"Lost Boundries" by W. L. White is available at the library. The Johnston family lived in a small New England town, the father a respected doctor and the mother a community leader, the children enjoying the kind of childhood that most Americans expect as a right. But when Dr. Johnston tried to volunteer in the war and the navy rejected him because its investigation showed he had "Negro blood," he felt he had to tell his children the secret and his wife had guarded—that they were all Negroes posing as white. What this revelation did to the Johnstons is reported in "Lost Boundries."

Farm Groups OK Brannan Choice; Truce Request Fails in Palestine; GM Wage Pact Could Set Pattern

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily those of the newspaper.

APPROVED: Brannan

President Truman's choice of Charles F. Brannan to succeed Clinton Anderson as secretary of agriculture has received the wholehearted approval of the national farm organizations.

They consider the 44-year-old former assistant secretary of agriculture "a friend of the farmer."

One of the bases for this feeling of harmony is the fact that Brannan and the farm organizations concur in thinking that the prewar parity law is badly outdated.

Such crops as soybeans, for instance, have attained a much greater importance since the law was passed but still have no satisfactory price fixing basis.

Other farmers, including cattle and dairy producers, claim their parity scales are out of line in this postwar period.

Ideas developed by Brannan to help remedy this situation have been largely adopted by the leading farm groups and are incorporated in bills now pending before congress.

Unless congress acts by the end of this year the law guaranteeing farm prices at 90 per cent of the fixed parity rate will expire.

Serving quietly as assistant secretary of agriculture for the past four years, Brannan has made himself the backbone of the administration's drive to enact a long-range farm program.

Thus, the farmers think a lot of Brannan because he has demonstrated that he is looking out for their interests in a realistic, level-headed fashion.

FAILURE: No Peace

It was difficult to say who would suffer more from the Arab's rejection of U. N. truce plea for Palestine — the Arabs themselves, the Jews or the United Nations.

Probably the Jews came off to better advantage in the world councils of public opinion, inasmuch as through their willingness to accept a truce they now can appear in the role of a nation which has been wronged and is forced to fight a war that has been thrust willy nilly upon it.

The Arabs simply brushed aside the idea of a truce with the contention that they could not halt the shooting war until the state of Israel is abandoned and the Jewish army demobilized.

FEWER BENEFITS LOST

People Are Discovering Social Security

Although inadvertent loss of benefits remains a major problem, the number of persons who deprive themselves of old-age and survivors insurance benefits because they delay filing their claims is decreasing steadily.

That report has been made by the Federal Security Agency's social security administration. In announcing the improvement, O. C. Pogge, director of the administration's bureau of old-age and survivors insurance in Baltimore, said:

Big Russian Crop

Russia has 20 million more acres under cultivation this year than last year at this time, according to an article in the publication Socialist Agriculture.

That official announcement was considered one of the best indications yet that Russia's 1948 agricultural harvest would break all records for the nation. Spring wheat is showing up well in all parts of the country, the paper said.

No Quarter

Fires of war between Arab and Jew continued to burn in the Holy Land when the Arab states refused to comply with a U. N. request for a truce. Attacking Jewish forces at all points, the Arabs said they would not quit until the Jews renounced their new state of Israel.

PAY HIKE: New Formula

When General Motors corporation averted a threatened strike of 225,000 auto production workers by offering an 11-cent raise based on a cost-of-living formula it probably set a precedent which will be followed in settling other industrial labor disputes.

Under the agreement, described as an "entirely new approach to the living cost problem," GM production workers get an 8-cent cost-of-living increase and a 3-cent pay boost based on annual industrial efficiency improvement.

Terms provide that wages be adjusted up or down each three months to conform with fluctuations in the consumer price index of the bureau of labor statistics.

It appeared to be a sound plan and one that might be followed to good advantage by other industries. Biggest flaw in the scheme was the fact that General Motors might have to pass the cost-of-living raise on to the public, which step might have the eventual effect of nullifying the benefits of the raise to the workers.

Significance of this adjustable cost-of-living wage formula can be seen in a review of the rise in prices since 1940. The cost of living today is 69 per cent higher than in 1940. Using 1940 as a base year — which is what GM and the United Auto Workers did in arriving at their agreement — living costs now are at 169 per cent.

Biggest jump in the steadily rising price pattern came after OPA collapsed in the summer of 1946.

VOICE: Belittling

Voice of America broadcasts, which have never received a full measure of congressional approval, sank to an even lower level of esteem because of a series of ill-starred programs beamed to Latin America last winter.

The scripts in question, denounced by senators as sabotage, slander and libel of the U. S., first attracted attention in March during house appropriation committee hearings on the Voice of America. In the sample script that the committee wanted to look over were some ill-chosen remarks about Wyoming.

Shout-hearted Wyoming congressmen shrieked in anguish. Other scripts were examined, and Sen. Homer Capehart (Rep., Ind.) finally aired the whole thing before the senate.

The legislators shuddered as they heard Capehart read from the scripts such excerpts as: "New England was founded by hypocrisy and Texas by sin."

"Nevada's two main cities compete with each other because people get married in Las Vegas and divorced in Reno."

The programs were handled by the National Broadcasting company under contract with the state department. Rene Borgia, the man who wrote the scripts, was fired, and Alberto Ganderio, Borgia's supervisor, resigned.

Unhealthy Families

Families with two children are "socially unhealthy," however fashionable they may be, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Cleveland was told by a University of Chicago professor of education, Robert J. Havighurst.

"A significant section of our population now have too few children to reproduce themselves," he told delegates to the annual convention.

"If the universities of Princeton, Yale, Harvard and the colleges of Wellesley, Smith and Vassar were to limit their enrollment to children of former students, and if all such children were to attend these institutions, their enrollment would drop to one-half the present size in 50 years and to a quarter in 100 years."

? Current Events ?

Although they might seem a bit obscure to anyone who doesn't make a conscious effort to memorize the front page of a newspaper every day, these questions do have answers. As a matter of fact, the questions are so difficult that even the answers have answers.

1. Capitals of the seven Arab league states fighting Israel are: Mecca and Riyadh (dual capitals of one state), Baghdad, Damascus, Amman, Beirut, Cairo and Sana. What states do they belong to?

2. Sir Alexander Fleming has been awarded the American Medal for Merit for his contribution to medical science. What contribution?

3. Republicans meet in Philadelphia this month to nominate their candidate for president. Where did the GOP nominate its last successful candidate?

4. When President Truman nominated Charles F. Brannan as secretary of agriculture it brought the total of Truman cabinet appointments to 10, 16 or 21?

5. Everyone knows that the Taft of the Taft-Hartley act is Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Identify the Hartley.

ANSWERS

1. Mecca and Riyadh, Saudi Arabia; Baghdad, Iraq; Damascus, Syria; Amman, Trans-Jordan; Beirut, Lebanon; Cairo, Egypt; Sana, Yemen.

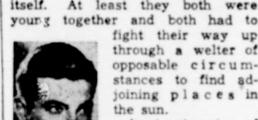

2. He discovered the germ-killing properties of penicillin — which led to development of penicillin.

3. Last successful GOP candidate was Herbert Hoover, nominated in June, 1928, at Kansas City, Mo.

4. Mr. Truman has appointed 16 to the cabinet.

5. Rep. Fred A. Hartley Jr. (Rep., N.J.)

Oratorical Flight

If Secretary of the Navy John Sullivan had possessed wings he probably would have flapped them in his enthusiasm when he went before the house armed services committee to urge congress to let the navy speed development of a 65,000-ton super aircraft carrier, costing 124 million dollars.

CORNBALL: For Breakfast

Some of the more sentimental heads around the American Broadcasting company's Chicago studios like to think of Don McNeill as a beautiful and vibrant symbol of the rise and snuggling success of ABC itself. At least they both were young together and both had to fight their way up through a welter of opposable circumstances to find adjoining places in the sun.

As toastmaster of the uninhibited Breakfast Club program, McNeill will celebrate his 15th anniversary on June 23 with some kind of capers he has been executing five days a week between 8 and 9 a. m. since 1933.

Despite the subterranean regard which this sophisticated generation purports to hold for the more direct and obvious types of humor, McNeill has found that being a cornball pays off. He works without a script and his gags are strictly off-the-cuff.

He once invited a herpetologist (a student of reptiles and amphibians) who visited the program, to "Come into the parking lot after the broadcast and I'll show you a rare specimen. A windshield viper."

And when a New Jersey woman told him that her husband is a butcher and she is a cosmetician, he commented, "What an ideal arrangement. He fattens them up and you pull them in."

McNeill parlays this kind of extemporaneous patter with a feeling of genuine camaraderie for the plain people who are guests on his show to produce a program that has had a nationwide cult of early morning listeners begging for more for 15 consecutive years.

"If the universities of Princeton, Yale, Harvard and the colleges of Wellesley, Smith and Vassar were to limit their enrollment to children of former students, and if all such children were to attend these institutions, their enrollment would drop to one-half the present size in 50 years and to a quarter in 100 years."

He recommended "individual acceptance of responsibility for having children" and "government-paid family allowances in addition to a basic salary inducement."

Throttling of Small Business Can Kill Democratic System

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—Over in England, where the majority voted to accept socialism because they felt the 400-year-old "capitalistic experiment" had been a failure, they are finding that you can't vote yourself into a prosperity any more than you can vote yourself into mortality.

There are still a lot of Britons who think they have been voted out of the trying pan into the fire. Prime Minister Clement Attlee, in a recent report to the Labor party, admitted that conversion to socialist democracy was a long hard task, longer than they had imagined.

"We are engaged in a great venture," Attlee said, "We are trying to build a great, free, socialist democracy." He warned that a society changed by a democratic method is apt to lose the "habits of democracy."

It will be questioned by some people. He added that socialism demanded a higher standard of citizenship than does capitalism. Some people will quarrel with that too. Many will say that it isn't that capitalism doesn't demand a higher standard of citizenship, but simply that capitalism (or any other known system, for that matter) doesn't always get it.

Capitalism fails, when it does fail, not because there is anything wrong with free enterprise or competition, but because sometimes the standard of morality or standard of citizenship if you will, running the system, bogs down. Then free enterprise is shackled and competition destroyed.

The anti-trust laws were passed to punish people who tried to check free enterprise by killing competition. Those laws wouldn't be needed, government intervention wouldn't be needed, if the standard of morality, of citizenship, were high enough among the people who control enterprise. Long before the war, and increasingly so when shortages began to appear later, big business began crowding small business out of existence.

Because of war conditions and the powerful influence of big business, the small buyer couldn't compete. He wasn't able to get the raw materials.

Small business is the keystone of capitalism. According to the Committee on Economic Development, 98 per cent of the business units in this country employ 50 people or less. Those "business units" of course aren't limited to manufacturing firms—they include the roadside hotdog stand, the one-woman hand laundry, the tea room, and the country store as well as the business men producing manufactured items on a small scale.

If this 98 per cent of a capitalist country's business isn't prosperous, capitalism can't succeed. In fact you can't have capitalism unless big industrial groups monopolize business any more than you can have it when the state monopolizes business.

What is happening to small business today? It can't compete. Big business is making big profits, paying big wages, (regardless of whether the take-home pay of the workers is equal to cover high prices or not). Small business can't afford to pay the big wages, and the small town merchant is not making sales and profits because the consumers in his company haven't the money to spend.

A recent issue of the Kiplinger magazine made a survey of conditions in small towns as reported in a thousand letters from small businessmen, teachers, preachers, doctors, lawyers, housewives, workingmen and working women in those towns.

The net of the survey was that there was a definite letdown in business after January of this year, and that the people surveyed believed that there is a further letdown in prospect. There is evidence of reduced consuming power which is the first sign of a depression. A sign that the wealth of the nation is getting out of the buyers' hands.

Now that's a pretty gloomy picture and not wholly subscribed to by commerce department people here. They will tell you that business everywhere, large and small, showed a tendency to level off after January of this year, that there was a definite weakening in the first quarter of the year. But they believe that was a temporary trend, that it's over now, that business will reverse itself, and that the general trend is now upward again. They make no differentiation between large and small businesses in their prognostications and studies, and they feel that the trend for all business now is up.

But listen to what the people surveyed by Kiplinger say: "A food wholesaler in Iowa: 'Bread sales are extremely high, also flour sales are good and the sale of rolled oats is good, as people apparently are filling up on these nutritious foods in preference to more expensive items.'"

A baker in Ohio: "We are selling fewer cakes and pies." Women are doing more sewing at home, with clothing prices so high. An Illinois businessman said: "The local high school decided to have a night school on sewing. The first registration was 135 women."

Young woman in Wisconsin: "I'm not the only working girl in this community who doesn't have the new look." Illinois farmwoman: "We planned to buy some new furniture, but the price is too high. I am making slipcovers."

Even electrical items, dreamed of by housewives as an after-war necessity, are not selling well. Said an Iowa dealer: "The edge is definitely off on hard goods, such as refrigerators, washers, radios, stoves, etc. Prices too high."

A traveling salesman covering the small towns finds the going tough: "I cover New York state and I am working twice as hard for half the business." Many little signs of hard times were reported by Kiplinger's survey. Examples: A Texas housewife: "I am feeding traps for the first time since before the war."

A deacon: "Collections are off at our church." A loan company man: "More borrowing from small loan companies." A village cobbler: "My shoe repair business is good."

As the Kiplinger magazine puts it: "The folks in the small towns aren't harder up. Their incomes haven't gone up as much as the prices they pay." In other words, according to the survey, the wealth is getting out of the hands of the consumer. And whether this survey or the commerce department's optimistic prediction are more nearly correct, (congress abolished the small business section), this much at least can be said:

You can redistribute the wealth by the socialistic intervention of government. That kills capitalism. Or you can redistribute it by permitting full and free competition—competition on the part of the producers of raw materials, competition on the part of labor, (an expensive item), competition on the part of processors. Industrial or labor monopoly, as I said before, will kill capitalism in the end as effectively as the Communist with his little red hatchet.

As PEGLER Sees It

By Westbrook Pegler

Revised by WNU Feature

THE anti-Truman Democrats of the southern tier have made Jackson their political capital. A political nucleus has been formed, called the states' rights campaign committee. The chairman of the states' rights campaign committee is Wallace Wright, who speaks with a persuasive magnolia drawl but is nevertheless a Kansan. This magnolia drawl may be infectious or a practical affectation.

O. B. Keeler, the Atlanta journalist, who was Bobby Jones' personal historian throughout his career at golf, comes from Kansas City, Mo., but he can say "Please, ma'am" to telephone girls with that sweetness which is the envy and despair of the Yankee and, in the movies, usually is associated with contemptible but enviable cad and bouncers. Keeler, poor devil, is neither a cad nor a bouncer. HE IS JUST ANOTHER OF US INK-STAINED WRETCHES.

Wright's business is advertising and public relations. He runs a firm called Dixie Advertisers. Be not top-heavy about that, however. All the big political parties have public relations outfits working for them in and, if possible, out of season. It was Carl Byoir and Associates who put over the big polio campaign for Franklin D. Roosevelt, including the birthday ball hoax which kept the late Henry L. Doherty, a magnate in utilities, out of trouble with the anti-trust division of the department of justice.

Doherty was Byoir's client in public relations. Byoir bought himself of an old story by James M. Barrie, of someone who had loaned his own birthday to a dateless wife and suggested that it would be sweet for Mr. Big to lend his birthday to the paralyzed children of the U. S.

Doherty picked up the bill of about $75,000 for the promotion, advertising and so forth, including drinks, and if this makes you wonder whether anything ever will be on the level you ought to go steep yourself in truth and beauty at the movie called "The Roosevelt Story."

Wright is running a propaganda campaign against the Truman civil rights program and he asserts upon his word that no sinister interests are putting up any money for it. Inasmuch as it appears to me to have called for only a few thousand dollars, aside from radio time, I see no reason to doubt him. As to the radio time, of which there has been much devoted to the states' rights movement, I have to say that I think it was cheap time, which is to say church-time or working-time.

Nobody listens to working-time propaganda except bartenders who would be better off dead, anyway, and should have been long ago, and the drivers of those enormous freighters who are twitching with unsuave to keep them out of the canyons. They and a few weary wisps blowing hair out of their eyes over wash-tubs beneath the cottonwoods and wondering if ever does come true that the handsome stranger drapes the country girl in jewels and furs and introduces her to Justice Murphy in the Stork club.

Now there have been nasty insinuations that those American states which have ocean frontage and on that frontage have oil offshore have joined together in a vicious plot against the United States of America. Mississippi is a state with coastal oil. Louisiana is another. All such states and some with other potential treasures to defend against usurpation by the national government have an interest in the continuing claim of the submarine oil states to the value of, and the right to regulate, such oil deposits.

But, during the U. S. A. last years of Harold Ickes as secretary of the interior, he claimed all these natural resources for the nation, as a whole, and by the very vehemence of his claim Ickes damned as thieves and traitors those persons, including the attorney generals of sovereign states, who opposed his view. Thus he put in a bad position all who would assert the claims of states to their own submarine oil if it be their own, as it might be.

DOES IT BEGIN TO APPEAR THAT A QUESTION OF STATES RIGHTS BECOMES VERY PROMINENT HERE?

The governor of Mississippi, Fielding L. Wright, no relation of Wallace Wright, is a states' rights man on this oil proposition. If he weren't, Mississippi never would have elected him governor. The governors of other littoral oil states also are states' rights men, including Governor Warren of California.

Mississippi and other states of the southern tier have other important issues in the field of states' rights which undoubtedly could involve bloodshed or the avoidance of this tragedy in the next few years.

Is it wrong of these states to encourage big owners of their offshore oil acreage to finance their politics and propaganda of states' rights? Any citizen may contribute a nickel or a dollar to this expensive contest. Why not a million, if that citizen feels sufficiently aroused?

This Mixed Drink Produces No Painful After-Effects

CHICAGO—An old man in a tavern asked for a glass of bourbon. Then he ordered a glass of water, poured in a medicinal powder and stirred it. He took a sip of one and a swig of the other. The two-handed tippler noticed he had a round eyed audience.

"One gives me a headache. The other takes it away," he said. "Practical, ain't it?"

Nationwide Registration Of All Babies is Suggested

WASHINGTON.—A nationwide system of assigning serial numbers to all new-born babies has been proposed by the approval of the United States public health service.

Herbert R. Dunning, administrative officer for the services national office of vital statistics, told of the system.

He said it has been recommended by state and national compilers of vital statistics to achieve uniformity in the numbering of birth certificates.

"No federal agency is committed to the use of the number," Dunning told a reporter, "but it is conceivable that any agency could make use of such a number."

There is a new Australian soft drink on the market called "passion fruit nectar." I learn from the office of the Australian government trade commissioner. Perhaps the Australians, after seeing our G.I.s, think that is what we need (I heard they had a different impression).

A hundred per cent tax on brass knuckles was repealed in 1924. Probably anticipating the depression.

There is plenty of honey in the United States but too few honey-bees. The National Geographic bulletin explains this paradox. Extra bees are needed as pollinating agents. Civilization has killed off the wild bees that used to do a lot of this matrimonial bureau work.

THE BIG CHANCE

By FREDERICK LAING

HE WASN'T the kind to pick a secretary by the color of her hair. Not Bill Hargrave. Both Paula and Nancy had been smart enough to know that. And for some time every one in the office had known that one of them, Paula or Nancy, was going to get the job. In fact, the decision probably would come through this afternoon. Hargrave was leaving town and wanted to get it settled.

The two girls could see him from their desks outside his office. Maybe it was only a set of proofs for the Zippo campaign that he was looking at with cool, keen eyes. But for a moment his finger seemed to pause above those two efficient little push-buttons. If he pressed the left one, it would be Paula's pulse that would go into high speed.

Paula couldn't keep her eyes off that light on her desk. She kept making mistakes in her typing and nervously ripping the sheets out to start fresh again.

She leaned across her typewriter and said to Nancy: "The boss is all dolled up today. Must be going on a special trip with the new president of Zippo."

She was just talking to relieve her nervousness. Nancy took her time about answering. She wasn't used to having Paula talk to her in such an intimate tone. Not since they'd learned a month ago that they were both in line for a promotion, for the important job as Bill Hargrave's secretary.

"He does look nice," she said, finally.

Hargrave was young and outside of office hours he was said to be human. But that wasn't why he'd gotten to be one of the key men at Advertising, Inc. He was quiet, and some of the boys in the office hadn't realized how fast he was traveling until they somehow happened to get in his way.

The two girls saw him get up from his desk and walk to the doorway of his office. He stood there with one hand in a pocket of his double-breasted blue flannel suit. There was a small white flower in his buttonhole and the usual keen, unrevealing smile on his face.

"Did you send for the tickets?" he asked Nancy.

"I got the tickets all right," she answered, "but . . ." and she tried to smile in the same hard way the boss did. She looked as hardboiled as a white kitten. "But there just aren't any staterooms to be had," she told him. "Not for love or money."

The boss was certainly disappointed. Anybody could see that.

"Suppose I try it?" Paula suggested quickly.

And for the next 10 minutes, half the office force could hear Paula telling the ticket agent where to get off.

"Listen," she said, "I don't care whose reservations you have to cancel . . ."

Well, the job was worth going after. There was the salary, for one thing. And there was the prestige. The boss' secretary knew a lot of answers. And there were the interesting people she got to talk to. The big shots. And the boxes of perfume, flowers and candy they often left on her desk.

And there was Bill Hargrave for a boss. Young and clever and attractive. That was a factor, too. Because in the advertising business you called the boss "Bill," and he called his secretary "Nancy" or "Paula," and took her to dinner on the expense account, on nights when the work was late.

It was all strictly business, but it seemed intimate and informal. Both Paula and Nancy knew about these dinners. Bill had tried to be fair. He would ask Paula to stay one night, and then it would be Nancy's turn the next.

But Paula had been smart. She'd soon learned how impersonal Bill Hargrave could be, even at those intimate dinners. About as personal as an ad that says: "This means you." And she saw how much harder to please he was during the overtime hours — more irritable, more apt to get that edge of complaint in his voice.

And for the next 10 minutes, half the office force could hear Paula snappily telling the ticket agent where to get off.

So when Nancy had said, "I don't mind staying nights, really. I know Paula usually has a date. She's popular with the men . . ." well, Paula had been glad to let it go at that. She'd been quick to see that neither of them was going to get the job mainly on sex appeal, and she was right.

Paula didn't need any lessons when it came to office politics. She was the one who was always busy when some copy cub wanted his stuff typed. "Sorry, but it's impossible, Mac. Why not ask Nancy?"

And they did. It left Paula free to do Bill Hargrave's work in a hurry. Never too busy for Mr. Bill.

When Hargrave finally pressed one of those buttons it was at Paula's desk that the light flickered. She started to make a grab for her note book, but she whipped out her mirror first. Then she grabbed up her note book and an envelope that was on the desk.

As for Nancy, what else could she do but sit there with her pretty blonde head bent over her typewriter? Nancy was a natural blonde, and that seemed the best way to describe her. She just didn't seem to know any tricks.

The moment Paula got inside Hargrave's office, he asked about that stateroom.

"Any luck, Paula?" No, Paula hadn't been dumb. It was the little things that would add with Mr. Bill. Orchestra seats when the client was in town and the show was sold out. Or a stateroom when there were "no staterooms to be had for love or money."

She handed him the envelope. It contained the two sets of tickets. "That's your stateroom number on the outside," she said crisply.

She had on a double-breasted blue flannel suit something like Bill's, and it was clear he thought she looked pretty smart in it.

"Don't forget the time," she added, "eight fifteen."

Hargrave grinned. "So there were no staterooms for love or money, eh?"

He looked again at the number of his stateroom and he put the envelope carefully in his inside pocket. Then he told her. She had a new job. He mentioned the salary, too. He didn't neglect to mention the salary.

She took it just right. Just enough of gratitude. And then, the old sportsmanship. How sorry she felt about Nancy. She didn't look sorry.

And neither did Bill. He told her it was okay, that Nancy wasn't made for the job anyway, and that they were leaving on their honeymoon tonight. Tonight, at eight fifteen.

And neither did Bill. He told her it was okay, that Nancy wasn't made for the job anyway, and that they were leaving on their honeymoon tonight. Tonight, at eight fifteen.

It's Time to Turn Luscious Berries Into Tender Jellies

WHEN ORCHARDS are covered with snow and vineyards no longer are bursting with their luscious berries, the best way to bring them back to the table is to serve, flavor-fresh, delicately tinted jellies made from the berries at their peak of the season.

A good idea is to make a sort of canning plan. Decide what your family likes most, figure out about how much they ate last year, and make up a program for the next year.

Sort out your canning supplies, buying any necessary equipment before you start the work.

When you make jellies and jams, try to work with small batches only. It seems to take less time, but far more important than that, the results are better. The jellies are tender and more colorful, and there is less chance for error.

If you have fruits and berries with small pectin content of their own, merge in the boiling jelly two or three rose geranium leaves. These wilt quickly and give off their flavor. Tint with rose vegetable coloring. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and paraffin at once.

HERE ARE TWO PERFECT berries for jelly making. You'll be delighted with their fresh fruit flavors and beautiful colors:

•Currant Jelly
Select currants that are not over-ripe. Remove leaves but do not stem. Mash with potato masher. Add one-half cup of water to each two quarts of berries. Cook 10 minutes stirring frequently. Strain through jelly bag. Use three-fourths cup sugar for each cup of juice. Heat juice, add sugar and stir until it dissolves. Cook until the syrup sheets off the spoon. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Red Raspberry Jelly
(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)
3 quarts red raspberries
7 1/2 cups sugar
1 bottle pectin

Thoroughly crush raspberries; place in jelly bag and squeeze out juice. There should be four cups. Heat juice; add sugar; bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Add fruit pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil; boil one-half minute. Remove from heat; skim; seal in hot sterilized glasses.

HERE ARE TWO very special recipes which you will enjoy having for they are perfectly delicious and make wonderful accompaniments to any meal, breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Deluxe Strawberry Preserves
2 pounds capped berries
4 tablespoons lemon juice
5 cups sugar

Mix berries with sugar. Let stand three to four hours. Place over low heat until simmering point is reached. Add lemon juice. Boil rapidly for 10 to 12 minutes or until berries are clear and the syrup thick. Cover and let stand over

IF YOU'RE STARTING to make jelly now, the following fruit and berry combinations are excellent for appetite appeal. They are also in season in most parts of the country so that you can make them readily:

1. Blackberry and rhubarb
2. Boysenberry and rhubarb
3. Dewberry and rhubarb
4. Loganberry and rhubarb
5. Raspberry and rhubarb
6. Youngberry and rhubarb

Here is the recipe for jelly made from any of the above combinations:

3 cups juice
4 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about one quart of fully ripe berries. Cut into one-inch lengths (do not peel) about one pound of rhubarb, and put through food chopper. Place fruits in jelly bag of cloth and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a three- or four-quart saucepan and place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour quickly into seven six-ounce glasses. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

Watermelon Rind Preserves
2 pounds watermelon rind
1 tablespoon ground ginger
4 cups sugar
2 lemons
2 quarts of water

Cut off all green peel and pink part. Then cut rind into one-inch pieces. Soak two or three hours in lime water. Freshen in two or three more changes of water. Sprinkle ginger over rind. Cover with water and boil one and a half hours. Drain and drop into cool syrup made with sugar, water and lemon juice, of one lemon. Boil gently one hour. Add second lemon, sliced thin. Continue boiling until the rind is tender and the syrup thick. If syrup gets too thick before rind is tender add a little more water. Let stand several hours. Pack into hot jars, and process in a water bath for 15 minutes at simmering temperature.

Rose Geranium Jelly
Select tart, sound apples. Wash and cut off blossom ends. Do not remove peeling or cores. Cut into quarters and barely cover with water. Cook until fruit is tender. Strain juice through a jelly bag and measure. Bring to boiling point and add three-fourths cup of sugar for each cup of juice. Boil rapidly to jelly stage (dip spoon into syrup). As the boiling mass nears the jelling point it will drop from the side of the spoon in two drops). When almost done, im-

ARE YOU FOND of unusual jellies? Here's an old-fashioned one with a lovely and unusual delicate flavor:

State Fair — Jeanne was so lovely—and there must be a word for Dana, but we can't think of it. Then, there's that musical "JOLSON STORY"—it's practically everyone's choice for a revival at least once a month.

BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE!
The revival of "Gone With the Wind" has made lots of you wonder where are the movies of yesterday, and why doesn't someone bring them back? When you enjoy a book you read it over and over. How many times have you read "Seventeenth Summer"? But, when you enjoy a movie—it's usually only the memory that lingers on; the movie, itself, disappears like yesterday's snow. According to a recent soda fountain survey, here are the epics you'd like to eat popcorn through again.

Olive Trees and Taxes

Many years ago, when the Balkan province of Macedonia was a center of contention among Turks, Bulgars and Greeks, the Turks, in possession at the time, set out to make the province unattractive to rival nationalities. They adopted the device of putting up taxes on olive orchards to the point that forced the unfortunate owners of olive orchards to cut them down. As olive growing was an important industry, the trick worked.

Grace Noll Crowell

So long I have been guided by Thy power
Up many a rugged path and rocky hill,
And now, dear Lord, through this strange
darkened hour
Be with me still.

Be with me for the way is long and lonely,
I am bewildered, and I cannot see,
But, Lord, I shall not be afraid if only
You walk with me.

If I see ever keep recalling
The darkest roads I traveled in the past,
How, after You long guided me from falling,
Light shone at last!

Then surely, Lord, I can go forward knowing
That somewhere on the hills the light will dawn,
And I shall reach it safely if, in going,
You lead me on.

State Capitol Feuding Extends to Squirrels
COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Fussin' and feudin' are nothing new in Ohio capitol politics but now the ancient battle has spread to the squirrel population of the statehouse grounds.
As if fearing the ruckus might compete with the bickering in its legislative halls, the state stepped into the squirrel squabble by providing more shelter for the animals.

Some 50 new dens, representing the latest type of squirrel shelters, have been placed in tree tops.
Explaining the feud, George B. Sowers, public works director, said that squirrels that live on the north side of the statehouse don't get along with those on the south side. "There hasn't been much actual fighting," he adds, "but there is a lot of bickering and chatter."
The statehouse squirrels live mostly on peanuts and popcorn handed them by visitors.

New Device Intended To Eliminate Pigeons
PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Newest device intended to rid municipal buildings of feathered pests has been invented by Gus Ruth, local toolmaker. It is a mechanism consisting of a tube mounted in weather-sealed roller bearings which is designed to spin unwary pigeons off their perch. In the past, feathered pests have stood up to itching powder, traps and streams.

IN MEMORY

In loving tribute to the memory of Wm. McCullough, who passed away June 24, 1947:

His was a generous hand,
His was a tender heart,
He couldn't stand
Saying "I'm not here."

Strength was a gift to use,
Time was a gift to share,
He was the proud referee,
Buzzer was he to share.

Now that his soul has fled,
Broken the fragile clay,
Brave was the life he led
Down to its final day.

Sadly missed by his sister, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to flush a hot water system every year or two?

ANSWER: At the beginning of the heating season it is advisable to draw off several pailsful of water to flush out some of the accumulation in the boiler, but it is not necessary to drain off the entire heating system. Use a boiler cleaning compound every two or three years.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Are You Strong Enough to Take It?

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features

Are you woman enough to go courageously on into happy wifehood and motherhood, grateful for innumerable joys still left you?

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THERE are a good many problems in the lives of men and women that boil down to the simple question: "Are you strong enough to take it?"

If the answer is yes, then the difficulties, the problem, the worry can turn into actual advantages. But if the answer is no, this is the one thing we can't take, the one situation we can't face, then of course the thing ends in shrinking away, in failure, in confusion. We see all about us the broken, wavering, unsatisfied lives that began this way.

When you see a tremendously important figure in politics, in letters, in fine and benevolent living, it is easy to say, "Yes, and did you hear the other day of the awful time he had getting started?" That means little to you. But to the conspicuously successful person it means months, perhaps years, of discomfort and sacrifice. It means going without all the things that make living gracious. It means watching other persons in apparently easy success, denying oneself petty extravagances, seeing one's loved ones unhappy and needy.

What reminds me of all this is a letter from Laura Davis. She is a 22-year-old Texas girl, extremely pretty, athletic, clever and the possessor of a comfortable little income in her own right. Well, then, what on earth can be wrong? The trouble is that the ideal man is in love with her, they are engaged, everything is—or was—in line for a wedding, and now Laura is losing her hearing.

Fred, the prospective husband, was driving too fast one night, there was one of our 50,000 annual motoring accidents—Fred's arm was broken, one girl was killed and Laura, apparently only badly bumped, presently developed a hardness of hearing which turned in a few months to actual deafness.

With a modern apparatus she can distinguish certain voices, but never in groups. Radio is lost to her, and in theaters she hears nothing.

She has broken her engagement and descended into a very purgatory of despair. Not that anyone sees it; she says she keeps everything serene on the surface. But she feels that her whole life is wrecked. She will not marry Fred; the darling little apartment with the balcony must be given up; she doesn't want to burden anyone with a deaf wife, "who will simply be a pest to everyone," says her letter, "not hearing things and making mistakes and being a general annoyance. My grandmother was deaf, and as a child I used to put everything over on her, and think it was great fun, and now I am in the same fix."

"My heart is simply broken," the letter ends, "but at Fred's request I am writing you, assuring you that I will abide by your advice. First perhaps I ought to tell you that I always have been considered as one of the fun-makers of the group. It has been Laura who made them all laugh, Laura who was the first to grasp the situation. With my hearing dependent upon a small machine on a black cord, you can imagine how much fun I will be! I want to go away, to live in some city where I am unknown, but that must come later. Meanwhile, what shall I do?"

Fred, the prospective husband...

Front Seat of Auto Is Dangerous Spot

CHICAGO.—The "death seat" in an automobile is the front seat beside the driver, a Detroit plastic surgeon warned.

Safest place is the driver's—behind the wheel, he added.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Claire L. Straith, chief of the plastic surgery division, Harper Hospital, Detroit, reported that guest passengers in the front seat beside the driver are injured three

DEAFNESS

Laura Davis is 22, exceptionally pretty, independent and a good athlete. She is in love with an ideal man but has broken her engagement to him because she doesn't want to burden him.

Everything proceeded smoothly until one night Fred, driving too fast, smashed his car in an accident. He broke his arm, one of the girls in the car was killed and Laura, as a result of the smash-up, lost her hearing.

She now feels that her entire life is ruined.

Miss Norris diagnoses Laura's trouble as self-pity. According to Miss Norris, Laura will face many more trying problems during the remaining years of her life. When difficulties challenge us success or failure depends upon the frame of mind with which we tackle the obstacles.

Well, in the first place, Laura, you can't run away. You'll take your trouble with you, and add to it other troubles of homesickness, loneliness and an infinitely enlarged dose of self-pity. What you are facing is only what 10,000 gallant American boys have faced in the past few years—more than 10,000, more than 100,000. It wasn't their fault. They loved life as you do, and their young strength and bodily perfection. But some lost hands, some arms, some eyes, some never will breathe comfortably again, and to many, the boys who fell at Bataan and on the Normandy coast are the enviable ones.

Heroes Are Forgotten

These boys form our new army of heroes. We forget them, we rarely think of what they sacrificed and what they suffer, but when you join their company you will find yourself in the group of the least unfortunate. Yes, to most of them mere partial deafness would seem a comparatively simple disadvantage.

Weigh that handicap against your numerous blessings: Youth, health, beauty, comfortable means and you will find the scales still far down on the right side.

So the situation comes down to this question that we all must be asked before we go very far in this puzzling life. Are you strong enough to take it? Are you woman-enough to go courageously on into happy wifehood and motherhood, grateful for the innumerable joys still left you, patient under the undeniable trial of your affliction?

Science, that has made such miraculous strides in this particular line, may yet relieve you of it entirely. Whether it does or not, in time you will see Fred face his hard moment, whatever it may be, you will see your children put to the test, you will discover that a mere physical disability is not the most serious thing that a woman may have to face as the years go by, and that our happiness, our self-respect, our success or failure as individual women depends upon the attitude we take when the inevitable challenge arises: Are you strong enough to take it?

EVANSTON, Ill.—More people should read for pleasure instead of for practical purposes, according to Jean H. Hagstrum, assistant professor of English at Northwestern university.

Hagstrum said there was an increase of 10 to 15 per cent in the nation's reading during 1947, but a decrease in the reading of fiction. "The danger is that people look upon reading more and more as a utilitarian function," he said.

No more harsh laxatives that irritate the digestive tract and impair nutrition! Lemon in water is good for you! Generations of Americans have taken lemons for health--and generations of doctors have recommended them. They are rich in vitamin C, supply valuable amounts of B<sub>1</sub> and P.
