Chile Produces Some Of World's Best Wool
Three-Fourths of Crop Is Shipped to U. S.

The small American farmer has learned from experience just how profitable a small flock of sheep can be to his general farm program. And in the western part of the country great flocks are maintained by producers.

One of the greatest producers of wool, now selling at a record price, is Chile. The industry is valued at $170,000,000 and employs more than 10,000 people.

Chile's first sheep were brought from Spain by the Spanish conqueror Pedro de Valdivia over 400 years ago. In 1877, 300 head were brought to the Punta Arenas area from the Falkland Islands.

The huge English Marsh Romney will produce 12 kilos of long staple wool or 30 pounds. This type wool is often called the best in the world.

The industry specializes in the famous English Marsh Romney sheep which produces, according to many experts, the finest long staple wool in the world. Today, Chile has a total sheep population close to 7,000,000 head.

Three quarters of the nation's wool crop — about 15,000 metric tons — goes to the United States. England gets the remainder.

Farm Worker Crop Output Triples in Fifty Years

Fifty years ago a farm worker produced enough food for himself and five other persons. Today the crops raised by a single worker are sufficient for 15 persons.

Although machinery has had much to do with this spectacular productivity record, a major factor is the expanded use of fertilizers. The nation's farms last year consumed 18,346,132 tons of soil food—six times as much as in 1901—at a cost of $744,000,000.

At the turn of the century 285 million acres of crop land, tilled by 13 million farm workers, were needed to supply the crops required by a population of 76 million. Now 10 million workers produce from 345 million acres of land the food required by twice as many Americans, as well as thousands of persons in other countries.

Agricultural authorities say that the use of fertilizer is responsible for roughly one-fourth of the volume of all crops.

The use of fertilizer is expected to continue upward for an indefinite period.

Seed Beds

It is a long time from planting seed beds, but gardeners and farmers might spend some of their spare time during the winter months making one. Seed beds with plastic covers are hailproof, shatter-proof and light in weight. A plastic-coated wire mesh, weighing less than glass, passes on to the plants most of the sun's ultraviolet and infrared rays. This material is available at most farm equipment dealers and hardware stores.

Poultry and Egg Eating Increases, Experts Say

Poultry experts report the American family is consuming more poultry and eggs and predicts the increase will continue during the rest of 1951. Forecasts indicate the average American will have eaten 30 pounds of chicken by the end of 1951, 10 per cent more than last year; 406 eggs, slightly more than in 1950; and about five pounds of turkey meat, approximately the same as last year.

Farm Income Continues On a Very High Level

The national farm income continues on a high level. The 1951 seven-month total is reported at $15,480 million, which is 18 per cent greater than the $13,170 million recorded for 1950. Crop marketings continue only slightly higher than during the 1950 period, but livestock shipments to markets were appreciably higher, reflecting the increased number of animals on the nation's farms.

FORD'S THEATRE

Senator Young Wants Congress To Rehabilitate Ford's Theatre

WNU Washington Bureau
 Senator Milton R. Young of North Dakota is again trying to get legislation through congress to rehabilitate historic Ford's Theatre in Washington, D. C., where Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth on April 14, 1865.

After an unsuccessful attempt in 1946, Senator Young recently introduced a joint resolution asking that the secretary of the interior be directed to prepare and submit an estimate of the cost of restoration. Estimates in the past have been as high as $500,000.

In his statement to congress, Senator Young said: "Each year, thousands upon thousands of visitors come to Washington, the most beautiful capital in the world, where they view with pride many magnificent monuments and edifices. Unfortunately, most everyone who visits Ford's Theatre is disappointed because of its present state. In sharp contrast to many well-preserved shrines, this one has degenerated to a point where a person must rely on his imagination almost completely to realize that it ever existed as a theatre."

Senator Young added that "through the ensuing years, little has been done to preserve this historic place. The property was acquired by the government shortly after the assassination and was utilized for a number of purposes of no historic significance."

The building now houses a museum, consisting of 750 relics of the life of Lincoln, bought by the government from Osborn H. Oldroyd, a native of Ohio and a collector of Lincoln articles, for $50,000 in 1926. There are footprints painted on the floor tracing the path of Booth as he ran across the stage and escaped through a rear door to his horse. A miniature has been constructed of the theatre as it looked that night, and is displayed as part of the museum collection.

In spite of all these efforts, however, the entire effect is a constant disappointment to more than 100,000 visitors annually who walk in and ask "Where's the theatre?" After the assassination, guards were posted at the theatre and it was closed until the following June when it was restored to John T. Ford, the owner. Ford then tried to reopen the theatre, but met with such public disapproval that the War Department ordered it closed again. Ford threatened to sue, after which the government rented the building and then bought it for $100,000 in 1866.

The former theatre was then used for a government office building. Another tragedy occurred in 1893 when the three floors collapsed following excavation in the basement which weakened the structure. Twenty-two persons were killed and 68 injured. The building was restored the following year and was used for storage purposes. The present exhibit was opened to the public in 1932.

THE VISITOR is much more easily transported back through the years by viewing the house where Lincoln died, just across the street from Ford's Theatre. Its appearance today is substantially the same as it was in 1865. Originally the home of William Petersen, Swedish tailor, it was built in 1849. Because the three-story house had more rooms than the family required, Petersen rented some of them. The room to which Lincoln was taken was then occupied by a young soldier. The Petersen house was later purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schade, who for many years were constantly asked by tourists for permission to view the room in which Lincoln died. Long before they sold the property, they had moved away and rented the house. The Government purchased the building from the Schade family in 1896.

The house where Lincoln died was refurbished in 1932 by several women's patriotic organizations following as nearly as possible a diagram made shortly after Lincoln's death. Several pieces of furniture were originally in the Lincoln home in Springfield, Ill. Both the exterior and the interior of the house have been so well restored that the appearance is very much the same as it was the night Lincoln was shot. The Petersen house was chosen as a place to carry the dying President because the doctor in attendance had asked that Lincoln be taken to the nearest house that had a light.

He had to be laid diagonally across the small bed, his extreme height not permitting any other position. A meeting of the cabinet was held in the back parlor, where Secretary of War Stanton began his investigation of the assassination. At 7:22 the next morning April 15, 1865 Lincoln died whereupon Secretary Stanton voiced the historic words: "Now he belongs to the ages."

Eddie Cantor's new NBC show, "Eddie Cantor—Show Business", is somewhat similar. He dips into his experiences in 42 years of show business to relate incidents about the people he has known, with recordings of famous voices and songs taken from his private collection of nearly 50,000 records.

President Truman Will Be Hard To Beat in 1952

By Wright A. Patterson
 JONATHAN DANIELS, the editor of the Raleigh, S. C. Chronicle, a friend of President Truman, a one-time employee in the White House, says in the August American Magazine that Harry S. Truman will be the Democratic nominee for President next year, and gives a number of reasons why he will be elected. No one of his reasons are as potent as the one that he fails to mention.

That is the assured Truman vote of the Democratic army of bureaucrats, a now numbering 2,300,000, and their relatives and friends, who want to see them hold onto their federal government jobs. In the days of Tammany control of New York city, the satchmen claimed that each job was good for eight election, and frequently demonstrated the correctness of that claim. But should each bureaucratic job be good for only half of that number, four votes, there, for the President, to start with, is more than eight million votes, and that is some handicap for any Republican nominee to overcome.

Especially so, when the party is only against what the opposition has done, but for nothing with which to appeal for votes. While the Democratic party stands for a definite, and well defined program. That program is one reason for the Daniels assurance of Truman success.

The people and state officials of California think it is quite proper for the federal government to spend billions in building dams, irrigating land and preventing floods in California. From which only the people of California benefit, but they seriously object to the same procedure in Arizona.

The central valley project of California, is as much a state project as is the central Arizona project. The one difference is the smaller cost in California. Neither project will benefit any one outside of the state in which the money is spent.

But it is the tax-payers in all the states who will pay the bill for both, and the people of the states eventually will sacrifice much of their local sovereignty through accepting and using the billions the federal government pours into such projects.

For those states it means the death of constitutional state's rights. Congress should stop all such appropriations, after than those that can be self liquidating over a reasonable number of years. The Hoover dam in the Colorado river, while benefiting in one way or another five states and though built with government money, was not a gift.

The cost is being returned to the federal treasury, and within a reasonable number of years it will all be paid, plus interest. Others should be financed in the same way, including the central Arizona project, but the wealthy land owners are like all the other indigents who want their water supplied to them at no cost.

We pay a terrible price in dead and crippled for each weekend holiday. Too much hurry to get there.

British born Secretary of State Acheson is a heavy load to carry into a political campaign.

The report of the Senate investigating committee was not specially pleasing to those responsible for the firing of Douglas MacArthur.

PERSONAL SYSTEM

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

JEFF CHAPPELL was dumb. He was a big, burly lad. You couldn't help liking him. But he was dumb. I was assistant coach that fall at Redfield and I had all I could do to keep Jeff in the first string varsity. Head Coach Charlie Judd was impatient about it.

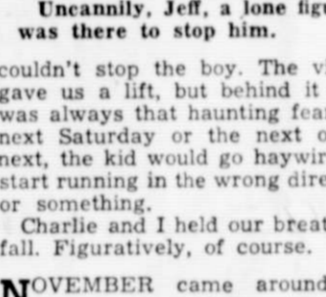

"There's no place on this team for a guy who can't remember signals," Charlie said. "We can't afford to take the chance. If you and I are going to keep our jobs we've got to chalk up a few scores—after last year's record."

"He's the best halfback I've ever seen work." I argued. "You'll make a mistake dropping him." "He's our big hope for this year." Charlie consented to let Jeff play in the first three games. After the third he came stomping into my room, his face black. "Well," he snorted. "What you got to say now? Your friend lost today's game. He lost it because he got his signals twisted in the last quarter."

"But how about the first two games?" I asked. "It was that same boy that turned defeat into victory for us. Two to one isn't bad, Charlie. It's better than any of those other lugs are doing."

"Nuts," said Charlie. "But when Charlie thought it over he agreed. He was still pretty sore. Any kid who couldn't absorb a set of simple signals ought to have something done about him."

I tried to do it. I got Jeff up to my room nights. We went over and over the signals. The next Saturday we played Herrick, and beat them easily. Our Jeff Chappell beat them. You Uncannily, Jeff, a lone figure, was there to stop him.

NOVEMBER came around and time for the all-important Hubbard fracas. Hubbard was our traditional enemy. Beating them was all that was necessary to make the season complete. Two days before the game Charlie came up to my room. "If we win Saturday," he said, "we won't have to worry about being in solid." He looked thoughtful. I knew what he was thinking.

"If you don't let the kid play we won't have a chance," I said. "There's a bare hope of winning without him," Charlie scratched his chin. "If I put him in there's always a chance—"

"The kid's got the signals down pat," I said quickly. "He's proved it. You know as well as I that without Jeff Chappell we're licked."

Charlie wasn't sure. You could see he was scared stiff. He wanted assurance, and I gave it to him. My confidence in the kid settled the thing in Charlie's mind. He agreed to play Chappell. Despite our record and the fact that we had Jeff Chappell the odds were on Hubbard. Hubbard had a clean record. Their victories had been won by big margins.

The first quarter and the second ended with no score. In the third, the Hubbard fullback snaked through our line and sprinted 30 yards for a touchdown. They failed to kick the point. In the fourth the Hubbard left half came around right end on a trick play. Our whole backfield was fooled. All except Jeff Chappell. Uncannily Jeff, a lone figure, was there to stop him. That gave us the ball. We made three yards in three downs, and then, instead of booting, Cole, our quarter, gave Jeff Chappell the ball and Jeff made as pretty a run as you'd ever seen anywhere. Cole kicked the extra point. A minute later the whistle blew.

After it was over I got Jeff up into my room. "Listen," I said "how about it? That trick play of Hubbard's was a corker. How come it didn't fool you, too?" He grinned sheepishly. After awhile I got the story. Jeff never did get the signals straight, but he discovered a system all his own. He'd watch the toes of the opposing players. If the play was going left, the majority of toes would point that way. Instinctively. And the same applied to our boys. It never failed, Jeff said he'd heard something like that on the radio. I never told Charlie.

Defense Bond Sales Total $88,558 in County to Date

The defense bond campaign has succeeded in raising bond sales in Wisconsin to a higher level than ever before. It was stated by Harold F. Dickens, Milwaukee, director of the Wisconsin Defense Bond committee, as he reported on the results of the drive.

With the final figures incomplete, sales for the eight weeks of the campaign, which officially began Sept. 2, and ended Oct. 27, had, according to the Federal Reserve Bank reports, reached $12,986,712 in the entire state, Dickens revealed. This total will be increased when the accounting includes figures from smaller banks and postoffices, which report their transactions on a monthly basis. The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has requested banks and postoffices to submit their bond sales figures during a special reporting period, Nov. 1 to 10, so that full credit will be given for the campaign.

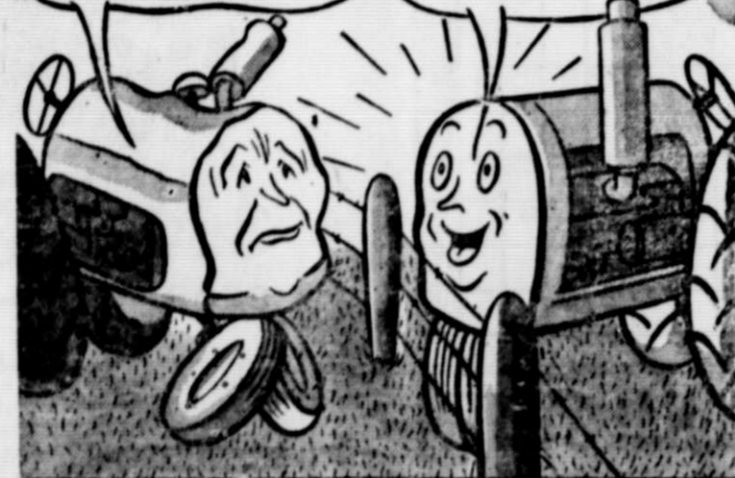

In Washington county, the total campaign sales thus far accounted for were $88,558. Thomas O'Meara, chairman of the Washington County Defense Bond committee, reported. Sales the last week, Oct. 24-27, aggregated $7,150 in the county he said.

Dickens said the results of the campaign were "quite gratifying" and expressed the thanks of the state committee for the volunteer efforts of the

Degnitz Farm Scene of Terracing Demonstration

On Wednesday, Oct. 31, interested farmers from Washington and Ozaukee counties watched a terracing demonstration on the Richard Degnitz farm near Fillmore. Over 4,000 feet of these "earthen excavations" called terraces were constructed with regular farm machinery and special equipment.

County Agents Gillman and Skalko pointed out the necessity of keeping our valuable topsoil at home. They stated that in the short time that the land in Ozaukee and Washington counties has been farmed several inches of valuable topsoil has been carried away. In the case of Washington county ty it was pointed out that 40 per cent of the cultivated land has lost one plow layer of topsoil or more.

In discussing the necessity of terracing, Del Wanless, farm planner, stated that terraces not only save the valuable topsoil but also conserve moisture. He also said that about 16 per cent more yield in crops may be obtained by making the soil retain more rainfall and thus avoid run off. Also costs are less by working on the level. No present and future farm prosperity is not around the corner—but around the contour.

This demonstration was sponsored by the Washington and Ozaukee County Soil Conservation districts and extension services. Kewaskum Agricultural Dept. and local machinery dealers. Machinery dealers taking part in this demonstration were H. W. Kuester & Sons, Inc., West Bend Implement Co. and Coolidge Sons Co. from West Bend; Myron A. Perschbacher and L. Rosenheimer from Kewaskum and Loehen from Newburg. In addition to regular farm equipment for this demonstration a Washington county motor patrol grader was used.

Deer Hunters Reminded of Rules to Remember

Here are some rules that people planning to hunt deer had better remember:

The deer season starts on Nov. 17 but you can't buy a license to hunt deer after midnight on Nov. 16.

You can't hunt deer until a half hour before sunrise nor after sunset.

You can't use a .22 rim fire rifle nor a .410 bore gun for deer or bear hunting.

Under a new law, fifty percent of a deer hunter's jacket, excluding the sleeves, and 50 percent of the visible part of the cap must be red or orange.

There will be a closed season during the deer season, Nov. 17 to Nov. 23 inclusive, for hunting all species of wild animals and birds within a distance of 200 feet from the center line of any state forest road in Vilas county and of any federal, state or county highway in those counties or parts of counties where an open season for deer has been established.

You can't hunt deer or bear in the Water nor use dogs, artificial light or airplanes in deer hunting. You can't use salt to entice deer nor use a tree scaffold or other elevated device in hunting deer or bear.

Deer legally taken may be transported three days after the close of the season.

In areas open to deer hunting, even the owners and occupants of land are barred from all hunting within five days prior to the opening of the deer season.

A deer tag must be locked to the gambrel of a deer as soon as it is bagged.

You can't shoot from an automobile and in order to transport a gun legally it must be unloaded and enclosed in a carrying case.

You can't have a gun in deer territory within five days of the opening of the deer season unless it is unloaded and in a carrying case. The exception is that waterfowl hunters can hunt with shotguns only, except 410 bore, and shot not larger than No. 2 fine shot.

In areas where there is a deer season with shotguns only, a hunter may not possess a rifle unless it is unloaded and in a carrying case.

People in the active military service stationed in Wisconsin are eligible for free fishing and small game hunting licenses. A big game hunting license to hunt deer costs them $2.50 which is the same as a resident hunting license.

There will probably be about 295,000 people hunting deer in Wisconsin this year and the conservation dept. expects to have a patrol force of about 300. George Hadland, state chief warden, is asking close co-operation from the hunting fraternity, pointing out that it is for the general welfare to report any law violation that may be encountered with all possible detail to the nearest conservation warden.

Remodeling? Make It Fire-Safe

PUT FURNACE IN FIRESAFE ENCLOSURE

Cover ceiling joists with plaster, asbestos or gypsum. Keep the pipe between furnace and chimney short and straight. Clean heating plant yearly.

WIRE HOME TO MEET FUTURE NEEDS

Don't overload circuits. Have separate circuits for deep freeze, refrigerator, stove, etc. Provide plenty of outlets. Don't use a penny for a fuse.

BUILD CHIMNEY ON SOLID GROUND

Don't let it lend or get structural support from house. Have solid masonry units or reinforced concrete at least four inches thick, lined with fire brick or clay. Clean yearly.

PREVENT ROOF FIRES

Fire resistant roofing like asphalt shingles protects homes against sparks from chimneys, and other sources.

ADDED TIP

Fire stops placed in walls slows spread of fire from floor to floor.

Four fire hazards actually are "built-in" American homes, says the National Fire Prevention Association, and these structural hazards account for about 50 percent of all residential fires.

With emphasis being given to home modernization today, the NFPA sees this as an ideal time to eliminate these four structural hazards. Also, the NFPA points out that it is far easier to correct the mechanical causes of fire than the human tendency towards carelessness.

HOME FIRES NUMEROUS
More than half of all fires occur in homes. About 7,000 people are burned to death, and about twice that number are injured, every year in home fires.

DOUBLE FIRE HAZARD
Rubbish is a double fire hazard because it may either ignite spontaneously or serve as quick fuel for a stray spark or a carelessly tossed cigarette.

Open Red Cross Course in Mother-Baby Care Monday

A new Red Cross home nursing course in mother-baby care will be organized next week according to an announcement by Mrs. Ray Raebig, home nursing chairman of the West Bend chapter of the American Red Cross.

The first session will be held Monday night, Nov. 12, starting at 7:20 p. m. in the classroom on the second floor of the West Bend Public Library building. At that time it will be determined which meeting night suits the greatest number of registrants and at what time the classes should be held.

The course, which will be taught by Mrs. George Sampson, includes six two-hour lessons. There is no fee.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Haebig, West Bend 1453 or Mrs. Sampson, West Bend 1470WX. Persons interested in taking the course are urged to register as soon as possible. The course is open to anyone interested in studying the problems of caring for the new-born baby and its mother. Expectant mothers and fathers may register as couples and grandmothers or even grandfathers are welcome to take this informative Red Cross home nursing course.

Real Estate Auction

Sunday, November 11—2 P. M.

Two modern, well built homes, both located on Main street in the village of Barton, directly across from the Johnson Packard garage, will be sold at public auction on Sunday, Nov. 11, at 2 P. M. Both homes are well kept and have just recently been remodeled. One home is a double flat and the other home is a three apartment home. Either one or both of these homes are ideal for investment purposes as well as home ownership. Both homes are located on Main street in the heart of the village of Barton, a community which has high real estate value and the lowest tax rate of any village in Washington county. The double flat home is located on a lot with a 70 ft.

frontage and 55 ft. depth, and the three apartment home is located on a lot with a 60 ft. frontage and 150 ft. depth. The properties are open for your inspection on Saturday, Nov. 10, and Sunday, Nov. 11, and any other time by appointment. The terms of the sale are: 25% down on day of sale—balance payable when buyer receives clear title.

Auctioneers comment: This is an ideal opportunity for any person interested in a good strong, secure, investment, with a large monthly income, in a fast growing community.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

Development Association Was Answer To County's Problems of Self-Improvement

(The following report on the work being done by the Washington county, Virginia, Development Association was prepared by Miss Browne Sampson of Stephens City, Virginia.)

In Washington county, Virginia, they don't depend on Lady Luck to grow them crops or a community. By group study, group plans and group action they make the most of the natural resources of their fertile farmland. At the same time and by the same means, they go in and pitch for the progressive improvement of their community.

The Washington county Development Association, organized just before the end of World War II, is a tangible expression of their belief that it pays to plan and act together. In keeping with this conviction, the Association does much of its work through committees, appointed to deal directly with the immediate, special needs of agriculture, schools, roads, fire prevention, utilities, industrial development, government, legislation, veterans' affairs and travel promotion.

Lush bluegrass pastures make Washington county an ideal field for raising beef cattle and dairy herds. Yet, at the time the Washington county Development Association was organized, the local livestock market was about to fold. The efforts of the president and other officials of the Association saved the market. And in a short time the county's livestock market sales were the highest in the state.

Washington county people have found that it is more profitable, directly and indirectly to make things at home than to ship the raw materials to outside manufacturing concerns. So the Development Association supplies power and equipment to operate local industries which utilize products of forest, field and mine.

The Development Association sees to it, also, that Washington county maintains the right balance between agriculture and industry; i.e. that the county has enough plants, large and small to handle profitably local products and enough to employ left-over labor without disturbing community stability.

The Association uses press and radio facilities and a monthly Newsletter to keep members and other interested persons up-to-date on county assets and liabilities. In a mimeographed pamphlet, issued in 1943, it gave the people a detailed picture of industry, education, travel and living conditions.

The Washington County Development Association keeps the people up-to-date on native assets; on the things they lack; and how to go about getting what they need. But it doesn't stop there. It tells the outsider too, about all the good things available for his pleasure and well-being in Washington county.

Vacationland booklets, by the thousands, are distributed. For the prospective visitor, these leaflets paint word pictures of the fine climate, the scenic countryside, salt water swimming, the fishing and the plays they will be able to see at the world-famous Barter Theatre. It was due largely to the efforts of the Development Association that the Barter Theatre, which is the only subsidized theatre in the country, received its subsidy from the State Conservation Commission.

Then, for the protection of the traveler, the Travel Promotion Committee of the Association inspects tourist courts and furnishes the stranger with a list of those that have passed the inspection satisfactorily. Training classes for hotel and restaurant waitresses are made possible by the Association. Also classes in tourist information for tourist homes, hotels, antique shops and filling stations.

The Association's record of wide and varied usefulness during the past six years, proves the soundness of the conviction of Washington county people that "the collective thinking and working together of the citizens is the only way to achieve the kind of community in which we want to live." And the Washington county Development Association intends to stay on the job as long as there is any difference between what Washington county is and what its forward-looking people feel that it ought to be.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD
Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEE-N-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEE-N-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different! Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon, right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away your food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out. But gentle FEE-N-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste. Not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEE-N-A-MINT and feel your "tummy" go again. Get FEE-N-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

U.S. Needs Civil Defense

ONE FIRST AID STATION WOULD NEED 200 WORKERS

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense Administration," which may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.)
 By MILLARD CALDWELL
 Federal Civil Defense Administrator

The most staggering civil defense problems are public education, training, and organization. All must be solved without delay. Immediate training for some 15,000,000 Americans, and intensive education in self-protection for 135,000,000 others are vital. Here are some facts and figures for you to think about.

Try to picture the number of trained workers that would be needed to handle an attack situation. As an example, a single first-aid station should consist of almost 200 workers. They could handle about 600 wounded people in 24 hours.

To care for those injured by one Hiroshima-size atomic bomb, nearly 100 such first-aid stations would be needed. That adds up to more than 20,000 first-aid workers needed for each atomic bomb—but it doesn't include hospital staffs.

An engineering service as large or even larger would be needed to clear away the rubble before first-aiders could reach the wounded. A highly trained rescue service would be needed to get people out of wrecked or burning buildings. A large and efficient supply service would be needed to bring in food, clothing, and medicine.

Job of Helping Homeless
 There would be other jobs of putting out fires, restoring utilities, caring for the homeless, gathering families together again, feeding the people, and getting the factories and community life rolling once more.

Most of the ways of meeting atomic disaster are not new or different, except in size. The biggest problem is to prepare ourselves to handle disasters greater than any that ever have struck the United States.

Remember what you read in the previous article about the Japanese at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. They were almost completely unprepared—and what happened? Their indifference in organizing an efficient civil defense should be a grim warning to us.

Here are some really important things to remember. They make up civil defense:

1. A possible enemy has the weapons now to attack us.
2. There is a defense against any attack, including atomic warfare, and civil defense is a big part of it.
3. At least 15,000,000 Americans must be trained in civil defense, and every American must learn the facts of survival.
4. Without civil defense your city would be helpless; with civil defense, your losses could be cut in half.
5. Your State and local civil defense directors must have your support. They have an important job for you no matter where you live.
6. Read the official civil defense booklets right away. You can double your chances of survival if you know what to do.
7. Civil defense is up to you. Get into civil defense right now.

The biggest problem before us now is to be prepared on the home front—and that problem can be met only through civil defense. Each of us must have a job to do if trouble comes—and must know how to do it. (The next article will discuss who is responsible for civil defense.)
