

Legion to Hold Memorial Day Exercises Monday

Parade to Feature Drum Corps, School Band; Jerold Buckley Pro. gram Speaker

Memorial day exercises will be conducted by the local post of the American Legion on Monday morning, May 31. The ceremonies will start with a parade originating at the high school grounds at 9:30 o'clock.

A colorful parade will be followed by an excellent program, featuring Jerold Buckley, Washington county supervising teacher, as speaker. The newly organized Legion drum and bugle corps and Kewaskum school band will highlight the parade. All veterans are urged to wear their service uniforms. Persons in the parade should be at the high school grounds by 9 a. m.

Kewaskum Defeats Falls in Rainbow Home Opener

In the opening home game for Kewaskum's Rainbow league team Sunday, the locals hustled to a 4-1 victory over Sheboygan Falls. Concert music was furnished during the afternoon by the Kewaskum school band.

"Hefty" Backhaus pitched for the Indians with the veteran "Fritz" Kral behind the plate. Backhaus has allowed but 2 runs in 2 games to date, losing a 1-0 heartbreaker at Batavia the previous Sunday.

ANOTHER SHOWER GIVEN FOR MISS JOAN KRUEGER

Friends and relatives from this village and vicinity were among those who attended a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Walter Nigh at her home near Plymouth on Monday evening, honoring her niece, Miss Joan Krueger of the town of Auburn, who will be wed to Jos Klotz of Campbellport on Wednesday, June 2. The bride-to-be was presented with a corsage and many beautiful gifts. The game of hearts was played with prizes going to Mrs. Walter Ferber, Mrs. Richard Yogerst and Mrs. Martin Koepsel. A delicious buffet luncheon was served by the hostess assisted by her daughters and daughter-in-law. Miss Krueger has been honored at several other showers during the past few weeks.

MISS LAVERN SIEGFRIED HONORED AT TWO SHOWERS

Miss La Verna Siegfried has been guest of honor at two showers in the past week. On Friday evening, Miss Betty Siebenelar and Miss Joyce Stahl surprised her with a miscellaneous shower at the Siebenelar home. Bunco was played. She received many lovely gifts.

Death Claims Wm. H. Backhaus and Others

William H. Backhaus, 77, who formerly farmed in the town of Ashford, died at 4 p. m. Wednesday, May 26, at the Fond du Lac county hospital after a lingering illness.

He was born July 25, 1870, in the town of Scott, Sheboygan county. Surviving are his widow, Ida, also a resident of the Fond du Lac county home; a son, Wilmer Backhaus, Campbellport, and a brother and sister, Charles Backhaus, and Mrs. Ed. Stoll, both of Beechwood.

The body is in state at the Berge Funeral home, Campbellport, where services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Saturday by the Rev. John Mohr. Burial will be in the town of Scott cemetery.

HERMAN J. WONDRA

Herman J. Wondra, 62, prominent farmer and member of the town board of the town of Ashford, a native of St. Kilian, died at 6:30 p. m. Monday, May 24, at his home following a heart attack. Before moving to his farm he had been a cheesemaker at Campbellport. He was a lifelong resident of the vicinity.

Mr. Wondra was born at St. Kilian on Nov. 13, 1885. He married Mary Theisen on May 16, 1911, and there reared 14 children.

Surviving are the widow, seven sons, Carroll, Alfred, James, Andrew and David at home, and Norbert and Herman Jr., Milwaukee; seven daughters, Mrs. Olive Burger, Brownsville; Mrs. Marie Rinzel, Poyntette; Mrs. Odella Krueger, Fond du Lac; Mrs. Frances Buchta, Milwaukee; Mrs. Petronella Kaiser, Huron, S. D.; Mrs. Bernadette Hanks, Beaver Dam, and Yvonne, at home; 19 grandchildren; his father, Joseph Wondra, St. Kilian, and five brothers, Joseph, and Kilian of Leroy, Tony and Ben of St. Kilian and Conrad of Plymouth.

Funeral services were held at 5:30 a. m. Friday from the Berge Funeral home, Campbellport, and at 9 a. m. in St. Matthew's church there, the Rev. A. C. Biver officiating. Burial was in the parish cemetery.

HARRY CROOK

Funeral services for Harry Crook, 52, Campbellport auto mechanic for many years and a veteran of World War I, who died at 2 a. m. Friday, May 21, at Veterans' hospital, Wood, were held at 8:30 a. m. Monday from the Berge Funeral home, Campbellport, and at 9 a. m. at St. Matthew's church there, the Rev. A. C. Biver officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Born at Green Lake Feb. 22, 1866, Mr. Crook was married May 16, 1923, to Miss Delores Kobler at Campbellport.

Surviving are the widow; a son, Jack, of Milwaukee; two daughters, Mrs. Bruno Valle of Brownsville and Mrs. Robert Steady of Baraboo; two grandchildren; a brother, and five sisters, including Mrs. Ed. Flynn, Campbellport.

THANK YOU, FIREMEN

I wish to thank the Kewaskum firemen for their hurried response and capable work in putting out the fire and saving the building at the shed fire at my place Monday. The work is appreciated.

Mrs. Anna Martin

10 to Graduate From Holy Trinity School

Ten pupils of Holy Trinity school will receive their eighth grade diplomas at graduation exercises to be held Friday evening, June 4. These exercises will consist of Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament at 7:30 p. m., after which all will proceed to the church hall. In the morning the class will receive Holy Communion in a body.

Three graduates of the St. Bridget's mission school will also receive their diplomas during the local exercises.

Holy Trinity graduates are Phyllis Falk, Leroy Metz, Gregor Rohlinger, Richard Ruplinger, Eugene Schommer, Daniel Staehler, Ronald Vorsahl, Mildred Wallenfels, Leon Weddig, and Denis Wolf.

St. Bridget's school graduates are Earl Petri, Kenneth Schneider and Lorraine Teschek.

The class colors are blue and white and the motto, "For God and Country." The picnic for the pupils of the three rooms of Holy Trinity school will be held on the school grounds next Thursday afternoon. School will close for summer vacation on June 4.

Good Response in CROP Appeal; $300 Received

Already about $300.00 has been reported received as Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP) donations by Howard Sechast of the First National Bank of West Bend, who is treasurer of the county CROP committee. Most of this has been collected through the various churches of the county. Not all churches have as yet reported their donations.

Additional donations are expected for the next several weeks when dairy plants report farmer donations which consisted largely of cans of milk. The milk is to be marketed in the usual manner and the proceeds will be used to purchase powdered milk which can be shipped overseas. Such purchases wherever possible, will be made in each county in proportion to the amount raised in the county.

It is not too late for any farmers who have not as yet made their donations to do so. Since this is largely a solicitation of donation from rural folks, (larger cities have a separate program) it is hoped all rural families will contribute. This can be done by attaching the CROP tags to the cans of milk to be donated.

All who give should check the church organization that the giver prefers to have distributed the product overseas. There is real suffering and hunger overseas according to large numbers of Americans who have been in Europe since the close of World War II. And since CROP donations go only to the needy, the Christian Rural Overseas Program is most deserving of our united and wholehearted support.

Homemakers Prepare for Achievement Day June 16

Washington county homemakers this week are busy making preparations for their annual achievement day which will be held on June 16. This day is the culmination of the winter and spring activities of the 23 organized homemakers groups in the county.

Since this is our Wisconsin Centennial year, the day will have a centennial theme. Colored movies of Wisconsin scenes and nationality customs and a brief history of Washington county will be a part of the program. Women will be asked to bring old heirlooms or relics from home for display that day and also to wear dresses of by-gone years.

In addition to exhibits of a centennial nature, homemakers are asked to bring knitting rugs, leather articles, and other hand work they have done during the year.

GAMES THIS SUNDAY—Lannon at Kewaskum, Germantown at Mequon, Granville at Menomonee Falls.

GAMES MONDAY—Mequon at Kewaskum, Germantown at Grafton, Menomonee Falls at Lannon, West Bend at Granville.

After riding to two victories, the Kewaskum Utensils were dropped out of first place at Grafton Sunday. Grafton upset the Utensils in a close one, 4-3, in the last inning when they came from behind with 2 runs to snatch victory from the locals' grasp.

In this first setback, the Utensils out-hit Grafton, 12 to 10, and were ahead three times, only to see the opponents catch up each time and finally go ahead to win in the last of the ninth. The 'Kums scored one in the fourth but Grafton tied it up in the fifth. Not another run crossed the plate until the eighth when the Utensils pushed over another. A long home run by catcher Dickmann in the same inning evened the score again. Kewaskum went ahead again with a button in the ninth, 3-2, but the lead was short-lived. Two successive singles and a double in the last of the ninth won the game for Grafton with nobody out when the winning run was scored.

Ermisse struck out 9 batters and Marx 7 in the pitchers' battle. Krueger lugged out a triple and 2 singles in 5 trips to lead the Utensils battling attack. Liebenstein connected for a double and 2 singles in 5 tries for Grafton.

UTENSILS LOSE NIGHT GAME AT MAYVILLE WEDNESDAY, 5-0

In a practice game under the lights at Mayville Wednesday night, the Utensils were shut out by that team of the Rock River league, 5 to 0, but four of the team's regular starters saw very little action. Kewaskum was held to widely scattered hits by Mayville's pitchers, Wurchever and Sorrent.

Mrs. Kewaskum's regular pitcher, did not play until the 8th inning when he was put in as a pinch hitter and played the last inning in the outfield. Wietor, catcher, was not inserted into the game at all. Krueger and Liath, regular outfielders, played but little. Krueger pitched the last couple of innings and Liath played in the outfield, going in in the eighth. G. Stuart, young newcomer on the team, was starting pitcher and worked most of the game. This 19-year-old youth was in uniform for the first time with Kewaskum. Korth, a utility man, caught.

Wurchever whiffed 6 Utensils hitters and Sorrent 2. Stuart fanned 4 and Krueger 1. The Kewaskum pitchers walked 7 and Mayville's 3. Tessar, with

School Band to Make Many Appearances

The school band of Kewaskum has scheduled a number of appearances for the next few weeks.

On Sunday, May 29, the group will play at Fillmore for their Memorial day program at 1:00 o'clock. Also that same day after the Fillmore program they will play a concert at the town of Scott church picnic.

Rosenheimer Firm Awarded Feed Mixing Certificate

L. Rosenheimer, local feed dealer, has won recognition for the accuracy and uniformity of the firm's custom grinding and mixing service. The firm recently received a certificate of mixing accuracy for 1948 following analysis at the Halston Purina company, St. Louis, Mo., of samples taken from regular mixes prepared for customers of the mill.

Proper mixing of ingredients has become recognized as an increasingly important factor in the efficient feeding of livestock and poultry. Halston Purina requires that all samples vary not more than one-half of one per cent to qualify for the certificate.

The certificate will be posted in a prominent place at the Rosenheimer mill as evidence of the ability of the local equipment to service farmers with custom mixing that will help them achieve maximum production from their grains.

LEGION DRUM, BUGLE CORPS IN TWO PARADES ON MONDAY

The Kewaskum American Legion drum and bugle corps, newly organized, will make their first public appearance in their flashy new uniforms on Monday, Memorial day. The corps will take part in two parades on that day. In the morning the organization will participate in the Kewaskum Memorial day parade starting at 9:30 a. m. and in the afternoon at 1 p. m. the corps will take part in the holiday parade and exercises at Campbellport.

Woman's Club Visits State School for Girls, Oregon

The members of the Kewaskum Woman's club visited the Wisconsin School for Girls at Oregon last Saturday afternoon, May 22. The school is about eight miles south of Madison. The buildings are of Lannon stone and have red tile roofs. The location of the many cottages and administration building in an oak woods is a most picturesque setting for the school. The spacious lawns are attractively landscaped with shrubs, trees and beautiful flowers. The girls proudly call their school "Oakwood," and during their year there they strive to win "Oakwood" pennant awards. About 150 girls (of white, negro, oriental and Indian races) attend Oakwood annually, ranging in age from 12-20 years.

We are especially proud of the work Miss Mona Mertes of Kewaskum is doing at Oakwood. Miss Mertes put on a physical education demonstration for our club. A large group of girls, each one carrying a flag of the United Nations, took part in a grand march which was intricate in design and very fascinating to watch. Another group of girls put on a tumbling act. It was amazing to see the precision and gracefulness of movement these girls had developed in less than a year under Miss Mertes' instruction. Their somersaults and group formations showed not only individual accuracy but their ability to co-operate and work with a group. We all decided that Miss Mertes is making maximum use of the beautiful gym and the excellent equipment provided there.

The superintendent of Oakwood, Miss Ethel Brutaker, gave a short informal talk to our club. She as well as all of the faculty members we met could only be described as superior and gifted teachers who possess a great depth of understanding, affection and interest in their work. Miss Brutaker said, "There are NO delinquent girls." These girls are STARVED for love, understanding, attention and self expression. She wished these girls could ATTEND Oakwood and not be COMMITTED to Oakwood for the one year. They try to dress the girls as attractively as possible. "It costs no more to make a calico dress WITH STYLE!" This gives a girl more poise and self-assurance. They have their regular dental appointments and physical examinations by Madison dentists and doctors. Two nights a week the girls may spend in the "beauty parlor" room—helping each other shampoo and arrange the hair, manicure the nails, etc. Other nights the gym is in use and Friday night is party night. The library is always open for those who wish to read and the living rooms for those who wish to listen to the radio, or do fancy work, or just to chat.

In our tour of the grounds we visited several of the many cottages. Each girl is assigned to a cottage. She has her own room and becomes a member of that cottage family. She has her home duties to do each day before and after school. Besides caring for her own room and clothes she is instructed in cooking, baking, waiting on table, serving at the table, cleaning, laundry work, etc. The girls in each cottage cooperate in helping their house mother just as the children in a family help their mother with the daily tasks around the home. We visited the various school rooms. Each room whether or not it was the library, home economics, music, civics, or biology room has those added and unusual touches evident in a room of a teacher who is thoroughly interested in her pupils. School and work. In the large handicraft room the girls can work on their various hobbies. One girl was weaving a rug. She has a very low I. Q. but she is the best rug weaver at Oakwood. That gives her one chance for self-expression. After the physical demonstration the girls arranged the chairs and the piano in the gym for the Sunday afternoon church service. The Protestant ministers in Madison exchange in presenting the service. The Catholic girls had the music room ready for their service on Sunday a. m.

This visit to Oakwood made us parents realize that providing our children with the physical needs is not enough. We must "play" with our children. It is much more important to play baseball or to fish with them than to provide them with a $25 or $50 outfit. Children like discipline which is the training for reality. They feel more secure when they know the rules and they have opportunities to win praise living up to them. It is our wish that more parents visit Oakwood for the bigger and broader understanding of their children's needs.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR LILLIAN BACKHAUS

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Byron Gosmer and Mrs. Julius Gosmer Thursday evening in honor of Miss Lillian Backhaus, who will become the bride of August Utech on June 19. Many gifts were showered on the bride-to-be by the following: Mmes. Alvin Backhaus, Art Utech, Richard Teschendorf, Ed. Schiltz, Ben Schiltz, Elmer Stange, Elroy Eggerer, Wm. Kunrow, Ervin Klein, Rudy Koepke, Manville Schneider and Annie Oesler and the Misses Althea Schneider, Doris Mae Backhaus, Arleen and Dolores Utech, Dorothy Schiltz and Edna Stange. Cards and bingo were played. A delicious luncheon was served. All had an enjoyable evening.

SHED ROOF DAMAGED BY FIRE AT MRS. ANNA MARTIN HOME

The fire department was called to the Mrs. Anna Martin home on North Fond du Lac ave. at about 4 p. m. Monday where a fire believed to have been caused by sparks from a bonfire burning nearby damaged a shed at the rear of the home. The blaze started in the eaves of the shed roof and burned a large hole in the roof on one side of the structure. The fire spread through the upstairs part of the shed and also caused damage to the other side of the roof and contents stored on the second floor of the shed. The firemen made quick work of putting out the blaze and saving the building.

CHAPLAIN OF THE DEACONESS HOSPITAL KIWANIS SPEAKER

Rev. William Clyde Donald II, chaplain of the Deaconess hospital in Milwaukee, featured Monday night's Kiwanis club meeting with a speech on "How to Lead a Good Life."

Rev. Donald emphasized the development of self control, understanding, a sense of humor, enthusiasm for every day, and having faith in the future. In relation to daily enthusiasm, he explained a commendable outlook of getting up in the morning grateful for the day and intent on making each minute of the day count. The speaker left many words of wisdom for each Kiwanian to give consideration.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE
by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: We are planning to build a recreation room in our basement. Can you give me any plans or suggestions on how to build and arrange it?

ANSWER: Booklets on this subject are published by the manufacturers of asphalt floor tile and wallboards suitable for such rooms. Your first consideration should be to see that all traces of dampness are eliminated.

QUESTION: I would like to get some booklets on electric wiring, plumbing etc. Could you tell me the address?

ANSWER: The Rural Electrification Administration has issued two pamphlets that give full information on wiring. These can be had from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., who should be asked for "Wiring Your Farm and Home." Also, "Electrifying Your Farm and Home."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Teasing Husband Lacks Maturity

Bell Syndicate—WNU Feature

A woman who gives her children the background and memory of a good home, right ideals, developed characters, does more for them.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

LOIS DEANE is a young wife who writes me that her husband is a tease and that he makes her mad, and wants to make her mad, and that when she cries in sheer helpless exasperation, he triumphantly tells her that women are all like that. They all love to cry over nothing, they are flutery, hysterical creatures who care more for a new hat than for who is going to be president, and that their brains are just like the soapbuds they talk so much about.

He reminds her that no woman has ever composed any sort of an opera or a great play, no woman has ever painted a great picture or written a great poem; that to compare Chaminade or Rosa Bonheur, Jane Austin or George Eliot to Leonardo, Shakespeare, Milton, Tolstoi and a thousand other males is just to make herself ridiculous. Great cities, are all man-made says the gallant Bob, bridges, roads, machines.

And so far, Bob is speaking the actual truth. But there is another side to the picture; there are feminine characteristics just as valuable as those masculine gifts that have filled our galleries, our libraries and our opera houses.

Only a rather vain and somewhat simple man would taunt his wife in this fashion, especially as she in her turn appears to be simple enough to be upset by it. Teasing is a childish habit usually outgrown in childhood; that Bob has not outgrown it is an indication that he is not fully developed.

Superficial Achievements

After all, these achievements that he prides in his own sex are largely superficial. Pictures, music, books, bridges, machines, delightful embellishing as they are to cultured living, still are not as important as the woman's share, the making and moulding of the man himself. And it is men who praise men, who decide that this one and that one is a genius, who build up the flattering theories that make the decorative side of life so important, who have placed their market values upon letters, art, dancing, opera, roads, buildings, schools.

Men also have made wars. No woman was ever on a war council, and where women have ruled wars have been comparatively few. Women and men know equally the futility and stupidity and waste of war; but only women can possibly appreciate it. Women know the value of human life; they know the value of home. Human life and home—what else is there, to start with?

Great painters of the past centuries used to use as their models for idealistic canvases their own weeping mistresses, their own illegitimate and unwelcome babies. Great writers have been notorious for their domestic cruelties—they might write exquisitely of a woman's love, of clinging, little, childish arms, and at the same moment outrage and cast off that love, roughly unwind those baby embraces.

Women aren't like that. To a man the painted picture of "The Cotter's Saturday Eve" is satisfying. The woman, more realistic and infinitely more self-sacrificing, likes the real thing; the round table, the well-scrubbed little faces, the great brown loaf and the pitcher brimming with fresh milk.

A woman will leave the feverish baby half-painted on her easel, leave

... her husband in a tease ...

SUPERIOR SEX?

Lois Deane and her husband are participants in the antediluvian controversy which has waged for centuries—who is superior man or woman?

Nettled by her spouse's taunts and jibes, Lois launches herself into hysterical fits, becomes helplessly exasperated and cries in annoyance at her husband's brutal criticism of her sex.

She fails to perceive the utter senselessness of such debate. It is comparable to answering the endless query: Which came first, the chicken or the egg.

Miss Norris emphasizes that both women and men have admirable characteristics. Women are the moulders of men. They build character instead of buildings; they are supreme realists who revel in earthiness rather than ideological, intangible concepts.

the typewriter on which she is depicting a harassed mother, to go and sit with the real child, to keep the real nursery cool and comfortable, to bring back health where sickness was.

Women Are Superior

Women, in my thinking, are infinitely the superiors of men—when they want to be. A woman who gives her children the background and memory of a good home, right ideals, developed characters, does more for them than all Dad's hard-earned money for their colleges and motor cars and social life ever will do. A woman who rejoices in her privileges of home hours, of study, charities, mastery of home-making and kitchen-craft, is the richer of the two who maintain the home, husband and wife.

Not all men are wiser than their wives, Lois. But as a class men have general characteristics that tend to make them more stable. While women are fretting at the monotony of home duties, men are accepting the equal dullness of office routine pretty cheerfully. Men are nearer to earth; good meals, a fairly pleasant office atmosphere, small successes, some amusement, untroubled sleep — these content them, in the main.

Women on the other hand are apt to fret at a far less binding domestic groove; they are given to dreams, unattainable ambitions, jealousies and moods.

This is partly because, generations ago, custom decreed that each wife should live in her home alone, and not experience the healthy effects of daily contacts with other minds and other lives, such as make men's business hours stimulating. Perhaps it is woman's fault that she has accepted this and other restrictions, that she has not taken a stand against wars, preventable and acknowledged crimes, excesses, controllable diseases. Perhaps some day she will.

Meanwhile, why don't you become one of the real women, rejoicing in your enormous advantages and powers? And—just a hint—you can at the same time laugh Bob out of his superiorities if you will. Quote him at everyone, grasp at his wisdom, sit at his feet, tell your friends before him that he is so wonderful that you wonder he ever would look at you, and you'll have him cured in no time at all.

Shoplifting Costs $50

SALT LAKE CITY.—Mrs. Carolyn Audrey English, an aspiring writer, sought some real-life experience, but wound up with a $50 fine imposed after she was found guilty of shoplifting.

Mrs. English told the judge she took a $10 "whatnot" and a $7.50 blouse from a department store to learn the "reaction" of a shoplifter for a book which she is writing.

Police Judge Frank E. Moss was not impressed by her plea.

Intoxicated Drivers Get 'Screen Test'

POMONA, CALIF. — Authorities here are boasting a new technique of wiring drunken drivers for sound and capturing their inebriated characteristics with a motion picture camera.

Here's how it works: An officer picks up an erratic driver who maintains that he has had only one beer. They go to the station where the driver is given a sobriety examination. This includes the "line-walking" test, the

Don't Neglect Lunch If You Want to Stay Full of Pep, Health

ARE YOU ALONE at home for lunch so that you don't bother to prepare something for yourself? Or does the family come home, and you simply rummage around the refrigerator and don't know what to serve?

These are frequent situations in many homes throughout the country. Lunches of this type—or none at all for the homemaker alone at home—don't help pep, vitality and health. If you get a lag in the afternoon and wonder what's wrong with you, check your luncheon habits.

Physicians and nutritionists are of the opinion that if you skip a meal, it places too much of a load on another meal. Let's say you've skipped lunch and eat a very full and ample dinner. Do you feel like doing anything but flopping into bed and wasting the evening? And have you ever thought of what it does to your digestive process to have it called upon suddenly to digest a big meal after having been lazy for many hours?

You may be busy, but you can prepare cottage cheese with oranges, grapefruit and berries in season with a buttered muffin and a glass of iced tea for a lunch that's healthy and balanced.

It's much better to try to distribute your calories evenly throughout three meals during the day. In between you won't feel an energy lag and you will keep your system in good working order.

Don't give the excuse that you think lunch unimportant and simply don't feel like bothering with it. Even if you're alone at noon, it doesn't take much effort to prepare a nice cottage cheese and fruit salad and a glass of milk with roll or toast. Or, if the youngsters are at home, it's simple enough to cream some leftover vegetables into a piecrust, serving it with fruit and cookies for dessert.

Planning will give you plenty of the right foods on hand from which to choose a nutritious and well-balanced lunch. And if you value your health and well-being, you'll certainly not count half an hour at noon much to give up to it.

HERE ARE SOME HOT DISHES

from which to choose for lunch if there are several of you at home. They are made from "planned" leftovers and are quick and easy to prepare.

Corn Scramble (Serves 6)
1 cup cubed leftover ham
2 tablespoons fat
2 beaten eggs
Salt and pepper
1 No. 2 can cream style corn
1/4 cup green pepper, cubed
Brown ham in fat and then mix with other ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until the eggs are set.

Stuffed Onions (Serves 6)
Cook 6 large Bermuda onions in boiling salted water for 30 minutes. Remove center and stuff with following: Combine 1 can of pork and beans with 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons chopped onion centers. Stuff onions. Sprinkle each with 1 teaspoon brown sugar and heat through.

Stuffed Baked Tomatoes (Serves 6)
Scoop out center of six large tomatoes. Brown 1 tablespoon of chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper in 2 tablespoons of butter. Add 1 1/2 cups corn cut off the cob, 2 beaten eggs and 1/2 cup bread crumbs and season to taste. Stuff tomatoes and sprinkle with grated American cheese. Bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. Chopped leftover ham or crumbled bacon or cubed sausage may be added to the corn if so desired.

Another good stuffing is canned macaroni or spaghetti. Stuff the tomato and bake until the tomato is done.

1/2 tablespoon chopped onion. Form into croquettes. Dip into beaten egg and water, then in bread crumbs. Fry in shallow fat.

*Cheese Vegetable Pie (Serves 6)
Pastry for 1 crust
1 cup freshly grated American cheese
1 cup milk, scalded
2 eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 1/2 cups mixed, cooked vegetables
2 fresh tomatoes

Blend 1/2 cup of cheese with dry ingredients when making the pastry. Roll out and place in pastry tin. Bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, add milk to beaten eggs; add seasonings and vegetables, except the tomatoes. Pour into pie shell. Cut tomatoes into eighths and arrange on top. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup of cheese. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven for about 30 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

Salmon Macaroni Salad (Serves 6 to 8)
1 8-ounce can of salmon
2 cups canned peas, drained
1 cup shell macaroni, cooked
1/3 cup mayonnaise

Drain salmon, removing bones and skin. Combine with remaining ingredients and season to taste. Serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with slices of hard-cooked eggs.

Asparagus-Ham Luncheon (Serves 6 to 8)
20 stalks of canned or cooked asparagus
6 slices of cooked cold ham
1 can of mushroom soup
1/2 cup cream
6 slices buttered toast

Mix mushroom soup with cream. Heat thoroughly. Place ham slices over toast, top with a few stalks of asparagus. Pour soup over all and run under the broiler for a few minutes.

If the family is home for lunch, it doesn't take long to prepare delicious and nutritious cheese, vegetable pie and serve it along with fresh fruit and berries for a vitamin-rich lunch.

Decorative ice cubes will do much toward making any of your cold beverages attractive. In ice cube sections of your freezing tray place one or two of these fruits after you have poured water into the tray: Red or green maraschino cherries, candied cherries, quartered slices of lime, lemon or orange, Bing cherries, cubes of pineapple, strawberries or other berries, fresh grapes, halved and seeded, and sprigs of mint.

Simplest to serve are iced coffee or tea.

SANDBOX OR WADING POOL EASILY CONSTRUCTED — TAKES LITTLE TIME TO BUILD.

By: Donald R. Brann
Youngsters enjoy playing outdoors in this sea-faring sandbox. It can easily be built from stock size lumber. The Full Size Pattern offered below not only simplifies construction but provides full size paper outlines so that anyone can decorate it in a professional manner. User merely traces the pattern on the lumber pattern specified, saws and assembles exactly as and where pattern indicates. No special tools or skill are required. By waterproofing a piece of canvas and fastening it to the inside of the box, it can quickly be turned into a wading pool.

County Agent Notes

E. E. SKALISKEY, Agent

LET'S CONTROL FLIES ON THE FARM

A county-wide fly control program is being planned for Washington county. A program of this type in other counties of the state has been very successful in controlling this disease carrying insect. Dairy plant operators, custom sprayers and dairy farmers will all need to co-operate to make this program effective.

The dairy farmer can spray his farm buildings with an insecticide, or he may wish to have it custom sprayed if he can be assured of efficient and economical services.

The Wisconsin College of Agriculture has made helpful recommendations for fly control, as follows:

(1) Carry out sanitation measures which have always been instrumental in suppressing fly breeding.

(2) Clean dairy barns thoroughly and whitewash them preferably by the last of May.

(3) Apply DDT to barn walls and ceilings about two to three weeks after whitewashing. Mix 50% DDT wettable powder at the rate of 4 pounds with 2 1/2 gallons of water to make a 2 1/2% DDT suspension. Apply this by means of either a low-pressure power sprayer, or a knapsack sprayer at the rate of 1 gallon per 1000 square feet. A pressure of from 30 to 100 pounds is sufficient. If higher pressures are used, one must compensate for the loss in run-off and fog by applying a greater quantity.

(4) Spray walls and ceilings of other farm buildings (not the house) following the same directions. These include the chicken house, hog house, milk house, washhouse, and outdoor toilet. Spray the chicken house floor also.

(5) Apply a 5% DDT household (deodorizer) oil base spray the porch walls, ceilings, and screens of the home. This can best be done to screens with a brush. Possibly 2 to 4 applications will be necessary during the fly season.

(6) Spray cattle at about 3-week intervals with 1 to 2 quarts of a 0.5 to 1% DDT suspension. Mix 6 ounces of 50% DDT wettable powder with 2 1/2 gallons of water to make a 1% DDT suspension.

HOMEMAKER GROUPS LEARN ABOUT SMALL FRUIT CULTURE

Homemaker groups in the Barton and Germantown areas learned how to select, plant and take care of their garden and small fruit plantings reports Mrs. Gwen Daluge, county home demonstration agent.

Meetings to demonstrate the accepted ways of small fruit culture were held on the Jacob Hoff farm, Germantown, Route 1, and at the Rudolph Dekker home in Barton. County Agent E. E. Skaliskey presented the discussions which dealt largely of the selection, care and management of the family orchard, the bush and other small fruits and the home garden. About one hundred homemakers attended the meetings showing that many homemakers prefer to raise their own fruits and vegetables. This they feel, is one way of keeping the cost of living within reach of the family purse.

E. E. SKALISKEY, COUNTY AGENT

A survey just completed by the state department of agriculture shows that 58 new dairy plants were built in Wisconsin during 1947.

A recommendation that the association enter members of the bar of the 13th Judicial Circuit, including Washington, Ozaukee, Dodge and Waukesha counties, at a meeting at the West Bend Country Club this summer was approved and a committee was appointed to plan the affair.

MINNESOTA NURSING STUDENT DOING FIELD WORK IN COUNTY

Miss Marie B. Haugen, a student from the University of Minnesota Public Health Nursing school will spend six weeks in Washington county under the supervision of Miss Gladys Miller, county public health nurse, doing her rural field work.

Miss Haugen, whose home is in Sebeka, Minn., is a 1944 graduate of Ancker Hospital School of Nursing, St. Paul, Minn., and a veteran of the U. S. Navy. She will receive a bachelor of science degree in public health nursing upon return to the University of Minnesota.

ENTRIES FOR BARLEY CONTEST EXTENDED

Barley growers wishing to enroll in the county better barley growing contest are reminded to do so before June 1. To give additional growers an opportunity to enroll, the closing date of the contest has been extended two weeks.

More than $9,000 in cash prizes will be awarded. Judging will be based solely upon the quality of a one-bushel sample exhibited at the county barley show to be held at the fairgrounds early in September.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Soviets Express Desire for Peace, Agree to Discussion of Differences; U. S. Seizes Railroads—Strike Off

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

OVERTURE: Peaceful

All of a sudden the air between Washington and Moscow was filled with talk of peace and desire for co-operation.

Exactly what had happened to bring about the quick flow of the milk of human kindness between the U. S. and Russia was not clear. Certainly there had occurred no basic change in the potentially explosive relationship.

It began with a U. S. statement of position, voiced by Bedell Smith, ambassador to Russia, in the presence of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Smith, apparently speaking officially, suggested that the way is clear for a discussion of differences with Russia. Said the U. S. ambassador:

"The present state of U. S.-Soviet relations is a source of grievous disappointment to the American people. As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Russia's reply, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, expressed a positive attitude toward improving Soviet-American relations and stated that Russia "is in agreement" with a U. S. proposal for "discussion and settlement of existing differences."

Although these developments received a big play in the press and radio of both nations, indications were strong that the aura of mutual hostility separating the U. S. and Russia might not be dispelled by the willingness to "compose our differences."

Neither side had modified its foreign policy. Rather, each had emphasized it in the exchange of notes.

The U. S. statement said, in part: "The concern and the determination of the people of the United States have been intensified by the inexplicable hostility of the Soviet government to the European recovery program—a measure which in its inception and subsequent developments is so obviously only a measure of American assistance for reconstruction on a co-operative basis without menace or threat to anyone."

In their reply the Soviets contrasted what they termed military threats against the Soviet Union with the Russian government's pursuit of "a consistent peace policy."

At least there was a definition of terms and a preliminary agreement to talk things over. Whether or not any good would come of it was, at this stage, problematical.

There was a suspicion abroad that Russia, balked in its ambitions to expand into western Europe by the European recovery program, might be ready now to try to make some kind of deal.

ALL ABOARD: Trains Run

U. S. economy escaped being a victim of railroad paraplegia at the eleventh hour when three rail brotherhoods yielded to a restraining order brought against them by the government and called off their impending strike.

Events leading up to that climax had run a course which has become familiar to strike-weary Americans. Negotiations between the railroads and the three dissenting brotherhoods—engineers, firemen and switchmen—had been fruitless.

As the strike deadline approached they remained miles away from any kind of agreement on wages and working conditions.

By that time President Truman had built up a full head of steam and he opened the throttle wide.

Acting under the sanction of a 1916 law which authorizes the government to take over the railroads during the time of war (U. S. is still, officially, in a state of wartime emergency) Mr. Truman seized the entire vast network of tracks and trains in the name of the federal government.

That move paved the way for a court order restraining the unions from striking for eight days. Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough issued the order and the nation's trains kept running, for the time being, at least.

Possibly proving that there is no wind so ill that it doesn't blow up some good for somebody, one of the major influences leading to cancellation of the rail strike was John L. Lewis, who didn't have a word to say about it.

But Lewis had set the pattern. The total output of 370 billion cigarettes last year was 5 per cent greater than in 1946.

"Per capita cigarette consumption in the U. S. has followed an upward trend, with minor interruptions, since prior to World War I," the bank reported. On a per capita basis consumption jumped from 166 in 1914 to 2,400 in 1947.

Between the wars, the article points out, cigarette consumption was influenced more by changes in custom than economic conditions.

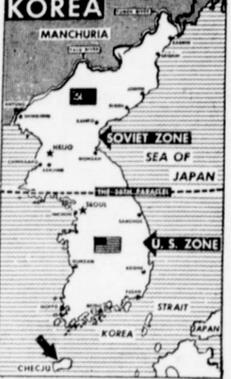

"The growth in the number of women smokers was a major influence on the per capita rate of gain. Consumption declined only 12 per cent in the severe depression following 1929, and the percentage of total consumer outlays spent for tobacco products actually increased from 2.5 per cent to 3.1 per cent between 1929 and 1933, although the dollar amount was less."

Housing Shortage

To the accompaniment of vociferous objections by various parliament members, the British government disclosed in the house of commons that it is spending $200,000 to alter and modernize the town house of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Labor party members criticized the move on the grounds that thousands of Britons need homes more than the Princess does.

Eastern Hotspot

Latest area to emerge as a pivotal point in the world-wide drive against communism is southern Korea where about seven million registered voters went to the polls to elect 200 representatives to what is known as the Korean national assembly. Prior to the election, Communist-trained agents were reported to have been attempting to stir up trouble in the U. S. zone to influence the balloting.

rail union leaders—Alvanley Johnson of the engineers, D. B. Robertson of the firemen and A. J. G'lover Jr. of the switchmen—were uncomfortably aware of what happened to the mine chief when he disobeyed an injunction to call off his soft coal strike.

They knew that if they disobeyed Judge Goldsborough's restraining order they would be exposing themselves and their unions to whopping fines and possible jail sentences.

It was becoming apparent that the government had hit upon a hard-fisted way of delaying crippling strikes. With labor unrest destined to grow this summer, that method, though far from ideal, might come to be the basic formula for inducing arbitration and settlement of strikes.

At the time many people were surprised at that opinion. But it wasn't long before we began to see mention of Martin here and there.

Then, finally, insidiously accepted him as probably the best bet of the several Republican dark horses. I know I could feel his popularity growing as I traveled around the country.

But then came the surprise move when Martin was credited with bringing about settlement of the coal miners' pension row—the appointment of Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire as neutral trustee on the pension board with John Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, and the agreement that was reached between Bridges and Lewis.

At first the settlement put Martin in a favorable light with the public. Then some of the conservative Republicans who hate Lewis expressed their disapproval. There were hints of a "deal" that had been reached between Bridges and Lewis before Bridges was appointed. Democrats charged that Martin was politicking. Horn, representing the operators, appealed to the courts to declare the pension agreement invalid.

Martin's stock dropped. And the oldtimers began to say his chances for the presidential nomination were slim. Not so much because of the pension deal itself, but paradoxically—and this is one of the accepted paradoxes of politics—because his intervention in the row was taken as a public avowal of his candidacy. Martin ceased to be a dark horse—and as a light horse, he wasn't considered nearly as much of a favorite.

The paradox applies to Senator Vandenberg. The Michigan senator constantly and consistently has disavowed any desire or intention of being a candidate for the Republican nomination. If, according to this paradoxical political rule, the oldtimers say, he were thrust into the limelight, his cause would suffer too. At this writing, Vandenberg seems to stand as the No. 1 bet.

Stassenites, however, claim that this paradox is all old hat; that times and political thinking have changed. One of the first black marks which the Republican old guard checked against Stassen was the fact that he came right out as a candidate way ahead of time. The traditional thing is to be oh, so coy about it.

Abigail Adams used to complain about low temperatures in the White House. I doubt if the present administration would echo her complaint, considering the heat that has been put on the President by members of his own party.

The Republicans' program isn't to find a contender for the presidential nomination. It's trying to get rid of some they already have.

Will they televise the third party's political convention? I doubt it. Red usually doesn't photograph well.

BARBS . . . by Baukhage

At the 100-dollar-a-plate dinner Wallace's supporters gave him, the author of "Finian's Rainbow" will supply the entertainment. This does not necessarily assure Wallace of the leprechaun vote, however.

In President Lincoln's time, most of the speeches were made in the open air without benefit of public address system or microphone. Now all you really need is a few friends who can make themselves heard in a smoke-filled room.

He is a bruiser. He bruises the mint. There is another school who crush it. The bruisers say the crushers are barbarians.

Fireman Rush to Extinguish Blaze—In Heating Stove

HARTFORD CITY, IND.—A three-year-old girl here spotted a hot game of checkers in which Hartford City firemen were participating.

The child tried to call a cleaning company but got the fire station instead. She asked that a driver be sent to her home.

"Do you have a fire?" the fireman asked. "Yes," was the reply. Engines roared, tires screeched and sirens whined as fire trucks drew up to the house. The little girl then explained of course they had a fire—in the heating stove.

Fireman Uses Rod and Reel To Hook Dying Man From River

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—A fisherman cast his line into the Hudson river and hooked a 180-pound, 78-year-old man he saw floating in the water.

Playing his line, the fisherman William Wolosyn, kept the man, Frank Millow, afloat. Two policemen pulled Millow out of the river but he died later in Tarrytown hospital.

UNCERTAINTY: Who Won?

Just about all that anyone was sure of when the smoke from the Ohio primary elections had cleared was that Sen. Robert Taft had won 44 delegates to the Republican national convention and that Harold Stassen, the wolf at Taft's door, had captured nine.

How these results should be interpreted promised to be a thoroughly argued question by the time the Republicans convened in Philadelphia to nominate a presidential candidate.

Many held the opinion that the Ohio primary resulted in, if not an outright defeat for Stassen, at least a brusque check on the Minnesotan's heretofore snowballing campaign.

Stassen had competed with Taft for 23 of the state's 53 delegates. He won nine and Taft took 14 of those 23. In a pre-election statement, Stassen had said that the Ohio contest could be accounted a victory for him only if he won a majority of the 23 disputed delegates.

Thus, by his own estimate, Stassen lost in Ohio. He lost, however, to a "favorite son" candidate strongly supported in his own state by Ohio's powerful political organization.

It was hardly a victory for Taft to shout about.

In the final analysis the G.O.P. election race had not changed much. It was Taft and Dewey teaming up to force Stassen into the rail, with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan coming up fast on the outside.

FARM ISSUE: Truman's

Rather hard put for a good, earthy issue to play upon in his coming campaign, President Truman has hit upon the farm problem as the vehicle to carry some of his convictions before the public.

He began by planning a message to congress on the subject of long-range agricultural legislation. The idea was originated by the retiring Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson who opined that such a plea to congress would put the Republicans "on the spot."

The message which Mr. Truman was preparing would ask for an "adequate appropriation" to continue the government farm program, "particularly on soil conservation," according to Alben Barkley, senate Democratic leader.

Barkley acidulously recalled that the President had asked in his budget message for 300 million dollars for soil conservation in the coming fiscal year, and that congress had cut that sum to 225 million.

Many U. S. farmers would be inclined to agree.

And all the time the Vandenberg tide is rising. But here's an interesting thing. Very many observers were saying that Speaker Joe Martin of the house of representatives had the best chance of anyone for the Republican presidential nomination, in case of the expected Taft-Dewey deadlock.

At the time many people were surprised at that opinion. But it wasn't long before we began to see mention of Martin here and there.

Then, finally, insidiously accepted him as probably the best bet of the several Republican dark horses. I know I could feel his popularity growing as I traveled around the country.

But then came the surprise move when Martin was credited with bringing about settlement of the coal miners' pension row—the appointment of Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire as neutral trustee on the pension board with John Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, and the agreement that was reached between Bridges and Lewis.

At first the settlement put Martin in a favorable light with the public. Then some of the conservative Republicans who hate Lewis expressed their disapproval. There were hints of a "deal" that had been reached between Bridges and Lewis before Bridges was appointed. Democrats charged that Martin was politicking. Horn, representing the operators, appealed to the courts to declare the pension agreement invalid.

Martin's stock dropped. And the oldtimers began to say his chances for the presidential nomination were slim. Not so much because of the pension deal itself, but paradoxically—and this is one of the accepted paradoxes of politics—because his intervention in the row was taken as a public avowal of his candidacy. Martin ceased to be a dark horse—and as a light horse, he wasn't considered nearly as much of a favorite.

The paradox applies to Senator Vandenberg. The Michigan senator constantly and consistently has disavowed any desire or intention of being a candidate for the Republican nomination. If, according to this paradoxical political rule, the oldtimers say, he were thrust into the limelight, his cause would suffer too. At this writing, Vandenberg seems to stand as the No. 1 bet.

Stassenites, however, claim that this paradox is all old hat; that times and political thinking have changed. One of the first black marks which the Republican old guard checked against Stassen was the fact that he came right out as a candidate way ahead of time. The traditional thing is to be oh, so coy about it.

Abigail Adams used to complain about low temperatures in the White House. I doubt if the present administration would echo her complaint, considering the heat that has been put on the President by members of his own party.

The Republicans' program isn't to find a contender for the presidential nomination. It's trying to get rid of some they already have.

Will they televise the third party's political convention? I doubt it. Red usually doesn't photograph well.

Washington Digest Series of Contradictions Marks Political Campaign

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON—Political currents and cross currents are running high, wide and deep along the Potomac these days.

The wave of popularity stirred up by Stassen supporters is not pleasant for regular Republicans to contemplate. Some of the non-professionals however, particularly those in the Taft corner, are very bitter about it, not because they think that Stassen will get in, but because of the way he has served to block the Taft efforts—despite the fact that the efforts have been labelled, rightly or wrongly, futile from the beginning. Deweyites don't admit they are worrying—but!

I talked to one of the Taft men recently. "What makes me sick," he said, "is the way the people who have done their best to break down Taft are full of praise for him now that they think he is beaten. They describe his efficiency, his knowledge, his frankness, his grasp of the subjects he discusses. And they talk about Stassen's vagueness and inability to answer Taft's charges."

"And these," he wound up, "are the same people who have been shooting at Taft ever since he started his presidential campaign."

There is something in this that man says. You would be surprised how many liberals, how many Democrats even, praise Taft privately, would really like to see him elected, but either they can't quite come out openly in his favor, or they take for granted he can't win anyhow.

Then there is the great group of Republicans who are going to vote for Dewey, but act as if they were gnawing their teeth in the process. "What have you got against Dewey?" I ask them. Some are vague, others say the New York governor is a "straddler . . . an opportunist . . . never comes out for an issue until he sees a Gallup poll on it . . . but I suppose he'll win . . ." Can he?

Since the Stassen hurricane, the oldtimers are talking a little differently about Dewey. Some of them who have predicted right along that Dewey would win now are saying that Stassen has undermined him so thoroughly that now Dewey has no more chance than Taft.

And all the time the Vandenberg tide is rising. But here's an interesting thing. Very many observers were saying that Speaker Joe Martin of the house of representatives had the best chance of anyone for the Republican presidential nomination, in case of the expected Taft-Dewey deadlock.

At the time many people were surprised at that opinion. But it wasn't long before we began to see mention of Martin here and there.

As Pegler Sees It

By Westbrook Pegler Released by WNU Feature

SORRY, no got a match. I said I forgot match. No tengo matcho. I used to carry matches and I must have four or five lighters kicking around the house, all out of gas. One of them is gold, I think, a birthday or Christmas present from back in those crazy days when everybody had to have an expensive lighter from the English spot on the avenue where the counter-hoppers wear those long white, doctor coats, like butchers in packing plants, and you don't just ask for a pack of gaspers but act like you were in church and the guy goes into a vault and comes out with something very tasty in tin foil from the old world.

It certainly is funny about those English. In their own country they have no more class than Sam's swap shop, dumping everything in the show window, and even in good times they would rather pht in your eye than take the trouble to wait on you. But they come over to New York and dress up their blurry clerks in costumes and talk about nine-and-thrupence and a guinea-a-go and the Americans will pay anything for their woodbines and cigarette lighters.

We have Park Avenue trash who would nominate their kids at birth to be customers at Dunhill's 20 years later, like putting them up for Groton or Choate.

It is the difference between a tobaccoist's and a cigar store. That lighter probably cost $50 and how many would you say sold in the United States at jewelry prices until all of a sudden they are all over town for 89 cents? Millions and millions of dollars worth. Sapphires and rubies. Mine is engraved and a gold case, too. I forgot the gold case because it was too much trouble to fill it.

Anyway, I certainly am glad I don't have to find the tweezers and scuff the heel of my thumb raw like Jimmy Valentine's, every two or three weeks changing flints because, no, I didn't swear off, I just didn't smoke any more. After more than 30 years, probably more like 35, one morning I didn't smoke until noon and then I didn't smoke until evening and when it came bedtime and I hadn't smoked I WAS ALMOST AFRAID TO THINK ABOUT IT.

But I ignored it and the next day I kept putting it off, and many's the time I had two or three days and sometimes even a week, but this time it was different. One or two times I used to count the minutes and hours and figure crazy problems like if I didn't smoke 30 a day for 30 days that would be, let's see three times o-so—that would be 900 I didn't smoke in a month.

This time I was aloof. After the second day, anyway, I ignored it. Once in a while she would say she was real proud and nobody could realize what a comfort it was not to have that reek always around but I preferred not to discuss what a matter at all. After a month I was pretty sure of myself, although, as I say, this time it was no struggle because I just relaxed and didn't make a struggle of it. I ignored it. Two months. I wasn't counting any more. I haven't counted in three months. I just don't smoke so I have no reason to carry matches.

About eight months out I mentioned in a letter to Tunney because a few years back he wrote a tract fearlessly denouncing cigarettes and I wrote one agreeing with his absolutely but confessing that I couldn't quit. Gene wrote a furious letter back. The way he ripped into cigarettes was just sheer bigotry. He hates them. It shows what a closed mind will do. I don't hate them and I certainly have more reason to than Gene does. They are just no dice to me. THEY DON'T MATTER ONE WAY OR ANOTHER.

Yes, more than 30 years and, if you average in the extra early years when my consumption probably wasn't more than 15 or 20 a day, I think it would be conservative to strike a figure of 30 a day. Wait a minute, 30 times 30 times 365 days—I only make an expense account every Leap Year because arithmetic hurts but I am just curious to see. That's 328,500 cigarettes and the worst of it was with me I nearly always did inhale. That's two and three-quarter inches each time. All those cigarettes, by 12 into feet, than into miles—14 miles of cigarettes. What a haystack that would make.

I remember when Tunney was champion some advertising company got up a painting of a big, handsome, blue-eyed harp and plastered it all over the billboards and if it wasn't our Gene it certainly was an unreasonable facsimile, and him a teetotalitarian as far as the poisonous weed goes, although broadminded about alcohol and a very good man around the juleps.

A CASE OF JITTERS

By WILLIAM CUTHBERT

JOHNNY LISIK sat in the barber chair smiling as he fingered through the pages of the magazine, looking at the cartoons.

In the mirror in front of him he saw the two men peer through the store window. He expected that they would move on once they saw that Tony, the owner of the shop, wasn't there. Johnny's reputation as a barber wasn't too good, and he had had only one dissatisfied customer all night.

Suddenly it dawned on Johnny that these two men had appeared at the window a few minutes before. He couldn't be mistaken. They both had several weeks' stubble on their faces, and hair was growing over their ears and down their necks.

The door opened and the men stepped inside. Johnny winced. It was almost eight o'clock. He'd have to work overtime.

Johnny pushed himself out of the chair and noticed that both men were as tall as he, but lean. He saw eyes that were alert, but could stand some sleep. Beneath the growth of whiskers were thin faces that needed a few square meals to help fill out the sunken jaws. And a good whiskbroom could be used to advantage to remove some of the dust from their clothing.

"You the only barber here?" one of the men snapped as he set a small valise on a chair.

Johnny didn't like the man's surly tone. He hunched his broad shoulders, stretched to his full six feet, and was tempted to toss the two haggard looking gents out of the shop, but decided that that might hurt Tony's business.

"Yeah," answered Johnny casually, realizing that he had never seen the men in town before, "the owner of the shop took his wife out tonight, and I'm filling in for him."

"I'll go first, Ed," the spokesman for the two said as he began to remove his coat.

The man called Ed grunted, "I don't like takin' this chance, Dick," then he flopped on a chair near the wall and pulled the valise to him.

"Forget it," Dick grinned, "I feel lousy with all this hair on me. A good clean shave and haircut will pep us up."

Johnny walked to the door and started to pull down the shades. Ed jumped to his feet knocking the valise on the floor, his hand flashing to his coat pocket with the same movement. "What are you doin' that for?" he snapped menacingly.

Johnny was stunned by the sudden outburst. He found his voice and explained, "It's getting near closing time. I'm pulling the shades down so that no one else will come in."

Dick giggled and said, "You've got the jitters, Ed. We don't want anyone else to come in here, do we?"

Suspicion arose in Johnny's mind. The men's names had a familiar ring. Ed and Dick! Where had he seen or heard these names linked together before?

He went to the store window and pulled down the big shade, and the three men were hidden from the eyes of any passerby. He wished he hadn't thought about the shades. He had an uneasy feeling now that he was alone with the two men.

Ed saw the bolt lock on the inside of the door and said, "That's right, Dick, we don't want anybody else comin' in here." With two long strides he reached the door and pushed the bolt barrel into place.

"Nobody can come in now," he sneered. Then he went back, retrieved the valise, and sat down.

Johnny walked to the barber chair and adjusted the headrest. He had an inkling now of whom these two men might be, although it seemed fantastic that he could be right.

Dick loosened his necktie and collar then eased into the barber chair. He looked at his fingernails, brushed them on his knees and said, "You ought to have a girl here to manicure my nails. They could stand a polishin'."

At first Johnny winced at the thought of a man having manicured nails. Then, although he showed no outward emotion, he was jolted inside. Dapper Dick Crane! Surely that was the name of the man sitting in the chair! And the jittery man near the wall who was staring at him with cold piercing eyes was his twin brother, Ed.

"If this guy's a barber, then I'm Santa Claus," Ed snarled, "I think this guy's been planted here and we've walked into a trap!"

Johnny took a long linen cloth, spread it in front of Dick, then pinned it around his neck. So these were the kidnapers who had made the headlines two weeks before! They were 700 miles from the coast where they had collected $50,000 in ransom money, and the F.B.I. was supposed to be hot on their trail.

"Don't cut it too short," Dick said, "just give me a good quick trim, and make a neat job."

After picking up the clippers, Johnny turned his back on Ed. He had a good view of him in the mirror.

"Been in these parts long?" Ed asked behind him.

"Lived on a farm outside of town all my life, except when I was in the army," Johnny said as he ran the clippers up the back of Dick's neck.

"You don't look like a farmer to me," Ed growled, his voice full of suspicion.

"What's eatin' you Ed?" Dick grunted.

Johnny became shaky when he saw Ed's hand grip something in his coat pocket again. He began to work faster and the back of Dick's head didn't look so good.

"After all," Johnny thought, "a fellow who had cut hair only aboard a transport on the way back from Japan couldn't do too good of a job, especially on a mop of hair like this Dapper Dick had."

For a minute or two Ed watched in silence, then he stood up and put the valise on the chair. Putting his hands on his hips he turned toward the barber chair.

He snapped, "I told you, Dick, that this idea of stoppin' at a barber shop was no good. You know those F.B.I. boys are smart, and I bet they figured that Dapper Dick Crane wouldn't be able to resist stoppin' somewhere for a trim."

The clippers poised above Dick's head, Johnny looked in the mirror and said nothing although a wild thought was running through his head.

Dick straightened in the chair, "You've got the jitters," he said, "what harm was there in comin' here?"

"If this guy's a barber, then I'm Santa Claus," Ed snarled, "I think this guy's been planted here and we've walked into a trap! Pullin' them shades down was a signal!"

Dick ran his hand over the back of his neck, and Johnny forced a smile.

Johnny said, "It doesn't look so good now, but wait until I put the other clippers on it."

He moved around the chair with glad you happened in. They're throwing a dance over at Kitty's and—"

"But, say, after the way I've worked all day, Sallie, I absolutely can't dance all night! I—I just thought we'd have a quiet evening and—talk—" He did not go on to say that he had wanted to talk over serious problems with her such as the burning question as to whether two could live as cheaply as one.

"A quiet evening?" she repeated. "Who in heaven's name wants a quiet evening?"

Her piquant little face upturned to his. Joe allowed himself to be hurried from the room and down in the elevator.

"How far is it to this—Kitty's? Was that the name of the girl?" asked Joe.

Sallie nodded. "You met her a month ago—the same night you met me, Joe. Don't you remember her—a girl with red hair—no wave at all and long green earrings?"

"I'm not going," said Joe, stubbornly.

Sallie looked up at him, her foot on the running-board of the taxi. "Oh—yes, you are," she said. "Yes—you—Joe Marshall!"

"What's the address?" Joe asked quietly.

He repeated it to the cab driver. "How much—about?" asked Joe.

"Bout four-sixty," answered the man.

Joe handed him a five-dollar bill. "Keep the change," he said, closing the door.

He turned down the street in Rita's direction mechanically. Five dollars! His lunch money for days gone. He shrugged; after all, a fellow could not expect to take out a girl like Sallie without spending. He had thought that he would visit with her all evening as he had done so often at Rita's but this girl—strictly modern, he told himself. He had thought to buy a box of candy for her and this was in his pocket. It was a fancier box than he had ever taken Rita, he thought.

Rita herself opened the door. "Hello," she said, warmly. "I wasn't expecting you, Joe. No—come back here to the dining room. Mrs. Matson had to go to the den-

Dance Mis-steps

When the record seems endless; when you can think of at least a half dozen other things you would rather be doing at that moment; when a cut-in would be as welcome as a phone call at 8:30 Friday night—it's time to change partners.

And, according to a survey we've just made on this vital subject, any change would be an improvement when your partner is guilty of these corny crimes:

UPS AND DOWNS—You have plenty of 'em, when your partner uses the pump handle technique with his left arm and your right. By the time the dance is over you feel as if you had been harnessed to a see-saw which might have been more fun.

DISAPPEARING ACT—Don't you love the boy who leaves you stranded in the middle of the dance floor when the record is over? You know the type—so soon as the dancing stops, he mumbles something and silently fades away—leaving you with what seems like six hands and six feet and a fervent hope that someone will rescue you and that the house will catch on fire.

JOLLY GOOD FELLOW—Does he have to be so sociable—with the other boys' partners—when he's dancing with you? He carefully steers you from one couple to another in order to exchange pleasantries with all the girls he's NOT dancing with.

Bank Account Enables Clock to Chime Again

CENTERVILLE, MICH.—For the first time in three years, the local courthouse clock—believed to be the only timepiece in the world with its own bank account—is chiming again.

Funds were sent in from all over the United States when it was reported that the ancient clock was broken. Remaining funds were placed in a bank for the clock.

Illiteracy in Cities

Illiteracy in Pennsylvania has shifted from the country to the city, Pennsylvania State college found in a detailed population study. On the basis of census data, 4.3 per cent of the urban population is classified as illiterate, compared to 3.5 per cent for the rural. Illiteracy is higher in Pennsylvania than in the nation as a whole, although the rural population of the state has a smaller percentage that cannot read or write than the rural population of the nation.

Pregnant Ewes Need Good Feed to Produce Top Lambs

AMES, IOWA—It is important that pregnant ewes are fed adequately, especially during the last half of the pregnancy period, to produce strong, healthy lambs. W. F. LaGrange, animal husbandman at Iowa State college, said.

In figuring a ration, consider more than maintenance of the ewe. Remember, she is producing one or more lambs, growing a fleece of wool, and building up reserves for the suckling period, all at the same time, LaGrange advises.

High quality legume hay is a good base for a ration, LaGrange says. That means hay that is leafy, of good green color, and free from mold. Silage may be included up to one to one and one-half pounds per day until lambing time. After lambing, the amount of silage may be increased.

During the last month or two of pregnancy, one-half to one pound of a mixture of corn and oats should be added, depending on the size and condition of the ewe. Free access to salt and a mineral mixture is important, especially if leafy legume hay isn't fed.

Pregnant ewes should have regular exercise, too, LaGrange says, but it should not be severe.

Plastic Helmet Gives Full Vision to Undersea Divers

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—It's "depressing" to see in only one direction under water when sharks and barracuda are lurking near by.

So William Shoemaker, Rochester specialist in the study of marine life, has designed his own deep-sea diving helmet affording full vision.

The 29-inch headpiece is manufactured out of a clear, transparent plastic. It was made by a Rochester plastics manufacturer.

SHORT STORY

A Quiet Evening

By LILLIACE

MONTGOMERY MITCHELL

JOE went into the elevator of Sallie's apartment building, settling his coat on his shoulders with a satisfied smile. After all, one might as well live in style! Sallie probably paid no more for her room in this building than Rita did in that walk-up flat where she had roomed for three years.

"Rita is a good sort," he told himself with a note of apology even in the thought, "but Sallie—say, there's a girl with dash to her!"

Sallie had rushed in with a wrap over her arm.

"Oh, Joe, I'm so glad you happened in. They're throwing a dance over at Kitty's and—"

"But, say, after the way I've worked all day, Sallie, I absolutely can't dance all night! I—I just thought we'd have a quiet evening and—talk—" He did not go on to say that he had wanted to talk over serious problems with her such as the burning question as to whether two could live as cheaply as one.

"A quiet evening?" she repeated. "Who in heaven's name wants a quiet evening?"

Her piquant little face upturned to his. Joe allowed himself to be hurried from the room and down in the elevator.

"How far is it to this—Kitty's? Was that the name of the girl?" asked Joe.

Sallie nodded. "You met her a month ago—the same night you met me, Joe. Don't you remember her—a girl with red hair—no wave at all and long green earrings?"

"I'm not going," said Joe, stubbornly.

Sallie looked up at him, her foot on the running-board of the taxi. "Oh—yes, you are," she said. "Yes—you—Joe Marshall!"

"What's the address?" Joe asked quietly.

He repeated it to the cab driver. "How much—about?" asked Joe.

"Bout four-sixty," answered the man.

Joe handed him a five-dollar bill. "Keep the change," he said, closing the door.

He turned down the street in Rita's direction mechanically. Five dollars! His lunch money for days gone. He shrugged; after all, a fellow could not expect to take out a girl like Sallie without spending. He had thought that he would visit with her all evening as he had done so often at Rita's but this girl—strictly modern, he told himself. He had thought to buy a box of candy for her and this was in his pocket. It was a fancier box than he had ever taken Rita, he thought.

Rita herself opened the door. "Hello," she said, warmly. "I wasn't expecting you, Joe. No—come back here to the dining room. Mrs. Matson had to go to the den-

Boy Buys Big Red Fire Engine For 25 Dollars

NAPA, CALIF.—Like most boys, 10-year-old David Hotelling dreamed of owning his own real, regulation-size, red fire engine.

He heard that the Napa city council was selling a 1926 model to make room in the firehouse for new equipment.

David counted his savings—earned by selling household articles and doing odd jobs—and made a $25 bid.

It was the only one the council received and David was awarded the fire engine.

Hundreds Join Gold Rush in New Jersey

SEARCHERS excavate feverishly for buried treasure

HIGHLANDS, N. J.—A seashore gold rush was underway as hundreds of people converged here in a hunt for buried treasure.

The reported discovery of six more eighteenth century gold coins on the banks of the Shrewsbury river, near the Atlantic ocean, gave impetus to the search.

About 400 men, women and children streamed over the beaches beginning at chill dawn in a big beach-combing operation. Armed with rakes, screens, shovels, pails and assorted digging implements, many sifted the sands in this legendary pirates' port of call.

A Newark coin dealer, Fred W. Burnet, said from descriptions of the coins found he believed them to be old Portuguese doubloons, possibly pirates' treasure. He estimated that, in good condition, the coins probably are worth about $75 each.

Fifteen of the coins have been discovered altogether since William Cottrell, 75, first picked one up while strolling on the beach.

The oldest is dated 1735.

The coins were turned up near the area of the previous finds, some below the high water mark.

Stories of pirates' treasure flew thick and fast in this resort town of about 2,000 population. A crowd gathered to watch the excavations of the hopeful hunters.

Many believed the coins had been dug from the river bottom when the Shrewsbury was dredged about 12 years ago. Sand from the dredging was pumped along the banks and has been washed and blown away during the years.

Nurses in V. A. Hospitals Quit Jobs to Get Married

WASHINGTON—Veterans administration officials, struggling to maintain hospital personnel, face an unbeatable foe—Cupid.

"Our resident doctors and internes are marrying our nurses too fast," complains Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, VA medical director.

Not all of the nurses quit their jobs as soon as they get married, he said, but many do.

This, however, is only one of Dr. Magnuson's several hospital personnel problems.

In all types of medical personnel, VA now is short 6,000.

There are 4,217 doctors in the 126 VA hospitals, of whom 1,200 are scheduled to leave this year. These are young men who will have completed their training under special army and navy programs.

Dr. Magnuson believes a number of these will decide to remain with VA for additional training toward their medical specialties.

He also is working out a deal with the country's best medical schools to get other young doctors, also working toward specialties, to take two years of training at VA hospitals.

He can offer them salaries ranging from $4,100 to $7,000, and the advantage of supervision and instruction by the best of the nation's medical men.

Bank Account Enables Clock to Chime Again

CENTERVILLE, MICH.—For the first time in three years, the local courthouse clock—believed to be the only timepiece in the world with its own bank account—is chiming again.

Funds were sent in from all over the United States when it was reported that the ancient clock was broken. Remaining funds were placed in a bank for the clock.

Pregnant Ewes Need Good Feed to Produce Top Lambs

AMES, IOWA—It is important that pregnant ewes are fed adequately, especially during the last half of the pregnancy period, to produce strong, healthy lambs. W. F. LaGrange, animal husbandman at Iowa State college, said.

In figuring a ration, consider more than maintenance of the ewe. Remember, she is producing one or more lambs, growing a fleece of wool, and building up reserves for the suckling period, all at the same time, LaGrange advises.

High quality legume hay is a good base for a ration, LaGrange says. That means hay that is leafy, of good green color, and free from mold. Silage may be included up to one to one and one-half pounds per day until lambing time. After lambing, the amount of silage may be increased.

During the last month or two of pregnancy, one-half to one pound of a mixture of corn and oats should be added, depending on the size and condition of the ewe. Free access to salt and a mineral mixture is important, especially if leafy legume hay isn't fed.

Pregnant ewes should have regular exercise, too, LaGrange says, but it should not be severe.

Use Book, Not Boards, Tax Collectors Advise

DENVER—Ever on the alert for the slightest hint of income tax evasion, collectors of the internal revenue department demanded an explanation when a Colorado farmer made a bank deposit of $17,000 but didn't report such income on his tax return.

The money was no sudden windfall, the farmer contended, explaining that he had been saving it in his basement for years. Every time he tucked away a little more, he penciled the date and amount on pine boards leaning against the wall.

Could he produce the boards? Well, he had sawed them up and made a kitchen cabinet out of them. Revenue agents dismantled the cabinet, found the penciled memos.

But this led to considerable revision of the farmer's earlier tax return. The tax men suggested that he keep an account book in the future.

King-size LIPSTICK for a Queen!

by Dorothy Perkins

More, much more, than just a lipstick! A pass-key to enticing lip beauty—seven "costume" shades infused with laserous color that magically become part of you!

More, much more, than just smooth texture! Instead, a formula, satiny, silky smooth: Fashions your perfect lip-shape, keeps it there, unbroken by feathery edges.

More, much more, in every deluxe-sized case, brimming with pulsating color—keeps you breath-takingly lovely for months . . . and kisses . . . to come!

$1.00 plus tax
