"SEWING" OF IKE—Mamie Eisenhower sees many portraits of her husband, but this one was different. So she invited to the White House the artist, 24-year-old Maria Esther Carrera, left, of Chihuahua, Mexico. The portrait was done on muslin on an old-fashioned treadle sewing machine.

"BUMS" COME HOME—"Preacher" Roe, dean of the Brooklyn Dodger pitching staff, eases the road home for outfielder Carl Furillo, seated. The team had just arrived in New York prior to the opening of the baseball season.

RED-BELLIED WOODPECKER

Here is a relatively shy woodpecker found in forested lands or about the shade trees of small, quiet communities. It is much more cautious than the commoner Downy Woodpecker, the Hairy Woodpecker or the Flicker, or for that matter, than the more conspicuous Red-headed Woodpecker. It measures just under 11 inches and is therefore a couple of inches shorter than the Flicker which in many respects it resembles rather closely. It has a wingspread of 18 inches.

In the male Red-bellied Woodpecker, the crown and nape are a lighter red than one finds in the Red-headed Woodpecker, the back is conspicuously dark striped. A spot of white shows at the base of the tail like that seen in the flicker and the breast, throat and cheeks are pale brown. In the female, the red on the head is confined to the nape with the crown becoming a grayish brown. The female is also smaller than the male.

Red-bellied Woodpeckers range from the Dakotas east to western New England through southern Ontario and south to central Texas and Florida. They are resident in the territory they occupy so their winter and summer ranges are approximately the same. Closely related species include the Golden-fronted, the Gila, the Cardon and the Brewster's Woodpeckers that extend the range to the south and west.

Nesting season for the Red-bellied Woodpecker is May and June. At that time a hole is dug in a tree or pole from 16 to 50 feet above ground. It has an entrance of 1 3/4 inches and a depth of about 1 foot. In it the 3 to 5 or more dull white eggs are laid. The eggs are incubated for two weeks by both parents and the young are helpless when hatched. With their first feathers the young resemble the mother and usually not until the following spring do the young males develop maturity and the characteristic red crown and nape. The birds may on occasion nest in boxes put up for their benefit.

The food of the Red-bellied Woodpecker is essentially insects gleaned or dug from trees. This includes caterpillars, beetles and their grubs and bugs of many sorts. The birds may on occasion follow the example of the Red-headed Woodpecker and feed on fruit and on corn, or it may follow the example of the Sap-suckers and tap trees and feed on the resulting sap that flows from the wounds thus made. In regions where the birds injure oranges they are naturally most unpopular. Ordinarily they are looked upon as interesting, harmless and often useful members of the wildlife population.

The National Wildlife Federation has featured this bird in its stamp series which have for many years presented the best illustrations of wildlife that have been obtainable anywhere. Through this service the Federation makes its contribution to the betterment of conditions for wildlife.

WHAT MINNESOTANS SHOULD KNOW ABOUT STATE FLOWER

Only recently did Minnesota select the Norway pine as our state tree, but for half a century "cypripedium reginae" has been our state flower — otherwise known as the pink and white lady slipper, or the moccasin flower. In 1893 the State Senate adopted, the House concurring, resolutions naming the wild lady slipper or moccasin flower, "cypripedium calceolus," the state flower, though the act is not recorded in the codified Laws of 1893. A few years later it was discovered that no such flower as cypripedium calceolus is native to Minnesota. In 1902 the "c. reginae" was adopted, though again only the Senate journal attests the fact, the act not having been transferred to the statutes. The state flag, adopted in 1893, shows an all-white lady slipper instead of the official pink-and-white flower.

ALMA T.: Is it safe for my husband to take bromides for nervousness every day?
ANSWER: Taking bromides indiscriminately may cause serious mental confusion, and is definitely not safe. See your family physician.

A vast rain-forest encircles the earth between the tropics, says the National Geographic Society. It extends across northern South America, central Africa, parts of India and the Malay peninsula, the East Indies, and northern Australia. "Mister Fixum's Handy Hints"

BY ERNIE GARDNER

WELL BASEMENT WINDOWS WHEN RAISING GRADE LEVEL

When raising the grade level above the bottom of the basement windows, the windows should be welled to prevent surface water from running into the basement.

Dig down about 12 inches below the bottom of the window sill.

The inside of the well when finished should not be less than 12" wide, and as long as the width of the window sill.

Lay up the walls of the well with brick or cement block and mortar. The top of the well should be at least three or four inches above grade level.

The bottom of the well should be drained with a tile to the storm sewer. This may be installed with a post hole auger.

Frequently window wells are drained by digging down to the cinder fill over the storm sewer, and filling in with more cinders or gravel up to the bottom of the well.

If your house has no foundation drain or storm sewer, there should be other provisions made for drainage.

It is possible to cover window wells with storm windows, or with plexiglass covers made for the purpose. Then, drainage would not be necessary.

So Goes The Mind

(Author of: What You Should Know About Mental Illness.)

YOUR PART IN THE NATION'S MENTAL HEALTH PROGRAM

(Conclusion)
Public institutions for the mentally ill are supported by State funds—money paid by you in taxes. Although as a nation we spent on these institutions over $400,000,000 in the year 1946, for example—that is, over $32,000,000 in a single month or over $1,000,000 in a single day—those figures are insufficient to keep up even the minimum physical standards that have been set up for such institutions.

There is serious over-crowding in many of them, many outmoded and even fire-hazardous buildings are still in use, although they have been officially condemned. But with no funds available for putting up new buildings, the authorities are compelled, despite serious misgivings, to continue to make use of inadequate over-crowded outmoded insanitary and, in some cases, unsafe structures. It takes the combined efforts of aroused citizens to remedy such conditions.

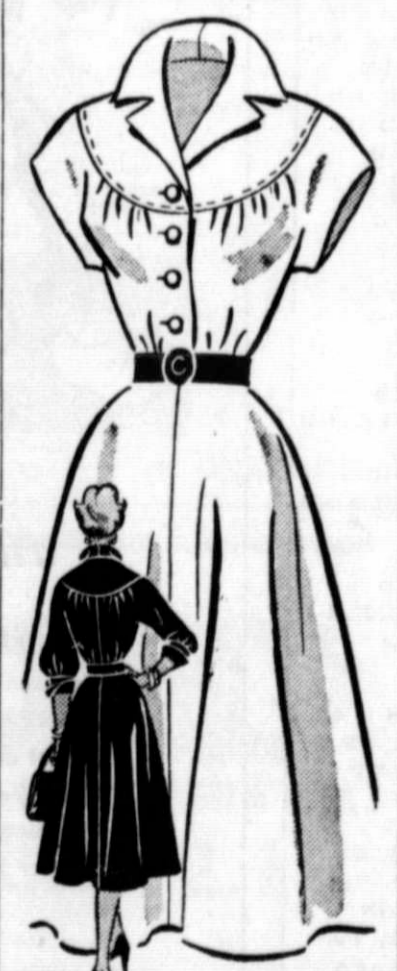

Then too, many more psychiatrists are needed—physicians specially trained to deal with mental disorders—as well as additional psychiatric personnel, nurses, social service workers and attendants to care for the mentally ill. In some public mental hospitals today, the ratio of doctors to patients is as low as one to 1,000.

There is, however, a brighter side to the picture: several forces are working valiantly towards improving our national mental health program. The National Institute of Mental Health provides governmental aid and among professional groups there are the American Psychiatric Association and the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry.

As a layman, you can do your part by supporting and joining in the efforts of the National Association for Mental Health. This lay group is working for the improvement of public mental institutions, for better legislation dealing with the whole subject, and for the establishment of centers for prevention treatment and research in mental diseases.

For information on how to improve conditions in your own community communicate with the National Association for Mental Health, 1790 Broadway, New York 19, N. Y.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS

INVITE YOUR NEIGHBORS TO A PARTY

It's spring again, or almost, and whether the sun shines or not, the first spring flowers are promise enough that beautiful days are not far away. It's time to think of having the neighbors in for a get-together before everyone gets too busy with the many activities that begin this time of year.

Don't put off inviting them until you can plan something fancy. Just pick up the telephone and say "Come on over for a cup of tea or coffee." You'll have a better time and so will your friends if you keep the foods simple. A platter of treats made from enriched yeast-raised breads can be as attractively served as the most elaborate tea cakes and just as tasty when accompanied by a cup of well made tea or coffee. And instead of being in the kitchen cooking during the party, you can be in the living room enjoying your company.

If your bakery sells French bread, you might like to make a pretty tray of toasted French bread slices topped with cottage cheese and the last of your very own strawberry jam or currant jelly. But if there's no French bread to be had, you can use toasted halves of enriched yeast-raised sandwich buns just as well.

Set your table with a pretty linen cloth and your prettiest china. Make the setting gay with sprigs of spring flowers. A wonderful time can be had by all, including you, at this kind of party!

Many delicious dishes of our grandmothers owed their unusual flavor to sour cream. The homemaker will be pleased by the good results of these recipes.

Veal Balls with Sour Cream

- 1 lb. ground veal
- 1 clove garlic minced
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Salt-pepper
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 egg beaten
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup fat
- 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
- 2 tablespoons flour
- One 3-oz. can mushrooms sliced and broiled
- 1 1/2 cups sour cream
- One 6-oz. package broad noodles

Combine veal, garlic, parsley, seasonings, milk, egg and crumbs. Mix thoroughly. Shape in small balls. Melt fat; add kitchen bouquet. Brown meat balls in mixture. Remove meat balls. Stir in flour. Add mushrooms and sour cream. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add meat balls. Cover and cook over low heat about 20 minutes. Cook noodles in boiling salted water; drain. Serve around meat balls and gravy.

Fried Corn with Sour Cream

- 2 cups whole kernel corn
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup chopped red and green peppers
- 1 teaspoon chopped onion
- 4 teaspoons flour
- 1 cup thick sour cream
- 3/8 teaspoon salt
- Pepper

Fry corn in 2 tablespoons butter. Melt remaining butter, add peppers and onion. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until tender. Add flour and mix well. Add sour cream and cook over low heat stirring constantly until thickened. Season with salt and pepper. Serve with corn.

Egg and Sour Cream Casserole

- 9 hard boiled eggs
- 6 tablespoons softened butter
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- 4 teaspoons minced parsley
- 1 2/3 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs

Cut eggs in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and mash. Add 3 tablespoons butter, onion, parsley, mustard, salt and pepper to mashed yolks. Fill egg whites with mixture. Place, cut side down in a shallow casserole. Cover with sour cream, sprinkle with bread crumbs, dot with remaining butter. Bake in an oven 350 degrees 25 minutes.

Cherry Pie

- 1/4 cup cherry juice
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 2 1/4 teaspoons cornstarch
 - Salt
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1 cup tart, pitted cherries
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1 egg beaten
 - 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1 baked pastry shell
- Combine juice, sugar, cornstarch, and salt; cook until thick, add butter and cherries. Combine flour, sugar and salt. Stir in cream. Cook in top of double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Add a little hot cream mixture to beaten egg. Return to double boiler. Cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Cool. Put cherry mixture in pastry shell. Top with sour cream mixture. Garnish with extra cherries. Chill.

REP. VAN PELT ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR RE-ELECTION

Rep. William K. Van Pelt, Republican of Fond du Lac, this week announced his candidacy for re-election to Congress from the Sixth District.

He will seek his party's nomination in the Sept. 14 primary and re-election in November. Congressman Van Pelt said nomination papers will be put in circulation on his behalf by friends this week.

The Wisconsin Representative was elected to Congress in 1950, winning the seat previously held by the late Rep. Frank R. Keefe, of Oshkosh. He was re-elected to Congress in 1952 by a margin of 61,495 votes.

In the Congress, Representative Van Pelt has served on the House Banking and Currency, and Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committees. In the latter group, he is serving as chairman of the subcommittee in charge of Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service and Maritime Schools.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

"One evening on the Siletz I was using a fine rod and line, perfectly balanced. I was using a tapered leader which I had built myself, with what I imagined was great care. I was shooting my line out to rising trout—wary fish, feeding in clear, still water. I simply was not putting my flies down so they'd fool the fish. The fault, I now know, was in the leader. This I have since proven in research and experiment."

That paragraph is from an article by Francis H. Ames in the April issue of Sports Afield magazine, in which Ames claims that hundreds of thousands of fly casters who say they are members of the "I can't fly cast without a hoot" club don't belong in such inept company.

He is convinced that many of those anglers would discover they have undreamed of fly-casting ability if they would pay less attention to rod and line balance, and more to leader construction.

All efforts in fly casting, the balancing of rod and line, the backcast, the forward cast, are aimed at the end result—straightening that leader out over the water so it will drift the fly down naturally. A wary trout in clear water won't take a sloppily laid down fly. All flies are laid down sloppily with sloppily built leaders. Ames thinks that 999 out of 1000 leaders used by the average angler, whether ready-made or homemade, are sloppily constructed. And no angler, however skillful, can lay down a fly decently with a poor leader.

Check these points: Does your leader straighten out to drift gently down, after the fly? Or does it land before the fly, with a splash that would send a dim-witted crawdad scuttling? Does your fly curl back toward you as it lands, or does it curl forcibly downward to hit the drink like a tossed stone? Well, don't blame the rod, the line, or yourself until you've checked that leader.

You can't blame yourself for the poor leaders that often cause you trouble. In measuring hundreds of coils of leader material with an extremely accurate micrometer, Ames found that nylon varied as much as 8/1000 of an inch from the labeled breaking strength. And most labels said nothing whatever about diameter!

It all comes down to this—as long as nylon leader material is packaged as it is being packaged today, in mismatched or inaccurately marked strengths, in breaking strengths rather than diameter, we'll do well to measure our strands with a micrometer before assembling them into leaders. We have available the finest leader material that is manufactured anywhere; all we have to do is use it correctly.

Don't Fool Children On Hospitalization

What you do and say before Junior goes to the hospital for surgery may have a good deal to do with how he behaves after he comes home.

In spite of periodic advice to parents about preparing youngsters for surgical operation, behavior problems that had obvious beginnings in a frightening hospital experience still show up, according to a bulletin.

The temptation to make light of the whole business and even to lie to the child about what is ahead seems to be too much for a good many otherwise sensible parents, the doctors say. The inevitable discovery that going to the hospital was not "fun" as his elders said, that the treatment hurt and that he was left alone with strangers, is likely to destroy his confidence in the general goodness of things, especially in the truthfulness of his parents. It may have serious consequences when he gets home, in terms of new fears and a return to childishness, even to such behavior difficulties as bed-wetting and a refusal to feed himself.

What can parents do about it? They can give the child a simple, straight-forward explanation about the anesthetic, the operation and the people who will be watching over him. If there is going to be pain and discomfort they can prepare the child for that, too, so that he will not feel he has been fooled. It is especially important that the child feel sure the doctors and the nurses who will care for him are on his side and are doing everything they can to help him get well.

Parents should also arrange to bring along to the hospital a familiar toy or a familiar blanket or pillow or a pair of bedroom slippers that will be a tie with home. In some cases they can also arrange to bring the child ahead of time to the hospital so that he can look around and feel less strange before surgical treatment is begun.

Most Beautiful Women Hokum

The latest bit of bunk to appear in the newspapers is a story telling of the selection, by a group of so-called experts, of the world's ten most beautiful women. Strangely enough the ten were famous people, and some would be adjudged homely by even the most generous judge.

As is the case with the ten best-dressed racket, and similar farcical selections of such talents as best-groomed women, etc., the selection of the world's ten most beautiful women is an impossibility.

The selection is actually a game played by those doing the selecting, some of whom curry favor with famous and wealthy women by selecting them for publicity honors. Of course, the most beautiful woman in the world may live in Podunk, and the metropolitan experts selecting the world's most beautiful women would never have an opportunity to see her, or a thousand others—all of whom would put the famous ten to shame.

The practice of making these selections provides newspaper copy, and furnishes the country bumpkin with a little hokum which he too often takes seriously. In other words, it's a farce from beginning to end.

HERE'S HOW . . .

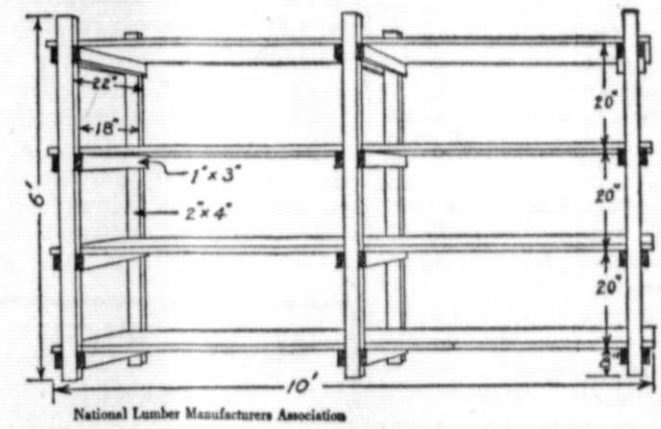

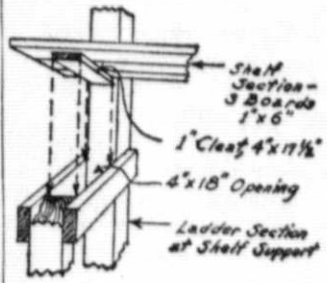

MAKE PORTABLE SHELVING

Shelving that is self-supporting, sturdy, and easy to move may be simply constructed with just hammer, saw, nails and square.

Make three double-rung ladders, using 2 by 4's for rails, nominal 1 by 4 lumber for rungs. Shelf boards are nominal 1 by 4 lumber, held together with cross-cleats of 1 by 4 lumber, spaced to fit into the slots formed by the double rungs.

The square is the most important tool in this job. The foot of each ladder must be perfectly square, and the upper edge of each rung must be perfectly placed.

A careful job will provide a tight-locking set of shelves.

National Lumber Manufacturers Association

Begin Early To Prevent Flat Feet

At the risk of adding still another to the already heavy list of precautions customarily handed to mothers of new babies some special advice has been issued about prevention of flat feet in babies.

The reason is that prevention won't wait until the youngsters can walk. Or even until they can sit up by themselves. It must begin from the time the baby is born, to make sure that lifelong disability is prevented. And the best thing about it is that it is simple. It consists merely of seeing to it that the baby is put down on his side instead of his back or his stomach to sleep. A small blanket rolled and tied can be used as a support behind shoulder and hip to keep him that way.

When the baby is put down to sleep on his back or stomach his legs are almost certain to turn out at a wide angle, the doctors point out by way of explanation. The feet are turned out so that the weight of them is on the big toe and inner surface, if he is on his stomach, and on the heel and outer edge if he is on his back.

The situation is aggravated in tiny babies by a heavy diaper, too, which is usually much too big. The diaper helps to spread the knees and rotate the hips.

It is true, the doctors say, that the resulting bowed legs and flat feet which show up when the baby takes his first steps often correct themselves. But quite often they don't—and corrective measures later are far more troublesome than prevention would have been.

Of course, the baby should be turned from side to side each time he is put down and he should be allowed to play on his stomach when he is awake and not in somebody's arms. Also, when he gets old enough, he should have a chair of his own, low enough so that his feet will touch the floor and he will not be tempted to sit on his feet too often and for too long a time, on the floor.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK — The recession appears to have stopped receding, except for possible seasonal shifts, which will not be large. The wholesale price index, usually an indicator of what is coming up in retail trade, edges upward. Two dozen economists questioned by the Wall Street Journal look for an upturn by a cautious majority.

It is almost impossible for the upturn to be a sharp one, unless Indochina becomes another Korea. Even then, it will be hard to start a panic rush to buy durables, such as took place in June and July, 1950. Everyone sees the stores and auto lots are well stocked.

Most economists discount the oft-heard fears that a depression can be started by psychological means. They say we can't scare one another out of buying what we really want and need. One psychological asset the administration does have, the economists say, is Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. He has kept the lid on the anti-recessionary expedients which are linked in most people's minds with the hungry 'thirties. A new WPA or PWA would have scared investment and spending into hiding.

THINGS TO COME — A baited electric trap kills insects with charges jumping between two grids . . . Cooking utensils for institutions are made to nest, one on top of the other, to keep several containers warm on one burner . . . A light to be attached to any square-base dial telephone concentrates a beam of light on the dial when the instrument is lifted . . . A scent muffler, to fit on the manifold of diesel engines, uses a catalyst to burn carbon monoxide and odoriferous hydrocarbons into harmless carbon dioxide.

DISAPPEARING CELLAR — One familiar feature of the American home is doing a vanishing act—the basement. According to an organization of clay floor tile and wall tile manufacturers, the wide-spread popularity of the ranch-type house has relegated the cellar to has-been status.

There's a deceiving note to this statistic. Whether the home has a basement or not, it still must have the functions of the basement performed. Therefore the laundry is being installed in a waterproof, clay-tiled corner of the kitchen or bathroom. The garage becomes the utility room. Tiled entry-ways to catch the brunt of wet and snowy clothes guard the rear entrances of ranch houses. The multi-purpose extra room plays host to family recreation, replacing the basement rumpus room.

JUST THE WAY IT WAS — A reformed advertising executive, Gerald Carson, has written an unobtrusively scholarly and charming book called "The Old Country Store," a history of this peculiarly American institution. Mr. Carson evokes the smell of heavily sized calico, the aroma of wet farm dogs under red-hot stoves, the grudging hospitality of the open cracker barrel, as artfully as have other writers whose whole stock was this evocation.

He has usefully gone further, however, and pointed out the tremendous influence of the country storekeeper in the filling up of the vast and empty continent. The country merchant assembled the cargoes that provided eastbound freight on the fast-growing network of railways, and distributed the goods the manufacturing East sent out in return. He was banker for the frontier producer, with no recourse if the far-away market went against him on his one payday a year.

A hundred times the country-bred reader of this book will say, "Yes, that's just the way it was." Nearly as often he will have to say "I never thought of that!"

"BITS O' BUSINESS" — World metal prices jumped when London took fright at Secretary Dulles' demand for getting tough with China . . . Really scarce articles are not getting stockpiled, the Office of Defense Mobilization complains, while domestic commodities are over bought . . . Steel mill output for the week just ended was 67.3 per cent of capacity . . . The changed date of Easter made department store sales look very good; 23 per cent up from the like week of 1953.

ENVIABLE RECORDS

Mrs. Anna Heise went to work in a Lake City store in 1910. This year, after 44 years on the same business site, she is retiring, not to rest but to "devote some time to other interests" . . . Mrs. Augusta Hembre is 88, lives in St. Louis Park, and is a great-grandmother; she also is an avid aviation enthusiast and is presently off on another aerial jaunt to California.

How to Use a Wrench

THE National Safety Council offers the following instructions for the safe and correct use of wrenches:

1. Use wrenches that are the right type and size for the job. Never use a piece of pipe on the handle to get more leverage.

WRENCHES

2. Use only wrenches having jaws in good condition; keep pipe wrench jaws sharp and clean.
3. Never use a shim to make the wrong size wrench fit the nut.
4. Do not use a wrench as a hammer. Such use weakens it.
5. Always place the wrench on the nut so that the pull on the handle tends to force the jaws further onto the nut.
6. Pulling on a wrench is safer than pushing. If you must push, keep your knuckles in the clear.

NEW ROOTS IN OIL SOIL—Using abandoned articles of war and stripped trunks of trees, South Korean refugees begin rebuilding in Yangju, north of the 38th parallel. Some 100 families returned to the area, which they left before the Communist push south in June, 1950. While the main concern is constructing homes for their families, Korean men are beginning to till and plant the soil from which land mines have been removed.

PUTTERING AROUND—Wearing a pert Scots tam and a sunny smile, lovely Ruth Hampton briefs herself on the fast-growing network of railways, and distributed the goods the manufacturing East sent out in return. He was banker for the frontier producer, with no recourse if the far-away market went against him on his one payday a year.

County Homemakers at Spring Council Meeting

May 5, at 7:45 p. m., 66 homemakers attended the Home Demonstration Spring Council meeting at the Slinger High school gym. Mrs. George Arnold, county president, presided over the meeting which was open to presidents and secretaries of the 34 home demonstration groups.

The program began with the Homemaker's Creed, followed by the secretary's report of the last council meeting and roll call, showing 4 clubs absent. Mrs. Lee Kissinger gave a treasurer's report after which Mrs. Arnold talked of educational TV and its importance to families. She pointed out the fact that the issue of educational television will be voted on in the 1954 November elections, and it is every family's duty to become familiar with facts about it. She also explained available bulletins and pamphlets entitled, "Facts about educational TV for Wisconsin," "What is Your Question?" Anyone interested in receiving information about educational TV may write to Mrs. Fred Rissler, 5019 Rissler Road, Madison.

Mrs. Arnold also told of the international Peace Gardens located in North Dakota and Canada, planned as a shrine of recognition of 138 years of peace between the United States and Canada. The State Home Demonstration Council contributed a sum of money toward the shrine.

Miss Anita Gundlach, assistant state leader in home economics extension, led a panel discussion "What's Ahead in '54?" This discussion was centered around program planning ideas to help bring out problems of today's families, and what people can expect during this year. Mrs. Chester Cameron participated in the panel, discussing the present situation concerning food for the family. Facts were brought out to show that Wisconsin families need better diets with more milk, vitamin C foods and green and yellow vegetables. Better planning of the rural family in home gardens would supply vegetables and fruits of good quality that could be preserved for year round use.

The clothing dollar was discussed by Mrs. Donald Roemer who explained that homemakers will want to make the best buys for the money they have to spend on clothing. Better care, more careful selection, and studies of new fabrics may help the rural homemaker in planning her clothing dollar.

Mrs. Lee Kissinger pointed out that consumer spending has slackened slightly, since families have been saving more and making payments on mortgages and debts and spending a little more for recreation. Most families want more than they can buy. Over half the homes have TV sets, 82% have refrigerators and 97% have radios. Prices have changed little but trade-ins and special discounts have tended toward lower prices.

Wisconsin families have been improving their homes which was brought out by Mrs. Elmer Hensler, who added interesting figures on equipment in the homes. 91% of the Washington county farm families have electricity, 59% have telephones, 44% have freezers, 88% electric washing machines. Prices of building materials have declined and for many farm families water systems are the next step.

Mrs. Albert Thiel emphasized a very important fact concerning families getting along together and understanding each other. With an increase in the birth rate and life span of our families, there will be a greater need for adjustments within family groups. There will be more children in schools, in college later on, and more adults still later.

Miss Gundlach pointed out many interesting figures concerning economic conditions, bringing out local comparisons of family living in Washington county with that of the state. She indicated that families will find an increase in cost of telephone, public transportation, medical care, rents, dry cleaning with little decrease in most items.

These comparisons and figures brought out in the discussion at the council meeting are to be considered and worked into possible program planning ideas. Each club president is receiving a copy of the topics that were discussed at the meeting. It is suggested that clubs use this information as a discussion at their meetings.

After the program closed with the Prayer Creed, the Cedar Lake Homemakers served refreshments which included delicious cookies and cocoa made with dry milk solids.

The H.N.O. homemakers planned the lovely decorations of Maypole centerpieces trimmed with colorful geraniums.

A special thanks is given to the home demonstration groups that participated in putting up interesting dairy window displays around the county during National Demonstration Week.

$50.00 SCHOLARSHIP TO BE GIVEN BY HOMEMAKERS

At the council meeting mention was made of a $50.00 scholarship available to high school senior girls who plan to continue studies in home ec. or nursing. Any girl who is interested may receive an application at the home agent's office in the P. O. building at West Bend, and should do so by May 15.
