

Craig, 2 1/2 Years, Son of Marvin Martins, Drowns in River Here

Child Toddles Into Deep Water Near Main St. Bridge Monday While Playing With Friend; Resuscitation Attempts Fail

Craig Marvin Martin, 2 1/2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Martin of this village, drowned at about 11:25 a. m. Monday, June 7, in the Milwaukee river in the village park, a short distance south of the Main street bridge.

Little Craig had been playing at the river bank, two blocks from his home, with a neighbor boy, James Sparks, 3 son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sparks. Craig's playmate said the child had toddled into the river, splashed around a little, and then had disappeared under the surface.

Craig's mother, Minerva, last talked to the boy about 10:30 a. m., after which he went to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Martin, a block and a half away, to play. The child and young Sparks were last seen playing in a sandbox there about 11 a. m. From there the boys wandered off to the river nearby. Craig had never wandered farther than his grandparents' home before, although he had gone there many times, and his parents found it hard to believe when the drowning was reported that the victim was their son.

John Matson was working on the roof of a shed at the rear of his blacksmith property across the river and noticed the youngsters at the river's edge shortly before the drowning.

MARTINS EXPRESS THANKS

Words cannot express our deep appreciation and thanks to the members of the West Bend and Kewaskum rescue squads and to all others who assisted in any way in the search, recovery and rescue work at the drowning of our little son, Craig Marvin. From the bottom of our hearts we express thanks and gratitude.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Martin

When he looked again he discovered only one child. He spread the alarm to neighbors, who summoned the Kewaskum fire department rescue squad. They in turn called the West Bend fire department rescue squad to the scene.

The dead boy's father is captain of the Kewaskum rescue squad. He was called from his work at the Kewaskum Utensil company and hurried to the river with other members of the volunteer squad when the drowning was reported. Mr. Martin did not learn until he had reached the scene that the victim was his son. It was not known at first who the victim was as there were quite a number of other little boys residing near the river. The child's parents told the writer that Craig was fascinated by water and loved playing in it.

While boats were being rounded up to search for the victim, some young men half-stripped and jumped into the river in an effort to recover the boy.

Because the river is very deep at that point they were unable to stay under more than a few seconds at a time. The water was dirty and they were unable to see anything under water, so their efforts were to no avail. Five boats were secured and members of the West Bend and Kewaskum rescue squads, Kewaskum firemen and volunteers dragged the river for a period of three-quarters of an hour before the body was recovered. It was finally recovered near the shore, about 8 or 10 feet out from where the boy fell into the water. The body was found in about eight feet of water.

The rescue squads worked on the child about an hour but attempts at resuscitation were to no avail because the child had been in the cool water for too long a period. The squads worked on the boy until the arrival of Washington County Coroner Dr. Raymond Frankow, who pronounced him dead. Members of the West Bend squad who responded to the call and assisted in the recovery and resuscitation attempts were Sheriff Ray Koth, captain; Henry Kirschner Jr., Carl Schneider and Joseph Kremreiter.

News of the drowning spread rapidly and many people flocked to the river banks and bridge to witness the rescue. The drowning was the first in Washington county this season and the first locally in many years. The last drowning victim on the river here was Aloysius Driessel 25 years or more ago.

Craig Marvin was born on Nov. 14, 1945, in Milwaukee. He came to his present home on June 12, 1946, when he was adopted by the Martins. He is survived by his parents and a sister, Dawn Minerva, 8 1/2 months old. Also surviving are his paternal and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sommerfeld of this village.

The Kewaskum Utensil, almost played an unscheduled double header in northern Lakes play Sunday when they battled 15 innings at Germantown before Jim Smith broke up the ball game with a home run blast in the last of the 15th inning to give Germantown an 11-8 victory. Germantown used three twirlers, Fleming, Schoent and Jim Smith and this trio allowed the locals but 9 hits. Tassar was the only man on the Utensils team able to connect on the opponents' hurling. He collected 4 in 7 tries, one of them a triple. Probst got one hit and a good one it was, a long homer. Both Jim Smith and Stevens lashed out 4 hits for the winners, the former's 15th inning home run settling and ending the ball game. Thirteen errors were committed in the losing game, 7 by Kewaskum and 6 by Germantown.

SQUIRE SQUARE
"I AM NOT SAYING ANYTHING MORE. I FIND IT DOESN'T DO ANY GOOD," ASSERTS GENERAL EISENHOWER. THAT PROVES HE'S NO POLITICIAN.

Special Delivery Letter:

Dear Eric Johnston:
You could have knocked me over with a gangster scenario when I read in the paper that you were not only chairman of the National Conference on Family Life in America but that at its Washington meeting you made an impassioned speech calling on everybody to rally and fight for the protection of American family life and to keep the young on the right paths. This was because I was under the impression you were also the top man in the movie industry, the one fellow in the country in a swell position to protect the home and to keep the kids from getting too many films blueprinting murder and crime techniques. But this must be some other Johnston and I am glad I realized the mistake. I hate to go off half-cocked.

Well, your fine speech certainly roused me and when you told the delegates from all over the country in a straight from the shoulder talk that the protection of the American home was a paramount issue of the day I felt like cheering.
You appealed to the National Conference on American Family Life to find ways to help the family strengthen itself and you stirred fathers and mothers everywhere by your deep interest.
There is no greater threat to the American home and to the future of this nation than the present alarming crime trend among children. In one day the papers carried the story of three 12-year-olds who waylaid and shot a citizen in the back; of a half dozen school children who riddled a teacher's home with bullets from Winchester, and of an 11-year-old child "shot by six boys who mistook him for a member of a rival gang."

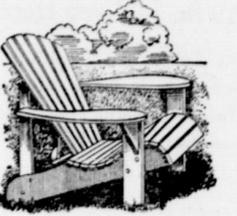

Where do the kids get such ideas? The idea of getting armed to the teeth and doing some bumping off is not natural to any child and it is not taught in any home. Mr. Johnston, Everybody is with you in your realization of the despair and sorrow felt around American firesides as such things go on and we are so glad you see the situation so clearly.
Will you forward a copy of your speech to the Eric Johnston who has that big job in Hollywood and who could do so much so easily to protect the firesides and keep the kids from learning criminal ways?
Yours truly
Elmer
P.S.—Where do you speak next and could you arrange to get the other Eric on the same platform?

Build This Set of Lawn Furniture Yourself.

If in need of lawn furniture, build it yourself and save money. Full Size patterns are available that simplify building the matching chairs and settee illustrated above. A smaller size chair, suitable for children two to eight years of age, can also be constructed from a pattern. Youngsters will be happy to join the family circle if they have a chair they can call their own. Nothing seems to be quite so important to the young ones as having things "just like Dad's".

The Full Size Woodworking Pattern provides a complete list of materials needed, step by step directions and full size patterns for cutting each part. It's the dress pattern idea applied to the flat surface of lumber. No special tools or skill are required. All the materials specified by each pattern are stock size and readily available at lumber yards everywhere. So, for fun over a weekend, build one or more of these pieces. Get the youngster to help. Have him sandpaper each piece, let him hold the pieces as you drill holes. Explain why you use glue and screws at every joint to hold parts together and to keep moisture out. If he's lent a hand building this chair you'll find him taking considerably better care of it.

Materials for two chairs can be purchased for less than one chair costs ready made. Make adult size chairs from Pattern No. 32 and a matching settee from Pattern No. 33. Child size chair is Pattern No. 32. Send 25c for each pattern No. 32. Pattern No. 132. Send 50c for Pattern No. 33 to East-Build Pattern Company, Department W, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Indian Logic

A TOURIST noticed a lazy Indian chief lolling at the door of his wigwam.

"Chief," remonstrated the tourist, "why don't you get a job in a factory?"

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, you could earn a lot of money. Maybe 30 or 40 dollars a week."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked hard and saved your money, you'd soon have a bank account. Wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For heaven's sake!" shouted the exasperated tourist. "With a big bank account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more..."

"Not working now," pointed out the chief.

A MYSTERY

Upon being offered some roast chicken, Sam accepted a drumstick.

"Now, Sam, would you like some of this nice stuffing?" asked his mother.

"No, thank you," he replied. And after a thoughtful moment added, "And I don't see why the chickens eat it either."

WORLD WISE

A old farmer was talking to his hired hand.

"I don't hold with all this new-fangled stuff they're teaching the kids in school nowadays," he said. "My kid came home the other day and said they taught him that the world was round."

"But the world is round," said the hired man.

"See there!" said the old farmer. "They've even got you believing it."

CIGAR SHORTAGE

First tramp: "This is the first cigar I've had in three weeks."

Second tramp: "What's been the trouble?"

First: "Had lumbago and couldn't bend over."

Modest Wish

A man, frantic to locate a place to live, asked a naturalist if he knew where he could find a house.

The naturalist replied: "House? Boy, you're getting soft. Why don't you live out in the open air, let old Mother Nature cover you with a blanket of stars, and have the blue firmament above as a roof?"

"Frankly," said the man, "I had in mind something a bit smaller."

They Serve A Purpose

"Tell me," said an old gentleman, drawing little Johnny out with good-natured teasing, "what are little boys good for, anyhow?"

Johnny considered the question thoughtfully, then sagely replied, "Well, we're good to make men out of."

A Bit Slim

A disreputable-looking character waylaid a member of a swanky club as he stepped into his car.

"Just gimme a penny, mister," he whined, "I'm starving."

The member of the club obliged, but could not help remarking: "I'm afraid you won't be able to buy much food for a penny these days."

"It's not for food," said the tramp. "I ain't had a bite now for six days, and I want to weigh myself!"

Adam and Eve

A woman flees from temptation but a man just crawls away in rosy anticipation that it will overtake him.

Mild Protests

"What would you do if I tried to kiss you?" he asked.

"Yell for father," she quickly retorted.

He gulped nervously. "I thought your father was out of town."

"He is," she sweetly replied.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
Teach your puppy to stand still and have his feet wiped before he comes in the house. This takes time and patience, but eventually pays dividends by minimizing muddy tracks on a clean kitchen floor; children can sometimes be taught to wipe their own feet, too.

Corn meal will soak up oil or grease on basement or garage floors if spread over grease and allowed to stand for a day or two. Then sweep up corn meal; repeat, if necessary.

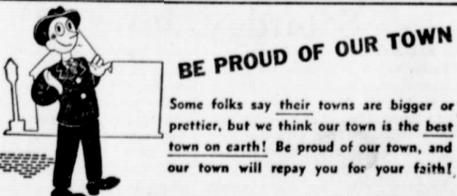

Do not remove the paperlike covering known as the "felt" from a leg of lamb before roasting. This covering keeps the meat juicier, helps to hold its shape, and permits the meat to roast in less time.

When sewing by hand, thread several needles before starting to sew and you will save time and patience by not having to stop and thread a needle every few minutes.

A plain cork dipped in scouring powder cleans and polishes steel knives and hardware in a jiffy.

Give your old tractor THAT NEW-CAR FEEL!

LIGHT FROSTS DAMAGED FRUIT CROP PROSPECTS

The light frosts occurring on several mornings since May 7, no doubt did some damage to plum, cherry, and apple trees that were in bloom. In general the damage was light and fruit growers should continue with the usual orchard spray program.

FARM FROLIC PROGRAM ON STATION WIGA, MADISON

Radio station WIGA, Madison, is planning to include a farm frolic program to be presented at 6:20 a. m. on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings. This program will list and put on the air, without charge, the time, place, and program of any farm group or farm organizations.

FIGHT ON NOXIOUS WEEDS BEGUN IN EARNEST

Weeds must be destroyed, declared Henry Lanz, state weed and seed enforcement officer, in his talk to the county weed commission on town chairmen and more than thirty farmers who own and operate weed spraying machinery. Mr. Lanz pointed out that it was against the law to permit noxious weeds to go to seed and spread to new areas. It is the duty of the weed commissioner to notify land owners that they must cut such weeds. Failure on their part to do so gives the weed commissioner the right to enter any premises and cut noxious weeds, the cost of such service to be charged against the property as a part of the tax roll.

George Briggs, weed specialist of the College of Agriculture, discussed the use of the various forms of 2, 4-D as a destroyer. He cautioned farmers and spray operators against its use on grain fields with alfalfa or red clover seedlings. 2, 4-D should only be used on such fields if the grain crop is tall and dense enough to keep the spray solution from coming into contact with the legume seedlings.

The meeting was concluded with an explanation of the weed control program carried out in the county during 1947 and the results obtained. Herbicides can be eradicated with proper spraying, said E. E. Skalsky, county agricultural agent, and cited spray work done on several miles of roadside in Ha-Cord township where good results had been obtained. More than 50 farmers in Washington county have purchased power weed sprayers to combat the Canada thistle and other serious weeds.

KEEP WASHINGTON COUNTY FARMS GREEN

The growing interest in grassland agriculture in Washington and other Wisconsin counties is emphasized by the number of farmers who are keeping more acres in alfalfa and clover each year. There are a number of farms in Washington county upon which no corn or cultivated crop is planted. Silos are filled with protein rich alfalfa or red clover. Good grass silage can be made either with or without the addition of a preservative. A partial wilting of the hay before ensiling gives good results in almost all cases. Well cared for and well managed pastures return a high return for the labor and capital invested. Adherence to the following three rules will increase the value of any pasture:

- (1) Permit the grass to make a good growth before turning livestock out on it to graze.

(2) It's still not too late to apply a good nitrogen rich fertilizer like ammonium nitrate broadcast at the rate of about 100 lbs. per acre.

(3) Divide the pasture into three fields and rotate grazing. Grazing pastures too short greatly reduce forage growth. When pastures get short during the summer months, supplementary feeding should be practiced.

LADINO CLOVER CERTIFICATION RULES

Often growers of Ladino clover seek for certification services after it is too late to give such service. Definite rules have been set up for seed certification. They should be closely followed. The more important rules are as follows:

- (1) Any clean seed may be used for planting the production fields.
- (2) No white clover may be grown on this farm where certified Ladino seed is being produced.
- (3) The Ladino must not be planted on a field which was in hay or pasture the year previous.
- (4) Each field shall be inspected during the blossoming stage.
- (5) Any Ladino seed field must be at least 40 rods distance from a white clover field and 20 rods from hay lands or pastures containing much white clover. Also other hayland must be separated by a distance of at least ten feet.
- (6) A tolerance of not more than 5% white clover will be allowed in certified Ladino seed.

WEED COMMISSIONERS MEET IN COURT HOUSE FRIDAY

A meeting of all township, village and city weed commissioners was held in the circuit court room of the county court house on Friday morning, May 15. The meeting started at 9:00 a. m. Henry Lanz, state weed control supervisor, explained various provisions of the state weed law. George Briggs, agronomist at the College of Agriculture, discussed the use of 2, 4-D in a spray program on farms, roadsides, vacant lots and along railroad property. County Agent E. E. Skalsky explained the county weed control program for 1948.

This meeting offered an excellent opportunity for those who expect to operate weed sprayers this year to receive information and guidance in the use of 2, 4-D.

FRUIT MEETINGS TO BE HELD

Two meetings to explain cultural practices for small fruit growing were held on Thursday and Friday afternoon, May 13 and 14. The Thursday meeting was held at the Mrs. Jacob Holl farm, Germantown township. The meeting on Friday, May 14, was at the home of Mrs. H. Dekkar, Barton village. Both meetings started at 1:30 p. m.

Most adapted varieties to plant, pruning methods, insect and disease control, and general care and management of small fruit culture was stressed at these meetings.

E. E. SKALSKY, COUNTY AGENT

Complete records are extremely important for improving farm animals.

according to A. D. Chapman, livestock breeding specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Crop reporters around the state say that farmers in Wisconsin last fall plowed less than 6 per cent of the cropland they intend to use for crops this year.

More than 50 Wisconsin counties were represented by the 170 young farmers recently graduated from the farm short course at the University of Wisconsin.

Wisconsin farmers may find themselves with a record breaking two million or more acres of alfalfa by 1949, predicts L. F. Graber, agronomist at the University of Wisconsin.

SERIES OF 4-H CLOTHING PROJECT MEETINGS HELD

Some of the newer methods of clothing construction were presented to 4-H clothing leaders and junior leaders this week at a series of clothing project meetings held in various parts of the county. Use of carbon transfer paper, tracing wheels, stitching gauges, as well as how to stay stitch "corn" and the method of tying knots with the sewing machine were discussed and demonstrated at the meetings by Mrs. Owen B. Daluse, county home agent.

Places and dates of the meetings were as follows: Tuesday, June 1—8:00 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Wm. Kuhn, Rockfield; Thursday, June 3—8:00 p. m. at the Hartford city hall, Hartford; Friday, June 4—8:00 p. m. at the West Bend court house, West Bend.

Acting together with dairy farmers across the nation, Wisconsin dairy farmers through dairy plants will set aside one cent a pound on butterfat (or its equivalent in milk) during the month of June. This action is taken to provide for a year 'round program of dairy farmer advertising, merchandising and research. Thirty days in June provide for twelve months' business activity in expanding the markets for Milk, Butter, Cheese, Ice Cream, and all dairy foods. It's a business program designed by dairy farmers and for dairy farmers. Make sure that the dairy plant purchasing your cream or milk does its part.

HOW CALF LOSSES CAN BE AVOIDED
American farmers are losing many more calves than they need to. In fact, today's annual total of calf deaths could be reduced sharply if in giving it the right start. The maternity stall should be clean, well-ventilated, dry, and adequately bedded.
After this, common calfhood diseases such as scours and pneumonia are among the chief threats. White scours is one of the worst hazards. This disease generally attacks calves less than five days old, and is caused by a germ commonly found in many farm buildings. The best preventive, therefore, is to be sure that barns and lots are clean and sanitary. If scours develop, prompt veterinary care is essential if the animal is to be saved. The calf should be isolated and its quarters disinfected, to protect other calves.
Pneumonia is another important cause of calf losses. This may be caused by infection, parasites, or chilling. Clean, dry, properly ventilated quarters are very helpful in preventing it. Treatment with some of the newer drugs is producing excellent results in some calf pneumonia cases, veterinarians report. This disease, however, may offer many complications, and the exact measure to be used depend on the type, and the local circumstances.
Prevention... sanitation and care, are the best ways to guard against calf losses. They are easy, if the owner will just take the pains to observe them.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Israel Registers Diplomatic Victory By Agreeing to 'Cease Fire' Order; Lewis Quits First Coal Conference

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

PALESTINE: Diplomacy

What the Jews of Israel lacked in armed strength to resist Arab attacks against their new state they had made up in shrewd diplomacy.

It was just possible that the decisive blow of the Palestine war was struck when Israel, foreseeing military defeat, agreed to order its army to cease fire on all Palestine fronts if the Arabs would do the same.

That development, which took place as the battle for Jerusalem entered its sixth day in an unholy atmosphere of rattling guns, bursting shell and violent death, made the most favorable impression possible in the United Nations.

Thus having the onus of prolonging the Palestine fighting shifted suddenly to their shoulders alone, the Arabs were put on the spot in the U. N. and in world public opinion.

It was a clever diplomatic maneuver on the part of the Jews but, at least at the outset of this new line of circumstances, the Arabs were having none of it. They reiterated their determination to wrest all Palestine from control of the Jews.

Actually, all the Jews had done was to issue a surprise cease fire order in compliance with a U. N. security council request that the fighting be brought to a halt. Neither the security council nor anyone else had expected the request to be observed.

But that put it up to the Arabs who, faced with a deadline set by the U. N., were having trouble deciding whether or not to cease fire.

If they stopped fighting now they would have done so without attaining their prime objective — the revoking of Israel's claim to sovereign statehood. If they continued the war beyond the deadline they would be laying themselves open to possible security council sanctions of the economic variety.

SECURITY: Desperate Plight

President Truman came up with another sound plank to reinforce his campaign platform when he demanded that congress overhaul and broaden the social security program.

To relieve the "desperate" plight of the aged and needy in this inflationary period he called for a 50 per cent increase in old age insurance benefits and asked that 20 million more persons be protected.

He offered a five point program and said he wanted quick action on it. For three years, the President pointed out with some irritation, similar requests on his part have been shunted aside. This time he was asking:

- 1. A 50 per cent increase "at least" in old age and survivors' insurance benefits; allowing pensioners to earn up to $40 a month instead of $35 without losing benefits; raising of the tax rate from 1 per cent to 1 1/2 per cent next January 1.
2. Extension of coverage to farm and domestic workers, the self-employed and others not now covered.
3. Broadening of unemployment insurance to cover employees of small firms (having fewer than eight workers), federal employees and others.
4. Disability insurance to protect workers from loss of earnings caused by sickness and injuries.
5. Increased federal benefits to match state aid for dependent children, the needy, aged and blind.

Whatever his motives in presenting the problem of inadequate social security benefits again at this time, Mr. Truman did have a good, even a noble, point.

"People whose sole income is from social security payments have just about reached the breaking point. All of them face a desperate struggle in trying to procure bare necessities at present prices."

Both President Truman and the aged and needy were hoping fervently that congress would be able to squeeze social security legislation into the crowded docket it had prepared for the month preceding adjournment.

As for congress itself, it was on the fence again.

ECONOMICS: Wage-Price

While prices continue to climb steadily, wage increases are beginning to show signs of leveling off, says the latest department of commerce report on inflation.

Possibility of a business recession, and with it the prospect for lower prices, vanished like mist in the sun after the foreign aid and military preparedness programs began to take shape in March, the department survey revealed.

During April retail sales, which had started to "flatten out," made a comeback to exceed the previous high set at the end of 1947.

Gaining at the rate of 1.5 million a month over similar 1947 periods, employment is expected to top the 60,079,000 all-time high reached last July. At present more than 58,330,000 Americans are at work.

The department said that commodity prices advanced during April and early May. Farm and food products continued to go up, recovering from the slump.

PALESTINE: Walkout

This photograph of the west end of John L. Lewis going east out of a door is perhaps symbolic of trouble to come in the nation's soft coal mines. First conference between the United Mine Workers and the coal producers on the miners' 1948 contract ended in frustration when Lewis walked out after refusing to seat a representative of the Southern Coal Producers association at the parley.

NO CONFERENCE: Lewis Again

It was all typically Lewisian. "I make the observation that there is now no conference," quoth John L., chief of the soft coal miners, as he walked grandly out on the first meeting to negotiate a new contract between the coal operators and the United Mine Workers.

UMW's present contract expires June 30. Lewis broke up the discussion on 1948 wage agreements when he objected to seating Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers association, at the conference and was outvoted by the operators.

He was not against Moody personally. Officially, his union's position was that the 14 regional organizations which comprise the Southern association must bargain in 14 separate groups, rather than delegate bargaining authority to the all-inclusive association.

According to Lewis' accepted pattern of operation, his balk at the Southern Coal Producers was the opening tactical stroke in his 1948 campaign for an improved miners' contract.

Following that, he could sit back and present the UMW wage demands in his own good time. Then, if the coal operators did not accede, he could call the annual strike.

Lewis knew his position was good. The UMW's recent pension walkout had left the nation's coal reserves seriously depleted. By the time June 30 rolled around soft coal stocks would not yet have been built up to the point where industry could stand a long strike.

Barring unforeseen circumstances, it looked like this would develop into another injunction case. The union still is under an 80 day court injunction prohibiting renewal of the pension strike; but the court might rule that another walkout would be a brand new strike. In that case a new injunction might have to be sought by the government under Taft-Hartley procedure.

HARVEST: European

Europe may look forward to possibly its best year since the war if food production prospects continue to be as favorable as they are right now.

U. S. agriculture department said that the continent will produce a larger part of its food needs this year than it did last year and that the crop outlook was good over most of Europe and the Soviet Union early in May.

Prospects indicate a considerably larger crop of bread grains — wheat and rye — than last year's desperately small one. A severe winter killed most of Europe's winter wheat and rye last year.

European production of bread grains may surpass 1.8 billion bushels, which was the size of the 1946 crop, largest since the war. Production last year dropped to about 1.5 billion bushels, compared with a 2.3 billion average before the war.

Long Voyage

Previous flight range records paled into insignificance when an air force B-36 super bomber flew an unprecedented 8,000 miles non-stop with a dummy bomb load of about five tons. It was aloft for a day and a half.

The B-36 returned to the ground with about 1,200 gallons of gasoline remaining in its tanks, enough to keep it aloft another two or three hours if necessary.

Only comparable achievements of the kind were the highly publicized 4,600-mile trips flown in April by two B-29 superbombers, each carrying a five-ton bomb load.

Manufactured by Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation of Fort Worth, Tex., the B-36 has a four-section bomb bay with the capacity of four railroad freight cars. It is designed to carry its own fighter escort plane or planes which may be released at the target to protect. The plane attained an average speed of 222 miles an hour.

DAIRYING: To a Crisis

While the U. S. dairy industry was busy promoting its 12th annual June Dairy Month for the purpose of selling more milk, butter, cheese and ice cream it also was taking a long, critical look behind the scenes and not liking what it saw.

Industry analysts had spotted what appeared to be a dangerous trend. In its simplest form the trend could be defined as an inexorable increase in the U. S. population.

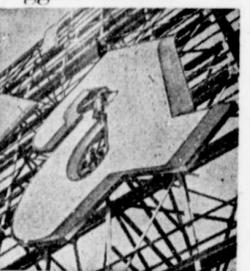

At the root of the problem was a stubbornly entrenched economic condition whose factors were the war, widespread hunger abroad and domestic inflation.

Continuing high prices for beef and veal have been instrumental in sending many dairy cows or potential dairy cows to the slaughterhouse. Too many American dairy farmers have discovered how they could reduce their herds drastically, put more land into money-making grain crops, realize a greater profit and still have more leisure time.

Adding those conditions to the fact that during the past few years the nation has experienced about a 45 per cent increase in its birth rate, the dairy industry came up with a grim conclusion: If these circumstances continue at the present rate, and there is every likelihood that they will, by 1952 the U. S. will be approaching the critical point at which it no longer will be able to produce enough milk to satisfy its own needs.

That, according to some prognosticators, might mean strict rationing in a land which hitherto had literally flowed with milk and honey.

Biggest Switch

Billboard advertising will reach a new spectacular extreme on Chicago's Lake Shore drive this July when the switch is thrown to turn on the lights of the world's largest sign — 114 feet high and 210 feet wide. A mile and a half of neon tubing, illuminating letters 38 to 58 feet high, will flash the name of a spirited distillery which a certain distillery wants everybody to switch to.

POLITICS: The Race

In Oregon, where the last presidential primary of this campaign year was held in an atmosphere of political hoopla, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York was voted more likely to succeed than Harold Stassen.

Whether he would or not remained an open question, but it was certain that his political complexion had taken on a more sanguine hue as a result of the Oregon balloting.

Stassen, who had won spectacular primary victories in Wisconsin and Nebraska over Taft and Dewey, his chief rivals for the GOP nomination, and then had received a borderline setback at the hands of Taft forces in Ohio, at last had suffered a clear-cut defeat.

Oregon wasn't going to do Stassen any good. Having had to buck organized Republican opposition all the way along, he apparently had estimated that his best chance of procuring the nomination lay in building up sufficient prestige and momentum during the primary campaigns to stampede the June 21 convention.

However, he still will go to the national convention with at least 200 delegates pledged to support him on the first ballot. So, for that matter, will Dewey. A total of 548 convention votes is required for nomination.

Headliners

IN RICHMOND, VA. . . . George W. Harvey, winner of the city's safe driving contest, was hailed into court, fined five dollars for driving too slowly.

IN LONDON. . . . Buckingham palace announced some spot news to the press: Princess Margaret Rose had come down with measles.

IN OCEANA, W. VA. . . . A new postmaster was appointed — name of Please Wright.

IN NEW YORK. . . . Magistrate Francis X. Giaccone "heard" 10 deaf mutes plead guilty to charges of loud and boisterous conduct, fined them a dollar each, then wondered how they knew they were guilty.

IN SOMERSET, Pa. . . . A department store, frustrated by contrary spring weather which sent temperatures skidding to 50 degrees, advertised straw hats with earmuffs.

What Price Money?

Proof of the old adage that you need money to make money is being offered this year by the treasury department.

It seems, according to Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, that the cost of printing a fast buck is now up to nine mills per piece, as compared with eight mills last year. The cost is the same, however, for a one, five or 10-dollar bill—or even for a C-note.

WASHINGTON.—The nation, and particularly the nation's capital, where we are highly national and international-conscious, is suffering as never before from the result of memories, good and bad. The Roosevelt epoch produced a rash of reminiscences—200 books about FDR, 32 of them just since his death.

Currently we have with us the Churchill war memoirs, as they are called, although when I was young and read "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," I thought a memoir was something printed after a man's death. Of course Sherlock came back, so I suppose that legitimizes the terminology.

Winston Churchill was a great diary-keeper, as was his fellow-countryman, Samuel Pepys, whose stuff was so hot that the British government still hasn't released all of it. Franklin Roosevelt never kept a diary. His secretary of the treasury made up for this lack.

Henry Morgenthau assembled 900 volumes of about 350 pages each, totaling about 80 million words. The task must have kept three stenographers a day working in relays. He had the diaries bound, some said at government expense, although I daresay he paid for it in the end.

His was a lazy method. He didn't have to depend on his memory. He had a dictograph in his office, and every word spoken in the supposed sanctity of his chamber in the treasury, overlooking the wide sweep of lawn and park that flows down to the Potomac, was duly transcribed. When the news of this epic achievement became public a terrible howl resulted and some of the volumes were returned to the government archives. What a man!

I wonder if diary-keepers are normal. I would hate to admit to a psychologist that I have kept a diary for years, even decades. I still keep one. I don't know how long ago I started, but I still have one slim, green volume, dated 1904, in my possession. The year 1904—that was just 15 years after another entry, not in my diary, but in my father's (diary-keeping is congenital) which stated "fine boy arrived 5 p. m." I may say the "fine" is the natural exaggeration of a proud parent who didn't know what he was in for.

At any rate, if diary-keeping is used against me, I have two outs—hardly anything, even of mild interest, is or will be recorded on the faded pages of my journals, and secondly, because I write such a vile hand that I can decipher only a few lines here and there myself.

My mother should have most of the blame for my bad handwriting, just as she is to blame for the fact that I can write at all. She was herself a writer and, unique as it was in those good old days, she possessed a typewriter, a stubby little affair, affectionately known as "the Blick."

Of course it was quite improper to expose a child of pre-school age to a typewriter. It was not my mother's fault. Back in the '90s, some of us weren't vaccinated for anything but smallpox. I was too young to understand that at the time, and since typewriters were as rare as porcelain bathtubs in a city of 20,000, who could guess their evil influence? I suppose I oughtn't to accuse my parents because I became thoroughly inured to the use of the typewriter long before I could balance a pencil, and this fact did my handwriting no good.

At that time what was called "Spencerian" still was taught in the schools of New York state, but very few mastered it even without the curlicues and shading of earlier days. And just as I was getting so I could make the wobbly "M's" and the terrible "q's", along came a new Pharaoh to my scholastic Egypt and introduced the "vertical system." That was probably where my uneducation really began. I unlearned the Spencerian all right, but I was never able to go vertical.

Nothing Important Is Ever Entered But to get back to diary-keeping, at least my diary-keeping. The illegibility of the entries in my diaries isn't really as important as the unimportance of their contents.

Let me illustrate from one with a worn leather cover which I have at hand. It is dated 1914, a good year for a diary, but a bad diary for the world. The record of war days should have been chronicled dramatically as the beginning of the end of an epoch, an epoch which breathed its last in the midst of another war. But did my record do that? Let's look at June 29, 1914.

"Not much doing. I don't seem to be able to save my money." . . . October 8: "The Belgian secretary appears, we consume quantities of beer and tells me his life story—a bore, but business." (Just the weary routine of the hard-working reporter)

Fortunately my space is running out. Nothing is more interesting to write or read about than oneself. Nothing is less interesting to anyone else. But I wish to prophesy my point, namely, that no matter how important diary-keeping may have been for the Churchills, the Marco Polos or the Plutarchs, and perhaps therefore as harmful as important, mine was neither.

And I marvel that any newsman, press or radio, who lives in the midst of alarms, who "was there" when most things happened and told all in breathless detail via the copy-desk or microphone to millions of wide-eyed readers or listeners would ever think of writing it down afterward.

Note for instance a recent diary entry for June 5, 1947, which a brittle clipping of even date declares not only vibrantly but with perfect inexactitude "may go down in history as the day of the beginning of the real peace after World War II." (Lest you have forgotten, that was the day Secretary of State George C. Marshall proposed at Harvard university a new approach to European rehabilitation which later became the Marshall plan, then E.R.P. and finally the economic cooperation administration.)

Note my diary for that date: "A meeting of the Association of Radio News Analysts. Kallenborn to dinner."

Do we find the entry: "YESTERDAY ARCHDUKE FERDINAND WAS ASSASSINATED AT SARAJEVO?" We do not. We find this:

29. Lundi S. Pierre, S. Paul Bought Berlitz Greek Rustom Bey (The book was purchased in Paris, where the year's record began. The entry was made in Washington.)

While the ancient throne of Hapsburg was receiving the blood bath that was to sweep a half dozen rulers into oblivion I was buying a Berlitz textbook for the purpose of studying some foreign language—I have no idea which one except that it was one I never learned. Rustum Bey, I remember was the Turkish ambassador whom I had to interview.

In all justice, it may not be entirely the fault of my diary-making that I didn't record the assassination of the archduke. Nobody in America took the tragedy very seriously. At that time few Americans expected much else from Europe's royal families but assassinations or less respectable peccadilloes.

I ought to have known better than that since I had been helping cover the French foreign office for the two years preceding. But I had been drenched with war talk over there and had shaken it off when I returned. Europe almost immediately shrank into a dreamy domain of picture-book memory with no connection whatever with my work-a-day world.

Later on, to be sure, there is evidence that I, on second thought, felt I hadn't done my diary justice insofar as Ferdinand was concerned. But I always was feeling that way about my diary and never doing anything about it.

As PEGLER Sees It

By Westbrook Pegler Released by WNU Features

TO DATE in my revelations of political influences at work behind the bland, Republican front of the New York Herald Tribune I have stayed up on my toes, boxed them fancy and used the ring. Now we stand flat-footed. THIS IS NOT REPARTEE. THIS IS SERIOUS.

In Madison Square Garden a preliminary speaker, warming up the Communist crowd for Henry Wallace, incited a riot at the Roxy theater close by, where a film was showing called "The Iron Curtain." This is an anti-Communist film. It is inflated and inflated by far to redress the record of calculated assistance of the movie industry to the treason of the Hollywood Muscovites over many years.

The riot against the film had been advertised in advance by the Communists so frankly that the New York police were on the alert.

The preliminary speaker at the garden was a notorious thief and slacker, a nimble opportunist in religious matters and a preacher of the Communist policies and program. He is known by the alias of William S. Gailmor. His original name was William Margolis. He changed to Gailmor after he had been caught stealing automobiles in New York.

Gailmor, or Margolis, first came to notice as a self-acknowledged "famous" commentator in 1941. By 1944 he was making propaganda in a local radio around New York for Roosevelt and the fourth term. The investigation was difficult and I was unable to denounce him until after election. I then presented his criminal and psychiatric history to Ed Noble, president of the old Blue network, a New Dealer who did very well by himself in the radio business. Noble called in his "personnel" chief, who produced a pedigree filled in by Gailmor. IN THE SPACE SLUGGED "RELIGION." THE ANSWER WAS "NONE."

About 24 hours later, learning that he was discovered, Gailmor confessed his past to his employers but said he could not be a Communist because he was a very religious man. He had, in fact, been educated to be a rabbi but had abandoned that career after his arrest. He escaped a prison term by accepting a commitment as a victim of a mental disorder called a "compulsion neurosis."

When Henry Wallace set out on his northwestern tour last winter, Gailmor bobbed up in the troupe in the role of money-raiser. He discoursed a patter to loosen up the suckers and he and his assistants were using a large milkcan to carry off the collections.

The New York Herald Tribune had a reporter along who wrote a special story about Gailmor. It was amusing and altogether favorable. It made no mention of his communist associations or his criminal past.

On the night of the riot at the Roxy theater Gailmor said from the platform of Henry Wallace's rally in the garden: "A few blocks down the street they are going to show a fascist picture that should be boycotted by every right-thinking person. So you know what to do."

At the close of the rally a screaming mob of 2,000 Communists went to the Roxy. There was disorder and several persons were injured. NOW TO SURROUND THE HERALD TRIBUNE.

Last October Gailmor made a local broadcast in New York with a guest artist who was Joseph G. Herzberg, city editor of the Herald Tribune. Herzberg had written a part of and edited a new book called "Late City Edition."

In his introduction, Gailmor praised Albert Maltz, one of 10 Hollywood rewrite hands indicted for refusal to answer before the Thomas committee whether they were or ever had been members of the Communist party. He also quoted Maltz in defense of himself and the other nine as "the conscience of mankind."

Gailmor introduced Herzberg in extravagant terms. This thief and renegade of both his religious faith and the profession of journalism turned out to be an old friend of the city editor of the Herald Tribune, which professes to be a Republican paper. Gailmor called the city editor "Joe." Herzberg called him "Bill." The Herald Tribune received the doubtful compliment of recognition by Gailmor as "a great newspaper." That would lift the H-T to the level of the Daily Worker and Pravda in his estimation.

As a test of the truth of that statement and of the Herald Tribune's conduct these facts are submitted: Herzberg is a friend of a notorious rogue. Herzberg's reporter, in covering "faithfully" the story of Gailmor's work collecting money for Henry Wallace on tour, completely withheld the most informative facts. Herzberg's reporter did not mention any of the great volume of information which unmistakably associates the city editor's friend with a number of Communist fronts.

THE FICTION CORNER

MESSAGE FOR THELMA

By ROBERT ARTHUR

TOM's note said that he would come at 11 for his things. By 10:30 Anne had packed all of his personal belongings into the three pigskin bags and the wardrobe trunk, which she dragged empty into the foyer of the apartment and filled there. Tom was never punctual. He might come half an hour early or half an hour late, and she wanted to have everything ready in time so that she could be out when he came.

She did not linger over the packing or allow herself to feel anything, even when she put the set of cuff links and studs which had been her wedding gift to him and the silver-mounted military brushes she had given him on their first—and only—anniversary into the last bag.

I wonder if anyone else in New York uses military brushes, she caught herself thinking. I never knew any other man who did. A brief mental picture came to her of Tom before the mirror, making a determined effort with the brushes to force his sandy hair to stay in place. Then as quickly as it had come she banished it.

Surgical operations should be neat and clean. Even if it was something you were cutting out of your heart you mustn't linger over it.

Only when the three bags were standing beside the trunk, in their scuffed sturdiness, strangely reminding her of Tom, did she have time to feel the emptiness within her. As if, in emptying the closet and bureau of his things, she had taken something from inside herself and packed it too.

To escape the curious numbness which gripped her, she turned swiftly and went for her hat and coat. In getting them from the closet beside the front door she saw the large pad which hung there where Thelma, the maid, could not help seeing it both on arriving and leaving. Thelma was a good worker, but forgetful. "Thelma—Please defrost refrigerator," said last Thursday's note, reminding her that this was Saturday and Thelma would do no marketing for the weekend unless told. But Thelma might be gone before Anne returned, and—

Anne hesitated. Then, do everything just as always, she told herself. If you let go now, it'll just hurt worse and longer.

She slipped into her coat, forced herself to put on her hat with care. Then she took up the pencil that was tied to the pad by a red string and tried to think what she would need. Tomatoes, lettuce, oranges, bread, milk, coffee, she thought. Soup maybe. I don't know. I don't care what I eat.

Her fingers were curiously stiff as she wrote carefully, in neat capitals: NEEDED. She underscored the word, drew a line after it, then had just begun to write down the items she wanted Thelma to buy when she heard the elevator begin its humming rise.

Swift panic assailed her. It was early, but it might be Tom. He mustn't find her here. To see him again, not knowing even now what it was that had gone wrong, would be more than she could face. Her carefully maintained self-possession probably would go in a flood of tears and with it the last remnant of her pride, all that she had left, would be stripped from her. She dropped the pencil, leaving the note for Thelma barely begun, ran out the door and down the fire stairs before the elevator could reach her floor.

It didn't stop, after all. But the fear of being caught there by Tom's arrival stayed with her until she was outside and hurrying across to Washington Square. Only when she reached the small park did she slow her pace.

She found a bench in the cool sunshine and sat down. Then, watching the placid pigeons, the screeching children on swings, the mothers pushing carriages and the old men playing checkers, she tried to keep her thoughts turned from what was happening. But it wasn't possible.

Why? The question persisted in asking itself. What went wrong? Why didn't it work out? She'd known it wouldn't be easy. A sports writer, Tom often had to be away for several days, sometimes even for weeks. And the time when he was gone was just a series of empty days and nights in which she missed him so much the sense of his absence was almost a physical ache.

But she'd known how it would be, and knowing, had accepted the job of making their marriage work. She had never fretted or wept when Tom had to be away. She'd kissed him goodbye lightly and welcomed him back in the same spirit. She hadn't clung to him when he left or fussed over him when he returned. Men hated that.

She had never let him guess the horrible loneliness that stayed with her when he was away on an assignment, lest it make him feel guilty for leaving her alone so much. And she'd kept her job, writing store copy, not because she liked or needed it but because it helped fill the days of waiting when he was away.

But she hadn't let the job come between her and the home she was trying to make for him. With the help of Thelma and much forethought, she had kept it running so smoothly the mechanics of housekeeping never had intruded upon the time they did have together. And yet—

She still could not analyze it. Why Tom gradually had become dissatisfied and restless. Had taken to making excuses for staying away even when he was not on an assignment. Then had come the blonde girl, tried to turn, tried to open the door to flee, but his hands caught her. "Anne, we've been fools. Or at least I have. I need you. I know it. I never stopped knowing it. It was just that—you didn't seem to need me."

"Didn't need you, Tom?" In surprise she ceased her blind efforts to release herself, to look up at him in astonishment. "But I do. I've always needed you. The times when you were away—"

And then, without warning, the tears came. It was the first time she ever had let him see her cry. Men hated weepy women, but when the tears were over, something cold washed away.

She dried her eyes on Tom's handkerchief and held her lips up for his kiss. And she knew then, somehow, what he meant. She had made their marriage a thing light and gay—and it had been too light, too gay. With her casual goodbyes and her bright welcomes she had hid her emotions too well. That men hate emotion had been her guiding principle.

But a good marriage has depths. A woman must feel needed; but so must a man, too. In avoiding one extreme she had gone to another.

Tom tried, in awkward sentences, to explain. Tried to tell her about the blonde Marion, whose need for his help and advice had almost made him think that he—But he didn't have to explain. She understood all he said, and more. Only when he finished was she bewildered.

"If you hadn't let me know, though," Tom said then, his square, nicely ugly features twisted in a grin that was tight with the knowledge of how close their escape had been, "if you hadn't put it where I couldn't miss it—"

But she was able to still the question on her lips before it was spoken. For she saw the direction of his look, and followed it to see the message for Thelma which she had begun, directing her to buy tomatoes and other items, but had not stayed to finish. And what the abruptly broken-off message said now, instead was: "NEEDED—TOM."

Then had come the blonde girl,

tried to turn, tried to open the door to flee, but his hands caught her. "Anne, we've been fools. Or at least I have. I need you. I know it. I never stopped knowing it. It was just that—you didn't seem to need me."

Marion something, fresh out of college and trying to be a reporter. And Tom, spending more and more of his time with her until Anne, with her own need for him so strong had, in her disappointment and inability to guess what was wrong between them, provoked that scene which could not be made up.

So now he was taking away his things . . .

Anne looked at her wrist watch. In the turmoil of her thoughts, more than an hour had passed. She rose and thankfully started back toward the apartment. Tom certainly would have come and gone by now. Anyway it was over. She could start rebuilding her life somehow. At least, she was thinking as she put her key into the door, she had kept her emotions in control.

Then she opened the door. And all thought fled. He had not left. His trunk and bags were still there, and he was standing beside them.

"Anne," Tom said, as woodenly she closed the door behind her, holding to the knob for support. "Anne!"

He took a step toward her. His voice was rough with urgency. She

Serve Stuffed Cauliflower for Dinner (See recipes below)

Meat-Shy Meals

IF YOU CAN'T GET the meat variety you want for meals, or if you just want to serve something different, glance over the main dish ideas I've planned for you today. These are all protein-rich foods and will do nicely for a main course either for a luncheon or simple supper. All recipes have flavor-value plus, and many of them will teach you new cookery tricks with foods that are real treats when properly prepared.

If you are serving heavy eaters with these dishes, plan a calorie-rich dessert that will completely satisfy the appetite. These dishes go well with rich, tasty pies, cakes and whipped cream desserts.

THIS CAULIFLOWER DISH makes a complete meal and turns out pretty on a platter when served with broiled tomato halves and choice mushroom caps, also broiled.

Stuffed Cauliflower (Serves 4 to 6)

- 1 large head cauliflower
- 5 tablespoons flour or substitute
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 cups hot milk
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 cup shredded American cheese
- Salt, pepper
- 2/3 cup chopped mushrooms
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- Broiled mushroom caps
- Broiled tomato halves

Cook the cauliflower in boiling, salted water until tender. Melt three tablespoons butter in top of double boiler, blend in flour, then milk, gradually, stirring constantly. When thickened, add mustard, cheese, salt and pepper to taste. Sauté the chopped mushrooms in two tablespoons butter. Add the crumbs and two tablespoons of the cheese sauce. Place the cooked cauliflower on a round platter, spread the flowerets apart and fill with stuffing. Pour remaining sauce on top of cauliflower and garnish the plate with the broiled tomatoes and mushrooms.

Tamale Loaf (Serves 8)

- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 quart canned tomatoes
- 1 1/2 cups corn kernels
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 1 1/2 cups yellow cornmeal
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup ripe olives, seeded and chopped.

Brown onions and garlic in oil. Place in large, heavy pot with tomatoes, corn, chili powder, butter and salt. Mix milk and cornmeal and add. Cook until very thick, about 20 minutes, but stir occasionally being careful not to scorch. Then beat in whole eggs, one at a time. Turn half the mixture into a loaf pan or baking dish. Top evenly with chopped olives and cover with remaining cornmeal mixture. Cover and bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for 45 minutes. Cool slightly in pan. Cut into thick slices and serve with a well-flavored tomato sauce.

The tamale loaf will make a complete meal when served with a tossed green or tossed citrus salad with Roquefort cheese dressing.

LYNN SAYS: Enjoy Garden Vegetables Most By Cooking Them Properly

All cooking of vegetables reduces the Vitamin C content, but tomatoes and potatoes, when baked, manage to retain most of theirs. To insure an adequate supply of this vitamin, it's best to use some fresh fruit, especially citrus, every day.

Use an uncovered kettle for cooking vegetables, and cook only until fork tender.

Green vegetables are best cooked in water that is slightly alkaline. In many sections of the country, drinking water may be decidedly acid. If there is any doubt, add a pinch of baking soda. No water will need any more than this. Most recent studies show that this little soda will not destroy food values.

When overcooked, vegetables will turn brown because of chemical changes in the coloring matter. This ruins fine flavor, attractiveness as well as food values.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Chilled Tomato Juice
- Baked Crab Salad
- Molded Pineapple-Carrot Salad
- Bran Muffins
- Honey Chocolate Cream Pie
- Beverage
- Recipe Given

Add 1/4 cup of the crumbled cheese to each 3/4 cup of well seasoned French dressing.

HERE IS A PERFECTLY DELICIOUS way to prepare that delicacy, egg plant. The tomatoes and cheese add a rich, meaty flavor making this suitable for a main dish.

Egg Plant Parmesan (Serves 6)

- 1 medium-sized egg plant
- Cracker crumbs
- 1 egg, beaten, diluted with 2 tablespoons water
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 onion, chopped
- 2 1/2 cups tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Slice the egg plant into quarter-inch pieces. Peel. Dip in crumbs, diluted egg and in crumbs again. Fry on both sides in a little fat until browned. Season ground meat with salt and pepper. Form into small balls and fry. Cook onions in fat until browned. Add well-drained tomatoes and sugar. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Place a layer of egg plant into a buttered casserole, then the meat balls, and pour over half of the tomato mixture. Cover with remaining egg plant, cheese and tomato mixture. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven for one hour.

Spinach Luncheon Dish (Serves 2)

- 2 strips bacon, chopped
- 1 cup cooked, drained spinach
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon grated American cheese

Cook bacon until crisp, drain off fat. Arrange spinach evenly in skillet over the bacon. Add salt to eggs and pour over spinach. Sprinkle with grated cheese, cover and cook slowly over low heat for five to seven minutes. Serve at once.

"Baked Crab Salad (Serves 6)

- 1 large green pepper, chopped
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 cup finely cut celery
- 1 can crabmeat, shredded
- 1 can shrimp, cleaned
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup bread crumbs, mixed with 2 tablespoons butter

Combine green pepper, onion and celery. Remove all tendons from crabmeat and shred or flake. Remove black line from shrimp and cut in small pieces. Mix fish with vegetables. Add mayonnaise and season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Place in buttered ramekins or in greased baking dish. Cover top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate (350 degree) oven until top is nicely browned, about 30 minutes.

The red color of vegetables is due to their acid, and needs to be kept that way. Tomatoes have enough acid to keep their color, but beets and red cabbage may need a bit of lemon juice or white vinegar in their water to keep red.

Sauces and toppings enhance most vegetables. Cheese and white sauce are old favorites, but you might try mustard sauce with green beans, crumbled bacon and bread crumbs over spinach and hollandaise sauce over asparagus.

When fresh vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and onion which are strong flavored because of their special oils, turn brown or yellow, it is because you are using hard water. To prevent this add a teaspoon of lemon juice to the boiling water. Cook rapidly, uncovered, until just tender.

Yellow vegetables are among the most valuable and stable as far as food value and color retention are concerned. However, do not handle them carelessly to lose food value.

Scientists to Probe Lack of Traffic Problems Among Fish

BIMINI, BAHAMAS.—If fish were people, 300 of them could board a subway train in two minutes without bumping, shoving or rubbing elbows. How do they do it?

That is one of the fish mysteries which scientists hope to solve at the Michael-Lerner marine laboratory here which Sir William Murphy, governor of the Bahamas, dedicated.

Auto Parkers Deposit Foreign Coins in Meters

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Coins of many nations reach the desk of City Treasurer A. N. Wyman, though they're of no help in meeting the payroll. Parking meters here have disgorged coins from Canada, Peru, Argentina, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Ecuador, Palestine, Norway, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, China, Japan, the Philippines, Ceylon, Netherlands East Indies and Turkey.

U. S. Still Holds Contraband Possessions of Enemy Aliens

PORTLAND, ORE.—As an aftermath of World War II, the U.S. marshal's office still is begging former enemy aliens to take off its hands enough contraband rifles, pistols, knives, cameras and binoculars to equip a small army.

It will take an act of congress to authorize an auction of the equipment which includes 100 firearms, 137 kodaks, iron crosses and radios.

Woman Tax Payer Is a Firm Believer in Federal Red Tape

HARTFORD, CONN.—The Hartford internal revenue office notified a woman that the amount withheld from her wages equalled exactly her 1947 income tax.

She was advised in an official notification that she owed the government nothing.

Right back came a check from the woman. On the line reserved for the amount was written the word none.

Refueling of B-29's in Flight is Only Matter of Minutes

WASHINGTON.—Using a new high-speed method developed by the air force, B-29's on their way to long distance targets now can refuel in the air in a few minutes.

This range-stretching technique for the big war planes was hinted at by Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington before the senate armed services committee. He said B-29's utilizing the "most modern development" of the old airborne refueling system could, for example, bomb any part of Russia from bases in Alaska or Labrador. He made no further explanation, but said bombing units of the air force would have the new equipment by the first of next year.

Other authorities indicated that tests already have been made with completely satisfactory results.

While declining to disclose the exact speed with which transfer of gasoline from a tanker plane to a bomber is made under the USAF method, one expert said:

"British fliers have developed a method of pumping gasoline from one plane to another at a rate of about 100 gallons a minute. USAF technique and equipment is designed to accomplish several times such speed."

This indicated that a B-29 could take on virtually a full load of gasoline in perhaps 15 minutes.

Father Brands His Son, 24, As Thief in Crowded Courtroom

NEW YORK.—As tears streamed from his eyes, a father stood in a crowded courtroom and pressed a grand larceny charge against his son whom on six previous occasions he had saved from a possible jail sentence by making good on money allegedly stolen by the 24-year-old youth.

The latter, Thomas Sexton, 24, North Bergen, N. J., stole two of his mother's coats, a mink coat valued at $2,700, the other a $350 fur jacket. He had been arraigned in felony court as a fugitive from justice and then brought to a higher court for extradition proceedings after his father, William, signed a complaint alleging the theft of his wife's apparel.

Arraigned before Judge John A. Mullen, the youth was said to have been arrested repeatedly since 1941.

In 1941 he was sentenced to five years for grand larceny but execution of sentence was suspended after his father had made restitution for the money stolen. Other offenses his record showed, included passing worthless checks and stealing mail from mail boxes.

As they stood side by side before Judge Mullen the father turned to his son and asked: "Why won't you be a good boy?"

"I will if you'll give me just one more chance," he replied.

The father remained mute and Judge Mullen put the youth in the custody of the North Bergen police.

Trainmen Must Answer All Queries Intelligently

ST. LOUIS, MO.—As a phase of its program to make rail travel more pleasant, the Missouri Pacific lines has issued an order for employes to refrain from using the words, "I don't know." All reasonable passenger inquiries must be answered intelligently in the future. If a passenger wants to know why a train is running late he must be told the reason.
