developed, canals and ditches to be dug, and water to be spread over the thirsty soil.

Faith Saves Crops. The Mormon leader likened the group to a swarm of bees beginning a new hive. The Beehive became their symbol, and all men were workers. The hardships of crossing the plains and mountains were as nothing compared to conquering the desert. There were discouraging days when hunger stalked. Huge locusts came to eat their crops. "Have faith! Have faith! Pray!" And they had faith, and they prayed. Out of the skies swarmed seagulls—thousands and thousands of them—and they devoured the locusts!

Brigham Young stated his wants and the group's needs, and builders set to work. The famed Mormon tabernacle was built without nails or steel.

Monumental Effort. At the ground level of the Salt Lake Mormon temple are huge earth stones, each weighing three tons, and 50 in number. A mountain of MORMON SHRINE... Notable among Salt Lake City's attractions is the Mormon temple. Last of the Latter Day Saints temples in Utah to be completed, the Salt Lake City edifice was begun in 1853 and not completed until 1893. The temple is built of granite, many of the larger blocks being carted by ox-teams before a railroad was built in 1873. Seen in silhouette to the left is the famous Mormon tabernacle, noted for its acoustics and organ.

Salt Lake and Flats Lure Tourists, Industries, Racers

There is no need to sink a shaft to find salt in Utah. It is mined on top of the ground where it lies many feet deep on the shores of Great Salt Lake and in famous Bonneville salt flats. Naturally the state is a large producer of both common salt and sodium products.

People who go to the beaches of Great Salt Lake find that they float like a cork in the water because of its saline content, which ranges from granite 20 miles away furnished the material. Huge granite blocks were quarried in a canyon, slung with chains from heavy carts and drawn by oxen to the site. Over 40 years from the time Brigham Young designated the temple site, the construction was complete, the angel Moroni set in place and 75,000 people took part in the dedicatory services. But Brigham Young had been dead for many years.

The climate of Utah is dry, stimulating and wholesome. The sky is so clear that no cloud specks it on 300 days of a year. Lacking rain, the Mormons pioneered irrigation in America, bringing water from the mountains to irrigate crops in the desert.

Today, Utah's chief crop is sugar beets, but vegetables and fruits are grown in profusion. Other crops are wheat, oats, potatoes, hay, alfalfa, corn, barley and rye.

More than two million sheep, 100,000 dairy cattle and a half million beef cattle are grazed in Utah. Wool production amounts to 20 million pounds annually.

Manufacturing in Utah began with the Mormon pioneers, who wove woolen clothing, mined coal, quarried rock, canned fruit and vegetables, made sugar from beets, installed grist mills, slaughtered cattle for meat, made butter and cheese, and utilized other raw products at hand. The great copper mines came later, with smelting and refining of ores to follow. Bingham, Magna, Tooele, Garfield and Provo became mill towns. The Geneva steel plant at Provo is the largest in the West, with a mountain of ore close beside it.

Utah scenery will compare with any in the world. Here are mountains as grand as the Alps, sunsets that rival those of Italy and Greece. Marvelous canyons, mammoth stone bridges, weird rock formations and other master works of nature are found throughout the state.

The mountain lakes and streams provide fine fishing and the forests abound in game—bear, elk, antelope, grouse, deer, prairie chickens and others.

Utah, once a formidable desert, now teems with populous cities and thriving villages. Once parched and burned ground has been changed to green fields, gardens and orchards. Paved highways, airlines and several transcontinental railroads provide transportation. What wonders a hundred years have wrought!

This year every city and hamlet in Utah is preparing a celebration. They will celebrate the centennial of the arrival of Mormon pioneers. Less than 75 per cent of the people are now Mormons, but all will join in that celebration regardless of creed. The building of Utah was the opening of the West. It was an epoch in American history.

acres of white salt stretch on either side of the paved highway which crosses the area. The flats are so level that many automobile speed records have been made on them. Ab Jenkins, former mayor of Salt Lake City and famed race driver, prefers the flats to all other courses, claiming the salt keeps rubber tires cooler than a dirt or board track. The flats also are notable for their mirages.

Elmer Tritchell Dodges Southern Cows and Pigs

Dear Folks: Well, I have just made one of them trips South through Georgia and Florida by auto and the cows are ahead on points although I am still holding the pigs even. I never knew there was so many cows and pigs loose on highways before in the whole U. S. A. Them Georgia cattle are the skinniest I ever seen and now I know why. They keep thinking there is grass in macadam, cement and asphalt. And a cow born and raised in Florida evidently has been sold on the idea there is nourishment in them white lines that mark the middle of through roads.

Georgia and Florida cows are the only kind that have to be taken into a service station every few weeks to have the dents taken out of them.

They are a breed known as Back-into cattle. They will back into anything. You get the breed by crossing a very calm cow with an extra dumb jackass. All cows are oblivious to traffic more or less, but a Georgia cow won't even look up at a Mack truck. It operates on a queer basis. When a car comes along it places itself in front of it, waits for the shriek of hot brakes and then answers with a low "Nuh-h-hits to Yoo-oo-oo!" moan.

The pig is a Georgia and Florida road problem, too. There are big sows there that have bumped into cars so often they have developed collision resistance. I saw one hog with the license plates of four states engraved on its right side. These hogs have learned to "give" when hit, and there is just a queer flump! sound and a slight jar like you had hit a balloon.

On the few southern roads little pigs dash out on the express highways every few feet, too. Starting young like this they develop high speed and by the time they are a year old they are either dead or else on the market for dog races.

So if you know anybody setting out for the South by auto, warn him about the animal life and tell him to drive slow passing farm stock and always hold out his hand so a hog or heifer will know what he is going to do.

Yours, Elmer.

The Atomic Subway Train

"Dr. D. H. Andrews of Johns Hopkins says there will be atomic subway trains running from coast to coast inside of an hour some day."—News Item.

Scene: A business office in San Francisco. The Boss—Miss Hostetters! Miss Hostetters? Office Boy—She ain't in yet. Tied up in the subway, I guess.

Boss—That's the usual alibi! She's supposed to be here at 9 in the morning and here it is 10 minutes past. Where does that girl live anyhow? Office Boy—The Bronx, N. Y.

Boss—That's the trouble having a stenographer who lives in the Bronx and has to come to work in San Francisco. Yesterday she was 15 minutes late. I've a mind to hire a girl who lives near the office, somewhere like Chicago or Cheyenne. You're always on time. How do you do it? Office Boy—I only have to travel from Cleveland.

In the British Isles things are so tough that you can stir up hard feeling by singing "There'll Always Be an England."

"Florida Hard Hit by Cold."—Headline.

We hear that this season the Miami papers have frequently resorted to the standing headline, "Yankee Weather Hits South."

RUSSIA TO AMERICA I can throw rocks And it's hunky-dory But a rock from you Is another story.

CAN YOU REMEMBER When Pop liked Junior to call him "Goose"? Barbies talked more and charged less? Fountain sugar bowls were at your elbow?

And back when a man had to prove he knew a little something about the rules of the road before he could be licensed to drive an auto?

The war must be over. Those girl drum majors are coming back in the photo sections.

With the removal of controls, hotels have upped their room rates with a bang. We heard a fellow ask a desk clerk yesterday—"Can I get a good $3 room for $10?" and get the reply, "No, but I can let you have a $2 one for $15."

By VIRGINIA VALE ROSALIND RUSSELL certainly avoids monotony! In Columbia's "The Guilt of Janet Ames" she wears one costume consisting of 334 pounds of diamonds and about 2 1/2 pounds of tulle, net and sequins. The diamonds are set in a huge necklace, earrings and a series of bracelets. Quite a change from her "Sister Kenny" costumes, and from those she'll wear in RKO's version of the O'Neill play, "Mourning Becomes Electra"; she spent a couple of weeks at Palm Springs resting up preparatory to working in that one, set to go before the cameras just about now.

Danny Kaye's 1947 picture is all set; called, at present, "That's Life," it revolves around the central character of a professor of serious music who becomes involved in an academic analysis of jazz. We hear it'll be Kaye's most elaborate musical so far.

Pat Buttram, comedian of the Saturday Night Roundup, wanted some patchwork quilts for his home, but the prices asked in antique shops appalled him. So he wrote to friends in Alabama who used to make quilts by the dozen, found he could buy them for $3.50 and got started ordering quilts and couldn't stop. So now the situation's reversed—he's looking for customers for patchwork quilts.

Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan Opera star who has added greatly to his popularity by doing guest shots on the radio, has signed with United Artists for three years. You'll see him in "Carnegie Hall" before long; after that, in "Babes in Toyland."

Rise Stevens, star of the Sunday "Family Hour," tells this one on herself. One season when she was leaving Prague for an opera tour of Europe, Walter Surovy, whom she'd met there, said "Write to me when you have a chance. I'm collecting stamps." Not a line did he get from her, not a stamp. But he must have learned a more romantic approach somewhere — she finally married him!

Jim Backus, best known for his "Hubert Updike III" role on the Alan Young show, plans a club called "Millionaires Anonymous"; says it'll be made up of busy radio stogees whose names don't mean much to the public, but whose weekly incomes pass the four-figure mark. Take Jim's case; besides his Friday night stint with Alan, he's frequently heard with Fibber McGee and Molly, Bob Burns, Jack Carson and Jack Benny.

Five-year-old Marcia Anne Northrup appears in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Bishop's Wife." Her mother, a Goldwyn Girl, appeared with Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days" way back in 1931. So Marcia Anne has been enrolled as a Goldwyn Girl, class of 1950.

Three years ago Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy broadcast from Mexico City, the first time a major commercial program had originated outside the U. S. Now, on March 16th, they'll do it again. The entire troupe, including Ray Noble's band and singer Anita Gordon, will be on hand for the broadcast.

Professor Quiz (heard now on Saturday evenings) tells the inside story of how he got his first sponsor. Ten years ago the network was trying to sell an elaborate, costly program; since it's good policy to offer an alternate program with the one they're trying to sell, it was decided to offer Professor Quiz as the sacrificial goat. So—the sponsor heard both programs, chose the Professor.

ODDS AND ENDS—Harry James appears in one of the top sequences of "A Miracle Can Happen" with Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda... The "Lowrey Basin Street" series, which was Dinah Shore's springboard to fame, and which a lot of us miss, may return to the air... Major night-time radio shows are seldom carried by more than 180 stations on a "full network," but the ABC "Lum & Abner" series is heard over 265 outlets... Although Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters have been making recordings together for five years, they will appear together in a motion picture for the first time in "Road to Rio."

Bee Benedaret, sad-voiced maid on "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," expects the stork. Ozzie Nelson has recast her as the mother who's always phoning Harriet; phone calls are done back stage, so she can continue her radio work.

Alexander Steinert, musical director of "The New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," is a pianist and composer of distinction—but says he's really proud of teaching Barbara Stanwyck to play a single number on the piano for "The Other Love."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Just Like a Husband

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"Carol squabbled with Monroe over dominoes and crosswords. I was delighted at this new friend's congeniality with my husband; it relieved the strain for me."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SOMETIMES a husband does something that makes his wife wild, without giving her the satisfaction of either ignoring the matter or changing the situation. Such a husband, evidently, is Monroe White, whose wife, Edda, writes me from Buffalo.

"Monroe has a dear woman friend, that's the gist of the matter," writes Edda. "That sounds innocent enough, doesn't it? Nothing sinister, everything happily open and above board, but there it is. Carol is everything he needs in gay, sophisticated companionship; he sees her every day. Or if he misses seeing her for a day or two he gets restless; last summer Carol went into the mountains for a month and three times in that month Monroe went up to see her on one pretext or another. Once he took me, and you may imagine what a lovely time I had.

"This Carol is about 30, I am 38. Monroe is 39, and we have been married 15 years. We have two daughters, Phyllis, 11, and Maryann, 9. Monroe is a cheerful, easily pleased man, not fussy about meals, very popular in business and club circles. He has always been a model husband as far as I know and a conscientious father. When my mother was with us, a long pull with three years of helplessness and illness, Monroe was generosity itself. I think it was at that time that I began to hear a good deal of Monroe's dear old friend, Carol, widowed, and back in town. Carol often came to supper in those days, and squabbled with Monroe over dominoes and crosswords. Absorbed in my mother's tragedy, I was delighted at this new friend's congeniality with my husband; it relieved the strain for me.

Unconcealed, Unashamed. "It went on. Nothing to conceal, evidently, nothing of which to be ashamed. Carol telephones me every day or two to say that she saw a hat downtown that would be ideal for me, or that she is sending the girls books. Monroe says quite casually, 'I'll not be home for dinner, Carol is crazy to see that show and I'm taking her.' Or he says—'The Masons have asked Carol and me for the weekend. I told them we had measles at home and they said it was O.K. for you to beg off.' "Sometimes he says that Carol is the most intellectual woman he ever knew. If I say that she is not particularly pretty or has rather a heavy figure, he says with amused authority that men find her perfectly fascinating. Once or twice he has said to his friends that he has a sensible wife; that Edda never makes any fuss about his platonic friendships with other women. He puts it in the plural. I put it in the singular.

"I am good-looking, I dress well, nothing sensational but quite up to the mark. What's the matter with me that my husband is perfectly content to let me cook, finish the ironing, keep house, entertain his friends, drag him off for an occasional dinner—but that for companionship and glamor he goes elsewhere." And the letter finishes desperately: "Can a man and a woman have a platonic friendship, anyway?"

She Thinks It's Fair Play. My answer to that, Edda, is "no." Not under these circumstances, no. With Monroe at his age, Carol at hers, and your marriage at this point, this friendship is not platonic. This is not to say that matters have proceeded to the point technically known as infidelity. More likely Carol is happy to play it along safely, having all the fun of a man's admiration and attention and companionship, but not sacrificing anything that would make her feel guilty of disloyalty to you. It is a fond illusion, with women of her type, that everything short of actual surrender to a love affair is fair play. She is holding Monroe all the tighter by her refusal to enter into a serious relationship with the husband of her friend. He probably deeply admires her strength of character and purity of motive. But in truth she is as low as any other woman who comes deliberately between a man and his wife and throws dust in his eyes while doing so.

"I am good-looking, dress well."

NOT SO PLATONIC

Platonic friendship rarely exists, declares Miss Norris, in answer to a perplexed wife. Edda White writes that her husband, Monroe, is good and dutiful in every way but one. He likes the company of a widow whom he has known for a long time. Their companionship isn't the ordinary sort of relationship. Edda believes that Monroe is faithful to her. He often says he is glad that she is so sensible that she "understands" his platonic friendship with Carol.

He takes Carol to dinners and plays. She often comes to the house. Sometimes she goes to a party in company with Monroe and Edda. Two or three times a week she calls up Edda and tells her about some bargain, or some other friendly message. She sends presents to the little girls. It is difficult for Edda to repulse these charming attentions.

Edda is getting annoyed and worried. This "friendship" between her husband and Carol is becoming embarrassing. It seems to be growing, instead of diminishing. Edda is asking Miss Norris what to do under these peculiarly trying circumstances.

My advice to you is to wake up and realize that this is disloyalty, sugared over with the claim of being merely an intellectual and honest friendship. Such a thing rarely exists between a man and a woman, even when both are entirely free to marry; it certainly does not exist here.

You will win, in the end, if you can rise above all this. Keep busy, have as little to do with these high-minded friends as you can; don't discuss it with Monroe and don't see Carol at all. Ask her quietly not to telephone, don't argue, don't make scenes, just let them both know that you are perfectly aware of the fun they are having at your expense. The shock to Carol may stop the affair right there; Monroe will be shocked, too. But whether it takes only days or takes months, that's the way to end it, and the only way. Don't forget prayer.

SURGERY ENDS WORRY Psychiatrists in Glasgow, Scotland, have made public details of a new brain operation to cure worry, anxiety and fear. Hospitals already have successfully handled hundreds of cases, they say. It consists of cutting the white matter in the frontal lobes of the brain. Study of war wounds showed that these lobes are the worry part of the brain and that many people can get along better without them. Anxiety goes at once, but the memory and intellect are unimpaired.

Wage Raises Can't Come Out of Profits, Asserts Professor "Corporate payrolls of 1944 were nearly seven times as high as corporate profits after taxes," the economist points out. Asserting that a policy of raising all wages to compensate for higher living costs would be "self-defeating," he said there was "need of a national wage policy which would treat a rising cost of living as a reason for temporarily permitting no wage increases except for certain special reasons."

Why freight rates are going up...

Since 1939, railroad employees have had three general pay raises totaling 52 1/2%, and the prices of fuel, materials and supplies have risen 61 1/2%.

But when the war ended in 1945, the railroads were still hauling freight at rates no higher, and in some cases lower, than when the war began.

Without increased revenues, railroads could not meet these costs and also provide improvements in equipment and facilities—improvements that are essential for the low-cost freight and passenger services which are necessary to America's high standard of living.

Under these circumstances—and almost a year after the last major wage increase—the Interstate Commerce Commission recently approved an average increase in freight rates of 17 5/10%.

Of all the price increases in America today, few have been so little and so late as that in the price of railroad transportation.

How important are healthy railroads to a prosperous country?

Only when the railroads are financially healthy can they provide the new equipment, improved road beds, and better terminal facilities needed for still better service to you.

The defense of the nation depends upon the continuance of the efficient transportation which served the nation so well in the last war.

The railroads are among the largest employers of labor. They buy over 100,000 different products. They pay big taxes—taxes which are spent not only for public schools, public health, and police and fire protection, but even for highways, airways, airports and inland waterways.

Railroads are America's lifeline—keeping goods flowing among the 48 states day and night in all weather.

They can continue to do this only if there is a reasonable balance between income and outgo. Like yourself, the railroads must make ends meet!

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk with you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

Chiropractic

That's why our patients are our best boosters. They are in a position to know better than someone who has neither tried nor studied it, because they have investigated and experienced its merits.

Chiropractic is a science in itself, vastly different from all other methods. That it gets results is evidenced by the fact that it is the most rapidly growing health method in the world today.

Although not a "cure all," the cause of over 90% of all diseases (among which are many so-called incurable diseases) has been successfully corrected by Chiropractors.

LAST LOVER

By Helen Jeppson Miller

Jill McFarlane, whose father, Richard, disappeared in World War I, is in love with Lieut. Spang Gordon. She is upset to learn her brother, Ric, is in love with Sandra Calvert, an older woman. During her absence, Richard visits her mother, Julia, and tells her he is now Captain Mackey. Julia is heart-sick at his lack of interest in the past. Richard sees Ric and tells him he knows his father in France. Later he threatens Sandra, but she marries Ric anyway.

He has the boy transferred and Sandra arrives at the farm to live. Julia hears from Richard who tells her he made an attempt to prevent the marriage. She is thankful that he has shown himself to be a father at last.

CHAPTER XVI

Foster, she was thinking irritably, could at least have unloaded that odorous bag of fertilizer from the back! Or was that a part of Jill's and John I's diabolical contriving? The old man had been as impish and secretive as a warlock this morning.

Sandra wrinkled her nose as she got into the seat and brushed off the cushion a bit fretfully with her handkerchief. She asked, "Is it very far?" as Julia came back from superintending the loading of the luggage, and slipped the key into the ignition.

"Five miles. A breeze in ordinary times. Now we never come in unless we have to. Our tire quota is small in this country, and even with a priority we have to wait for months."

"I hope Ricky's tires are good," Sandra remarked jokingly. "I'd rather count on joining him soon. It's absurd to be separated uselessly, I think."

"Ricky's tires?" Julia repeated, a bit puzzled.

"Ricky told me about his roadster. He was so sorry to have to give it up," Sandra babbled on. "I'm sure he'd expect me to use it."

Se, Julia thought unhappily, Ric was turning into a McFarlane liar, too! How was she to explain to the roadster belonged to Jill? John I. had bought it for her, had presented it whenever Jill loaned the car to Ric. Ric had had a car the last year he had been in college, but he had traded it off, impulsively, to buy a quarter interest in a plane that one of the co-owners had crashed and burned soon after. She decided that the blunt truth was best.

"Ric must have forgotten that he disposed of his car last year," she said. "So much has happened since he enlisted that it got out of his mind. There is a red roadster on the place, but it belongs to his sister, and it's put up, too."

"Oh," Sandra was obviously upset. "He talked so much about it—I can't understand it."

She doesn't believe me, Julia decided. Oh, Ric, my little son, why did you do this to your mother?

The fertilizer grew more insistent as the late sun bore down with the slanting ardency of September. Julia was grateful when at last the gate-posts and white pillars of Buzard's Hill came into view.

"Oh," breathed Sandra. "That's the place, isn't it? I recognize it from the picture Ricky has. It's beautiful!"

"It's very old," Julia said. "The house was built by slaves, the brick was made right on the place. But we like it."

The others were waiting on the lawn. (Oh, Jill, why did you have to have on those dreadful overalls? Julia was thinking.) Her broken arm in a grimy looking sling, her pretty hair tied up in a bandana, a feed bucket in her hand, Jill came forward, grinning.

"Hi, Sandy!" she shouted. "You're just in time. We need another hand with the pigs."

Sandra said, "How do you do?" nervously. Shook hands with John I., appraised him briefly, and then ignored him. She made a little gesture with her tinted fingers. "My trunk—"

"My gosh," muttered Jill. "There's nobody here to carry it upstairs. Foster's away over the hill pulling corn. You'll have to unpack it out here, I guess, Sandra, and carry the stuff upstairs. I hope Ric didn't give you the area we lived in a slumby place with liveried servants to open all the doors and bring in tea at four o'clock?"

"Oh, but I couldn't! All my dresses—and shoes and things!" "We'll manage some way, Sandra," Julia said. "We happen to be terribly short-handed just now, on the place. We have only one man left, and we're all trying to help all we can."

She led Sandra up the stairs to Ric's old room, noting instantly that Jill had removed the good candle-wick counterpane and replaced it with a faded green madras thing from Mamie's quarters.

"I hope you'll be comfortable here," she said. "The bath is next door down the hall, and we have supper at six."

"Thank you—I think I'll lie down," Sandra looked wan. "The trip was exhausting, really."

Some Coffee For the Guest

Julia heard the old four-poster squeak, before she reached the head of the stairs. She was a little angry with Jill. There was no point in carrying this thing to absurdity. But when she found the two of them on the screen porch, drinking from cold bottles of pop, she knew by the glint in Jill's eye and the twitching of old John I's mustache that anything she could say would fall on deaf ears.

"You could have thought a little about the reputation of the house, at least," she complained. "That horrible old counterpane!"

"Don't you weaken now, Dooley," Jill warned. "She's not going to pull any Queen of Sheba stuff on us."

"You're being very crude," Julia said coldly. "She'll see that it's all a gag. I think I'll take up some cold orange juice. After all, she is our guest—today at least."

"Dooley, you'll ruin everything! Take her up a pair of slacks and tell her we feed the pigs at five o'clock."

"She'll bust all that red paint off her finger-nails," John I. chortled. But Julia was firm. She carried the little tray up to Ric's room, but when she came down there was an odd, tight expression around her mouth.

"She asked me if there was any whiskey in the house. She said she felt faint."

Jill's eyes sparkled. "Go and get Foster's jug of corn, Gramp. The one he hides in the pump-room."

It was too swiftly evident that Sandra would never be a part of Buzard's Hill. She came down to supper, languid and cool in a green silk frock, every curl in place.

Dishes of grits, sausage and scrambled eggs were in the middle of the table.

"Sandra doesn't serve at night," Julia explained. "She has been carrying peaches to-day, and she's tired. Will you have buttermilk, Sandra? Or perhaps you'd rather have some tea?"

"That will do—if you haven't any coffee," Sandra sighed.

"Rationed," Jill said. "You wouldn't remember that, living in a hotel."

"We could make Sandra one cup of coffee," Julia said. "After all, she's had a hard trip."

She went to the kitchen and dripped some hot water through fresh grounds under Mamie's disapproving eyes.

"Now I got to use them grounds over for breakfast, and you won't like it," Mamie grumbled.

"Thank you" faintly when the cup was put before her.

"You get up and salaam," Jill announced. "You're a privileged character when you get an extra cup of coffee."

Foster had been bullied by Julia into carrying the trunk up the stairs, and as soon as the meal was ended Sandra went up to unpack.

"I'll bet on one thing," Jill said grimly. "I'll be she hasn't any money. And how can she go to join Ric, when he'll be sent off to war? Are you planning to be patient and sweet with her for the duration, Dooley?"

"As long as she's Ric's wife and under our roof, I'll be kind," Julia said, with firmness. "I never had a mother-in-law, but I know what I would have liked her to be."

Sandra Presents A New Problem

"Your mother-in-law wouldn't have had a daughter-in-law like your daughter-in-law, Mrs. McFarlane. Every time she passes a mirror she stops and does something to her eyebrows! Some time when she does that I'll start screaming at her. Dooley, Dave telephoned. Mamie took the message. He's coming over. For goodness sake go and do something to your hair and face!"

Sandra was wandering around the upper floor when Jill went up. There was a trace of slyness in Sandra's eyes, a smug expression around her mouth.

"I didn't know we had mutual friends, Mrs. McFarlane," she said. "I knew Roger Mackey in the islands."

"Roger Mackey?" Julia caught her breath and fought for a casual attitude.

"I just happened to notice his picture there on Jill's dresser. A much younger picture, of course, but I'd know Rod anywhere."

"That," Julia had control now, "is a picture of Jill's father. He went to France in the last war. He did not come back."

True—it had to be true! Her children's father had not come back. The man who had come back was an indifferent stranger.

"Oh, yes, Ricky told me. And I remember now that Rod Mackey told me that Richard's father was his friend. But the resemblance is remarkable—uncanny, really. You don't know Roger Mackey?"

"I have no friend whose name is Mackey," Julia answered, calmly. But her hands were uncertain, and as she dressed, a cold fear pressed on her throat. This was something she had not foreseen, that Sandra could be a danger.

Sandra, she was certain, would destroy everything she had done to shield Ric and Jill—would destroy it, she suspected, with malicious glee.

When Dave came he was a little stunned at the sight of Sandra.

"This is Ric's wife, Dave," Julia introduced them. "Ric's wife, Sandra."

Dave laughed as he shook hands. Jill saw Sandra appraising him, saw that careful, calculating look come into Sandra's eyes.

"You might have prepared me," Dave said. After all, my arteries are hardening, and the aging should be protected from sudden shocks."

"How foolish!" Sandra cooed. "You know you aren't old, and I do hope I'm not a terrible shock!"

Jill, sprawled in a chair, ground her teeth.

"Dave means you're rather an abrupt addition to the McFarlane tribe," she said. "Ric's learning the strategy of war, Dave. Most important item, the element of surprise."

"Did Ric come home, too?" "Oh, no, they sent him off to some horrible school," Sandra replied, quickly. "He's supposed to learn to be an officer, or maybe it's a gunner—he wasn't very certain about it. We hardly had time to say good-by."

"He'll probably make a good gunner, and I can't think of anything more important in a war than gunners."

Sandra drew her lips in piteously. "But he'll be in danger! Gunners ride in those planes. They're shot at. I can't bear to think about it."

"The thing to do then," said Jill curtly, "is not to think about it."

"This is a war where anybody can be shot at," Dave remarked. "The army and navy have no monopoly on danger."

"It's a war where almost anyone can descend on you," drawled Jill. "And not always bombs and things in parachutes."

Sandra flicked her eyes around quickly, but Jill was studying a callous on her palm.

Dave said, "How about going to a movie, Dooley? I've got six gallons of gas left and a new ration ticket coming up Monday."

"Go along, Dooley," prodded Jill. "You haven't been off the place in ages. The young need diversion."

Julia said, "You go with Dave, Jill. You haven't had any fun lately, either."

"No, I refuse, definitely. I wouldn't try to fix my hair and wiggle into clothes with only one arm to see Clark Gable in person. I picked corn today, Dave. In a splint. Tell that to the Russian women."

Sandra sat with her small feet crossed, a watchful look in her eyes.

"You must scold them for working so hard, Mr. Patterson," she said, sweetly. "I'm sure it's quite unnecessary."

Jill's feet hit the floor with a thud. Jill's eyes were the eyes of a bad girl.

"Sandra is a very naive person, Dave," she drawled in a deadly level voice. "Ric told her that we were country gentry, and she believed it."

Sandra narrowed her tinted eyelids. "Oh, no," she said, coolly. "I do not believe all I hear, Jill. Sometimes I do not believe anything at all."

Antagonism crackled like static in the air, making Dave definitely uncomfortable.

"How about it, Dooley? Are you coming?" he asked.

"Go along, Dooley, don't be such a stick!" urged Jill. "Buy her a hot dog and some strawberry pop, Dave. Make her relax. She's been strung up like a diddle for days."

"If this is a therapeutic treatment, I'm not going," Julia tried to laugh. "But if it's supposed to be fun, I might be tempted."

"It's for fun," Dave said. "But we'll miss the last show if I spend too much time talking about it."

"Put on some lipstick," yelled Jill, as Julia went to get her hat.

"I'm sorry to leave you, Sandra," Julia tried to smooth the troubled air, as she prepared to go. "But there are some good programs on the radio."

"Don't start making company out of Sandra," Jill protested. "She's family. Family don't rate any special consideration."

Julia slumped in Dave's car and let her shoulders droop.

Julia Goes To a Show

"I shouldn't go," she said. "The girl's strange and a little edgy, and Jill has been acting like a fiend ever since we heard she was coming. I feel as though I had been riding a bomb ever since the train came in."

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let Children Entertain Their Young Friends At Home Suppers

When serving supper to a gang of teen-agers, prepare a casserole as illustrated here, and let the youngsters serve themselves. Complete the main course with a tossed salad.

If you're one of the many mothers worried about where your teen-aged children spend their recreation and leisure time, then start doing a little hinting that it would be nice occasionally to entertain their friends at home.

You can enlist the help of other mothers in the neighborhood and plan a series of suppers or evening snacks for the younger crowd, and in this way, have some idea of where the children spend their idle hours.

Daughters, and sons, too, will be glad to cooperate with mother in "cooking up" something super special in the way of refreshments which should be simple but good to eat.

If you want to have a snack party for the youngsters, here's an easily planned and executed snack idea:

Salmon Salad Bread Box
Pickles and Olives Potato Chips
Dutch Apple Cake Ice Cream
Milk or Chocolate

The salad loaf can be made ahead of time and set in the refrigerator for chilling, then removed at serving time and sliced.

Salmon Salad Bread Box. (Serves 6 to 8)

1 tall can red salmon
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt

Dash of Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon grated onion
1/2 cup salad dressing

1 loaf (small) unsliced white bread
Drain salmon; remove skin and bones. Flake fish into small pieces. Soften gelatin with lemon juice and dissolve over hot water. Add seasonings and salad dressing; combine with salmon, mixing thoroughly. Trim crusts from bread; cut thick slice off top of loaf. Remove inside of loaf leaving a wall about 3/4 inch thick. Fill box with salmon mixture; replace top slice of bread, pressing it in gently. Chill thoroughly. When ready to serve spread top and sides with extra salad dressing and garnish with ripe or stuffed green olives. Serve in slices.

Another easy type of dinner to serve is an oven stew with a simple tossed salad.

Both of these can be prepared ahead of time, and finished up by the gang, if necessary. For dessert, serve something frozen because of the convenience of preparation.

Super Idea.
Oven Stew
Baking Powder Biscuits
Tossed Vegetable Salad Relishes
Frozen Lemon Cream Milk

The stew is rich in vegetables and will be filling enough for hearty, youthful appetites if prepared as follows:

Oven Stew. (Serves 6)
1 pound beef or lamb, for stew
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
1/2 cup sliced onions
3 cups boiling water
3/4 cup diced carrots
1/4 cup diced turnips
1/4 cup diced potatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup cooked peas
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup cold water
3 tablespoons lard
Brown beef or lamb in fat. Add onions and saute until golden brown; then add water. Turn into casserole, cover and cook in a moderate oven for 1 1/2 hours.

LYNN SAYS:
Grape juice mixed with gingerale is guaranteed to whet jaded appetites.

Avocado slices which are combined with grapefruit or orange sections may be served sprinkled with halved, seedless grapes.

For a rich new smoothness in ice creams, whip butter-ripe avocado with a rotary beater until fluffy. Then beat into ice cream, frozen to the mushy stage. Return to refrigerator and freeze until firm, stirring occasionally.

Make a foundation gelatin recipe with pineapple juice, reducing the liquid by one-fourth. When the mixture is partially congealed fold in a small calavo, sieved. Chill until firm and cut in squares. Serve as dessert or salad with chilled pineapple chunks.

Add tiny cubes of fresh winter avocado to your favorite frozen fruit salad for a new taste thrill. Cream cheese whipped with mayonnaise and sour cream or whipped cream usually form the base. Diced pineapple, canned chutney and oranges are good mixers.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Poached Eggs on Toast
Scalloped Potatoes
Mashed Potatoes
Raw Carrot Strips Beverage
Chocolate Pudding with Cream

(350-degree oven for 1 1/2 hours. Increase heat to hot (450 degrees). Add carrots, turnips, potatoes, salt and pepper and continue cooking covered for 20 minutes or until vegetables are nearly tender. Add peas and Worcestershire sauce. Add water gradually to flour, mixing to a smooth paste; pour into stew, stirring vigorously. Place biscuits on top of stew; turn into oven and bake 12 to 15 minutes longer or until biscuits are browned.

Dutch Apple Cake.
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup sugar
5 apples, cut, pared
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1/4 cup currants

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Work butter into flour mixture. Beat egg, add milk and stir into dry ingredients. Spread the dough in a well buttered biscuit pan. Spread apples on dough, pressing sharp edges of fruit into mixture. Sprinkle with currants, sugar and cinnamon which have been mixed together. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 to 40 minutes.

Baking Powder Biscuits. (Makes 12)
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 to 5 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk and stir until soft dough is formed. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll 1/4 inch thick and cut with floured, 2-inch biscuit cutter. Use on top of stew. The remainder may be baked on an ungreased baking sheet in a hot (450-degree) oven for 12 to 15 minutes.

Frozen Lemon Cream. (Serves 10)
1/2 cup finely crushed corn flakes
2 egg whites
1/2 cup table-spoons sugar
2 egg yolks
1/2 cup evaporated milk, thoroughly chilled and whipped
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Thoroughly butter freezing tray of refrigerator and cover sides and bottom with cornflakes. Reserve some for top.

Beat egg whites stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly until thoroughly blended. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; fold into egg white mixture. Then fold in evaporated milk, lemon rind and juice. Turn into freezing tray. Cover top with remaining corn flakes. Freeze until firm, using coldest freezing temperature. Freezing time: 4 hours. Unmold and cut in slices for serving. Or, pack in large melon mold, using equal parts of ice and salt (with-out stirring); let stand until firm (about 5 or 6 hours) pouring off salt water as it accumulates, before it reaches top of mold.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Frozen Lemon Cream is the perfect dessert for a hearty main dish. This dessert may be made in the freezing tray or a mold.

Wheat Protein
The protein of wheat is not a complete protein, being deficient in at least one of the amino acids—lysine, without which it cannot do a complete job of body building. Meat and milk are rich in lysine. When either of these foods is added to bread or cereal, it makes the protein of the wheat more fully useful. This is why bread and cereals have greater nutritive value when combined with meat or milk than when eaten alone.

Poinsettia Holds Beauty
The Christmas poinsettia will hold its beauty longer if it is kept where the temperature is about 60 to 65 degrees and where it will get an hour or two of sunshine. It should be watered daily. If the flower pot of earth is about two quarts in size, a cup of water will not be too much. House plants generally need extra care during the months when heating plants are going full tilt, and should be watered a little every day.

Milk Industry
In addition to fresh milk, now much more widely used than in pre-war days, the country's 50-billion-quart yearly supply goes into butter, cheese, ice cream and a wide variety of other foods. Milk and the other dairy products create an output valued at approximately 7 billion dollars.

Three-Time Capital
Philadelphia has been the capital of the country under three different governments, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It was the capital of the United Colonies until 1783, capital of the United States

Arthritis Isn't New
Not only is arthritis a disease which attacks all races from the tropics to the polar regions, but it is a malady older than man, dating long before recorded history. Certain types of zoological origin are found in the skeletons of dinosaurs and in the bones of prehistoric reptiles. It is estimated that the disease existed six million years ago. Traces of it are found in the Ape Man of two million years ago and in the bones of royal Egyptian mummies.

'Softie' Room
If a room is "dead" and metal fixtures just enough to tune up the sound. Hardness of surface aids in making rooms noisy, and this is always likely to occur where smooth, hard wall and ceiling linings are employed, as is the case in what is known as the whispering gallery at St. Paul's.

Siamese Are Farmers
Most Siamese live by farming. Heavy rains carry rich soil to be deposited by floods on the rice-growing plains along the MeNam river. Typical villages of 10 to 80 families live in huts.

Vegetable Omelet
A vegetable omelet makes a tasty dish for home supper. Either fresh or home-canned peas, corn, spinach and beans are delicious. They may also be used in combination, an excellent means of using up leftover vegetables.

Best Time for Mulches
Most mulches should be applied after the ground has frozen a little. If a mulch is put on earlier, rodents may make their nests in it. Then they are likely to feed upon the crowns or stems of the plants.

Rail Wages
In 1945 the employees of the American railroads received in wages 41 cents out of every dollar of gross revenues. The stockholders received in dividends 3 cents out of each dollar.

Landscape Plantings
Native highbush blueberry, red cedar and common juniper are among the common wild plants that may be used in landscape plantings on the home grounds.

Protect Shrubbery
Snow sliding from the roofs of houses will break down unprotected shrubbery. A sloping board placed over the plants will keep them from breaking the branches.

Cleans Houseplants
An occasional washing with warm water and soap will keep most houseplants clean and attractive and will discourage insect pests.

Get Most From Vegetables
To get the most good from vegetables, eat some raw, some cooked; cook quickly; use all the juices; store to keep them crisp and plump.

Lark Not a Lark
The meadowlark is not really a lark. It belongs to the species that includes American blackbirds and American orioles.

CHEVROLET

Again in 1946...

FIRST IN SALES!

FIRST IN CAR SALES—FIRST IN TRUCK SALES
FIRST IN COMBINED CAR AND TRUCK SALES!

The final registration figures are in, and again in 1946 America purchased more Chevrolet cars—more Chevrolet trucks—more Chevrolet cars and trucks combined—than any other make, despite the fact that Chevrolet was out of production entirely during the first three months of the year! A magnificent tribute to Chevrolet production efficiency, as well as to the dollar value of Chevrolet products! It's the best proof you can possibly have that you're wise to choose Chevrolet, the only cars giving BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST, and the only trucks rating as THRIFT-CARRIERS FOR THE NATION! True, there still aren't enough new Chevrolets to go around, but highest popular demand means higher dollar value, just as highest production means quicker delivery of your new car or truck. Place your order—today!
