STUDENT COUNCIL PRESIDENT CAMPAIGNING This year K.H.S. has held an election similar to a national election. This election was for student council president. On Sept. 13 a preliminary election open only to juniors and seniors, was held to decide what two candidates out of the six that were eligible, would run for president. The results of the preliminary election showed that Fritz Koepke and Wallace Cudnosko won. As soon as the results were in the various parties, the Free State whose candidate was Fritz Koepke, and the Demo-Republicans whose candidate was Wally Cudnosko, the various party campaign managers started a barrage of posters for their candidates. Posters were hung in all the rooms and in some of the business establishments.

This week Tuesday the whole high school voted for their choice of the two candidates. The election for student council president was won by Fritz Koepke.

OFF TO A GOOD START

School began and the 2nd thought is the approaching football season. Coach E. Mitchell had 39 men report for practice. Out of this group the squad for the Sept. 16 game with Oostburg was chosen. Several questions arose in the minds of all former students. Would Kewaskum have as good a team as in previous years. With the new members and the returning lettermen, Koepke, Koth and Cudnosko, would coach E. Mitchell have the Indians conditioned for a game at this early date?

Our questions were soon answered as our boys scored a touchdown early in the first quarter. Down field blocking by Koth and Blumer highlighted this play. From then on in the Indians consistently forced ahead to a 22-11 victory, proving that our team, our coach and our school are again "OFF TO A GOOD START."

Line Ups

Kewaskum Koth LF, Justman QB, Rodenkirch C, Wierman LE, Jeske RE. Oostburg D. Brasser, Gabriels, Sm's, DeSmith, DeTroye, Mulder.

Touchdowns—Koth 2, Koepke 1.

Locals Eliminated in Rivers Playoff

In the Land o' Rivers league playoff games for the grand championship, Kewaskum was nosed out by Hartland here Sunday, 8-7, to be eliminated from the series between the champs in the five divisions of the loop. Hartland won the title in the central division of the league and Kewaskum the northern. On the previous Sunday the local nine lost their first playoff game to Saukville of the northeastern division, 10-7.

In Sunday's see-saw battle, in which the lead changed hands several times, the Chevroletes were defeated in the lead of the ninth. The score was tied at 7-7 going into the last of the ninth when Hartland tallied on a walk with the bases loaded that forced in the winning run. The Chevroletes tied the score in their half of the ninth as the result of "Fritz" Kral's pinch single that scored Krueger, who had tripled. With one away in the last of the ninth, Backhaus filled the bases and Honeck came in to pitch. After scoring the first hitter, Honeck walked the next one to send home the deciding marker.

Hartland jumped into the lead in the second inning when Haerte doubled with the bases loaded for three runs. Kewaskum came back in the third with five big runs and added another in the fourth to lead, 6-3. In this frame Klink was shelled from the mound and was relieved by Parry. The visitors knotted the count in the fifth inning with three more. Hartland counted once more in the sixth and that was all until the ninth when both netted one marker.

Kewaskum out: Hartland 9-8. All of the winners' safeties were off. Backhaus who hurled eight and one-third innings. He struck out five and walked three. Honeck walked one. Klink gave up four hits in three and two-thirds frames. He struck out six and walked three. Parry fanned four more in the remaining innings he worked. Krueger sparked the local attack with three hits, one a triple, and Miller had two. Mallow, Chapman and Haerte were the bad boys for Hartland with two each.

A number of 1948 graduates have also returned to school. Bernice Blank, who last year attended Stout institute, is taking nurse's training at Deaconess hospital, Milwaukee. Richard Edwards, who attended the University of Wisconsin as a freshman last year, has enrolled at Concordia college, Milwaukee. Rita Schmidt, a freshman at Wisconsin last term, has enrolled as a nursing student at St. Mary's hospital, Madison. LEGION SALUTES

The new fiscal year of Kewaskum Post No. 284, American Legion, got well under way last Monday evening with a large attendance present for the meeting and with a drive for membership having a good start. Commander "Foot" Zelniet just returned from a fishing trip and is ready to get to work and has a lot of pokers in the fire. Fritzie Siegel gave us the financial report and told us not to spend too much money this coming year. Poor Fritz trying to earn his salary by doing all the financial worrying for "Foot." Congratulations to Harry Koch on being elected county commander. He asked us for co-operation and in return he will "fix" for us whatever he can fix. Beware all Legionnaires that that camera fiend, Edsie Bruhn, who is definitely planning on putting out a history book with plenty of pictures of past commanders, officers and all good looking members in general. She already profiled Carl to put his picture on the front page for being our first adjutant. Wayland Tassar no doubt will be on the last page. Interesting comments were made on increasing attendance. Donnie Sell came up with some lyrics. I heard of greasing a pig and trying to catch it but not a turkey. Commander "Foot" is going to sponsor a dance next meeting with good music promised. More about that later in this column. Watch for that and in the meantime let's grease our acing backs and get ready for an evening of fun at the clubhouse. The admission charge: sit thru a short business meeting and then roll up the rug. Byron Bunky said "let's not always talk about money." How about that??? Don't be surprised if Clark Werner heads for the clubhouse some evening with batter and saw because he is favoring the idea of moving the barroom upstairs, eh, Gustave?? No? Legion meeting is complete without our chaplain offering prayer for our departed comrades and consecrating our hearts and lives to the real America, the land of the free and the America we veterans thought worth fighting for. Upon declaring the meeting adjourned, the auxiliary sounded off "chow call" and what do you know, good old fashioned sauerkraut and wiensers. The auxiliary members are swarming the office and order of existence with their congratulations to Commander "Foot" Zelniet for his new deal. After chow all the members, well fed and content, are wending their weary way homeward, grateful for an evening well spent at the Legion clubhouse.

Remember, to save the club some dough, membership dues should be paid before the 25th of September. Signed and stamped, Your Ex Sarge.

Northern K-M Lake Area Assn. Officially Formed

In an open meeting held at the Forest Lake resort Sept. 12, at which all of the businessmen were by newspaper notice invited to attend, it was decided to form the Northern Kettle Moraine Lake Area association.

The following officers were elected: President, Lyle W. Bartelt, Kewaskum; secretary, Clyde Mahoney, Fond du Lac; treasurer, Fred Ratner, R. R. 1, Cascade.

The association was formed to carry out a program aimed: 1. To organize the businessmen in the area circumscribed approximately by a line running from Kewaskum to St. Michaels, to Boltonville, Lake Eden, Waldo, Eden, Campbellsport, Elmore, and back to Kewaskum.

2. To attract more people into this area by advertising it as a unit by offering its attractions during all seasons of the year.

3. To advertise as a unit by newspaper, by roadway signs, by radio, by air, and by television the great recreational facilities that we have within such close proximity of population centers.

4. To get more and better fish in our lakes and more game on the land.

5. To promote a winter recreational program.

6. To promote cooperative effort on the part of individual business establishments in advertising all other business places and recreational features within this section with a view toward keeping attracted tourists and others circulating within the northern Kettle Moraine lake area rather than permitting them, without their first obtaining a complete knowledge of it, to leave in favor of other areas offering fewer advantages than we have here.

7. To advertise to our neighbors of Wisconsin and other states the natural and distinctive beauties of this most attractive section, of the only three important but widely scattered Kettle Moraine areas of the world.

A committee, selected by the association, has decided to put on a slogan contest for the purpose of describing and advertising our area. Many prizes will be offered by the businessmen in this area for the best slogans. More details concerning the contest will be published in a later issue of this newspaper.

Other guests at this meeting were A. W. Siewert of Milwaukee and Frank Hopkins of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Martin Krahn Burns to Death in Fire at Beechwood

Five Others Saved as Flames Sweep Two Story Dwelling of Ray Krahn Tuesday

Mrs. Martin Krahn, 69, burned to death Tuesday evening and five others escaped when flames swept through the two story farm home of Raymond Krahn, located one and one-half miles north of Beechwood in Shelbogan county.

The blaze began about 6:30 p. m. Two representatives of a steel cookware firm were on the second floor of the dwelling preparing a "stainless steel health dinner" demonstration. Neighbors had been invited. According to reports, Demonstrator Vernon O'Connor of Milwaukee was the first to notice smoke coming from the flat below. The Martin Krahns occupied the first floor of the residence and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Krahn, and two children occupied the upper flat.

Mr. O'Connor said that he and his assistant and Ray Krahn's wife and two children started downstairs but found their escape cut off by flames. O'Connor then rushed to the window and called to the barn for help, inside the barn were Ray and his father, Martin. They had just switched off the milking machine when the first cries reached their ears.

Ray grabbed a ladder and rushed it to the second floor window. His father hastened to a first floor window in an effort to save his wife. O'Connor and his assistant carried the children to safety. Ray's wife also escaped down the ladder. But Martin Krahn, along with the help of neighbors who were attracted to the scene, were unable to save his wife, Mathilda. Her body was found near the stairway leading to the second floor where she was trapped.

Fire fighting units from Cascade and Beechwood answered the alarm but the fire was soon out of control. Sparks threatened nearby houses and other buildings. The Krahn structure burned to the ground in less than an hour. Nothing of value was saved. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

Mrs. Krahn is survived by her husband, two sons, Raymond on the homestead and Irwin, residing on a farm nearby; two daughters-in-law and grandchildren. The body was removed to the Pfeiffer and Yoho Funeral home at Batavia.

DRIVER SIDESWIPES AUTOS OF LOCAL POLICE OFFICERS

Beck drove on and the officers gave chase in their damaged cars. Another patrol car carrying Augie Zoll and Pete Jansen also gave chase and caught Beck, whose auto was badly damaged. Beck didn't make out so good.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Plumps for Brannan Plan; Union of European Nations Urged; Publicity Asked in Dollar Parley

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

FARM AID: No "Setups"

Whatever else his critics might say of President Truman, they couldn't charge him with picking any "setups" when he sets out to do battle. The President has a faculty, it seems, for jumping quickest to the defense of measures and proposals that have the least public support.

THIS was the case in the President's latest taking-up-of-arms for controversial causes. He espoused the Brannan plan of farm price supports in a speech at Des Moines. He warned that the nation faces unmanageable and costly crop surpluses, and urged a "modernization" of the farm price support system on the basis of the Brannan production-subsidy program.

This is an issue which promises to be one of the liveliest in the 1950 congressional elections, and if the President was aiming to beat his opponents to the punch on the issue, he had succeeded.

The President's recommendation was made in the face of disagreement among his own congressional leaders as to the best farm price subsidy program to adopt and organized opposition by many farmer groups against the Brannan plan.

MR. TRUMAN called the Brannan plan the most "promising method yet suggested," but left open the possibility that some other system could be substituted.

The Brannan plan is one, briefly, wherein prices on practically every farm commodity would be left to find their own level on the market with the government paying a subsidy to farmers in the form of the difference in price between what farm products brought on the open market and the established parity price.

Opponents of the plan point out that while the consumer might appear to be saving money on cheaper market prices for farm products, he would, in reality, be saving nothing, inasmuch as it would be his money that would be paying for the subsidy to the farmer.

COMMANDER: Some Dispute

Amid charges that he was the candidate of the "kingmakers," and was under the domination of the old line leadership, George N. Craig, 40-year old Indiana attorney was elected commander of the American Legion. He was the first World War II veteran to be chosen for the post.

THE 3,344 delegates to the Legion's Philadelphia national convention gave Craig an overwhelming majority on the first vote. Craig's opponents took the rostrum at nominating time to label him the choice of those they claim always select the organization's national commander.

ELECTION of officers climaxed convention sessions in which the Legion urged continuation of aid to China, adopted a resolution asking the U.S. to curtail "as far as possible" any further immigration at the present time.

HIGHWAYS: Rough Going

Thirty-four of these United States need 20 billion dollars worth of work done on their roads.

This huge highway repair bill, forecast by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) was disclosed after a nationwide survey of road needs.

THE PICTURE was not as dark as it seemed. O'Mahoney pointed out the condition will serve as a backlog which "will afford an unmeasured market for business and industry."

He declared that everyone is aware of the depreciation of the American road system during and following the war, but added that "few, I am sure, appreciate the tremendous backlog of essential work which has piled up."

As chairman of the congressional joint economic committee, the senator recently sent inquiries to governors and highway authorities in every state to determine their highway construction and repair needs.

Tito's Envoy

With Russians reported to be massing troops at his borders, Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito sent Dr. Josa Vilfan (above) as his envoy to lay the Yugoslav-Moscow dispute before the United Nations.

EUROPE: Stronger Ties

At Strasbourg, France, the council of Europe's consultative assembly called for creation of a union of European countries with real power in a limited range over the governments of member nations.

There are many students of world problems who are convinced this procedure is the only one which may eventually do away with war; but being realists, they concede that man has not progressed in selfless thinking to a degree where governments will agree to overall control of any kind or degree.

THUS it appeared the idea broached at Strasbourg was doomed at its inception, but men of goodwill must keep trying, no matter how difficult the task, if world peace is ever to become more than an illusory goal.

It has not been too difficult to get the best minds committed to a problem to see the way to its solution; the obstacle always has been that the individuals to whom the procedure must be entrusted fail in the scope and breadth of the wisdom necessary for solution.

So, when the 12-nation assembly meeting in France voted by an overwhelming show of hands for federal authority for the council of Europe, it was a manifestation of hope and desire, rather than any real accomplishment.

THAT the delegates were on good, solid ground is indicated by this portion of the resolution for federal authority:

"The government should undertake systematic instruction of the great mass of the people, pointing out to them the undeniable advantages of union for Europe and at the same time the dangers inherent in national isolation."

DOLLAR PARLEY: Information, Please

Great Britain took the lead in stripping any secrecy from the progress of the critical conference on England's dollar crisis.

OFFICIAL SOURCES credited Sir Oliver Franks, the British ambassador, with a proposal that detailed daily reports be made in order to keep the American, British and Canadian people advised of developments.

This system of daily briefings has been followed at meeting of the Big Four council of foreign ministers in the past, although top-level international postwar financial conferences have been a bit more secretive.

The publicity problem was among the first which had to be ironed out by the principals in the monetary discussions, as decisions will have a vital bearing on reducing British dollar drain and bolstering her position.

THE PROPOSAL for daily briefings was said to have support from Dean Acheson, U.S. secretary of state, but the attitude of John Snyder, treasury boss, was unknown when the proposal was first broached.

The federal administration already had indicated congressional leaders would be kept informed on the progress of the conference.

The British proposed that officials of the three powers take turn-about in giving the briefings to the press.

CLOAK & DAGGER: Russian Wise Guy

It was beginning to appear—as pieces of the picture fell together—that Uncle Sam had been played more or less for a sucker by a Russian wise guy who pretended to be won over to the American ideology by the Voice of America broadcasts, and who wanted to come to America and be a United States citizen.

LAST October 9, two Russian air force lieutenants, Anatol Borzov and Peter Pirigov, landed in the U. S. zone of Austria in a stolen Russian bomber. They had had enough of Russia, they said, in effect, and would like to become U.S. citizens.

According to the Soviet Embassy, Borzov suffered a change of heart late in July and begged for "prodigal son" treatment. Meanwhile, U.S. agents had discovered the "change" and Borzov was arrested by U.S. agents and held secretly at Ellis island. Then he was flown to the U.S. zone of Austria and returned to Russian jurisdiction.

DURING the interim, Pirigov, who says he wants to stay in America, told newsmen that Borzov tried to bribe him with Soviet embassy funds to return to Russia. It was reported that Pirigov had been beaten by Soviet agents.

The one essential element to the chain of events as to whether it proved Borzov a spy was missing. That was confirmation. The U. S. state department would neither confirm nor deny any of the stories being circulated.

IT merely revealed that a U. S. note on the Borzov affair had been delivered to the Soviet embassy.

There is an old, old adage that it is "very easy to believe what one wants to believe." It may have been that sort of wishful thinking that led state department officials to smile benignly on Comrade Borzov's desire to "change" allegiance and become as one with Americans.

'FAIR DEAL': Author Irked

President Truman continued in a fighting mood. He told newsmen he was going to keep Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan as his military aide—apparently despite anything the current "8 per cent" probe might develop.

Then, setting the theme of the 1950 congressional campaign, he lashed out with a slashing attack at his recent pet aversion—"organized selfish interests" which, he asserts, are trying to block his fair deal program with a "scare-word campaign."

HE DECLINED to name the "selfish interests," still campaigned against the 80th ("do nothing" he called it) congress. Evidently, Mr. Truman felt he knew a good thing when he saw it. If he could be elected to the presidency—when few felt he had a chance—by campaigning against the 80th congress, campaigning against it again ought to do good for his side in 1950 ballot tests.

Getting away from the 80th for the moment, he talked about the 81st congress, declaring that the Democrat-controlled legislators had made progress with his Fair Deal program in the teeth of "trumped-up slogans" like "statism," "welfare state," "collectivism," and "socialism."

THE PRESIDENT said the people will not be disturbed by such "scare words" dreamed up by a "lot of paid agitators, promoters and publicity experts who make a fat living by frightening the people in the high-income groups about forward-looking legislation and by organizing campaigns against it."

Cold-Water Suit

Looking like a swizzle-stick in a giant-size highball, Melvyn M. Maki is shown demonstrating the navy's new submersion suit which will enable its wearer to spend as many as three hours in freezing water.

NEW LOOK: Next, the Male

The American male would be smart to move cautiously, for fashion designers have launched a movement to give men's clothes a "new look" every five years.

"The men's apparel industry is in bad shape," was the dim view of the situation expressed by Myron Kahn, executive director of national fashion previews of men's apparel, incorporated. He complained of no changes.

He declared that not since the days of the biswing coats and belted jackets has man's sartorial silhouette undergone any worthwhile changes. "With no style progress," Kahn observed, "the market's now flooded with goods. Men themselves would like it better, would be more interested in their clothes if they had some basic changes every five years or so."

He points out that individual manufacturers can't afford to gamble alone on drastic style changes. He hopes that eventually they will get together on some changes.

HEELS OVER HEAD . . . Naval academy backfield aspirants warm up.

FONTIFF AND HIS AMERICAN VISITORS . . . Pope Pius XII rests at his summer residence at Castelgondolfo, Italy, and receives as visitors two Catholic church dignitaries from the United States. They are Edward Cardinal Mooney (left), Detroit, and Samuel Cardinal Stritch (right), Chicago. They visited the pontiff during their "ad limina" visit to the Eternal City.

'SALUTARY' CONFINEMENT . . . "Snoopy," pet cow of little Miss Leah Lampan, 4, of Osceola, Wis., never "had it so good," although she is a prisoner. Being confined with plenty of nutritious food and enough drinking water should make her a healthy bovine. Her prison is a silo, and she wasn't freed until the silo was filled. "Snoopy" jumped through a 20-inch hole and dropped 16 feet to the bottom of the silo to get herself into her plight.

FIRE RAVAGES FOREST . . . Fire out of control is one of man's worst enemies and it can plunder a large territory much faster than an invading army. A recent forest fire near San Diego, Calif., swept 7,000 acres in three days and raced toward the heavily wooded Cleveland national forest. Here, men of the state forestry service battle racing wall of flame near town of Deluz, Calif.

THESE LITTLE PIGGIES WON 20 . . . They went to market for the Boston Red Sox and brought back 20 victories. That many victories are enough to make any pitcher smile, but being the first to reach that pinnacle is even more of a thrill. That could be why hurler Mel Parnell (left) got his battery mate, Birdie Tebbetts, to add an extra smile and 10 fingers for the accomplishment. The combined efforts of this team afforded Parnell his 20th win.

MADCAP PRINCESS . . . Superstition hath it that females born at Glamis castle, as was England's Princess Margaret Rose, will wed before they are 20. The princess has just turned 19. Here she poses for her portrait.

MASH RASH . . . Nolan Holdridge, San Francisco, was sued by his wife in Los Angeles for divorce on grounds she is allergic to him. She says she breaks out in rash from head to toe every time she is near her mate.

SPECIAL "INVITE" . . . Richard, radio's talking parrot, signs an invitation to Myra, a bird living in President Truman's temporary home, Blair House, to break bird seed with him on a radio program.

'BUSTED' . . . Col. William L. Lee, March Field, Calif., had too much "push" and not enough "pull" when he commanded 15th air force in Italy. He pushed influential John Maragon in the face for "sticking his nose into things" and was demoted from general to colonel.

MARAGON IS MUM . . . John Maragon refuses to testify at Washington investigation of influence peddling on grounds of self-incrimination. Probers bared evidence he banked $119,608 and declared $30,000 for taxation.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Why School Fails

IT HAS BEEN A PUZZLE to me, as it must be to many mothers and grandmothers, why they teach our children what they do teach them — or try to teach them — in public high schools and in all colleges.

In the past, the only men who had this higher education — no women had it — were preparing for the law, medicine, the church, or service to the state. They were destined to be the rulers, attorneys, doctors, clergymen, judges, colonels in the empire's far-flung posts, teachers and professors. Their studies, of course, included history, higher mathematics, international laws, Latin and living languages. Today we trail along on the same course, dragging with us thousands of American boys and girls who will never need Latin or logarithms.

Awakened Interest Correct speech is achieved because it is heard, read and thought about. Such mathematics as any man or woman needs beyond grammar school must be learned in the express and particular business to which he or she devotes himself.

Any language can be mastered by a person of good intellect in the six months before he takes a post in Brazil or Russia. And similarly, enough history of any particular epoch will stay in your mind when you want it to stay there — and that desire is not apt to awaken until you have some reason to be interested in it.

Turn to any college man you know, unless he was yesterday's graduate, with the simplest Latin phrase, and he will look as blank as he did at 15 in the schoolroom. Present any problem in machinery or electronics to the average college graduate, and unless he majored in that subject and intends to follow it up, he'll know less than the unlettered lad in the garage, who can put his shock of hair into the engine hood of your car, mumble mysterious words, and have things righted in five minutes.

We don't teach them what they need. We don't help them find the glory of work they like to do, because we give them work they hate to do. We bore them to death all through their young years, and then are amazed they don't want to read Shakespeare or Homer. "Gosh, they gave us that stuff in school!"

Modern Conception

I've just finished reading an article on this subject by one Jack Harrison Pollack in a newspaper weekly. It describes what many modern public schools are doing along the line of "Life Adjustment."

Many schools — not more than five per cent, it is true, but that means about ten million children — are allowing older pupils credits on part-time outside work, encouraging the development of character in human relations, personal contacts, individual ventures. We all know that what our children need is strong, fine characters. If a boy or girl has that, little else matters. He is equipped by grammar school to go as far as he cares to go. So the question is: what college work can help to form strong characters, what type of training will guide young minds and souls to true self-development and self-control?

These modern schools are working actual miracles in saving youngsters from the common mistakes of adolescence. They teach sexual understanding, which is a step toward sexual morality; they inspire daring, courage, initiative and, above all, self-knowledge.

But the easier, righter, simpler place for characters to be formed is at home. The national tragedy is that 80 per cent of our fathers and mothers haven't the knowledge or the strength of mind or the fineness of character themselves, to accomplish it. America would be the strongest nation in the world, if they did. She need fear no one then. She would be so much the envy of all other nations that no foreign pagan ideology could find root in the minds and souls of her children.

Woman Elevator Operator Saves Elevator During Fire

PITTSBURGH—A woman operator braved a $15,000 fire to carry scores of terrified persons from the upper floors of a burning office building.

The elevator operator, Sally Rahn, 22, made two trips until heat forced her to take over from another elevator. Then she made two more trips until smoke and heat caused her to abandon the car.

YANKS, CIGARETTES, BUMS AND BEER...

Oils Skid, Garters Fall, Cathartics Fail

... FIGHT TO FINISH IN BIG LEAGUES

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. TWITCHELL ANALYZES
 "I LOOK FOR the most exciting race in years in both baseball leagues," declared E. I. Mr. Twitchell, eminent sports fan, pinochle player and antique nutpick collector, today. "If you wish my analysis, based largely on getting the games by radio and television, here it is. Beer, cigarettes, the Yanks, motor oils, Dem Bums and various breakfast foods will fight it out to the finish in both leagues, and any one of them can win.

 "It has been a very good race so far, with the American league a little faster with the clear-cut commercials, but with the National league clearly outclassing it with the more informal testimonials to popular products. I don't recall a baseball race when the appeals to radio fans to hurry to the icebox for a cold drink were done with such spirit and form.

"In both major leagues the boys who bat out the commercials were in there trying at all times and they rarely failed to come through in the pinches. The game, it seems to me, is much faster than it used to be. When I was a boy, a game would go on all afternoon with no reference to a cigar, a lubricant or a drink. The emphasis seemed to be on garters and cathartics all via the old-fashioned billboards. Advertising as a handmaiden of the national game was minimized. You could take it or leave it.

"Today from the opening cry of 'Play Ball' the contest tingles with sales talks. They are not only using the livelier ball but livelier jingles and selling arguments.

"For years I took my baseball without having my sales resistance knocked over the fence, but today it happens to me in every inning.

"Hitting, pitching and base running have improved tremendously in baseball. So have enunciation and merchandising. The twirling is much better. The announcer throbs the commercial with terrific speed but also has a change of pace.

"They say that whoever is ahead July 4 will finish as the pennant winners. The Dodgers and a couple of breweries were out front on that date this year in one league and the Yanks and tobacco away out ahead in the American. I look for no great change.

"The final result may be influenced somewhat by mishaps. One of the top announcers in the American league has developed calcification of the vocal delivery and may be out a few weeks. And two announcers in the National are out with lame tonsils."

"What do you think of the Athletics?" we asked.
 "I would have to know more about the product they sponsor," replied Mr. Twitchell.

FATHER AND SON

Q—Popper, what is a British dollar crisis?
 A—The British dollar crisis? Ahem. Well, er, it is a crisis over dollars. The British have trouble buying things with the American dollar.

Q—Like mommer does?
 A—Yes, in a way. Haven't you any home work to do?
 Q—But, popper, isn't a dollar a dollar in England just as much as in this country?

A—No, my son. I think the Willis boy is outside calling for you.

Q—Answer my question first popper.
 A—Well, er, the dollar is an American unit. The British use pounds.

Q—Pounds of what?
 A—A pound is their unit of money. An Englishman never asks "Lend me 10 dollars." He asks "Lend me 10 pounds."

Q—If we say we haven't any pounds and offer him dollars will he refuse to take the money?

A—Don't be fantastic. Of course he takes the money, but he won't spend it in dollars.

Q—Then what good are dollars to him?
 A—The kids are playing ball across the street. Don't you need fresh air?

Q—Popper, what is a sterling area?

A—It is an area where sterling is the monetary base. Various countries use different kinds of money but it is converted into sterling, and where's your catcher's mitt?

Q—Is the dollar worth more than the other kinds of money, popper?
 A—It is worth so much more that the British can't afford to use it to buy things until next September. Now beat it.

Today in a Troubled Hour

TODAY in a troubled hour I doubted God,
 And then was ashamed,
 For there came a voice through the darkness,
 Calling to me,
 That clearly named
 Those far-off times when I had cried aloud
 In my pain and grief,
 Reminding me that unflinching God's hand
 Had brought relief;
 Bidding me wait and hope, bidding me trust
 Until I could see
 That he who had never failed, still will not fail...
 It comforted me
 As a mother comforts her ailing child, and my faith
 That had been so small
 Suddenly grew as the young corn grew in the sun:
 Straight and tall.

BROWN-HAIRED, blue-eyed Marta Toren was discovered by a film writer at the Royal Dramatic Academy in Stockholm where Greta Garbo and Ingrid Bergman also studied. The writer tested her, and as soon as Universal-International executives saw the test they signed her. "Sword in the Desert," her fourth picture, in which she appears with Dana Andrews and Stephen McNally, makes her a full fledged star. She studied ballet till she was 13, wanted to become an actress when she finished high school, but her father persuaded her to become a secretary instead. Three years of that, then she broke away, and dramatic school came next.

"Sword in the Desert" is the first Hollywood film to deal with the smuggling of settlers past the British blockade in Palestine. Full of action, it moves rapidly, gives film-goers plenty of excitement for their money.

"Cavalcade of America," back on the air Monday nights on NBC, will once again have top stars in top vehicles. It not only brings the stories of great personages to its mikes, but also those of little known people who have contributed significantly to the American way of life. Such stars as Irene Dunne, Raymond Massey, Charles Boyer and Dorothy McGuire appear on it.

Lloyd Bridges says you can't overestimate what luck does for a movie career. "It took me 12 solid years of struggling in Hollywood before I got my first decent break in 'Home of the Brave.' Then Eagle-Lion gave me the lead in 'Trapped.' Since it was lead I've been offered dozens of other breaks." Modest Mr. Bridges says nothing about what his talent has contributed.

ODDS AND ENDS... Henry Morgan will play a comedy police sergeant in RKO's "Christmas Gift," supporting Robert Mitchum, Janet Leigh and Wendell Corey... Lloyd Gough insists that he has been promoted; in "Sunset Boulevard" he portrayed an agent with ulcers; in "Always Leave Them Laughing" he's portraying an agent without them... Dan Riis, a radio actor for 15 years, made his screen debut in "Pinky" at 20th Century-Fox, has been signed for a role in "United States Mail."

The Fiction Corner 'HELPLESS' ANNE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

THROUGH the opening in the trees above the woods road Langford could see the dull glow against the sky. It was growing brighter by the minute, and now the smell of smoke was strong. In his ears there was the distant and ominous roar of crackling flames.

He stumbled forward, his breath a sobbing gasp in his throat, his face white and drawn from the strain of running. It seemed that he had run a thousand miles, though he knew it was not more than eight. Eight at the most. That meant there were still three to go before he reached the river. Then he'd have to swim across and make another mile up the slope to his cabin. By then it might be too late. By then the fire might have swept down on the little log structure and destroyed it, and what it contained, Anne and little Bobby. He closed his eyes to shut out the picture.

After a while he stood up and went on. The glow against the sky was brighter, brighter red and orange and yellow. Against it he could see billowing smoke clouds and occasional showers of sparks. That meant the flames had reached the ridge behind the cabin. In another moment they would be sweeping down the slope toward his clearing.

His spirits sank. He choked as the smoke grew thicker and the air suffocating. Above him he heard the wail of a rising wind, and above the wind there was the increasing roar of the fire. Anne wouldn't understand until it was too late. She was helpless about such things.

It couldn't be much more than a mile, he told himself. He called on his last ounce of energy and fought ahead. Suddenly a wild hope bent in his heart. He looked up and there at his very feet was water. The river! He had come faster than he thought. But abruptly the hope died. Looking across he stared into a solid sheet of flame and smoke belching sparks. The entire slope of the hill, which was between the river and his cabin, was afire.

Groaning, he sank to his knees. Before him the river hissed and steamed as flying fragments fell into it. Its black depths mirrored the licking tongues of flame with terrible beauty.

Watching with horrible fascination, Langford's heart suddenly gave a bound. He leaped to his feet and plunged into the water, shouting. Fifty feet from shore a dark silhouette had come into the path of orange reflection, wabbling crazily but moving steadily toward the shore. Atop it, was a huddled bundle of something, that moved and propelled the silhouette forward with awkward, clumsy strokes.

LANGFORD WADED to his arm-pits and then started to swim. He called again and a voice answered him, telling him to go back. But he didn't. And presently the silhouette ranged alongside and Anne's frightened eyes were looking into his own.
 "Bobby?" he gasped.
 "He's here, under the blankets. And I saved the hens too, and a lot of our personal things." Langford helped push the improvised raft ashore. But it wasn't until Anne had alighted and he had carried Bobby to safety that he discovered the raft was the hen-coop he'd made for Anne's chickens. Four or five boards were laid across its top and lashed together with part of the wire.

 "It was the only thing I could carry," Anne was saying. "I took the boards from the fence. The chickens are all in the bur-lap bag, and our things are sunk in a box on the other side of the river."

Langford stared at her and for no accountable reason he began to laugh. It was a curious sound, not wholly rational. But the incongruity of it was justified, for it had occurred to him what a stupid fool he'd been to think Anne helpless.

PUZZLE NO. 17

SOLDIERS... Legionnaire Brown, Secretary Johnson confer.

Provide Healthy Snack For School Youngster After Busy Study Time

HOW'S your cookie jar standing up these days? Do the youngsters make a short and snappy line to your back door because they know you always have a nice hand-out for them? Or, is yours the home deserted by your own youngsters as well as their friends in favor of a more friendly kitchen? Cookies are so simple to make, it's a wonder any home is without an ample supply at all times. Most recipes make several dozen cookies and they're both easy to mix and quick to bake.

Chevy Raisin Wafers (Makes about 4 dozen)

- 3/4 cup seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup brown sugar (packed)
- 1 1/2 cups rolled oats
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Rinse and drain raisins. Heat together raisins, shortening and water to melt shortening. Cool. Blend in flavoring, sugar, oats and nuts. Sift together flour, salt, soda and spices to blend into raisin mixture. Chill dough. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Applesauce Cookies (Makes 6 1/2 dozen)

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 3/4 cup light brown corn syrup
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup canned applesauce (sweetened)
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon and cloves. Cream shortening until smooth, then gradually blend in corn syrup and sugar. Beat until light and add egg. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with applesauce; add raisins and nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on oiled sheet and bake in a moderately hot (400°) oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

Honey Crisp Cookies (Makes 2 dozen 4-inch cookies)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup soured cream
- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon soda
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup chopped dates

add egg. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with applesauce; add raisins and nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on oiled sheet and bake in a moderately hot (400°) oven for 15 to 20 minutes.

A few cookies and a glass of milk makes a healthful snack for youngsters after school. It gives them that necessary boost in energy that's needed in play before the evening meal.

LYNN SAYS: These Cookie Making Tips Help You

Ingredients for cookies will blend together more readily if they have been allowed to reach room temperature. If the dough is too soft for drop cookies, let it chill until proper texture is reached. Fragile cookies keep best in tins, with waxed paper in between the layers. Do not store crisp cookies with moist ones in the same container, as the crisp ones will become soggy. Store cookies in tins or cookie jars to keep them until used, but let them cool completely before storage so they will not stick to each other. Cookies should be baked at the temperature given in the recipes so that they do not dry out too much, or have their texture destroyed. Recipes for cookies which call for a generous amount of fat, may be forced through a cookie press, rather than by dropping from a teaspoon, if an attractive shape is desired.

The look of approval on Junior's face is only an indication of how good these 'chevy raisin wafers' actually are. Whether they're eaten hot off the cookie rack or are several days old, they're going to taste like more.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Fricassee of Lamb
- Mashed Potatoes
- Buttered Green Lima Salad
- Biscuits
- Honey Beverage
- Coconut Cake

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

- 1 cup oven-popped rice cereal

Blend shortening and honey. Add well-beaten egg and cream. Sift together flour with baking powder, salt, soda and nutmeg. Add to first mixture. Stir in nuts, dates and cereal. Drop from spoon onto lightly greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate (375°) oven about 20 minutes.

Orange Drop Cookies (Makes 4 dozen 2 1/4-inch cookies)

- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 orange rind, grated
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup hickory nuts or black walnuts, chopped

Blend together shortening, sugar, salt and egg yolks until light. Add grated orange rind and juice. Sift together flour and baking powder. Stir into creamed mixture, then add nuts and stir until smooth. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate (375°) oven, about 15 minutes, or until delicately brown. Remove cookies from pan to a cake cooler, and ice each cookie separately, holding the cookie in hand while doing it. These cookies are iced while still warm so they will have a nice glaze when cooled. Ice with:

Orange Frosting

- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1 1/2 orange rind, grated
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Add orange juice, grated rind and salt to egg yolk. Stir in sugar and work until smooth.

Gum Drop Bars (Makes 3 dozen)

- 4 eggs, beaten thoroughly
- 2 cups light brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 cup pecans, chopped
- 1/2 cup shredded gum drops

Add sugar and water to eggs which have been beaten thoroughly. Sift together dry ingredients and sprinkle a portion over the gum drops and pecans. Add remaining dry ingredients to sugar and egg mixture; fold in nuts and gum drops. Spread thinly on an oiled and floured shallow pan, 10 1/2 x 15", and bake slowly in a moderate (325°) oven for 25 to 30 minutes. When cool, cut into bars.

Drop cookie doughs may be chilled if you do not wish to bake them all at once. Simply wrap in waxed paper or store in a well-covered bowl and refrigerate. Let soften before using by allowing to stand at room temperature. Cookies will bake to a more even brown if the pans or sheets on which they are baked are not shiny surfaced.

When the recipe for cookies calls for a generous amount of fat, it is not necessary to grease the cookie sheet. Brush crumbs off the cookie pan, and grease again, if you must use the sheet for another batch to bake. Cookies keep their shape better if they are allowed to settle for a few minutes after coming from the oven, and removed with a spatula when they are just slightly cool. When you roll dough, have it well chilled so that it rolls readily, and makes the thin cookies you desire. When cookie pans have to be greased, use a pastry brush or a small piece of paper and rub until a film of fat coats the surface.

WHY THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD STRIKE?

Over twenty years ago, the Congress of the United States passed the Railway Labor Act. It was hailed by union leaders as a model for the settlement of labor disputes.

THE LEADERS of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railway Conductors, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Missouri Pacific Railroad have refused to avail themselves of the peaceful means provided by this Act for settling their disputes. They insist that they be the sole umpire of their own disputes over the meaning of contracts.

There is no Need for Strikes
With all of the available methods for the interpretation of contracts, there is no need for a strike or even a threat of a strike, but the leaders of these railroad unions have ignored the ordinary procedures established by law and insist upon imposing their own interpretations of their contracts by means of a strike.
The wheels have stopped rolling on the Missouri Pacific. They may stop rolling on other railroads at any time. Recently the Wabash Railroad was forced to discontinue operation for several days under similar circumstances.

What are These Strikes About?
These strikes and strike threats are not about wage rates or hours. They result from disputes over the meaning of existing contracts. They cover claims for a full day's pay for less than a day's work, or for payments for services performed by others who were fully paid for the work done.

President Truman's Board Condemns Strike

There is an established legal method for handling disputes involving existing written contracts—just as there is such a method of settling any contract dispute which you may have in your daily life.
The President of the United States appointed a Fact Finding Board to investigate and adjust the Missouri Pacific dispute. This Board reported, in part, as follows:

"... it is with a deep sense of regret that we are obliged to report the failure of our mission. It seems inconceivable to us that a coercive strike should occur on one of the nation's major transportation systems, with all of the losses and hardships that would follow, in view of the fact that the Railway Labor Act provides an orderly, efficient and complete remedy for the fair and just settlement of the matters in dispute. Grievances of the character here under discussion are so numerous and of such frequent occurrence on all railroads that the general adoption of the policy pursued by the organizations in this case would soon result in the complete nullification of the Railway Labor Act..."

Obviously the railroads cannot be run efficiently or economically if the leaders of the unions ignore agreements or laws.

Provisions of the Law which are Disregarded

There are five ways under the Railway Labor Act to settle disputes over the meaning of contracts:

- 1—Decision by National Railroad Adjustment Board.
- 2—Decision by System Adjustment Board for the specific railroad.
- 3—Decision by arbitration.
- 4—Decision by neutral referee.
- 5—Decision by courts.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has been and is entirely willing to have these disputes settled in accordance with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act. Regardless of this fact, the union leaders have shut down that railroad.

Innocent Bystanders Suffer Losses and Hardships

There are about 5,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen on the Missouri Pacific. They are known as "operating" employees, and are the most highly paid of all employees on the nation's railroads, but their strike action has resulted in the loss of work to 22,500 other employees of the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they have imposed great inconvenience and hardship upon the public and the communities served by that railroad.

The Railway Labor Act was designed to protect the public against just such interruptions of commerce.

If these men will not comply with the provisions of the law for the settlement of such disputes, then all thinking Americans must face the question, "What is the next step?"

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Every Career
Demands Study
By Lawrence Gould

Do all careers call for special training?

Answer: You cannot do any job well unless you know how to do it, and the simplest way of finding this out is to have someone who knows how to teach you. But this does not mean that the only way to train yourself for any kind of work is in a school or college classroom. Many leading newspapermen never attended schools of journalism and one of the great bacteriologists of our time began as a porter in the laboratory. If you can read and are not afraid to study, there are relatively few careers to which you cannot aspire.

Is aene a serious problem?

Answer: Very serious indeed to the adolescent who is suffering from it—all the more because his parents are so apt to feel that he is "making a fuss over nothing." For the biggest conscious problem of the average teen-ager is "social acceptance," and to feel he's seriously handicapped in winning this by a "disfigurement" may retard or block his whole adjustment to the adult world. Recommended reading for all sufferers from this difficulty is a new book, "The Skin Problems of Young Men and Women," by Dr. Herbert Lawrence.

Is psychotherapy "for doctors only"?

Answer: Most of the best psychotherapists are doctors, and some forms of mental illness ought not to be treated except by a physician. But since there are something like ten times as many people in need of help for emotional difficulties as there are psychiatrists to treat them, the plain fact is that much of this help must come from non-physicians, and that some of these are fully competent to give it. "Psychiatric psychologists," says Dr. George H. Preston, "are not assistants to an all-wise medical psychiatrist, but therapists in their own right."

KEEPING HEALTHY

Helping the Aged Undergo Operation

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS NOT LONG since a physician in consultation with a surgeon often decided not to allow an elderly patient to undergo operation unless it was a matter of life or death. Because there are now so many elderly men and women in the world and they are beginning to feel the effects of the aging process, physicians and surgeons are studying closely the problem of surgical operation in the elderly.

In "Geriatrics," (disease of the elderly) Dr. J. Dewey Bisgard, University of Nebraska College of Medicine, states that there is greater need for team work between the surgeon, the internist (specialist in internal diseases), anesthetist, and other specialists, and that every detail in surgical management must be cautiously and carefully observed.

These patients should be studied not by their age in years but by their age physically, as some are old at 50 and others are young at 70.

One important consideration is the nourishment of the body; if the patient is undernourished, his weight should be increased. While it is admitted that lean men live longer than fat men, it is known that many elderly men and women do not eat as much as they really need to keep body strong, and to provide enough fat and other coverings to protect the nerves and serve as a food supply in an emergency.

Dr. Bisgard points out that with the loss of fat there is a loss of sugar from the sugar or glycogen deposits—skin, liver—and also loss of protein (muscle tissue).

He suggests, therefore, that in preparing a patient for surgical operation an all round diet should be given and the proteins—meat, eggs, fish—should be increased. If not enough proteins can be eaten by the patient, then proteins in the form of amino acids can be injected into a vein.

Another suggestion is that the elderly patient being prepared for operation should be given enough liquids to maintain the proper water balance but not enough to have too much water in the tissues. And during operation, no unnecessary bleeding should occur, as too much loss of blood might cause collapse.

HEALTH NOTES

Psychiatrists make allowances for mental patients who would get better without shock treatment and do not put patients through shock if they can be cured by other methods.

Very few surgeons operate without a thorough examination by the physician assuring the surgeon that an operation is necessary.

Surgical treatment of the gallstone with no symptoms present rests with the patient or family doctor, but operation should not be postponed after symptoms, especially after colic attacks.

Research dentists will now spend their full time in warding off diseases of the mouth, which are the most common ailments of mankind.

High blood pressure is a symptom, not a disease.

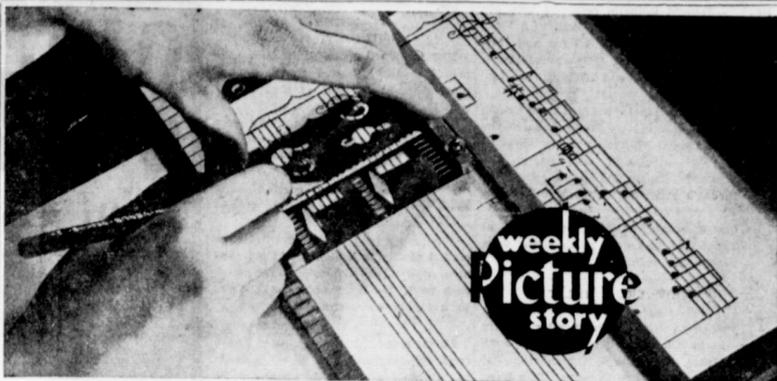

In the electric shock treatment for mental disorder, the patient has no memory of the shock, does not have to have injections into the veins, and is never conscious what is happening to him.

One reason the dental profession is standing high is the amount of research work being done by dentists in nutrition.

While there is usually some pain in cancer of the stomach, it may be so slight as to go unnoticed until it is too late to operate.

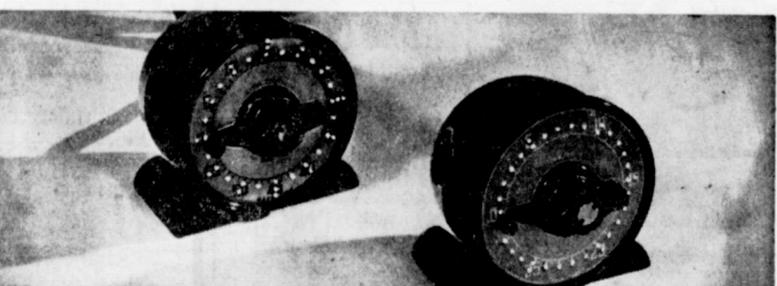

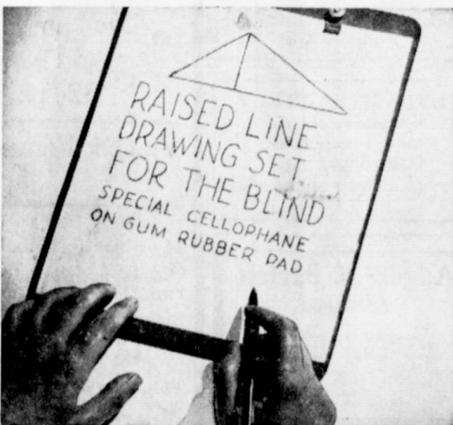

Physicians are urging all patients past 35 years of age with digestive complaints to have an X-ray examination.

Until recently the usual method of treating gallstones was not to interfere with them unless the patient was having attacks of gallstone colic.

FINGERTIP SIGHT

The instruments shown above are timing devices—second-timers for blind people who work in photographic dark rooms. These instruments were developed after studies by the American Foundation for the Blind. At right is an outdoor braille thermometer, popular with blind poultry raisers and truck gardeners and for greenhouses. This product also is a result of research and development at the foundation for the blind.

A standard 0-1.0-inch micrometer plus a simple vernier sliding bar and collar provide a means of measuring sizes accurately within 0.002 in. by touch. Raised lines on the vernier and the collar replace the usual numbers. The "mike" is set to the part to be measured and the size, to the nearest 0.025 inch, is determined by sliding vernier bar up against the lower edge of the knurl then locating, with the fingernail, the two raised lines of the vernier most nearly in line.

How It Started . . .

JONATHAN APPLE—The Jonathan apple was the first variety of apple developed in America and was so named by the British, who at that time called the American colonists "Jonathan."

GETTING "DISHED"—This phrase comes from the kitchen. When you're cooking something and it's done, it's dished. So, you get "dished" when you're "done."

PORTIA—This word applied to women lawyers comes from Shakespeare's play, "The Merchant of Venice," in which Portia, a woman lawyer, is a principal character.

Household Hints

Candles
If a candle is a little too small for the holder, you can make it firm by dipping the holder—provided it's metal—into piping hot water for a few minutes to get it hot before inserting the candle.

Trimming Wicks
In trimming the wick of an oil lamp or oil heater, the handiest thing to use is a single-edge razor blade. With oil heater wicks, saw straight across, and use the metal clips in the wick as a guide.

Turpentine in Cleaning
When an article is cleaned with turpentine, the odor often lingers on; but you can hasten its departure by steaming the garment in the bathroom while the hot shower is running and then airing it outdoors for one full day.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: We have just moved into our new home. We were told to stain our kitchen cabinets and then wax them. After living in the house a month we found that the cabinets were becoming stained and marred by the water splashing on the wood. We would like to remove the wax and restain and then varnish them. Is there anything we can use to remove the wax from the cabinets without harming the wood?

ANSWER: Turpentine is a solvent for wax; use it liberally to remove all traces of wax. The liquid is inflammable, so ventilate the room while working and shut off all pilot lights and refrigerator. If you wish to apply another stain of the same color, this can go right on over the old one, although the second staining will make the color still darker. If you wish to lighten the color, you can apply a wood bleach, on sale at large paint stores.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, ever stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, itching or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may also suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, etc.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous matter from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. All drug stores.

Malaria Still Regarded Greatest 'Mass' Killer

Although malaria, mankind's greatest killer, no longer claims its toll among the world's great as it did before discovery of quinine, the disease still remains the "most important in the world from the standpoint of prevalence."

The yearly number of cases throughout the world is estimated at 600 million with 3 million deaths.

Even in the United States, between one and five million cases occur annually with an estimated 1200 deaths.

By claiming such figures as Alexander the Great, Lord Byron, Oliver Cromwell, King James I of England, and a dozen or more popes among its victims, malaria through the ages has enormously influenced world history.
