BISON

© 1953 National Wildlife Federation

Much of the glamor of the Wild West was built around the Bison that not long ago seemed on the verge of extinction. The story of the recovery of the species and of its subsequent management is adequate proof that if man wishes to do so he can use wisely at least some of the renewable natural resources with which he is blessed.

Most writers seem to agree that in primitive times the Indians harvested in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 Bison a year. The white man used the destruction of the Bison as a means of weakening the resistance of Indians. With the Buffalo gone, many Indians faced starvation. And so we find that while there may have been in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 Bison in North America in 1830, by 1889 there were probably not more than 30 wild buffalo in the United States outside the preserves.

By sensible management, the number was increased until in 1926 there were nearly 10,000. In that year, 2,000 were slaughtered for sale and since that time the herd has been kept under control by harvesting obvious surpluses. In 1951 Frank Filbert Roe published his 956-page book "The North American Buffalo, A Critical Study of the Species in Its Wild State," which gives an exhaustive account of the animal through the years. Much credit for the recovery of this animal is due to the formation in 1905 of the American Bison Society under the leadership of Dr. William T. Hornaday of the New York Zoological Park.

A Bison bull might weigh over 3,000 pounds and stand 6 feet high at the shoulder. It might have a total length of 11 feet and a 1 1/2 foot tail. It is dark brown in the forward part and lighter to the rear with the hair on the shoulder regions much longer than that elsewhere. The shoulders are high and arched; the eyes, small; and the horns, short, upward curved and unbranched.

While the bulls may fight each other during the breeding season, it seems that the animals pair. Breeding takes place in August and September and the calf is born 9 1/2 months later. The calf stands within 3 or 4 days and the bull protects his family. The calf may remain for 3 years with the mother at which age the young cow breeds. A cow may bear a calf every year for 30 years so there is good recuperative powers in the species.

Bison are subject to some of the diseases of domestic cattle and this has played a part in reducing the numbers. Because of this, mammalogists have opposed the moving of southern animals to regions where they might mix with the Woods Buffalo of the north. All sorts of arguments and influences have been involved in working out a policy for the protection of the Bison. Somehow a reasonable program seems to have been developed.

Seton in his later days was reported to have proposed abandoning much of the wild-west range and giving it back to the Bison and the Indian. Of course, no one took this proposal seriously. The National Wildlife Federation is engaged to developing an informed public so far as its relations with wildlife are concerned.

SPRING ON THE FARM

Richard Post successfully dragged many acres of plowing the third week in February, on his warm near Prinsburg, Kandiyohi county, Minn. . . . Challenged by a 7x8 3/4-inch egg on a neighboring farm, one of Emil Horstman's White Rocks labored and brought forth, at Round Lake, Minn., an 8x9 1/2-inch egg. Anyone want to try to "beat it"? . . . Though a gain of more than 4,000 acres over the previous year, the 16,729 acres of trees planted in Minnesota the 12-month ending last June 30 left this state far behind other Lake States—Wisconsin 25,000 and Michigan 40,000.

CEMENT POOL FOR THE GARDEN

A fish or lily pool for the backyard can be an endless source of pleasure for the garden lover. Here is one you can build for yourself, and does not need to be drained during the winter. Select the size and shape you want.

If you want a pool for fish exclusively, it need not be more than 12" deep. But if you care to grow lilies and other water plants, it should be from 24" to 36" deep.

Note that the sides slope about 30 degrees from the vertical. This eliminates the need for draining during the winter.

Layout the shape of the pool desired. An easy way to do this is to lay a rope on the ground outlining the desired shape. When you are sure, dig around the rope with a shovel.

Remove the dirt for a pool the desired shape and size. Remember to allow 4" for thickness of walls and bottom.

Install the fill pipe and drain pipe at this point if you intend to have them. A drain is very handy if you wish to clean the pool. The sides of the pool should be made by first plastering a 2" layer of cement over the sloping sides and bottom.

Then, while the mortar is still soft, line the inside with welded wire mesh reinforcement steel. Tack this down with bent pieces of heavy wire to hold it in place.

Then plaster another 2" layer of cement mortar over the top of the reinforcement steel.

Smooth the sides, and cover to keep moist while the mortar is setting. Paint the inside with cement and water to improve the finish.

(Author of: What You Should Know About Mental Illness.)

ABOUT MENTAL ILLNESS

Ormond Beach, Fla.—According to Sigmund Freud, father of Psychoanalysis, the workings of the human mind can be more easily understood if you will think of the mind as somewhat resembling an iceberg. In an iceberg, only a part of it stands up out of the water where it can be seen; the rest is hidden below the surface and is out of sight.

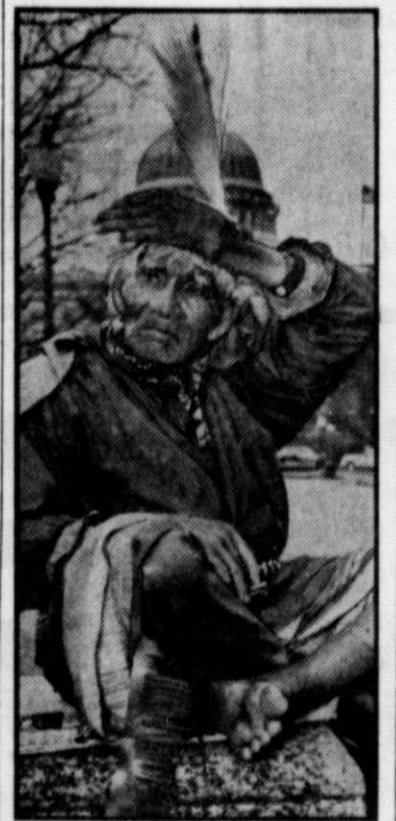

So, with man's mind, most of it is hidden, outside of our awareness. We are conscious of only a small part of what our mind does. By far the greater part of its activity goes on below the surface where we are not aware of it, in that part of the mind that Freud has called the Unconscious.

Freud thought of the mind as made up of three parts. These he called the Id, the Ego, and the Superego. In the Unconscious, that is, in the part of the mind of which we are unaware, are the Id and the Superego. In the Id are located our instincts. These are the impulses with which we are born, our drives that have come down to us from our animal past. The Ego, on the contrary, is in the conscious part of our minds. The Ego learns to know the rules and demands of society. The Ego has to make the adjustments between the desires of the Id, and the demands of the actual world. It is our Ego that makes the decisions whether and under what circumstances the desires of the Id are to be granted.

What we call our Conscience—the inner monitor or judge or right, is called the Superego by Freud. This Superego lets the Ego know, in no uncertain terms, whenever the decisions that it has made do not conform to its right standards. The Superego stands as the stern and ruthless guardian of those moral rules of conduct that we got from our parents very early in our lives. They came to us with such power and strength that they have sunk far below the conscious layers of our minds, to become part of our Unconscious.

Things will go along reasonably well for you as long as these three elements of your mind—the Id, the Ego, and the Superego—get along well with each other. Trouble arises when they come into conflict. Suppose, for example, that some instinctual desire arises in your Id. Responding to this desire, your Ego makes a decision.

But this decision may not be in agreement with the moral standards that the Superego of yours demands and expects. Then, like a stern judge, your Superego insists on punishment. And such punishment may take any number of forms—worry, anxiety, insomnia, a sense of guilt, bodily pains and aches of one sort and another and in extreme cases what we know as a "nervous breakdown."

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS

Molasses Cookies Are Spring Tonic

Instead of sulphur and molasses, make gingerbread cookies as a spring tonic. The sulphur portion went out when a year-long supply of fruits and vegetables was assured. Nor is it necessary to have sulphur in molasses . . . it gets there only when molasses is a by-product of sugar making. "Unsulphured" molasses is sugar cane juice which has been clarified, concentrated and aged. Its rich aromatic flavor comes from sun-ripened cane.

Unsulphured molasses is an energy food and a very good source of iron. However, credit its taffy flavor for the fact that gingerbread men have been, and continue to be, cookie classics popular with all who eat them.

Gingerbread Men

- 1/2 cup shortening
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup unsulphured molasses
 - 1 egg
 - 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon soda
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon ginger
 - 1 teaspoon cloves
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
 - 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- Cream together shortening, sugar, and unsulphured molasses. Add egg; mix well. Sift together flour, salt, soda, baking powder, and spices. Add to molasses mixture; mix well. Chill in refrigerator 1 1/2 hours. Roll out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth. Cut with 6-inch gingerbread man cookie cutter. Press in pieces of raisins for eyes, mouth, and buttons. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Cool. Frost if desired.
YIELD: 1 1/2 dozen.

Date Wheat Bars

- 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
 - 3 eggs, well beaten
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 - 1 cup whole wheat flour
 - 1 cup chopped nuts
 - 1/2 cup pitted dates chopped
- Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating well after each addition. Add salt, vanilla, flour, nuts and dates. Pour into two 7x11 inch greased pans. Bake in an oven 325 degrees about 25 minutes.

Banana Milk Shake

- 1 ripe banana
 - 1 cup cold milk
- Slice banana in a bowl and beat with rotary beater until creamy. Add milk, mix thoroughly and serve at once.

Do It Yourself

Sparkling the "Do It Yourself" products that are sweeping the country and proving so popular with homemakers are the easy to apply, quick drying, interior paints based on synthetic latex, a notable development of the chemical industry.

Homemakers are finding that even the rank amateur can do a good job with these paints as they're easy to apply with either brush or roller. Brush or lap marks do not show, so if you miss a spot just go back and fill it in.

The latex paints dry to the touch in a matter of minutes, doing away with the general household upheaval formerly associated with a home decorating job. And no longer do you have to "air" the rooms—there is no painty odor. Therefore, redecorating can be done comfortably in any weather.

Any drip spots on floor or woodwork can be simply wiped up with a damp cloth. Brush or roller are quickly washed clean when you're through painting for the day. When thoroughly dry, the satiny finish can be scrubbed repeatedly with soap and water. Crayon, pencil or ink marks, grease, catsup, mustard—any common stain—simply won't fade the tough latex film.

Considering that labor represents a major percentage of the cost of any paint job, it is no wonder that these latex paints are turning the whole family into "Do It Yourself" fans.

THE SAP OF A TREE DOES NOT RISE IN THE SPRING

Analysis shows that pieces of wood cut from trees in the winter have just as high or even higher moisture content than pieces cut in the spring or early summer. There is an increase of circulation, however, and the sap is nearer the bark. I. "Popular Questions Answered"—Geo. W. Stimpson.

Teacup Topics

by Betty Ann

There's no chance that we'll ever see the return of the old-fashioned woman with her hooped skirts, shy manners and tale powdered nose. But it would seem that women are having a change of heart in one direction, at least, says Betty Ann.

These days it's not unusual at all to hear the woman who "can't even sew on a button" is undertaking to make some of her own clothes. Women are discovering that's one way to get exactly what they want.

And actually, the modern woman need not be an expert seamstress in order to make some of the simpler things in her wardrobe. The new sewing machines have taken virtually all of the guesswork out of sewing.

Accessories are a good sewing choice for the woman who lacks time or patience to attempt big projects. Stoles, scarves, shrugs, gloves, hats and cummerbunds are among the items she can tackle without going in over her head.

Make a scarf and glove set of versatile wool jersey in a neutral shade. The work will go quickly and the set will prove a real boon to a spring wardrobe.

For the scarf, you will need 18 inches of jersey tubing. Fold the material diagonally & cut it apart along the fold, saving one half for the gloves.

Baste a hem an inch and one-half deep. Then use a fancy machine stitch to trim the edges of the diagonal sides. Make a plain hem across the straight edge. Trim with ball fringe on the diagonal edges.

Use a standard pattern for the gloves and decorate the backs and wrists with the design you created for the diagonal edges of the scarf. Seam gloves and trim with fringe.

A well chosen coat or suit can be worn year after year, as long as it is cleaned, pressed and brushed. A poorly chosen garment often becomes a disappointment and is hung at the back of the closet, forgotten.

Sound coat or suit shopping begins at home. Plan purchases before going to the stores for it saves money, time and materials. Take stock of your needs. Decide the qualities you want most in a new coat or suit. Consider the rest of your wardrobe, the occasions to which you will wear the ensemble, the climate of your locality, the time and money you can afford on upkeep, the way you travel, styles and colors most becoming to you.

Decide on a price limit before shopping. This keeps you from overspending and will narrow your choices so that you can concentrate on getting the most for your money.

Best wear values in both coats are in simply designed classic styles. They are an especially good choice for work or school. For the comfort so essential to everyday wear you'll want ease but not bulk.

At home shoes, wearable with many kinds and colors of leisure wear, from bouffant quilted coats to sleek toreador pajamas, may well combine many colors for maximum versatility.

One group of shoes fulfilling these requirements features comfortable wedge heels and a neutral background fabric printed in red, green, gold, blue and yellow. The pagoda print is Chinese in inspiration, but is indistinct enough to be wearable with many kinds of at home garments.

One style is a sandal, another is a low wedge moccasin type, and a third is a slingback open toed style with an elasticized heel strap.

Oven Fried Chicken

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut up for frying; 1 cup flour; 2 teaspoons salt; 1/4 teaspoon pepper; 2 teaspoons paprika; 1/2 cup butter (1/4 pound).

Mix flour, salt, pepper and paprika in a paper sack. Melt butter in a shallow baking pan in a hot oven, 400 degrees. Shake only three or four pieces of chicken at a time in the sack to coat thoroughly. Remove baking pan from oven. As pieces of chicken are placed in pan, turn to coat with butter, then bake skin side down in a single layer. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for 30 minutes. Turn chicken. Bake another 30 minutes or until tender. If chicken cannot be served at once, reduce oven heat. Brush chicken with more melted butter.

Rumpus Room Is Suitable for Family's Hobbies

BY EDNA MILES

IN the last decade, the rumpus room has undergone some drastic changes. Once the background for ping-pong games and miniature golf, it's now a place where the whole family gathers to work away at do-it-yourself hobbies, or at learning a new skill.

Dad spends his time at tool-bench carpentry; Mom runs up drapes and slip covers, and the teen-agers hear both "long hair" and jazz via hi-fi.

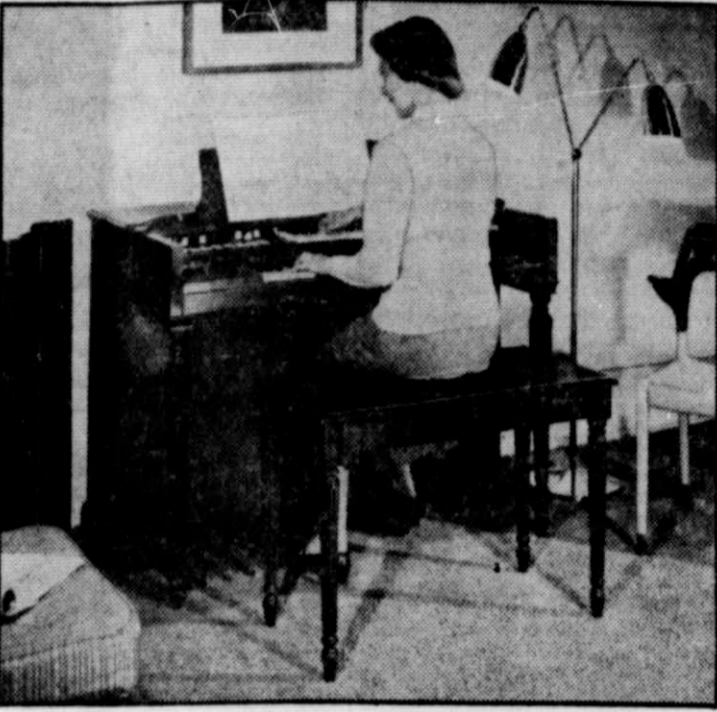

Along with hi-fi, there's a new enthusiasm for easy-to-learn musical instruments, such as the electronic and electric organs that provide creative activity for all age groups.

The easily played electric organ can produce tones that are soft and mellow, for family evenings, or loud and syncopated, for party gaiety. It never needs tuning, fits into a four-foot square and is easy to install or move around.

Turning a basement area into a recreation room is not difficult, since plumbing and heating pipes can now be covered with inexpensive and easily installed boards that decorate and soundproof.

For the floor, economical asphalt tile floors are both handsome and rugged. And in many homes, the owners merely whitewash existing brick walls.

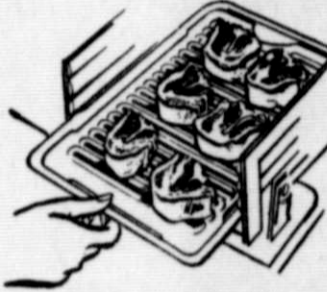

It's family fun to let the young finger-painting enthusiasts create the murals for the recreation room. These can be thumbtacked to cork boards and changed about as the artistic talent changes.

Teen-agers don't have to be coaxed to practice when they have their own organ. The spinet model of the electric organ is designed to fit into the limited space of a rumpus room.

Broiling Meat—An Easy Guide

STEPS TO FOLLOW

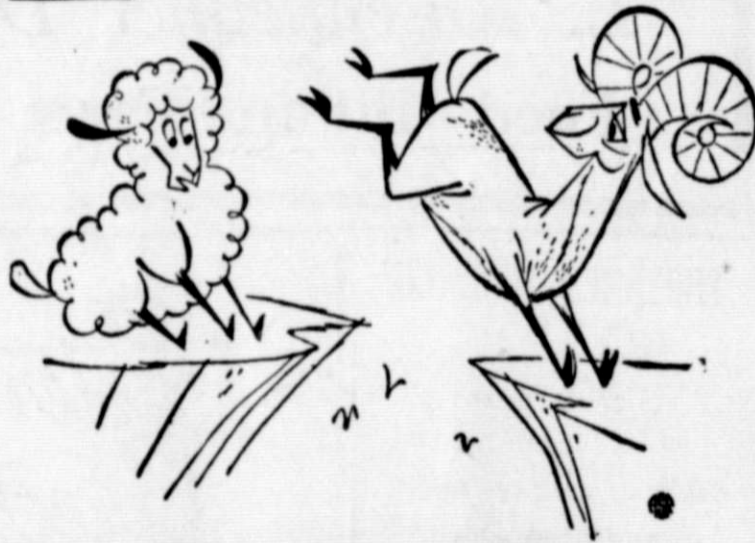

1. Set oven regulator for broiling.
2. Place meat 2 to 3 inches from heat.
3. Broil until top of meat is brown.
4. Season with salt and pepper.
5. Turn meat and cook until done.
6. Season and serve at once.

CUTS TO USE

BEEF: Rib Steak, Club Steak, Tenderloin (filet mignon), T-bone Steak, Porterhouse Steak, Sirloin Steak, Top Round Steak, Patties.
SMOKED PORK: Bacon, Canadian-Style Bacon, Ham Slice.
LAMB: Shoulder Chops, Rib Chops, Loin Chops, Patties.
VARIETYMEATS: Sweetbreads, Brains, Veal or Lamb Liver and Kidneys.

Food Sense—Not Nonsense

Be A Lamb—But Not About Your Food

Would you be a lamb—just to play along the leader? "No, indeed," you say, yet you may permit your eating habits to be influenced by the talk-of-the-day.

Conversations over American dinner tables frequently come around to calories. Too often, good foods are rejected solely on the basis of their reputed calorie count learned through hearsay. Other times, the estimation of calories is mere guesswork. This confusion causes essential foods to be called "high energy or high calorie" foods which mistakenly are condemned as fattening.

Products which supply protein, minerals or vitamins are more than "energy" foods despite their calorie content. Only those foods which are primarily sources of calories, such as sugar and certain fats, should be thought of as "high energy" foods.

One does not consider milk as a "high energy" food even though a glass of milk furnishes 165 calories. About one-fourth of the solids of milk is protein and milk is an excellent source of calcium and riboflavin. Likewise, one should not think of bread as a "high energy" food just because a slice of enriched bread furnishes 63 calories. Enriched bread provides protein and in addition calcium, iron and the three B vitamins—riboflavin, niacin, and thiamine.

It is revealing that calorie-wise, varieties of bread are not so different. Enriched bread, rye, whole wheat and various specialty breads all contain nearly the same number of calories, ounce for ounce.

Selection of foods should be on a functional basis as are many of the other choices made in modern living. This thought applies to those who are concerned with reducing the total number of calories in their daily diet. They should limit those foods which furnish nothing but calories more drastically than foods such as milk, enriched bread, eggs and meat which furnish a good cross section of the various needed nutrients.

Dwarf Trees Bear Full-Sized Fruit; Having Your Own Orchard Now Easy

You can make your dream of having your own orchard come true—even if the grounds around your house are small, according to Isabel and Wellington Kennedy, gardening experts. Modern horticulture has solved the problem with recently-developed dwarf trees that bear full-sized fruit, they say, so that within the confines of a garden you can grow all the popular varieties. They also give advice on other gardening problems.

"Tailor-made trees are necessary for the scale of the typical modern home. With dwarf fruits, you can have a complete orchard of apples, pears, peaches, cherries and plums, all in miniature, but with full-sized fruit.

"These dwarf trees have been used for centuries in European gardens where every inch of space is precious. Modern horticulture has developed standardized dwarfing root stocks to make it possible for you to grow all the popular varieties within a garden. These roots, on which the normal fruit tree is grafted, are very slow-growing, which in turn restricts the size of the top of the tree. Among apples, for instance, there is 'East Malling IX understock,' which produces a miniature tree of 6 to 9 feet in height. Another is 'East Malling VII,' for semi-dwarf sizes.

"The dwarfest kinds will bear fruit only a year or two after planting, since the restricting of the vegetative growth brings the tree into quick bearing. No ladders will be needed to pick the fruit from the smallest of the dwarf types. These can be planted 10 feet apart, and up to 20 feet for the semi-dwarfs.

"When you plant these trees, make sure that the 'union' or graft is planted above the ground, because if roots should form above the graft, the vigor of the standard tree would return and all the dwarfing characteristics be lost. It is best to provide a pipe or stake support when you plant, because the roots are brittle in the dwarf types and they may be damaged by high winds.

"To obtain good fruit, the trees must be sprayed in a systematic manner, following a regular spray program, the same as in any orchard. Learn the procedure for each kind of fruit—from your state experiment station if necessary.

"Here is other gardening advice for the home gardener: Just arrived is a small book called

Bible Comment:

The Great Contrast Between Society And Christianity

PAUL once summed up what Jesus had said and taught by saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

There, in a sentence, is the contrast with a world whose daily life largely concerns the business of getting.

Men try to soften that contrast by talking about "enlightened self-interest," and by emphasizing the advantages of a free, competitive system.

Certainly the system is more advantageous than any other system which society has developed and it should not be sacrificed for any system of totalitarianism.

But the contrast between the best that society has developed and what the coming of the kingdom of God would mean is so great as to raise the question whether Christianity can really be made to work in a Christian society.

It is obvious that the noblest Christian lives, such as those of the late Jane Addams and Grenfell Labrador, are lived upon the basis of something higher than the profit motive.

But it is equally obvious that the businessman, when he goes from his church on Sunday to his business on Monday, has to make a profit or go out of business.

It is also obvious that we are all, in a way, parts of our environment and subject to all some of its limitations.

So, in a sense, our problem becomes that of putting into a world still so largely un-Christian as much Christian living as we can.

One might compare Christians to those living in a house while it is being made over.

There is no world to which we can move out, while the remaking process goes on, and much adaptation is inevitable. Yet great, effective transformations can be made if the Christian goal and the Christian purpose are never forgotten.

SIGNIFICANT NAMES

When a girl named Cole marries a gentleman named Clinker on a license issued by a clerk named Love, it makes the national news columns. It seems equally worthy of wide note that at Howard Lake a firm handling dynamite and other explosives is operated by Leonard and Bud Dangers.

LUCKY PEOPLE

Cribbage is more than a hobby, it is almost a profession, with the Tony Dasingers at Pelican Rapids, Minn. In mid-February Mrs. Dasinger held, for their 7,354th game, that cynosure of all cribbage-peggers, a perfect 29 hand. Her second! The first was somewhere around their 800th game. It's Mr. Dasinger's turn next—his only perfect hand in this pegging marathon was around the 1,200th game. . . . The four children of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Anderson, Elmore, boast historic birth days: Lincoln's, Washington's, Cleveland's, and the anniversary of Lindbergh's Atlantic crossing. . . . W. R. Stephens, Minneapolis, is the only Upper Midwest member of the national Automobile Old Timers Association, honoring pioneers in the manufacture and distribution of cars.

EYE-OPENING FASHION—Miami is brought to Manhattan as a model displays a summer suit with fruit-bearing hat and bag in New York City. The gentleman in the background seems overly interested, and we don't blame him.

STRICTLY BUSINESS by McFeatters

"Instead of retiring on pension, may I start over again as office boy?"

Will Increased Patent Office Fees DISCOURAGE Inventors?

It's a long, hard climb up the hill to invention. The inventor's burdens include costs for tools, materials, repeated experiments, fees at the Patent Office, and for an attorney to obtain his patent. If he makes a profit, he must pay discriminatory taxes. Now it is proposed to place the Patent Office on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. This could mean a substantial jump from the present Patent Office fee of $80 for each patent. New inventions are essential for industrial progress and our national security. Would many inventors balk at the burden of increased Patent Office fees added to their present burdens?

PATENTS INSPIRE INVENTIONS . . . INVENTIONS BUILD AMERICA!

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Today wood boats are taking on a new look. They are being covered with a new material—glass cloth, with resin filler and binder. This material not only permanently leakproofs the craft, but also adds strength, and cuts out a lot of upkeep work such as painting, caulking and minor leak repairs.

The average sportsman, with no previous experience, can do a serviceable job of covering a small boat with glass cloth if he is at all handy with tools, and if he will take time to study the job carefully and practice a little before starting.

All manufacturers of glass cloth offer good instructions, but they point out that there are some pitfalls you must watch out for. One caution against using more resin than necessary to fill the cloth, especially on the final coat, because a bumpy surface will result.

The covering can shrink some. One manufacturer says 2 per cent. So to prevent pulling away at the keel, overlapping there is often recommended.

Only cloth that's intended for boats should be used. The hull must be dry before you start to work. Wear goggles while you're sanding glass cloth. Some even recommend nose pads, too, to keep glass dust out of your lungs.

What sort of boat can the amateur cover with the best chance of success? Willard Crandall, boats and motors expert for Sports Afield magazine, says to leave the new, factory-built craft alone. A good new boat should give you excellent initial service as is. The time to consider glass cloth is when use and wear start to take their toll.

Also, the amateur should not waste time and money on a craft with shot framework. It is too much to expect that glass cloth will hold together anything like that for long; or that rot will stop if hidden by glass cloth, or that it will make bad planking sound. Some outboards that have been used a lot may have oil and grease soaked through the aft planking or transom, making adherence of the glass lamination impossible.

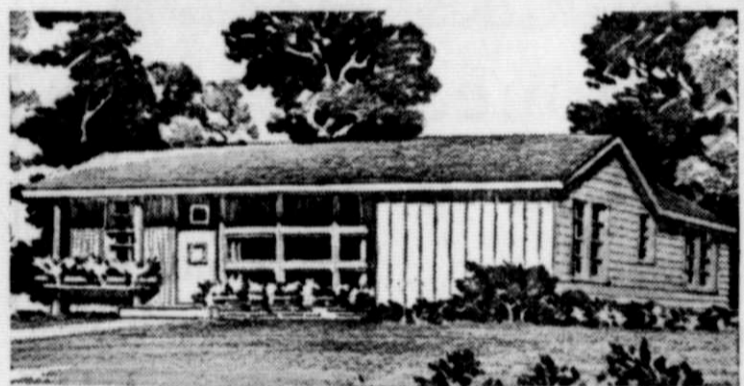

Any type of bottom can be covered—round, V, flat or combinations.

As plywood does not take abrasion as well, and contracts and expands a minimum, your most successful glass coverings can probably be made on plywood craft. Second best bets are double-planked or narrow-planked boats.

She's Got a Point

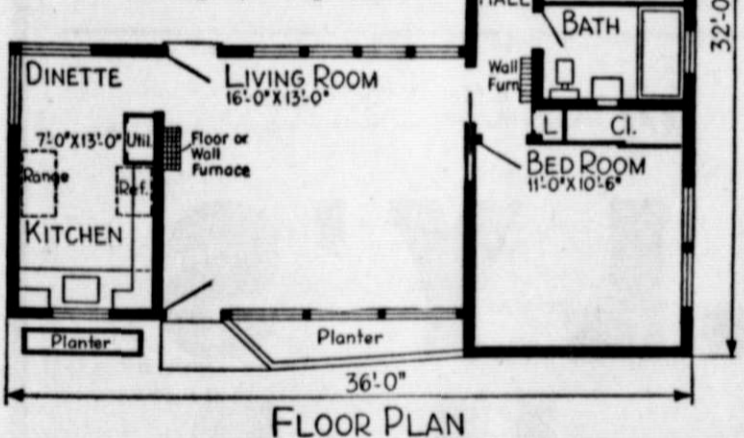

"Mother," said my neighbor's daughter, "why can't we have a television set?" "Oh, because I'm afraid I would waste too much time," said her mother. "Yes," replied the little girl, but, Mommy, think of all the time you would save looking for me at the neighbors."

Simplicity Stressed in Plan from Small Homes Guide

Architect Eugene Holt achieves a high point in simplicity in this L-shaped house, which appears in the current edition of Small Homes Guide. Construction of the tiny home would be inexpensive in any area.

Note that the living room extends from the front of the house to the back and that the bedroom area is secluded from the rest of the house. The total area is 720 sq. ft. For information on blueprints and their cost, write to Small Homes Guide, Dept. 1334, 82 W. Washington, Chicago 2, Illinois.

Here's the Answer

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A TELEPHONE WALL DESK

A telephone desk provides a place for the books and pencils and pads as well as the phone itself.

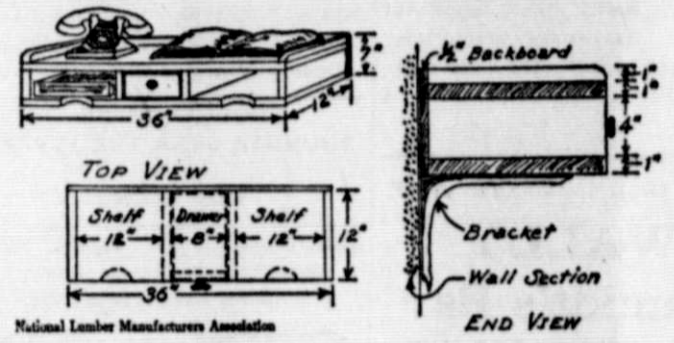

Two 12 x 36-inch pieces of 1-inch lumber form the top and bottom. Or, the top and bottom may be made of 1 x 4's, edge-glued. The sides and the drawer slots are made of 1 x 4 lumber, each piece 12 inches long. A drawer may be made or the space may be left open as a pigeon hole. Either way keeps pads and pencils from wandering.

First make the cut-outs in the bottom boards. The centers of the half-circles should be 7 inches from the front corners. The ends and separator pieces are fastened from the bottom with 1 1/4-inch wood screws. In fastening the top board use screws on the ends, and 2-inch finishing nails to hold the pieces forming the pigeon hole. The heads of the nails are sunk and hidden with wood filler.

A 1/2-inch back board, 7 x 36 inches, projects 1 inch above the top, providing a rail. The two side rails, 1 x 1 inch, 12 inches long, are fastened with finishing nails. Their front corners may be rounded with a rasp or beveled with a saw.

Hardware brackets fasten the desk to the wall. On a plaster wall, the brackets should be placed so as to screw to a stud beneath the plaster.

MAKE A TELEPHONE WALL DESK

The telephone plays such an important part in the modern home that it warrants a special piece of furniture to accommodate it, the necessary phone books, and a drawer for pads and pencils. Since the telephone is limited in its placement by the wires, a telephone desk may be attached to the wall. However, the attractive telephone wall desk can be provided with legs, if mobility is desired.

Two 12 by 36-inch pieces form the top and bottom of the desk. These may be all one piece, or made of 1 x 4's edge-glued. This size is ample to accommodate an open book and the telephone. The sides and drawer slot are made of 1 by 4 material—four pieces, all 12 inches long. A drawer 8 inches wide may be included; or a pigeon hole, without a drawer, may be left to keep pencils and paper pads from wandering. The two book slots are provided with a convenient cut-out, to save fumbling for the books. The cut-outs, centered at the front of each book slot, may be made as half-circles, as shown, if a coping saw is used; or they may be V-shaped with an ordinary saw.

To make the desk, first make the cut-outs in the bottom board. Note that the center of each cut-out is 7 inches from the front corner of the board. Then on the bottom board, line out with pencil the placement of the ends and separator pieces. These pieces are then fastened with 1 1/2-inch wood screws, from the bottom. The top board is then fastened to the separators, using screws on the two end pieces, and 2-inch finishing nails to hold the top to the two pieces forming the drawer slot or pigeon hole. The nail heads should be sunk into the wood, and the holes filled with a wood filler. A 1/2-inch back board, 7 by 36, nailed across the back projects 1 inch above the top to provide a back rail. The two side rails, 1 by 1-inch, 12 inches long, may be fastened with finishing nails or glue, and their corners may be rounded with a rasp, as shown, or beveled.

For fastening to the wall, hardware brackets are used. If the wall desk is fastened to a wood panel wall, the brackets may be placed easily. If, however, the desk is fastened to a plaster wall, it will be necessary first to find the placement of studs beneath the plaster. These are generally 16 or 18 inches apart. While the desk can be anchored to a plaster wall by use of long toggle bolts, made for this purpose, it will be more secure if the braces are fastened to the studs. On plaster walls, it may be advisable, when using hardware braces, to place a wood plate between the wall and the braces. This keeps the braces from "biting" into the plaster.

If the desk is to be provided with a chair, it should be placed so the top is 30 inches from the floor; but if it is to be used as a "stand-up" as in a store, it should be 44 to 46 inches from the floor.

Cleanliness A Must By Those Eating Out

"Where's a good place to eat in this town?" How many of us have not been asked this question by some stranger; or asked the question ourselves as we traveled the length and breadth of our state. Eating out now and then has very nearly become a universal habit, probably because of the high standards of cleanliness and the wholesome food to be found in many eating places these days.

But how does one judge a good place to dine? What are some of the "signs" one looks for as he selects a place to eat? As we drive up to a restaurant, we already begin to observe things. We notice that the establishment is well lighted, and we're secretly delighted because we've always felt that a dimly lighted place as a rule is a dirty place. "Clear, sparkling windows—good ventilation," we reason.

As we enter the cafe we look around a bit more. The floors and fixtures are clean; the cups and glasses are stacked neatly on a tray—bottoms up! Behind the counter are glass enclosed shelves of tempting cakes, pies, bread and cookies—no dust or flies can get at them. And as we approach a table we note with satisfaction that the tablecloths and the tables themselves are sparkling clean.

Our waitress approaches—her uniform neatly starched and clean. Her hair is carefully combed and held in place by a net. On inquiring concerning the badge she wears, she informs us that it signifies her attendance at one of the food-handlers schools conducted by the hotel and restaurant division of the state board of health. In fact, now that we notice it, all the employees seem to be wearing these badges.

Yes, it's a pleasure to dine in clean and pleasant surroundings—confident that the kitchen is as clean as the dining room. Most restaurant proprietors know that wholesome food served in clean surroundings means good business. More and more of them are cooperating to make "eating out" a genuine pleasure.

Italy Moves to Rescue Matera Cave Dwellers

Escape is at hand after 3,000 years for the cave dwellers of Matera in southern Italy's economically desolate Lucania.

With American aid, the postwar government has already moved 50 families out of Matera's "Sassi" district—sassi means "stones," and in classical Italian, "tomb" as well—to the new model village of LaMartella a few miles north. Caves To Be Sealed

Eventually, reports the National Geographic Society, all 15,000 once-despairing troglodytes are to go to La Martella or similar modern communities. The 2,142 dank, gloomy caverns, in which for 30 centuries childhood mortality was 50 percent, are to be sealed forever.

War and malaria have been the twin curses of Lucania since it was part of ancient "Magna Graecia." Along its swampy seacoasts, so near the garden of Sorrento, and in its gloomy Apennine gorges, cousin fought cousin in the ferocious warfare between the Greek city-states.

Through once-magnificent oak forest swept the hordes of Alaric the Goth with the spoils of Rome. Hannibal's elephants trampled the olive groves and the vineyards that grew in the volcanic soil.

Norman's Byzantines and Saracens of Algiers in turn laid waste the land, along with the brigand allies of the Spanish Bourbons who ruled the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies. Earthquakes completed the destruction begun by armies.

Rivers rampaged through despoiled forests, building new swamps from which arose more swarms of deadly mosquitoes. Wolves foraged literally to the doors of hovels where embittered people lay burning and shivering with malaria.

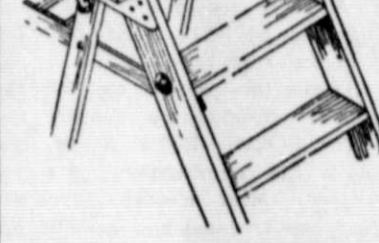

Long after Garibaldi helped unify Italy in 1860, Lucania and neighboring Calabria to the south were scarcely more known to northern Italians than New York is to a Greenland Eskimo. Tax collectors were the only regular visitors from Rome. The citizens were abandoned to illiteracy, superstition and barbarism.

Mussolini's government drained a few Lucanian swamps, hoping to stem a tide of emigration to America and North Italy that threatened to depopulate the whole south. During World War II, fighting between the retreating Germans and Lord Montgomery's 8th Army wrecked the few improvements.

When hostilities ceased, the Italian government first rebuilt the million or more Italian homes destroyed in the fighting. Then it turned to the age-old "Question of the South." Matera is among the first beneficiaries in the long-neglected area.

BROKEN CINCH SADDLE CLUB NEWS

The monthly meeting of the Broken Cinch Saddle club of Fond du Lac was held at the Civic building, at the fairgrounds. It was presided over by Carol Schmitz, president, and Virginia Davis, vice-president. The minutes were read by Cecelia Thull, recording secretary, and the financial secretary, Ida Backus, made her report. The latter two members are from Kewaskum.

An interesting report on the different breeds of horses was given by Tom Schmitz. Donna Warner described the conformation of a good horse. Carol showed some different types of saddles, bridles, and other riding equipment. Cake and hot chocolate was served.

Our congratulations on the forthcoming marriage of our sergeant-at-arms, Robert Oemig, and Mae Spradau, May first is the date set. Congratulations are also in order to our president, who, since Feb. 24, at 12:45 p. m., is the proud owner of a black filly, Hi-Noon, out of Frosty Morning, by Midnight. (This reporter was told that she was sending out announcements and giving out cigars. What about that, Carol?)

Spring is here and it's time for all you horse-lovers and riding enthusiasts to start coming out to the stables and go riding. When warm weather comes, the club will resume the trail rides, winner roasts, swims, etc. which were enjoyed by its members last summer. There are also every day rides at the fairgrounds and surrounding area for anyone, whether they are a member or not.

We sure would like to see all of you at the stables soon, joining the club and sharing in all its activities.

YOUNG ADULT CLUB OF COUNTY MEETS

The March meeting of the Washington County Young Adult club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Falter, Ione Stodola, vice-president, opened the business meeting. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The financial report was given by the treasurer, Lee Krebs. Committee members in charge of the card party gave their report, and plans for the card party, which was held in March, were completed.

Barbara Falter, Bob Stodola, John Gyant, and LeRoy Kahlscheuer are committee members in charge of finding some land which the club can purchase for the proposed 4-H club forest.

Following the meeting, games were played and lunch was served by our hostess. The 22 members and 10 guests present had a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stodola will be in charge of the next meeting on April 20.
