Harvey Kippenhan Leases Bauer Service Station

The Bauer Super Service Station at Campbellsport, begun 18 years ago by the late Frank J. Bauer and operated by his wife, Mrs. Mary Bauer...

Mr. Kippenhan intends to continue the same friendly policy and service that the motoring public has been accustomed to in the past.

The first regular service of the new coaches will be limited to fast, extra-fast express schedules to and from New York, St. Louis and Chicago. Although constructed on a 41-passenger chassis, capacity of the new model is reduced to 32 seats in order to provide space for the washroom and the buffet counter and to give more legroom between the seats. The snack bar is located at the forward end of the bus beside the driver.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Palestine Jews Proclaim New State Of Israel, Attacked by Arab Armies; U.S. Victim of Russian Propaganda

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Impulse to Zion

Arnold Toynbee, British historian, types the Jews as a fossilized remnant of an extinct civilization. He meant that because of their single-minded, faultless devotion to the religion of Moses and their strict adherence to ancestral customs, the Jews, descending through history as a compact group, have retained most of the original characteristics which marked them when first they emerged as part of the Syrian civilization thousands of years before Christ.

They are recognized today as being in but not of the societies in which they appear on every portion of the globe. They almost invariably form a minority group, and as such they have been targets for endless persecution.

Socially, world Jewry has been of two minds concerning the most desirable end it could achieve for itself. Those two conflicting trains of thought are represented by the "zionists" and the "dispersionists."

The dispersionists have advocated that Jews should mingle freely with whatever people they have chosen to live among and gradually be assimilated by that people. Zionists, of course, favor establishment of a national homeland—an indestructible ideal ever since Moses led the exodus to Canaan.

Since the war, with Nazi attempts to obliterate German Jews completely and subsequent displacement of millions of European Jews, Zionism has been given a tremendous impetus.

That impulse to Zion has been distilled into what the world has come to know as the "Palestine problem." More recently it crystallized even further in the actual establishment of a Jewish state—called Israel—in Palestine, ancient homeland of the pre-Christian era Jews.

WINDFALL: Propaganda

In Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith's formal and completely routine statement to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the Russians thought they had a propaganda bonanza. It was cleverly done. Smith's otherwise tough statement, which simply repeated the basic U. S. foreign policy with regard to Russia, contained one sentence that Moscow took as a loophole: "As far as the United States is concerned, the door is always wide open for full discussion and the composing of our differences."

Molotov seized upon that sentence and the announcement was broadcast to the world that Russia accepted the American "offer" to negotiate.

It looked like a propaganda victory of major proportions for the Soviets. Briefly, it put them in the position of being able to point with pride to their manifest willingness to settle the bitter differences which have kept the world unerved for so long.

If the U. S. refused to talk, that would be fine with the Russians who would capitalize on that fact with a vengeance. If a peace conference did develop as a result of the original trick, the old and familiar Soviet obstructionist tactics would be brought into play to do the usual job of sabotage.

That was about the way it stacked up to the high officials in Washington. Both President Truman and Secretary of State George Marshall made it clear that there would be no conference, that there was no logical basis for one and that such a conference could not possibly succeed at this time because neither the U. S. nor Russia had altered or modified its position in any way.

In addition to the propaganda value of the Russian move, it might also have been calculated to throw some sand into the gears of the incipient U. S. defense program.

If the Soviets, suddenly assuming a peaceful men, were able to hypnotize the American people into feeling falsely secure, congress in an election year might be coerced into wasting a lot of time in preparing such items of the defense program as the 70-group air force bill and the draft bill. That wasted time could, in the light of possible future events, turn out to be incalculably precious.

Sequel

Second episode of the affair of the Russian piece overtur was a Stalin-to-Wallace case that went over the head of the U. S. government.

The Russian premier took advantage of an "open letter" which Henry Wallace had addressed to him demanding an open showdown between the two nations. Wallace's proposals, as summarized by Stalin, included:

- 1. General reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons.
2. Conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan.
3. Evacuation of troops from China and Korea.
4. Respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and non-interference in their domestic affairs.
5. World development of international trade.

"I don't know whether the United States government approves Mr. Wallace's program..." Stalin said, making it starkly clear that he was talking, not to the government, but to the American people. He applauded the Wallace letter as "the most important document of recent times," and declared, "As far as the government of the USSR is concerned, it considers that Mr. Wallace's program could serve as a good and fruitful basis for an agreement."

Apparently a Russian attempt to bring about a showdown in the East-West struggle before an audience of world public opinion, Stalin's bombshell statement renewed the question of whether the new Soviet tactics are merely propaganda or a genuine effort for peace.

Either way the U. S. was in a difficult position. If the Russian appeal is taken at face value it cuts the ground from under the tough American cold war strategy. If it is propaganda it undoubtedly will serve to put the U. S. in a bad light.

Well, Not Exactly

A. C. Hudson of Portsmouth, N. H., head of a committee of fire protection experts who examined the White House recently, said he wouldn't exactly call the President's home a firetrap, but still and all there are plenty of hazards existing at the Pennsylvania avenue edifice.

There is nothing wrong with the White House that a lot of fire-proofing won't fix, he said, but it needs a lot of money.

Hudson implied that one of the reasons he refrained from referring to the executive mansion as a fire-trap is that there are so many guards around that a fire probably would be spotted with little delay.

A member of the National Fire Protection association, Hudson and his group were asked for an "objective opinion" by Sen. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.), chairman of the senate appropriations committee. The committee has been asked to provide $50,000 to make the White House fire-proof.

FARM PLAN: Truman's

To shore up his sinking political prestige in his campaign for re-nomination, President Truman proposed to congress a four-point farm program which he claimed is "essential" to a productive, prosperous agriculture in the U. S. Burden of his message were these recommendations:

- 1. A permanent system of "flexible price supports for agricultural commodities."
2. "Full support to the continuance and expansion of our program of soil conservation."
3. Legislation by congress to "continue and strengthen programs to assure adequate consumption of agricultural products."
4. "We need to consider other means for assisting farmers to meet their special problems. For example, we must support and protect farm cooperatives. We must continue to work toward a sound system of crop insurance."

There was nothing very startling about the proposals, and they carried the unmistakable ring of a campaign year bid for the farmers' favorable attention.

ITALY: Vox Pop

Luigi Einaudi, 74, a banker, is to be president of the Italian republic for the next seven years.

He was elected at a joint session of both houses of parliament on the fourth ballot after the Communists, who had been supporting Enrico de Nicola, threw their votes to him. On three previous ballots none of the presidential prospects had been able to command the required majority because of the Communist bloc.

An opponent of communism, Einaudi also was a foe of Mussolini's brand of fascism. He is an internationally known writer on public finance and economic history.

Einaudi's first task as president of the republic was to designate a premier and instruct him to form a cabinet. There was no doubt that he would name Alcide de Gasperi, premier of the provisional government, to continue in that capacity on a permanent basis.

DISPLACED: Bill Pending

Although the desperate problem of Europe's displaced persons has not been attracting much headline attention lately, congress has been busy working out legislation to admit quotas of DP's into the U. S. Latest report was that an informal poll showed that a majority of the senate would vote for a bill to admit 200,000 displaced persons into this country during the next two years.

The actual bill being considered by the senate judiciary committee sets the figure at 100,000 DP immigrants for the next two years, but several senators have introduced amendments to raise that total to 200,000 and to remove some restrictions imposed by the committee.

One senate source said the poll indicated that at least 55 senators were ready to vote for the less restrictive version. The house judiciary committee already has approved a similar measure to admit 200,000 DP's in the next two years.

ATOM RACE: Official

Governments of the world never have been farther from outlawing the use of atomic weapons. In fact, the atomic armament race is just settling down to a long, straight-away dash.

It is a contest involving astronomical costs, with horrible disaster if not ultimate destruction possibly lurking just beyond the horizon.

So far the U. S. is well in the lead, as indicated by the recent announcement of the development and successful testing of three new atomic weapons which are said to supersede the original atom bombs in destructive power.

The United Nations atomic energy commission made the race official when, after two years of fruitless effort to work out some kind of international atomic control, it finally voted to suspend negotiations.

Other developments followed swiftly to prove that the U. S. is deadly serious about developing a powerful and diversified atomic arsenal.

David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the atomic energy commission, reported that the "present stage of the commission's tests of atomic weapons is concluded."

President Truman then authorized the commission to take "steps" at once for further development based on information gained from the tests.

What Russia was doing about atomic weapons remained pretty much of a mystery, at least as far as the American public was concerned. It was an accepted fact that the Russians knew how to make an atom bomb. Whether they had the industrial facilities to do so still remained a matter of considerable conjecture.

Creeching Out

British-trained members of the Czechoslovakian air force are deserting wholesale and fleeing into Germany, one of the refugee officers has disclosed.

Only 5 per cent of the officer corps learned to fly from the RAF during the war, is Communist-minded, he said. The rest objected to being told by politicians that anti-communism had to cease, he added.

President Talks—Everyone Wants to Get in on the Act

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—The colonel was talking to the general. It was obvious that the general was as bored as his secretary looked, her interrupted dictation on her crossed knees, which she uncrossed as the general's eyes wandered.

The colonel was the army's No. 1 specialist on the super-gadget warfare, as the colonel could (and would, if he got a chance) tell you. The colonel knew the history of the gadget's development from its crude semi-gismo stage when, primitive as it was, it caused the entire re-organization of the tactics of the knights under Otto the great, first King of the Germans. He could trace its evolution down through the days of delicate interplay when it broke up the Empire of Charlemagne, and on down to the fall of Stalingrad.

The colonel had brought the general about up to the third Punic war and the secretary was wiggling. The general himself had begun to fumble with form 2A-3064-B29. The colonel realized that he was rapidly losing his audience. So he raised his voice so that file clerks in the next office stopped filing (their fingernails) and looked up.

"By the way, General," he remarked confidentially, "Did you know that I'm writing the President's next speech? The one he delivers to the Inter-Planetary association?"

The general's secretary perked up... the general raised an eyebrow... the colonel smiled... At about the same hour, over in the Metropolitan club, a very dapper young man from the division of the Far, Near and Middle East and expert in economic-ethnopathology, was sipping a thin scotch-and-soda which his chief had just ordered. His chief was bored.

"By the way, Chief," he said in a whisper so loud that even the waiters stopped looking respectful and listened: "I'm writing the President's next speech at the Inter-Planetary association's conference."

In four other places, four other young experts were telling their bosses the same thing. All were perfectly honest, all were believed, and in 20 minutes or so, stenographers, clerks, messengers, waiters and cab drivers were pointing out "the guy who writes the President's speeches."

All this has been going on, I suppose, in world capitals since before somebody else thought he had codified the code of Hamurabi.

What really happens is this: The President calls in one of his more literary secretaries—all of them are literate, but not all literary (some—those whose duties are conversing with politicians, don't have to be too literate). The President says to the literary one: "Bill, in this speech I have to write for the Inter-Planetary conference, I'm going to mention the super-gadget, and I want to touch on the current economic and social situation in Belurisa, also there are some erosion statistics I need, and some data on the problems which arose as a result of the Whiskey Rebellion."

"Okeh, Chief," says the literary secretary, and on his way back to his office, he begins classifying, according to departments, the people he thinks may have the facts or the people who will know who knows somebody who has the facts. He either phones or dictates a brief memo to these people, requesting not more than one page from each on the subjects indicated.

Highly-pleased young and old men, on receipt of the memo or phone call, begin leafing through their research libraries and dictating to their secretaries. In two days, a number of large packages are delivered to the White House via special messengers. The literary secretary curses and sets to work boiling down a 24-page thesis on the progression of tau-mute from the Sanskrit et alia to a sentence and a half which he has his stenographer type into the rough draft of the speech which the President has dictated and sent to him for the purpose.

Franklin Roosevelt became angered because columnists persisted in "revealing" which confidential adviser wrote the last speech he delivered, whatever it was, that he once showed us the actual draft of a speech he had dictated and written, and re-written as was his custom. In fact, the last-minute revising of Roosevelt's interlined manuscripts often went on while newshounds growled in the outer office and mimeographers stood by to handle the finally-okayed sheets in "takes."

House doozerstep these days, it seems incredible that anyone would want to scramble for delegates to a national convention.

How many wives of men comraded, asks the Communist Daily Worker, are also party members? Maybe the men have other ideas as to whom they want to be the life of the party.

Ain't It So. The trouble with most so-called highbrow books is that they're about people who know too much to be content and too little to be serene. Purchase the next world with this; you will win both. Give a girl a hand—and she wants a ring on it!

By HAL MARQUETTE

"AND SHOULD you encounter this man, exercise care. He's dangerous. Any further news that comes in will..."

Jerry Anderson snapped off the radio. He'd heard the particulars of the brutal strangulation of Mrs. Prescott and the description of the suspect several times this evening. After that wordy, unlovely portrait of the man, he felt that even he would recognize him if he ever contacted him, but he hoped that he wouldn't. Jerry was no coward, but...

After Jerry's recent discharge from the hospital, he decided that he wanted to live out at the cottage while making his plans for the future. His family objected, not without cause, and it wasn't until old Doc Crowder, the family friend and physician, convinced them that it would be a good thing for Jerry to do under the circumstances, that they finally yielded to his wishes. Jerry had spent every summer of his life there, until his enlistment, and he loved the old place.

So, when his mother and Lucy reluctantly left him this afternoon, he was glad. Not that he did not appreciate the things which they had been doing for him, but he wanted to be on his own. He had plans to make and this change and the quiet that he would have would be perfect. He had tried, during his month at home, to apply his own "self-reasoning" method, but to little avail. He felt confident that it could be tested properly by facing his problems independently.

Jerry sat near the window for quite some time trying to make a start at some of that "self-reasoning," but his mind kept reverting to the broadcast he had heard earlier. If the woman only had had a gun, he thought. She probably would have been afraid to use it, though; most women were. He thought of the empty Luger in his bag and wished that he could have tried again to get some ammunition for it. He loved that gun, a gift from one of his buddies who had not come back.

Jerry went into the bedroom and took the gun from his bag. He fondled it and then slipped it into his pocket. He smiled when he realized just how foolish that was. He came back to his chair and then lit his pipe.

He had been sitting there for just a few minutes when, suddenly, he heard the back door being opened, and then the click of the light switch. He sat still, wondering who it could be, a dozen thoughts chasing through his mind. He felt the useless gun in his pocket and took it out, gripping it firmly. Now, if ever, he could test himself on several of the things which he had learned during his rehabilitation.

In less than a minute, it seemed, he heard the ice-box door being opened, and a loud chuckle came from the intruder. Then he heard things being put on the table. He knew that whoever was in the kitchen seemed sure of himself. He must know, he thought, that even with the whole house lighted, it was practically impossible to see in from any side.

The minutes dragged while he listened to the man eating and drinking. From the noise he was making, slamming the ice-box door and moving his chair, the man undoubtedly thought that he was alone. Perhaps he had seen Lucy and her mother leave hours before and had waited for darkness to come.

After what had seemed an hour, he heard the man get up from the table and walk toward the hall which led into the living room. Jerry knew that his safety depended upon what he would be able to do within the next few minutes. It wasn't a very pleasant spot to be in, but...

He thought of the broadcaster's remark, that the killer had not used a car, and that it was suspected that he was making a getaway by the county back-roads and woods. This could be the man. For as long as he could remember, no ordinary tramp had ever strayed

Jerry knew that his safety depended upon what he would be able to do within the next few minutes.

ed so far away from the main highway. He must have come upon the house by accident.

When Jerry heard a hand moving along the wall groping for a light-switch, he stood up and pointed the gun toward the door. Then it happened—the living room light was snapped on. He heard a hoarse cry of surprise.

The man's breathing was heavy as he stood motionless, facing the gun. He had a fear that Jerry could sense was genuine.

"Get 'em up! Who are you and what do you want?" Jerry was an officer in the infantry again as he made the demand.

The man was shaking when he spoke, "You're a cool one, brother. Put the gun down, please, before you hurt somebody." He took a step forward, and Jerry raised the gun and moved it slightly from side to side. Looking toward the man, Jerry was not sure of what he should do next. Then all the admonitions of his teachers came back to him: SHOW NO FEAR—THINK FAST—SPEAK WITH CONFIDENCE—REASON—FOLLOW THROUGH...

"Sit down in that chair," Jerry roared, surprised at his loud voice. This gave him a bit of confidence. Then he thought of his next move.

"A nut," the man ventured, half under his breath, and he obeyed. He kept his eyes on the man as though hypnotized by it.

"Shut up and sit still."

"You're a smart..." The man glanced away from the gun just long enough to see if there was anything near that he could grab.

"What you going to do? Let me put it to your ear. When the operator answers, tell her to connect you with the Helm road district police. When they answer, tell them to come immediately to the Anderson cottage off Helm road."

The man lowered his arm slowly and took the receiver off the hook. He'd stall, he thought; maybe the nut would give him an "in." But hearing the sound of regular breathing and feeling the pressure of the gun against his back, any illusions that he might have had regarding an "in," were shattered.

"Operator, gimme the Helm road police station." His voice quavered, and his hand was shaking. He couldn't keep the receiver close to his ear.

The man was conscious of the gun at his back, and he spoke in a deep hoarse whisper, "Come to the Anderson cottage off Helm road right away."

"What's up?" Jerry heard the officer ask.

"Tell him," he snapped at the man.

"I've got the man you've been looking for."

Jerry heard the quick break of the connection at the police station. "VISUALIZE—CHANCE IT—DO—FOLLOW THROUGH..."

He had the answer...

"Drop that receiver and get your left arm up," he hesitated, then ordered his prisoner to get back to the same chair and sit down.

The killer had a dogged smirk on his face as he turned and moved toward the chair. He felt positive that his captor was a "nut," and with that gun...

Seconds passed as he continued to glare at Jerry. Then he thought of an old trick that he would try in order to get Jerry off guard. He wondered why he had not tried it when he first came into the room. Stiffening himself and settling back in the chair, he broke the silence with a tirade of oaths.

"Keep it up and keep them up, too," Jerry ordered.

This was not the reaction that the killer and hoped for. He then quieted and began to talk more coherently, and soon was telling of the crime for which he was being hunted. He spared none of the details.

Then Jerry heard the purr of a motor and men's voices. A slight wave of relief swept over him. Almost immediately, there was a sound of crackling shrubbery and running feet. The front door opened and two officers, with guns drawn, rushed in. They saw their man and covered him.

"Good work, Mr. Anderson, good work."

When the officers yanked the man to his feet and they had started for the door, one of them said to the prisoner, "You're lucky to have had this extra living time, him spotting you and with everybody in the county ready and willing to shoot you on sight."

The prisoner did not comment, but he scowled and was shaking and snorting with anger.

"The gun was not loaded, officer, and I could recognize him only from his story... you see, I am blind," Jerry said softly.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let Children Have Many Happy Returns! (See Recipes Below)

FEW EVENTS WILL MATCH the pleasure that a real birthday party can give to your youngster. The gaiety imparted by a few favors, crepe paper decorations, a house full of little friends and a cake all his own, these are the things a child will remember so pleasantly for a long time.

Birthday party menus depend mainly upon the age of the children. Very simple food is the order of the day for children of three or four; and for children of five or six, the food is only slightly more elaborate. Children from 8 to 10 and older may have things such as lamb chops or hamburgers for the main dish, but it's still important to plan to serve only familiar foods for little guests.

Ice cream and cake are essentials at a birthday party no matter what the age group. For the younger children, however, serve only plain ice cream such as vanilla, and a very simple, not too rich cake, so there will be no digestive upsets.

THE MENU AND RECIPES I've planned will give you a clue as to the best way to plan these particular party foods.

Birthday Party Menu (For Youngsters 3 to 4)

Cream of Tomato Soup or Goldenrod Eggs

Carrot Sticks or Curls

Peanut Butter-Jelly Sandwiches

Vanilla Ice Cream Sponge Cake with Milk

Orange Icing

Goldenrod eggs are a nutritious dish whether the party is for lunch or dinner time. Eggs prepared this way are just a bit more purified than creamed eggs.

Goldenrod Eggs (Serves 6 to 8)

2 tablespoons butter or substitute

3 tablespoons flour

2 cups milk

1/2 teaspoon salt

6 hard-cooked eggs

Parsley

6 toast wedges

Melt the butter, blend in flour, then add milk slowly and stir in seasonings. Cook until thickened. Cut whites of eggs into tiny slivers and add to the white sauce. Pour creamed mixture over toast wedges and top with hard-cooked yolks pressed through a sieve. Garnish with parsley.

The sandwiches may be omitted when the eggs are served, but if desired, they may be made into "fingers" and also served. If the soup is served, they may be placed on the plate along with it.

A cake that will do the job nicely for the younger generation is this one made with hot milk, eggs and only a little shortening. It may be frosted prettily with a confectioner's icing, moistened with orange juice and flavored with grated orange rind. Flute it through a pastry rosette tube and don't forget to write happy birthday across it and use candles.

Hot Milk Sponge Cake

4 egg yolks

1 1/2 cups sugar

1/2 cup boiling milk or water

1 1/2 cups cake flour

1/4 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon lemon extract

4 stiffly beaten egg whites

Beat egg yolks until very thick; add sugar gradually and continue beating. Add milk; mix well and add sifted dry ingredients. Mix until smooth and add extract. Fold in egg whites. Bake in an ungreased cake pan in a slow (325 degree) oven for one hour. Invert pan to cool, then frost.

Birthday Party Menu (For Children 5 to 6)

Creamed Chicken in Toast Cups

Green Peas

Carrot Slices

Ice Cream and Birthday Cake

Beverage

You may use the recipe for creamed eggs, and use chicken. The green peas may be mixed with the chicken or served separately. The carrot slices may be raw or cooked and served with the peas. Use the same cake as suggested for the first menu.

Birthday Party Menu (For Children over 7)

Lamb Chops on Toast or Hamburgers on Broiled Tomato Slices

Potatoes Au Gratin Green Beans

Ice Cream with Sauce or Crushed Fresh Berries

Birthday Cake

Milk

If you serve lamb chops, it's a good idea to have them boned when you give them to the younger children. They're more healthful, too, if they're broiled.

Here's a tasty recipe for hamburgers, if you decide on them for the party:

Broiled Hamburgers (Serves 6)

1 pound ground round or chuck

2 tablespoons chili sauce

1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard

1 teaspoon minced onion

1/4 cup fine bread crumbs

1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

1/4 teaspoon pepper

8 slices bread

8 slices fresh tomato

Combine all ingredients except sliced bread and tomatoes. Spread on slices of bread. Broil for eight minutes at moderate heat, then top with tomatoes which have been broiled at the same time. Serve at once.

FOR YOUR BIRTHDAY CAKE, select a yellow, white or chocolate one depending upon the youngsters' preference. Then frost it with chocolate frosting, as given below. The cake may be put together with marshmallow cream, spread with the frosting. A procession of animal crackers around the sides will delight the children. If animal candle holders are available, use them on top.

Magie Chocolate Frosting

2 squares unsweetened chocolate

1 1/3 cups (1 can) unsweetened condensed milk

1 tablespoon water

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened, condensed milk, then stir over boiling water five minutes until the mixture thickens. Add water. Cool. Spread on cold cake. This recipe makes enough frosting for the top and sides of two (nine-inch) layers.

Released by WNU Features

What can you do with those sliced tomatoes? Use them in meat loaf or meat patties or as a sauce base for flavoring other meats. Or stew and sieve them and use for soup.

Is there a dab of applesauce in the refrigerator? Cook it into the youngsters' morning farina or use it in an applesauce cake.

Never toss away those delicious fruit juices from canned fruit. Thicken with cornstarch and use as pudding sauce or as liquid for gelatin desserts and salads.

Cold leftover rice will do a big job in many things. Combine with fruits and use as a dessert. Or mix with meat and stuff peppers or cabbage.

Rice also can be combined with marshmallows (cut), crushed pineapple and whipped cream for delicious dessert.

Split leftover biscuits and muffins, toast and butter, then sprinkle with cinnamon sugar. They're delicious for lunch or breakfast!

Beets left from dinner can be chilled, then sliced and pickled.

Butterflies Flit Across Atlantic

LONDON—If you happen to see a butterfly flutter by with a license plate attached to its tail, run to the phone and put in a trans-Atlantic call to T. Bainbridge Fletcher in London, England.

He is probably the guy who attached the license.

The licensing scheme is Fletcher's own project. He hopes to learn more about the migratory habits of butterflies.

Up to the last report no Fletcher-licensed butterfly is known to have strayed more than 50 miles but don't discount the possibility of a butterfly flying the Atlantic.

A brightly colored American monarch was snared in the autumn of 1932.

This ocean flier was promptly caught in England by Sir Beckwith Whitehouse, a great butterfly man, and eventually sold for $41.

Since that time 80 other butterflies have crossed the ocean, all west to east, according to Dr. D. B. Williams, who probably knows more about butterflies than any other man alive.

All Williams' ocean fliers are monarchs. Williams has discovered they migrate 2,000 miles, spending the winter in Florida and the summer in Canada.

Butterflies have more sense than fact, he says, he is amazed at the way butterflies stay on course despite winds, the monarchs breezing along at a steady 16 miles an hour.

At this top speed a monarch crosses the ocean on the great circle route in about 4 1/2 days.

Prospector Who Found Gold Mine Searches For Peace and Quiet

MINNEAPOLIS.—John Laskowsky, 59, a prospector, came here from Arizona to get away from the people who, he said, have driven him mad since he discovered a gold mine that might yield $25,000 per ton of ore.

He flew here with J. J. Bliss, a Minneapolis metal products manufacturer who took pity on Laskowsky after watching a crowd of people hound him about his gold mine.

"The poor guy was swamped by curious people all the time," Bliss said, "so he left the state guarded by his son and a brother-in-law and came here with me."

Bliss said they were asking geologists from the University of Minnesota and the University of Colorado to go to the mine and examine it.

Laskowsky said he had been panning gold in the Wickenburg, Ariz., area for 15 years before he struck it rich. He had found small deposits often and had supported his family by panning them.

When he finally found the rich lode, Laskowsky said, he packed out $2,500 worth of ore on his back because "if anyone suspected what was going on, I might have got shot."

He showed photostats of the Wickenburg which quoted "Laskowsky's samples are the richest gold ore I've seen in almost a lifetime in the mining industry." He also had documents headed, "State of Arizona Department of Resources" and "United States Mint

Many Infallible Proofs

Grace Noll Crowell

Oh, many there are, but in my heart alone
There are a thousand shining proofs that Christ
Is a living force today, for I have known
The white infallible ones that have sufficed
To blot away all doubt: He is so near
That I can touch Him with my reaching hand;
He is so close to me that I can hear
Him speak the simple words I understand.

"Many infallible proofs," He showed to them
As they walked and talked with Him on His earthly way;
But I have often touched His garment's hem,
And felt His healing power as well as they—
Oh, not alone to them came proof or proof—
He shares my loaf, He lives beneath my roof!

BORROW WISELY

While our business is that of making loans, we realize that we are doing an injustice to an individual when we enable him to borrow beyond his capacity to repay. It means much worry, sleepless nights and possibly outright loss.

Borrow when you must but only for a worthy purpose. And then go to a bank that is just as interested in helping you get out of debt as it is in loaning you the money.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Family Cooperation Cuts Expenses

By Kathleen Norris

Morse would earn the dollar Gus got for helping Dad clean the car every Saturday afternoon.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE story of the Cutter family is worth telling in these days when prices are skyrocketing, when all the governments of the world are concerned with the problems of living conditions and when taxes are higher than they ever were in the world before and the rising tide of national debts indicates that they'll stay high.

George Cutter's salary 10 years ago, when his two older children were babies, was $4,200 a year. The family lived on it nicely and paid for a home that is still comfortable, although in a less desirable neighborhood than it was.

Hazel Cutter is a clever and practical woman. She and her husband worked out a budget and felt themselves free of money anxiety. During the war George's pay went up and now he receives $7,200 a year. Taxes of various sorts reduce this income by about $2,000. This leaves him and Hazel $500 a month on which to manage.

Hazel-Ann, Morse and Shirley-Jane are at expensive ages: Shoes, schooling, car fares, dentistry, laundry. Hazel tries to keep food under $50 a week, but can't always manage it, for the young Cutters are hospitable and often her main dish, planned for at least two dinners, is finished at one. Then she has all the worry of today's good mothers to see that the children get fruit juices, green vegetables, milk and cream. And this doesn't include the lunch money or extra milk and cones — both nourishing, but they count up!

They Begin to Worry

About two years ago the senior Cutters found themselves getting worried, nervous, irritable and unsatisfied, bitten by all those financial terms that fret our lives today. They simply couldn't keep the pace set by the children's needs — movies, cameras, new coats, bicycle mending, radio mending, cleaner, school treats, swim suits and a thousand other claims.

The Cutters are more than sensible and practical people. They always have kept and developed the spiritual side of their lives and, as Hazel's letter says, they "took it to the Lord in prayer." Shortly afterward, they invited the children to a family conference and supplied all three, even "Twitrey," with pads and pencils.

Then George set down his salary and wrote against it the absolute essentials — taxes of all types; gas, electricity and telephone bills, upkeep for the car, his club dues and his lunches. The older children also wrote down these sums and everyone subtracted them.

Then Mother offered a few calculations. Butcher, baker and grocer had their turn. These were subtracted, too. The children were impressed now, but still there was something close to $200 left and they felt that it was a generous margin.

So George deposited that in the bank at the corner and every night the Cutters checked their daily outlay against it. Everything — daily paper, the telephone, the car, tooth paste, films, candy, magazines, carfare, movies, gum — was listed. About the third week in the month the money was gone.

Seek Aid for Child Without Gall Bladder

MARION, IND.—Parents of a 10-month-old child, who was born without a gall bladder, appealed to medical science in a last effort to save their baby's life.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rounds were told by physicians that their daughter, Susan, has only a year to live. After Susan was born an exploratory operation revealed that she had no gall bladder or ducts to carry the bile from the liver.

Susan is unable to digest fats in

TEAMWORK

With the advent of zooming prices and higher living costs, the Cutter family finds that it is unable to keep its books balanced. Their three children are at ages where demands upon the family purse are exceptionally heavy. Fretful and nervous about the bottomless morass of debt into which they are slowly sinking, Mr. and Mrs. Cutter evolve a simple scheme to retain their financial solvency.

At a family conference each member of the family anticipates his needs for the coming month. Grocery, gas, electricity and tax bills are tabulated. When the expected expenditures are deducted from the net monthly income, a comfortable balance of $200 is left. Thus, a complete plan for the ensuing month is outlined.

When the children are convinced that no amount of cajolery will change their parents' stand in the matter, they pitch in to work with enthusiasm and zeal.

"But Mother," said Hazel-Ann in tears, "I have to have my dollar for the school picnic." "But Dad," Morse said, aghast, "if your shoes are right through, gosh, don't you have to get new ones?"

"Not unless the money is there," said the senior Cutters. "But, Mother, you can charge!" "No, Daddy and I never charge!" "But you could this once."

"No, because your dentist bill is coming in, Hazel-Ann, and we haven't paid for the window Morse broke playing ball."

"But do they have to come out of just that one bank!" the children gasped.

"They do, indeed. So now let's just see what we can do." The Cutters calculated what they could do without. Mother would do without Dora's help once a week if Hazel-Ann would iron the flat pieces. Morse would earn the dollar Gus got for helping Dad clean the car every Saturday afternoon. Both would walk the extra half mile to public school next term if Dad didn't mind. Dad didn't mind. Everyone would give up daily dimes for comics, cokes and cones. The children grew eager and almost noisy in their enthusiasm.

That was two years ago. The Cutters still balance the books every night. If George Cutter gets an unexpected commission, every-one shares in the extra money. If illness or any small domestic accident complicates finances the Cutters take to cheaper meals for a while. And Hazel Cutter is a genius when it comes to vegetable dinners, stews, minces and dried fruit desserts.

No, it wasn't easy or always agreeable and serene. What is? But the older Cutters are solvent and they sleep nights. And the younger Cutters are learning the value of money and not hearing financial battles going on over their heads. And that's something.

Who Owns Wedding Gifts?

DECATUR, Ill. — Taking issue with some etiquette authorities, Judge Martin E. Northland denied the claim of Mrs. Edith Greenberg to $550 worth of wedding presents.

She asked for them as she obtained a divorce from her husband. Judge Northland commented that an authority on etiquette said wedding gifts belong to the wife, "but she cannot be accepted as a legal authority." He ruled that the presents belonged to both.

Circuit Judge Philip Elliott of Flint described the fine as ordinary and told Judge Murphy, "I believe you would prefer that I treated your case like any other."
The maximum sentence under the law is 90 days in jail and a $100 fine. In addition, Judge Murphy faces a mandatory suspension of his driver's license for at least 90 days.

Shale Resources in West May Alleviate Oil Shortage
RIFLE, COLO. — Vast resources of oil shale in the mountainous West may be utilized in a program to ease America's concern over oil shortages.
The problem has been to get out the oil and make it pay in competition with much cheaper, higher grade petroleum. Extraction methods were difficult and costly.

Railroad Stops Passenger Service for One Woman
ROCHESTER, N. Y.—No longer will the New York Central Railroad maintain its Adams Central station for the benefit of a Rochester stenographer.
Trainmaster Frank Stafford said he received a public service commission order approving discontinuance of the station.
Stafford testified at a hearing that one train stopped each morning to take Miss Lois Elmes to her work in Rochester and another train stopped nightly to drop her at her home.
He said Miss Elmes was the only passenger riding between the two communities.

Pork Is Most Popular Meat Dish on American Table; Beef second

Pork Estimated to Have Been Domesticated 2900 B.C.

NEW YORK. — According to the American Meat Institute, the per capita consumption of pork in the U. S. last year was 70.9 pounds, compared with 68.6 pounds of beef.
Nutritional experts say the two animals are about equal in food value except that pork, if properly cooked, has about 10 times as much thiamin, or vitamin B1.
One pound of bacon contains 3,000 calories. Pigs' stomachs are a great source of pepsin and their glands are used for making pharmaceutical preparations.
Swine were learned as scavengers before people learned that their flesh was edible. A Chinese scholar estimates that his people first domesticated them about 2,900 years before Christ.

Just for a Laugh

A KING'S jester punned incessantly until the king, in desperation, condemned him to be hanged. However, when the executioners had taken the jester to the gallows, the king, thinking that after all a good jester was not easy to find, relented, and sent a messenger post haste with a royal pardon.

Arriving at the gallows just in time, where the jester stood with the rope already about his neck, the messenger read the king's decree, to the effect that the jester would be pardoned if he would promise never to make another pun. The jester could not resist the temptation of the opportunity, however, for he cackled out:

"No noose is good news." And they hanged him.

FIRE ALARM

Arriving at a strange hotel, a fussy woman thought she'd better know where the fire escape was, so she started exploring. During her tour she opened a door and found herself in a bathroom occupied by an elderly gentleman.

"Oh, I'm sorry," she exclaimed. "I was looking for the fire escape."

Continuing her search, she presently heard the pad of bare feet behind her and a shout made her turn. It was the elderly gentleman, clad in a bath towel.

"Wait a minute!" he gasped. "Where's the fire?"

WAR MANEUVERS

"I understand your daughter is going to be married," a man said to his neighbor. "She seems rather young. Do you think she is ready for the battle of life?"

"She really ought to be," the father said. "She's been in five engagements already."

REALLY COLD

Two mountaineers were complaining about the cold. "Nearest I ever came to freezing," said one, "was when I was holding the lantern for my wife while she cut the kindling."

Cat Stems

The children were having a great deal of fun playing with the young kittens. After a while little Mary came running into the living room in tears.

"Mommy, Jimmy is hurting the kittens. He is holding them up by their stems."

New Look

At last Mike hit it rich. He bet on three horses and they all came in. Bubbling with good news, he rushed home, flung a wad of greenbacks on the table and shouted:

"There, Baby—now at last you can go out and buy some good-looking clothes."

"I'll do nothing of the kind," Mrs. Mike snapped. "I'm going to buy the same kind other women are wearing."

Exhibits A and B

A small retailer in a city had been trying for months to collect an overdue bill. But all his pleas and threats were completely disregarded. As a last resort, he sent a tear-jerking letter accompanied by a snapshot of his little daughter. Under the picture he wrote: "The reason I must have my money."

A prompt reply enclosed a photograph of a beautiful blonde in a bathing suit, labeled: "The reason I can't pay."

Busy As Usual

Mother was showing her two very young daughters the family album, and there was, of course, a photograph of her wedding. When she had nearly finished explaining who the numerous spruce-dressed guests were, the youngest daughter exclaimed perplexedly:

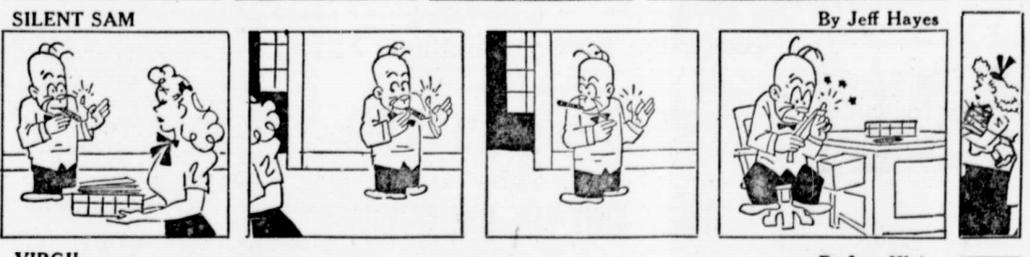

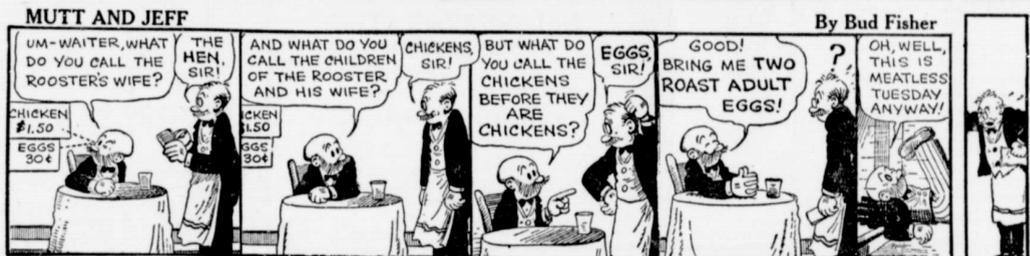

"But mummy, where were we while you were being married?"

And mother had no time to reply before the eldest girl chimed in: "Huh! You might know. We were minding the house as usual!"

"JANEY AND I GET ALONG ALL RIGHT, MOTHER—BUT OUR DOLLS DON'T!"

"I COULD GO ON HEARING HIM THE REST OF THE NIGHT, COULDN'T YOU?"

HOW IT STARTED

WET YOUR WHISTLE: In England, long ago, it was popular to use a cup which had a whistle. The drinker blew into the handle and created a piercing blast whenever the tankard needed refilling. Such cups were popular in the age of the poet Chaucer, who wrote in his Canterbury Tales: "So was her jolly whistle wet."

Partridge's dictionary of slang defines a drinking cup fitted with a whistle as a "whistle cup" and says the laziest drinker capable of blowing the whistle received the cup as a prize.

The same dictionary states that whistle is slang for mouth or throat, thus to wet the whistle is to take a drink.

Battle of Coral Sea Termed First Big Defeat for Japan

In the battle of that island-studded ocean known as the Coral sea, which is near the Solomon Islands and about 1,000 miles northeast of Australia, America's first real victory of the war with Japan was scored. The action occurred on May 4, 1942, and called for deeds of valor as thrilling as any in all American history.

The Coral sea battle was the first great naval defeat ever dealt the imperial Japanese fleets. And yet this battle was fought entirely in the air, by the planes of opposing aircraft carriers.

The ships engaged in this battle never got sight of each other. They slugged it out without firing a single gun at another ship—the first engagement of its kind in history. In this first great victory for the U. S. in this global war the Japs lost more than 15 ships sunk and at least 20 others severely damaged. The action perhaps saved Australia from invasion.

However, America paid a high price for her victory in the sultry Coral sea. In this engagement the aircraft carrier, Lexington, famed ship that laid the foundation of our modern navy's aircraft carrier operations, went to the bottom. This happened on May 7.
