Liquefied Petroleum Gas Popular Farm Fuel System Gives Farmer Independent Fuel Supply

The days of the wood stove and coal heating of the nation's farm houses, brooders and barns is almost a thing of the past. Newer, cleaner, and more efficient methods are being adopted at an unprecedented rate.

D. G. Nelson, who operates a 20-acre poultry feed and medicine research farm near Coral, Ill., is an example of what the American farmer is doing about heating.

He found that temperature variances of 4 to 5 degrees in brooder tests completely upset his experiments. After tests with three fuels, he settled on liquefied petroleum gas as the most efficient and inexpensive for his particular operation.

Convinced of the fuel's efficiency, he installed a supply tank large enough for house heating, water heating and cooking. The system also heats two 500-chick brooders.

A new 1,700-square-foot laboratory now under construction will be connected to the system.

Nelson is particularly pleased with the dependability of the system that gives him an independent fuel supply right on the farm.

American Farmers Own 91 Billion Dollar Plant

The family economics bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance reports American farmers now own 91 billion dollars worth of land, buildings, live stock and equipment.

This gigantic food "factory" turned out approximately 30 billion dollars worth of produce in 1950, or a third of the "plant" itself. In 1900 and even in 1910, American agriculture produced only a sixth of its own physical value in a year. Even in prosperous 1929 it produced a little less than one-fourth of its "plant" value, according to the study.

The average farm today is a third bigger, comprising 195 acres of land, as against an average of 146 acres in 1900 and 145 in 1925. Annual net income per farm has climbed from $350 in 1900 to an estimated $2,225 in 1950.

The American farmer has accomplished these gains through a 900 per cent increase in his investment in tools and machinery and by better methods, better seed, better livestock, and more fertilizer.

New Farm Tool

The American farmer is constantly in search of new machinery that will do a faster and better job. Among new tools is a one-man wire-tie baler that handles up to 10 tons of hay per hour. The New Holland machine has a "warner" that makes the baler engine sputter when the wire supply runs low; a hydraulic unit that keeps bales uniform and "twisters" which make two wire ties in less than two seconds while the bale is held under compression.

Growing Vegetables Pay Gardener Big Dividends

In times like these, growing your own vegetables can save a surprising amount of money. A recent survey revealed that $5.25 invested in seeds, insecticides, and plant food will pay you back $91.02. That's a better than 17 to one on your investment. The $5.25 cost figure assumes you have the basic tools—garden hoe, spading fork, rake and trowel. Also, that you spade the plot, and grow plants from seed.

Farm Labor Shortage Is Expected to Grow Worse

Employment on farms dipped to the lowest point in 50 years during the past month—8,040,000 family workers, 2,308,000 hired men. Both the U.S. agriculture department and the department of labor say that the farm labor shortage will grow worse.

If you need help in locating labor, apply to your state employment office, the department of labor recommends.

To prevent unpleasant odors when boiling fish or shellfish, place a stalk of celery in the pan during cooking.

Bake your eggs in cream: add one to two tablespoons of thick cream for each individual baking dish; break in egg; bake slowly for 15 to 18 minutes.

Poached eggs served on toasted buns or home-made biscuits are a nice variation of an old theme. Sausage patties or links, fried to crispness add appeal.

Give poached eggs a new pedestal. Dip round, shredded wheat biscuits in hot water quickly, just to soften. Drain, dot with butter and top with hot poached egg.

Two champions praise New Dry Yeast

Mother and Daughter are Prize-Winning Cooks at Minnesota Fairs

Nine-year-old Marian and her Mother, Mrs. Myron W. Clark of Stewartville, Minn., look over a scrapbook full of ribbons. Mrs. Clark has won about 40 ribbons in the 3 years she has been entering the Minnesota State Fair . . . plus a Sweepstakes award in 1950.

Daughter Marian started her career as a champion cook in 1950 . . . with a second prize at the Olmstead County Fair. Both mother and daughter praise Fleischmann's New Improved Active Dry Yeast. "It's wonderful!" says Mrs. Clark. "Faster rising and easier to use!"

It's true! Yeast-raised treats are delicious. Nothing can top their rich, delectable flavor—nothing makes more of a hit with the menfolk.

When you bake at home—use yeast—Fleischmann's New Improved Active Dry Yeast. It's the best ever . . . easier to use, faster dissolving. Buy a supply soon—serve delicious yeast-raised treats often!

THIRSTY LAND

5,000,000 Acres of Farm Lands Are Irrigated in Western U.S.

(This is the second of two articles on California's world-famous Central Valley Irrigation project.)

The prime objective of the Central Valley project is an equalization of the fabulous agriculture empire's water resources between the surplus area of the north and the water-deficient southern two-thirds, providing for irrigation of more than one million acres of fertile farm lands.

This is how it was worked out. Surplus waters of the northern valley are conserved behind Shasta dam on the upper Sacramento river, as well as Folsom dam, under construction on the American river, and released as needed downstream.

Reclamation projects provide additional recreational features for thousands of Californians. Bass and trout fishing are especially good in Shasta Lake.

The water is picked up by the Delta Cross Channel and flows south to the Tracy Pumping Plant on the rim of Central Valley's western foothills. There the water is lifted 200 feet into the Delta-Mendota Canal, to flow another 120 miles south to Mendota pool in the San Joaquin river.

At this point the imported northern supply takes over the job formerly done by the San Joaquin river. By this exchange, San Joaquin waters can be retained behind Friant dam and diverted still farther south by the 153-mile Friant-Kern Canal for irrigation use in the critically water-deficient areas along the east side of the San Joaquin valley as far down as Bakersfield.

At the Friant dam another canal moves water 37 miles north for irrigation purposes in Madera county.

The initial features of the project, which will be completed and in operation this July, will cost an estimated $400,000,000, of which 87 per cent will be repaid through sale of water and power developed by the project over a sixty year period. The remaining 13 per cent is charged to non-reimbursable items such as flood control.

ALTHOUGH THIS is a vast project, it is only one small part of the nation's reclamation program that has already proved to be a fruitful source of new wealth from the development of the west's great natural resources.

Reclamation opens new opportunities for people of this nation to build new farms, new homes, new industries and new business establishments in our best and oldest American tradition.

Today some 5,000,000 acres of arid and semiarid land are irrigated with crops produced on these lands averaging in excess of $500,000,000 per year in value.

Since the first reclamation project was started in 1903, the west has been provided with 95 dams with combined storage capacity of 82,780,000 acre-feet of water; 35 power plants with more than 3,000,000 kilowatts capacity; 16,000 miles of irrigation canals; 3,000 miles of electric transmission lines.

In return, reclamation projects have produced $500,000,000 worth of crops per year; $33,000,000 in power revenues; $2,000,000,000 in federal taxes between 1916 and 1949; and $1,500,000,000 which is spent in every section of the United States each year.

This is the brief story of this nation's attempt to bring water to thirsty land, a story that has been repeated in many sections of the world since before the time of Christ, but never on such a vast scale.

EMERIC PRESSBURGER, Michael Powell and Hein Heckroth might well have rested on their laurels when they finished "Red Shoes", but they went on to bigger and better things, by screening "Tales of Hoffman".

Wells ballet and chorus. Sir Thomas Beecham was the film's musical director. Mr. Pressburger says he thinks this is the only picture ever filmed around a sound track; the entire score was recorded and the action fitted to it, and never has sound been more successfully dubbed in. "Tales of Hoffman" should be seen by everyone who like exceptional films.

Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures, said "This is the most important deal we have ever made", when Stanley Kramer signed on the dotted line to deliver 30 top bracket pictures during the next five years. In return he'll get $25,000,000. Kramer makes only successful pictures, the latest being "Cyrano de Bergerac", has 12 big properties on his list.

The board of directors of the Motion Picture Association has made some fine new rulings. "Neither the illegal drug traffic, nor drug addiction, must ever be presented; suicide is to be discouraged unless absolutely necessary to the plot, and "There must be no scenes at any time showing law-enforcing officers dying at the hands of the criminals," unless the plot demands it.

Farmers Are Enjoying More Prosperity Than Ever

By Wright A. Potterson

THE FACTS AND FIGURES used in this column were provided by a national life insurance company.

As compared with the conditions of the mid-twenties and early thirties, those operating the 6,372,000 farms of today are following the sunny side of the farm prosperity road, thanks to a beneficent government. Farm mortgages are not now being foreclosed by the thousands each day or week, as was true of that time—mortgages representing farm purchases made at exorbitant prices for land. By last year, 1950, mortgage foreclosures were practically over. The farm had grown from an average of 146 acres in 1900 to an average size of 195 acres in 1950, and the mortgage had dropped to an average of only $850 per farm, a mere 8 1/2 per cent of the value of the farm and its equipment.

That reduction of the farm mortgage represents but one evidence of farm prosperity. That average American farmer of 1950 was 49 years old. His 195 acres of land and his farm buildings were worth $10,000. His farm machinery and motor vehicles, with live stock and poultry to a value of $2,100, represent a total plant value for each of the 6,372,000 farms of $14,300.

For each farm there was produced in 1950 crops representing a cash value of $1,350, plus $350 worth of the products of each farm used by the farm family. In the aggregate, American agriculture is a big business, and again prosperous, with its more than six million producing units sharing in the total of more than 30 billion dollars of production, an average for each farm of $4,700, with an average holding of about $14,300 for each farm, exclusive of home furnishings and home equipment.

Through the past half century the farm has increased its production despite the fact that the farm population has decreased by some 12 per cent. With better methods, better seed, better equipment, better livestock and more fertilizer, the man hour production has increased in the past 10 years by more than 35 per cent. Thanks to the American farmer, the American farm has more than kept pace with other American production. It has done its full part in all of our war efforts. It has provided food for our armed forces, and for those of our allies.

Half a century ago, in 1900 the average net income on American farms amounted to only $350 per year. Twenty five years later it was $960, and in 1950 the average annual net income amounted to $2,225.

That increase was not all due to the government policies of guaranteeing a parity price for farm products. Much of it was due to the habits of thrift and industry that is so much an attribute of the farm. These things, more than the parity prices maintained at the expense

THE ROMANCE IN ELEVATOR

By Shirley Sargent

THE professor had been elevator starter in the six story Brent building ever since Tod Davis could remember. He clicked his castanets, guiding people into one or another elevator. Sometimes he said, "Car going up," or "Step in, please," but usually he just clicked his castanets and motioned.

Tod sidestepped the crowd going into the second car. Valerie operated elevator number three part time, helping to put herself through college. The professor winked and let Tod go in, but it wasn't any good. He was shoved into the corner opposite Valerie by eager shoppers.

Romance in an elevator, Tod thought wryly. Personal conversation, interrupted by calls of "Three, miss," and "Second, please," was nearly impossible, but Valerie managed it.

"Good morning, Mr. Davis," she said now, formally. "Why aren't you at college?" "Too nice a morning to be cooped up," he said, watching her but conscious that every eye was on him. Everybody streamed out by the time they reached the top floor and only two nurses got in for the down ride. Quickly, he said, "I'm quitting school."

Valerie's expressions — anger chasing disappointment — told him how she felt. As people got on at the fourth floor level, all she could say was, "I'm afraid you're making a mistake." Tod had known Valerie would be stubborn. First floor and everybody out as a new stream crowded in. Just enough confused time for Tod to stop beside her. "It's that job," he said urgently. "I'll be making enough for us to be married on. Steady work?"

"So's running an elevator," she reported. "Why don't you talk to the professor?" Tod leaned against the wall, watching the professor direct traffic. He couldn't see college for the $2.70 an hour he'd get working for a construction company. Balance the promise of an underpaid white collar job after two more years of college against that kind of money, and you didn't give a darn for education.

The castanets clicked, the professor's arm moved, people shuffled forward. Watching him, Tod was reminded of an automaton. The professor was a fixture, performing the same gestures routinely. Habit and duty guiding him. Like a puppet, Tod thought, realizing why Valerie wanted him to talk to the professor.

With the elevators all in use, he turned to Tod. "How's college?" "I'm quitting for a job at $2.70 an hour."

"So you can get married?" "Valerie says she won't marry me unless I finish college."

"Smart girl," the professor said quietly, turning back to the impatient people, castanets clicking arm waving.

In the next hush, the professor spoke hurriedly. "I took this job on temporarily 23 years ago, because I needed money to be married. I was going to teach, but the children started coming and this was steady. Great job if you like herding sheep."

Tod watched the professor with sharpened awareness. Herding sheep. A steady job, but automatic. No thought, no chance for advancement. That's what Valerie had wanted him to see. Was Valerie afraid he'd end up like the professor?

"Thoughtfully Tod boarded the third car, standing as close to Valerie as the pressure of the crowd would allow.

"I thought you had to work," she said coldly. "I'm going back to college," he said, forgetting the people when he saw her eyes light up. They shot past the second floor without stopping. "Will you marry me right away?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," she said and the elevator zoomed past the fourth floor level as he took her in his arms. And the next thing they knew, the crowd was shouting, "Sixth floor, everybody out."

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

Community Cooperation Gave Bat Cave A Health Center for the Benefit of All

The admitted necessity of improving standards of rural health and extending services by community medical centers is becoming a focal point for increased effort all over the country.

Last week we discussed the dogged—and successful—attempt made by the little town of Wagon Mound, New Mexico, to establish a desperately needed community health center in its trade area. While the plan which was conceived and carried out by the people of Wagon Mound might serve as an excellent general pattern for similar action by other small towns, it is by no means the only example of its kind.

FEATURE

As a matter of fact, a rather remarkable number of home town communities are working on, and solving, the same problem.

And it is noteworthy that beneath every one of these efforts runs just one basic formula: local vision, hard work, and cooperation among all the organizations and elements in the local area.

Dr. George F. Bond of Bat Cave, North Carolina, explains it in terms of a resurgence of the pioneer spirit, operating to revitalize the future of rural medicine.

To illustrate this thesis, Dr. Bond has a story of his own, which he told the sixth annual National Conference on Rural Health some weeks ago. He related how a group of small communities in a mountainous area of North Carolina combined their efforts to provide medical facilities for the 6,000 persons in the region. Using only existing resources and volunteer labor, they constructed a small hospital which since has made an excellent record in patient care.

It all began, as many of these things do, when someone became so forcibly impressed with the unhealthy and downright dangerous conditions prevailing there a few years ago that he decided something had to be done.

In this instance the "someone" was Dr. Bond himself, who had taken up the practice of medicine around Bat Cave and concluded that something was all-fired wrong when he found himself working 20 hours a day, driving 175 miles daily in a jeep, and doing surgery in a hospital 18 miles away.

So he took his case to the community leaders in the area. They decided—readily enough—to put up a small hospital. Then the real work began.

The men in the original group which had conceived the idea allotted themselves the job of obtaining a certain amount of lumber, hardware, rocks and manpower without cost. The entire community responded, everyone providing whatever materials or services he could.

Bat Cave's big break, however, came in the form of a ready-made building which was bought at a miraculously low price—although that wouldn't have happened either if the community hadn't been cooperating heart and soul in the project.

The building was an excellent, fire-resistant structure which had been built as a school house 20 years before and abandoned only three years after its construction—a tragic reminder of bad judgment of local educational needs. The property was put up for public auction, and a benevolent organization provided the $1,500 needed to make the purchase. Because of the use to which the building was to be put, there was no competitive bidding.

Through concerted community effort the building was remodeled into a hospital in nine months. The equipment of a defunct hospital was bought at auction at a low price. Final result of all these efforts was the establishment of a 12-bed hospital at an average cost of about $1,200 per bed. The immensity of this achievement can be realized if you compare the $1,200 figure with the prevailing costs of hospital construction which run $14,000 per bed and upwards.

Crowning these efforts, nurses were recruited from neighboring communities, and the remainder of the professional staff was made up of local people who had been receiving training from Dr. Bond for a year or so.

And a final word from Dr. Bond: "We opened our hospital with no surplus in the bank, and within a few months were quite satisfactorily in debt. Nevertheless, with the faith and assistance of the community and by hard work we were able to get ourselves out of the red, and this without sacrificing our resolve to treat all charity cases within our territory."

All the wild ideas of unbalanced agitators the world over in their ignorant and pitiable quest for happiness through revolution, confiscation of property, and crime, cannot overthrow the eternal truth that the one route to happiness through property or government is over the broad and open highway of service. And service always means industry, thrift, respect for authority, and recognition of the rights of others

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!
Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "rushing" action too soon—right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.
But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic and diet food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.
Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Truman Relieves Gen. MacArthur From All Commands in the Far East

MACARTHUR RELIEVED—To millions of small-towners across the nation to whom Gen. Douglas MacArthur has become something of a legend, his removal from all of his commands by President Truman was a shock not easily understood.

Grim-Faced MacArthur For him the war ends.

According to grim, stubborn MacArthur, he was fighting Europe's war with arms in Asia while Europe's diplomats continued to fight communism with words.

That statement struck at the administration's very basis of how to defeat communism. It threw European diplomats into a tizzy.

ATOMIC SPIES—In what was probably one of the most dramatic and moving scenes in a federal court in the history of this country, Judge Irving Kaufman sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, husband and wife atomic spy team, to die for treason.

Julius Rosenberg

Ethel Rosenberg

ATOMIC SPIES—In what was probably one of the most dramatic and moving scenes in a federal court in the history of this country, Judge Irving Kaufman sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, husband and wife atomic spy team, to die for treason.

NEVER BEFORE in a civil court of the United States had native-born spies been sentenced to death.

MORTON SOBELL, 34, fellow conspirator, was sentenced to 30 years in prison. The fourth member of the conspiracy, Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, David Greenglass, 29, was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

THUS ENDED ANOTHER episode in the constant battle to keep the home towns of America free.

KEEP 'EM ON THE FARM—The old question of "how are you going to keep 'em down on the farm" showed up again in preliminary figures from the 1950 census of agriculture.

THE BUREAU put forth three major reasons: (1) A trend toward combining small farms to form large ones.

THE LEVELING OFF—Michael V. DiSalle, price director, said in his latest statement that his ceilings have brought "some stability" into view, but that higher taxes and tightening of money and credit supply are needed.

DEFENSE OF CONTROLS, DiSalle said: "We had to start price controls. It was a psychological move to combat the factors that were driving us toward a serious inflation."

Labor Policy Committee At Truman's invitation labor returned to the Defense Board.

U.M.T. DROPPED—The house armed services committee dropped efforts to write a universal military training program that would have reached into the home of every family in the nation.

THE HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEM Large Numbers of Students Quit Classes

ACCORDING TO A national survey of home town high schools, boys and girls are dropping out of their classes at an increasing rate.

MOTORISTS PAY LARGEST Per Cent of State Tax

THE POCKETBOOK of the American motorist is still the main support of state governments—it paid 29 per cent, or over 2 1/2 billion of the early $8 billion in taxes collected by the 48 states in 1950.

THE READER'S DATE BOOK

Fishing Tackle Is Main Street's Big Business as Season Opens

ON ANY warm afternoon in May millions of home towners will be walking along Main Street's of the thousands of small communities across the nation.

AMERICANS, who nearly go wild over basketball, football and baseball, go completely overboard for fishing.

TO THE BOYS and girls who successfully land the heaviest fish in species from sunfish to the salt water variety go national titles, and angling outfits. It is seldom that any contestant leaves the fishing grounds empty-handed.

WHILE ALL these activities are being planned for the children, it is becoming a rare community indeed that is not sponsoring fishing contests for the grownups of the community during the summer.

ALTHOUGH SOME hard-shelled veterans of the rod and reel may scoff at the benefits or even the sanity of bringing a fishing pole and a young lady together, the BPI refutes any doubts they might possess.

SOME fishing veterans will tell you it is a good idea indeed. For instance, if the husband arrives home loaded down with new fishing tackle instead of the fur coat she expected, the wife will understand because she too enjoys the sport and is probably a devoted angler herself.

ER AMERICA is to continue strong and able, or whether it will start down that long trail from which no people—no civilization—has ever returned.

THE WORLD at large is in even worse shape than the United States, for there are only about four billion acres of land available for a total population of more than two billion—or slightly less than two acres per capita.

PLANT BREEDING, reforestation, and improved utilization of soil and fertilizers were among the methods by which Dr. Camp proposed to meet the imminent challenge to America's economy.

NEW HYBRID varieties of corn which have increased production by 25 per cent, and new species of grass which have raised the forage yield by more than 100 per cent were cited by the speaker.

THESE more efficient plants, however, impose new demands on the grower, who must supply them with enough mineral nutrients through the more efficient use of fertilizers.

PROPER administration of minerals may make it possible to restore to production some of the acreage which has been despoiled.

CROPLAND CONSERVATION

Misuse of Cropland Endangers Nation's Future Food Production

AMERICAN civilization will reach a disastrous turning-point within 20 years unless "immediate and heroic measures" are taken to save its remaining cropland.

THE WORLD at large is in even worse shape than the United States, for there are only about four billion acres of land available for a total population of more than two billion—or slightly less than two acres per capita.

PLANT BREEDING, reforestation, and improved utilization of soil and fertilizers were among the methods by which Dr. Camp proposed to meet the imminent challenge to America's economy.

Yeast, Seaweed May Feed Civilization

EVEN IF all the available measures for protecting cropland, increasing yields, reforestation and the like are taken, the world's population seems likely to continue to increase to the point where ultimately it cannot be fed by crops of the type used today.

AT PRESENT, these vital cultured carbohydrates, fats and proteins may not be easily translatable into our notions of bread and butter, ham and eggs, or steak and potatoes, but they are basic food substances, and because of them I do not as yet see ahead on any distant horizon the darkening shadow of Malthusian twilight and the stagnation and end of the race," Dr. Camp said.

Plan Casual Suppers for Warm, Lazy Days (See Recipes Below)

IT'S NOT A MINUTE too early to start thinking of menus for picnic type suppers because one of these warm evenings you might just want to pick up your dinner and carry it out to the back porch.

Some main dishes and salads can be chilling while the temperatures climb. Another way to do it is to have the fixings for a quick supper right on the pantry shelf.

TO MAKE a good supper platter, canned meats may be utilized, along with assorted breads, mustard, catsup and pickle relish.

MAIN DISH meats and hearty salads are another good answer to the porch supper served picnic style. Meats like chicken, ham or corned beef are excellent beginnings.

IF YOU LIKE a very hearty, but cool supper, nice enough for guests, you'll enjoy this veal masked with mayonnaise.

VEAL MASKED WITH MAYONNAISE (Serves 6-8) 1 breast of veal (4-5 pounds) 1 large onion, sliced 2 teaspoons salt 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Place veal breast, onion, salt, pepper, celery and boiling water in large kettle. Bring to a boil. Cover and simmer gently for 2 1/2 hours or until meat is tender.

NEWD different "burgers" that offer a treat in eating are these made mainly of tuna fish, cheese and ripe olives.

TUNA BURGERS (Serves 6) 1/2 cup ripe olives 1 6 1/2-ounce can tuna fish 1 cup chopped celery 1/2 cup diced American cheese 1/4 cup mayonnaise 1/2 teaspoon grated onion 1/4 teaspoon salt 6 hamburger buns Butter

Cut olives from pits into large pieces. Flake tuna fish coarsely. Blend lightly together the olives, celery, cheese, mayonnaise, onion and salt.

Put plenty of parsley in your next batch of creamed chicken for a green color note.

CHILLY and crisp is this salad that alternates very thin slices of salted cucumber with thinly sliced onion rings and lettuce hearts.

LETTUCE MEAT LOAF, chopped fine will go into the potato pulp of Baked Idaho.

TRY mutton chops, broiled, for your next company luncheon.

Use prepared vanilla custard pudding as a base for your next custard sauce.

Quick and easy sandwich uses one cup of cottage cheese and one-fourth cup of deviled ham mixed together.
